Tradition

Ironman Raceway is one of the newer premier motocross facilities in the country but is certainly no stranger to racing and large events. The 2025 schedule will mark the first time ever the facility will host the nation's largest motocross event namely the Monster Energy Motocross of Nations and will culminate in a world championship.

Additionally, the 31st Annual Ironman GNCC, the season finale of the Grand National Cross Country Series, America's premier off-road racing series. This annual autumn tradition since 1995, this year's Ironman GNCC on Oct. 24 – 26 will once again feature the world's fastest off-road motorcycle and ATV racers on the twelve-mile course through the fields, woods, and creeks of the raceway.

The Shaver Family who operate Tom's Marine Sales and farm the hundreds of acres surrounding Ironman Raceway, have a family history of off-road racing. After meeting the promoters of the storied Blackwater 100, the legendary off-road race in Davis, West Virginia, the Shaver's invited Jeff Russell of Racer Productions to visit their property as a potential location for a Grand National Cross Country Series event. Russell scouted the property with the Shavers and returned the following year with the GNCC Racing Series in tow, who have since looked forward to returning to this colorful piece of off-road paradise every fall. Visit gnccracing.com for tickets and information for the 2025 Ironman GNCC.

2025 Ironman National

Crawfordsville and the state of Indiana will host the world's most prestigious motocross series when the Pro Motocross Championship roars into Ironman Raceway on Saturday, August 9th. This 12th Annual event serves host for round nine of the nationwide Pro Motocross Championship featuring the world's fastest motocross riders.

Driving to Ironman Raceway, you will notice the land surrounding the facility looks flat. Where are the hills? Where's the elevation change? Is there really a motocross track here? You park your family in the huge flat field—perfect for camping and pitting, and head out to check out the big rigs in the easily accessible pro pits. Then you walk toward the track and suddenly something happens: the ground opens up, drops down, and practically swallows the race track whole. The Ironman Raceway track doesn't just offer up elevation change, it offers up some of the biggest, steepest combinations of jumps and hills in the entire series you have to see to believe. You've already sensed that the rest of the track is perfect: The dirt, the obstacles, the sightlines. Add in those hills, and you've got pure motocross. By the end of the day that deep soil grows rough and rutted, and only those wise in old-school motocross techniques like standing up and changing lines-riding smarter instead of harder—will succeed. The dynamic terrain seems almost like a combination of every track in the series, all rolled into one place. Indiana is said to be the crossroads of America, and the Ironman National track is the perfect crossroads to determine America's motocross champions each year.
