By JOHN UNDERWOOD
john@gulfcoastmedia.com

ROBERTSDALE — The Lighthouse of Baldwin County, a service organization for battered women, will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a pair of events on Wednesday, Oct. 23.

First, there will be an invitation-only Celebration Luncheon beginning at 11:30 a.m. in the auditorium at the Baldwin County Central Annex in Robertsdale.

The event will honor all current and past Lighthouse Board members, including the organization's first executive director, Jerry Sommer, who is also a current member of the Board.

"She has come full circle," said Rhyon Ervin, who is just the third executive director to serve the organization since its founding. Ervin took over as executive director following the departure of Joanne Sheils in April of 2018. "She is, and always has been, an invaluable asset to this organization."

Judge Pamela Baschab, who was instrumental in founding the organization in 1994, will serve as the keynote speaker for the luncheon, Ervin said.

"None of this would have been possible without her," Ervin said, "so it is only fitting that she will be there to celebrate our past and look to

Small town history is quietly, and quickly, disappearing.

That is what Joan Richardson said she noticed first as she set out to collect oral histories from Loxley residents to help celebrate the town's approaching 200th anniversary.

"A lot of people have passed on and it's hard to find a family member who still has some of the information," said Richardson, chairwoman of the Loxley Bicentennial Committee.

"As generations go by, more and more of the what the future has in store for us as we continue our commitment to serving the communities of Baldwin, Escambia, Conecuh and Monroe counties."

Beginning at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, a candlelight vigil will be held at Honeybee Park in Robertsdale. That event is open to anyone who would like to participate, Ervin said.

Based in Robertsdale, The Lighthouse opened in 1994 and "is committed to providing support, preventing violence and promoting justice for victims of domestic violence and sexual assault."

The Lighthouse is authorized by the county District Attorney's office as the official domestic violence shelter in Baldwin County and also provides a 24-hour crisis line, individual and group counseling, case management, court advocacy services, transitional housing, advocacy for children and prevention education.

The Lighthouse is a non-discriminatory, equal opportunity agency, partially supported by the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act, Victims of Crime Act, Violence Against Women Act, Department of Public Health, U.S. Department of Housing and Development, and the Baldwin County United Way.

The Lighthouse is a member of the Alabama Coalition Against Domestic Violence and the Alabama Coalition Against Sexual Violence.

While The Lighthouse actually celebrated its 25th anniversary in September, Ervin said it is fitting that the events to celebrate the anniversary will be held in October, which is Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

"It was just the first date we had available, but it worked out just fine," Ervin said. "Our goal, and our biggest challenge, remains to let women know that our services are available to them."

OUTDOOR CONDITIONS:Finally, we're seeing some cooler weather! As the month goes on our weather pattern will show signs of change. The colder storms from up north will pay us more frequent visits, especially towards the end of the month and into November. The days are getting shorter, the nights a little cooler and eventually we will see the return of storm systems that will bring widespread rain to all of Baldwin County. Unfortunately, this period of transition also brings a greater risk of severe storms and the possibility of tornadoes. Before heading out to the great outdoors, make sure you pay attention to the latest forecast, as a sunny warm day can suddenly turn cold and stormy in a matter of hours. As for the local fishing scene, the bite continues for a variety of inshore species such as speckled trout, redfish, jack crevalle and flounder. Look for the bite and fish activity to remain steady until we get a more significant shift in our weather pattern that will bring the "feel of fall" to the Gulf Coast for the long-term. If you are heading out there good luck and be safe!

Baldwin County HS FFA attends the fair

Submitted

BALDWIN'S Bounty

Thirty-four students and two teachers, Andy Jones and David Garrett, from the Baldwin County High School FFA chapter attended a field trip to the Baldwin County Fairgrounds in Robertsdale, as well as a farm belonging to Wesley Moore in Summerdale.

At the fairgrounds, the students were provided a lunch and given the ability to meet with Sonny Hankins, the Baldwin County Fair manager. The students had the opportunity to talk with Mr. Hankins, allowing them to understand the importance of the fair and what it does for the county and for agriculture. The students also toured the fairgrounds, enjoying the various exhibitions set up around the coliseum. They were able to observe a collection of antique tractors and farm equipment, as well as a wide variety of livestock and poultry. The students also got the chance to look at a display piece prepared by some of their fellow classmates devoted to the chapter and its many different activities.

After departing the fairgrounds, the group traveled to Alligator Alley in Summerdale, owned by Wesley Moore. The students were able to learn about farm equipment and operations, demonstrated by their advisors. This also gave the students who participate in either land, livestock, or forestry judging contests the opportunity for hands-on experience in their respective fields of study.

The livestock judging team was able to gain experience by observing and discussing the different aspects of the contest on live cattle. Mr. Moore also allowed one of the FFA advisors, Andy Jones, to dig a holes in his pasture so that the land judging team could observe and study the different soil levels. The forestry judging team mainly worked on tree identification and orienteering .The students were also able to watch a peanut field being inverted and speak with the farmer about the growing process and harvesting procedure.

"Overall, the trip was a success. This opportunity to escape the classroom and gain real world educational experiences was both enjoyed and appreciated by all those who attended," Mr. Garrett said. "The Baldwin County High School FFA would like to thank Mr. Sonny Hankins and Mr. Wesley Moore for this opportunity, and for all of their contributions and support for our program. Without our supporters, our students would not be able to take trips such as this one."

family information is being lost," she said. "It was almost everyone I talked to."

So, as part of her committee's preparations for Founder's Day in November, Richardson held a memory jar class for Loxley residents. There attendees were taught to use any type of jar to create a mini-scene of a memory.

The jars will be part of the display residents can enjoy at the Nov. 9 Founder's Day event.

The day-long celebration will feature historical displays, Alabama author book signings, a children's village with activities, food trucks, face painting, live music and more.

Richardson said new events are being added to the day's lineup nearly every week.

As a recently new Loxley resident, Richardson said she is excited to be leading the charge to host the celebration and begin preserving the town's memories for the next anniversary.

"I feel truly honored to bring that to forefront again, so much been lost," she said.

Two years of work and fun have been poured into Loxley's bicentennial celebration, beginning with the placing of the Cedar Park Bicentennial Marker on Feb. 24, 2018. The culmination of the celebration is the Founders Day Event to be held at the Civic Center in Loxley Park on Nov. 9.

"Incidental service may be provided to assist festivals with the transition through fiscal year 2020," according to a notice of public hearing posted on the BRATS website. "No festival service will be provided after fiscal year 2020."

A public hearing was held Monday, Oct. 14 in the conference room at the BRATS office in Robertsdale.

