Constituent services meeting coming up in Hatch

The Hatch Mobile Constituent Services Outreach Clinic will be held from 5:30-6:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, at the Village of Hatch Community Center, 837 Highway 187 in Hatch.

District 5 Doña Ana County Commissioner Kim Hakes will be participating. Local staff from the congressional delegation offices have also been invited to attend.

"The purpose of the Mobile Constituent Services Hour is to make the county's resources more accessible to constituents, especially those who reside in rural areas," CCS Manager Liz Reed said. "This is another great opportunity for constituents to have face-to-face conversations with county staff about their concerns without traveling to Las Cruces. The initiative also gives constituents the opportunity to speak to county commissioners and congressional staff about federal issues."

Although staff from the congressional offices are not always available to attend the clinics, the Doña Ana County Constituent and Community Services Office staff can provide direction about how to contact state and/or federal offices to address issues on a state or federal level.

Doña Ana County is covered under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act as Amended (ADAAA). As such, the county has an obligation to operate each service, program or activity so that the service, program or activity, when viewed in its entirety, is readily accessible to and usable by individuals with disabilities. The county's ADA public notice can be viewed in its entirety at <https://donaanacounty.org/ada>.

For more information about the Mobile Constituent Services Outreach Clinics, contact the Doña Ana County Community and Constituent Services Office at (575) 525-5959.

DEMOCRACY DAY

Both County Clerk Amanda López Askin, left, and Commission Chairman Benjamin L. Rawson addressed more than 500 high school seniors at an Oct. 9 event at the County Government Center. The event focused on voting and citizenship.

DASO to auction seized vehicles

The Doña Ana County Sheriff's Department will auction off more than 40 vehicles to the highest bidders on Saturday, Oct. 13.

The vehicles range from a 1982 GMC pickup to a 2011 Honda four-door, and were previously owned by convicted repeat DWI offenders. New Mexico law allows for the forfeiture of vehicles driven by people whose licenses have been revoked for driving under the influence.

The auction begins at 9 a.m. at 2821B Las Vegas Court in Las Cruces and is open to the public. All bidders must pre-register, and winners are required to pay in cash. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. and interested buyers can view the vehicles starting at 7 a.m. Saturday.

To access photos of the cars and trucks to be auctioned, visit www.cfdauction.com.

District 3 candidates vie for county commission

By MIKE COOK

For the Bulletin

The race for the district 3 seat on the Doña Ana County Board of Commissioners pits incumbent Republican Ben Rawson running for his second full term, against Democrat Shannon Reynolds who is running for the commission for the first time and making his second bid for county office.

District 3 includes the southeast corner of the county, taking in more of the City of Las Cruces than any of the other four commission districts. New Mexico State University falls within district 3, along with White Sands Missile Range and the small portion of Vado that is east of Interstate 25. The district stretches east to the Otero County border.

Ben Rawson

Ben Rawson

Rawson was appointed to the commission in August 2013, replacing Democrat Karen Perez, who resigned to accept a job in El Paso. Perez first won the seat in 2006 and was re-elected in 2010. Rawson was elected to a full four-year term in 2014, defeating Democrat Beth Bardwell, 4,356-4,234. Rawson had no opponent in the June 2018

Republican primary. If re-elected, he will be the senior member of the new commission that is sworn in next January.

"I feel like I can make a difference here," Rawson said. "That's why I'm running for re-election."

Rawson comes from a well-known Las Cruces family. His father, business owner and building contractor Leonard Lee Rawson, represented the county in both the state Senate and House of Representatives, 1987-2008.

Ben Rawson was elected commission chair last January when he was the only Republican among the commission's five members. Rawson said he has brought good leadership to the commission and helped calm down

As chair, Rawson said he has focused on more dialogue and listening to all sides.

In Doña Ana County, Rawson said, people can talk face-to-face with their elected officials. Voters "pay attention to the character of people running, not just the party affiliation," he said.

Job creation is a major focus for the county, said Rawson, who is a member of the board of directors of the Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance (MVEDA).

He supports opportunities for economic development and jobs in Santa Teresa. He considers Doña Ana Community college a great resource for attracting companies and developing programs for specific employment opportunities. Rawson said he supports consolidating the county's 16 fire districts to improve fire service in rural areas and reduce the cost of fire insurance. Rural fire stations won't be eliminated, he said, but their volunteer staffs will be better supported.

Rawson said he is "discouraged about the really serious mental health problem in our county" and unhappy that the county has never opened the crisis triage center built in 2013.

Rawson said the center should be used as a mental health facility rather than just a health wing for the county detention center.

"We've got to address that as an illness," Rawson said, "instead of sweeping it under the rug and putting them

Fifth graders mix science, civics with UNM Law School

By MIKE COOK

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Monte Vista Elementary School fifth graders are getting a unique civics lesson that will take them all the way from their classrooms studying the different parts of flowers and the insects and animals that pollinate them to drafting a bill to protect the pollinators (bees, bats, beetles, butterflies and bats) to present to legislators in January at the state capitol in Santa Fe.

"We're really a civics education program with a science focus," said Wild Friends Director Sue George.

Wild Friends is a program of the University of New Mexico's School of Law Institute of Public Law.

Monte Vista Elementary is one of just 12 schools throughout the state – and the only one in Las Cruces – selected to participate in this year's Wild Friends.

The program teaches civic engagement, including the legislative process, in addition to an appreciation for wildlife and public lands, Monte Vista Elementary fifth-grade teacher Robbi Berry said.

One Monte Vista Elementary fifth grader said his hypothesis, based on his study of the Peruvian lily, was that small pollinators were attracted to the flower because they could reach its small places, because the flower provided a "good landscape" for the pollinators and because it was colorful.

Another student said her observations included learning "that flowers can have a gender." Another saw a flower's nectar, which Wild Friends Educator Sara Van Note said attracts hummingbirds and other pollinators. Bees, on the other hand, are looking for a flower's pollen, she said.

The bill, informed by their research, will be introduced at the 2019 legislative session by State Rep. Liz Thompson, D-Bernalillo, and State Sen. Sander Rue, R-Bernalillo, George said. Thirty Monte Vista Elementary students will attend the session in Santa Fe and participate in the bill's presentation.

In addition to that field trip, Berry said the benefits of participation in the Wild Friends program include meeting common core and science standards "in cross-curricular activities that are dynamic and relevant to their lives and futures, gaining an appreciation for the challenges faced in wildlife and habitat conservation, learning to collaborate with their peers and others to accomplish a civic goal."

back in the detention center.”

While campaigning door-to-door, Rawson said he has heard little about immigration, with more people focused on the need for infrastructure.

Rawson is general manager of Rawson Inc. Builders Supply and was born and raised in Doña Ana County. He has a master's in business administration from New Mexico State University. Rawson and his wife, Kirsten, have five children.

Shannon Reynolds

Shannon Reynolds

“Anyone can say ‘we want more jobs,’” Reynolds said, but in the last year the county “is not moving in that direction.”

There is no holistic plan at the county level, he said, to bring more companies and more jobs to Doña Ana County.

That lack of focus on infrastructure, Reynolds said, is what drove him to run for the commission.

During 30 years in business, Reynolds said he learned a decision-making process for attracting business that considers risk, investment, workforce opportunities and other issues. Proper management by the commission could help attract more jobs to the county, raise the local standard of living and reduce county liability, Reynolds said.

He said the commission should focus on creating an atmosphere where companies can flourish.

Reynolds said he is also concerned that multi-million-dollar lawsuits filed against the county in the past five years have not been addressed. The solution, Reynolds said, is regularly scheduled, mandatory training and education on issues like harassment, sexual harassment and bullying.

Highlighted by issues in the sheriff's and treasurer's offices and on the commission, Reynolds said county employees and elected officials must be “told about the consequences of acting badly.”

Reynolds said the message needs to be, “I can't make you change, but I can make you responsible.”

Important infrastructure issues for the county, he said, include roads, bridges, water and sewers.

ELECTION KEY DATES

• Tuesday, Oct. 9-Friday, Nov. 2: Absentee voting. Marked ballots must be received in the county clerk's office, Doña Ana County Government Building, 845 N. Motel Blvd., no later than 7 p.m. on election day.

• Oct. 9-Nov. 3: Early voting. 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday-Friday, and 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 3, at the county government center.

Early voting will also take place 11 a.m.-7 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday at alternate locations around the county:

- Anthony Elementary School, 600 N. Fourth St., Anthony
- Doña Ana Community College Sunland Park, 3365 McNutt Road, Sunland Park
- Dolores C. Wright Educational Center, 400 E. Lisa Drive, Chaparral
- Hatch High School, 170 E. Herrera Road, Hatch
- Sonoma Elementary School, 4201 Northrise Drive, Las Cruces
- Thomas Branigan Memorial Library, 200 E. Picacho Ave., Las Cruces
- NMSU Corbett Center Student Union, NMSU campus

• Tuesday, Nov. 6: Election day. 40 voting convenience centers countywide will be open 7 a.m.-7 p.m.

When a lack of internet access makes it difficult to attract businesses to some areas of the county, Reynolds said, the county should access available grant funds and work with providers to pay the cost to connect service.

Reynolds said a proposal to consolidate county fire districts would ensure enough resources are available to protect the people and their property. The county also needs to recruit more volunteer firefighters, Reynolds said, and partner with the City of Las Cruces and other communities to bring more professional firefighters to work for the county.

The county has failed to address the fire service issue for more than two years, Reynolds said.

“It's not about Ben (Rawson),” he said. It's about the commission as a whole. Ben's is just the only seat I could run for.”

Reynolds served on the Milford, Ohio city council 2004-06 and lost in the 2016 Democratic primary for Doña Ana County treasurer, finishing with 4,647 votes to 5,234 for Eric Rodriguez (who won the general election) and 4,853 for Eugenia Montoya Ortega. Reynolds had no opposition in the county commission district 3 June 2018 Democratic primary.

Reynolds earned an engineering degree at the University of Illinois and worked as a procurement manufacturing engineer for IBM for 12 years. That work brought him to Las Cruces in 1987. He retired nine years ago and returned to Las Cruces in 2013. Reynolds now teaches classes at Doña Ana Community College in basic mechanics, plumbing and carpentry.

