The Kemper Messenger

Both Kemper County varsity basketball teams are headed to Jackson this week as they have advanced in the Mississippi High School Activities Association Class 3A state basketball tournaments.

The teams have qualified for the semifinals in their respective brackets and were to play Wednesday. The Lady Wildcats will take on Belmont at 9 a.m. The winner advances to the finals on Saturday when they take on the winner between Kossuth and Crystal Springs starting at 1 p.m.

The Kemper County boys were to play Booneville at noon. The winner will advance to the state finals against the winners between St. Andrews and Senatobia Saturday at 3 p.m.

Because of last month's ice storm, the tournament dates were pushed back and teams had to play three games last week with the girls taking the court on Monday, Wednesday and Friday while the boys played on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The Kemper County girls started the week with a 49-21 win over West Marion. They then defeated Velma Jackson 55-36 and Jefferson County 64-54.

Kemper County trailed Velma Jackson 28-26 at the half. But coach Ronnie Slaughter made some adjustments at the half and the Lady Wildcats turned the game around. Kemper County outscored Velma Jackson 29-8 in the second half and took the victory.

Chantel Stringfellow led with 21 points. Zariyah Moss scored 12 points while Shalasia Darden scored eight.

The Lady Wildcats then went up 16-8 after the first quarter in their game with Jefferson Davis. Both teams scored 15 points in the second quarter and the score stood at 31-23 at the half in Kemper's favor.

Jefferson Davis outscored Kemper 17-13 in the third quarter. But Kemper came back to out-point Jefferson Davis 20-14 in the fourth quarter and took the win.

Stringfellow finished with 20 points while Moss scored 14.

"I think we are ready to play," said Slaughter. "These girls played hard last week and now we are two wins away from being state champions."

Wildcats

Kemper County rolled through the competition last week as they defeated West Marion 78-45, Yazoo County 81-64 and Tylertown 70-50.

COVID-19 cases up by 11 cases in county

Compiled By STEVE SWOGETINSKY
The Kemper Messenger

The number of cases of COVID-19 in Kemper County has increased by 11 this past week, according to statistics provided by the Mississippi Department of Health website.

Kemper County has 901 reported cases as of Monday, an increase of 11 in the past week. The county has 23 reported deaths, an increase of one.

Local residents are reminded that the Kemper County board of supervisors has extended its county-wide mask mandate through April 5.

The mandate was first passed last year in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. It has been extended each month by the board.

It requires that masks be worn in public. Anyone who violates the ordinance, upon conviction, could face a $500 fine and/or six months in jail.

Mississippians are strongly encouraged to wear a mask, social distance, avoid large gatherings, and wash hands frequently. Vaccination is also encouraged for those who are eligible. Current eligibility includes Mississippi residents or

Senator Jackson updates on legislative work

By SAMPSON JACKSON
Special to The Messenger

The senate proposed a $6.15 billion total state support budget that contains $2.56 billion for K-12 education.

It proposed $663.5 million for Institutions of Higher Learning and $232 million for community and junior colleges.

The budget proposed a $6.4 million transfer from the Department of Finance and Administration to the Department of Public Safety to facilitate transferring authority over the Capitol Police force to the state's chief law enforcement agency.

The passage of Senate Bill 2895 would allow a downward adjustment of ad valorem taxes in Chickasaw and Tunica counties for proposed alternative energy production projects worth at least $100 million. Chickasaw is eyeing a solar production project and Tunica is the proposed location for a wind generated energy project.

Our passage of House Bill 1302 would allow sufficiently trained optometrists to perform a greater range of medical services like removing small growths or lesions, "needle drainage of eyelid abscesses, hematoma, bulla and seroma."

Proponents think the increased medical ability could cause more optometrists to practice in Mississippi.

We passed a Rules calendar honoring Mississippians who have achieved, and we made certain board appointments.

I appreciate the opportunity to serve you. Please call me at 601-359-3232 if I can help you.

