NEWS BRIEFS

County traffic program in effect

Doña Ana County Sheriff's deputies will launch a county-wide traffic-enforcement program in April that will target a variety of common violations.

The Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) is a grant-funded enforcement campaign that targets speeding, failure to use safety belts, intersection violations, aggressive driving, driving while intoxicated, driving while talking or texting on a cell phone, and other violations.

STEP will run throughout April, leading up to Memorial Day weekend, when roadways are heavily traveled for the holiday.

Sobriety checkpoints planned

The Doña Ana County Sheriff's Department has scheduled at least one checkpoint and saturation patrol during the month of April.

Checkpoints and patrols will be conducted April 7 through April 30 at various undisclosed locations throughout Doña Ana County. Checkpoints are usually set up between 6 p.m. and 4 a.m.

The Doña Ana County Health and Human Services Department offers county residents a low-cost taxi ride home through Project HOME (Helping Others Make it home Every time), which is available on Fridays, Saturdays and holidays from 5:30 p.m. to 3 a.m.

Any person or group who has been drinking can call 575-524-TAXI to be picked up for a discounted ride home. Project HOME will only take people from a bar or party to the rider's residence. For up to two people, the taxi fee is a flat $5 to any destination within the county. For up to four people, the fee is $10.

County seeks P&Z applicants

Doña Ana County is seeking applications from residents interested in serving on the Planning and Zoning Commission, a seven-member board of volunteers whose members review land-use and development matters at twice-monthly public hearings. Three open seats on the commission will be filled by the Doña Ana County Board of Commissioners at their April 25 regular meeting.

Meetings are generally from 9 a.m. to noon on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month in the Commission Chambers of the Doña Ana County Government Center, 845 N. Motel Blvd. in Las Cruces.

Applications will be accepted through 5 p.m., Thursday, April 13. Applications will consist of a letter of interest, current résumé and three references, and should be mailed or delivered to the Doña Ana County Planning and Community Development Department, 845 N. Motel Blvd., Las Cruces, N.M., 88007, Attention: Janine Divyak. Application packets also can be faxed to 575-525-6131.

For more information, call 575-525-6130. Outside Las Cruces, call toll-free at 1-877-827-7200, ext. 6130.

Tax board seeks applicants

The Valuation Protests Board seeks applicants who are registered voters in Doña Ana County and are not public-sector employees.

Send a letter and resume to the Valuations Protests Board Nomination Committee, c/o Paul Ponce, Doña Ana County Assessor's Office, 845 N. Motel Blvd., Las Cruces, NM 88007.

Applicants with substantial knowledge of the Doña Ana County real estate market and appraisal methodology are preferred. Deadline for receipt of application is 5 p.m., May 1.

For more information, contact Mark Krohn at 575-525-5548. Callers from outside the Las Cruces area may call toll-free at 1-877-827-7200 and request extension 5548.

Perea appointed to district court

Gov. Susana Martinez has appointed Conrad Perea to Division III of the Third Judicial District Court, filling the vacancy created by the resignation of Judge Darren M. Kugler.

Perea served with the Las Cruces Police Department from 1979 to 1999, including as special agent in charge of the Las Cruces-Doña Ana County Metro Narcotics Agency. Later, he was a magistrate judge in Doña Ana County.

Perea is a graduate of New Mexico State University, the FBI's National Academy and the Border Patrol Academy.

City set to act on theater's operation

love the Rio Grande Theatre.

The building, now in its ninth decade, is a wonderful asset for Las Cruces. I have attended many events there: plays, blues concerts, tribute concerts, country concerts, rock concerts, jazz concerts, panel discussions, seminars, movies, presentations, recitals - even a funeral. I've seen my daughter perform there. The memories are indelible.

I am not alone. On April 17, Las Cruces City Council will make a decision regarding who will operate the Rio COLTHARP Grande Theatre. Citv From the Publisher Council has discussed whether the Doña Ana Arts Council should continue to run the theater as it has since restoring the downtown icon. Another option is to fold the operation into city duties, and have the Convention & Visitors Bureau manage the facility.

The Arts Council's current agreement ends June 30, and the contract calls for a 60-day notice of change.

My prediction is the city will renew its agreement with the Arts Council, but for a shorter term and with some very specific benchmarks.

For me, and for others, though, the question is less "who" than "what"; before determining who runs the theater. decide what the theater should do and be.

We want your letters

The Las Cruces Bulletin invites readers to submit letters, preferably by email to editor@ lascrucesbulletin.com. They can be sent in by fax at 575-526-4621. Letters also can be mailed or dropped off at 1740 A Calle de Mercado, Las Cruces, 88005. Letters should not exceed 200 words and must include the writer's name, address and telephone number for verification. Anonymous letters will not be published. Letters may be edited for length or content.

Here's what we know:

OPINION

In 1998, heirs of the original owners C.T. Seale and B.G. Dyne (including Seale's granddaughters Jan Clute and Carolyn Muggenburg) gifted their portion of the theatre to the Arts Council, which later that year became sole owner. The Arts Council pulled off a monumental task saving the old theater, raising a lot of money and getting it restored in 2005 to the jewel it is now. They sold it to the city, making it a public venue eligible for critical state and other funds a private venue cannot receive. When the city opened Main Street to through traffic in 2008, the Rio Grande was the natural poster child for revitalization of Downtown Las Cruces. The theater appears well maintained, and its 422-seat capacity is ideal for some events, less so for others.

Here's what we don't know:

Could the theater be operated better, differently, more profitably, or serve a different or broader function?

The size of the Rio Grande is both a blessing and a curse. It creates a wonderful, intimate setting, perfect for music or a play. But every time you simply open the doors, you have costs - the sound board, the lighting, the heating and cooling, cleaning, plus the expense of the performers. With 422 seats, it can be difficult to price tickets in a way to keep from losing money, yet still attract enough people. On the occasions where we've attracted bigger names that sold out the house, more money could have been made with more seats. Call it the "in-between" dilemma.

We have the same issue with our market of 100,000. The Rio Grande is a great spot for up-and-coming artists, but our smaller market might not be able to draw enough people to take that chance. Imagine a young, unproven Garth Brooks, circa 1985, playing the Rio Grande and only 20 people show up. Who is this guy?

As I understand, the city spends about $120,000 a year on the venue, a relatively infinitesimal part of our budget.

The city funds a lot of things that never make a dime at all – streets, parks and public safety, for example – in the name of quality of life.

What would happen if you decided to get really wild and spend, say, $500,000 on the Rio Grande Theatre? Could you make enough changes to get more people going downtown and furthering revitalization and attracting more businesses, services and residences downtown, ultimately changing our whole city for the better?

Maybe, maybe not. I still haven't figured out why more people don't go watch the exciting Aggie basketball team, which has only lost seven home games in the past five seasons combined.

The Arts Council has done a respectable job with the theater, with very few resources. Could the CVB - with a recent track record of success and getting events and artists to Las Cruces - take things to another level?

Vocal supporters of the Arts Council say, "Leave it as it is!"

Vocal CVB supporters say, "Let's try something different!"

And what will the city say regarding, "What should the Rio Grande Theatre be?"

Perhaps we'll find out Monday, April 17.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Commission erred in opposing raids

To the editor:

The Doña Ana County Commission erred in approving the resolution opposing ICE raids.

Mr. (Ben) Rawson was the only reasonable commissioner, voting against it because it opposed even lawful raids for violent criminals. Mr. (John) Vasquez was almost there, but, alas, the Commission could not wait.

I believe that voting in favor of the resolution doesn't square with the county Code of Ethics; put them side by side and it's clear, (so) perhaps a better review should have been provided to the commissioners.

Even though it was only a resolution, words have consequences; there are people in this county who have relatives who work for ICE, perhaps some of the school kids who were in attendance at that Commission meeting.

Ultimately they and all law-abiding county residents were chopped off at the knees by this Commission. But this is par for the course for our county. If you refer to the latest ICE Weekly Declined Detainer Outcome report (through Feb. 17, Section 3), you will find that all county jails in New Mexico do not honor detainers. Disgusting.

In closing, I would remind the commissioners whose dollars built our grand county complex and Commission chambers. Those would be the lawabiding real estate owners in this county whose safety now takes a backseat to known violent criminals.

It isn't smart to be that stupid

"Stupid is as stupid does." — Forrest Gump

S ometimes there is a fine line between genius and stupid so it's hard to know which it is. But with New Mexico the mantra for the state is: Let's always do the stupid thing. Shuckins.

In a state dead last in education it would seem to call for a change, but no. In a state that is the only state in the Sun Belt to be losing citizens it would seem to call for a change, but no. In a state with institutions of higher learning losing students it would seem to call for a change, alas, but no.

Let's start with the colleges.

Most have been having financial difficulties because their student population is dropping. Concurrently that has raised the cost

MICHAEL Failsed the cost of attendance dramatically. At New Mexico State University in 1993 the cost of tuition and fees was years later it is around $3,000 a semester.

This is important since some jobs will only pay about $18,000 a year. The cost of getting a degree becomes a limiting factor. Certainly not so with electrical engineers but when five years cost $6,000 in tuition and fees, any degree was fine. Make that cost $30,000 and some graduates will have trouble making ends meet.

The enrollment at these colleges is dropping. That should signal to drop the cost of tuition and fees to get students back. Instead, they are raising the cost of attendance. It isn't smart to be that stupid.

In a state that is in a budget crisis because oil and gas is much lower and the state is losing businesses and citizens, the idea of increasing taxes should be labeled as a stupid thing to do. But no, that is the solution, which of course won't work long because more businesses and citizens will leave the state. Sad.

Finally, in education all of the high-powered smart people who have screwed up New Mexico public schools are doubling down on bad advice. Again sad. What the public schools need to do is release so much administration and experts while going back to the teachers.

The research is compelling that all of these supposedly new programs are nothing but educational fads which have not worked in the past, will not work now and sadly, when the experts try to use them in the future, they will not work then. Over the last 50 years there are many fads that experts bring back to not work again.

New Mexico has many very smart people but the leaders are not listening. To get students back in New Mexico colleges these colleges must be student-centered. They are administration-centered now and that's why every solution does not work. Same in the legislature and in the public schools.

After the next few years of stuff not working could we have a moratorium of stupid in the state? Just a few years of doing intelligent things would be so welcome.

LETTERS CONTINUED FROM 7

The proposed amendment doesn't advance this goal.

County Ordinance 233-07 exists for good reason: noise and safety. Nothing has changed since its passage. The County Commission is now considering gain for a few vendors at best; the argument of economic parity is specious, with miniscule expected tax and job growth.

If the SNMBA really wants to improve the county's business climate, think on a bigger and more general scale.

Kittens and friends thank community supporters

To the editor:

Project Save A Kitten thanks the community for coming out to our second annual Kitty Glitter jewelry sale. Kitty Glitter raised approximately $6,500, to be distributed to local nonprofit organizations that spay, neuter, and adopt out rescued cats and kittens.

We appreciate those who came out and purchased jewelry, but also those who donated jewelry. (Thank you to Better Life Pet Foods, which graciously collects jewelry for us year-round.) We are grateful to Paula Voris for the use of the Griggs & Reymond Event House, Austin's Fine Jewelry, the Cutter Gallery, and Silver Assets for helping us consign and price the exceptional pieces we received. Many thanks to the Las Cruces Bulletin for helping spread the word.

Cats are wonderful companions. You can adopt from the Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley, Cat's Meow Adoption Center, Broken Promises SW, Action Programs for Animals, or the Humane Society of Southern New Mexico.

Finally, a reminder to please keep your kitty inside! Cats tangle with coyotes, cars, and skunks; and birds, lizards and little critters tangle with cats. Let's keep them all apart.

See you next year at the third annual Kitty Glitter jewelry sale!

We have dedicated group representing us in Santa Fe

remember being in the 5th grade at Chaparral Elementary School in Deming one day when my teacher, Ross May, asked if anyone knew who the state senator representing Luna County (where Deming is located) was. I raised my hand and correctly answered "Ike Smalley." I also knew that Carter Kirk was then the state representative for Deming.

That was close to 50 years ago, and the only thing that hasn't changed since then is my interest in state government and especially the New Mexico Legislature.

It was genuinely a pleasure for me to sit at the Bulletin table at the March 30 legislative wrap-up lunch presented by the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce and listen to 10 state senators and representatives talk about the legislative session that ended that month.

From Senate President Pro-Tem Mary Kay Papen (I'm in her district), who was first elected in 2000, to freshmen representatives Nathan Small (I'm in his district) and Angelica Rubio, the message was the same: The state's budget situation is dire and there likely will be a special session in the very near future and more cuts to state and local programs.

But there was another message at the lunch — one of those "reading-between-the-lines" kind of things. For me, Small summed it up best when he said,

"I feel incredibly privileged to be up there." He was, of course, talking about being in Santa Fe representing District 36, and, really, all of Doña Ana County in the New Mexico Legislature.

We have a very smart, diverse, dedicated group of people representing us in the Legislature. Collectively, they have more than 60 years' experience in the House and Senate, plus Small's eight years as a Las Cruces city councillor, State Sen. Ron Griggs' service as mayor of Alamogordo, State Sen. Bill Soules' years on the Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education, State Rep. Bill McCamley's four years on the Doña Ana County Commission and other members' elective service outside the Legislature.

Make no mistake, it is a liberal group – every member of the delegation that represents this county and lives in Las Cruces is a Democrat and, I think it's fair to say, a progressive.

The lone exceptions at the Thursday lunch were Griggs, a Republican who represents part of Doña Ana County and lives in Alamogordo, and State Rep. Ricky Little, a Republican whose District 53 includes the western part of the county. He lives in Chaparral.

I looked up Little on Ballotpedia. His job is listed as "house mover," which I think is my new favorite occupation for a state representative. It makes me think he should run for speaker or majority whip if the Republicans get control in the House again.

But Little and Griggs, Papen, Small, Rubio, McCamley and Soules, along with fellow Democratic Rep. Doreen Gallegos and Sens. Joseph Cervantes and Jeff Steinborn, all sat together on the dais. And, even though they may approach it differently, all of them are working to make things better in this county, in southern New Mexico and across the state.

The same holds true for the others who represent this county in the Legislature but weren't able to attend the Chamber lunch.

