Pickleball Club seeks Foley location

By JESSICA VAUGHN
jessica@gulfcoastmedia.com

FOLEY — The Club Administrator of the Coastal Alabama Pickleball Club, Bob Webb, attended the Monday, Dec. 19 Foley council along with fellow representatives, proposing the possible addition of a pickleball park in the area.

While the council approves of the idea in general, the desired location the club has set their sights on has caused concern through the members. Webb requested use of 6.6 acres at the Coastal Alabama Farmers and Fishermen's Market, beginning at the retention pond and moving west.

"We're looking for a long-term lease, and trying to do something that makes sense to everybody," Webb said. "I think it would be a good partner with the hotel that is in discussion to go there, because when people come to town to play, it'll be their first choice to walk across the street, to play and eat."

While he states the club wants to keep the land as a park and not commercialize it, the proposed game park falls right in an area that would be difficult to negotiate.

The location belongs to both the Coastal Alabama Farmers and Fishermen's Market and the co-operative, and while the council

Final phase of PZK project set to begin in 2018

By JOHN UNDERWOOD
john@gulfcoastmedia.com

ROBERTSDALE — Nearly six years after budgeting the project, the Robertsdale City Council put the wheels in motion Dec. 18 to begin the final phase of PZK Hall renovations, in all a close to $1 million project, officials said.

The project was part of the city's 2012-13 budget which was unanimously passed in September of 2012. The initial project utilized a $100,000 Federal appropriation obtained in 2010 from U.S. Rep. Jo Bonner.

Initial plans called for replacing the wooden decking on the west side of the building with a poured concrete deck and constructing a T-wing on the east side of the building, providing a side entrance to the building and a 1,000 square foot covered canopy. Plans were later changed to move the concrete decking to the east side of the building and the covered side entrance to the west side.

The city later approved a project for the property, which included a paved split entrance/exit and landscaping.

The current phase of the project will be to add 3,000 square feet to the back of the building, including a kitchen, restrooms and a meeting room. One of the current restrooms will be turned into a dressing room, while the other will become a hallway leading into the back of the building. There were also plans to completely strip and replace the roof with a new metal structure, bringing the new roofline in sync with the additions to the building.

The council voted unanimously at its Dec. 18 meeting to allow City Engineer Greg Smith to begin the bid advertisement process for the project. Smith said each phase of the project would be bid separately, beginning with the foundation.

In all, Murphy said, the city has spent about $900,000 renovating the facility, which generates about $20,000 a month in rental revenue.

"This is truly a public service project," Murphy said.

According to an article published in The Independent in January of 1994, the 6,000 square foot structure was originally built in 1924 and added to in the 1950s.

The PZK (which stands for Poucny a Zabavni Krouzek, translated as Educational Recreational Circle), a group of Czechoslovakian immigrants, built the structure to serve settlers which came to Robertsdale from the North in the 1920s. The Hall was also used by German and Swedish settlers.

The PZK donated the property to the City of Robertsdale on Aug. 17, 1992, and was closed for just over a year, from Dec. 10, 1992 to just before Christmas of states that the land owners normally don't have an issue with anything that will improve the location, it can still take a long time to get approval when going through multiple boards. More so, the council has already designated the location as greenspace, which causes them more concern over if they wish to change it or leave it as is.

"I like your proposal, but that particular location concerns me," said councilman Charlie Ebert III. "I think it's important that we preserve a lot of that area in the greenspace that we designated it as. Before we proceed, I think we need to be extremely careful, because we don't know how things are going to build out around the Farmers Market."

Webb likes the loca-tion's proximity to the Foley Sports Tourism complex and both developed and planned hotels in the area. Still, the council feels that considering alternative locations may be the best option.

"Honestly I love that location, it's very good because of the symmetry that you'd have with the rest of the sports going on there," said City Administrator Mike Thompson. "Plus it's right there where you'd have people coming to play pickleball, and they could eat and shop in Foley ... In terms of complexity, the fact that this property is partially in the CAFFM and the other part is partially in the co-operative, it's a complex arrangement with multiple boards."

Webb stated with the current rise in pickleball demand, the area would benefit from the inclusion of such a park.

"What we're attempting to do is leverage the size of our local pickleball club," Webb stated, "which is 750 members and it's growing by the day, into a game park that includes pickleball, bocce, cornhole, and washers, so there's something to do, keeping people active."

The club's plans include a five-phase project. Phase one would see eight pickleball courts, a 60x40 kitchen, an 80x40 covered patio where visitors could enjoy meals or get out of the sun, restrooms on location, and a pro shop, offices, and storage. Kids would also be able to enjoy a playground, a kids' game lawn, a cornhole lawn, a washer lawn, and one acre of parking. Phase two would include four bocce courts, eight lighted pickleball courts, and using the bocce courts as a foundation to drop rental bleachers during tournaments. Phase three would see eight additional courts, a second cornhole lawn and washer lawn, and another one acre of parking. Phase four would bring 12 more pickleball courts, and the final phase, which would call for additional land, would be for the Foley Pickleball State University.

"All this is being done through private investment dollars, and the bill for all five phases will be about $3.5 million dollars," said Webb. "But we will do it in phases ... We're trying to mitigate risk by doing this slowly, gently, and carefully, paying attention to what our customers want."