“I'm motivated by other people's success,” he said. I'm very comfortable with what I've done in my life for myself and my family,” Reynolds said.

Since his retirement, he has focused on helping other people achieve success.

Serving on the county commission, he said, would not be a stepping stone to another office or job, he said.

“It's an opportunity to affect 200,000 lives or more (and to) build a foundation other commissioners can build on.”

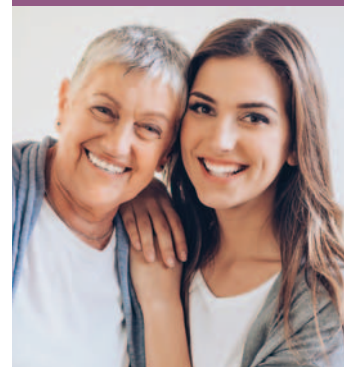

Reynolds and his wife, Maggie, have three daughters, three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, according to his campaign website.

- Meet an Academy-Award nominated actor who is filming a movie in your town, based on a book written by a banker in your town, with a screenplay written by a Tony-Award-winning playwright from your town, directed by a university instructor from your town. (For the record, they are, in order, Edward James Olmos, Joe Bullock, Mark Medoff and Ross Marks. The movie is "Walking With Herb.")

- See a Pulitzer-Prize winning photographer from the Los Angeles Times, deliver a powerful, enlightening, frightening, breathtaking and refreshingly apolitical presentation based on his 30 years of documenting activity and migration along the U.S.-Mexico border. (Don Bartletti at the Rio Grande Theatre, thanks to the New Mexico Humanities Council.)

- Watch a Division I football team earn its second straight victory in exciting fashion. (New Mexico State University defeats Liberty 49-41 in Aggie Memorial Stadium.)

- See the culmination of years of effort and hard work as young people show their animals and earn prizes and recognition for a job well done. (Southern New Mexico State Fair)

- Watch some of Las Cruces' finest folks try their hand or their feet, rather, on the floor to raise money for NMSU's dance program. (Look Who's Dancing, coming Oct. 13)

- Watch films of all kinds and meet filmmakers from all over the country, and the world, learn more about the business, and have a great time. (Border International Film Festival)

- See musicians Dwight Yoakam, Randy Houser, Sawyer Brown, Rick Trevino and more. (Las Cruces Country Music Festival, coming Oct. 19-21)

- Meet a Special Forces Green Beret who led one of the most unusual modern war efforts in the earliest military responses after 9/11. (Mark Nutsch, whose team's horseback mission was chronicled in the movie "12 Strong." He will appear at a scholarship banquet, coming Oct. 13.)

The answer is, obviously, Las Cruces, New Mexico, where you could do those cool things and many more.

I want to focus on the last one.

We recently marked the 17th anniversary of Sept. 11, 2001. Most of us Las Cruces watched the terror of that day unfold on our televisions. One of us was right there in the middle of it: Las Cruces Police Department Chief Patrick Gallagher, then a member of the NYPD.

If you are 21 or younger, you don't have a conscious memory of that day.

For the rest of us, even though we've seen and read a great deal about it, there is still much we don't know.

Did you know, for example, one of the first missions of the U.S. military in Afghanistan was conducted on horseback? Remember, this was 2001, not 1801.

You can hear that story Saturday, Oct. 13, at the Friends of Military Veterans Scholarship Banquet, which raises funds for veterans pursuing their education at Burrell College of Osteopathic Medicine.

The mission leader, a Green Beret named Mark Nutsch, will be the event's keynote speaker, and he responded to some questions I sent via email.

"Send me! Send us!"

That's how Nutsch described the readiness of his Special Forces team, got nervous. Rex and Clair dropped her over into the "questionable" pen to run her though the chute. Rex wanted to check her bag.

The big cow had fire in her eyes when she saw Rex. She charged him! He raced to the fence. Clair stepped in front of the one-cow stampede and swung at her with a broken plastic whip. She changed directions, missed him by a hare's breath and cleared the fence herself!

I say 'cleared the fence'. I mean 'almost cleared the fence'. Rex was proud of his new fence. He built it of Red Brand welded wire 4x6 foot panels and cedar posts. He ran a line of treated 2 x 8's around the top. The cow in question drove a hind foot through one of the squares in the welded wire panel. She hung up and straddled the fence like a limp cheese stick crawlin' outta the bowl.

"Lemme run and get the bolt cutter, Rex. We can weld it back later."

"No. I wanna check her bag first," he said.

The way the cow was draped over the 2x8, her bag was at eye level.

Clair could see the look on Rex's face. "Don't do it," she said.

Rex reached out, grabbed the proffered tit and squeezed. A foul smelling clump of cottage cheese hit him square in the face! At the same time he pulled, she made a tremendous effort to escape. She fell back down inside the pen, ripping off the welded wire panel in a shower of staples! She rose with the panel still around her foot.

Wearing her giant snowshoe, she stomped, shuffled and cha-cha'd her way back through the cows in the questionable pen. They spooked and scattered to the four points of the compass, but all unerringly, managed to find the new gap in the fence and join the rest of the herd.

All escaped except the cow with the fly swatter foot. Clair roped her and held her down long enough for Rex to cut the panel off with the bolt cutters. They let'er up and she followed the other cows.

Rex wiped a clod of curd off the bill of his cap. "Well," he said philosophically. "At least we know."

Natural gas important for our state

To the editor:

It has been all over state news lately that New Mexico has a large budget surplus due to natural gas production in our state. Hopefully, this new revenue will translate to more funding for our schools.

Natural gas already has helped improve our personal safety and our environment. Utilities are installing modern pipelines that will deliver gas at much lower pressures, which means these lines are even safer than they were just a few years ago. Transporting gas underground also means fewer diesel-guzzling trucks rolling over our roads. And while natural gas production in the United States has risen by half since 2005, greenhouse gas emissions have fallen more than 10 percent.

There shouldn't be any doubt: With natural gas in our energy toolbox, we're on the right track.

Keep church and state separate

To the editor:

Thank you, Father Rochelle, for your commentary combing religion and politics [Tales from the Cassock, Bulletin, Sept. 28]. I disagree, as the analogies and historical connections presented ignore much of the Christian Era's religious/political history.

1. The early church "prompted and sustained attractive liberating, and effective social relations and organizations." You want to encourage these. No problem, per se. After the early church got itself together it was blighted when the late Roman Empire made Catholicism a state religion. Ossification began and solidified over 1,000 years. It begat the Protestant Revolution.

2. Ongoing religious and territorial wars led some Europeans to become refugees who left for the opening in the Americas initially to escape from either doctrinaire and hateful religion not their own, or a desire to perpetuate their own without hindrance.

In our history we separated church and state. The U.S. Constitution and a secular government in 1776 was new to the world.

Separation of church and state in the U.S. is being trampled. Without church and state separation, a "my religion over yours" minority getting into power is pos-

LWCF is vital to communities

Last month, Congress had the opportunity to reauthorize and fully fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF), a bipartisan program that for 53 years has funded and protected thousands of national parks, monuments and local recreation areas across our country. Unfortunately, Congress failed to pass any bill, putting the future of our nation's most important program for expanding access to public lands and supporting recreation projects at the national, state, and local level at risk.

Years ago, when I would think of public lands, I would think of solitude. I would think about my childhood, camping in the Gila Wilderness with my friends and family. We would often meet hikers along the Continental Divide Trail.

However, my experiences in the last four years working with amazing leaders and community members in Las Cruces and Doña Ana County have resulted in highlighting the benefits local businesses receive from public places like the Organ Mountain-Desert Peaks National Monument. What this has taught me is that protected public lands and parks benefit our communities in many ways.

So, as I set out on a road trip in August to learn about projects

CARRIE HAMBLÉN

Guest Columnist

funded by LWCF across southern New Mexico. I kept an open mind about what I might learn and was rewarded for it. I was happy to discover rich narratives of diverse communities building connections with public spaces and honoring traditions, all thanks to LWCF-protected spaces (see SaveLWCF-NewMexico.com to learn about the sites I visited).

The LWCF has contributed $312 million to New Mexico and funded projects in every single county in its half century of existence.

The adventure showed the impact of LWCF on Native American communities. The Silver Lake Recreation Area on the Mescalero Apache Reservation, for example, provides 24 jobs to people, while Red Rock Park near Gallup provides a sacred space for tribes across our region to reconnect to their "Mother Earth."

This road trip also showed how LWCF projects in Silver City, Capitan, and Columbus help support local businesses that are anchors for our communities. That's why more 80 business owners across New Mexico sent a letter to our Congressional delegation urging them to support the permanent authorization and funding of the LWCF. In fact, a study released last month showed that nearly 80 percent of business owners in New Mexico and across western states support reauthorizing LWCF.

LWCF has also been important to parks that are symbolic of Las Cruces.

Las Cruces residents know the power public lands have on building and supporting communities. That's why the Las Cruces City Council unanimously passed a resolution in September urging Congress to reauthorize and permanently fund LWCF. It's why Senators Udall and Heinrich, along with Representatives Lujan and Lujan Grisham, have worked on many fronts to support LWCF.

Unfortunately, Congress failed to respond, so we must make our voices louder. I'm calling on all of you to join me in telling our elected officials how vital LWCF is to our communities.

Please urge our Congressional delegation to continue their efforts to fully fund and permanently reauthorize LWCF, including asking Representative Pearce to join the effort.

In Las Cruces for a couple of days, "Breaking Bad" star RJ Mitte (Walter White, Jr.) made rounds of Doña Ana County schools Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 8 and 9, to speak with students on an anti-bullying platform.

He also met with city officials for a media conference on Monday. City Councillor Yvonne Flores was introduced to the podium. Flores, who had met Mitte during the Las Cruces International Film Festival in March was already familiar with the star. As she rose to speak, Mitte encouraged her with a friendly word.

"Good morning," he said. "Go on, get up there."

Throughout the news conference, Mitte remained cheerfully upbeat and had a kind word for everyone he encountered.

Flores began the presentation with some bullying statistics.

"Bullying is a national crisis," she said. "Twenty-eight percent of U.S. students in grades six to 12 experience bullying and are currently experiencing bullying."