Matthew Brown, director of transportation for BRATS said the move comes because of the reduction in the number of CDL drivers available and a scaling back in the number of large buses employed by the service.

"Coming into last year, we had 41 CDL licensed drivers. This year we have 34," Brown said. "We also decided to scale back the number of large buses used for our regular service. Last year we had 14 large buses. This year we've reduced that number to 10 and we are in the process of eliminating another.

"We want to help out where we can and I believe people appreciated the service we provided, but it was getting to the point where we were not able to use the buses for their intended purpose because they were being used for shuttle services. We are not a charter service. We are here to serve the needs of the community and this is part of an effort to return to that as our main focus."

Chandra Middleton, BRATS assistant director of transportation, said for the last several months, the service has been working with festival organizers to provide alternate services.

Last week's National Shrimp Festival was able to partner with the Gulf Shores City School System, providing local school buses for a small fee that was used as a fundraiser for the school's band and athletic programs.

"We want these festivals to succeed and are willing to work with them in any way we can to provide alternatives," she said. "I have reached out to make sure everything went smoothly and see what we can do to help improve the transition."

of the school, students and faculty through the years.

Also recognized were staff members who were former CBMS students, Eliot Stanton, Jessica Richmond Randa Smith, Landis Bryant, Haley Clark, Matt Miller and Bryant Ramey, who serves as an assistant band director at Robertsdale High School; and staff who have served the school for all of its 25-year history, Julie Fincher, Theresa Schreck, Lee Wilson and Roy Williams, who was unable to attend Wednesday's ceremony.

Schreck also brought back the Smurf Awards, which were held for a number of years to honor the school's best athletes, presenting awards to all of the school's former principals, including Ronnie Green, the school's first principal, who said he started the awards when he was principal at Silverhill School.

"The day before this school opened, I walked the halls with then-superintendent Larry Newton," said Green, who served as principal from its opening in 1994 until 2004. "The only thing he said to me was that he thought the school was clean, and that became a source of pride for us in all my years here. I'm glad to say that in walking around today, I can say that the school is still clean and continues to produce some of the best students and faculty around. Good principals alone don't make good schools. Good schools are made with excellent faculty, staff and students, and in all of those areas, Central Baldwin has the best."

Three of the school's five former principals were in attendance for the ceremony. Along with Green, Mike Dawkins, who served as a teacher, administrator and coach for Loxley and Central Baldwin Middle before serving as interim principal from 2005-06; and Chuck Anderson, who served as principal from 2010-15, also spoke.

"I served 40 years in this school system, 17 at Loxley, two at Daphne Middle and the rest here at Central Baldwin," he said. "I left this area for a couple years and couldn't wait to come back. This is the greatest middle school in the state of Alabama. I love all the staff and the students and as an interim principal, I felt like my job was to make things as easy as possible. I hope I did that. I know all the faculty here did that for me."

Possibly the biggest applause came in the introduction of Anderson, who served as head football coach/athletic director and an assistant principal for Robertsdale High School, then as Baldwin County's athletic director before serving the last five years of his career as principal at CBMS.

"These were without a doubt the best five years of my career," said Anderson, who during his tenure was affectionately known as "Papa Bear." "I never worked a day in the five years I spent here, because if you love what you do, who you work with and who you work for, it's not work. I challenge all of the students here to take advantage of the opportunity you have to get a quality education."

Former principals Keith McClammy who, along with Dawkins, also served as an assistant principal when the school first opened, and Mike Vivar, who served from 2006-10, were unable to attend the ceremony.

Baldwin County School Board member Tony Myrick, who served as a teacher and coach at CBMS, and School Superintendent Eddie Tyler, who was a teacher and coach at Robertsdale High School, also spoke during the ceremony, along with current Principal Phillip Fountain.

"I was a senior (at Robertsdale High School) when this school opened," Fountain said. "My youngest sister was in seventh grade and went through here. We are here today to celebrate our past, but I want to challenge you students to look toward our future. Where will you be in 25 years? The future is what you make it."

Wednesday afternoon, with the help of the Baldwin County Highway Department, students and faculty gathered on the front lawn at CBMS, forming a giant "25" in honor of the anniversary.

Baldwin County Schools celebrate National School Lunch Week

By JESSICA VAUGHN
jessica@gulfcoastmedia.com

FOLEY — Across Baldwin County, schools observed National School Lunch Week Oct. 14 - 18, but the thought-process to prepare nutritious school lunches is going on behind the scenes before the school year even begins. Planning and preparing meals for thousands of children is a lot of work, but what all actually goes into meal planning? How is it decided what the weekly menus will be for students?

"USDA sets the guidelines for child nutrition for breakfast and lunch, and then the state department can make those stricter if they choose," said Erin Miller, director of Child Nutrition Program for Baldwin County Public Schools. "They give us the guidelines so each district can plan their own menus based on that."

Following the Healthy and Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010, schools have been working hard to give students the nutrition they need for a healthy diet. Miller, a dietician, is responsible for preparing the menus for all Baldwin County Schools, using the USDA and state guidelines to base portion sizes, food groups, calories, saturated fat, cholesterol, and more. Weekly menus must have a set amount of whole grains and vegetable subgroups, including red/orange, starchy, green, and beans. Daily menus include a choice of two vegetables and one fruit, usually with a whole grain, fat free milk, and protein. Miller says while dessert isn't on the menu daily, it typically appears at least once a week.

While following the guidelines, Miller likes to keep things interesting for the children.

"In Baldwin County we do fall, winter, and spring menus, and the winter menus will be starting in November," she said. "We change a few things, like we'll add soups and rotate out a few offerings to give the kids a change so they aren't getting the same thing every week. On every menu cycle we try to include their favorites, you can determine those based on sales."

Menus are planned in advance, typically two to three months ahead, to offer appropriate time to analyze and make sure the meals meet all the requirements. During school lunch, children are required to have at least three food or drink items on their tray and one item must be a vegetable or fruit, but otherwise they are not required to take a serving of every item offered.

"We offer a wide variety of food each day, but they're not required to take everything if they don't want to," Miller said. "The children can choose what three items they want as long as one is a vegetable or fruit. This reduces waste and gives kids a choice."

If kids take too much food and get full before they finish, a sharing area is provided for children to leave any unopened packaged food or untouched fruit, where it then can be used by teachers for snack time or go to kids in need.

For children with dietary needs or allergies, their parents can bring in a diet prescription form filled out by the child's doctor and turn it into the school nurses. They will then get the form to the cafeteria staff and the child's need will be accommodated, whether it's gluten free foods, dairy free, or an allergy warning. No special menu is offered, and each case is handled individually to ensure the child's needs are being met.