The club hopes to use the money brought in by paddle rentals and the kitchen to help fund the park and help it expand, while also keeping prices low and affordable to everyone.

The council decided to discuss the matter further to determine if a second location for the proposed game park would be ideal, or if there would be a future for the park in the chosen location near the Farmers Market. The council hopes to bring the item back during the second January council.

The Way Home

For years, I have loved re-reading Dylan Thomas' "A Child's Christmas in Wales" during this season. The poem opens with a line so evocative of my own yuletide memories:

"One Christmas was so much like another, in those years around the sea-town corner now and out of all sound except the distant speaking of the voices I sometimes hear a moment before sleep, that I can never remember whether it snowed for six days and six nights when I was twelve or whether it snowed for twelve days and twelve nights when I was six."

As adults, we spend a great deal of energy trying solve the puzzle of our longing for the past, trying to recapture wholly those experiences that return to us only as a fleeting glimpse or a whisper just between our waking and sleeping. For me, these moments of "homesickness" are never more acute than at Christmas. I believe the reason for this is that these memories are uniquely imbued with the reality of my ultimate home, heaven. Christmas in a Christian home weaves the best of life (faith, hope, and love) around the deep reality of the gospel: God in Christ for us.

Thomas closes with these words: "Looking through my bedroom window, out into the moonlight and the unending smoke-colored snow, I could see the lights in the windows of all the other houses on our hill and hear the music rising from them up the long, steady falling night. I turned the gas down, I got into bed. I said some words to the close and holy darkness, and then I slept."

It is the desire to connect to "the close and holy darkness" to which our lives are drawn, around which our memories orbit, that guides us to the solution of the puzzle of our past. The only way home is not backward, but forward, not in the futile attempts to recreate what has disappeared, but in the faithful decision to believe and to share with others that the best is yet to come, that there is a Father, a Brother, a family, a feast, and a home prepared for us.

In addition to networking, food and door prizes, participants were asked to bring an unwrapped toy to be donated to Catholic Social Services. Business After Hours is held the second Tuesday of every month at various business locations in Central Baldwin. There will be no Business

After Hours in January while the Chamber prepares for its Annual Meeting and Banquet, to be held Thursday, Jan.

1993, while the city spent about $100,000 to renovate the building.

In February of 1994, the property was dedicated to the city with the property being renamed PZK Civic Park and the meeting hall named the PZK Civic Center.

In other business Dec. 18, the council approved the selection of Goodwyn, Mills & Cawood to prepare bid specs for sludge lagoon cleanout and authorized Smith to begin the bid advertisement process for the project.

Smith told council members that the lagoon, which was built in the late 1970s to early 1980s, has never been cleaned out and is at capacity.

Goodwyn, Mills & Cawood would be charged with developing a plan for the cleanout while keeping the disruption of service provided by the lagoon to a minimum.

"There will be some disruption while the lagoon is being cleaned out," Smith said. "I'm not sure at this point how long it's going to take, but it could take 6 to 8 months. Again, I'm not really sure."

The council approved the engineering contract at a cost of $10,000. Smith estimated the project will cost around $300,000.

"So what you're saying is if we do this, it will be another 40 years before it needs to be done again?" asked council member Paul Hollingsworth.

Smith responded that because of the growth in population and the increase in usage, it will likely not take that long, "but there are some things we can do to improve the efficiency of the system."

Also on Dec. 18, the council:

- Approved a contract to provide $2,500 in funds to Baldwin County Child Advocacy Center/Care House to assist local victims of child abuse.
- Approved an ad request from Rosinton School to sponsor the 13th annual Armadillo Dash, scheduled for March 3.

Silverhill

The Silverhill Town Council also voted to change the meeting dates for its January meetings during a brief meeting on Dec. 18.

The council also tabled a pair of resolution requests, one a revision to the town's building code ordinance, and another to support legislation to address the licensing and regulation of child care facilities in Alabama at the request of the Alabama League of Municipalities.

Both resolutions were tabled to give council members a chance to review them before possible passage.

The council also approved the purchase of equipment for the Silverhill Volunteer Fire Department and took no action regarding noise concerns expressed by a resident on County Road 55. The resident was not present at the Dec. 18 meeting to address those concerns.

BEYOND THE GARDEN GATE

Gifts of Christmas

DOOLEY BERRY
Beyond the Garden Gate

December, with all of its Christmas holiday cheer, charms us as we settle in with friends and family and bid goodbye to another year. We gather around the fire and rejoice over that most special December 25th birthday.

Most homes, by now, are adorned with all manner of greenery and colorful berries gathered from weary, graying gardens and Christmas tree farms have been a bustle. But if your store-bought decor can use a breath of nature to enliven it or you have dawdled over putting up anything, let me encourage you to look to your garden or nearby woodland for inspiration. There are many plants to be found there that can offer up festive as well as naturally beautiful ideas for last minute decorating. Evergreen plants such as pine and cedar offer their constant greenery and fresh scents when brought indoors and scattered in baskets and over mantles around the house.