Two things are beyond question at this point in time: 1) These are difficult times for New Mexico and its leaders, as they struggle to balance the budget and fund education and other programs amid a continuing debate about leadership and program cuts vs. tax increases and/or a dip into the state's permanent fund; and 2) We will get through this and things will get better. Thoughtful, passionate, insightful people are watching out for us in Santa Fe.

It's one more thing that makes me certain that Las Cruces and Doña Ana County are the places to be. As Downtown Coordinator Andy Hume recently reminded me, paraphrasing former NFL Coach Marv Levy, "Where else would you rather be than right here, right now?"

't's safe to say that Donald Trump Ldoesn't have many fans in the Hispanic community.

The real estate mogul rose to power spewing rhetoric that was openly hostile to Latinos. He's promised to deport more undocumented immigrants and build a wall along the nation's southern border. And who can forget his smear of Mexican immigrants as "criminals" and "rapists?"

But Hispanics shouldn't take Trump's election as a personal affront, or a signal that they're unwelcome in their own land. In fact, polling data show the United States remains far more united in its commitment to tolerance. diversity, and fair immigration policy than at any time in our history.

Those who value these principles can't afford to be distracted by their private contempt for Trump. Now is the time for sober, loval op-

policy threats posed by an erratic WEST

president. That process starts with the recognition that Trump's divisive tenor, particularly on immigration issues, isn't representative of the nation at large. After all, his share of the popular vote was nearly 3 million short of his opponent Hillary Clinton's. The "rigged system" that Trump spent much of the campaign decrying is what installed him in the White

If anything, Trump's brand of hateful fearmongering has helped unify Americans against his most extreme views. A majority opposes Trump's plan to build a wall on the U.S.-Mexico border.

His commitment to mass deportation is no more popular. According to a new Gallup poll, more Americans are satisfied with current immigration levels than at any time since the organization began monitoring the issue. A separate survey finds support for offering a "path to citizenship" for illegal immigrants has hit a new high of 60 percent.

In other words, Trump was elected despite his attitudes towards Hispanics, not because of them. The economy played a more decisive role in the recent presidential election than immigration. In November's exit polls, more than half of voters ranked the economy as the top national issue.

Trump claimed the votes of 78 percent of Americans who said they'd lost ground financially in recent years. They bought his argument that he could create the kinds of steady, middle-class jobs that have been missing from our economy since at least the Great Recession.

For Americans that feel left behind by current economic trends, including many blacks and Hispanics, Trump represented a break from the status quo. When asked which of Trump's qualities mattered most to his voters, 82 percent pointed to his potential to "bring change."

In return for that change, many of these voters were willing to overlook the president's profound character flaws. Twenty percent of his voters disapproved of his temperament, according to the exit polls. The same share judged him dishonest and untrustworthy.

Latinos should refuse to be distracted by Trump's rhetoric - and should train their critique on his policies and the threat he poses to the values and institutions on which our republic rests. It's essential that the Hispanic community, and all those who support the ideals of pluralism, equality, individual liberty, and the rule of law, commit to forcefully and vigilantly opposing the president whenever his policies violate these principles.

A "loyal opposition" is loyal to these constitutional principles, not to the occupant of the Oval Office. Hispanics must resist the temptation to latch onto every breach of civility and tasteless comment Trump generates, and reserve their energies for the genuine policy battles that lie ahead.

Arrowhead Park student wins prestigious scholarship

By MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

More than 320,000 7th-12th graders from across the country submitted their works in this year's Scholastic Art & Writing Awards, but only 16 received a Gold Medal Portfolio – the program's highest honor. One of those is Arrowhead Park Early College High School (APECHS) senior Hailee Cook.

The contest is "the nation's longest-running and most prestigious recognition and scholarship program for creative teens," according to Scholastic.

Hailee won for a collection of eight poems titled "The Delusions of Roses."

"I've always liked writing," Hailee said. "I've always loved doing any kind of writing project." She's been writing poetry for years, preferring free hand, but often uses a laptop for convenience.

"She has notebooks all over the house," said Hailee's mom, Beth Cook, who works in Las Cruces Public Schools' Technical Support Services Department.

"I tend to write most about people I come across, that I have relationships with, people I used to know, that I've met along the way," Hailee said, noting that she often writes in "bits and pieces," starting a poem and then returning later "to get it into final form."

Hailee, a native of Las Cruces, attended Jornada Elementary School and Vista Middle School prior to Arrowhead Park.

She will earn three associates degrees

(pre-business, general science and general arts) at Doña Ana Community College before she earns her high school diploma at APECHS next month.

Hailee plans to attend New Mexico State University in the fall and study finance. She hopes to graduate with a bachelor's degree in two years.

Beth Cook said her daughter's writing talent "just happens normally. My whole job is, 'What do you need to accomplish what you want in life,''' she said. "You pretty much just leave them alone and let them do their thing."

It could be the family's DNA. Beth's father (Hailee's grandfather) is an artist in silver work, woodworking and photography.

Even though APECHS is focused on academics and lacks a fine arts program, Hailee and Beth say the staff has been "very supportive" of Hailee's academic and creative endeavors.

"This contest had a huge impact on me as a writer," said Amy Lanasa, head of the Creative Media Institute for Film and Digital Arts at NMSU. She won the gold award for humorous writing in 1993, while attending high school in Houston. "My high school English teacher submitted my work for me without my knowledge, so when I won, it was a huge surprise.

Lanasa and other winners attended a recognition ceremony at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., where they met the contest judges, including syndicated columnist Erma Bombeck. Lanasa was also invited to read her work out loud, which "was the first time I'd ever done anything like that."

Hailee also is a Crimson Scholar, and was an Elks Most Valuable Student semi-finalist, which will earn her an additional $1,000 annual scholarship to NMSU.

Hailee is vice chair of the LCPS Student Government Association, and often attends school district board of education meetings.

She and her fellow Gold Medal Portfolio winners "will be recognized onstage at Carnegie Hall during an awards ceremony in New York City this June, and her art will be featured in a special exhibition at The New School's Parsons School of Design and Pratt Institute's Pratt Manhattan Gallery also in New York City, opening June 2," said Scholastic Inc. publicist Stephanie Agresti.

"Last Night My Neck Pain Got So Bad... I Couldn't Even Turn My Head!"

Are You Suffering From Neck Pain And Want To Know How To Find Real And Lasting Relief That Goes Beyond Just Taking Pills?...

- By Physical Therapist Dennis Prickett

Las Cruces (NM) - if you or a loved one suffer from chronic neck pain – so bad you struggle to do simple things like turn your head to look over your shoulder, or sleep at night without pain, then reading this report may be the most important thing you do this year.

It may unlock the agonizing mystery of your neck pain and show you a way to get back to the life you deserve...

• A life where you can sleep at night without tossing and turning, hoping to find one position where your neck pain stops.

• A life where you can read a book before bed... or newspaper on a morning... without the fear of more neck pain.

• A life where you can wake up in the morning and not suffer from headaches or migraines...

• A life where you can plan family time with your kids or grandkids, without worrying over if your neck pain will strike!

...Basically, A Life Without The Curse Of Chronic Or Severe Neck Pain!

Finally, Dennis Prickett, a Physical Therapist from Las Cruces who has already helped 100's of people over the last two decades with his recovery advice – has recently released a new 12 page "Neck Pain Consumer Awareness" report that reveals the best kept secret in New Mexico ... How to actually get to the bottom of Neck Pain (And Migraine Headaches) without talking to your insurance, a chiropractor, or needing a referral from your doctor.

Neck Pain "Truths" Finally Exposed

This report exposes how weekly, (and costly), visits to a chiropractor are NOT always needed, how pain medications and muscle relaxers might be cheaper (for your insurance!), and easy for a doctor to prescribe, but may not necessarily be right for you in the long run... have you seen the list of crippling side effects these days?

This 100% FREE report, entitled: "How To Get To The Root Cause Of Neck Pain (And Migraine Headaches)... Without Relying On Pills To Get Relief" (Value $28!), reveals the leading remedy for neck pain that is often overlooked by 95% of even good family doctors, and also shows how you can get to the bottom of neck pain quickly and naturally, for FREE, without even needing a referral from your doctor!...

More: The report also exposes what most doctors fail to recommend to people aged 40+ when treating neck pain, and reveals for the first time to the residents of Las Cruces, new advancements that will ease neck pain more quickly than ever as well as improve posture, all at the same time. I'd say they're perfect if you're aged 40+ and worried about losing your confident, healthy posture at the hands of chronic neck pain.

Here's What You'll Learn Inside This New Report:

• The 7 urgent coping strategies every neck pain sufferer must never forget when neck pain strikes!

The vital warning signs that it's not just "another headache" or "a bit of neck stiffness"...
The 3 things you can do if you're hoping to avoid neck surgery – worth requesting just for this!

• 1, 2 or 3? Just how many pillows should you sleep with? And what about your mattress... It's covered in here on page 5.

• The most successful treatment for chronic neck, (and even nerve pain), that doesn't involve any drugs, seeing a chiropractor or talking to a doctor.

• The simple exercise you can do in your kitchen, starting tonight, that'll make a significant difference to neck pain before you wake up tomorrow.

• How you can find out what's REALLY causing your neck pain, in under thirty minutes, with no cost incurred.

• And, even what to do right now... if you suffer from any motion limiting neck pain.

If you're currently seeing a doctor, thinking about it, or just don't want to face the hassle of talking to your insurance, but still want to get some real help, then you need this free report which reveals everything you need to know about how to actually get to the bottom of your neck pain without needing a referral from a doctor!

Sam Donaldson to speak at annual media conference

By MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

Tackling the topic of media literacy in a society divided by information that is increasingly fragmented and biased is the theme of the 2017 New Mexico Press Women (NMPW) annual conference and awards banquet in Las Cruces.

Organized by local chapter Las Cruces Press Women (LCPW), it will be held Friday and Saturday, April 21-22, in Las Cruces and Mesilla.

Former ABC News anchor and reporter (and New Mexico mainstay) Sam Donaldson, who covered the White House for 13 years and co-anchored the Sunday morning news program "This Week," will be the keynote during the NMPW Communications Contest awards banquet on Saturday at La Posta de Mesilla honoring 2017 contest winners and naming a recipient for the Doris Gregory Memorial journalism scholarship.

According to LCPW President Cassie McClure, the conference begins Friday evening at NMSU with a panel by Creative Media Institute for Film and Digital Arts Assistant Professor Ilana Lapid.

Las Cruces tourism commissioner touts statewide efforts

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces native Belia Alvarez was appointed to the New Mexico Tourism Commission by Gov. Susana Martinez to fill a vacancy in October 2015. Her re-appointment was recently confirmed by the New Mexico Legislature. Alvarez is the only commissioner on the sevenmember board from southern New Mexico.

Alvarez, regional general manager of Hotel Encanto and Hilton, has worked in the hospitality industry for more than 20 years. "I have served in several sales and operational management positions and have been a general manager for over 10 years," she said.

Alvarez is also a member of the New Mexico Hospitality Association board of directors. The association works "to strengthen the hospitality industry within the state, creating one voice to improve the industry," she said. "We work on legislative issues and policies, training and marketing efforts to grow the industry and support the individual hospitality businesses that make us great."

Here are Alvarez's answers to questions about New Mexico tourism.

How important is tourism to the state's economy?

Tourism is extremely important to the state's economy. Direct visitor spending continues to increase and was over $6.3 billion in 2015, which was up $200 million over 2014. This spending resulted in nearly $630 million in local and state taxes. 1 in 12 jobs in New Mexico is supported by this spending. Additionally, tourism has generated 15 percent of all new jobs in New Mexico over the last five years.

What do you see as your most important role as a tourism commissioner?

I believe my most important role as a tourism commissioner is to work on maintaining and hopefully growing the investment that the state makes in tourism marketing. We are experiencing a seven to one return on investment on every dollar spent on tourism marketing and advertising. Our New Mexico True campaign is working and must be continued for us to grow tourism.

What role does the Tourism Commission play in creating tourism opportunities for the state and for southern New Mexico?

The Tourism Commission advises the (New Mexico) Tourism Department leadership on policies and programs and makes recommendations. We also review and make changes to the state's five -year tourism plan on an annual basis.

What are your thoughts about tourism in southern New Mexico and especially Las Cruces?

I believe that tourism is improving in Las Cruces and in southern New Mexico. We have a creative and talented team at Visit Las Cruces. Their previous leader, Phil San Filippo, now the Las Cruces Economic Development Department director, instilled a real passion for tourism and also now serves as the president of the New Mexico Hospitality Association board of directors. They have developed a successful Las Cruces Country Music Festival, which is a growing and popular event that is attracting many out of town visitors.

Additionally, the southern road to Spaceport America is critical to increased tourism to our city and to the region. This much-needed road will encourage tourism to Las Cruces and will increase other economic development for our county as well as the state. It is exciting that construction will start later this summer.

Las Cruces is likely to have a sound stage in the next few months. How important do you think that the Film Las Cruces nonprofit and the city having a full-time film liaison and deputy film liaison will be to tourism in this area?

I believe that these liaisons can impact tourism in a positive manner. A successful film industry in Las Cruces adds to the depth of this community in terms of increased attractors. If these two professionals are successful in securing local productions, it will help expose many others to our beautiful city and region as well providing economic development through jobs and tax revenue.

What is your opinion of the perception that southern New Mexico is often excluded from the state's tourism effort, which some people feel is focused on Albuquerque, Santa Fe and Taos?

I do not believe that there is a detrimental divide in our state in regards to tourism. New Mexico is a large state. There are more communities, more residents and more tourism attractions in the upper central and northern part of the state. That is simply a fact. That does not detract from the southern part of our state and its offerings. The key to our success is to get people to explore all parts of our state. This success begins with New Mexico residents who need to get out and travel around our state and experience other areas. Tourism Department leaders have visited the southern part of our state countless times always seeking information and guidance on how to grow tourism to this part of the state.

Governor Martinez has also visited Las Cruces and other southern cities and towns in support of this important industry. We have to continue to voice our opinions and share our stories and be open and welcoming to visitors.