"Then of course we maintain food safety, the staff is required to work by Health Department standards and we make sure things are kept at the right temperature," Miller said. "Parents don't have to worry about the food not being cooked properly, we make sure that it is, and we make sure that everything is sanitized and cleaned."

Baldwin County Schools use the website www.myschoolbucks.com for online payment for school breakfast and lunches, and parents can visit the site and put money on their child's account for quick checkouts during school hours. Parents can choose to pay the account daily, weekly, monthly, or even for the entire year if they choose. Any parent interested in the nutrition facts for school lunches or in viewing the weekly menus can visit www.bcbe.org, or download the Baldwin County Schools app to find the full list of menus and nutrition facts.

County restricts Fort Morgan house size

By GUY BUSBY
guy@gulfcoastmedia.com

BAY MINETTE — The Baldwin County Commission voted Tuesday to restrict single-family homes in Fort Morgan to two stories.

Houses had been allowed to have an additional half-story. Residents and firefighters said, however, that the owners of rental properties used that addition to expand bedroom space, creating fire safety hazards and traffic congestion.

Commissioners said they will continue to look at safety issues with rental houses that in some instances have accommodations for more than 40 people in a single-family home.

The commission approved zoning changes that also set standards for walkways over dunes from houses to the beach.

Thelma Strong, a member of the Fort Morgan Planning and Zoning Commission, said members have been working on the changes for about three years. She said the standards are needed to protect the area and environment.

"If we don't do something now to protect this, we're going to lose the area we love," she said.

Resident Bonnie Lowery said continuing to allow larger buildings would increase congestion and hurt Fort Morgan.

"We want to protect the one part of the Gulf Coast that has not been destroyed," she said.

Property owner Susan Herald said, however, that the restrictions will not improve safety, but will hurt property values. Her family does not rent out their property but did try to sell the house. That sale fell through when the new zoning rules were announced, she said.

Paul Stanton said some rental houses listed as single-family homes house as many as 44 visitors. Putting beds throughout the house and adding circular stairs to save space restrict access for firefighters and ambulance attendants and make evacuation difficult for that many people.

Robert Isakson said house height is not the main safety problem.

Isakson said his family has been in the real estate and construction business since 1982, but they have not built residential houses in Fort Morgan.

He said some duplex houses that would meet the two-story restriction can accommodate up to 56 people. He recommended that the commission require sprinkler systems in buildings like that and work to improve fire exit standards.

Isakson said adding another half story to a two-story building increases the value of the structure by about one third.

He asked commissioners to postpone action on the zoning changes until safety standards could be considered.

Vince Jackson, county planning director, said safety features such as sprinklers would fall under building code requirements, not zoning rules.

Commissioner Joe Davis said county officials will be looking at ways to make rental properties safer. He said that since all floors have to be built above the flood elevation, the first story is already at the level of a second floor in other locations.

Soup Kitchen delivers goody bags from Catholic Social Services

ROBERTSDALE — This month's soup kitchen at the George P. Thames Adult Activity Center was special in more ways than one.

For starters, it was a week early. Normally held the last Friday of every month, this month's offering was held this past Friday, Sept. 20, because many of the Robertsdale Senior group was going to be out of town Sept. 23-27 on a special trip to Chattanooga, which included a ride aboard the famous Chattanooga Choo Choo.

Another reason this month's soup kitchen was special is because they received a donation of goody bags from Catholic Social Services.

"We delivered 45 bags to our shut ins, along with bags of food and dry-goods to our homebound residents," said soup kitchen coordinator Becky Hayes.

The bags included bathroom tissue, paper towels, dish soap, laundry detergent and bar soap.

Those receiving the bags filled out their name and the date they received the bag and if they want they can refill the bags after a month by contacting Catholic Social Services at 251-947-2293.

Now in its sixth year of operation, the soup kitchen is held on the last Friday of every month and while the September soup kitchen did feature a variety of soups, other months have featured a wide variety of foods, from chicken and dumplings, to spaghetti, to tacos and Mexican fare.

"We cook whatever we have available," Hayes said. "We appreciate all the donations from the community and welcome donations and any volunteers who would like to help out. We understand that there are a lot of winter visitors to the area this time of year and if they are looking for a place to volunteer, we'd love to have them."

Volunteers are also needed to deliver meals to shut-ins every month, Hayes said.

For the past several months, volunteers from Alabama Hospice have been helping with the delivery, Hayes said.

"We certainly want to thank them for all they do for us," Hayes said.

Hayes said while they will not turn anyone away who needs a hot meal, donations are gladly accepted from those who want to come and support the program.

If you would like to donate, contact the Hayes or Claudia Barbee at the Senior Center, 251-947-8973, or donations can be dropped off directly at the center.

Program teaches students to produce rock show

By ALLISON MARLOW
allisonm@gulfcoastmedia.com

There was glitter. Everywhere.

Under the spray of sparkle, students danced, took selfies and sang along to the same legendary hair band rock songs that many of their parents did in high school.

And the best part, the students were partly responsible for making the concert happen.

The popular high energy, hair metal rock band the Velcro Pygmies performed at Fairhope High School Friday as the culmination of the school's participation in the Reach and Teach program, an educational initiative that allows students to plan, promote and execute a concert through hands-on experiences.

April Clark, a former Colbert County high school marketing instructor, and Pygmies lead singer Cam Flener, founded the program three years ago as a way of helping teach life skills.

"They learn all the marketing, planning, sponsorship, and set up but the bigger picture is the essential life skills they use – networking, making eye contact, even learning how to shake someone's hand. These are skills they will use no matter what career path they choose," Clark said.

The program has grown exponentially since its inception three years ago, reaching into other states and holding about 25 concerts a year. While the Velcro Pygmies remain a staple, other local acts rotate through, including Bay Minette native and The Voice finalist Kirk Jay who will perform in Saraland schools later this year. Jay stopped by the Fairhope performance to greet the crowd.

Clark added that the program also gives students a chance to explore a career they never considered.

"Some of our students really discover something they love to do and this gives them a platform to develop the confidence they need to develop those passions," she said.

In Michael McCrady's PiraGraphiX career tech classroom at Fairhope, many of his students stumble into the world of multimedia in the same way. The class was responsible for all the marketing materials for Friday's concert including the tickets and design of the custom guitar given away at the end of the show.

Senior Sam Parfait said after he dropped physics he had an open spot on his schedule. He took the multimedia class to fill a space. It ended up fulfilling him.

"I really like it. It's school work but it's not," Parfait said. "It's creative."

In McCrady's class students earn certifications in Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator but also master the printing and installation side of the business, something done at no other major program in the state. Graduates of the Fairhope program have gone on to work for national companies such as Lockheed Martin and Xerox.

