BY SEA, BY KAYAK

Slow down your days and enjoy the Gulf Coast on a leisurely kayak trail

BY ALLISON MARLOW

You've walked the beach. You've sped out into the open water in a slim and speedy fishing boat. Now, explore the beautiful Gulf Coast waters you can't see anywhere except atop a kayak.

The seaside communities in Baldwin County are well known for their expansive and seemingly never-ending kayak trails that wind through some of the most beautiful scenery in the south.

"There is no shortage of kayak opportunities in this area," said Michael Dorie, president of WildNative tours. "I can take someone out every weekend of the year and we would never see the same place twice."

Dorie's crew leads visitors out onto Baldwin County's kayak trails all year long. Even as the pandemic raged, kayaking remained a safe and fun option since participants are outside and spread apart.

"It's Covid-friendly," Dorie said. "People really enjoyed that aspect. They could still go out and see the sites and be with people but be safe.

They are in their own kayak, not next to each other, outdoors, with the wind and the breeze. Now more than ever the popularity of kayaking is continuing to rise."

The ease of kayaking helps to draw in new converts as well. Equipment is limited and can be easily rented or purchased. There's no need for a boat ramp, truck or trailer.

"Kayaking is very accessible to lots of people," Dorie said.

The sport, he added, can be tailored to be as easy or difficult as needed.

"Even if you're new to the sport and not super physically fit, if you can walk for an hour or two you are probably able to kayak for an hour or two without an issue," he said.

When WildNative guides take visitors out onto the trails they encourage people to take their time and enjoy the day rather than race through the waterways without stopping.

"We can go so many places you can't reach in a motorboat. The peacefulness and serenity of being

Tips for kayaking on your own

Michael Dorie, president of WildNative Tours, said beginners who have never kayaked sometimes get in "over their heads" on their first trip. His crews are often called to rescue kayakers who are lost or unable to return to their start point. For visitors who choose to head out on their own rather than start with a guided trip he offers these tips:

- Do research. Look at kayak trail maps and know where you are going and how to get back.
- Be familiar with weather variables such as the wind, tide and currents, take all of this into account when you plan your trip. Alabama's coast has rapidly changing weather conditions.
- Leave your plan with someone on shore. Tell them where you are going and when you expect to be back.

there without the engine and motor noise — this is a great way to see wildlife and get up close without being intruding,” he said.

One of WildNative’s most popular outings is the dolphin and wildlife kayak experience. The trip meanders along the Bon Secour River and lets visitors explore parts of Oyster Bay, Bon Secour Bay and the Intracoastal Waterway.

On most days, dolphins visit the groups, sometimes swimming within 5 to 10 feet of the kayaks.

“It’s the highlight of our tour,” Dorie said.

“While we are teaching about kayaking we are also teaching our guests about the local ecosystems. But everything halts when the dolphins appear.”

On the northern end of the county Dorie’s crew leads kayakers through the delta in Spanish Fort near the causeway. There kayakers greet a different visitor on their trips — alligators.

Dorie said WildNative can tailor trips to every visitor’s needs.

“We can cater to beginners, we can do large guided trips we can even come to your condo on the beach,” he said. “We’re excited to share our local eco system.”

Kayak fishing in the Gulf

The City of Orange Beach Wind & Water Learning Center offers clinics on kayak fishing. The main purpose is to teach techniques on how to maneuver a fishing kayak, how to use and detach an anchor trolley, and casting practices. The class is $70 for three hours and includes all the equipment needed for kayak fishing. The waterfront learning center accommodates those 15 years and older, and all skill levels. A convenient location on Wolf Bay makes for easy access to the scenic bay water. In addition to the kayak fishing clinic, the Wind & Water Learning Center also offers a sail camp and kayaking classes for beginners.

A few great places for kayak fishing

Little Lagoon on West Beach in Gulf Shores is considered a hidden treasure, offering shelter and a variety of fish. The channel at Lee Callaway Bridge is deep and dredged often, allowing for better water exchange between the Gulf and the lagoon. Trout is a popular catch, but there are also plenty of redfish and flounder. Anglers recommend using the boat ramp at Lagoon Park on Fort Morgan Road.

If you are staying on Fort Morgan Road and feeling adventurous, kayak fish the Dixey Bar, a large sand bar between the Gulf of Mexico and Mobile Bay. Anglers warn of a strong current, but the catches include bull redfish, amberjack, pompano and king mackerel, to name a few.

For kayak fishing in Orange Beach, try Robinson Island and Bird Island. Conveniently located by Perdido Pass, kayak anglers can launch at Alabama Point. Check the direction of the wind to find which side of the islands are calmer and therefore a better option during your visit.

Incorporation of the City of Orange Beach

I know you are tired of hearing about Hurricanes, but I want to talk about one good thing that came from Hurricane Frederic.

The construction boom, after Hurricane Frederic on Sept. 12, 1979, included the building of many condominiums, resorts, marinas, restaurants and family dwellings. The population expansion bringing with it all the problems that lack of local control can bring.