Members of the Honor Flight of Southern New Mexico Board of Directors attended the 7th Annual Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day at Veterans Memorial Park in Las Cruces. The Vietnam War Memorial is now complete and the funds remaining in the building fund were donated to Honor Flight of Southern New Mexico. Vietnam War Memorial Committee members presented a ceremonial check to members of the HFSNM board at the Welcome Home event March 25. These funds will be used by HFSNM to honor veterans by taking them back to Washington, D.C., to visit their memorials. The group will celebrate 10 years of fulfilling their mission to veterans with the trip later this year.

Checkmate: Cruces youngsters win big at chess tournament

FOR THE BULLETIN

Las Cruces Chess Academy students won 10 individual and team trophies against players from around the state at the New Mexico K-6 Scholastic State Chess Tournament in Albuquerque, March 26.

Manuel Castillo Jr., a 1st grader at Monte Vista Elementary, won his section, K-3 U600, and Nevan Kavanaugh, a 4th grader at Monte Vista, placed first in the K-5 U600. The Monte Vista Chess Team consisting of Castillo Jr., 2nd grader Angelita Ontiveros and 1st grader Jaxon Kavanaugh won the K-3 U600 section.

Carson Kaczmarek, who attends Acton Academy, won the NM K-3 Chess Championship.

Carson began studying the game at Las Cruces Chess Academy with coach Manny Castillo in 2014, working on strategy, endurance and chess etiquette, says his mother, Brenda Kaczmarek.

"(Castillo) is a wonderful person who loves the game and wants to share his experiences with other Las Cruces families," she said. "My son absolutely loves playing chess with Coach Manny."

Carson won his title after five tough rounds at the tournament.

"It was an amazing moment because all their hard work paid off," Brenda said.

Said Castillo, "(When) Carson decided to compete for the title nobody was going to change his mind. He went in with great confidence. It did not come easily, he worked very hard on tactics, opening theory, and hundreds of endgame training problems.

"If Carson continues on this path, he will undoubtedly win many state and national titles. Carson is definitely a force to be reckoned with. If he sets his mind to something, he will succeed."

State budget remains in crisis, legislators say

By MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

The short-term outlook for the state budget is grim, 10 members of the Doña Ana County legislative delegation said at a March 30 forum sponsored by the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce.

'We're not cohesive behind a common leader," state Sen. Joseph Cervantes, D-Doña Ana said. "Everybody's in the end zone saying, 'Throw me the ball.' We need to do a lot more of the teambuilding process."

New Mexico has "the worst unemployment rate in the nation," Cervantes said, and its bond rating has been downgraded. The state has about $1 money moving," he said. "I think we did accom-

Ana, said, referencing bills passed and sent to Martinez to address schools, renewable energy, prescription-drug purchases and the state tax code. "The ball is in the governor's court," he said.

"The governor needs to make her decisions," said state Sen. Ron Griggs, R-

Reps. Bill McCamley (D-33-Doña Ana), Doreen Gallegos (D-52-Doña Ana), Nathan Small (D-36-Doña Ana), Rick Little (D-35-Doña Ana, Otero) and Angelica Rubio (D-35-Doña Ana) visited with Chamber members and constituents during the 2017 Legislative Session Wrap Up luncheon at New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum, hosted by the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce. Chamber CEO & President Debbi Moore, at the podium, facilitated the conversation.

Otero, Doña Ana. "We did have some good bills. I believe she will sign them." They include SB 343. which Griggs said would end hold-harmless gross receipts tax payments to local governments to balance the state budget and would create a 3.75 percent food tax.

"We worked hard," Griggs said. "Everybody up there worked hard. They're all dedicated people."

State Senate Education Committee Chair Bill Soules, D-Doña Ana, said his committee "spent a lot of time making sure that things weren't getting worse for education," during the session. The state constitution mandates sufficient funding for education, he said, and New Mexico is underfunding it by $360 million, he said.

"Public schools will again be on the block" at the special session. A 3.5 percent cut for teachers is likely to be on the agenda, Soules said.

State Sen, President Pro-Tem Mary Kay Papen, D-Doña Ana, said higher education also "will probably take another cut."

Papen said the Legislature passed three important bills to expand broadband in rural areas of the state, and also dealt with ethics reform.

"We have worked in a verv bi-partisan way. I think that's very healthy for the state," she said. "It was a very difficult session. We passed a lot of good bills that are sitting on the governor's desk."

"I certainly learned a lot," freshman state Rep. Angelica Rubio, D-Doña Ana, said. "We need all the ideas at the table," to "focus on the things we do agree on."

"I think we needed a lot more direction," state Rep. Ricky Little, R-Doña Ana, Otero, said. "I think there were opportunities lost."

"There's a lot of working together going on up there." Little said. More has to be done to "downsize state government."

Little said education has to be considered as a whole, and "we've got to fix it." Legislators did "finally came together on workers compensation" legislation, he said.

"There was a great deal of work to get New Mexico back to work." freshman state Rep. Nathan Small, D-Doña Ana, said.

The legislative ethics reform bill that was finally passed by both houses "is critical for the state." he said.

Small said he worked against efforts to reinstate the food tax. which he said would hurt the state's poorest residents.

"We are in a very, very tough situation," Small said. "I think we're beginning to dig out of that." But, he said, there are "deep cuts to come."

Some improvement in state revenues means the state is "not in as bad shape as we thought." state Rep. Doreen Gallegos, D-Doña Ana, said. She said it will be necessarv to consider a tax package in the upcoming special session, and said she hoped layoffs and furloughs could be avoided.

Serving as Democratic whip in the House for the first time meant "a lot of balls to keep in the air," Gallegos said.

State Rep. Bill McCamley, D-Doña Ana said it is the job of the House Labor and Economic Development Committee which he chairs "to set up an environment that allows you to grow."

The session, he said, had "some real wins," including expanding broadband access, expanding Santa Teresa port of entry hours, creating a high school computer science credit and workforce training.

Failing to pass the cannabis bill he sponsored will cost the state $60 to $70 million in revenue and 11.000 jobs, he said. The state also needs to address infrastructure issues like roads, buildings and water and sewer systems.

In the midst of a financial crisis he called "huge," McCamley said the state is "treading water and keeping the lights on." It needs to dip into its $20 billion investment funds to balance the budget instead of continuing to treat the funds as "a religious relic."

Spaceway Village welcomes visitors

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH Las Cruces Bulletin

Spaceport America is welcoming visitors to the facility during an open house Sunday, April 9. The event, which began as simply the finish of the 180mile Spaceport America Relay Race, has expanded into a celebration opportunity.

"Here is a day you can spend at Spaceport America and see the finish line," said Spaceport America CEO Dan Hicks.

The race and Spaceway Village open house are among signature events the spaceport plans to feature this year. Hicks said this one is focused on the history of the region.

The relay will celebrate the Camino Real and the ancient cultures but also development of southern New Mexico as a future of space exploration.

"We are working to educate the public that we are getting ready to go into space," Hicks said. "The commercialization of space is getting ready to grow and expand. There are lot subtle perspectives and this venue gives us the opportunity to share them. This event honors the historical significance of man's spirit. The runners carry banner into the future."

Marc Heon, Co-founder MH Enterprises LLC, is one of the race organizers.

"Our company focuses on unique finish lines," Heon said. "The finish line at Spaceport America is completely unique, an actual 12,000-foot spaceway."

Heon said he would like to see a crowd at the finish line greeting the runners. "It inspires the runners when they are running their last miles," he said. "It makes a difference to have people cheering you on like that."

So far, the event has about 260 runners committed to participating in legs of the race. One runner will be doing the whole length on his own.

Sanctioned by USA Track and Field (USATF), the race begins at the El Paso County Coliseum on a staggered schedule with teams of 12 or six runners running three of the 36 race legs ranging from two miles to 13.2 miles.

Most of the runners are expected to cross the finish line between noon and 3 p.m. Sunday. Spaceway Village will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Hicks said there will be a family fun run every hour at Spaceway Village for children. A beer garden will be available after noon with a signature drink created for the event. Vendors will provide healthy food and drink, and there will be yoga, panel discussions, massage, vendor booths, music and family games, Costumed Star Wars characters with Legion 501 will be onsite for photo opportunities.

New Mexico State University graduate students will have their telescopes set up by dark for a mini star party for visitors.

Admission is $10 adults and $5 children under 12. Tickets can be purchased at the entrance. For more information visit spaceportamericarelayrace. com.

Vista Middle School earns national recognition

By MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

Thanks to a schoolwide effort to provide inclusive sports and activities for students with and without disabilities, Vista Middle School was recently named a Banner Unified Champion School by Special Olympics New Mexico (SONM). The recognition makes Vista Middle School the only middle school in the country to earn the distinction and one of only two Unified Champion Schools in New Mexico. according to officials from SONM.

"This recognition shows just how committed we are to providing an inclusive environment at our schools," said LCPS Superintendent Dr. Greg Ewing. "T'd like to thank all the staff members, students and community members who helped to make this program a reality here in Las Cruces."

In order to be named a Unified Champion School, the school had to maintain an inclusive school climate that exudes a sense of collaboration, engagement and respect for all members of the student body and staff. In addition, the school also had to demonstrate commitment to inclusion by meeting 10 national standards of excellence which were developed by a national panel of leaders from Special Olympics and the education community.

"We are very proud to be recognized as the first middle school in the nation to be named a Special Olympics Banner Unified Champion school," said Vista Middle School Principal Mike Brewer. "Here at Vista we have a well-established culture of inclusive practices that started with the previous principal, Wendi Hammond."

To meet the standards of excellence, the school had to have at least one unified sports team that participates in at least two sports seasons, demonstrate inclusive youth leadership, demonstrate whole school engagement and commit to continuing all three practices into the future.

"Michael Montoya, one of our low-incidence teachers, worked very hard to get everything done, and he was a major part of why we were recognized," Brewer said. "I'd also like to acknowledge Kari Reyes, Amanda Tuthill and Marilyn Sullivan, for all their help."

As part of the recognition, school officials were awarded a large vinyl banner that reads "Special Olympics Unified Champion School" and a sticker to commemorate the school's first recognition year. If the school continues to meet the standards, school officials will be awarded additional stickers, which can be added to the banner, for each subsequent year the school is recognized as a Unified Champion School.

Vista Middle School has inclusive sports programs for football, basketball and track, which pair lowincidence students with general education students for upcoming competitions with other inclusive sports programs at Sierra Middle School. Mesa Middle School and Zia Middle School. The school recently participated in a three-day Unified Schools basketball tournament with Sierra Middle School and Zia Middle School.

Almost 30 schools are currently participating in Special Olympics Unified Champion Schools programming in New Mexico, as part of more than 5,000 schools across the country engaged in the program. year-round sports training and athletic competition in a variety of Olympic-type sports for children and adults with intellectual disabilities, giving them continuing opportunities to develop physical fitness, demonstrate courage, experience joy and participate in a sharing of gifts, skills and friendship with their families, other Special Olympics athletes and the community.

Today, Special Olympics New Mexico serves over 3,300 athletes, offering training and competition in 12 sports. Across the world, more than 3.5 million children and adults with intellectual disabilities participate in more than 200 programs in 180 countries. SONM is sponsored year-round and state-wide by New Mexico Knights of Columbus, New Mexico Law Enforcement Torch Run. French Funerals & Cremations, Wells Fargo, Mark's Casa Auto Group, Blue Cross Blue Shield of NM, 7-Eleven, Blake's Lotaburger, Cumulus and New Mexico Chevy Dealers.

Did you know that gas, water, and utility lines have a huge network that is hidden safely away underground? Digging or excavation of any kind could interrupt those services if you don't call 8-1-1 first. Worse yet damage to utility lines can pose a danger to you, your family, and the community. BE SAFE, make a free call, dial 8-1-1 from any phone, anytime BEFORE starting any digging projects. We will come out to mark the utility lines in your area. It's fast, it's free, it's 8-1-1. # 'Special' school blazes trail to college success

Bv MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

Arrowhead Park Early College High School students are called Trailblazers for good reason.

APECHS was the state's first early college high school when it opened in July 2013. Others have followed in its footsteps around the state, with school districts and the New Mexico Public Education Department using the Las Cruces Public Schools' model as a benchmark for success.

APECHS has 322 graduates to date, and boasts a 97 percent graduation rate – 26 points higher than the statewide average and 14 points higher than the national average.

Its grads have more than 21,000 hours of college coursework completed and more than 300 associate's degrees and career certifications from Doña Ana Community College, according to statistics compiled by the Bridge of Southern New Mexico.

"It's the greatest success story in education in our state," said Bridge President and CEO Tracy Bryan. "This community decided that was the right thing to do (and) changed the definition of success."

And, because APECHS' graduation rate is nearly 100 percent, there are no gaps among students who are the first in their families to attend college, lowdren of color, she said. Located on the New Mexico State University campus, "APECHS was Doña Ana Community College." But there were some issues to be resolved in the program's beginning, Carruthers acknowledged.

"The only difficulty I am aware of is we were not careful enough with the first (APECHS) students in directing them in dual credit courses, which resulted in students thinking they were well on their way to a bachelor's degree but the hours they had earned did not align with any major at NMSU."

And because APECHS is a public high school, its students have earned more than $4 million in "cost-free and debt-free college coursework," said Principal Jennifer Amis. That's a savings of nearly $1 million in unnecessary college remediation, she said.

"The increase in average earnings for students who earn an associate's degree vs. just a high school diploma is $12,402," said the Bridge's Bryan. The Bridge is a "businessled, education-focused collaborative" created in 2007 to reduce the dropout rate in Doña Ana County's three school districts, she said. "So collectively, those students are adding almost $4 million in earnings to the economy," she said.

And that figure is probably even higher because about 75 percent of APECHS's graduates are pursuing four-year degrees at NMSU, Amis said. "These are kids that are staying in our community."

In 2014, LCPS added Arrowhead Park Medical Academy (APMA) early college high school right next door to APECHS and just across the street from Burrell College of Osteopathic Medicine. Carruthers called APMA "another home run."

high schools have an enrollment of about 618 students.

A first for many families

More than half of APECHS's students are the first members of their families to go to college, Amis said. 2015 APECHS graduate Patricia Martinez is one example.

While in high school, she completed an Associate of Science degree and was recently accepted into the NMSU Bachelor of Science in nursing (BSN) program. Amis said Martinez intends to remain in Las Cruces once she gets a nursing degree "and join our local healthcare community."

