Get ready ... It's strawberry season

The second weekend in June is almost here and that means it time for the Crawfordsville Strawberry Festival to occupy the grounds of the historic lane place.

Chairman S. David Long takes time out to place signs around the grounds as friendly reminders.

Look for a special festival guide in Thursday's Journal Review.

Re-opening of the downtown Ben-Hur building planned

For the Journal Review

AP Development LLC announced the grand re-opening of the historic Ben-Hur building in downtown Crawfordsville will take place later this month.

After more than 20 years of vacancy and deterioration, the iconic structure at 227 E. Main St. has been revitalized to offer sophisticated urban living in a unique, historic setting.

The grand opening celebration will take place June 20, beginning with a ceremonial ribbon-cutting ceremony with Crawfordsville Mayor Todd Barton at 2 p.m. The event will run from 2-6 p.m. and will be catered by locally-based Juniper Spoon.

A COUNTRY FEELING

McFalls blend past and present

For the Journal Review

Editor's Note: Throughout the months of May and June, the Flower Lovers Garden Club will highlight each of the eight gardens featured in its 17th Bi-annual Garden & Art Tour. The event will take place 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. June 29 (rain or shine).

Marc and Karen McFall always knew that in retirement they wanted to move to Montgomery County, where Karen grew up. They did exactly that in the fall of 2021.

Their home in Cicero had a farm field behind it and they were looking for that same country feeling in Crawfordsville. They found it at 1251 W. Country Club Road.

The front of the house, which faces north, already had beautiful landscaping with large Hostas and Hydrangeas. The McFalls added additional plants such as an Oak Leaf Hydrangea and Perennial Geraniums to make a fuller landscape. The real transformation of this yard happened in the back. When they moved in the backyard was pretty much a blank slate. There were a few nice trees and a small flower bed. Although the backyard had good bones, Marc and Karen knew they needed to focus their attention here to make it their own.

The transformation began the spring of 2022. The first step was to have a fence built around the perimeter and two decks built. One deck on the house and one on the garage. Once this was done Karen could see her vision for the backyard. She wanted flower beds all around the fencing and several places to sit and enjoy the yard. There was a challenge though. Their

Patricia L. Ewbank

March 31, 1942-June 7, 2025

Patricia L. Ewbank, 83, of Rockville, passed away Saturday, June 7, 2025, at The Lane House in Crawfordsville.

She was born March 31, 1942, at her grandparents' home in Tangier, Indiana, to the late James Ray and Pauline Mildred Reddenbaugh Ray Millem.

Patricia was a devoted homemaker who found joy in her family and home. She attended Marshall Federated Church and loved spending time outdoors, especially gardening.

Survivors include three daughters: Cynthia Hampton (Terry Switzer) of Crawfordsville, Pam Smith of Rockville and Angie Pittman of Marshall; seven grandchildren: Christina, Joshua, Mandi, Larissa, Colten, Alisha and Jacob; 11 great-grandchildren; and two special friends, Connie Stratton and Carla Kingery.

She was preceded in death by her husbands, Kenneth J. Smith, Kenneth Pittman and John Alden Ewbank; two brothers, Jeff Ray and Greg Ray; son-in-law Lonnie Ross; and grandson Jayvin Elijah Cole Smith.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday, June 12 at Gooch Funeral Home, 112 W. Howard St., Rockville, with Pastor Steve Blaydes Jr. officiating. Burial will follow in Rush Creek Cemetery, Tangier. Visitation will be from noon to 2 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home.

Memorials should friends so desire, may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105-9959 in her

IDOH reports potential record-low infant death rate

An early review of Indiana's 2024 infant death records showed a year-over-year decline — potentially reaching a historic low, according to provisional data from the state health department.

Indiana's Department of Health reported an infant mortality rate of 6.3 deaths per 1,000 live births, down from 6.6 deaths in 2023. If the rate holds after final review, it would be Indiana's lowest since the state began tracking the measure in 1900. The previous low was 6.5 deaths in 2019, according to IDOH data.

Bette Cathryn Vaught

March 28, 1929-June 7, 2025

Bette Cathryn Vaught, 96, of Crawfordsville, died Saturday, June 7, 2025.