Las Cruces Mayor Ken Miyagishima presented Mitte the key to the city as he turned the podium over to the actor.

Mitte said he is happy to "be able to come here to this community of kids and adults with a message to not let your fears define you, to not let people who are putting you down let their limitations be placed upon you."

He said young people can decide to not let the idea of "can't" weigh them down. When they are given a decision to influence their own lives, they can do so.

"When you see bullying, speak up," Mitte said. "Tell your parents, tell your teachers, tell your friends. Confront that. Confront that. Have the ability to speak those emotions and not harbor them. We need to remind our students that they are worth something. Everybody has the ability to change this world for the better and they can really make an impact."

He talked about how he had dealt with his fair share of bullies, people who saw him as a weakling.

"I was born with cerebral palsy," he said. "I had braces on both my legs. I guess to some people I appeared slower than others. I guess people viewed that as a weakness. I had my hand broken. I was called names. I confronted it every time there was someone who placed a limitation on me."

By confronting those limitations, the bullies were set aside, he said. If people have conversations with their peers about bullying, young people can express themselves and there would be less bullying.

Mitte said you must talk with youth like adults.

"I am not saying talking to, I am saying talking with," he said. "You have an adult conversation with them and say, 'what do you want?' 'What are you trying to achieve?'"

Donors breaking records at the NMSU Foundation

The very reason the New Mexico State University Foundation exists is for our students, faculty and staff. They represent the passion, the drive and the mission behind all that we do daily.

When we work with alumni, it's a win-win. Our alumni get to reconnect with NMSU, and in turn, our students build relationships with industry experts and mentors who help them reach their goals.

DR. TINA BYFORD

Foundation of Support

When we work with corporations and foundations, it's a win-win. Business partners – local to international – all want a role in shaping their future workforce. That means our students benefit, even those in K-12, by receiving special grant funding to expand outreach efforts or experiencing industry-led curriculum through strategic faculty and business partnerships.

When we work with generous donors and friends, it's a win-win. Many of the NMSU Foundation's donors want to contribute in the most impactful ways. They want to change lives and are able to do so by alleviating the financial need of thousands of students across the NMSU system.

That is why, this past year, these donors set a new $22 million annual record for fundraising. Every dollar raised supports our students in some way, including through critical scholarships. It's important to note that these scholarships funded by private donations are managed by the NMSU Foundation and awarded independently from the institutional scholarships managed by NMSU. To supplement institutional awards, the NMSU Foundation awarded $3.1 million in additional scholarship support to students in need during the 2017-2018 academic year through more than 3,800 scholarships.

We are proud that since the start of our "Ignite Aggie Discovery" campaign in 2013, the NMSU Foundation has awarded more than 16,000 scholarships to students across the university system. That's partly from the 346 new scholarship endowments created by donors – alumni and friends alike – which provide earnings that are invested year after year, producing scholarship awards in perpetuity.

As we head into the final stretch of our $125 million campaign, the largest in NMSU history, we hope you will continue to show your support for our community by making a gift of any amount to the causes you're most passionate about across the NMSU system. By December of 2019, we hope – with your help – that we will meet that goal. Your gifts, which prosper our students, show us that you believe in our students and the impact they will make in our world one day soon.

Tina Byford is interim president of the New Mexico State University Foundation and may be reached at tbyford@nmsu.edu and 575-646-1613.

Is the Pain In Your Head?

Las Cruces (NM)- Last week, I wrote about National Physical Therapy Month, and mentioned that Physical Therapists have an important role in providing effective treatment techniques to reduce and eliminate the root cause of pain. This is particularly important now, when reliance on opioids has led to the worst drug crisis in American history. And so I promised to use this space each week for the month of October to tell you some things that you should know about pain.

Perhaps the most important concept to understand in relation to pain - often the most difficulty point for people to accept - is: "It's all in your head!" I'm not saying that you're imagining the pain, or that you're manufacturing something that isn't real. Pain is a highly subjective and uniquely individual experience, and how you describe the pain may be vastly different than your neighbor. Why is this?

It's because all of our sensations - what we see, hear, feel, taste, and smell - are our brain's interpretation of the information being sent by receptors in the body. The brain receives the information, interprets it, and then makes us aware of the message. Your brain's interpretation of the message determines whether or not you are even aware that there's a problem.

Dennis Prickett

Physical Therapy.

There is probably no better proof of this than the report of many people who have had a limb amputated. Despite the absence of the foot in a below-knee amputation, people report that they can wiggle their toes, feel pressure on the heel when walking, and feel pain in the ankle and foot. There is no ankle or foot present, and yet they can feel pain and movement, because the brain tells them that pain and movement are present.

Also, pain intensity is not directly related to the severity of injury. We know this in part because we observe that some people experience major injuries with little pain reported, others experience minor injuries with a lot of pain. The pain experience is the result of many factors, and cannot be addressed simply by assuming that injury severity and pain intensity go hand in hand.

One thing that we do know is that people who have an understanding of pain through education actually have less pain. We'll talk about this a bit more in another article. But, you're already on your way to knowing more about pain, and having less pain!

Next week, we'll continue the discussion, addressing some other factors that come into play.

The Road Most Traveled

Pulitzer Prize-winning photojournalist Don Bartletti shared his experience documenting human migration in a presentation Wednesday, Oct. 3, at the Rio Grande Theatre. After nearly four decades working along the U.S./Mexico border, the one-hour illustrated lecture "The Road Most Traveled: Causes and Consequences of Illegal Immigration" detailed how he photographed courage, fear, joy, hate, hope and heartbreak over a 38-year-period and 1,200 miles of the border fence.

Backing the blue

The 2018 Back the Blue Benefit Run took place Saturday, Oct. 6. The run was established to fund the JR Stewart 141 foundation which will help charities close to JR's heart.

JR Stewart was the retired police officer who was killed last November by meth addicts who were driving down the wrong side of I-25 while fleeing authorities, went off the freeway, and ran into him on Las Alturas.

Las Armaduras Motorcycle Club, who are active and retired law enforcement, organized the event. Several law enforcement agencies from Texas and Southern New Mexico were also represented at the event.

Is it time for you to have a mammogram? For women of average risk, the American College of Radiology recommends annual mammograms starting at age 40, with no upper age limit as long as the woman is in good health. Different guidelines apply to women at higher risk.* A screening mammogram can help detect breast cancer in its earliest and most treatable stages. The Women's Imaging Center at MountainView Regional Medical Center offers 3D mammography services, which provide clearer images and faster results.

Schedule your 3D mammogram today.
Call 575-222-2828.

*For American College of Radiology recommendations, visit www.acr.org.

According to acr.org, breast tomosynthesis (3D) has shown to be an advance over digital (2D) mammography, with higher cancer detection rates and fewer patient recalls for additional testing.

Appointments are on a first-come, first-served basis. An order from a physician or qualified healthcare provider is not required, but the patient must provide a physician/provider name when an appointment is made. All mammogram reports will be sent to the physician/provider, and the patient is responsible for follow-up. Check with your insurance provider to confirm coverage for a screening mammogram.

Expand renewable energy

To the editor:

Your Sept. 28 guest column was by the Consumer Energy Alliance (CEA). On their website they call their opponents anti-energy activists, which seems to mean anyone opposed to their wish to drill or frack anywhere, even close to communities, national parks or monuments. The writer describes jobs “fleeing” to Texas if we don’t elect leaders (as she calls them) who will further their organization’s agenda. Solar jobs can’t flee anywhere since there is plenty of sun to go around in both states. Alternative energy has created more jobs than drilling and fracking. Obviously, we can’t change our energy sources overnight, but there needs to be a focused, urgent and ongoing transition to renewables. Our children’s future depends on it. If we continue to elect the type of “leaders” she describes, we will see a terrifying percentage of Florida go underwater in a few decades. That will create a financial meltdown that would make 2008 look like a hiccup.

Think before we speak

To the editor:

I would like to respond to a comment made in a recent letter where the writer thought freedom of speech was different from “speech that satisfies the liberals and politically correct media.” Wait a minute. Are you proposing that we all become like those who laughed when candidate Trump said, “I’d like to beat the crap out of him” or yelled “Lock Her Up” about a sitting Secretary of State, or called President Trump Stupid? I think you’re confusing political correctness with basic human kindness and courtesy. There was an excellent editorial in that same issue about suicide. We’ve all read of people who have killed themselves because they were bullied. It doesn’t hurt us to be nice, and it may save someone’s life. Our country is hurting and we need to fix it. Saying whatever comes to mind isn’t the way to do it. We need to remember we are all human beings who feel pain, fear, frustration, joy, sorrow. And we’re all Americans – red or blue or in between. We need to think before we speak.

ODA-595, which specialized in "unconventional warfare." The team had experience in the Middle East and Central Asia regions, but had no clue what to expect when, on Sept. 14, 2001, it was tabbed for an "unknown mission."

"The entire team volunteered for the mission," Nutsch said. "The command didn't expect us to survive, as we were one of the first teams of Americans inserted into Northern Afghanistan."

Commanders determined U.S. forces needed to be more nimble than the enemies from al Qaeda and the Taliban, with their tanks and 4x4 trucks. So, what was the strategic mode of choice for off-road mobility, at least for this key early mission?

Horses.

Besides Nutsch, who grew up around horses on a Kansas cattle ranch and competed in high school and college in rodeo, only one other member of the team had any familiarity with riding horses.

"For the other 10 members of the Special Forces team, learning how to ride was on-the-job training over the next days and three-plus weeks," Nutsch said. "Over the next 23 days, we would ride through countless towns and villages, crossing streams and swimming the horses across the river, day and night, sometimes climbing higher into the mountains, riding along narrow cliff trails. In some areas there were minefields. On top of it all, we faced the challenges, and obstacles which had to be overcome to survive the day. The men did an incredible job learning how to ride horses. They learned to ride literally at the trot and gallop on a half-wild Afghan stallion. A lot to think about. What gear do you wear vs leave behind or put on a pack animal? How do you carry your rifle? The enemy was up ahead. What if your separated from the rest of the patrol or other Americans? A lot going on. A lot more to our mission than just riding horses."