In the class, homework is real work. Students have designed, printed and installed projects for nearby non-profits, churches and their peers. Much of the signage on the floors and walls of Fairhope High and Middle schools was their creation.

Parfait designed the guitar while Senior Ethan Lyons and Junior Trent Mayr designed the tickets.

Parfait said he plans on studying sports management, a career McCrady said will be boosted with the multimedia backround.

"It's great as a teacher to see the growth and see somebody's eyes open up and learn something that they can use for the rest of their life," McCrady said.

The Velcro Pygmies agree. At Tuesday's concert, Flener encouraged the crowd to embrace their uniqueness. The concert was as much a chance to enjoy a rock concert as it was to encourage the students love themselves.

"I don't care what color you are, how tall you are or how athletic you are," he said. "Everybody in this room is unique and everybody in this room has the ability to change the world.

"Every single person in this room is a weirdo," Flener said. "You know what I want you to do? I want you to embrace it and be the weirdo that you are."

"Every single person in this room is a weirdo. You know what I want you to do? I want you to embrace it and be the weirdo that you are."

Hear a bump in the night? "Eerie Alabama" recounts the state's strange and curious

By ALLISON MARLOW
allisonm@gulfcoastmmedia.com

Normally, Alan Brown writes ghost stories.

But he could no longer ignore the strange stories of bumps in the night, mythical creatures and even an alleged crying pecan tree that fill Alabama's history.

They weren't ghost. They weren't hauntings. But they were, weird.

"There's a lot of strange stuff that has happened in this state and it doesn't get enough recognition," Brown said. "Because it's a Deep South state people think of the Deep South as being haunted for the most part. You don't normally associate it with these other things, UFOs and monsters."

Brown said he based his research on some of the stories uncovered by Kathryn Tucker Windham who wrote, "Alabama, One Big Front Porch." Published in 1975, that book took readers on an in-depth tour of the state. In her research she also stumbled upon stories, legends and tales that were too unusual to be considered historical.

The stories Brown uncovered came from newspaper clippings, old diaries and most commonly from locals who retold the stories that had been shared with them over generations.

Brown's favorite Alabama legend is that of Escambia County train robber, Railroad Bill, who, as legend has it, was a shape shifter. And, he was a real person. As the story goes when the sheriff sent his dogs to chase Bill, the train robber would turn into a dog and join in the chase.

Whether that is true or not, is beside the point. The story was bigger than life and was entertaining for those who shared it and imagined what else Railroad Bill could do. Most of the legends in "Eerie Alabama" are rooted in facts that have been embellished over the years as they passed from storyteller to storyteller.

Want to go?

WHAT: Meet Alan Brown, author of Eerie Alabama

WHERE: Page and Palette, Fairhope

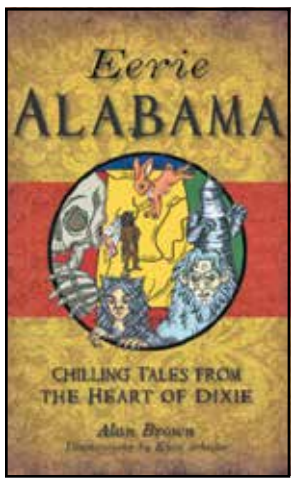

WHEN: Tuesday, Oct. 22, 6 – 7 p.m.

An example is that of phantom Huggin' Molly who chased children who were caught out alone at night, hugged them tight and screamed in their ears. Brown said the tale was probably fabricated by parents who wanted to keep their children inside after supper.

Fairytale or not, the town of Abbeville, north of Dothan, where Huggin' Molly is said to roam, has embraced the legend as a hallmark of its identity.

The town of Fyffe, Alabama holds an annual UFO festival every August to commemorate reported UFO sightings there in February, 1989.

Brown said he fears these myths and legends, long held dear as entertainment passed between generations, will eventually disappear.

"People don't talk to each other much anymore," he said. "I see students with their nose stuck in a cell phone when they walk in the classroom. There's no interaction with each other.

"It's sad and alarming. They're not sharing anything except with their cyber friends and even those messages are often truncated and not full blown stories. People used to sit on the front porch after supper and cool off and share these stories and we don't see it that much anymore."

Meaher State Park opens new cabins

By GUY BUSBY

SPANISH FORT — From the deck of the two new cabins at Meaher State Park, visitors look out on Ducker Bay and the entrance to the Mobile-Tensaw Delta and Mobile Bay.

The two cabins, Eagles Nest and Heron Bay, opened Oct. 9. The facilities raises the number of cabins at the park to four.

The cabins allow visitors who might not have campers to stay at the park and take advantage of its location where the delta joins Mobile Bay, Chris Blankenship, director of the Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, said.

"I just hear so many good things about the camp sites, the improvements that have been made at the park, the launching ramps and now the addition of these camper cabins, it just gives us another element of people that we can serve at the state park," Blankenship said. "Not everybody has an RV or camper that they can bring, but they like to enjoy the park. A lot of people who like to fish in the delta, but it's hard to pull a boat and a camper at the same time."

The cabins are 375-square-foot manufactured houses that can each accommodate four people. The facilities also include a kitchen area as well as the deck overlooking the bay.

The view from the new Meaher State Park cabins deck looks over Ducker Bay near where the Mobile-Tensaw Delta joins Mobile Bay.

Bunk beds at the Heron House cabin. Both cabins can accommodate four guests.

State Parks Director Greg Lein said the small houses are working well as cabins around Alabama, such as Lake Guntersville and Roland Cooper. He said officials hope to add more at Meaher and around the state when the money is available.

He said Meaher is a good location for expansion.

"In the park system we like to celebrate every instance of success and Meaher State Park has had a lot of success recently. We have had great occupancy over the last couple of years. If you look around the park, you see how beautiful and well managed it is. A couple of years ago, we were able to add two of these little cabins and right now we're adding two more," Lein said. "We can't always add as many things as we would like to all at once, but we know that if we add a little bit every year and make the parks better, that our gets appreciate that."

The Heron House is 100 percent compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act, with a queen bed along with two twin beds. The Eagle's Nest cabin has a queen bed with a fold-out queen size couch. Both have a bathroom with a shower, small kitchens and living rooms. All linens and utensils are provided.

The buildings are next to the two other cabins available in the park – Catfish Cavern and Redfish Retreat.

Rates, not including taxes and fees, are $104 per night from Sunday through Thursday and $116 per night on Fridays and Saturdays, with a two-night minimum on weekends and three-night minimums on holidays, Bryant said.