She was born March 28, 1929, at Thorntown, to the late George M. and Ethel E. (Fisher) Rice. After an active childhood running the streets of Thorntown with her friends (she knew the location of all the best fruit trees), she moved to Indianapolis with her parents in the 1940s, where she enjoyed riding the streetcars and visiting the theaters. She graduated from the old Manual High School in 1947, and worked for a time at Stewart-Warner manufacturing.

In the late 40s, Bette's cousins introduced her to Raymond C. "Poke" Vaught of Crawfordsville. They were married Aug. 18, 1950. She loved her new large family (Poke was one of fourteen brothers), and Crawfordsville was home for the rest of her life. After who is focused on protecting our most vulnerable Hoosiers," Gov. Mike Braun said in a Tuesday statement. "We are committed to ensuring that even more babies have a healthy start and a strong future."

Infant mortality refers to the death of a child before their first birthday and is often seen as a key indicator of overall public health. Indiana has long struggled to lower its rate, particularly among marginalized populations and in rural areas. For years, the state ranked among the worst in the nation.

"We are ecstatic that more Hoosier babies are celebrating their first birthdays," said State Health Commissioner Dr. Lindsay Weaver. "Seeing these efforts pay off is something to celebrate, and we are grateful to clinicians, healthcare centers and affiliates, local health Poke died Jan. 6, 1973, she became a volunteer Pink Lady at Culver Union Hospital, where she was later employed for 31 years as a medical records coder, retiring days before her 80th birthday. She was a member of Christ's United Methodist Church.

Bette loved to read (especially mysteries) and work crossword puzzles, and she loved all things chocolate. She will be remembered for the selfless love she showed to her children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews. Her written advice left to her family was to read books, eat chocolate for her, and please be good and love one another.

Bette is survived by daughter Debra (Sid) Zachary of Avon; son Thomas (Debra) Vaught of Crawfordsville; grandchildren, Mary (Josh) Fossnock of Frankfort, Grace Vaught (Chris Baker) of Crawfordsville and Samuel Vaught (Brett Roberts) of Massachusetts; great-grandchildren, Joshua, Madelynn, Matthew, Oliver, Olivia and Rosalie; brother-in-law Edwin "Doc" Vaught; sister-in-law Myrna Vaught; and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

In addition to her parents and husband, Bette was preceded in death by sister Eva Wetherald; two infant brothers; beloved cousins and friends; and her large group of brothers- and sisters-in- law.

A funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 14 at Burkhart Funeral Home. Friends and family may call beginning at 10:30 a.m. Burial will be private at Oak Hill Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, please send donations to Christ's United Methodist Church or the Crawfordsville District Public Library.

departments and all our other partners for their collective efforts."

Indiana's rate still remains above the national average, however. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the national infant mortality rate was 5.6 deaths per 1,000 live births in 2023. The federal "Healthy People 2030 goal" is to lower the national rate to 5 deaths per 1,000 births.

IDOH officials pointed to ongoing efforts through Health First Indiana. The initiative supports partnerships between the state health department and local groups to improve prenatal care access, support home visiting services, promote breastfeeding, and expand education on infant safe sleep practices. IDOH also reviews hospital discharge and fatality data to guide future interventions.

NBA Finals return to Indiana

Indiana, it's finally your turn again. After a 25-year wait, the NBA Finals returns to the place where basketball is king. Indianapolis will be the scene, and the Indiana Pacers will host the Oklahoma City Thunder in Game 3 of the Finals, with the series tied 1-1.

TYLER SMITH

Before we preview today's game, I wanted to reflect on what this moment means to so many people. For years, the Pacers have been a constant source of joy for basketball lovers in this state. It's a franchise that has even united Hoosier and Boiler fans together. From Reggie Miller and Rik Smits, to the Paul George teams that went toe-to-toe with Miami, to the current squad led by Tyrese Haliburton, the Pacers have brought a lot of pride to fans for decades. And now, it's their second-ever trip to the NBA Finals, and the people are as passionate as ever about their beloved team.

I asked Pacer fans over social media what it means to them to see their team back on the biggest stage in the sport again. I received over 200 replies in just a few hours, which says a lot by itself.

previous yard in Cicero had a lot of mature trees so it was very shady. The new house had a very sunny yard. This required a whole new way of thinking when planning what to plant and where to plant it.