The unique mission was successful in both the short and long terms.

"The real magic we accomplished was to bring the leaders of three main ethnic factions together, helping unite them together to fight against the al Qaeda and Taliban regime," Nutsch said. "The Uzbeks, Tajiks, Hazara and other peoples of Northern Afghanistan, their leaders and people remain united and our nation's allies today, a part of the political process in Afghanistan. They remain committed to fighting the Islamic extremists who've tried to take over Afghanistan. Our mission is an example of what small teams of Special Forces and Intelligence operatives can overcome and accomplish when working together with local allies who have mutual interests, finding common ground."

Street fight: City may change Motel to Pat Garrett

By MIKE COOK

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

It wasn't exactly a gun battle, but there was a lively debate Monday afternoon, Oct. 8, as the Las Cruces City Council discussed a proposal to change the name of Motel Boulevard to Pat Garrett Boulevard.

The name Pat Garrett – the one-time Doña Ana County Sheriff who shot and killed Billy the Kid in Fort Sumner, New Mexico on July 14, 1881 – does resonate worldwide, Mayor Ken Miyagishima said.

Pending the cost of changing signs on Interstate 10 and Las Cruces streets, and other expenses, Miyagishima said he would support the proposal on a cost-share basis with the state and the county.

Assistant City Manager David Dollahon said the city is working with the New Mexico Department of Transportation (NMDOT) to determine the exact costs of the name change on and around I-10 Exit 139.

The preliminary cost estimate from NMDOT was $250,000, Dollahon said, but the actual cost could be as low as $63,000 or as high as $463,000. It would include replacing the entire sign faces of three highway signs and possibly replacing their supporting arms and towers as well, Dollahon said. There would be additional, but much lower costs, for replacing city street signs, he said.

The recommendation to change the street name came from the Doña Ana County Historical Society (DACHS), Dollahon said. More than 75 percent of affected land owners signed a petition acknowledging the proposal, he said, and the city Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously approved it. The Doña Ana County Commission also passed a resolution in support of the name change. A final decision will be up to the city council.

Dollahon said the city took over control of Motel Boulevard from the state – it had been New Mexico Highway 292 – a few years ago.

Originally, he said, it was a link in the middle of nowhere to motel row on Picacho, connecting travelers on the interstate to Las Cruces lodging businesses.

"The name 'Motel Boulevard' doesn't suit us very well," Councillor Greg Smith said. "(Pat Garrett) is a historic name in our part of the world."

"I agree that Motel Boulevard isn't exciting," Councillor Yvonne Flores said. But, she said, "Pat Garrett is not a hero of mine. Neither is Billy the Kid."

Flores said she would prefer "Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo" or some other name change that better reflects the history of the area.

"For it to be renamed as a symbol of the 'Wild West' is very offensive to me," Flores said.

"I think Motel Boulevard needs to change," Councillor Gabe Vasquez said. "Its brand doesn't really reflect anything unique."

Vasquez said Oct. 8 was Indigenous Peoples Day and he would like to see "a more inclusive process" for a name change that includes "a wider public input process (on) how we best attract tourists and honor our history."

DACHS's proposal is "not just a name change," said society member Susan Kruger. It also is an important element of heritage tourism because of Garrett's connection to the Doña Ana County Sheriff's Department and the possibility of tours to his murder site just east Las Cruces. Garrett is buried in the Las Cruces Masonic Cemetery, 760 S. Compress Road.

"It sounds like a majority of the council supports it," the mayor said about the name change. "Now it comes down to dollars and cents."

Dollahon said city staff will draft a resolution in support of the name change and including specific dollar figures and present it the city council at a future meeting.

A large crowd filled Plaza de Las Cruces Saturday night, Oct. 6, for Fall Fest.

Pride Fall Fest held downtown

BULLETIN REPORT

Following Southern New Mexico Pride's (SNMP) gay pride parade, a large crowd filled Plaza de Las Cruces Saturday night, Oct. 6, for Fall Fest. The event included Singing Out Las Cruces and other performers, along with food trucks and a wide variety of arts and crafts vendors.

"For the first time, SNMP held Fall Fest, our pride celebration on the Plaza de Las Cruces and it was an overwhelming success," said SNMP President Robert Williams. "The organizers of Fall Fest received many comments from those attending as well as those who were there as vendors saying how much they enjoyed the evening and the location. We are extremely pleased with how well the event went and are already looking to next year's event. SNMP would like to thank everyone who helped make this event happen and all those who came out to enjoy the night. It would not be possible if not for all of you." For more information, visit southern-nmpride.org.

NMSU events

At New Mexico State University this month, LGBT+ Programs will host a series of events for OUTober, starting with a table of activities, resources and information from 1-3 p.m. Oct. 11 in Corbett Center on campus. From 2-5 p.m. that day, Alianza of New Mexico will provide free and confidential HIV tests in the Otero room located on the first floor of Corbett Center. A pizza party will be held at 5 p.m. in the Garcia Center followed by an AgGays meeting at 6:30 p.m. On Oct. 17, a screening of the Chilean film "A Fantastic Woman" will be shown in the Creative Media Institute theater at 7 p.m. The month's events will conclude with a drag show at 7 p.m., Oct. 29, in the Corbett Auditorium, featuring Miss Latin Sun City 2018 Anahi Norell, national talent Dice Santana, Rumore and more. All events are free. Info: 575-646-7031 or email lgbt@nmsu.edu.

No Doubt Trout vs. The Boss

Professional boxer and Las Cruces resident Austin “No Doubt” Trout took on Holy Cross Elementary Principal Adrian “The Boss” Galaz in a boxing exhibition at Ofiate High School gymnasium on Oct. 6 in support of CARE – Cancer Aid Resource and Education. The boxing match wrapped up the school’s Lavendar Week, where it raises awareness about cancer and supports CARE, a local nonprofit that offers financial support for Doña Ana County cancer patients with non-medical needs such as rent/mortgage, utilities, groceries and travel costs to appointments and more.

Raising homes

Vendors and sponsors celebrate the announcement that the annual Las Cruces Home Builders Association Anniversary House raised $125,000 this year. Each year a local builder builds a home with as much donated material and labor as possible, and when the house sells, the LCHBA gives the proceeds to charity. The donations will be awarded at the Nov. 1 banquet. The Leyanda Azteca mariachi group played to celebrate the occasion.

Learning the ins and outs of Las Cruces Utilities

By CASSIE MCCLURE
and SUZANNE MICHAELS
For the Bulletin

The City of Las Cruces hosts the Neighborhood Leadership Academy (NLA) twice a year to provide first-hand information about city services and programs, to encourage greater engagement and connection with City government and various departments.

Each weekly class visits a different department, and this night was reserved for many of the sections and services of Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) - from Gas to Solid Waste, to Water, Wastewater, and Water Conservation. Customer Service and Billing and Receivables were also on the agenda.

Jeff Dillard, Customer Service interim business systems analyst, and Steven Valdez, Customer Service billing and receivables supervisor, detail the support available to residents for paying their LCU monthly bills.

This night the NLA group also learned about options LCU offers anyone struggling to pay their current Utilities bill. There is a wide array of options, including: bill paying assistance, payment plans, preferred payment dates, charitable funding sources, and customers can even sign up for the budget plan to “level” their bills and reduce the ups and downs in monthly payments.

“We can assist customers who are having a hard time with their utility bills,” explained Steven Valdez, billing and receivables supervisor. “You can call, email, or come in person. We want to work with everyone.”

Nicole Cano, participant of the fall 2018 NLA, mentioned that it had been eye-opening for her to get a behind-the-scenes view of all the different work that LCU does.

“When you see the workers sitting in trucks, you really don’t know what they’re doing,” she said. “Now I’ve been able to see how much monitoring they do inside with their computers.”

“This gives us a chance to let residents become ambassadors for Utilities,” said Utilities Director, Jorge A. Garcia, Ph.D., P.E. “They ask exactly what they want to know directly to those who are doing these important jobs. Employees are residents just like they are and take pride in the work they do.”

The 15-week Academy is free but limited to the first 35 people who apply. Anyone who lives within city limits and is 18-years of age or older is eligible to apply to the Neighborhood Leadership Academy. Learn more at www.las-cruces.org.

Las Cruces Utilities provides gas, water, wastewater and solid waste services to approximately 100,000 Las Cruces residents and businesses. Reach them at 575-528-3500 from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

49th Wing transfer

The 49th Wing at Holloman Air Force base transitioned its flying training mission to Air Education and Training Command during a ceremony on Sept. 28. The move aligns the wing and all co-located units, which hosts MQ-9 Reaper and F-16 Viper formal training units, under the 19th Air Force, the numbered air force responsible for flying training across the Air Force. The realignment allows MQ-9 pilots and sensor operators to attend training within one command.

Las Cruces and Doña Ana County, New Mexico

NOTICE is hereby given that on 09/18/2018, Rafael M. and Graciela G. Alcantar, P.O. Box 5, Anthony, NM, 88021, filed application numbered LRG-15263-POD2, OSE File No. LRG-15263, with the State Engineer for Permit to Change an Existing Water Right within the Lower Rio Grande Underground Water Basin in Doña Ana County by drilling proposed well LRG-15263-POD2 to a depth of 200 feet with a 12-inch casing, in a location within the SW 1/4 NE 1/4 of projected Section 22, Township 26 South, Range 03 East (NMPM) and more specifically located at X=1,524,613 and Y=376,858 (NMSP Central, NAD83, feet), on land owned by the applicant, and discontinue the use of existing well LRG-15263-POD1, located on land owned by the applicant, located within the NE 1/4 of said Section 22, more specifically described at X=1,524,524 and Y=376,856 (NMSP Central, NAD83, feet), for the continued diversion of an amount of shallow groundwater reserved for future determination by the May 24, 1999 Order of the Third Judicial District Court, Doña Ana County, State of New Mexico, combined with surface water from the Elephant Butte Irrigation District, for the irrigation of 6.45 acres of land located within the SW 1/4 NE 1/4 of said Section 22. The applicant has requested emergency authorization to drill the proposed well under NMSA, 1978, Section 72-12-22. The site of proposed well LRG-15263-POD2 will be located NW of Anthony, NM and may be found approximately 1500 feet SE of the intersection of Burleson Rd. and W Joy Dr., Anthony, NM. Existing well LRG-15263-POD 1 will properly plugged.

