VOLUNTEERS FOR 4-H SHOOTING SPORTS PROGRAM

Kemper County Extension office is in search of volunteers to lead the 4-H Shooting Sports Program. The success of 4-H programs relies heavily on dedicated volunteers. Shooting sports instructors are responsible for assisting with the overall coordination and management of the county 4-H shooting sports program. Training opportunities will be available in mid-September. We're currently offering training in rifle, shotgun, pistol, and archery disciplines. If you are interested in being a volunteer or instructor for the shooting sports program, contact the Kemper Extension office at 601-743-2837

REGISTRATION FOR MASTER GARDENERS

Registration is currently underway for the next class of Master Gardeners. This year, all Master Gardener instruction is online and self-paced. The current class begins Oct.1 and closes Nov. 30.
Master Gardener volunteers experience the personal satisfaction of serving their community, gaining Horticultural expertise, and connecting with their local gardening community. Registration is available online at msuext.ms/mg now through September 15th. For more information contact your local Extension office at 601-743-2837.

happy 100th birthday

Kemper County Homemaker Volunteers recently honored one of its most loved and cherished members, Ms. Julia Inez Roberts Bailey. Ms. Bailey celebrated her 100th birthday on September 17th. At 100, she's still an active volunteer with the West Liberty MHV Club in Kemper County. She attends arts and crafts meetings on Tuesdays, where members make home décor and work on various sewing projects, including quilts. Bailey's favorite projects are sewing, embroidery, and quilting. Ms. Bailey is pictured along with some of her gifts for the Homemakers.

EMCC Library hosting 2 events

From school reportss

SCOoba — The public is invited to attend two free events in October at the Tubb-May Library on East Mississippi Community College's Scooba campus.
Learn about the origins of Mississippi's mascots beginning at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 5, during a presentation by Jim Woodrick, director of the Historic Preservation Division of the Mississippi Department of Archives and History.

Dr. James Giesen will be the guest speaker at the library on Tuesday, Oct. 19, beginning at 5 p.m. Giesen will give a presentation titled "Boll Weevil Blues: Cotton and Myth in Mississippi" in which he will highlight how people in the state responded to the early 20th century destruction of tons of cotton across the state.

Both presentations are being made available by the Partners for Kemper County and the speakers are among the historians, writers and storytellers invited to become members of the Mississippi Humanities Council's Speakers Bureau. Refreshments will be served at both events.

Woodrick, a native of Meridian, is a frequent speaker on the topics of Mississippi history and the state's role in the Civil War, according the Speakers Bureau section of the Mississippi Humanities Council website. Woodrick's presentation is titled "The History of Mississippi's Mascots (and a Few Others Too)."

"During this presentation, the hidden history of some of the South's most beloved (or despised) mascots will be revealed, including Mississippi State's 'Bully,' the origin of the LSU Tigers and, of course, the story behind the Ole Miss Rebels," according to the Mississippi Humanities Council

35-point second quarter powers No. 11 EMCC to 49-7 home win over Holmes

From school reports

SCOoba – Powered by a 35-point second quarter, the 11th-ranked Lions of East Mississippi Community College continued their solid play on both sides of the ball with a 49-7 home victory over the Holmes Bulldogs Thursday.
With seven touchdowns, including a trio of scores within a two-minute span midway through the second quarter, plus allowing the opposition only one score for the fourth straight game, the Lions have now outscored their opponents by a collective total of 186-24 on the season.
The only scoring during Thursday's first quarter came on the game's opening possession when Ethan Conner capped a seven-play, 34-yard drive with a 4-yard keeper at the 12:49 mark.
EMCC's explosive five-touchdown second quarter began with an 11-play, 79-yard drive that concluded with a 14-yard scoring pass from Jamari Jones to running back Zias

Perryman, who slipped four would-be tacklers coming out of the backfield on the way to making it a 14-0 game a minute into the quarter.
The Lions' furious scoring spree began with a nifty 46-yard catch and run from Jones to Zach Patterson, who shook off a defender and beat two others to the left corner of the end zone with 9:24 remaining in the quarter.
EMCC's stellar defensive unit then took center stage to maintain the home team's game-changing momentum. Immediately following Brandon Lairy's 7-yard sack of quarterback Jordan Willis deep in Holmes territory, Trey Laing's sack of Willis caused a fumble that Drew Tuazama scooped and scored from 4 yards out to quickly extend the margin to 28-0 at the 7:44 mark.
The Lions proceeded to break open the contest with some help from special teams play on the ensuing kickoff when EMCC's Ray Lias Jr. recovered

"We thought Mr.
Woodrick's presentation on mascots would be a perfect
topic for Homecoming week,"
Tubb-May Librarian Christina
Jurusk said. "It should be fun and people can come listen to the presentation before heading over to watch the parade."

According to his bio on the

Tasty low carb recipes with cauliflower, broccoli

Compiled by DENISE SWOGETINSKY

This week we will continue to explore our old favorite meal items with healthier, low carb alternatives.