For centuries, thrifty folk have been bringing in festive greenery to decorate their homes for Christmas. Gardens are pillaged for cheery bits and pieces to embellish celebrations throughout the month of December. In spite of carefully designed and perfectly shaped artificial trees, there are still of folks who decorate with a real Christmas tree and prefer its natural beauty.

Don't overlook loads of other ideas for decorating the house with greenery. Plants provide berries, pine cones and their woody branches to bring the charm of outdoors inside during this season. Windswept grasses can add lofty inspiration and a stunning display when placed gracefully hovering over a dining table display of natural pine cones and pods.

Windows decorated with swags from nature can provide a most welcoming touch for visitors. Wreaths fashioned out of vines and dried flowers

Schools full of holiday cheer!

From Gulf Shores to Bay Minette, the holiday spirit filled Baldwin County classrooms as students sang, created gifts and donated time to their neighbors. The craftiest of elves, Santa himself, popped up every once and a while to fellowship with students before preparing for his trip around the world.

and pods gathered on a rural walk and hung on windows with cheery ribbons give a subdued and warm message to "come on in!"

Cedar branches and bright red holly add a native touch to store bought ribbons and shiny ornaments. With a creative mind and heart, cherished Christmas decor can be gathered from gardens and often look more beautiful than anything that can be purchased. Foraging for organic material collected from the woods or countryside can be transformed into lovely seasonal decor. Simplicity is often the key. Grouping small pairs of seed pods, fruits or vegetables can provide a simple and welcoming holiday vignette.

Holly is the iconic Christmas plant, with its glossy, spiky leaves and red berries. The word 'holly' actually comes from the same root word as 'holy' in Old English. Early Romans used it as decoration and some say it is used to symbolize Jesus' crown of thorns, with the berries representing His spilled blood.

Simple, classic decorations can be fashioned with holly by cutting short branches with the berries included and adding them to wreaths and garlands. Sprigs of holly around candle displays and on windowsills and mantles add a festive touch.

Ivy is yet another classic Christmas plant found hanging around the garden or in the woods. Ivy branches can be threaded through wreaths and set upon mantles to add that natural green touch. Tendrils of ivy bunched together with colored baubles and ribbons make an attractive mantle or table display.

The branches of fir, pine and cedar make simple and fragrant additions to the Christmas decorative scene. Tie bunches of these together with ribbon and hang on doors, windows or walls. All of these fragrant branches can be attached to a wire rim wreath form to make charming holiday wreaths.

Pine cone gathering can be a lot of fun and provide great seasonal decorations. A few can be attached to wreaths or swags with wire or piled into bowls or jars with tiny fairy lights to provide a charming glow. Pine cones can be spray painted gold, silver or white for a touch of glamour. Children of all ages enjoy gluing the cone tips and sprinkling them with glitter as a popular, child-friendly Christmas project.

Bay leaves and rosemary make a charming display when tied together to create fragrant and simple wreaths and contribute sensory pleasure.

For centuries, mistletoe has been a popular addition to holiday decorations. Its plume white berries and evergreen leaves symbolize fertility, which is why it is often included at holiday parties where kissing might be part of the festivities. It grows wild on trees and can be cut and tied into a bunch to hang from doorways and overhead lights.

Don't ignore the value of twigs found in garden or woodland as one of the easiest and cheapest ways to decorate. A simple bouquet of cut twigs and branches placed into a pot or vase with pine cones of varying sizes can create a pleasing natural display. Twigs can also be spray painted silver or gold or sprinkled with glitter and displayed in a basket for a touch of woodland whimsy.

Our Southern magnolia leaves can provide a lovely base for mantle displays and Christmas flower arrangements.

Just keep an open eye in the garden and on December walks throughout the neighborhood. Mother Nature offers to us beautiful green bounty for free in this the season of giving.

Remember your aunt at Christmas and other tales

Remember Your Aunt At Christmas

One of our clients was an eccentric, elderly lady who seemed to enjoy changing her Last Will and Testament each year for sport. She had a substantial estate, but no spouse or children, so the natural “objects of her bounty” in her will were her many nieces and nephews.

It appeared to me that if a niece or nephew remembered to send her a Christmas card, she included that person in her will that year. If they forgot to send her a card — out of the Last Will and Testament they came.

Our firm handled the administration of her estate, and her nieces and nephews were understandably perplexed about which of them she had chosen to include in her final will.

Who's The Interviewer?

One of our granddaughters is four years old and she will begin pre-kindergarten next year.

The Christian school she hopes to attend requires an interview with prospective students.

This granddaughter is precocious, forthright in her opinions, and not afraid to state them.

At the conclusion of the interview, the dismayed interviewer told the child's mother, “During the interview your four year old asked, ‘What is this school doing to help homeless people?’”

A Snow Skiing Debacle

I attended grammar school in a northern suburb of Chicago. The cutest girl in our class was a proficient skier who went snow skiing in Colorado every year with her family.

She invited several of us to “go skiing” with her one winter Saturday. The closest place for snow skiing was an hour drive from our home.

My family is from South Alabama and no one in the family knew anything about snow skiing. One of my friends who was a skier told me that black Head skis were the best and that the cute girl owned black Head skis.

Before the trip my parents found some heavy old wooden skis at a church rummage sale, I think.