Dominque Meza gained certifications as a nursing assistant and in EKG and phlebotomy in the DACC patient care technicians program and an associate of science degree along with her 2015 APECHS diploma, Amis said. She is now a junior in the BSN program and "credits her successful transition to NMSU to the college experience she gained with at Arrowhead, always feeling challenged and supported."

"As a parent, I feel honored and privileged that both my kids (Domingue's brother, Roman. followed her to APECHS) had the advantage of attending Arrowhead Park," Dominque's mother, Monica Meza said. "I give Arrowhead all the credit for the academic excellence and their future career

The Blue Ribbon program was created

Arrowhead Park Early College High School (APECHS) has been nominated to join the ranks National Blue Ribbon Schools.

The announcement came in a letter to APECHS Principal Jennifer Amis in February from National Blue Ribbon Schools Program Director Aba Kumi.

National Blue Ribbon Schools "are public and non-public elementary, middle, and high schools that are producing outstanding results for all students," Kumi said in the letter to Amis. "They have demonstrated consistent excellence, and success. It has totally prepared them for the college setting. If my husband and I had the opportunity to attend a school like Arrowhead, we would have done better our first year of college."

In some cases, three or four members of the same family have graduated from and/or are attending APECHS, Amis said. "We love having siblings and becoming a family school," she said. "It adds a wonderful element of support to our Trailblazer community."

"I had the privilege of coming to APECHS first as an English teacher," said Josh Silver, a former LCPS teacher of the year who has transitioned to dean of students at APECHS/ APMA, where he has "focused on working with the students and their families in fulfilling the mission of the school. It's exciting to continue to be a part of such a bold education initiative, with the potential to shape our community."

"Prior to taking a position at APECHS/ APMA, I worked for the Howard Hughes Medical Institute through NMSU designing and facilitating science curriculum in high school classrooms statewide," said science teacher Christin Slaughter. "Here, I get to make direct connections with students and be part of the beginning of their journey with science and medicine. In my classroom I share my research experiences, as well as use my research experience and background to create authentic science experiences for the students."

Engineering and chemistry teacher Travis Woodard brings a background in environmental science to his classroom. He has a BS in mechanical engineering from NSMU and tutored students at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio and taught English in El Salvador. He also has done algae research for Sapphire Energy, Inc. and was a team lead for soil sampling with Shaw Environmental, Inc. Woodard taught at Chaparral High School in the Gadsden Independent School District for three years before coming to APECHS/APMC partment of Education," Kumi said.

In addition to a worldclass teaching staff and strong parent participation, Amis credited LCPS' partnership with NMSU and DACC for making APECHS succeed. Without that partnership, she said, "this model could never thrive. The partnership has been incredible."

County leads the way

The ECHS model created in Las Cruces means that Doña Ana County is leading the state in propelling students "to the high school finish line," Bryan said. "If you start high school career-focused and exposed to college-level courses, if you know your freshman year that's what it's going to look like, you get there."

Dual-credit courses are a major reason LCPS has reached an 80 percent graduation rate district-wide – its highest ever – Bryan said. But, the state has to find a way to adequately compensate NMSU and DACC for dual-credit. New Mexico should "do the responsible thing and fairly fund it so it's said. "It's about being responsive. It's time to figure this out." DACC along with LCPS has been a leader in the state in dualcredit innovation," Amis said. "Many communities have followed suit, implementing the model developed in our community. Currently mandated budget cuts are creating a different environment, eliminating the potential growth of the proven successful early-college model and moving the focus from innovative solutions to grow an educated workforce in our community to program cuts." Those cuts are "forcing the schools, secondary and postsecondary alike, to scale back on everything," she said.

"We have to have a culture of completion here," Bryan said. "Let's tell a better, richer, fuller, more complete story" about the success of the early college high school model, she said, and get the state to "apply the lessons learned" to improve the system and "bring it to scale" across New Mexico.

Mayor, city manager: City's finances are 'very strong'

By MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

Even though the State of New Mexico is in a "dire budget crisis," the financial state of the City of Las Cruces "is very strong," Mayor Ken Miyagishima said during a brief news conference on Monday, April 3.

The citv's annual budget is about $375 million, the mayor said, including nearly $100 million in cash reserves. Despite the state's budget woes, he said, the city is not an- and Ed said the city ticipating any furloughs or lavoffs of city employees

"Although the state has challenges, we remain very financially stable, very fiscally sound," said City Manager Stuart Ed, who joined the mayor at the news conference.

Miyagishima attributed the city's strong fiscal position to "restraint. We don't over budget," he said. "We don't overspend."

will continue to vigorously search for additional grants and other funding opportunities for its programs.

""We're going to be going after everything we have a chance for," Ed said, noting that the city has recently hired Insight Consulting based in Overland Park, Kansas, to identify additional grant funding opportunities for the city.

As one example, Parks and Recreation Department Director Sonya Delgado said the city has applied for a $20,000 parks grant from the National Recreation and Park Association (NRPA) that would pay for fountains and benches at some of the more than 100 parks that cover about 1,600 acres.

Miyagishima said getting the grant funds will depend in part on local participation in an online contest. He asked residents to vote for Las Cruces' grant application online every day between now and April 30 at www.meetmeatthepark.org.

"The city with most nominations will win," according to the website.

You can include names and email addresses of others on the website, and NRPA will email them a link to vote in the contest.

Council: Time to dip into state reserves

policy regarding official travel.

revised city

"Public education has been a cornerstone for the success of so many Americans, and we in Las Cruces are very concerned about the negative impact that further restrictions on funding for public schools will have here," states the draft letter from Mayor Ken Miyagishima to Gov. Susana Martinez that is part of the resolution.

"By resolution, the City Council of Las Cruces has voted to request that you carefully consider how to maintain funding for public schools at the highest level possible despite current budget issues," the draft continues.

"I felt this was pretty important to put on the agenda," Miyagishima said. Public education funding should not "depend on the price of oil," the mayor said, contending that the state should dip into its permanent fund. "I don't know what they're waiting for."

The official letter from Miyagishima to Martinez will be sent by email and by fax, Mayor Pro-Tem

Greg Smith said, noting the governor has until April 7 to sign or veto bills passed by the Legislature.

"Looking downstream a generation from now and realizing that today's students didn't get a proper education because of the price of oil and gas doesn't make any economic sense," Councilor Jack Eakman said.

The council's other vote streamlines policies governing travel by and reimbursement for elected officials, board members and city staff.

Each of two previous travel policies contained about 12 pages, Assistant City Manager David Dollahon said. The new policy contains nine pages. Its revisions include a clearer definition of how travel on city business should be conducted.

"We applied what we consider logic to the travel policy," Dollahon said.

Policy revisions were based on recommendations by a nine-member committee representing city departments, including police and fire.

Studer, who began work for the city on April 3, replaces former Assistant City Manager Daniel Avila, who resigned in December.

City Manager Stuart Ed said Loretta Reves "did a fantastic job" as interim assistant city manager. Reyes is now director of the newly expanded city Public Works Department.

Bataan Surrender Ceremony honors 75th anniversary

BULLETIN REPORT

Descendants and friends of the ex-POWs of Bataan and Corregidor, area military personnel, and the community in general will conduct a ceremony in honor of the 75th anniversary of the surrender of Bataan during World War II.

The event, 4 p.m. Sunday, April 9, at Las Cruces Veterans Memorial Park, 1151 North Roadrunner Parkway, will memorialize the 1,800 members of the New Mexico 200th Coast Artillery, a National Guard regiment that was surrendered in the Philippines along with 70,000 other American and Filipino troops on April 9, 1942.

About half of these New Mexicans would not survive the three years as prisoners of war. The ceremony will be the same one conducted every April 9 on the state capitol grounds in Santa Fe by the New Mexico National Guard. This is the first time it will be done in Las Cruces.

Members of the New Mexico State University Army ROTC Bataan Battalion, the New Mexico National Guard, VFW Post 3242, and the U.S. Marine Corps League will participate.

Retired U.S. Army Brig. Gen. and N.M. Secretary of Veterans Services Jack R. Fox will serve as guest speaker.

"It is important to remember the sacrifices made by our American POWs to ensure the freedoms of all Americans, and to honor the role of New Mexico in the Bataan story," said Remember Bataan Foundation president Dana Knight. "We are asking the public to please join with is in remembering the Heroes of Bataan."

The origins of the Bataan surrender ceremony began informally in April 1946, when Bataan veteran and Santa Fe native Manuel Armijo, who had experienced some of the worst atrocities of any ex-POW, asked a friend to hem a white flag, which he strung on a bamboo pole.

Without a word to anyone, Armijo went to the state capitol grounds in the cool morning of April 9, a day the New Mexico Legislature had earlier designated as Bataan Day.

Armijo lowered the U.S. flag in front of the capitol and replaced it with his white flag, and then stepped back for a few moments of contemplation before switching the flags back, folding up the white flag, and quietly going home.

In 1954, a Santa Fe New Mexican reporter came upon Armijo and some of his fellow vets doing his ceremony at the Bataan memorial in its new location in front of what is now the Bataan Administrative Building.

The story ignited public interest in Bataan and the ceremony grew, ultimately becoming an officially sanctioned, annual event.

Armijo expanded the simple ceremony in 1975 to include spoken text, music and the lighting of three candles. He took part in his ceremony every year until his death in June 2004.

The New Mexico National Guard has committed to conduct the solemn ceremony exactly as Armijo and his fellow Bataan vets had designed it. The ceremony in Las Cruces will take place near the Las Cruces Bataan Memorial, the first memorial to Bataan funded largely with federal dollars. The event is free and all are invited.

Fewer than a dozen of New Mexico's Bataan veterans are alive today, including Julio Barela, the last Bataan veteran from Las Cruces, now 100, living in the N.M. Veterans' Home in Truth or Consequences.

This year's festival also features live music from local klezmer artist Margot Leverett, accompanied by Santa Fe musician Jordan Wax. Leverett, who recently received a standing ovation for her klezmer performance with the Mesilla Valley Concert Band, has played and taught klezmer all over the world. She was a founding member of the Klezmatics and went on to lead her own band, "Margot Leverett and the Klezmer Mountain Boys."

Wax was a bandleader and accordionist for a Jewish dance band for years in Missouri. He went to Mexico for a six-month immersion in huapango fiddling from the Huasteca region. He performs with Lone Piñon, a Santa Fe-based band that features roots music of New Mexico.

Festival attendees can also stay busy in the Family Fun Area, where kids can spin a giant bagel for prizes, watch or join in folk dancing with the Mesilla Valley International Folk Dancers, as well as listen to performances from Kolot Bamidbar (Voices of the Desert, the Temple Beth-El choir), and Kolot Noar (Voices of the Youth, the Temple Children's Chorus). There will also be a silent auction.

BUSINESS

After 40 years, Antix owner looks ahead

By ALTA LeCOMPTE Las Cruces Bulletin

The love of a woman brought Tony Harris to the City of the Crosses from his native England in 1977.

The marriage didn't last. His relationship with his other love — Las Cruces — endures.

Soon after arriving, Harris opened a cabinet-making business — Antix Inc.

It, too, endures. Harris and his staff celebrate the 40th anniversary of Antix at 5 p.m. Friday, April 14, with a Las Cruces Green Chamber of Commerce ribbon cutting. "It's hard to believe it's been 40 years," Harris said recently. "How ever did I make it through?" Then he answered his question: "Tenacity — the belief this is going to work."

Success is also due to high standards in workmanship and high expectations for employees — "treating them as people, not some kind of a faceless cog," Harris said.

Turnover is low — two Antix employees have been with the business 30 years.

In his hiring practices, Harris looks for a sense of pride. "One thing you can't change is someone's philosophy," he said. "Attitude is the No. 1 thing. If you've got the attitude, I can teach you."

Antix adheres to American Woodwork Institute standards and is the only business in southern New Mexico that participates in AWI's Quality Certification Program, he said.

Growing and moving

Antix started in a warehouse-style building adjacent to the railroad tracks in Mesilla Park, with the intention of making fine furniture. It was a natural, Harris figured; after all, he had earned a mechanical engineering degree, studied woodworking and taught industrial arts in England.

He soon learned the demand for custom furniture would not sustain a business.

"Nobody was interested in Danish modern," he said with a smile. "I immediately went looking into custom kitchen cabinets."

The cabinet business caught on, and in 1982 Antix moved into a 1916 adobe at 717 W. Organ Ave.

"We think it was the first Chevy dealership in Las Cruces," Harris said. "We know it had an oil pit."

Later, the building served as a warehouse for Morrison Supply Co.

"Growing up in Europe, the way we maintain old buildings is not to tear them down but to repurpose them," he said. "I like the area, too, right next to a church."

In order to function as a business, Harris expanded the building's first floor and created a shop with an efficient work flow. He added a second floor for storage.

Regrouping

Five years after relocating to West Organ Street, Harris shifted direction to commercial case work, which is about two-thirds of Antix's business.

"That's what made the difference," he said.

The company weathered the 2008 recession because it was not exclusively oriented toward the residential market. The downturn even created an opportunity to "take a long, hard look at things," Harris said. Antix trimmed the staff of 15 or 16 to 11, maintaining the same output.

The administrative and sales team consists of Harris, cabinet building supervisor Marco Olivas and office manager Joyce Delaney. The trio handles bidding, pricing and scheduling.

"Joyce pays close attention to everything that goes on and keeps track of every penny," Harris said.

Other team members fabricate wood and sheet goods, prepare solid surface countertops for installation, and install the products crafted at Antix.

The Antix team is selective about the projects on which they bid, preferring to work with in-state companies they know.

"Local architects are good to work with because they know us and how we interpret any information that may be missing," Harris said.

Some of the projects Harris is proudest of were the remodeling of White Sands Federal Credit Union branches on U.S. 70 and Lohman Avenue, and the Bank of the Rio Grande on Northrise Drive.

"It took a long time for us to find our niche," he said. "I'm not a business major. I made a lot of mistakes.

"I had a good CPA, Lisa Willman, who was not afraid to say, 'You need to pay more attention' to this or that."

Harris enjoys giving technical input and problem solving, as well as maintaining and repairing Antix's "very complex machines that require a lot of attention."