Any person, firm or corporation or other entity having standing to file objections or protests shall do so in writing (objection must be legible, signed, and include the writer's complete name, phone number and mailing address). The objection to the approval of the application must be based on: (1) Impairment; if impairment, you must specifically identify your water rights; and/or (2) Public Welfare/Conservation of Water; if public welfare or conservation of water within the state of

New Mexico, you must show how you will be substantially and specifically affected. The written protest must be filed, in triplicate, with the State Engineer, 1680 Hickory Loop, Suite J, Las Cruces, NM 88005 within ten (10) days after the date of the last publication of this Notice. Facsimiles (faxes) will be accepted as a valid protest as long as the hard copy is hand-delivered or mailed and postmarked within 24-hours of the facsimile. Mailing postmark will be used to validate the 24-hour period. Protests can be faxed to the Office of the State Engineer, 575-524-6160. If no valid protest or objection is filed, the State Engineer will evaluate the application in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 72 NMSA 1978.

NOTICE OF SALE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned Special Master will on November 13, 2018 at 11:45 am, outside the main entrance of the 3rd Judicial District Courthouse, 201 W. Picacho, Las Cruces, NM, sell and convey to the highest bidder for cash all the right, title, and interest of the above-named defendants in and to the following described real estate located in said County and State:

LOT NUMBERED 73 OF MI TIERRA SUBDIVISION, LAS CRUCES, DOÑA ANA COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, AS THE SAME IS SHOWN AND DESIGNATED ON THE PLAT OF SAID MI TIERRA SUBDIVISION, FILED IN THE OFFICE OF THE COUNTY CLERK OF DOÑA ANA COUNTY, NEW MEXICO ON APRIL 8, 1999 IN PLAT BOOK 19, FOLIO 258-259.

The address of the real property is 4165 Calle Nuestra, Las Cruces, NM 88005. Plaintiff included the manufactured home, identified as a 1999 CMH Manufacturing, Inc. SF2000 mobile home, VIN number CLW012826TX, as part of the collateral granted by the Mortgage and Plaintiff holds a first equitable lien on said manufactured home. Plaintiff does not represent or warrant that the stated street address is the street address of the described property; if the street address does not match the legal description, then the property being sold herein is the property more particularly described above, not the property located at the street address; any prospective purchaser at the sale is given notice that it should verify the location and address of the property being sold. Said sale will be made pursuant to the judgment entered on August 20, 2018 in the above entitled and numbered cause, which was a suit to foreclose a mortgage held by the above Plaintiff and wherein Plaintiff was adjudged to have a lien against the above-described real estate in the sum of $74,151.35 plus interest from March 1, 208 to the date of sale at the rate of 5.750% per annum, the costs of sale, including the Special Master's fee, publication costs, and Plaintiff's costs expended for taxes, insurance, and keeping the property in good repair. Plaintiff has the right to bid at such sale and submit its bid verbally or in writing. The Plaintiff may apply all or any part of its judgment to the purchase price in lieu of cash.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the purchaser at such sale shall take title to the above-described real property subject to rights of redemption.

For the Bulletin

The dance program at New Mexico State University promises to make the 11th season of “Look Who’s Dancing,” one of its primary fundraisers, the most exciting one yet.

This season’s community “celebrities” range from healthcare professionals to business owners to the chief of the Las Cruces Fire Department.

“This event is more than just a fundraiser for the dance program. It brings members from the community, both the Las Cruces community and the NMSU campus community, together to celebrate the love of dance,” said dance professor Debra Knapp.

“Look Who’s Dancing” has traditionally paired NMSU dance students with community professionals to compete, which requires hours of rehearsal and preparation.

“This event provides an avenue for the dance department to bring together our wonderful supportive community and the students at NMSU, as well as providing skill development, training opportunities and an education that enhances community relations and career opportunities,” said NMSU dance director Ray Backlund.

He said the most important aspect is the community support, which helps provide costuming and cover travel expenses for the students.

“It’s one of the main reasons I was excited to come teach here,” Backlund said, who has been head of DanceSport a little more than a year. “It’s not just the university that supports these students, but the community also wants to help. It gives them opportunities they wouldn’t otherwise have, and that’s what it is really about.”

Not all the students participating are dance majors, however. Karen Torres, a senior kinesiology major, will be dancing the Tango with Silverman.

“I really enjoy working with my partner,” Torres said. “He is always making jokes and makes practice fun.”

While practice can be intense and challenging, senior dance major Manny Carmona said they can prove to be a lot of fun.

“Look Who’s Dancing’ has allowed me to make connections with great people and not only dance, but create a bonding relationship,” said Carmona, who will dance Freestyle with Doan.

Backlund said the panel of judges will include a former student from Brigham Young University, known for his role as a guest choreographer on “Dancing With the Stars.” Rick Robinson and his wife, visiting from Utah, will co-judge on the panel.

Down in the growl: Eli Cook sings award-winning blues

By MARTY RACINE
Las Cruces Bulletin

Eli Cook, named one of the top three solo blues artists worldwide by Britain's "Blues Matters" magazine, performs Saturday, Oct. 13, at the Rio Grande Theatre, 211 N. Main St.

The guitarist/singer/songwriter is touring on his seventh album, "High-Dollar Gospel," released in August 2017.

Cook, 32, grew up near the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia in a home without television, instead spending a Saturday night around the radio with local shows and "The Prairie Home Companion."

His dad and older brother "plucked around" on guitar, he said in a phone interview, and at age 13 he began teaching himself. Within two years he was playing solo acoustic guitar for gospel revivals and electric blues in a local power trio.

"My voice was suitable for the blues," said Cook, who was influenced by historical figures such as Son House, Leadbelly, Lightnin' Hopkins and Mississippi John Hurt before turning to modern players like Chris Smither and Rory Block.

But Appalachia is country music, too.

"It's what was around me, and I just tried to pick up on everything and everybody, including Doc Watson and Chet Atkins."

Between 2004 and 2014 Cook recorded six albums.

True to his generation, Cook also came under the spell of grunge music.

"The reason I make a comparison between the bluesmen and the grunge guys is the feeling of authenticity in the expressions of angst that they both convey," he told "All About Jazz" in 2011.

But blues remains his calling card. Cook was named "the best blues singer of his generation" by All Music Guide and has toured nationally with B.B. King, Johnny Winter, Shemekia Copeland, Robert Cray, Taj Mahal, John Mayall and Gary Clark, Jr.

"I try to push my presentations in different directions with other traditional American roots music elements to have more of an in-depth, cultural content to what I do," he said. "But without blues as the integral ingredient, music just ain't worth listening to in my book."

The new "High Dollar Gospel" evokes the imagery of the American South. "The phrase 'high-dollar' is an old one, and 'gospel' is the Southern church music that brought us Ray Charles, Aretha Franklin, Sister Rosetta Tharpe and countless other iconic musicians," he said. "The two phrases together can have several connotations, but the one I think of is the feeling of disillusionment that seems to be more and more pervasive."

Doors open at 6 p.m., Oct. 13. The show starts at 7. Tickets are $15, available at the door and at www.eventbrite.com/e/eli-cook-blues-guitarists-tickets-49253167550.

Sci-fi thriller premieres at Rio Grande Theater

BULLETIN REPORT

Some alien invasions are unplanned. This Fall, PRC Productions and Borderlands Media will take on otherworldly life forms in our midst, with the release of the science fiction thriller Radio Silence, according to a press release. Shot entirely in southern New Mexico, utilizing crew and actors from Las Cruces and El Paso, Radio Silence is the second of three feature films to be produced by PRC Productions in 2018. It will premiere at Rio Grande Theater, 211 N. Main St., on Friday, Oct. 12. Doors open at 6 p.m. and the screening begins at 7 p.m. A Q&A with the filmmakers and actors will follow the film presentation.

The film follows a select team of U.S. Army Special Forces soldiers, who are sent on a mission to retrieve pieces of a downed spy satellite from a remote desert region 45 miles west of Janos, Mexico. Expecting a routine, even boring mission, the team comes under attack and is faced with the loss of half their members as well as their Mexican Federal Police escort. Forced to beat a hasty retreat to a cantina they passed on the way in, they spend a long night trying to understand what they are up against and how to defeat this apparently undefeatable (and otherworldly) foe. 'Radio Silence' was written and directed by Troy Scoughton Sr., who also served as producer on the motion picture. The production utilized crew and actors from Las Cruces and El Paso and was shot on the latest generation 6K Red Dragon camera.

PRC Productions is a Las Cruces-based, full-service production company formed in June of 2010 with several award-winning shorts films, documentaries and commercials under its belt and productions available on Amazon Prime.

Advance tickets are available for purchase online at www.RioGrandeTheatre.com. Concessions will be sold on site including refreshments, beer, wine and spirits. After the screening, attendees are invited to join cast and crew for an after party next door at the Dragonfly Restaurant to celebrate the release. Info: www.BorderlandsMedia.com, 575-646-5214.

Mesilla Valley Concert Band starts new season with Sunday concert

By MIKE COOK

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

The Mesilla Valley Concert Band (MVCB), under the direction of the legendary Dr. William Clark, will open its 2018-19 season with a free concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 in the NMSU Music Building Recital Hall, 1075 N. Horseshoe Drive.

Pieces on the program include “Waltz No. 2” by Dmitri Shostakovich, “Whatsoever Things” by Mark Camphouse, “Solo de Concours” by Andre Messenger (with a solo by professional clarinetist John de la Paz), “First Suite for Band” by Alfred Reed, “Elsa’s Procession to the Cathedral” by Richard Wagner and “The Fightin’ 55th, by John David Beasley.

“The Fightin’ 55th” is a march written by Beasley, a superb tuba player in MVCB,” Clark said. “David and his wife, Kimberly, a terrific horn player also in MVCB, served in the 55th Wing of the United States Air Force as musicians. This is a wonderful, spirited, very difficult piece with Wing Tattoo celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Air Force,” he said.