With my sister's help, I painted the skis black and wrote “Head” on the top of each ski. It never occurred to us that Head skis were fiberglass. Of course, my skis looked perfectly ridiculous.

The cute girl's parents drove us to the ski resort. The other people on the trip had “ski clothes”. I didn't even know there were “ski clothes”.

At the beginning of my first trip down a ski slope I took a big fall and one of the heavy wooden skis came off of my foot. The ski went sailing down the mountain gaining speed by the second. When it reached the bottom of the hill it sailed into the parking lot. Thank heavens it did not hit anyone. Once I got to the bottom of the hill it took me 45 minutes of searching in the parking lot to find the wooden ski.

Needless to say, the cute girl never invited me skiing again.

A Russian New Year

By JESSICA VAUGHN

jessica@gulfcoastmedia.com

I met one of my best friends online in 2008. Jen lives in Moscow, Russia, and I was born and raised in Alabama, but writing and drawing brought us together. Throughout that first year of friendship, we learned a lot about each other, and also about our countries. I still remember our first holiday celebration. It was a confusing time for both of us.

While Christmas in America takes the cake as the largest holiday, in Russia it's all about New Year's, and they spare no expense to make the time a glorious and jovial celebration.

“It begins on the night of Dec. 31, and the celebration takes as long as you can stay up on Jan. 1,” Jen told me when discussing the differences in our holidays. The New Year's holiday goes on for the next ten days, and incorporates three holidays in total: New Year's (Dec. 31), the Russian Christmas (Jan. 7), and the “Old New Year,” (Jan. 14) which Jen said isn't a holiday but is still recognized by some people “as another reason to wish each other good things.”

America's Christmas tree is Russia's New Year's tree, usually fir, and families decorate their homes inside and out to wish the old year farewell and welcome in the new.

“We also have the Russian version of Santa Claus – Grandfather Frost,” said Jen. “He's usually a tall, elderly man accompanied by his granddaughter, the Snow Maiden. The Snow Maiden wears a blue or white fur coat and has a distinctive long blonde braid. Their figurines are placed under the New Year tree among the gifts.”

That's right, American's traditional Christmas presents are New Year's gifts in Russia, and are exchanged after midnight.

Traditionally the whole family takes part in preparations for New Year's, and the feast they prepare is a big deal in Russian families. Some foods which Jen said are almost “obligatory” for the Russian New Year's table are Olivier salad, sturgeon and salmon, herring and/or herring salad, caviar, meat plates, cheese plates, pickled and marinated vegetables and mushrooms, and “no proper table is served without bread.” The starter courses just mentioned begin around 10 p.m., when the family gathers at the table to discuss the past year.

“Another New Year's and generally winter's signature is tangerines, which will usually take up a big vase and quietly disappear during the holiday period,” Jen said.

The main meal comes next, meat of the family's choice along with several side dishes. Sparkling wine is the drink of choice, which is toasted at midnight.

While Americans gather to watch the countdown in Times Square, in Russia the celebration starts at 11:55 p.m. local time, when “all TV channels broadcast the President's speech,” Jen said. “In the five minutes before midnight the President reflects on the past year, shares the bright look into the future, and thanks the people for their support and wishes them all the best.”

At midnight, all channels show the Spasskaya clock tower of the Moscow Kremlin chiming 12 times, and it is believed that you should make wishes each time the clock strikes, or one big wish. Afterwards, the country's government puts on an enormous fireworks display in the Red Square as well as multiple locations throughout Moscow, lighting up the city's sky.

“After the celebration meal and gift-giving is over, people like going outside and lighting their own fireworks or firecrackers, making snowmen, or just going for walks,” said Jen. “While the New Year is mostly a family celebration, it doesn't mean anyone is obliged to stay home ... It's easy to find new friends, because as a Russian saying goes, ‘The way you meet the New Year is the way you will spend it,’ and everyone makes the best of it.”

Which is an amazing way to go into the New Year. So make the best of what little is left of 2017, and prepare to welcome 2018 and make it the best year ever, no matter where you are.

Don Porter earns Collar of Honour Award from WBSC

Softball reintroduced to the Olympic program for the 2020 Summer Olympics in Tokyo

USSA.edu

DAPHNE — Don Porter has spent most of his adult life diligently promoting softball around the world, and now the World Baseball Softball Confederation (WBSC) has honored his dedication to the sport by awarding him its Collar of Honour.

Porter, who has served on the United States Sports Academy's National Faculty and is currently a member of its Board of Visitors, was awarded the honor by WBSC President Riccardo Fraccari during the organization's recent meeting in Botswana. Porter was the president of the International Softball Federation (ISF) when it merged with the International Baseball Federation (IBAF) to become the WBSC.

The Collar of Honour is the supreme recognition given by the WBSC. It honors those people who contributed to the foundation of the organization and its success.

Under Porter's leadership, softball was first elected to be part of the Olympic program for the Atlanta 1996 Olympics. After the sport's removal from the Games following the Beijing 2008 Olympics, Porter helped found the WBSC, which set as a goal the inclusion of baseball and softball in the Olympic program.

Softball will be reintroduced to the Olympic program for the 2020 Summer Olympics in Tokyo.