Now Harris ponders the next step. "In the next five years, I've got to find an exit strategy. It's coming around full circle. I'm thinking about doing heirloom quality pieces for my kids and grandkids."

onald Trump's most consistent campaign message was to bring back industrial jobs to make America great again. Such a policy, aimed at promoting a certain sector of the economy, is referred to as an industrial policy.

Industrial policy is controversial.

When government throws its weight behind a sector, just by dint of funds, the industry often will expand — but at what cost? If the government picks the right industry, cooperation between the private sector and dates back at least to Alexander Hamilton, who proposed high tariffs to protect U.S. manufacturing from foreign competition. Later, Henry Clay proposed the American System, which involved high tariffs and internal improvements, such as roads and canals, coupled with support for the Second Bank of the United States.

Opponents of Clay's American System objected to it both on its merits, believing its costs were not justified by the benefits, and also on constitutional grounds. Nowhere, opponents argued, does the Constitution authorize the federal government to build internal improvements. Despite this criticism, the American System more or less was the economic policy of the United States from the end of the Civil War through World War II.

In the post-World War II, U.S. industrial policy has focused on the defense industry, what Eisenhower referred to as the Military-Industrial Complex. And national support of defense has been a success. Trillions of dollars spent has produced a technological marvel that is the defense industry. The spillover to other industries has been large. The health industry has also been the recipient of U.S. industrial policy, although this support has been rather feckless. Nevertheless, the American health system is an impressive beast, as anvone who has come in contact with a university hospital, as I recently did, can attest.

U.S. energy policy has been a bone of contention. Democrats, at least since Jimmy Carter, generally have favored alternative energy sources, especially wind and solar, and have supported these using tax credits and subsidizing research. At the same time, Democrats have sought to regulate traditional energy sources in an effort to reduce global warming. Meanwhile, "drill-babydrill" Republicans support traditional fossil fuels, like coal and oil.

Former President Obama cancelled the Keystone Pipeline and enacted new regulation of coal. President Trump has reversed these policies, giving the go-ahead to Keystone and signing an executive order to reverse regulation of coal.

How Trump is going to bring back well-paying manufacturing jobs is unclear. Many of his proposals seem like a modern version of Clay's American System - border adjustment taxes and internal improvements. If Trump is willing to throw enough money at manufacturing no doubt he can create jobs, but at what cost to the efficiency of the economy?

Christopher A. Erickson, Ph.D., is a professor of economics at New Mexico State University. He is a skeptic when it comes to government choosing winners and losers in the private sector. The opinions expressed may not be shared by the regents and administration of NMSU. Erickson can be reached at chrerick@nmsu.edu.
BUSINESS BRIEFS

Jobless rate rises

New Mexico's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 6.8 percent in February 2017, up from 6.7 percent in January and 6.6 percent a year ago.

New Mexico had the highest jobless rate in the U.S.

The national unemployment rate was 4.7 percent, down from 4.8 percent in January 2017 and 4.9 percent in February 2016.

New Hampshire had the lowest unemployment rate in February, 2.7 percent, followed by Hawaii and South Dakota, 2.8 percent each, and Colorado and North Dakota, 2.9 percent each, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

EBID sets water allotment

In the upcoming irrigation season, the water allotment for Elephant Butte Irrigation District members will be 8 inches per acre foot, as determined by the EBID's board of directors March 24.

"This is the best water outlook, at least in terms of snowpack, that we've had in many years. I still don't get too giddy about it, and we don't let the allotment get ahead of what is actually in the reservoir," Phil King, EBID hydrology consultant, told the board.

"We have had decent snowpack before and been very disappointed by what arrives in storage," he said. "It will be a better water supply year than we have had recently, but recent years were pretty bad, so any improvement is better than the status quo."

Releases began March 31 from Caballo Reservoir.

EBID will begin diversions at Percha Dam April 17 and at Leasburg and Mesilla dams in mid-May.

Udall supports business of art

U.S. Sen. Tom Udall and U.S. Rep. Debbie Dingell of Michigan have introduced a bill to stimulate the development of arts businesses, jobs and the creative economy in New Mexico, Michigan and across the nation.

Udall and Dingell's bill — the Comprehensive Resources for Entrepreneurs in the Arts to Transform the Economy (CREATE) Act — would support artists, entrepreneurs and workers employed in tourism and cultural development in growing their businesses, accessing federal resources and funding, and expanding their networks with local communities.

"With more artists per capita than any other state, New Mexico is home to one of the most vibrant artistic communities in the nation, and our artists play a vital role in shaping our culture, attracting tourists and creating jobs, Udall said. "One in 10 jobs in New Mexico is related to arts and culture."

NMSU hosts educators' job fair

50 districts from 12 states will be represented

By KRISTIE GARCIA

For the Bulletin

New Mexico State University Career Services will hold its 43rd annual Educators' Job Fair from 1 to 7 p.m. Monday, April 24, at the Corbett Center Student Union on the third floor.

The event will provide the following candidates with an opportunity to visit with multiple school districts located throughout the United States: student teachers, experienced educators, experienced administrators, principals, nurses, school counselors and social workers

A new feature this year is that noneducation majors interested in licensure programs are invited to attend. Another change is that the job fair will not end until 7 p.m. to accommodate individuals who may work or have classes during the day. Elizabeth Ortega, with NMSU Career Services and coordinator of the event, said the job fair has been one of the most effective recruiting forums in the Southwest.

"This year's event format will allow for candidates to meet with district representatives in person," Ortega said. "Also, interviews may be conducted at the discretion of the district representatives."

Some 50 school districts from 12 states will be represented, and there is potential for additional districts to participate.

Ortega suggests that attendees research and prepare as much as possible prior to the job fair.

Participants are encouraged to preregister online by April 11. To register, visit http://careerservices.nmsu. edu/career-fairs/educators-job-fair. For more information, call 575-646-1631 or email proemp@nmsu.edu.

Acton Academy plans its first-ever Children's Business Fair on April 22

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Acton Academy's first-ever Children's Business Fair will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, April 22, on the downtown plaza.

It will feature booths that children built to showcase their own businesses and sell items they make and market, said Acton Academy Administrator Anna Biad. "The booths are for children, she said. "Adults and parents are encouraged to politely butt out and let your child do it."

The Las Cruces fair coincides with other children's fairs throughout North America and also with the Las Cruces Farmers and Crafts Market and national Arbor Day.

The fair is open to children ages 6 to 14. They do not have to be students at Acton Academy to participate.

The booth fee is $10.

For more information, to sign up for a booth space or to learn about sponsorship opportunities, visit www.childrensbusinessfair.org/lascruces. Find them on Facebook at Las Cruces Children's Business Fair.

Store offers big deals in a small warehouse

By ALTA LECOMPTE Las Cruces Bulletin

During his 27-year career in IT, Mike Johnson's work week often seemed to drag — and he dreaded the day his job would be off-shored. So he invested every spare dollar for "someday."

"Someday" arrived March 18 in Las Cruces, when he and his wife, Paula Johnson, opened their business, Clubstore, 910 N. Telshor Blvd.

The Clubstore is a small warehousestyle store where customers don't need a membership card to shop.

"I have a problem with having to pay a membership to go shop in a store," Mike Johnson said. "And not everybody can afford to pay for a membership."

Shelves are stocked with random name-brand merchandise Johnson buys at bargain prices — much of it from big box stores — and is offering to consumers for equally bargain prices.

The store carries clothing, electronics, furniture, paper products, food and more.

"We work with an Arkansas custom furniture maker who makes beautiful pieces in solid wood and steel," Johnson said. "We're constantly looking for new things. I will be applying for a license so I can sell wine in the store."

Because their company is a C Corp., which is taxed separately from its owners, the Johnsons established an employee benefit available to few smallbusiness workers: a 401k plan with an employer match.

Any employee who works at least 1,000 hours a year can participate. Johnson reminds employees the match is free money, encouraging them to save for the future.

"This is important to us," said Johnson. "What my wife and I have done is put money away so we are able to do this (own a business)."

The former Aaron's on Telshor Boulevard has been converted into a general merchandise warehouse-style outlet.

Paula Johnson said the Las Cruces Clubstore also pays employees more than the going rate.

"We wanted to attract a good talent pool and also we wanted to pay people a fair wage," she said, "We think of our employees as family. People like to be appreciated, and the best way to show our appreciation for our employees is to pay them a fair wage."

The Johnsons currently employ a team of seven.

Paula Johnson manages the Las Cruces warehouse and inventory. Nicole Gutierrez is the front-end manager and is responsible for advertising and social media.

Mike Johnson is New Mexico area rep for Clubstore, a franchise with eight outlets nationally.

"The CEO of Clubstore said this is by far the best store in the country," Mike Johnson said. "We had the biggest grand opening to date."

Johnson is also area rep for Clubstore and is "committed to developing 10 stores (in the region) in four years."

As a result, the Las Cruces outlet will do all the training for Clubstore outlets through 2017. Subsequently, training for the company's western stores will be done in Las Cruces.

The couple will also be area reps for California, beginning with a new store in San Diego, selected because, like El Paso/Las Cruces, the city is "a huge market close to the border."

Settling down in Las Cruces

Mike Johnson was born in Kingston, Ontario, Canada, and educated at St. Lawrence College, where he studied business administration and computer programming. He was a programmer with the Ontario Ministry of Health, but now he's found his life's purpose.

"We have a 60- to 80-hour week here, but we love it," he said.

"I have more energy now, feel better than I have in 10 or 15 years. I still have pressures and stressors, but they're different."

Paula Johnson was born in Silver City and graduated from Western New Mexico University with a degree in sociology and psychology. She and Mike moved to Wisconsin in 2007, following his career, and moved to Las Cruces in 2015.

"This is home to us," she said. "We don't ever want to have to move away again. We feel very blessed to be able to do this."

Garth Brooks: Roping the wind again

By MARTY RACINE Las Cruces Bulletin

Pull up a barstool and join the debate, now going on 70 years, with the beerdrinker next to you: What is "real" country music?

When the music moved off the farm. from off the plains and the Southern towns of its birth, Nashville producers sweetened its plaintive core with string sections and lush arrangements into an easy-listening "countrypolitan" sound that, the "outlaw" movement notwithstanding, has morphed into the hookhappy twang-pop that rules country radio to this dav.

The meteoric rise of Garth Brooks is not going to settle that argument. He makes his living on the country charts and he wears a cowboy hat, but he grew up listening to the folk-rock of Dan Fogelberg and James Taylor, the poetry of Townes Van Zandt and Bruce Springsteen, the loungepop of Billy Joel and even the glam pretentions of groups like Queen and KISS.

Shaping post-modern sources to his aw-shucks charm, Brooks amassed record sales in the early 1990s equaled only by Elvis Presley and the Beatles.

And then he stopped. Born Feb. 7, 1962, in Tulsa, Brooks was raised in music; his mother, Colleen McElroy Carroll, was a former country singer, and weekend singalongs were family entertainment.

He started singing in saloons while attending Oklahoma State University in Stillwater (on a track scholarship) and married his college sweetheart, songwriter Sandy Mahl, in 1986.

He failed to crack Nashville on his first attempt, but in 1987 he scored a promising self-titled debut album for Capitol Records. The sequels, 1990's "No Fences" and '91's "Ropin' the Wind," made him a phenomenon.

In the early '90s, Brooks's popularity plateaued, albeit at a high level. He ventured into gospel-country, recorded a Christmas album, contributed to a KISS tribute compilation and embarked on world tours.

His album Sevens debuted at No. 1 on both the pop and country charts and became Brooks' fourth to sell 10 million copies. His 1998 Double Live became the bestselling live album of all time and featured a rising new singer named Trisha Yearwood.

Continuing to test (confound?) his audience, in 1999 Brooks assumed the alter ego of "Chris Gaines," a fictitious rock star, for a film and album that were widely panned. It's as if the star had wearied of his own persona, ### and everyone's expectations.

He had hinted as much for years, mentioning the 'R' word, retirement, as far back as 1992. In 1998 the former athlete had a brief fling with baseball, signing with the San Diego Padres for spring training. He did not make the roster.

On Oct. 26, 2000, Garth Brooks officially retired, to spend time with his wife and three daughters, he said. "Scarecrow," released in 2001, would be his last studio album for more than a decade.

But the marriage was over, and that year he and Mahl divorced.

Still, Garth Brooks' product continued to flow. Walmart leased the rights to Brooks' back catalog and repackaged him, including a duet with Yearwood, "Love Will Always Win," from a "lost sessions" CD.

In December 2005 Brooks and Yearwood married.

By 2007, Brooks was again selling out selected concert dates, and in 2009 he began a three-year weekend residency in Las Vegas. The dates were

ALBUM DISCOGRAPHY

"Garth Brooks" (1989) "No Fences" (1990) "Ropin' the Wind" (1991) "The Chase" (1992) "Beyond the Season" (1992) "In Pieces" (1993) "Fresh Horses" (1995) "Sevens" (1997)

"Garth Brooks in .... The Life of Chris Gaines" (1999)

"Garth Brooks and the Magic of Christmas" (1999)

"Christmas Together" (with Trisha Yearwood) (2016)

"Gunslinger" (2016)

intimate, with just the man, his life stories and his acoustic guitar, and it eventually yielded the box set, Blame It All on My Roots.

In 2014, however, "Garth Brooks" was officially back, launching a world tour with his second wife and releasing his first studio album in forever, "Man Against Machine."

Over the years Brooks and Yearwood have supported many foundations and causes. As country aristocracy they are inseparable. The fans still love them, the Nashville establishment still loves them, and they arrive in Las Cruces this weekend riding high, roping the wind again.

For the Bulletin

Love is brewing at New Mexico State University's upcoming student art exhibition. "Java What?" will be on display through April 11 in the lobby of the NMSU Music Center at 1075 Horseshoe on the NMSU campus.

The "Java What?" exhibition is the visual arts component of "Java Love," a pop-up event presented collaboratively by the departments of music, English and art in the College of Arts and Sciences. The juried exhibition features works by graduate and undergraduate NMSU art students, said interim University Art Gallery director Michelle Lanteri, who selected the artworks. "Art and design of any media and style were welcomed for this show, yielding a wide range of content from the abstract, to the sincere, to the satirical."

The exhibition features work by Jenny Abeyta, Fahimeh Foudazi, Olivia Lemmons, Rubi Madrid, Raquel Madrigal, Nicholas Ostella, Melissa Michelle Perez, and Mariah Shelby.