UN Ambassador of Arts offers local classes

YOLANDA JOHNSON
Know Yo! Business

Several years ago, the State of Alabama conducted a study that detailed the true impact of "the arts" have on our economy. As a county that supports the arts from festivals, art centers, and productions to live music in our restaurants, our economy is more positively impacted by the arts than most. The opportunities for artists in Baldwin county alone keep expanding enriching our culture and increasing the economic impact of art in our county.

This month Ibiyinka Alao, www.ibiyinka.com will be in coastal Baldwin County for three weeks. He will be making presentations at school assemblies, conducting workshops in classrooms from Math and History to after school culinary art classes.

In addition to students he will be making public appearances that will be detailed on his Facebook page, https://www.facebook.com/IbiyinkatheArtist/. The appearances include:

Pen Air Employees give $10,000 to local nonprofits through jeans program

PENSACOLA, FLA. — The employees of Pen Air Federal Credit Union presented a total of $10,000 to two local nonprofits during the third quarter of the year. Magic Moments of Alabama and The Lighthouse of Baldwin County each received a gift of $5,000 to enhance the lives of the people they serve.

The funds were raised through Pen Air's Jeans for Communerosity (J4C) program, which is an employee-driven fundraising effort to give back to those in need in the community. Each year, employees nominate local nonprofit organizations to be voted on as recipients of this philanthropic program. Funds are raised through payroll deductions, J4C days, and J4C t-shirt sales. The funds raised by the employees are matched by Pen Air and divided equally among the voted charities for the year. Through J4C, the employees have given more than $240,000 since the program began in 2013. By the end of 2019, more than $290,000 will be given back to make a difference.

The funds given to Magic Moments of Alabama will go towards a dream Disney vacation for Alexis, an 11-year-old from Baldwin County that is battling Hodgkin's Lymphoma. Magic Moments is the only wish granting organization devoted exclusively to creating magic moments in the lives of children in Alabama with chronic life-threatening medical conditions. You can learn more about their mission at magicmoments.org.

The funds given to The Lighthouse of Baldwin County will go towards providing a beacon of hope to women and children recovering from domestic abuse and sexual assault with counseling and shelter. You can learn more about The Lighthouse by visiting facebook.com/abeacon.

Former Gulf Shores quarterback assigned to XFL's Seattle Dragons

MICHAEL HANICH
Sports Analysis

It has been a roller coaster year for former Gulf Shores Dolphins quarterback Brandon Silvers. That roller coaster has now currently risen to the top of the ride as Silvers is one of eight former collegiate/professional quarterbacks to be assigned by the XFL League for a team.

The Seattle Dragons and head coach/general manager Jim Zorn submitted Silvers' name for the XFL to approve and assign him to play for the team. Last Tuesday, the XFL, the returning semi-professional football league, assigned Silvers to the Seattle Dragons along with seven other quarterbacks labeled as tier one quarterbacks.

After the tier one quarterbacks were assigned, there was a draft based on phases of position groups that lasted two days. Joining Silvers as a tier one quarterback is former Ohio State Buckeye Cardale Jones (DC Defenders), former Oklahoma Sooner and Pittsburgh Steelers Landry Jones (Dallas Renegades), and former Georgia Bulldog and Kansas City Chief Aaron Murray (Tampa Bay Vipers).

After a stellar career with the Troy Trojans, Silvers was looking to take his passing skills to the next level of play, the NFL. After some training camp invites, Silvers was not picked up in the 2018-2019 NFL Season.

He was later drafted by the Memphis Express of the AAF, a new semi-professional league that was connected to the NFL teams and organizations. Silvers was the third-string quarterback for the Memphis until he beat out Christian Hackenberg and Zach Mettenberger.

In the time when the Express acquired former Heisman Trophy winning quarterback Johnny Manziel, Silvers still started two games. In those two games, Silvers passed for 799 yards, four touchdowns, and two interceptions on a 64 percent completion percentage.

Despite the incredible publicity of the AAF, the league dissolved when the promised amount of donations and supporter from a large investor was not given. When the AAF dissolved, Silvers was looking for more opportunities for the NFL.

On April 16, Silvers signed with the New York Jets of the NFL. He competed for a chance to be on a roster spot when training camps started but he was waived on May 6.

Now Silvers has another chance to showcase his talents for the XFL for the Seattle Dragons under Jim Zorn. He has been a quarterback coach and offensive guru for many years in the NFL with his last stint with the Kansas City Chiefs from 2011 to 2012. Zorn has coached NFL-caliber quarterbacks in Charlie Batch, Matt Hasselbeck, Matt Cassel and Joe Flacco.

Leading concussion education advocate Dr. Chris Nowinski Sports Academy's 2019 Ernst Jokl Sports Medicine Award

tony@gulfcoastmedia.com

DAPHNE — Dr. Chris Nowinski, one of the world's leading advocates for sport related concussion research and education, has been named the recipient of the United States Sports Academy's 2019 Dr. Ernst Jokl Sports Medicine Award.

Nowinski is a social entrepreneur leading a global conversation on concussions, CTE (chronic traumatic encephalopathy), and the future of sports. He is co-founder and CEO of the non-profit Concussion Legacy Foundation, and author of the critically acclaimed 2006 book "Head Games: Football's Concussion Crisis."

Nowinski is also a co-founder and investigator at the Boston University CTE Center. He has coauthored more than 30 scientific publications, including a groundbreaking study published last week in Annals of Neurology that found each year playing tackle football increases the odds of developing CTE by 30 percent. Nowinski led recruiting efforts for the 266 deceased football players who made that study possible. Following the publication of the study, he launched CLF's Tackle Can Wait campaign, which compares the risk of youth tackle football to smoking and encourages parents to wait until their child is at least 14 before playing tackle.

The Dr. Ernst Jokl Sports Medicine Award, named in honor of the former Olympic athlete, international sports medicine scholar, and director of the University of Kentucky Rehabilitation Center, is given annually to an individual for his or her contributions to the growth and development of sport medicine.

An All-Ivy League Harvard football player-turned professional wrestler, Nowinski's interest in brain trauma stems from personal experience. Nowinski suffered a serious concussion while wrestling with the WWE in 2003, but due to a lack of understanding, he was not honest about his symptoms and continued to perform for five weeks while symptomatic. He developed post-concussion syndrome and was forced to retire. It wasn't until he visited the renowned neurosurgeon Dr. Robert Cantu that Nowinski was first exposed to medical research that showed him concussions and brain trauma were misunderstood in the sports world. He realized this lack of awareness among athletes, coaches, and even medical professionals not only cost him his career, but also threatened the health and well-being of athletes of all ages.