Karen brought many starts from their previous yard. Mostly shade loving Hostas. One tree in the new yard provided the shade needed to create a small Hosta garden. It wasn't long before Karen realized she needed a deck with a swing in the shady area. Marc built that deck and provided Karen with her favorite place to sit to enjoy the whole yard.

Built in 1912 as the headquarters of the Supreme Tribe of Ben-Hur, a fraternal organization formed in 1893 and named after Gen. Lew Wallace's best-known novel, the Ben-Hur building has been a cherished landmark in Crawfordsville. Renovated in 1940 to add art deco features, the Ben-Hur housed offices for physicians, attorneys and other professionals for decades. With its rich past and the new vision for its future, the re-opening marks a new chapter for both the building and the community.

Here are some of my favorite replies:

Jeremiah Clark said: "It means that all the days of my dad putting the pacers spirit through me is paying off. I just wish he was here to see it with me, but Wednesday I get to take part of my dad with me with his ashes to the finals so we can both be in attendance."

Aaron Daeger has a similar experience: "I was 10 when my dad took me to a finals game in 2000. He is why I love basketball and this team so much. He has since passed and when I am at Game 4, it will be emotional on many levels. Win or Lose its going to be something I never forget."

@EYIndy said this: "Validation. For crying in my seat after Tayshaun blocked Reggie. For staying loyal during Diener, Dunleavy, and Murphy days. For hopelessly cheering against LeBron. For convincing myself Turbonis could work. For trusting Oladipo. For overcoming Malice in the Palace. For Reggie."

Patrick Judd added: "It means closure, for VO, for PG24, for everyone that came before this 2025 team. It means Indiana as a team and a state finally gets the respect it deserves."

Other fans said things like: "It's like re-living my childhood," to "it means so much I'm flying across the country to see it," and "it means the underdog can make it." While others talked about shooting hoops at night with the street-lights on, or how this Finals run is "like a dream."

The nostalgia and the new memories are both amazing, but do these Pacers actually have what it takes to win the championship? It's been a magical run to say the least, but Indy's biggest challenge is the one staring them in the face. Oklahoma City is an incredible team that has won over 80 games this season (including playoffs). And the fact is, they have looked like the better team through the first two games.

The good news for the Pacers, is that the Thunder have looked very human on the road in the playoffs. In seven road games, the Thunder are 4-3 and don't have any dominant wins. They've been blown out a few times, and have simply been a much more dominating team when they're on their home court. Can the Pacers protect home court today and take a 2-1 series lead? If they can do it, it would set the stage for a massive opportunity in Game 4 on Friday.

The Pacers need a bigger effort from their star players Tyrese Haliburton and Pascal Siakam. This is a team that has responded to losses all season, and they actually haven't lost back to back games in three months. They've also won 11 straight games when coming off a double-digit loss. It's a resilient team that will look to show that resiliency again.

My biggest question for the Thunder: How will the role players play on this stage away from their home stadium? If they aren't impacted by the moment and the environment, it could be lights out for the Pacers dream. If they are, the dream could become a reality.

The first team to win four games will become NBA Champions for the first time in their franchise' history. The wait is over, and the Finals have returned. Enjoy every minute of this amazing ride.

This year Marc added onto this deck to provide a play space for their granddaughter, Tinsley.

Karen has always loved Day Lilies. The west side of the yard provided the perfect place for a Day Lily garden. When the Day Lilies are in bloom it is a beautiful sea of color. Each year the McFalls plant more perennials.

Marc likes the economics of more perennials and less annuals. Karen loves to see the flowers return each spring after a long winter nap. Impatiens are Karen's favorite annual flower. In every bit of shade, in this primarily sunny yard, you will find red, orange, pink and white Impatiens.

Just south of the house you will find an area for birds with feeders and bird baths. The McFalls have frequent visits from a variety of birds such as woodpeckers and songbirds.

In the back part of the yard, you can enjoy a fire pit with swings all built by Marc. The back corner of the yard is devoted to Karen's farming upbringing with a shed barn and windmill. The windmill brings back memories of long ago to the farm that Karen's grandparents had near Crawfordsville.