However, gaining local control was not as easy as it sounded. Two different groups set about attempting to solve the problem by incorporation of the area into a city, but by different methods.

My neighbor, Joe Johnson, and his friend Bob Milsap did not believe that residents of Orange Beach would be able to gain incorporation. They joined forces to begin negotiations with the City of Gulf Shores. The other group headed by A.E. Cooper, wife Jean, my mother, Dorothy Childress and local community member, Rose Williams, were organizing a plan for the possible incorporation of Orange Beach as its own city.

It took a while, but both groups finally came together and agreed to try and gain incorporation by general statute. Ack Moore, engineer with the water board, provided the group with section maps, identifying potential voters. As a result of their efforts, a vote concerning the possible incorporation of my City of Orange Beach was held Aug. 6, 1984. Although the referendum passed, some areas did not meet incorporation requirements. The areas of East Orange Beach, Bear Point, Terry Cove, Alabama Point, Romar Beach and Ono Island along with a few other smaller areas did not vote to come into the city.

On Sept 11, an election for mayor and council members was held with my mother, Dorothy Childress serving as the chief election official. It seems normal that she would be in charge. When we moved here in 1949, she was upset that there was no voting box in Orange Beach. You had to go up to Foley or down to Shell Banks to cast a ballot. She got that changed. There were only six registered voters in Orange Beach in 1949. In the Sept. 11 election, there were 600 eligible voters.

After the mayor and council were elected, the City of Orange Beach immediately began annexation by legislation for the areas that did not vote to come into the City. All areas were added except Ono Island.

So, you can see, not all hurricanes are bad.

Local historian Margaret Childress Long moved to Orange Beach from Evergreen when she was just two months shy of her second birthday. Although she did spend 12 years in Creola she has always called Orange Beach home. Margaret and her husband Buddy live in the same house where Margaret's parents lived for more than 50 years. Her dad paid $12,500 to Dr. Amos Garret of Robertsedale, her mom's first cousin, in 1949 for the 300 ft. waterfront parcel. A teacher at Fairhope Middle and High Schools and Elberta Middle School, Margaret served the island as school board representative for six years. A fisherman, hunter and farmer, her father also owned a farm in Summerdale. Sons Wesley and Brooks have turned the farm into the popular Alligator Alley tourist attraction.

Margaret has co-authored two books, "The Best Place to Be – The Story of Orange Beach, Alabama" and "Orange Beach Alabama – A Pictorial History"

Anthony Jones ... Well Worth A Visit!

Voted The Best Salon in Baldwin County

It was a beautiful summer morning when we left Fairhope, low humidity and not a cloud in the sky. We were on our way down to Orange Beach to check out a business that many of our friends have told us about, this Englishman who had opened a Hair Salon on the beach with his daughter Emma. My hair is very important to me and getting a good haircut is a must, and that is what Anthony Jones is known for and excellent hair color to boot.

We have both been very dissatisfied with the last few attempts on designing our hair to suit our lifestyles; most of the so called stylists did not take into consideration our age or understand that we both want to look great without a lot of fuss and bother.

The traffic was a bit heavy due to the summer visitors, but we arrived on time to this charming yellow and white beach house on the beach road with a fabulous view of the Gulf of Mexico. We were greeted warmly by Anthony and Emma and they ask us if we would like a cold drink or a glass of wine before he started making us beautiful.

Pam, my friend, went first since I was a little chicken after the last experiences. Anthony directed her to a styling chair and went on to explain the ten most important rules in designing a custom hairstyle to suit her. He first looked at her face shape and explained that there are five face shapes out there and told her her face shape was oval. The next was bone structure and head shape, after that was the type of her hair, the texture of her hair, then what sort of condition her hair was in, followed by the way the hair grows out of the head, plus cow licks, then her likes and dislikes and fashion. Wow! What a lot of things to get right.

So then Emma started with a relaxing shampoo and deep conditioning, then for the next 30 minutes Anthony's hands were a sea of motion, lastly a quick blow dry with hardly any fuss and presto she was finished! She was so happy and she could not believe the difference in her hair.

Now it was my turn, my hair especially in the summer gets very frizzy and dry; I have tried everything out there for my hair with no success! Anthony explained that commercial hair products are made different to professional hair products. Commercial shampoos are made of mild detergent and the conditioners are based on petroleum oil. Where professional hair products are pure and natural and give back to the hair, he also went on to say that we should all wash our hair every day and condition our hair the same.

Anthony explained that at all times our hair has to have at least 8% moisture in it the same as our skin, we should treat our hair the same way as we treat our skin, by moisturizing it every day which made a lot of sense to me, since the last stylist told me not to wash my hair every day because in her mind it would dry it out. Anthony explained to me that yes using some drug store products would dry your hair out if washed daily. After we went through the ten rules, he took me to the shampoo area and treated me to the best shampoo and conditioning my hair had ever had.