Porter — a former collegiate and semi-pro football player — said softball's rules are simple and the game can be played by anyone.

"I love softball because it is simple to play and to understand," Porter said. "It is easy to adapt to, it can be played in most climates and in small or large spaces. Softball is fun to play, too, and there is a certain amount of skill involved."

"Most of all, I like softball as an Olympic sport because it is another opportunity for female athletes from around the world to participate in a true global sport on an international stage."

Porter, a resident of Oklahoma City, is also an author who recently had a book published about his endeavors in the world of softball. The book, "Inclusion/Exclusion: Softball's Olympic Journey," chronicles the highs and lows of the sport's journey to the Olympics, then its return to the Games in 2020. Released by Yorkshire Publishing, the book is available for purchase on Amazon.com and BarnesandNoble.com.

Porter started his career as executive director of the Amateur Softball Association in 1963, then became the secretary general to the ISF in 1965. He was elected ISF president in 1987 and led the federation until 2013.

Porter served four seasons as an official with the National Football League from 1976 to 1979. Porter also served the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) as chairman and member of a number of committees including the Board of Directors from 1984 until 1998 and spent time on the USOC's International Relations Committee. He is also credited as being one of the founders of the World Games.

Porter was recently honored for his 55 years of service to the sport at the Amateur Softball Association/USA Softball 85th annual meeting in Shreveport, La.

In his service to the advancement of sport, Porter has also been a leader in the "Sporting Goods to Go" project, which has provided sporting equipment to those who don't have it, especially in countries in the Middle East and Africa. The effort has provided more than $30 million in equipment to more than 70 countries. The program is overseen by SportAccord, the umbrella organization for all (Olympic and non-Olympic) international sports federations as well as organizers of multi-sports games and sport-related international associations.

NFHS, Special Olympics sign memorandum in support of programs for students with disabilities

By MARVIN CHOU
AHSAA News

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) and Special Olympics North America (SONA) have signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to continue their collaborative efforts of advancing inclusion programs for students with disabilities.

While working through the organizational structures of both organizations, the stated goals of the partnership are to 1) increase participation of students with intellectual disabilities through interscholastic Special Olympics Unified Sports® and other inclusive school programs; 2) support official partnerships between NFHS member state associations and/or local schools and Special Olympics state Programs; and 3) increase the quality of inclusion programs in schools nationwide by serving as a resource for NFHS state associations and SONA state Programs.

Unified Sports is a fully inclusive sports program that unites Special Olympics athletes (individuals with intellectual disabilities) and partners (individuals without intellectual disabilities) as teammates for training and competition. There are more than 5,000 schools in the United States that currently offer Unified Sports, with a growing number participating in varsity-style interscholastic leagues. This resulted in more than 200,000 students experiencing Unified Sports during the 2016-17 school year. In a recent evaluation report, 97 percent of high school seniors say that the Unified Champion Schools program is changing their school for the better.

“Essentially, this MOU brings together and reaffirms all the tremendous work being done by both organizations in offering programs for students with disabilities and the desire on the part of both groups to continue moving forward to serve these students in our nation’s schools,” said Bob Gardner, NFHS executive director.

Through our online course, our online materials and working cooperatively with Special Olympics at conferences and in other projects, we look forward to continuing this important work through our member state associations.”

To kick off the agreement between the two organizations, the NFHS and Special Olympics have released the revised online education course “Coaching Unified Sports” on the NFHS Learning Center at NFHS-Learn.com.

The updated course, which is hosted by Kevin Negandhi of ESPN’s SportsCenter, is offered at no cost for coaches and educators wishing to implement Special Olympics Unified Sports in their schools. The “Coaching Unified Sports” course is one of 58 online offerings through the NFHS Learning Center, which has delivered more than six million courses since its launch in 2007.

nership include continued education on inclusion programs at NFHS conferences, increasing awareness of Unified Sports programs by posting success stories on the NFHS website and through social media, and development of a Unified Sports Experience model program for use at the local and state levels.

The NFHS currently offers numerous resources and articles related to the inclusion of students with disabilities on its website at NFHS.org/resources/student-services-inclusion/inclusion-of-students-with-disabilities.

In addition to providing content and resources for the newly updated online course on the NFHS Learning Center, Special Olympics will continue to provide its Unified Sports

Experience at the annual NFHS National Student Leadership Summit each summer in Indianapolis, and will assist the NFHS with the collection of success stories and provide training and education at various state conferences. “We are proud to have partnered with the NFHS, the NFL Foundation and the U.S. Office of Special Education Program at the U.S. Department of Education on the creation of the Coaching Unified Sports Course,” said Marc Edenzon, Regional President of Special Olympics North America. “This new and improved online coach course is vital to achieving the goal of having 15,000 certified coaches by 2020 while also providing training to ensure coaches are equipped with the knowledge to offer the best possible experience to all Unified Sports teammates.”

Registration for Spring BOW Workshop opens Jan. 3

OutdoorAlabama.com

Registration for the next Alabama Becoming an Outdoors-Woman (BOW) workshop opens on January 3 for first-time attendees and January 8 for both first-timers and those who have previously attended. The Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources (ADCNR) sponsored event takes place at the 4-H Center near Columbiana, Ala., on March 2-4, 2018.