Ways to keep your low carbs with cold weather food

Compiled by DENISE SWOGETINSKY
Kemper Messenger

With all this cold weather, we are looking for some good "stick to your ribs" recipes. You may fear you will have to give up low carbs for comfort, but never fear. There are options available. Just remember that healthy eating requires planning and moderation.

LOW-CARB LASAGNA
2 cabbages (medium)
2 pounds lean ground beef
1 Anaheim pepper (chopped)
1 white onion (or yellow, finely chopped)

1 clove garlic (minced)
1 teaspoon oregano
2 teaspoons basil
28 ounces crushed tomatoes (with Italian herbs)
1 egg white
1 cup gouda cheese (shredded)
1 cup mozzarella cheese (shredded)
1 cup Parmesan cheese (shredded)
salt
pepper
red pepper flakes

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cut cabbage heads in half and boil for 15–20 minutes until soft. Drain water and chop into 1" squares. Then sauté cabbage for 2–3 minutes to remove excess water. Let cool and wrap cabbage leaves in dishtowel, squeezing out remaining water. Brown beef in skillet. When most of the pink is gone, add pepper and onion. Sauté 3 more minutes until thoroughly cooked and onion has softened. Add garlic, oregano and basil and cook 1 more minute. Remove from heat.

In a medium bowl, whisk egg white into crushed tomatoes. Add to meat mixture and season with salt and pepper. In a separate bowl, mix cheeses together. To assemble, double layer cabbage, meat sauce and cheese in greased 9" x 13" pan. Sprinkle with red pepper flakes

Acts 4:23-31

This passage begins with Peter and John giving a report to the church of what the chief priests and elders had said to them (verse 23). They had been given an unlawful command accompanied with threats for non-compliance: “you are not to speak in the name of Jesus (verse 18).”

The church responds by proclaiming the sovereignty of God over creation and providence. God is the ruler with absolute power. He made all things; he is not the work of man’s hands, nor a god of man’s imaginations.

We find the phrase (verse 24), “Sovereign Lord, who made the heavens and the earth and the sea and everything in them,” throughout the Scriptures. In Psalm 146 it is used to make a distinction between those who look to the Lord and those who put their hope in the rulers of men. In Revelation 10 it is a mandate to the church to be faithful in proclaiming God’s word in tribulation.

Facing the threats of men, the church looks to the power and majesty of the Sovereign Lord. It is an argument from the greater to the lesser. If God made all things, then he is able to do whatever he wills. He will ultimately prevail, so as his people we focus on his will and leave the temporary consequences to him.

The church moves from God’s creative power to his prophetic word. They quote Psalm 2, which depicts the foolishness of kings and rulers on earth being opposed to the Lord’s anointed Savior and King, which the church identifies as the Lord Jesus Christ.

There is a lot at stake. The Psalm warns people they must “Kiss the Son, lest he be angry and you perish in the way.” But, “blessed are those who take refuge in him.” Therefore the wisdom of the church is the wisdom the Lord Jesus taught: “Do not fear men who can only kill the body but not the soul; rather fear God who can destroy both body and soul in hell.”

There is a natural animosity in men toward the truth of Christ. It stems from the absence of love toward God, and therefore the angry resistance to being confronted with his divine word and judgments against our wickedness,

There is no negative to embracing Christ and being delivered from sin and death. But men love sin and idols. This passage instructs you to take careful inventory of your thoughts of God and of Christ whom he sent to save. He is the only way of salvation. God does not make idle threats. Neither does he fail to keep his promises. You must choose between sin and the Lord. Our lives here are short and uncertain; this world is not worth losing your soul. And the Lord is full of mercy to those who call on him.

In verses 27-28, the church applies Psalm 2 to what took place when Jesus was unjustly put to death by Herod, Pilate, and all the people. It was all written of through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit long before it happened.

The Lord didn’t just foreknow what was going to happen, but in verse 28 we see that men putting Christ to death was what God’s “hand and plan had predestined to take place.” God does not cause men to sin, but he sovereignly brings good out of it. The death of Christ is the prime example of this. We must remember, though, sin is no less evil because God brings good out of it.