Army Band performance to include high school students

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Musicians and singers from Las Cruces high schools will join the internationally acclaimed United States Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus for a free concert beginning at 7 p.m. on Saturday, April 22, at Centennial High School, 1950 Sonoma Ranch Blvd.

Although the concert is free and open to the public, you must have a ticket to attend, event coordinator Diane Schutz said.

Tickets are available at White's Music Box, 200 S. Main St.; Hubbard's Music-N-More, 108 Wyatt Drive; and Mesilla Valley Pro Music, 919 N. Valley Drive.

Schutz said two students each from Las Cruces, Mayfield, Oñate and Centennial high school bands will perform with the Army Field Band, and one student from each of the school's choirs will perform with the Soldiers' Chorus during the concert.

The U.S. Army Field Band performs in Las Cruces every other year, she said.

"We are thrilled that members of our outstanding high school bands and choruses will have this opportunity to perform with the incredible Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus," Schutz said.

The concert will include performances of "America the Beautiful," "The Star-Spangled Banner," "Sabres and Spurs," "Buckaroo Holiday and Hoedown," "A Portrait of Patsy Cline," "Gary Owen March," "William Tell Overture," "The Cowboys Overture," ""Til the Last Shot's Fired," "Dogface Soldier," "Armed Forces Salute" and "The Stars and Stripes Forever." The 65-member

Army Field Band was founded in 1946, the 29-member Soldiers' Chorus in 1957. They have performed in all 50 states and more than 30 foreign countries. The band and chorus are based at Fort Meade, Maryland.

Fountain Theatre hosts limited release of Medoff film

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

"The Heart Outright," the movie sequel to Tony-winning playwright Mark Medoff's "When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder" stage play, will begin a limited theatrical release with a week-long run at the Fountain Theater in Mesilla on Friday, April 28.

"The Heart Outright" has received a "really positive" reception at film festivals in California, Arizona, Santa Fe, Roswell and El Paso, said the film's director, Ross Marks.

The film's screening in Sherman Oaks, California, which Marks described as an "industry film festival," resulted in three different offers for distribution. Medoff and Marks ultimately chose Silicon Beach Film Distribution for their 94-minute movie, Marks said, partly because "they work with award-winning, quality films. They are a quality-overquantity distributor," he said, including two Oscar-nominated documentaries.

The film's limited theatrical release will include at least 10 cities, Marks said. It will begin in Mesilla because that's where most of "The Heart Outright" was filmed. "I thought it was really important to do the first city release at the Fountain Theater."

If the film does well at the Fountain and elsewhere, it will be shown in more cities, Marks said. Then it will be available on-demand through Netflix and other providers.

"The Heart Outright" stage play that the film is based on is part of Medoff's "Hero" trilogy. "When You Comin' Back, Red Rider," which Medoff wrote in 1973, introduces the character of Red Rider. The play was performed off-Broadway in New York City and won a 1974 Obie Award for distinguished play. The script, adapted by Medoff, was made into a 1979 film. Red Ryder continues in "The Heart Outright" and the trilogy's final play, "Stumps."

The film version of "The Heart Outright" begins in 1976. Ryder, 27 and a Vietnam veteran who lost a hand in the war, owns and manages a porno movie house in Austin, Texas. Four years later, Ryder meets his former girlfriend and others from his past as he returns to New Mexico for his mother's funeral.

"I call the film a country-Western romance," Marks said. Five original songs in the movie and its score were written by singer/songwriter and Las Cruces native Josh Grider.

"I'm so proud of everyone involved — pros, semi-pros, students — and ever grateful for the support of our community," Medoff said. "Without the beneficence of Tom and Jerean Hutchinson, owners of La Posta, there would be no bus stop, thus no movie."

The film stars Medoff (who wrote the screenplay), and his daughter, Jessica Medoff; veteran Las Cruces film and stage actor David Edwards (who plays Tom Hutchinson) and actors Brad Macarowski, Joshua Rowan, Corinne Fox and Alfonso Loya, along with Mariachi Aguilas of Las Cruces.

"The main thing about 'The Heart Outright' is that it came out of a class at New Mexico State University," said Marks, who is an assistant professor at the NMSU Creative Media Institute for Film and Digital Arts (CMI). CMI graduate Dave Witt is the producer.

"The idea of taking your class and making a feature film is just crazy," Marks said. "It's one of the craziest ideas I've ever had. But we did it and we created a film that has not only done well at festivals, (but) we did it for no money.

"For that film to get a distribution deal coming out of a classroom – never in a million years would I have thought it. There can't be many other undergraduate film classes anywhere who have made a feature film that wound up with an international movie distribution company."

Marks said he and Medoff have completed a screenplay adaption of "Stumps," the third play of the Red Rider trilogy.

He said Medoff also is working with writer Bill True, an NMSU graduate, on a television series that would be based on the first play Medoff wrote, "The Wager," which was originally produced on stage at Las Cruces Community Theatre in the late 1960s.

"We're working on the pilot episode right now," Marks said. If it's picked up, the series would be shot locally in hopes it would bring the same benefits to Las Cruces that the AMC series "Breaking Bad" brought to Albuquerque.

"If we can do that down here, it would be a real game changer," Marks said.

The 94-minute movie will be shown nightly at 7:30 p.m. from April 28 through May 4, with a matinee on Sunday, April 30 at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $7 regular admission; $6 for the Sunday matinee; $5 for members of the Mesilla Valley Film Society; $6 for seniors over age 60, military and students with valid ID; and $5 for the Wednesday, May 3 showing.

Nikki Nojima Louis will present talk at Branigan Cultural Center

FOR THE BULLETIN

Nikki Nojima Louis, a Japanese American, will present a talk titled, From Days of Infamy to Days of Remembrance: One Woman's Journey, from noon to 1 p.m. Saturday, April 8, at Branigan Cultural Center, 501 N. Main St.

Louis invites you to inhabit the lives and times of the generation of Japanese Americans who grew up under the cloud of what a congressional investigation committee in 1983 called "race prejudice and war hysteria." The talk will be in conjunction with Issei and Beyond: The Nakayama Family's Journey in the Mesilla Valley on display at the Branigan Cultural Center through May 13, 2017.

Nikki Nojima Louis, PhD, is a Japanese American writer born in Seattle, WA, incarcerated during WWII in an Idaho prison camp, and grew up in Chicago, IL, where she was the only non-white member of several profacional damas cam fessional dance companies. In the Pacific

Northwest, she was education director of the Group Theatre's National Multicultural Playwrights Festival and a member of the Seattle/Soviet Theater Exchange where, in 1989, she spent five weeks working with Russian and Muslim theater companies in Uzbekistan.

Her oral history play on Japanese Americans, "Breaking the Silence", has been performed throughout the United States and was performed in Hiroshima, Japan, in 2013.

She has taught creative writing and Asian American literature at UNM, hosted Hiroshima bomb survivors for a forum, "From Hiroshima to Hope," and created "Inhabiting History" programs that have toured New Mexico and other states.

Admission to the Branigan Cultural Center is free. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday - Friday, and 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday. For additional information, visit museums.las-cruces.org or call 575/541-2154.

'A United Kingdom' falls short of its intentions

By JEFF BERG Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces Bulletin

I admit it. I fell asleep during this movie. I wasn't really that tired, but after a while, the lack of synergy, energy, the marginal editing, the continuity, the predictability, and the lack of chemistry between the two leads just gave me about a 10-minute nap.

And the good thing was, that when I woke up, I knew right where the movie had progressed!

"A United Kingdom" is based on the true story of the man who was to be king and later became the first democratically elected leader of the country now known as Botswana and the British woman who he married in the late 1940s, which caused some international outrage, shall we say.

The picture is far too restrained, and director Amma Asante (whose previous work, "Belle," was outstanding), is too arty for a large audience.

She has two talented and good-looking leads, David Oyelowo as Seretse Khama and Rosamund Pike as Ruth Williams, whose meeting and brief romance has no spark and little believability. He espies her from across the room. She returns his gentle smile and head nod with an "aw, shucks" look. No mention of the fact that this is taking place during a dance sponsored by missionaries for African law students in 1948.

"A United Kingdom" is well-intentioned, but Asante is also encumbered with a script from Guy Hibbert that spells out everything for the audience and lacks vigor.

For following his heart, Khama was exiled from his homeland which was then called Bechuanaland and was also a British protectorate — for long periods of time. As next in line for the throne. Khama ticked off and disaffected his uncle, who had raised him and groomed him for familial position as king. But when he brings Ruth, a white woman office worker as a bride to the home village, there is hell to pay, much of it through snooty British diplomats.

Ruth is also rejected by her father, a mild racist who declares subtly that the newly independent country of India will be sorry that they have their new independence. And to top it off, the poor inhabitants of Bechuanaland aren't very pleased when this kindly, willing, attractive and mousy foreigner comes to town.

Part of the problem, politically, is that Britain is more interested in the new apartheid policies in neighboring South Africa, which causes Ruth to spend her pregnancy by herself. The couple eventually have four children, with one of the sons later becoming Botswana's president.

A series of meetings, both public and private, highlight the second half of the film, dulling the brief spark that we saw during their brief courting days. A love of dancing and jazz music helped bring them together, but it is all but eschewed as things become increasingly political and bitter.

There is some spark when Oyelowo delivers a speech or goes one-on-one with some British prigs, but other than that, I'd bring a No-Doz rather than a hankie to this film, which does offer beautiful cinematography.

But next time, let's have it as a documentary.

Las Cruces artist-entrepreneur keeps reinventing himself

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Bob Diven has been a fixture in Las Cruces for decades as an artist, sculptor, composer, performer, photographer and filmmaker.

"Somehow, I've managed to do my art for 37 years," Diven told about 30 people at the Doña Ana Arts Council's (DAAC) monthly Promoting Art in Las Cruces lunch March 31 at Bite of Belgium restaurant.

He has created everything from a life-size sculpture of Billy the Kid (Diven was born July 14, the day the Kid was shot and killed by Sheriff Pat Garrett – separated by 79 years) to Magellan the Dragon, who roars and blows smoke at Young Park every November during DAAC's Renaissance ArtsFaire.

But, making a career in art is "a bumpy, scary road," Diven said. So, in addition, he became a successful entrepreneur and businessman.

Diven said he marketed himself as an illustrator by taking his portfolio "from door to door" when he left art school in Denver and came to Las Cruces four decades ago. He used a variety of means to advertise his art, from the Yellow Pages to street painting at the downtown Farmers and Crafts market to a "Church of Bob" blog, noting that "technology keeps changing."

Today, Diven said, his "accumulated reputation and word of mouth" are his best tools of promotion, along with his online portfolio and Facebook page.

And, though Diven is "part of the fabric and part of the wallpaper" of the local arts community, continuing to market oneself is essential, he said. "I never know where the next job is coming from as a freelance artist."

Diven's past and current work includes:

• A space mural covering all four walls of the Clyde Tombaugh Elementary School cafeteria and the splash pad at the new Plaza de Las Cruces downtown.

• Winning top awards at chalk-art festivals and working with the Downtown Las Cruces Partnership to create the Avenue Art event.

• Acting roles on Las Cruces stages that have included Don Quixote in "Man of La Mancha," the lead in "Mr. Roberts," playing Kolenkahov in Las Cruces Community Theatre's upcoming production of "You Can't Take It with You," and a one-man show he wrote, "John Singer Sargent: Painting Madame X." Diven's first role was as Winthrop in Las Cruces High School's production of "The Sound of Music" when Diven was in 5th grade. He also played Captain Von Trapp in "The Sound of Music" and Sky Masterson in "Guys and Dolls" for Doña Ana Lyric Opera, and Elwood P. Dowd in "Harvey" for LCCT.

• Creating sets for local productions written and directed by Tony-winning playwright Mark Medoff and others.

• Writing the musicals "Happy Birthday, Charles Darwin," performed at Black Box and Rio Grande Theatres, and "Extinction," performed at the NMSU music building.

• Composing "Dawn of the Dinosaurs" for the Las Cruces Symphony Orchestra.

• Making a sculpture last summer at Red Hawk Golf Course called "The Fore Winds.

• Working with the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum and the BLM on a public art destination project called AdobeHenge.

'Songs for the Waiting' is a trust in God's plan

BULLETIN REPORT

Janet Blair & the Interruptions will play an albumrelease concert for "Songs for the Waiting," 10:30 p.m., Friday, April 7, at Calvary Baptist Youth Chapel, 1800 S. Locust St.

An oboist in the Las Cruces Symphony, Blair bridges her classical roots with modern piano-pop and Christianinfluenced songwriting that took form when the death of a friend's infant sent her into depression. On one sleepless night, Blair recalls, "I was lying awake at 2 a.m. when God put a song in my head. So I sat down at my piano and I wrote it out - my first song. I think I needed to process the emotion, so the song was a gift to me."

Over the next year Blair returned to the keyboard, crafting songs that explore darkness and light, tragedy and triumph, from the mundane to the eternal, with bright melodies and arrangements that nod to the symphonic sweep of Beethoven and Brahms. Gluing everything together is Blair's belief in God's plan, which shapes songs like "Eternity Grows" and "Remember Hope."

All tracks in "Songs for the Waiting" were recorded in Nashville, with Blair playing upright piano.

Spring is a time to reflect on humility, humanity, the Earth

pring is here! Seeing some of the cacti in our yard come alive with beautiful blossoms brings a feeling of uplift, hope, and even momentary joy.

Judaism and Christianity mark this time of nature's reawakening with observances that relate to rebirth and freedom. Jews observe the holiday of Passover, which commemorates the Israelite journey from slavery to freedom. According to local clergy colleagues, Christians, when observing Easter, see the passage from slavery to liberation "in the death and resurrection of Jesus, and in the transition from sin and death eternally)."

In Judaism, a 2.000-vear-old statement from the rabbis characterizes the essence of Passover: "In every generation, we should look upon ourselves as if WE went free from Egypt."

Passover challenges each person to personally respond to the plight of anyone who faces oppression, persecution, and a lack of support from the greater community. In the story of Passover, the Israelites decried the arrogance of the Pharaoh, who viewed himself as a divine figure. Given his actions, it was apparent that the Pharaoh had relinquished any sense of human consideration, decency and empathy.