While shampooing, Emma explained to me what I should do in the morning in the shower, again stressing no over-the-counter hair products, that's why my hair is dry and frizzy. After shampooing and before conditioning, towel blot the hair because the hair is porous like a sponge, putting any conditioner on one's hair when it is full of water will not go into the hair itself, so blot it first then apply the product and leave it in while you are washing yourself. Then before you leave the shower, rinse and count up to 10 slowly and stop, just rinse the excess and no more.

After she explained to me the hows & whys, I understood. They are like hair doctors, if we listen and do what they say it works! Anthony has his own line of products and everything he used on me was his and believe me the stuff works. The cut he gave me was wonderful; I walked out a new woman and so did Pam, no more frizzes! Oh, by the way he used a great product before he dried my hair called "POTION." It is a gel with a lot of healing features with body, fabulous! I bought a bottle. Best money we ever spent and yes, we are definitely going back. He is a true professional.

Well worth a visit!

Nothing endures but love

Tree stumps left by Sally painted to inspire and spread joy

BY ALLISON MARLOW

The stump was stuck. In the middle of a ditch. Turned over, in the middle of nowhere.

There it waited as a constant reminder of the destructive force that had turned Baldwin County upside down when Hurricane Sally slowly scraped across the landscape.

When Lloyd Wayne Jones drove by it, his imagination was struck.

Sure, it was a little ugly, for lack of a better term. But it was also a beautiful reminder that, with a little effort, and a lot of love, an ugly situation can be made better.

So Jones, who said he wasn't necessarily an artist, became one. After two hours a day, for five days with paint in hand, he transformed what was just another painful reminder into an inspirational work of art.

It became known as the Heart Tree, the first of a community project that would shift the focus of those stumps from painful reminders to expressions of love.

"It's been a year for us all," Jones said. "I don't think one person can say they haven't had to re-evaluate, readdress and reconsider things in their lives. In our area much of that came after Sally."

After the repeated blows of 2020, Jones said much like those trees he was feeling down after the storm. Jones, who lives in Magnolia Springs, works in the music industry. When Covid-19 struck, his was the first industry to fall.

After a tough year, the beauty of that stump was an unexpected moment of bliss.

"Nothing is really built to last except for love," he said. "For those looking for hope who are maybe in a hopeless place, they can feel inspired by that work of art."

The simple painting became a conversation piece. Then, as Wayne hoped, it motivated.

Families began painting their stumps as well. Ditches full of debris were transformed into works of art.

"People really began feeling inspired and pulled in their creative juices to make their community a better place," he said.

Many of the painted stumps have since been removed by the rumbling black debris trucks that have crisscrossed the county. Others remain. And some still sit patiently, waiting for an artist. The stumps may sit a week or a year. Either way, Jones said, they helped love to endure.

"The strongest oak was once a small acorn and eventually it's going to fall on its own. Like that this is one of those fleeting moments. If you blink you might miss it. But for that moment in time I'm happy to be able to give somebody hope in these trying times," Jones said.

New Saltwater HeALs brand aims to support coastal agencies

BY ALLISON MARLOW

The sea gives, the sea takes. The sea frightens, the sea inspires.

And after the pain those dark waves caused as Hurricane Sally rushed ashore, the sea now heals.

Tara McMeans, who owns Design, Print, Promote in Gulf Shores, spent the days after Hurricane Sally, ripping out and replacing the torn pieces of her own seaside home while helping neighbors do the same.

As they worked side by side, McMeans said she was inspired to do more.

“I really wanted to get something out there that would benefit our community,” she said. “I’ve been thinking about this for a while, but it’s been a weird year.”

When the spread of the Coronavirus shut down the restaurants and businesses of her friends and neighbors, she said she knew she wanted to help build something to lift up the community. Then Hurricane Sally tore through those same neighborhoods with a vengeance.

She didn’t want it to highlight the struggles they felt during the pandemic or the hurricane. Instead, she wanted to create a brand that locals would be proud to wear and that would help support organizations in the community.

Saltwater HeALs was born.

McMeans said Saltwater HeALs is a local brand that will celebrate the bonds of community and give back to organizations. Profits from the sale of Saltwater HeALs products will be donated to not just one beachside organization, but to all of them.

“I didn’t want to limit the organizations we donate to because we have so many great organizations,” McMeans said.

Currently when you order one of the brand’s t-shirts, water bottles, stickers or gaiters you also pick the organization that will receive a donation from your order.

McMeans said she eventually hopes to partner with area businesses and have the products sold in their storefronts. Any merchandise they sell will automatically receive the donation for their community projects such as Tacky Jack’s support of Wounded Warriors.

Since Saltwater HeALs is still in its infant stations, McMeans has largely funded the entire project. She hopes as new year rolls around, it will grow and allow her to expand the brand’s offerings and raise more money for the community.

“I’m hoping it becomes one of the larger brands that our friends and family can get behind,” she said. “We’re able to do so much good with this brand. I want people to see that bumper sticker and feel good. It’s more than just a brand, it’s a chance to give back.”