In 2007, he co-founded the Concussion Legacy Foundation with Cantu to support athletes, Veterans, and all affected by concussions and CTE; achieve smarter sports and safer athletes through education and innovation; and to End CTE through prevention and research. In 2008, CLF partnered with Boston University School of Medicine to found the BU CTE Center and VA-BU-CLF Brain Bank, where Nowinski serves as the Outreach, Recruitment, Education, and Public Policy Leader. He has led efforts to build the world's largest athlete brain bank, with more than 750 brains donated in the last decade. Nowinski earned his Ph.D. in Behavioral Neuroscience from Boston University School of Medicine.

VICE Sports called Nowinski "the man most responsible for making CTE part of the national conversation," and Sports Illustrated said, "it is Nowinski's figure which looms behind the doctors and the headlines and the debate roiling over sports' newfound commitment to minimizing head trauma."

In 2012 he received the Academy's Distinguished Service Award. The Dr. Ernst Jokl Sports Medicine Award is part of the Academy's Awards of Sport, which each year honor a wide range of accomplishments in sport and serve as "A Tribute to the Artist and the Athlete," in conjunction with the Academy's American Sport Art Museum and Archives (ASAMA). The awards recognize these men and women through the Sport Artist of the Year, Honorary Doctorates, Medallion Series, Distinguished Service Awards, Outstanding Athletes, and Alumni of the Year awards.

WEEK OF OCTOBER 21, 2019

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You could be caught in a torrent of advice from well-meaning friends and colleagues this week. But remember, Lamb, you are at your best when you are your own inimitable self.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Expect strong efforts to get you to accept things as they are and not question them. But ignore all that and continue your inquiries until you're sure you have all the answers you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Heavier than usual family and workplace duties compete for your time this week. Try to strike a balance so that you're not overwhelmed by either. Pressures ease by week's end.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a good time for the Moon Child to show off your uniquely inspired approach to the culinary skills -- especially if they're directed toward impressing someone special.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might be happy about the re-emergence of a long-deferred deal. But don't pounce on it quite yet. Time can change things. Be sure the values you looked for before are still there.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Try to rein in your super-critical attitude, even if things aren't being done quite as you would prefer. Remember: What you say now could create an awkward situation later on.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Although you can expect on-the-job cooperation from most of your colleagues this week, some people might insist on knowing more about your plans before they can accept them.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Creating another way to do things is commendable. But you could find some resistance this week from folks who would rather stick with the tried-and-true than try something new.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You usually can keep your aim focused on your goal. But you might need to make adjustments to cope with unsteadiness factors that could arise over the course of the week.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) News arrives about a projected move. Be prepared to deal with a series of possible shifts, including starting and finishing times, and how much the budget will actually cover.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new relationship needs time to develop. Let things flow naturally. It could be a different story with a workplace situation, which might require faster and more focused attention.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Accept a compliment without trying to troll for any hidden reason beyond what was said. After all, don't you deserve to be praised every now and then? Of course you do.

Opinion

2019 a banner year for Loxley

When the Beach Express sliced through the tiny town, leaders could have lamented the construction as the beginning of the end of small town life. Instead, they have embraced the new thoroughfare as a means of making small town life the best it can be.

As a result, the last month has been a flutter of ribbon cuttings. The Manning family opened the doors to a new 31,500 square-foot Piggly Wiggly grocery store in the heart of town. Days before, international leaders gathered to anoint the new U.S. corporate headquarters and manufacturing facility of the Kaishan group which supplies compressed air, refrigeration and mining equipment to over 60 countries. The new facility is projected to bring 62 jobs and more than $11 million in capital investments to Baldwin County in the next three years.

Last month the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced that Loxley would receive a $111,400 loan and a $46,000 grant to purchase new trucks, including three police vehicles.

And just months ago Loxley became a must-stop spot on the map for travelers on I-10 who wanted to visit the mecca of all travel centers: Bucee's. The 55,000 square-foot facility was the first built outside the state of Texas. It brought fresh-made barbecue Texas biscuit sliders, breakfast tacos and 200 jobs to the region.

The leadership in the town of Loxley should be commended for its vision and its ability to seize the opportunity to better the lives of all its citizens. Jobs, revenue, international accolades — Loxley has earned all of this and more through dedication and hard work. Congratulations!

Avoiding water related deaths in Orange Beach

By RAUF BOLDEN

Orange Beach was quick to legislate against short-term rentals, Hemp Shops, Uber and Lyft, but life-saving water safety regulations slipped through the cracks.

Clearly the point of greatest concern is Jet Skis. In late July an 11-year-old girl lost her life when two jet skis collided on Arnica Bay near Bear Point Harbor. Had the girl been issued a life vest designed to "turn unconscious wearers to face-up position," (Type II: Near-Shore Buoyant Vest - https://www.boaterexam.com/boating-resources/personal-flotation-device-types.aspx) in my opinion she would still be alive.

Boating accidents are not isolated to the Gulf Coast.

"A Georgia woman died after driving a water scooter at high speed into the shoreline of a lake in northeast Georgia, the state's Department of Natural Resources said, bringing this year's death toll at popular Lake Lanier to 12," according to a report on CNN (https://www.cnn.com/2019/07/21/us/georgia-woman-death-lake-lanier/index.html).

Water related deaths happen all summer long and municipalities should look at how they can legislate, ensuring Public Safety where possible, knowing you cannot do anything to prevent a freak accident.

"A father of six has died after a wave struck him on a North Carolina beach and slammed him to the sand, breaking his neck," according to a report on CNN (https://www.cnn.com/2019/07/21/us/north-carolina-father-wave-killed/index.html).

Jet Skis are essentially a scooter on the water, having a shallow keel with minimal bite, making it possible for the unit to slip sideways when turning at high speed, possibly colliding into another object with deadly force. A high-speed collision is what happened in the waters off of Bear Point Harbor. Just horsing around cost an 11-year-old girl her life, devastating her family, becoming a death statistic while on vacation in Orange Beach.

Public Safety needs a plan, developed from responsible data and professional input.

I wrote the City of Orange Beach for water-related death statistics from 2017 to the present. They have not responded to my Public Records Request.

"Jet Skis are the most dangerous thing a tourist can do. It is like putting them on a motorcycle that goes 50 miles an hour without brakes. They [tourists] are not accustomed to running them [Jet Skis]. When something goes bad on a Jet Ski it goes very bad, because there is nothing to diminish the collision with another boat or Jet Ski. When I would rent them, we would make sure they [tourists] knew what they were doing. I got out of the Jet Ski rental business because they are dangerous. We were fortunate in my five years of renting Jet Skis we never had an accident," said Michael Terrell, owner of Wallace Boat Rentals in Orange Beach (http://wallace-boatrentals.com).