> The importance of these values was emphasized in one of the American Values/Religious Voices letters last month. On March 6, Amir Hussain,

Professor of Theological Studies at Lovola Marvmount University, shared three religious texts that call on people to demonstrate a true concern for their fellow human beings. He cited a passage from the book of Exodus (Chapter 23), which declared, "You shall not oppress a stranger. You know the feelings of the stranger, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt."

Professor Hussain explained that a passage from the Gospel of Matthew (Chapter 25) further strengthened that message: "...For I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me. I was naked and you clothed me, I was sick and you took care of me, I was in prison and you visited me."

In addition. Professor Hussain shared a teaching from the Qur'an which expressed similar principles: "Serve God and do not associate anything with God, and be good to your parents, the near of kin, to the orphans, the needy, the neighbor who is near and the neighbor who is farther away, the companion by your side, and the traveler. ... Surely God does not love the one who is proud, boastful." (Qur'an 4:36)

Several discussion groups that studied this letter were puzzled by the statement, "Serve God and do not associate anything with God." My initial interpretation was that, if we think of ourselves as serving God, we should not see ourselves as holier or better than anyone else. I took this passage to members of the local Muslim community for further consideration. One said that the teaching means that we should be sure that our good deeds are performed for their own sake, and not for an anticipated reward of praise from others, position or pride. Another community member commented that the final part of the Qur'an verse reminds people not to be overtly proud or boastful just because they are doing what they consider to be God's work. We should perform acts of goodness for their own sake and for the benefit of others.

As nature engages in its annual rebirth, may our own souls be reborn into an approach of personal humility, an appreciation of humanity and the Earth itself, and a sense of how serving our community can bring hope and healing to the world.

Gun dealer's collection includes rare Colt single-action revolver

By MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

"If you have $180,000 in your pocket, I ain't sellin' it," Las Cruces gun dealer and collector Robert Pirtle said about a short-barreled Colt single-action revolver that is part of his storied gun collection.

The revolver is one of only 75 that Colt's Patent Firearms Manufacturing Company made and shipped to the U.S. Indian Agency in May 1899.

Pirtle believes his gun is the only remaining member of the group that hasn't had its caliber altered. And he thinks he has found a photograph of a Kickapoo Indian policeman named "Flat Chin Pete" holding the gun in author John A. Kopec's 1994 book "Colt Cavalry & Artillery Revolvers... A Continuing Study."

Chapter 14 of the book, "The Indian Police Revolvers," contains the photograph, along with a list of the serial numbers of all 75 of the guns, including

The late Charlie Pirtle, and Robert's father, was a gun collector and retired U.S. Border Patrol agent.

Pirtle's.

The gun had belonged to Pirtle's father, Charlie, also an avid gun collector and retired U.S. Border Patrol agent. Charlie Pirtle bought the gun from a pawn shop for about $1,600, Robert said. Knowing of Robert's interest in Native Americans, Charlie's widow gave the gun to Robert after Charlie's death in 2008.

Because Colt keeps extensive records of the firearms it has manufactured in Harford, Connecticut since 1855, Pirtle was able to obtain a letter from a Colt historian confirming when it was made and where it was shipped.

He can only guess at most of the revolver's history since then, how many hands have held it and what it was used for.

"It's a real historic piece," Pirtle said. "Every gun's got a story," he said, and trying to uncover it is half the fun of being a gun collector.

Pirtle has letters confirming the history of several other Colt single-action revolvers he owns, and he has learned the provenance of many others because of his father's meticulous record keeping and through his own research.

Pirtle and his brothers, Scott and Carl, divided their father's gun collection, and Carl still owns their father's first gun, which Charlie bought at the age of 11 or 12 for $30 from a hardware store in McAllen, Texas, Robert said. Charlie walked across the border into Reynosa, Mexico, in 1957 at age 15 and bought a Colt revolver for $40. Its 1991 value was $2,000, Robert said.

Charlie Pirtle wound up with 15 single-action Colts all made before 1905, Robert said. Each bears the rampant colt logo that began to fade on models made in the 1930s and later because Colt was using the same dies with have calved a lot of heifers in my life — thousands. All of us who have that type of experience know that after the sweat and strain, the slick and sticky, the hope and pull, the grunt and sigh, when the wet little creature plops on the ground, sometimes there is a moment that time stands still. A second, or two or five, we stare, our world suspended, waiting for a sign.

Then the new baby sniffs, or blinks, or sneezes, or wiggles an ear and at that moment it feels as though a burden has been lifted from our shoulders. We did it. We did we did it. we did it again. Just regular common people like us, engaged in that age-old profession of stockman, have participated in a miracle: life being passed from one generation to the next.

It is no small thing to be a part of and every time it happens, it renews us. The miracle never diminishes. As urbanization inexorably isolates people from the land, fewer and fewer humans are able to participate in this ancient experience. It is our loss.

We have finished calving at my place, none of the cows needed help delivering, for which I'm thankful. But each new little critter trailing after his mama or kickin' up his heels makes ya smile. Last week the high-horned red cow finally calved. Baby was solid red like mama. I sat there the next day a'horseback and studied him for a few minutes. Long enough to

He looked confused. He could hear his mama but something didn't smell right. I reached down and patted his head. He looked up at me, as if to say. "What are you doin' here?"

About that time my dog stuck his nose to the baby's tail. He jumped like a deer, straight-legged and trotted back toward his mama in his ungainly tryin'-out-his-new-legs, kinda gait. It was pretty funny. The dog and I couldn't help but laugh.

Scholarship helps veterans transition to civilian life

By CASSIE McCLURE For the Bulletin

A basic military tenet is to leave no one behind. Now, a group of Raytheon employees has come together and established a new scholarship at New Mexico State University to make sure that the final educational mission for student veterans comes to fruition.

The RAYVETS Degree Completion Current Use Scholarship at NMSU helps student veterans who have exhausted their GI Bill benefits if their bachelor's or graduate degree is at risk due to their inability to fund their remaining classes.

"What the RAYVETS scholarship means to our student veterans is the ability to complete their educational dreams," said Hector Sanchez, director of Military and Veterans Programs at NMSU. "It bridges the financial gap to allow veterans that have no means to pay for their remaining education a way to complete their academic degrees and transition to civilian life."

Leading the charge is Colby Richardson, a facilities manager who founded and organizes the RAY-VETS group at the White Sands Raytheon Company location.

Richardson has spent 12 years in the Army, and during seven years of active duty, he deployed three times to Iraq. Currently an officer in the Army Reserve, Richardson founded RAYVETS/ White Sands in 2015. His goal for the group was to support an initiative for local veterans that has an immediate and direct impact. He reached out to NMSU and found that there were student veterans transitioning into civilian life who were at risk of not achieving their degrees because their educational benefits were depleted.

"If we don't help these student veterans in their final year or final semester, they may have to take out student loans, and many are already maxed out on those," Richardson said. "Many of them are already working full-time and have families.

"This is a dire need for these veterans, and by donating to RAYVETS, you're directly impacting someone you might see at the supermarket tomorrow," he continued.

This new scholarship has already made a significant difference in the lives of recipients. April Montoya, an Air Force veteran and Air Force wife, explained that her RAYVETS scholarship will help ease her stress in her final year of nursing school.

"It brought tears to my eyes, because help with tuition means I have money to buy gas to get to clinicals, or to buy uniforms or medical scissors," Montoya said. "It has a domino effect, so that I don't have to take money from my family – and with two teens and an 8-year-old, life is already pricey."

Montoya, a full-time student, had debated stepping out of school and working to raise the tuition for her last year. Thanks to the RAYVETS scholarship, she can push straight through to completion.

"Not one penny will go to waste and not one penny is unappreciated," Montoya said.

Montoya aims to be a certified diabetes educator, working here in Las Cruces to prevent and combat the disease.

What makes the RAY-VETS scholarship even more special to Montoya is knowing that veterans just like her are contributing to her success.

Our nation's military members risk their lives, sometimes paying the ultimate price. For many, a gift toward their education is a way to repay them for their service - and even help their families. # MESA Project to begin installations

By MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces Bullet

Backed by a $250,000 federal grant, the Meetings for Environmentally Sustainable Agriculture in Doña Ana County (MESA) is piloting sustainable agriculture techniques on a local farm to help protect and preserve the local agriculture economy and the environment.

Because its grant comes from ArtPlace America "that works to position arts and culture ... to help strengthen the social, physical, and economic fabric of communities," MESA is a sort of "culinary arts meets the ag world" program, said Event Manager and Community Coordinator Lea WiseSurguy-Sophiliazo.

The two-year grant is funding the development of farming techniques, including water-saving subterranean drip irrigation and passive heating and cooling greenhouses designed specifically for the climate of the Southwest, said MESA Marketing Manager and Project Analyst Patrick DeSimio-Sophiliazo, who is married to Lea.

This summer, the project will host MESA Meals, free community meals served on the 3.5-acre Pata Viva Farm west of Las Cruces where MESA is developing its farming technologies. The food served will be made from produce grown on the farm using techniques implemented there, DeSimio-Sophiliazo said.

The meals will include farmers, scientists and community members discussing sustainable ag technology and ways to protect the environment "that work for everybody," he said, also giving them an opportunity to "build an economic base for sustainable agriculture."

DeSimio-Sophiliazo said local chefs will be hired to create the meals, and area culinary arts students will be hired as servers and will learn how to prepare locally grown produce. And, there will be two opportunities for meal attendees to win $5,000 worth of sustainable agriculture equipment.

Additional community meals are planned during the life of the grant, he said, with potlucks to be held after the grant ends in December 2018.

Community installations of drip-irrigation systems at the farm will begin in April, WiseSurguy-Sophiliazo said.

Southwest is one of MESA's goals, he said. And the work MESA is doing could make Pata Viva a one-of-a-kind demonstration site, unique in the United States.

Another MESA goal is to explore the "financial metrics" of sustainable farming, said DeSimio-Sophiliazo, who is a science editor and grant writer at NMSU. He also is president of the university's O.A.S.I.S. (Organization of Aggie Students Inspiring Sustainability) Club. Next fall, MESA will have an art and ag exhibit at the New Mexico State University Art Gallery, DeSimio-Sophiliazo said. It was, in fact, NMSU Department of Art Academic Head Dr. Julia Barello who made the connection between MESA staff and ArtPlace America, he said.

"I received the Artplace information through an internal NMSU grant announcement network and realized immediately that this funding opportunity was open to an endless variety of projects," Barello said. "No one on the department could tackle this at the time and I thought of Lea (an artist and sculptor), who already had been working at the intersection of art and agriculture in her MFA work. She and Patrick have a diverse background, a commitment to community development and a love for the arts and agriculture and I was confident that they could design a winning proposal."

Other MESA team members include Farm and Project Manager Brvce Richard and Project Accountant and Agricultural Research Manager Shelly Richard. Partners include NMSU agricultural and environmental scientists like Dr. David Johnson, a research scientist and director of the Institute for Sustainable Agricultural Research; research scientists Jalal Rastegary and Christopher Campbell; the staff and students of the School of Hotel, Restaurant and Tourism Management; the culinary arts program at Alma d'arte Charter High School; and local chefs.

to Las Cruces in 1961, when Robert was 4 years old.

Pirtle said the demand for first-generation Colt revolvers has continued since the company manufactured the single-action Army Peacemaker in 1873, which became known as "the gun that won the West."

Pirtle is a member of the Single-Action Shooting Society and the Colt Collectors Association, and he holds a federal firearms license.

His collection includes a Mervin Hulbert pocket pistol with a folding hammer that was patented because it won't get hung up on a pocket, Pirtle said. The gun also has a lanyard ring and a "skull crusher" grip.

He also has a 1944 World War II M1 carbine rifle, a Mexican "sniper rifle" and an 1897 shotgun. Pumping that long gun to engage a shell is what Pirtle calls "setting the internal house alarm."

Pirtle's collection also includes a Winchester 73 model rifle, several derringers and reproductions of a blunderbuss and a pepperbox pistol. He also has a considerable collection of knives, including a World War II-era dagger that belonged to a Nazi SS officer.

Robert is a member of the "Old Geezers" shooting club that includes many of his father's fellow gun enthusiasts. They get together on a regular basis at Robert's uncle's place in Lordsburg to shoot Colts and Winchesters at targets that include playing cards and golf balls. Most are at least 20 years older than Robert, he said, but they're "as good or better shots than I am."

Prisoners work with shelter dogs in program that aims to help both

BULLETIN REPORT

The P.A.W.S (Prisoners and Animals Working Toward Success) prison program at Southern New Mexico Correctional Facility is administered in partnership with ACTion Programs for Animals (APA). The program survives by community donations and allows for second-chance dogs from the local shelter to be assigned to an inmate at Southern New Mexico Correctional Facility in Las Cruces for obedience training.

The dogs stay with the inmates 24 hours a day, 7 days a week to complete an approximate eight-week training program. The dogs are socialized, learn basic obedience, and are house/crate trained. The inmates can have no disciplinary action for a whole year prior to applying to the program and can have no disciplinary issues while in the program. The dogs are monitored closely by prison staff to ensure the safety of both the dogs and the inmates.

The P.A.W.S program recently celebrated its two-year anniversary and through the program has made 53 dogs more adoptable.

The program is intended to calm inmates and teach them new skills through working with the animals. After the dogs graduate from the program, they return to APA to be adopted to forever homes, and the inmates in the program begin work on another dog.

Inmate James Gonzalez hangs with Milly while waiting for the obedience training to begin.

Metro Verde Splash Pad Park

Metro Verde includes five parks, trail

By MIKE COOK Las Cruces Bulletin

Metro Verde is a 2,200-acre development in northeast Las Cruces that includes some beautiful homes, a world-class golf course, commercial applications, new parks and a multiuse trail that are all less than five vears old.

The nearly three-acre Metro Verde Splash Pad Park, 7125 Metro Park St. (across from Monte Vista Elementary School), was re-opened by the city for spring break and will remain open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on weekends before use expands again in May, according to a city news release.

The splash pad park includes a large grassy area, a small zip line, a play ground, a toddler-sized playground under a shade canopy, an interactive play game and several other state-ofthe-art features.

"The splash pad park is super cool, makes me wish I was a kid again," said city Parks and Recreation Department GIS Technician Elyn Clarke.