The wonder of the gospel is that men who put Christ to death are offered life in his name. Murder is an awful thing; to murder the holy, only begotten Son of God, all the more. There are none who can justly say they are innocent of it. If God numbers our sin, not one of us can stand. Remarkably, if you “kiss the Son,” whom you crucified, all your sins are sponged away. Such is the grace of God.

We see the request of the church to the Lord in the face of the threats they have received. They ask for boldness to continue to proclaim Christ to the world (verse 29). What is striking is they do not ask for the threat to be removed or for their oppressors to be judged. They are walking in their Savior’s steps, who prayed on the cross for those persecuting him. Some of the rulers will come to faith (Chapter 6). Vengeance for those who remain in unbelief will come in due time. Until then, grace is offered in Christ. His church is to maintain faithfulness and diligence it proclaiming his word to the world.

In the Garden with Felder

Screened compost from leaf pile

I just “86ed” some of my garden by tossing freeze-damaged plants and trimmings into my leaf-pile compost bin. It will be run back through the garden later.

The nearly century-old term “86” is used mostly as a code in the restaurant and bar industry to let servers know when an item is either out of stock or needs to be discarded. Also refers to an unruly customer needing to be ejected.

Side note: I love applying extraneous terms to gardening, including computer lingo. I delete weeds and wasp nests, cut and paste plants from one spot to another, and surf garden centers for plants to download into beds. And it could be said that the harsh weather crashed my garden, which now needs rebooting.

Anyway, with damaged plants making my normally-cluttered garden look more bare than usual, this time of year I can see the “found objects” that naturally accumulate every year. Because I struggle unsuccessfully with Dumpster diver tendencies, spring cleaning the garden for me is usually an exercise in “what was I thinking?” I often have to haul off perfectly good but useless odds and ends that other folks 86ed and left on their curb, and which I never got around to using.

Along with the usual pots of plants that died so long ago their name tags are too faded to read, are weathered old boards, tools with broken handles meant to be crafted into a garden sculpture, cut-up pieces of roofing tin from a fence project, empty paint cans...

However, last week I did find my long-lost prescription bifocal sunglasses under a pile of brush that had been carelessly piled behind some shrubs, and a still-useable pair of pruning shears in the compost pile.

Speaking of the compost pile brings me back to my original topic, of cleaning up after the storm. It wasn’t a total loss; soon as the sun came out, hardy winter-flowering camellias, flowering quince, and daffodils popped into color from undamaged buds, and hungry honeybees sought succor in the nectar-rich dandelions and henbit that my neighbors so despise in their lawns.

But I got out my pruning shears and trimmed the yellow and taupe freeze-dried leaves from a boxwood and other burnt evergreen shrubs, neatened up the singed clumps of oxalis, daylily, and iris, and yanked out limp snapdragons and once-beautiful but now-slimy flowering cabbage plants. I checked some shrubs to make sure their bark isn’t split down low, which would mean heavier pruning to save them this summer, and finished pruning the roses, figs and hydrangea. It’s time for all that.

It all went onto what I call my compost pile, which is essentially a somewhat neat, fenced-in leaf pile of fallen leaves, used-up plants, weeds, and biodegradable veg and fruit kitchen trimmings.

I’ve never been much for formal compost systems, with all the mental management of the right ratios of green and brown stuff and rules for turning and aerating. Did it very successfully a couple of times, and found it interesting but too much work. Now I have a simple fenced leaf pile.

Bottom line for composting are two simple rules: Stop throwing that stuff away, and pile it up somewhere. I toss debris on one side, then sift finished compost from the other through half-inch mesh hardware cloth; what isn’t finished gets run back through the pile. Once I settled into this nearly effortless process, I’ve secured a steady supply of fuss-free compost. Without having to haul bagged stuff to the curb.

All in all, the yard looks much better with the storm-damaged trimmings 86ed. Time to reboot.