BOW is a three-day workshop designed for women ages 18 years or older who would like to learn new outdoor skills. The workshop offers hands-on instruction in a fun, outdoor learning environment. Participants choose from courses such as rifle, pistol, archery, fishing, camping, hiking, canoeing, mountain biking, and many more. Two new courses will be offered this spring – wildlife identification and predator and prey.

BOW coordinator Hope Grier said the classes offer basic outdoor skills training. “There are many ladies who have not been exposed to these outdoor activities and are apprehensive about trying them,” she said. “BOW is ideal for those women because everything is taught at a beginner level.”

The registration fee of $275 covers meals, dormitory-style lodging, program materials and instruction. Those interested in attending are encouraged to register as soon as possible because enrollment is limited and classes fill up fast.

For more information on the BOW workshop including the class schedule, visit www.outdooralabama.com/becoming-outdoors-woman or call Hope Grier at 334-242-3620.

Anderson Cooper and Andy Cohen join forces for New Year's Eve on CNN

CNN televises "New Year's Eve Live With Anderson Cooper and Andy Cohen" Sunday.

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

New Year's Eve is a time for friends to be together, and two of them will be doing that on national television.

On Sunday, Dec. 31, CNN's "New Year's Eve With Anderson Cooper and Andy Cohen" gives the host of the cable news channel's "Anderson Cooper 360" a new cohort to help him ring in 2018 in New York's Times Square. Cohen, of Bravo's "Watch What Happens Live," has done New Year's Eve duty before (notably for NBC on a couple of occasions), but his pairing with Cooper is sure to mirror the camaraderie they've long shared.

In a tandem interview, Cooper and Cohen discussed — and got playful with — their plans for the upcoming New Year's Eve that they'll share with viewers.

Q: What was your first thought about teaming up on-air on New Year's Eve?

Cooper: Andy and I have been traveling around the country together for the last three years, doing a show that we call "AC2." He's one of my best friends and we love hanging out together, so it's great to be able to do that here. I think we want to bring the same fun we've had doing that show to New Year's Eve.

Cohen: Initially, when I found how long the show was (a scheduled 4-1/2 hours), I thought, "What am I getting myself into?" I have a great feeling of comfort being in front of people with Anderson, though, and it's been made even better by doing the tour. It just feels like a really natural extension, and not only something that I'm comfortable with, but that I'm really excited about.

Q: Kathy Griffin co-hosted the special with Anderson for 10 years. What would you say in regard to her?

Cooper: You know, look ... I think we both certainly wish her the best.

Cohen: For sure.

Q: What's your general feeling about New Year's Eve?

Cohen: It's kind of a lame term, but I guess you could say New Year's Eve is "on brand" for me.

Cooper: What does that mean? I never really know, when people talk about their "brand."

Cohen: It means I'm associated with fun.

Cooper: Oh. OK. It's like Andy's end-of-the-year party.

Q: How is Times Square at midnight on New Year's Eve as you've experienced it?

Cooper: I never like the term "magical." I'm always skeptical of that, but ...

Cohen: Why?

Cooper: I don't know. I just think it's kind of a creepy word, but I've got to say, it's really kind of amazing (in Times Square then). I get really emotional, but I hope I don't do that around (Cohen). And it doesn't last long. Fifteen minutes after midnight, the place is already starting to clear out.

Cohen: That's because everyone has to go pee, right?

Cooper: That's true. You're not allowed to leave the pen that you're in (until after the ball drops at midnight).

Cohen: I need to know about this.

Cooper: This is not the last we've heard about this from Andy.

Thursday Bets

7 p.m. on FOX CW
iHeartRadio Music Festival Night 1

Now a traditional part of The CW's schedule, this concert special — concluding Friday — returns with an edition recorded at Las Vegas' T-Mobile Arena. Ryan Seacrest is back as host, introducing acts including Pink, Harry Styles, Coldplay, Chris Stapleton and The Weeknd.

10 p.m. on SYFY
Superstition

Who knew clock demons were a thing? Apparently not Garvey and Russ (Morgana Van Peebles, T.C. Carter), who go exploring in an old house designed by one such creature, who then traps them inside, in the new episode. Calvin, Isaac and May (Brad James, Mario Van Peebles, Demetria McKinney) start planning a rescue.

Mario Van Peebles

Friday Bets

7 p.m. on FOX FOX
Hell's Kitchen

A two-hour composite of two recent episodes starts with "Catch of the Day," a title that suggests the main ingredient of the first challenge the contestants face. Let's just point out that Michael Cimarusti, a chef who specializes in fish dishes, is the guest judge. Gordon Ramsay is the host.

7 p.m. on FOX CW
iHeartRadio Music Festival Night 2

For as many other jobs as he has in television, as both personality and producer, it's clear that music always will stay important to Ryan Seacrest. He's back as host of the concluding half of this special from Las Vegas' T-Mobile Arena. Lorde, Miley Cyrus, Big Sean and DJ Khaled are among the artists on tap as the parade of performers keeps on coming.