Here is information about the other parks in the development:

• Metro Verde #1 Park covers twothirds of an acre at 6013 Atlas St. and includes a tennis court, one-half basketball court and ping pong tables. It was built in 2013.

• Metro Verde #2 Park, 6054 Voyager St., is not quite a third of an acre in size and includes a swing set, a play structure and picnic tables and benches.

• Metro Verde Sculpture Park, 3675 Thurmond Road, includes a swing set, a teeter totter, a large grassy area and Las Cruces artist Bob Diven's hawk sculpture. It includes 1.66 acres and opened in 2016.

• Metro Verde Soccer Park, 3770 Sienna Ave., opened in 2015 and covers a little more than an acre. It includes a swing set, tables and benches and a long and runs along the north side of Engler Road from Atlas Street to Sonoma Ranch Boulevard.

If you use these — or any other city parks — Parks and Recreation Department staff ask that you not stake shade canopies, jumping balloons, etc. into the ground because "stakes can (and have) hit irrigation systems and poked holes into the underground irrigation lines," Clarke said.

For park rental information, call the Parks and Recreation Department at 575-541-2550.

In the splash pad park, Clarke said, the table under the shade canopy is the rentable area, not the actual splash pad itself.

All playground areas and their equipment are always open to the public, she said.

Self-identity must be compatible with our desires

here is a difference between choosing and self-selection. Perhaps we should clarify self-selection to mean self-identity selection. We cannot make a conscious choice and have it produce the desired results if our self-identity is not compatible with the desire.

For example: If we see ourselves (albeit unconsciously) as unworthy of great success. or that there might be something innately wrong with us, or if we think of ourselves as a victim, then those images will self-select outer experiences that belong, or let's say, give them form and visibility.

That is one of the laws of manifestation that cannot be disputed. We simply produce who we think we are. Here is a quote from my intellectual hero, Ralph Waldo Emerson, on this very subject: "The lesson which these observations convey is, be and not seem. Let us acquiesce. Let us take our bloated nothingness out of the way of the divine circuits.

our wisdom of the world. Let us lie low in the Lord's (law's) power and learn that truth alone makes rich and great." What a guv! Emerson was as clear on the subject as anyone ever has been. His influence on the development of modern New Thought Spirituality is obvious. It is interesting that he is the most-quoted American next to Abraham Lincoln.

This is interesting because that fact suggests that we resonate with his message of our inner divinity and our capacity for great love, joy, peace and creativity. We know the truth when we hear it. He champions self-reliance, backs it up with spiritual law. describes earthly experience as circles and sees everything arising out of the over-soul.

Those are the titles of a few of his more well-known essays. They are as current and pertinent to our current condition as they were when he wrote them and is responsible for 1 to 2 percent of our adult body weight. Most of our bodies' calcium can be found in our teeth and in our bones with the rest residing in our muscles, blood and other tissues. What some may not be aware of is just how important calcium is to our bodies and just how detrimental it can be to our health when we have a calcium deficiency.

A mild calcium deficiency can cause numbness and tingling around ones' mouth and fingertips. A continual deficiency can be the cause of headaches, as well as double or blurry vision. A persistent calcium deficiency can cause changes in personality, depression, abnormal heart rhythms, eczema and poor dental health. According to the FDA, the recommended minimum allowance for adults is at least 1,000 milligrams of calcium daily.

The good news is that those who enjoy an icy cold glass of milk or love the taste of yogurt products are attaining their calcium minimum consistently and much quicker, as these two food items are among the richest food sources of calcium. A cup of frozen yogurt provides about 10 percent of your daily calcium intake, while an eight-ounce glass of milk contains almost 300 milligrams of calcium. So, as summer gets closer and our beautiful southwestern days become warmer, you should feel good about reaching for that refreshing glass of icy cold milk or the billowing swirl of a frosty ice cream or yogurt cone. Not only are you treating your palate, you are also helping to keep your body strong.

Carranza opened the Seattle U series with a pair of dingers March 31, going 3-for-4 from the plate with three RBI. He followed April 1 with a 2-for-4 performance including a solo shot to left. He wrapped up the weekend with a single and walk. In the series against Seattle U, Carranza batted .545 (6-for-11) with 4 RBI, three homers, a 1.455 slugging-percentage and .615 on-base percentage while scoring four.

Through April 2, Carranza was 19th in the country with nine homers. His 1.25 RBI per game and .728 slugging percentage each ranked 20th in the NCAA.

Last year as a freshman, Carranza hit .220 with one home and four RBI in 21 games, 16 as a starter. The son of former Colorado Rockies player Pedro Carranza, Tristen Carranza was drafted in the Mexican League and offered a contract with the Chicago Cubs organization in 2015.

New Mexico State sets 2017 Homecoming dates

BY DARRELL J. PEHR Bulletin Report

New Mexico State University will celebrate Homecoming 2017 with a week of events highlighting Aggie traditions beginning Oct. 23 and culminating in the Homecoming football game Saturday, Oct. 28, against Arkansas State University's Red Wolves.

Homecoming activities will include reunions for the classes of 1957 and 1967, along with such traditions as the Homecoming game day parade, the Celebration of Traditions Memorial Ceremony event honoring Aggie military veterans, a bonfire and pep rally, the Golden A's luncheon, and the Alumni Association Homecoming Tailgate.

Following the Aggie Shark Tank on Thursday, Oct. 26, in which student entrepreneurs pitch business ideas to the "Sharks" (local business executives), there will be a networking reception with a student, NMSU Foundation board member and Shark Tank member.

The Alumni Association's annual dinner is Friday, Oct. 27. The dinner will honor its 2017 recipients of the Distinguished Alumni and James F. Cole Memorial Award for Service. The Alumni Association is now accepting nominations for these awards.

The Distinguished Alumni awards, established in 1956, recognize living NMSU alumni who have achieved national or international distinction through their accomplishments and leadership. To be considered, nominees must be a graduate of NMSU and available to attend Homecoming events. In addition to achieving distinction in their business or professional lives, nominees must have performed specific, meritorious service that reflects the quality and advancement of NMSU.

New Mexico State football names assistant defensive coach

BULLETIN REPORT

New Mexico State head football coach Doug Martin has announced the hiring of assistant coach John Mumford to replace Kerry Locklin, who took a job with the Toronto Argonauts of the CFL.

"We are excited to add a coach with the experience of Coach Mumford," Martin said. "He has excelled as not only a defensive line coach, but as a defensive coordinator and even as a head coach at the college level. Our football program just got better with this addition."

Mumford comes to New Mexico State with 35 years of experience, including 29 at the Division I level. The coaching veteran last served as the interim head coach at ULM for a short stint in 2015 and was the defensive line coach for the 2014 campaign under head coach Todd Berry. In his first season with the Warhawks,

MARTIN

Mumford's defensive line was ranked 10th in the country with 32.5 tackles for loss and 13th in sacks. He also guided ULM defensive lineman Gerrand Johnson to a First-Team All-Sun Belt honor.

Prior to his time at ULM, Mumford spent 14 seasons at Army – including three under Berry. While working alongside Berry, Mumford managed the defensive line before becoming the acting head coach in 2003. From 2004-08, he was the defensive coordinator for two separate head coaches and wrapped up his time at West Point as the defensive ends coach. Mumford and the Black Knights also defeated SMU in the Armed Forces Bowl in 2010.

Mumford earned his first head coaching position at Southeast Missouri State a year after joining the Redhawks program in 1989 where he was at the helm for nine years (1990-99). Just four years into his first head coaching job, Mumford was named the Ohio Valley Conference Coach of the Year (1994).

His first full-time coaching position came at the University of South Dakota in 1982. Mumford served three seasons as the defensive line coach (1982-84) before being promoted to defensive coordinator. He also worked with the defensive backs in conjunction to his DC responsibilities from 1985-88. During his first year as the defensive coordinator (1985), Mumford helped guide the Jackrabbits to the NCAA Division II semifinals. A year later, Mumford's defense led South Dakota to a runner-up finish at the national championship game.

The Lawrence, Kansas, native joined the collegiate ranks in his hometown at Kansas in 1980 as a graduate assistant. During his time with the Jayhawks, Mumford served as the junior varsity head coach and defensive line coach.

He made his coaching debut at Topeka High School as the defensive line coach in 1979.

Mumford was born on Christmas Day in 1956 and is married to his wife Leslie of 36 years. The two have three daughters, Jenna, Meghan and Lauren.

The Masters: Dominance, collapses and comebacks

n 1997 the golfing world was already aware of a prodigy – a phenom – by the name of Eldrick "Tiger" Woods, who became the instant Masters favorite. But when Woods opened with a front nine of 40, the naysayers dismissed Woods, blabbering "I told you so."

Nobody had come close to winning at Augusta with four-over after 9 holes. But there was never anybody like Tiger. He shot 30 on the back nine for a 70, followed by 66 on Friday and 65 on Saturday. He would win by 12 shots, the largest margin of victory ever. He would win at Augusta three more times. You can learn more of this epic major from Wood's new book "The 1997 Masters: My Story."

In the modern era there has been no more profound case of final-round choking at the Masters than Greg Norman's meltdown in 1996. Even in 1986 Norman could have forced a playoff with Jack Nicklaus by just a finalround par on 18 but he

of-Fame legacy,

And who can forget Rory McIlroy starting the final round on Sunday in 2011 with a fourshot lead. And who can forget the duck-hook he hit deep into the woods on Hole No. 10 near some guest cabins. He walked off the 10th green with a triple bogey.

After bogeving 11 he followed up with a fourputt double on the tricky par-3 12th. By the time his drive on 13 found Rae's Creek, that four-shot lead was long gone as well as that Green Jacket. To McIlroy's credit, when a reporter asked his reaction to the meltdown, he said, "I'll come out stronger for it." He did, indeed. winning the U.S. Open at Congressional two months later by 10 shots.

Heralded as the "next big thing" since Tiger Wood's pro golf dominance, Jordan Spieth won the 2015 Masters, going wire-to-wire. Exactly a year later, with a five-shot lead starting the back nine on Sunday. Spieth bogeved 10 and 11. but that wasn't fatal. What was fatal, like falling from the high wire without a net, was catastrophe on the famous 12th. As one analyst put it: "A botched tee ball in the drink, followed by a brain-cramp drop-andchunk produced a disastrous quadruple-bogev." With a stiff upper lip and steady golf Englishman with a homer, double, three RBI and a run scored.

Shortstop L.J. Hatch knocked in a run and scored on Fishback's homer.

The one downside for NMSU was a lack of timely hitting. The Aggies stranded 11 runners, leaving the bases loaded in the fifth and sixth innings.

About halfway through the season, prior to the Texas Tech game, New Mexico State was hitting a gaudy .316 as a team, with eight players above the .300 mark. Senior infielder Brent Sakurai led with a .364 average.

Senior outfielder Austin Botello led the team in RBI with 61. Botello and freshman infielder Joey Artiz had each scored 27 runs.

On the hill, sophomore Kyle Bradish was undefeated at 4-0 with a 2.31 ERA. Relievers Rodriguez and Alex Reyes were each 1-0 with identical, and miniscule, 0.96 ERAs.

As a team, the Aggies were fielding at a .967 clip, their opponents .969.

Danny Willett swooped in to claim the Green Jacket.

That whole episode just proves how stupid and misguided the current PGA Tour/World Golf Championships theme song is which goes: "It's too late to try; there's nothing you can do; I'm going to walk all over you!" Danny Willett would have none of that.

In 1956, Ken Venturi was viewed as the best amateur golfer on the planet. Earlier that year, as a side show to Bing Crosby's "Clambake" tournament (now the ATT Pro Am at Pebble Beach), Venturi was paired with Harvie Ward, another talented amateur, to take on Byron Nelson and Ben Hogan at Cypress Point in what became known as "The Match." (A great read is Mark Frost's "The Match: The Day the Game of Golf Changed Forever.")

Going into the final round at the Masters on Sunday all eyes were on Venturi, leading by a bunch, as he was in position for one of the greatest wins in golf history. But due to a combination of poor weather and poor play Venturi ballooned to an 80.

Meanwhile, former Marine and tour professional Jackie Burke, Jr. holed a wind-blown 15-footer for birdie on the 17th and saved par out of the bunker on 18 to shoot a brilliant 71 and win by one shot. Later in life Burke would call that putt "a miracle, the best break of my career." (For more on Burke and his strong opinions about golf read "It's Only A Game: Words of Wisdom from a Lifetime in Golf.")

I can't wait to see what golf entertainment is in store at the 81st playing of the Masters. Pimento cheese sandwich anyone?

BULLETIN REPORT

The New Mexico State Athletic Department has announced a special promotion for season tickets to the 2017-18 men's basketball campaign at the Pan American Center ticket office.

Fans who purchase season tickets between April 3 and June 1 will receive a 2017 NM State Championship replica ring for each seat purchased. The promotion applies to both new season ticket purchases and those renewing their tickets from 2016-17. Renewal letters will arrive in the mail in April.

"This is a terrific opportunity for our fans to enjoy a piece of this past season," Aggie head coach Paul Weir said. "Our season ticket holders should be honored for their support and I'm so thankful we have rewarded them in this way."

In addition, fans who purchase season tickets between April 3 and June 1 have an opportunity to use a flex-pay plan beginning June 15, with final payment due on Aug. 15.

The championship rings will be presented at a special pre-season event in the Pan American Center where fans will have an opportunity to watch an open practice, meet the team and take photos on Lou Henson Court. For those who can't make the event (date to be determined), pick-up information will be announced when made available.

The Pan American Center ticket office can be reached at 575-646-1420.

Bhullar moves on from Aggie basketball program

BULLETIN REPORT

New Mexico State center Tanveer Bhullar is leaving the Aggie basketball program to seek other opportunities as a graduate transfer or play professionally.

"Tanveer has been an absolute pleasure to coach in my time here," head coach Paul Weir said. "I can't thank him enough for everything he's done for us."

The 7-2 redshirt junior is eligible to graduate at the end of the spring semester with a degree in sociology.

The Ontario, Canada, native made 22 appearances in 2016-17, with a season-high 11 points against Seattle U at home and a career-high 11 rebounds versus CSU Bakersfield in the WAC Tournament Championship game.

In three seasons, Bhullar accumulated 260 career points, 232 rebounds, 29 assists, 26 blocks and seven assists in 66 appearances.