Beasley, a member of Concert Band, is a veteran of the U.S. Air Force and was born and raised in Las Cruces.

“After the march we plan to perform ‘Whatsoever Things,’” Clark said. “The piece was commissioned by the Revelli Foundation and was dedicated to the memory of John Paynter, director of Bands at Northwestern University 1953-96. The title of the work comes from the Bible, Philipians 4:8 and is the motto of Northwestern and the words by which Paynter lived. This is a wonderfully artistic work for concert band which take themes from the Northwestern alma mater, the St. Anthony Chorale.”

“Whatsoever Things” composer Camphouse is a native of Chicago and Northwestern graduate. “Our guest soloist is John de la Paz, originally from Las Cruces,” Clark said. “John is a professional clarinetist in the Phoenix/Tucson area and will perform the ‘Solo de Concours.’”

“Messenger wrote this piece for clarinet for a Paris Conservatory competition in 1899,” Singleton said.

“Elsa’s Procession to the Cathedral” opens scene four of act two of Wagner’s “1850 opera ‘Lohengrin.’”

The 96-piece MVCB was found in 1987 through the joint efforts of Clark, Schutz and Mike White of White’s Music Box.

First called the Mesilla Valley Community Band, the group began with 30 participants, but has now grown to an ensemble of around 100 performers, with many professional musicians, music teachers, band directors, business people, retirees and advanced students. They are drawn not only from Las Cruces but from El Paso, Silver City, Deming, Hatch, Alamogordo and Cloudcroft. The band has presented more than 220 free concerts to some 150,000 southern New Mexicans.

MVCB upcoming concerts are scheduled for Dec. 9, 2018 and March 3, May 12 and July 4, 2019.

Golf tourney supports Mesilla Valley Hospice

BULLETIN REPORT

Temple Beth El's sixth annual Matzo Ball Open (fundraising golf tournament) will be Oct. 21 at Picacho Hills Country Club. The tournament begins with a shotgun start at noon. Registration begins at noon at $100 per player.

Entry fees cover a round of golf with cart, practice balls and a dinner as well as a voucher for a complimentary round of golf at PHCC. During play, there will be contests for longest drive and closest to the hole for both men and women.

There will also be a $5,000 putting contest that is being supported by Dr. Arthur Berkson of Integrative Medical Center.

The tournament is a fundraiser for Temple Beth-El and Mesilla Valley Hospice. Monies are raised through entry fees, hole sponsors (a record amount this year), 50/50 sales and donated raffle prizes. Proceeds to Temple Beth-El are used to support a wide range of programming for temple members as well as supporting cultural and educational events in the community.

Matzo ball soup (not made with golf balls) will be served. Info: 575-523-0913.

Cassandra Galban and Nicole Jones play the Supreme Beings in 'Parallel Lives.'

'Parallel Lives' is unparalleled

By MIKE COOK

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

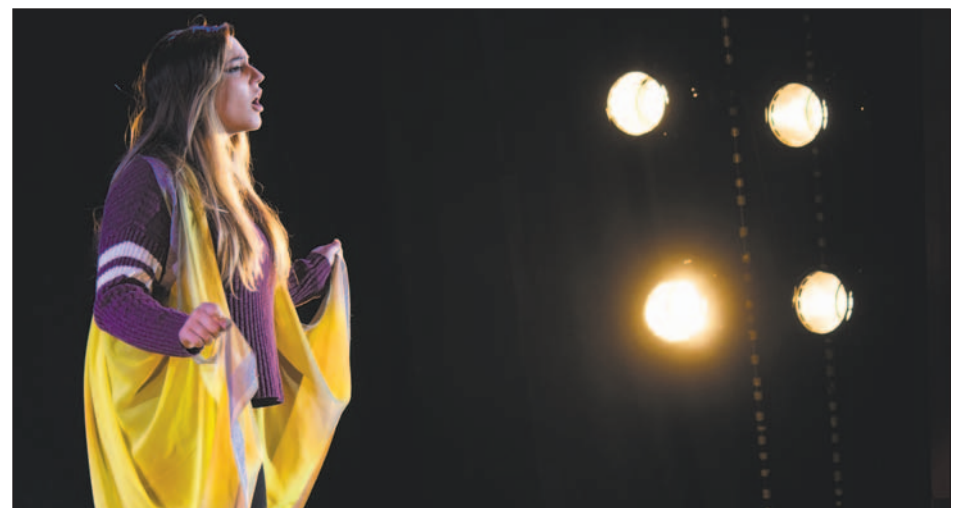

This weekend will be your last chance to see "Parallel Lives" at Las Cruces Community Theatre, and I highly recommend that you go.

The 18 scenes in the two-act show cover some very timely topics and don't shy away from adult material through the clever and original writing of professional actors and comedians Kathy Najimy and Mo Gaffney.

Best of all, there are absolutely outstanding performances from eight local actresses.

Director Teddy Aspen-Sanchez chose well in casting Erin Wendorf, Jazmin Buchman, Karen Buerdsell, Jennifer Francis, Cassi Galban, Nicole Jones, Haley Kirkpatrick and Susanna Odegaard.

They play 45 different characters during the three-hour show, including supreme beings creating the world, Disney moms (including Mrs. Jumbo and Cruella Deville) in therapy, two women from very different economic situations discussing "beauty tips" in a laundromat and a resort spa, a mother protecting her children during a shooting outside an abortion clinic and two women dealing with religion and God from early childhood through the various stages of their lives. You'll also visit bedrooms, a kitchen, a mansion, a restaurant, a castle and even heaven.

The show will make you think, and it will make you laugh – at the characters and at yourself.

It's impossible for me to single out one actor from this production because everyone was so very good. And what they create is more collective than it is individual. They are the different brilliant colors that shine together like a rainbow that is both beautiful and breath-taking.

I've seen most of these women on stage before and even acted with a few of them. For others, this was their first time on stage or on the LCCT stage. Individually and collectively, with few costume changes, set pieces and props, they tackle challenging material with great talent and amazing energy.

Go see "Parallel Lives." It is unparalleled.

Remaining performances are Oct. 12-13 and 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 at LCCT, 313 N. Main St. downtown.

Tickets are $10-$15.

For tickets and more information, call 575-523-1200. Visit www.lcctnm.org.

Surprise ending, powerful performances drive 'The Wife'

By JEFF BERG
For the Bulletin

So, thankfully, the performance by the leads, Glenn Close as Joan Castleman and Jonathan Pryce as Joe Castleman, are what really save this PBS-ish type heavy feature film.

It takes about five minutes to figure out what is really going on behind the scenes as we learn that Joe has just won the Nobel Peace Prize for literature, much to Joan's outward happiness and inner seething.

The film opens in their home in Connecticut, as they await the possibility of Joe winning the coveted prize. But after doing so, the story takes place mostly in Stockholm, as Joan, Joe and their two offspring (their son is a wannabe writer as well) arrive for the multitude of ceremonies that will take place before the actual award rite.

Joan, in flashback, was once seen as a writer with much potential herself, most of which was sacrificed upon taking up with Joe, who was teaching at the university they attended.

To add to the intrigue, a hack writer, played by Christian Slater has shown up and has been pestering Joe for the chance to do his biography. Joe wants none of it, but Nathaniel (Slater) is insistent and manages to arrange to meet Joan for a drink, all the while dropping suggestions and offering innuendo as fact. Joe has told him off several times but Joan, as is her way, listens politely, at least for a short time.

"The Wife" will screen for a week at the Fountain Theatre in Mesilla, starting tonight, Oct. 12.

His work increases in stature and visibility, while Joan remains behind the scenes, supportive and smiling, enduring his dalliances with other women — which almost continues even in Stockholm, where he and the photographer assigned to him fall into grace, sort of. She is much younger, and it is hard to see what she would see in him, other than his fame as a wordsmith.

As the ceremonies drag along, the tension increases, reaching a silent boiling point for Joan. David, an avid smoker, is not fond of his father and that distaste increases as he awaits Joe's "review" of a story that he has shared with him.

Past affairs come up, with Joan always being in the right, as Joe makes lame or no excuses for his behavior, which triggers even more revulsion and harsh words between the two.

The films climax, at the banquet after the award ceremony is where all opens up, and the surprise ending is a plus for sure.

I wanted to like the film more than I did, but the powerful performances by the two leads made it quite worthwhile.

Jeff Berg has been reviewing movies for the Bulletin since 2002. He lives in Santa Fe and may be reached at ned-ludd76@hotmail.com.

'Disconnected' opens this weekend at Reader's Theatre

BULLETIN REPORT

Everyman Ensemble Theatre (EET) of Las Cruces and the New Mexico State University's Creative Student Theatre Company will premiere a new play during four October performances at Isabel M. Crouch Reader's Theatre on the NMSU campus.

Performances will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday-Sunday, Oct. 12-14, along with a single matinee performance at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14.

The suggested donation is $5.

The play "Disconnected" is "about the ideas of growth and the meaning of life," said the play's director and EET founder Robby Sciortino, a graduate of the NMSU Theatre Arts Department who is now teaching theatre at Oñate High School.

The play is set in a classroom, a campsite and a basement, Sciortino said, as five "friends" discover what happens when curiosity goes too far.

"This full-length devised play is a mysterious exploration of time, space and friendship wrapped up in an 80's coming-of-age story," Sciortino said on Facebook.

"Disconnected" was devised by and Sciortino and cast members Veronica Bissell, Nicholas Holguin, Cheyenne Kimnick and Joseph Seth

Toucan Market will remain open after restructuring business

BY MICHAEL SCANLON

For the Bulletin

With the ink still drying on his bank loan contract, Toucan Market owner Bob Baur was sending out a letter to let customers know the locally owned Las Cruces grocery store is here to stay.

"We're back on solid ground," Baur said Monday, Oct. 1. Partners Baur and Richard Cole announced in August that the market would close after 13 years in business.

But with fresh financing from Pioneer Bank, some new ideas and a different ownership structure, everyone at Toucan is looking to the future. Baur will continue in the business without Cole as a partner.

"He will no longer be my business partner," Baur said. "We couldn't have started Toucan Market without Richard and Christy (Cole's wife). It was wonderful they were here to get us started. We've been partners for 13 years and they're ready to retire."