Miley Cyrus

Monday Bets

10 a.m. on HALL 129th Rose Parade
An actor very familiar to television and movie viewers presides as Grand Marshal of the latest edition of the New Year's Day event: Gary Sinise, also widely known as a humanitarian for his tireless support of America's military. He surely exemplifies this year's parade theme, "Making a Difference" — as will the many floral floats winding their way through the streets of Pasadena, Calif.

7 p.m. on ABC The Bachelor
On a day that also features the Tournament of Roses Parade, any of those flowers that are left over just might end up here. As the 22nd round of the looking-for-love series begins, that man is auto racer and "Bachelorette" alum Arie Luyendyk Jr., whose romance options range from a Yale graduate to a zombie fan.

The 129th Annual Rose Parade

Tuesday Bets

7 p.m. on NBC Ellen's Game of Games
In the official premiere (after last month's "preview"), "I'll Have What She's Playing," Ellen DeGeneres draws audience members into elaborate games of all varieties — with an emphasis on their being built for humor. They all lead to the final round. Another episode follows.

8 p.m. on FOX LA to Vegas
"Wings" was a comedy about an airline, and while this new one also is that, it has a different tone. The route is the same every weekend, with the passengers taking a gamble on being much richer on the trip back. Dylan McDermott makes a departure from his usual dramatic work here, co-starring with Peter Stormare ("Fargo") and Ed Weeks ("The Mindy Project") in this series "Pilot."

With so much info out there, where do I begin?

You don't have to stop drinking wine. You can eat a burger every now and then. You can stay up past midnight every now and then. But, you just have to do those things less often if you want to see faster results in terms of changing your body composition.

Strong is Beautiful

of sleep before midnight is like getting TWO of the hours that you get after midnight. Works for me. Personally, if I can be asleep by 10:30, I can wake up at 6 - 6:30 a.m. with no problems and have lots of energy and focus for that day. Another tip: Put away electronics an hour before bed. Stay out of bed as much as you can until you are ready to sleep. If you've got to watch TV, don't watch anything that will excite you too much.

Need a recommendation? How about a light-hearted Hallmark movie! There's tons of them on this season. Guilty as charged. And yes, I watch them every night.

2) Food. No caps needed. You already know what's up. I don't like the words 'diet', 'nutrition', and all the other scary ones. No need to get crazy. Good ol' food will suffice. In general, what you are cramming into your mouth should be pretty good for you. It doesn't have to be farm-raised, fed filet mignon on a silver platter or all that other crap which makes it 10 times more expensive than what you are used to buying.

The majority of folks trying to get healthier go to extremes. It doesn't have to be tasteless. It doesn't have to be sodium free. It doesn't need to be from Ireland or Australia or Argentina, or wherever the freshest grass is grown and healthiest animals live. It should be pretty good for you, like, not frying it but baking it instead. Maybe not eat two potatoes but just one. Try a balsamic dressing instead of ranch. Reach for some healthy seeds and nuts with some dehydrated fruits instead of a honey bun. (That is sure to satisfy you.) For now, little changes will work. As you start to become more aware of how much better you feel and want to turn it up a notch, go for it. Just don't get radical overnight. You'll quit.

3) Movement AKA exercising AKA working out AKA pumping iron.

First of all, exercising and training are different. Exercising is when you go do random stuff so you can get sweaty and sore, "burn 500 calories" so you can post about it and take selfies.

Lots of people be exercising. Don't be like them.

Training is when you choose a specific goal, and according to that goal, you make a plan. You then work the plan, measure progress and adjust as needed. No selfies necessary.

In regards to training, I'm going to tell you something that you will probably be happy to hear if you're a person trying to get in shape, though, if you are a trainer you may not like this philosophy. Here it is: anything will work if you do.

Whether it's Bulgarian Bag, Kettle bells, Cables, TRX, P90X, Insanity, HiiT classes, Weights... it all works... to an extent. Some are better than others of course. Pick one that seems like would be fun.

If you can't motivate yourself, get some girls together and do a class. If you don't like group training, get one-on-one personal training (my favorite). I tell you this because I don't want you to be confused and not know where to start when you're ready to change your body. Nothing should be complicated. We are trying to get into smaller pants, not Harvard School of Law.

4) Get a trainer. This is important, and shouldn't be at the bottom of the list. "It's hard to see the picture when you're inside the frame." You need someone with has a proven track record of getting people stronger, happier and fit. You truly do get what you pay for in the fitness world.

When I was in to marching percussion, I took lessons from this guy who they called "the hands doctor" (Bill Bachman). I was proud when he told me I had great hands, but he also said I had room to grow. I swear I got better in two hours of drumming with him than I did the previous two years of drumming by myself.

Paying for an expert to show you the ropes will inspire you and get you way better, way faster. I also liked Bill because he said he wanted to teach me how to fish, and not just give me a bunch of fish. If you want to have a trainer for the rest of your life simply because you need accountability, there is absolutely nothing wrong with that. But if the person training you is just taking you through movements without explaining why you do it, why he or she is giving you the recommendations and so-on, you're being given fish. You'll end up spending more money than necessary.

Train with a knowledgeable professional for six months. Then see what you can do on your own for the next six. If you find yourself slacking, or need to freshen it up, give them a call back. Ideally, prioritizing your body will have become a habit and you will become unstoppable on your own.