Over the years the McFalls have enjoyed recycling old materials such as wooden fence boards and using them to create flower bed borders. They also have used items in a different way then intended such as using mailboxes to store gardening tools. Basically, they enjoy using whatever material they find interesting to create a yard with different textures for example, using wood, brick, and rock to create decks and paths. The flower beds display decorative items that have been found at antique stores and flea markets. They love to fill the yard with things that make them happy.

By now you can see that the McFall yard is a collaboration between Marc and Karen. They hope visitors will enjoy a stroll through their yard and realize one thing is for sure, you can never have too many swings or flowers to make a yard feel like home.

Callous mockery strikes a nerve for parent

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, I found out my adult child is transgender. Nobody knows yet except for me, my husband and my other child. Until this year, I have always worked in a very caring, loving and supportive environment. Recently, I overheard a new male co-worker say in a high-pitched voice, "I'm transgender! I'm transgender!" while spinning in circles and waving a scarf around his head. I was floored.

I wanted to say something to him about that being inappropriate and hurtful, but I was speechless. I have never before encountered this type of behavior. How do I handle this if something similar happens again? My child is not ready for the world to know, so I need to be careful. I'm kicking myself for not speaking up at the time. — REGRETFUL IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR REGRETFUL: It is unfortunate that transgender people (who make up less than 1% of the population) are being scapegoated by ignorant, ill-informed individuals. Gender identity disorder is not contagious. Trans people are a danger to no one, and they don't deserve to be ridiculed. The next time this happens (and it may), don't be shy about telling your co-worker that what he's doing is inappropriate and hurtful and not to do it in front of you again.

DEAR ABBY: I have been having a friend-with-benefits relationship with a man I'll call "Gene." We are both in our 70s. He lives an hour away, and we see each other once a month. Gene is married, but his wife is disabled, and their relationship has deteriorated. We used to work together, and he was very lonely when I met him. Gene feels responsible for his wife and will never leave her, which is fine with me. I am not interested in a full-time boyfriend.

My issue is, if my two adult children found out about this, they would be very judgmental. I know it would damage my relationship with them. On the other hand, I don't want to live my life on their terms. What do you think of all this? — HAPPY, BUT WORRIED, IN FLORIDA

DEAR HAPPY: I think that at the age of 70 you are mature enough to make your own decisions.

I also think that you need to be strong enough to defend them should the need arise. Because you are living in fear of their eventually finding out that you are happy with the relationship you have with Gene, it would be better for you to tell them yourself.

DEAR ABBY: You have printed many letters from women living with deadbeat men. I wish you would write about the benefits of living alone and not needing a man in your life to feel complete. — ALONE AND CONTENT IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR A & C: Every letter I print regarding "deadbeat" men (and their female equivalents) is an object lesson in itself. The writers are overworked, frustrated and miserable. I can't think of a stronger message to send readers than the ones in those letters, which speak for themselves. No man at all is better than one who is a user.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

the daily interactions and the dynamic environment of the classroom, she is ready to embrace new adventures and experiences.

Bumgardner has also been teaching for 41 years with six of them as the preschool teacher at Rockville Christian Church before coming to Rockville Elementary School. In addition to preschool, she has taught third grade for 10 years, kindergarten for 14 years and has been a Title 1 teacher and building coordinator for 10 years.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed teaching children and being a part of their lives. My position has also allowed me to be creative when planning events, directing shows, and decorating the building," Bumgardner said.

She is going to miss the RES staff who have been truly the best, according to Susan. Along with her husband, Brad, she plans to travel to visit their children and grandchildren. They will also be managing their properties and working on various projects.

Starting at Turkey Run Elementary in 2000, Beil has been an art teacher at all levels for 25 years. She began her teaching career in 1986.

"I have enjoyed working in all levels of art education," Beil said. "It has been amazing to see students grow from kindergarten to high school and through graduation. The relationships that were built and continue into their adulthood has been a blessing."

She will miss being able to encourage students to grow and change in their art and in the lives as well as the people upon her retirement.

As of right now, she doesn't have any specific plans for her retirement.

"I am praying for guidance in where the Lord is leading me and my husband," Beil said. "We want to serve Him in some way."

As she leaves her education career, she has enjoyed being a part of the artistic growth of the students. Artistic expression is a key element of children's development.

And in the words of the dolphins, "So long, and thanks for all the fish."