Cole said he would not comment on the business, since he's no longer involved, but he said he and his wife plan to stay in Las Cruces.

"We're not going anywhere," Cole said. "We love it here. We've got a nice place, and we plan to stay."

The store is located at the corner of Locust Street and University Avenue in the Pan Am Plaza shopping center.

While Cole brought his expertise in business and finance to Toucan, Baur came in with 30 years' experience in the retail grocery business. His son Rob Baur, Toucan's store manager, worked 15 years in the grocery business before joining Toucan.

Word that Toucan would stay open was welcome news for loyal customers, local vendors – Toucan carries more than 100 local products – as well as the store's 36 employees.

"It was very scary," employee Donna Villarreal said of the news that Toucan would close. "I've been here since they opened. This is a small, family-run business, and they give benefits. It wasn't only going to affect us, it was going to affect all our local vendors. We support a lot of people here. It would have been a huge loss to this community.

Toucan pays 75 percent of employees' health insurance and offers paid time off and other perks. Villarreal said the prospect of losing her insurance coverage caused a lot of anguish until workers heard the news that the store would stay open.

"I was dancing, jumping up in the air, telling every customer that walks in the door that we're staying open, saying please tell your friends, put it on Facebook. I've been doing that nonstop for the last week," Villarreal, 59, said.

New border plan cuts taxes

There certainly is a lot of border news lately. Most important is the completion of the re-negotiation of the NAFTA, replacing it with the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement, also called USMCA.

As many have commented, USMCA is not a nothing burger, but neither is it a massive rewrite of NAFTA. The agreement increases the North American content required for automobiles to qualify for lower tariffs to 75 percent; it requires that at least 40 percent of auto parts be made by workers making at least

CHRIS ERICKSON
State of the Economy

$16 per hour; it opens Canada to U.S. dairy producers; and it increases protection of intellectual property. There is a 16-year sunset clause that automatically ends USMCA unless the deadline is extended and there is a clause to review the agreement every six years.

The good news for the border is that the new agreement doesn't change much on the border. The new wage rules likely will cause some auto manufacturing to move north. That may hurt Juarez's large auto sector. But otherwise there appears little in the new agreement to worry border denizens.

More significant is the new border plan proposed by Mexican President Andrew Manuel Lopez Obrador, better known as AMLO. The plan calls for cutting the Value Added Tax (VAT) from 16 percent to 8 percent. AMLO also plans to reduce the income tax to 20 percent.

Most significant, AMLO plan calls for doubling the Mexican minimum wage in the border region. The current Mexican minimum wage is 88 peso per day, or about $4.65. Doubling it would put the wage at $9.30.

While no doubt Mexican border manufacturers will complain about the higher wage, the net impact is likely to be small. Already, many manufacturers pay more than the minimum wage, especially if you include fringe benefits that many provide, such as free meals provided in employer run cafeterias and free transportation to and from work.

ALMOs proposed tax cuts should be stimulant for the border in that it will provide an important incentive for producers to re-locate to the border to avoid what soon be higher VAT in the interior.

The border remains a vital engine of economic development for our region. The 300 or so maquila in Juarez employ 280,000 people. About half manufacture goods for U.S. manufacturers. About 60 percent of Juarez's labor force works in manufacturing

But manufacturing remains concentrated on the Mexican side of the border. On the U.S. side are transportation and warehousing, and hospitality.

Christopher A. Erickson, Ph.D., is a professor of economics at NMSU. He has studied the border economy for more than 30 years. The opinions expressed may not be shared by the regents and administration of NMSU. Chris can be reached at cherrick@nmsu.edu.

"I'm getting too old to be changing jobs."

When the store was reducing its inventory in anticipation of closing, the stock levels drew down, but Baur said the store was about 80 percent restocked.

He said he removed a gondola next to the deli department and eliminated slow-selling products throughout the store to make room for tables where people can sit and eat.

"I'm not a restaurant, but I can put in five or six little bistro tables, so the students can come over here and sit down," Baur said. "No menu, no nothing. We do sell packaged sandwiches, we do have packaged soups, chips, apples. They can get whatever they want and have a seat back there, get a Coke. We're not doing to be a restaurant, but it could be a nice little gathering place.

"That's been probably the most asked-for thing from our customers since we opened," Baur said. "'Why don't you put in a place to sit down?' I've heard that probably 1,000 times."

In addition to the partnership, the store also was hit hard by the 2008 recession and by the influx of corporate competitors – Sprouts Farmers Market, Natural Grocers, Walmart's Neighborhood Market, for example – staffing cuts at New Mexico State University and other things.

Dissolving the partnership so the business no longer has to support two owners was just a part of the puzzle that will bring the business back to long-term health, Baur said.

"It's not just one thing," he said. "I can't control how many people work at the university. I'm never going to stop the city from bringing in another corporation. But what I can do is lower my overhead and keep my focus."

Store manager Rob Baur was busy checking inventory and moving local products to more prominent space inside the store. Some were going to the front of the store. The first door in the beer cooler was filled with local craft beers.

"We don't charge local vendors to put their products on our shelves," he said. "That's free of charge. We'll try it. If we don't sell it, we might have to mark it down or do something else with it. But we always give local vendors an opportunity to sell their stuff in our store."

Las Cruces is a National Senior Olympics medalist at 91

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces AARP Chapter 1230 member Amelia Davis is 91 years old. She has won about that many medals in nearly 30 years of competing in Senior Olympics in New Mexico and in five national competitions – with a sixth coming up.

Davis began competing in Senior Olympics in 1989 when she lived in Gallup and continued after moving to Las Cruces in 1996. She has competed in the shot put, discus, 1500-meter and 5K race walks, shuffleboard, bowling, 100- and 200-meter runs and horseshoes, among other events.

Her grit, positive outlook and team spirit led to Davis receiving the 2010 Golden Athlete of New Mexico from Senior Olympics. That highly covered award goes to one senior in each state.

Bowling is Davis’ favorite sport, in part because it’s a passion she shares with her granddaughters. It’s also her best sport; Davis set the state record for Senior Olympics bowlers in the age 90-and-over category with a three-game average score of 433 earlier this year and will compete in the nationals.

In addition to Senior Olympics, Davis stays active with daily exercise first thing every morning and participates in senior aerobics and fitness classes as a member of AARP and Mountain-View Regional Medical Center’s Senior Amigos (formerly Senior Circle).

She bowls every week, loves line dancing, has walked in many marathons and even completed the Bataan Death March marathon at age 80.

Davis also “keeps an optimistic outlook on life and loves to be an active member of the Las Cruces community,” said her granddaughter, Christina Granillo.

Davis “loves being a member of AARP for the people she’s met and all of the activities they provide for senior citizens to stay active and healthy,” Granillo said. “She believes it is a very encouraging organization which all senior citizens should look into being a part of.”

Davis also encourages all seniors to consider participating in Senior Olympics.

“Staying active at our age is very important for our health, and the Olympic games are a fun way to meet new people and accomplish things you never thought you could do,” Davis said. “Medals and trophies don’t make you a winner. You’re a winner by being there and trying.”

Davis and her husband, Zarro, have four children, nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. She also is “deeply rooted in her faith and has friends who have become family at her church,” her granddaughter said.

Social Security and Medicare, working side by side

By RAY VIGIL
For the Bulletin

Social Security and Medicare have worked side by side for decades. Both programs have improved the quality of life for millions of Americans.

Social Security reaches almost every family and, at some point, touches the lives of nearly all Americans. We’re with you through life’s journey — from birth to your golden years. Social Security helps older Americans, workers who become disabled, and families in which a spouse or parent dies. In 2017, about 174 million people worked and paid Social Security taxes and about 62 million people received monthly Social Security benefits.

We want you to understand what Social Security can mean to you and your family’s financial future. The publication, Understanding the Benefits, explains the basics of the Social Security retirement, disability, and survivor’s insurance programs. You can read it at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/EN-05-10024.pdf.

Unlike workers in the private sector, not all state or local government employees are covered by Social Security. Some only have their public pension coverage, and other government employees have both a public pension and Social Security coverage. For more information, please read our publication titled How State and Local Government Employees are Covered by Social Security and Medicare at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/EN-05-10051.pdf.

Medicare is the federal health insurance program for people who are 65 or older and certain younger people with disabilities. It is also for people with End-Stage Renal Disease (permanent kidney failure requiring dialysis or a transplant, sometimes called ESRD).

The different parts of Medicare help cover specific services. Medicare Part A (hospital insurance) helps pay for inpatient hospital stays, care in a skilled nursing facility, hospice care, and some home health care. Medicare Part B (medical insurance) helps pay for certain doctors’ services, outpatient care, medical supplies, and some preventive services.

Medicare Part C (Medicare Advantage plans) is a type of Medicare health plan offered by a private company that contracts with Medicare. Medicare Advantage plans provide all of your Part A and Part B benefits. Medicare Advantage plans may also include Medicare Part D (prescription drug coverage). Part D helps cover the cost of prescription drugs. Some people with limited resources and income may also be able to get Extra Help with the costs — monthly premiums, annual deductibles, and prescription co-payments — related to a Medicare prescription drug plan. The Extra Help is estimated to be worth about $4,900 per year. You must meet the resources and income requirements.

When you apply for Medicare, you can sign up for Part A (hospital insurance) and Part B (medical insurance). Because you must pay a premium for Part B coverage, you can turn it down. However, if you decide to enroll in Part B later, you may have to pay a late enrollment penalty for as long as you have Part B coverage. Your monthly premium will go up 10 percent for each 12-month period you were eligible for Part B, but didn’t sign up for it, unless you qualify for a spe-

Fort Selden Moonlight Tours honor El Camino Real, National Trails System

By MIKE COOK

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Fort Selden Historic Site north of Las Cruces will host “Voices from the Past: Moonlight Tours” 6-9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 20.

Admission is $5 for adults, with children admitted free. Tickets are sold at the door and only cash or checks are accepted. The event will include outdoor activities, so attendees are reminded to dress warmly.

The event is part of the nationwide 2018 50th anniversary celebration of the National Trails System.