"I was in the water sports business from 1992 to 2012. We are talking today about injury and safety, specifically regarding Jet Ski rental. One of the biggest things about Jet Ski rental is nobody wants to regulate them. One idea is to require renters to watch training videos, showing accidents and injuries, getting their attention about the danger, because the biggest problem with Jet Skis is when you let off the throttle you have no steerage, and so many people don't know that," said Steve Vrondran, owner of Kayden's Ice Cream in Orange Beach (https://kaydenscandy-factory.com/).

Getting all entities like businesses and local government on the same page is hard. I argue for local legislation, requiring Type II Vests when operating Jet Skis in Orange Beach's jurisdiction, protecting family members from being face down in the water after an accident.

Knowing this is an uphill legislative battle is an understatement, remembering how hard it was to get motorcyclist to wear helmets. Finally, lawmakers realized helmets for motorcycles and seat belts in cars save lives.

Several people argue we are over regulated already in Orange Beach, interfering with what fish to catch, interfering with renting residential properties, interfering with what kind of business I can have selling CBD oil, even though anyone can drive to Gulf Shores and pick up a vial from The Original David's Gallery (http://davidsgallery.com/cbd-oils). I respectfully suggest an Ordinance, directly linked to saving lives.

Crafting a local law requiring operators of Jet Skis to wear Type II Life Vests is vital, essentially increasing public safety on the water. This is the right kind of regulation for Orange Beach.

Rauf Bolden is retired IT Director at the City of Orange Beach, presently pursuing his dream as a Web Technologies Consultant on the Beach Road. He can be reached by email: publisher@velvetillusion.com.

Greta Thunberg, autism and thriving in the face of adversity

Greta Thunberg has shown the world that nothing can interfere with the fulfillment of her mission of climate activism. Not cyberbullying. Not expressions of opposition, some from prominent power players. And perhaps most remarkably, not an autism spectrum diagnosis. In fact, her autism profile is arguably an asset as she sets forth in winning over hearts and minds across the globe.

Asperger's Syndrome, which is Greta's autism spectrum diagnosis, is frequently accompanied by other disorders. In her case, obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD) is relevant, which likely contributes to her intense, passionate and unrelenting focus on speaking truth to power in urging action on climate change. Inspiring what has become a worldwide movement no doubt requires a degree of "thinking outside the box", a common attribute among folks with Aspie (a more feel-good way of saying Asperger's) profiles. The decision to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a solar-powered yacht on her way to the UN Summit on Climate Emissions is but one example of such thinking.

Like Greta, I, too, am an Aspie who hyper-focuses on what matters most to me, and with solid results. I could have given up early on my almost lifelong struggle at building self- esteem. Instead, I fought through and eventually learned how to love myself. I, too, have endured more than my share of bullying and survived, stronger than before. For both of us, it's all about using what most would consider a handicap or a burden as an advantage!

Asperger's Syndrome is widely thought of as a disorder, but this is not how I look at it, and Greta probably feels the same way. Rather, Asperger's is an integral part of who we are, a way of being that carries unique personality traits, challenges and strengths as well. I praise Greta for being who she is, for not hiding her true self, in spite of knowing she is different and a figure of controversy.

Let the Australian prime minister try to undermine her efforts by publicly stating "more learning and less activism". Let the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries(OPEC) call her "the greatest threat to the fossil fuel industry" to which Greta appropriately replied "thanks". Let the bully who responded to a video of one of her speeches at the UN Summit on Climate Emissions state on Twitter that she is "so obviously deeply disturbed". Greta's response to this statement: "when haters go after your looks and differences, they have nowhere left to go, and then you know you're winning...being different is a superpower."

The sheer force of Greta's personality, to which Asperger's and OCD are integral, has led to several impressive accomplishments which could be construed as epic in light of her age and profile. The President of the European Commission, standing next to her, announced during a speech that hundreds of billions of Euros would be spent on climate change mitigation. The scientific community has been paying attention and supporting her. An invitation to speak at a UN summit speaks for itself. And perhaps the greatest of all of her feats to date, being the single most inspirational voice behind this month's week-long Global Climate Strike, millions of young people and older like-minded folks supporting them, joining her in solidarity, taking a stand for what they believe in and against a very real and shared fear.

What a beautiful and special young woman! Arguably a force of nature. Perhaps you agree, even if you don't agree with Greta's platform? Either way, take a stand for what you believe in, no matter what may stand in your way.

SAM FARMER wears many hats, among them father, husband, musician, computer consultant, and autism spectrum community contributor. Diagnosed later in life with Asperger's Syndrome, he writes blogs, records coaching videos, and presents at conferences and support groups for the Asperger/Autism Network. In this fashion, Farmer aims to share stories, ideas and insights as to how one can achieve greater happiness and success in life despite the challenges and adversity which both autistic and non-autistic folks often face.

Movie: Good Witch: Curse From a Rose

In this two-hour Halloween event, Cassie (Catherine Bell) receives a somewhat unwelcome visit from former college roommate Autumn Deveraux (Lolita Davidovich), who still feels the urge to settle an old score between them. Cassie tries to cauterize that old wound before Autumn does something to spoil Middleton's holiday celebration. Martha (Catherine Disher), meanwhile, plans a seasonal bonfire while trying to overlook that her husband has forgotten the anniversary of their engagement. Sam's (James Denton) efforts to arrange a romantic Halloween are thwarted by bad luck.

Watchmen

Adapted from the same graphic novel by Alan Moore and Dave Gibbons that inspired a polarizing 2009 feature film, this new superhero series isn't a retelling of that source material, but rather a creative "remix" that sets its new story in the same world where the original story line took place: an alternate reality where superheroes and masked vigilantes have been outlawed for their violence. The huge cast includes Regina King, Don Johnson, Louis Gossett Jr., Jeremy Irons, Jean Smart and Tim Blake Nelson, among others.

Food Network and Cooking Channel celebrate Halloween with some boo!-tiful treat ideas

Unless you've been stranded on a South Pacific island a la Tom Hanks in "Cast Away," you're probably well aware by now that Halloween comes next week.

To get you in the proper state of culinary mind, Food Network and Cooking Channel have concocted a schedule rife with ideas for what to prepare and serve on or around the holiday. So sit back, turn on the TV and take in the tips, tricks and recipes that their experts have to offer.

Probably the most noteworthy entry on this week's schedule comes up Monday, Oct. 21, on Cooking, when Carla Hall hosts the hourlong special "Trick or Eat," in which the chef and author ventures to stops in Atlanta, New Orleans and Salem, Mass., to sample such tricked-out treats as zombie burgers, Franken-chops and freak shakes. Hard to say "boo!" to these options.