She notes: "So long, and thanks for all the fish" is a humorous idiom used to say goodbye, acknowledging the positive experiences received during the time spent. This comes from "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy," a fantasy where dolphins used the phrase as they left Earth just before it was destroyed.

Clore has been an important member of the custodial staff for 28 years mostly recently working at Rockville Elementary and Parke Heritage High School.

Traveling with his wife, spending time with his grandchildren and remodeling his house are Clore's retirement plans.

Stillwell has 33 years of service having started working at Rockville Elementary in 1986. Her husband had just started the police academy, so she began working part time and later went to full-time hours.

"My plans are to clean my house from top to bottom, work in her yard and travel," Stillwell said. "I have enjoyed working with everyone and I will miss them."

Elvis takes center stage in July at Beef House

For the Journal Review

COVINGTON — The hits of Elvis are center stage this summer at the Beef House Dinner Theatre, but not in the form of an impersonator. More than 30 of his hits come to life reimagined in the Broadway-style musical, All Shook Up.

All Shook Up made its Broadway debut in 2005 and has been a touring and regional theatre hit for years. It was written by Joe DiPietro, the Tony Award winning creator of Memphis.

The legendary songs of Elvis Presley ignite a rockin' romp set in the Fabulous '50s. It's 1955, and into a square little town in a square little state rides a guitar-playing roustabout who changes everything and everyone he meets in this hip-swiveling, lip-curling rock and roll comedy that'll have you jumpin' out of your blue suede shoes. Mistaken identity, mismatched lovers and the magic of romance come together in this free-wheeling jukebox classic featuring such hits as "Heartbreak Hotel," "Jailhouse Rock," "Love Me Tender" and "Don't Be Cruel."

Noah Acree, of Danville, Illinois, leads the cast as Chad. Noah has been a perennial favorite at the Beef House for many years charming audiences with his comedic timing and limber dance moves. Noah is best remembered for his performances in Teen Angels and Teen Angels: Let's Twist Again. He appears opposite Alexis Johnson, also of Danville, as Natalie. Johnson is remembered for her powerful vocal performances in R.E.S.P.E.C.T. and the 2025

Beef House Christmas Show. They are joined on stage by Jason Asaad, Nancy Henderson, Ter'Ryan White, London Clark, Lexxus Tetter, Cory Talbott, Ky'Eshia Maze and Tim Kirby. Nehemiah Maze and Laynie Ferriman round out the ensemble. Maze and Clark will provide original choreography.

The cast is accompanied by a live band featuring Jeff Davis on piano, Chris Taylor on guitar, Todd Gallagher on bass, Aaron Bouslog playing percussion and Jennifer Woodrow on keyboard.

All Shook Up opens with an evening performance on July 11 followed by matinees on July 12, 13, 16, 17, 19 & 20 as well as an additional evening show on July 18. Doors open for dinner at 6:00 pm for evening shows with an 8:00 pm show. For matinees, doors open at 12:30 p.m. or lunch and the show begins at 2 p.m. All times are eastern. A buffet meal is served after doors open until 15 minutes prior to show time.

All seats are $68 and include show, buffet dinner, salad, famous Beef House rolls, soft drink, dessert, tax & fees. Group rates are also available for groups of 20 or more. For reservations call the box office at 217-499-5355 or visit www.beefhouserolls.com

The Beef House is located off Interstate 74 of Exit 4 at State Road 63 near Covington. There is currently some construction around the 63/74 intersection. The Beef House website will keep patrons updated on any detours and closures for their safety and convenience.

Bill Safeguards Parental Rights in Schools

Photo Provided

Gov. Mike Braun ceremonially signs into law a bill co-sponsored by State Rep. Matt Commons (R-Williamsport) to safeguard parental rights in Indiana schools on May 21 at the Statehouse in Indianapolis. Commons said Senate Enrolled Act 143 adds needed protections to ensure parents retain the authority to make these decisions for their children, while also placing limits on Indiana governmental entities' ability to interfere unless necessary. Pictured are, from left, Ryan McCann, Executive Director of the Indiana Family Institute, Commons, Braun, law co-authors State Sens. Scott Alexander (R-Muncie) and Brett Clark (R-Avon), and Josh Hershberger, Director of the Church Ambassador Network and General Counsel for the Indiana Family Institute.