To recap:
Sleep really well.
Eat pretty good.
Train for a specific goal
Hire a trainer to help you reach that specific goal.

A Day of Joy

Nearly $1,000 was raised for The Exceptional Foundation in Daphne during a fun day of shopping.

The Wandering Lilly hosted A Day of Joy last month at Season's Consignment on Highway 181 in Daphne. Shoppers visited with local vendors, checked out new fashions modeled by members of The Exceptional Foundation and were able to purchase creations by those individuals as well.

The Exceptional Foundation works with people from throughout Baldwin County who have special needs by offering classes, field trips and friendship.

What if exercise were actually fun, you got results quickly and felt better?

Search the internet for reasons why people hate to exercise and here's just some of what you'll find: 1) It hurts, 2) I don't know what to do, 3) I don't want to embarrass myself in front of others, 4) I don't like feeling sore the next day, 5) It's intimidating, 6) It's boring, 7) I tried, but I didn't get good results, 8) I don't have the time, 9) I don't like to sweat, and 10) I'd rather watch TV.

In an effort to increase activity levels and improve public health, Anytime Fitness has spent the past several years analyzing the reasons why people are reluctant to exercise and devising new programs and strategies to make working out more fun and effective.

The result is a relatively inexpensive package of benefits for new members designed to transform exercise from something that's dreaded into an energizing habit that more people look forward to.

"The most common complaints that I hear about exercise are 'I don't know how to use the equipment; it's boring; I don't have the time; and, it hasn't worked for me in the past,'" said Mike Dyson, owner of the Anytime Fitness gym in Robertsdale. "So, we've come up with solutions for all of those excuses."

Among other things, new members who join Anytime Fitness between Jan. 1 - 12 — for just $1 — will receive:

- A training session — including a personalized fitness assessment, orientation to all of the gym's equipment and a 30-day "Get Started Plan."

- Free access to the new Anytime Fitness mobile app. The app features more than 1,000 different workout sessions. So, you can easily find the workouts that are best for you while avoiding boredom with a new workout every day.
- The app also helps you set goals and track your progress — to keep you motivated and to allow you to participate in friendly competitions with workout buddies, if you like.

Among the findings in a recent Anytime Fitness survey of 1,000 adults:

- 9 out of 10 people who have worked out with a fitness coach experienced "positive" results.
- People who work with a fitness coach and who "track" their activity levels are five times as likely to achieve their fitness goals compared to those people who do not.

Taking the first steps toward a healthier lifestyle is the hardest part, Dyson says. After that, it gets a whole lot easier.

"The secret to making big changes is recognizing and appreciating little victories," Dyson says. Getting started can be scary. But, with the right type of coaching and support, anything is possible."

Ribbon cutting for new community outreach non-profit

Submitted

FOLEY — The South Baldwin Chamber celebrated a new Foley outreach non-profit. My Community Mentor is designed to give back to the community and assist people as needed. They offer a variety of programs for both youth and adults including youth sports and a leadership academy. My Community Mentor also offers budget planning, GED classes, after school tutoring, conflict resolution, ACT & SAT test prep, parenting and computer classes.

Louis Pope, President, created My Community Mentor to provide a bridge between people in the community who want to give back and those requiring assistance. Recently mentors held the first annual Back to Basics Back to School Day, equipping 400 children with school supplies and new book bags. Currently MCM is collecting relief items for victims of the Florida Hurricane Irma as well as recruiting volunteers for an initiative called Real Talk with Real Men, after school tutors, The Youth Leadership Academy and Diamonds Mentoring.

The South Baldwin Chamber of Commerce is proud to welcome My Community Mentor to Foley and look forward to guiding them as they connect with our business community and its leadership to accomplish their goals. My Community Mentors would like to thank LA Pasadita in

New Audiologist opens in Foley

Submitted

FOLEY — The South Baldwin Chamber of Commerce celebrated a new business in Foley. Ascent Audiology opened their second location in the Mid Pointe Plaza in Foley and they have been striving to set a standard of excellence for hearing health care.

Ascent owner, Dr. Andy Tubertini, sees growth in South Baldwin County and made the decision to open his second location here in Foley. With state of the art equipment to test and diagnose hearing loss, rehabilitation services as well as hearing aid repair and accessories, Ascent is sure to provide patients with top notch care and service for all hearing aid needs.

Hearing loss is the third most common health problem in the U.S. and untreated can prevent not only the ability to understand speech, but can also negatively impact social and emotional well-being and lead to cognitive decline, dementia, and depression as well as affect a person's balance, shared Ann Larkin who is an experienced audiologist with Ascent.

Ascent Audiology encourages anyone in the South Baldwin area who has concerns or questions about their hearing to call them at 251-971-1152 to make an appointment for a hearing check. "Good communication is important in life, and it starts with good hearing," says Tubertini. You can also learn more about Ascent Audiology at www.ascentaudiology-foley.com.

The South Baldwin Chamber of Commerce is proud to have Ascent Audiology as a member of the Chamber. To learn more about hosting or attending ribbon cuttings or to join the South Baldwin Chamber of Commerce please call Travis Valentine at 251-943-1036 or email at travis@mylochamber.net.