Also in the holiday mood is Guy Fieri, who on his Saturday, Oct. 26, episode of Food's "Guy's Ranch Kitchen," invites in Amanda Freitag to prepare a red hot blood orange margarita with spicy cinnamon syrup and smoked, deep-fried chicken wings coated in hot sauce and pomegranate molasses; Marc Murphy to make orange-and-black caviar-covered deviled eggs and a cheesy risotto served in an acorn squash; and Christian Petroni for a tenderoni pizza with hot honey and a fire-roasted brococolini sprinkled with sweet and tart preserved lemon. Halloween eats have never been so upscale.

Also that afternoon on Food, Trisha Yearwood of "Trisha's Southern Kitchen" is taking on a Roaring Twenties look for her Ghoulish Gatsby Party, during which she will serve up such offerings as a festive fruit gelatin mold, crunchy fried olives, shrimp cocktail with dipping sauces, and spider web deviled eggs, all washed down with an apple champagne cocktail suitable for toasting. Cheers!

If competition shows are your thing, Food Network has you covered, starting with Monday's penultimate episode of "Halloween Baking Championship," in which the four remaining bakers are tasked with creating desserts with a grave-robber theme and sculpting a marbled tomb cake.

On the Sunday, Oct. 20, edition of "Halloween Wars," the teams of three must create displays that show how holiday mascots like Santa and the Easter Bunny do trick-or-treating, with actor Jackson Rathbone (the "Twilight" movies) serving as a guest judge alongside regulars Shinmin Li and Todd Tucker.

And immediately following on "Haunted Gingerbread Showdown," "The Mummy's Ancient Curse" is in effect as host Clinton Kelly challenges three gingerbread artists to tell a story of mummies run amok. Without the odor, obviously.

Kennedy McMann

OF 'NANCY DREW' ON THE CW

In "Nancy Drew," your version of the character is very contemporary in many ways. Since you grew up reading the classic book series, how do you find playing that?

It's something where now, I feel like it's so much less taboo to be showing women how they actually are, and how they actually want to live their lives and pursue things. With Nancy Drew, that's sort of always been there. I mean, she's very prim and proper in the 1930s editions of the books, and we're showing her in a more modern context ... but, I think that there is just a broader market for a lot riskier material.

You did guest parts on "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" and "Gone." Did you foresee yourself in a regular series role then?

Both of those jobs were a pleasure to do, and those were connections that I made. I am still in contact with those people. Leven Rambin, who was the star of "Gone" ... she was like, "I'm so excited for you that this happened!" It's just really cool to build that support network when you're a guest star on somebody's show, and then hopefully (ready) for something bigger later.

Is it true that when you worked as a nanny, you asked the children you minded to help you get ready for potential acting jobs?

They would sometimes help me learn some lines for auditions that were coming up, if their homework was done and chores were done. I think it's a very normal type of a lifestyle for a young actor who's trying to make it. I had quite a long commute to work; I would read scripts and work on stuff on the train. I probably looked like a crazy person as I was talking to myself.

OF 'CHRISTMAS WISHES & MISTLETOE KISSES' ON HALLMARK CHANNEL

Though it isn't Halloween yet, it's beginning to look a lot like Christmas as you start Hallmark Channel's new holiday movies with "Christmas Wishes & Mistletoe Kisses." What do you think about helping to lead it off so early?

The good part about it is that it's early enough where they can replay it and people can enjoy it again during the season. I love that people love Christmas because I love it, too.

I'm all for anything that puts your heart in the right mood and puts a smile on your face ... but thinking about it from a business standpoint, looking at the ratings and how many people watch this network for Christmas, it blows my mind. It really does. They're doing all the right things, for sure.

The father of your interior-designer character in "Christmas Wishes & Mistletoe Kisses" is played by Darby Hinton, who was a child star as Israel on the 1960s series "Daniel Boone." How was it to work with him?

Man, talk about a cool dude! We had some good conversations, and he's just one of those salt-of-the-earth guys. He's so talented, and I'm so proud that he's playing my father. That's just who you want.

You've made several Christmas movies for Hallmark, and they generally have to be made during warmer months to meet their premiere dates. Are you used to filming them out of season?

You're an actor, so what you're being put into is this world that you have to make your reality. Having to pretend you're cold or whatever, it's just part of the gig, so it doesn't really affect me.

The only time it gets really bad is when you have a lot of outdoor scenes and you're wrapped in a scarf and a big wool coat. Your sweat glands can't act – they're either dripping or they're not – but other than that, it's OK for me.

BEST OF TV'S FUNNY LADIES

Lucille Ball

Betty White

Carol Burnett

Lucille Ball There's no "splaining to do" here. Ball first started out as a model, then a chorus girl before she got into television and eventually launched one of the most well-known sitcoms in history – "I Love Lucy" (1951-1957). She certainly had her way of getting into sticky situations, especially when she was scheming to somehow get into show business. The laughs would continue for years to come with "The Lucy-Desi Comedy Hour" (1957-1960), "The Lucy Show" (1962-1968), "Here's Lucy" (1968-1974) and "Life With Lucy" (1986).

Betty White Where do we start? White's career spans an incredible 80 years (and counting) with numeous roles ranging from talk show host ("The Betty White Show"), game show celebrity guest ("Password"), comedy star ("The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "The Golden Girls," "Hot in Cleveland," among others), commercials (Snickers ad in Super Bowl XLIV), animated film voice talent ("The Lorax") and more. Let's not forget her love of animals. Thank you for being a friend, Betty.

Carol Burnett Starting out as a singer, Burnett was catapulted into the spotlight when she peformed a number called "I Made a Fool of Myself Over John Foster Dulles" (Dulles was Secretary of State during that time). From there she went on to do Tony Award-winning work on Broadway and had various other roles before landing "The Carol Burnett Show," which ran from 1967-1978. Insert Tarzan yell here.

Mary Tyler Moore She certainly knew how to turn the world on with her smile. Moore began her successful career dancing in TV commercials for Hotpoint appliances, which appeared during the 1950s series "Ozzie and Harriet." She is best-known for her roles as Laura Petrie, wife of Rob (Dick Van Dyke) in "The Dick Van Dyke Show" (1961-1966) and as associate producer at the fictional WJM news program in Minneapolis on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" (1970-1977).

Marla Gibbs "Moving on up!" A nominee for multiple-award categories over her 50 year career, Gibbs is forever tied to her role as the back-talking maid for George and Louise (Sherman Hemsley, Isabel Sanford) in "The Jeffersons" (1975-1985). Later, she took her sharp-tongued wit to Lexington Place in the 1985-1990 sitcom "227," which followed the gossip surrounding the lives of those living in and around her apartment building.