FLUFFY LOW CARB MASHED

CAULIFLOWER

1 pound cauliflower florets
1 small celeriac peeled and cubed (8-10 oz)
1 large garlic clove peeled and sliced
1/3 cup heavy cream
1/2 stick butter (4 oz)
salt and pepper to taste
1 tablespoon snipped chives optional

Celeriac: Cut off the top and bottom of the celeriac. Then, with a sharp knife and working from top to bottom, peel the root as if you would supreme a grapefruit (see post for video link). Cut the celeriac into 1/2 inch dice, place into a pot with the sliced garlic and cover with water. Bring up to a boil and cook the celeriac until tender and easily pierced with a fork. Drain.

Cauliflower: Cut the cauliflower into florets and place into a microwavable bowl. Add 2 tablespoons of water, cover, and cook at high power 5-8 minutes or until the cauliflower is tender and easily pierced with a fork. Drain.

Puree: Place both the cauliflower and celeriac (with garlic) into a food processor and pulse to break up the pieces. Add the heavy cream and puree until smooth. Add the butter and mix again. Add salt and pepper to taste. Either mix the chives into the mash or save to garnish the top.)

Getting the Message/Rev. Chris Shelton

Acts 13:42-52

We see the reaction to Paul's sermon (Acts 13:16-41) in this passage. The initial response is positive. The people begged to hear more from Paul the next Sabbath. Some believed in Christ and followed Paul and Barnabas, who urged them to continue in the grace of God (verse 43). We begin the Christian life by grace and continue in grace.

What a difference the gospel made in the lives of these people. They had been without God and without hope a week before. Now they have the greatest treasure a man can have: fellowship with the living God. They now find Christ to be a more worthy and noble portion than anything else. It is the Lord's way when he has made a beginning to go on bestowing the grace of his Spirit, but our faith must be true.

Believing in Christ is a commitment. It's more important by far, but not unlike other commitments we make. When I graduated from high school I had offers to play baseball. The first school I went to visit was a relatively new junior college. They were proud of their new facilities; and someone took me and some other recruits on a tour extolling the benefits of campus life there.

The coach talked with us about his style of coaching, the team, opportunities, and such. Then, he talked with each of us individually. He told me I had an offer for a scholarship, and that if I signed, he expected me to do well. He said he also expected commitment on my end to represent the team and the school with effort and class. He presented his case, and it was left for me to decide.

Paul had told his hearers the story of the Old Testament. He had reviewed the rebellion of men against God. The history of the Jewish people is a paradigm of the need men have for a Savior. Paul noted how in the prophets God had promises of a Savior who would come.

He told them God's promise culminated in Jesus of Nazareth. Christ was the one written of in the prophets. Though he was sinless, men put him to death on an accursed tree. Yet, Paul said, by doing this they unknowingly fulfilled what God had said long before of the Savior suffering and dying for sinners.

So Paul makes it very clear that the gospel is the pure grace of God. The gospel is of God. It's not men's gospel, its God's. He offers the gift and sets the terms. The benefits of coming to Christ are immense. Paul said you will receive forgiveness of sin, justification before God based on Christ's finished work, and eternal life. So it is left for you to choose.

The whole substance of faith is in Christ's person. He requires commitment to him. Those who come to him enter his kingdom, meaning they are under his reign. Therefore, they purpose to honor the Lord, who gave himself for them and who rules over all things. They are no longer their own, but belong body and soul to Christ.

Some reacted angrily to Paul's sermon (Acts 13:45-46). Why, you might ask, would any refuse the offer of being saved from such sin and misery while entering into such blessedness? We see the answer in John 11, where the Jewish leadership responded to the miracle of Jesus raising Lazarus from the dead. They didn't celebrate such a miracle and come to anoint the feet of Jesus with precious ointment. They made plans to put him to death so he wouldn't take away their place.

And that is the way of all who reject Christ. He threatens their position. They regard him as a hard master, not a blessed Savior. We see in verse 50 that they ran Paul and Barnabas out of town. Paul and Barnabas shake the dust off their feet, a sign that the curse remained on the city.

Conversely, we see in verse 52 that the new converts in the city "were filled with joy and the Holy Spirit." This is an important notation. They had just witnessed the leaders of their city drive out Christian leaders. No doubt they understood this meant trouble for them. They still had to live in the midst of that hostility. But the Holy Spirit gave them joy in knowing they were no longer under the curse of death. They had life with God through Christ. Tribulations and temptations lay ahead, but so did Christ and his kingdom. They were now soldiers of Christ.

Bottle tree for winter color

Bottle tree for winter color

Statue carries the garden through seasons

In the Garden with Felder

Gardeners, gird yourselves, start preparing for a harsh transformation. Not to be overly dramatic, but the signs are already around us that our gardens are starting their liminal freefall towards winter.