“Many people in our area are unaware there is a section of El Camino Real (Real de Tierra Adentro National Historic Trail) at Fort Selden,” said Leslie Bergloff, regional manager of Fort Selden, Taylor-Mesilla and El Camino Real historic sites.

“You can actually walk on an authentic portion of the trail,” she said. “The area where Fort Selden was built was originally a well-known campsite on the trail, the Paraje de Robledo or Cruz de Robledo. The campsite was 10 miles south of the Paraje San Diego and the beginning of the Jornada Del Muerto, or Dead Man’s Journey, a 90-mile stretch of trail across the flat desert plain away from the river. It was an important stop. The mountain range close by and the campsite were named after Pedro Robledo, a member of Onate’s original expedition in 1598 that died there.”

“For our time travel, we are focusing on people who traveled the trail,” Bergloff said.

Here is a list of people that visitors will meet during the moonlight tours:

Las Cruces Bulletin

When author Donna Blake Birchell threw out the idea for “Haunted Hotels and Ghostly Getaways” to editors at Arcadia Publishing, they were a little skeptical. But she persisted, and they agreed to go with it. The result is a detailed look at some of the most-famous and least-known haunted getaways in the state.

She found hotels and other places around the state, some of which she already knew and some she found in her internet research. To her surprise, many of the better-known locales didn’t want to participate.

“One of the precursors was Albuquerque had to be involved,” Birchell said. “I called every hotel purported to be haunted and they just didn’t want to do it. So, I just started looking at the bed and breakfasts and found a couple of those.”

The Painted Lady Bed & Brew and the Red Horse Vineyard Bed & Breakfast, both in Albuquerque, turned out to be interested in her offer, and ultimately she said. The Painted Lady is 135 years old and within walking distance of six taprooms and breweries. The site on which it sits is where the Battle of Albuquerque took place, housed a brothel and, later, the Swastika Saloon with its own special drinking song.

Five miles away, the Red Horse is also connected to the Battle of Albuquerque, where on its outskirts location a cannon was once fired that reached Old Town.

The closest location to Las Cruces, Birchell said, is Hatch, where she went to experience the Saint Francis lodgings herself.

“I ran over on my days off and they did a paranormal investigation of the church itself and the little casita where I stayed,” she said. “There was more activity in the casita than anywhere. At first, it kind of takes you aback cause you are like, ‘oo, hey this is real!’”

The church in Hatch is run by two sweet sisters from Iowa, she said. The community has embraced them.

“They have the grave of a little gypsy boy outside the sacristy and we were talking to him through the flashlight,” Birchell said. He was answering by making the light blink. They told him to make it blink twice for yes.”

part of the Mesilla Valley Community of Hope. Last year's event sold 900-950 bowls, event planners said. Las Cruces Potters' Guild and other volunteers are making about 1,100 bowls for this year's event.

The Potters' Guild sold 600 bowls and raised $3,500 for El Caldito in 1993. In 2015, more than $22,000 was raised, and the figure passed $23,000 in 2016.

NMSU students collect the soup, Sam's Club donates the drinks, St. Paul's provides the location and El Caldito volunteers serve the public their "soup kitchen" lunch.

Founded in 1984, El Caldito originally offered a midday meal one day a week, according to the soup kitchen's website. The kitchen was relocated to its present facility on the Mesilla Valley Community of Hope campus in 1998. In early 2002, services were expanded to offering a hot mid-day meal Monday through Friday. The program was further enhanced in December 2002 to provide a carry-out sack lunch on Saturday. Then in early 2010, a hot Sunday lunch was added. El Caldito serves an average of 250 people at every lunch.

forms the basis of New Mexico's bill of rights, from 1846.

El Camino Real was designated as a national historic trail in 2000, and "is a symbol of the early cultural interaction between nations and multiple ethnic groups in the Southwest," according to the National Park Service. "The commercial and social exchanges that occurred over the centuries helped create the rich cultural mix that is still present today. Visitors can experience these influences through the traditional architecture, landscapes, place names, cultural institutions, music, folklore, foods and language that still distinguish the region."

The Val Verde 4-H is assisting Bergloff with the event.

"Their young people are the tour guides and their parents help serve refreshments," Bergloff said.

The Deming Fusiliers will provide love musical entertainment during the event, and drinks and cooks will be served.

The moonlight tours are sponsored by the Museum of New Mexico Foundation.

To reach Fort Selden, take Interstate 25 north from Las Cruces, take exit 19 and follow the signs.

Birchell believes ghost are made up of residual energy.

"Some of these deaths were pretty much shocks and they don't know they are dead, or they do and they don't know where to go," she said. "They want to stay with what they are familiar with. Or they have something they have to complete, and they haven't done it yet."

Birchell didn't stay in all the places mentioned in the book, but a lot of them. Her first experience was at the Plaza Hotel in Las Vegas, New Mexico. She had heard that the old owner, Byron T. Mills, went after women who traveled alone.

"I was traveling alone, and I thought I would test it out," she said. "The minute I walked in the room I felt like someone was watching the whole time. I didn't get the haunted room. Just one on the third floor, but let me tell you, taking a shower, that was difficult. I felt like someone was watching me the whole time. I just wanted to take a shower in my clothes."

That night after she went to sleep she remembers having the light on and turning over.

"I woke up and I tried to turn over and I couldn't do it because there was somebody with their back against mine," she said. "Terror, terror, absolute terror. Then I remembered I thought, 'oh well, this is kind of what you are here for.' Finally, I said, 'you know, I have a busy day tomorrow, please leave me alone. Boom, gone.'"

At the St. James in Cimmaron Birchett stayed in the Mary Lambert Room, across from TJ's (Thomas James Wright) Room. TJ apparently had just won the hotel in a card game and got shot in the back on the way to his room.

"He kinda crawled to his bed and died in his bed," she said. "He's kind of a snarly little ghost. He likes whiskey. They let me into his room. As a thank you, I put a shot of whiskey up on the transom and it was gone in the morning. I smelled cigar smoke at night and there is no smoking in the hotel."

Born and raised in Carlsbad, Birchett said she has a job playing with dirt and chemicals all day. She is a lab tech with Mosaic Potash in Carlsbad. Writing books, "Haunted Hotels and Ghostly Hideaways" is the eighth, and photography are her loves. She has two grown sons who live in Texas and Albuquerque.

She's now working on two more books on the Frontier Forts of New Mexico and one on hidden gems, roadside attractions.

"With every book, it's something different," she said. "I get to meet a lot of great people. Without the book I would just have sat at home."

Aggie volleyball sweeps pair on road

BULLETIN REPORT

"I'm happy to have gone 2-0 on this road trip," head coach Mike Jordan said, after the New Mexico State University Aggies defeated the University of Missouri-Kansas City Oct. 4, and Chicago State Oct. 6. NMSU swept UMKC 25-15, 25-19 and 25-20, then swept Chicago State 25-15, 25-18, 25-22 for their fourth straight win.

The victories put NMSU's record at 14-5 overall and, 4-2 in the Western Athletic Conference.

For her efforts on the road trip, NMSU's Julianna Salanoa was named the WAC Defensive Player of the Week. Salanoa led the WAC with 2.67 blocks per set. Against Kansas City, she tallied a career-best nine blocks and had 10 kills in the match. At Chicago State, the middle blocker finished with a match-high seven blocks. Salanoa also recorded a pair of digs on the weekend.

The Aggies are back in action when the team travels to Edinburg, Texas, for a match at UT

Clueless negativity can be a real downer

I see so many golfers becoming surly and throwing temper tantrums when the slightest thing goes wrong, often involving loud expletives and club throwing. I'm often struck by the intensity of anger directed inward.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

For raising your personal insight and awareness I developed a set of 30 non-scientific self-test questions. Answer yes or no, privately.

Doc's self-defeating Behavior Quiz

1. When things don't go well do you typically get down on yourself?

2. Are you prone to get really upset and lose your temper when you get bad breaks?

3. Do you tend to let little things, seemingly insignificant things, annoy you?

4. Would you describe yourself as a negative type person, seeing the glass half-empty?

5. When setbacks occur and misfortune strikes, does it usually result in failure?

6. Do you find it impossible or extremely difficult to bounce back from adversity?

7. Are you typically unable to accept small failures and continue a path to success?

8. Do you often mentally replay and dwell on previous misplays and mistakes?

9. Are you too hard on yourself, meaning way too self-critical?

10. When things turn sour, do you often belittle yourself and call yourself names?

11. With personal performance at stake, do you tend to worry a lot about the outcome?

12. Does your inflated ego cause you to resist, or even dismiss, expert advice?

13. Are you someone who gets stuck in old habits and resists changing when needed?

14. Do you feel you are usually powerless to influence the outcome of things you attempt?

15. When you notice pressure to perform at your best do you tend to get tense and falter?

16. It especially difficult and nerve-racking to have other people watching you play golf?

17. When the chips are down are you prone to choke under pressure?

18. As you feel pressure and nervous tension do you notice that your thinking is clouded?

19. Do you have persistent issues with perfectionism?

20. Are you sometimes unable to stop unwanted thoughts from dominating your awareness?

21. Does competition increase your nervousness, inner tension and anxiety?

22. Do you struggle with self-confidence?

23. Do you feel deep down you absolutely must always win or look good?

24. Would you say you are mostly unaware of your own behavior on the golf course?

25. Do you agree with the statement or idea that "golf should always be fair?"

26. Are you extremely fearful of being embarrassed, being seen as inept or looking bad?

27. Do you seem to lack a resilience, as in being unable to rise above problems?

28. Do you tend to avoid setting specific challenging goals, knowing you can't improve?

29. Are you afraid to try new activities and venture outside your comfort zone?

30. In general, do you get the feeling you are lacking in mental toughness?

Perhaps some of those questions were eye-openers for you. If you contemplated these questions and answered in a brutally honest way, and had fewer than 10 "yes" responses, you probably don't have much of a struggle with golfer's angst or problem behavior. If you answered "yes" to at least 20 of them, there is a strong probability you are experiencing difficulties with a negative attitude about your worth as a golfer and may even benefit from personal coaching. You can't easily transform your personality, but you can turn your maladaptive attitude and behavior completely around, making you better company.