It's not just the inexorable post-equinox shortening of daylength, or the specter of Daylight Saving Time wiping out our afternoon bliss. Trees and shrubs are already sealing off leaf stalks in preparation for the "fall" of Autumn, hummingbirds and monarch butterflies from farther north swarming our flowers, stoking energy to keep going on south.

And all this reminds gardeners to steel our minds and harden our hearts for the inevitable, when our glorious flowers of lantana and zinnias, bold foliage of elephant ears, banana plants, and cannas and other frost-sensitive summer beauties, will get hit with a blackening frost that will open gaping visual holes.

No need to wait for the sad chore of cleaning it all up afterwards to start the winter garden. I'm already tucking little plants of pansies, violas, and ornamental kale between the doomed warm-season beauties. The taller older plants will provide shade for the newbies, helping them adjust more smoothly from coddled nursery containers to hard real-garden conditions.

Then, when a frost is predicted, rather than pull stuff up willy-nilly to create a clean plate or dig around and risk damaging daffodil bulbs already down there, I will just snip the summer stuff down close to the ground and cover the stubs with mulch, leaving their roots to slowly compost in place. This is not only easy, but also the dying roots provide paths for new roots to follow down deep.

Oh, and because several of my big container gardens have smaller pots fitting snugly inside one another, I'm starting new ones, so when the change happens I simply swap out pots.

A favored element all designers employ is creating a "flair spot" or a strong physical accessory. Which helps any garden bridge seasonal changes. Doesn't have to have pizzazz, just be eye-catching at the right moments.

Where large landscapes usually pull this off with bold architectural features or large sculptures, more modest gardeners tuck smaller, more appropriate and usually highly personalized items here and there to help us smile through it all.

Absolutely nothing wrong with over accessorizing, of course; a sense of the absurd is expressed by lots of folks who simply take their knick-knack shelf sensibility to the garden.

N

It doesn't have to be "twee" - excessively cute or quaint. Think "too many gnomes and a little girl figurine with an umbrella" plus a spinning windmill, rocks and seashells from every vacation, a "dirty gardener lives here" placard, and [insert your school or politics here] flag."

Think birdbath, oversized urn, large stone, driftwood, reflective gazing globe, colorful wall hanging on the fence, St. Fiacre (patron saint of gardeners) statue. A group of matching or complementary containers with winter annuals and small landscape shrubs or trees that can be set out in the yard in the spring. In a word, anything. Anything that, when the summer stuff crashes, will catch the eye and thwarts your grief until the new stuff fills in.

My go-to for staving off Seasonal Affective Disorder is colorful glass, both professionally done by glass artists and home-made bottle trees. All year they gather light past dusk, but in the fall and winter they glint in the sun and bring much-needed color to the winter garden. There's nothing quite like snow on bottles!

Cheer up the garden before winter

Whatever you do, do it soon so it'll be there when you need it - the change is coming sooner than you expect.

Cook

1 cup reduced-fat shredded cheddar cheese

Boil the chicken breast until done and drain. When cool enough to handle, cut into 1-inch pieces. In a square or round casserole dish, mix mayo and soup. Add broccoli and chicken and mix well. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350 for 20 minutes or until cheese is melted.

EASY CAULIFLOWER RICE

1 tbsp olive oil

1 garlic clove minced

3 cups cauliflower rice

salt to taste

Add oil to a large skillet and bring to medium-high heat. When oil is hot, add in garlic and cook until lightly browned. Add in cauliflower. Stir and cook until cauliflower is tender. If your skillet gets too dry you can add a few tablespoons of water. Season cauliflower rice with salt. Serve warm.

LOW CARB SPAGHETTI

SQUASH CASSEROLE

1 Med-lg spaghetti squash

2-3 lbs

3 cups Chicken Shredded

½ cup Ricotta cheese

1 cup Shred Sided Cheese Cheddar

3 cloves Garlic

1 tsp Butter

½ tsp Salt more to taste

1 tsp Parsley dried

In an instant Pot, steam your spaghetti squash. You can follow the instructions to steam the spaghetti squash whole here OR slice the spaghetti squash in half and deseed it, add 1 cup of water to the bottom and place the spaghetti squash on the metal rack and steam on high for 15 minutes. Do a quick steam release. Carefully (use potholders) remove the spaghetti squash and use a fork to fluff the spaghetti squash into spaghetti strands and remove it from the skin to prepare it for the casserole. - The total time to steam spaghetti squash is about 25 minutes to reach pressure and release pressure.

Empty the water from steaming the spaghetti squash in the Instant Pot and rinse it out if necessary.

Heat the Instant Pot on sauté mode. Add 1 tsp of butter then add the garlic. Heat the garlic until fragrant. Add the ricotta and chicken and stir thoroughly. Add the parsley, salt, and spaghetti squash and stir. Add the cheese and mix until the cheese is melted.

At this point, the casserole is ready to serve.

Optional. Transfer the spaghetti squash casserole to a baking dish and top with additional cheese and broil for 3-5 minutes.
