Series of meetings set to look at capital outlay

A series of five community meetings – one in each of Doña Ana County's five commission districts - has been scheduled to solicit public input on priority needs for capital-outlay funding throughout the county. Once a priority list is compiled, the rankings will be entered into a statewide database and used to lobby the 2018 New Mexico Leg-

The focus of each meeting will be on projects that relate to roadways, drainage, wastewater and facilities.

Meeting dates and locations are as fol-

Tuesday, April 11 – Radium Springs Community Center, 12060 Lindbeck Rd., hosted by District 5 Doña Ana County Commissioner John L. Vasquez.

Wednesday, April 12 – Betty McKnight Community Center, 190 County Line Rd., hosted by District 2 Doña Ana County Commissioner Ramon S.

Thursday, April 13 – Vado/Del Cerro Community Center, 180 La Fe Ave., hosted by District 1 Doña Ana County Commissioner Billy G. Garrett.

Tuesday, April 18 – Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum, 4100 Dripping Springs Rd., hosted by District 3 Doña Ana County Commissioner Benjamin L. Rawson.

Thursday, April 20 – Butterfield Community Center, 7350 Berry Patch Rd., hosted by District 4 Doña Ana County Commissioner Isabella Solis.

Each meeting will begin at 6 p.m.

County staff will be on hand at each of the community meetings, and Spanish translation services will be available.

Advance input on the process can be directed to Infrastructure Capital Improvement Plan Coordinator Michelle Blackwell at michelleb@donaanacounty.org, or by phone at (575) 525-6180.

April 1 event aims to honor area crime victims

Checkpoints increased for St. Pat's Day

County Sheriff checkpoints and patrols will be conducted on March 17 at various undisclosed locations throughout Doña Ana County, usually between 6 p.m. and 4 a.m. Deputies will be looking for all types of violations, with an emphasis on intoxicated drivers.

The St. Patrick's Day holiday is typically one when deputies see a higher rate of DWIrelated incidents.

The Doña Ana County Health and Human Services Department offers county residents a low-cost taxi ride home through Project HOME (Helping Others Make it home Every time), available on Fridays, Saturdays and holidays from 5:30 p.m. to 3 a.m. The project is a collaborative initiative with Las Cruces Shuttle and Taxi by which persons who have been drinking any amount of alcohol can call 575-524-TAXI to be picked up for a discounted ride home. Project HOME will only take people from a bar or party to the rider's residence.

For up to two people, the fee is a flat $5 to any destination within Doña Ana County. For up to 4 people, the flat fee is $10.

Citizens Bank of Las Cruces is pleased to announce the addition of Celeste Bernal to its banking team as the Risk Management/Process Improvement Officer. George Ruth, President adds "Risk Management is an important part of any successful business and we are confident that with her experience she will provide the Bank the structure it needs to help maintain the Bank's safety, security and financial prosperity. #### United Development Code seminars planned

BULLETIN REPORT

The Doña Ana County Community Development Department has scheduled a two-day, three-session training seminar relative to the Unified Development Code that went into effect earlier this year.

The first seminar will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, March 20, in the Commission Chambers of the Doña Ana County Government Center, 845 N. Motel. The focus will be on a series of overview presentations followed by question and answer periods. The session presenter – consultants from PlaceMakers – will give a talk about how community types developed, along with check lists for plan review. The idea is to walk participants through the process of reviewing a community-type development application.

The second seminar will begin at 10 a.m. Tuesday, March 21, in the Commission Chambers of the Doña Ana County Government Center, and will consist of three presentations – Process; Designing a New Community; and Developing an Application – with a question and answer period after each one. This session is designed to be similar in content to the night before.

The final seminar will begin at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 21, also in the Commission Chambers of the Doña Ana County Government Center, with a focus on an interactive exercise in setting up a basic community-type plan at the sketch level so that participants can see the critical elements. PlaceMakers will facilitate the work. The development community is encouraged to participate, and county planning staff will be on hand at all three seminars.

The seminars will consist of group work using base maps, tracing paper, scales, pencils and pens to walk through the planning and application process.

Each of the sessions will be streamed live on the Doña Ana County website, www.donaanacounty.org. They will also be videotaped and subsequently

Looking at legislation

What's your take on a sampling of activity in Santa Fe?

ur non-paid citizen legislators have a nearly impossible job, especially this year, faced with the Incredible Shrinking Budget.

Since the state revenue crisis amounts to a fiscal house on fire, some of the moves of the legislature and the administration have been confusing.

Here in the final days of the 60-day session, let's look at some of the actions (or inactions) in Santa Fe. Bear in mind, the last week can be furious with changes, so some of the things mentioned below (current as of March 15) could be altered by the time you read this.

RICHARD

See what you think. Every session, our lawmakers spend time on things bound for nowhere, grinding the gears of the work pace. Here are some of this year's gear grinders.

• House Bills 220/221, regarding lateterm abortion and parental notification of abortion. Predictably, these failed to get out of committee. "I was going to ask some questions, but it's futile," Bob Wooley, a Republican representative from Roswell, told the New Mexico Political Report. "We all know how this committee is going to vote."

· House Bill 72, bringing back the death penalty. Again, this was rejected along party lines. A lot of time was spent on this bill, knowing it had no chance.

 House Bill 442, moving minimum wage to $9.25 an hour. Another deeply partisan issue, this has passed 37-30 in the House. The Senate Public Affairs Committee recommended "do pass" to the Senate. If it does pass the Senate, though, Gov. Susana Martinez will certainly veto.

Every year there are bills that make it through both houses but get vetoed by the governor. That's a key part of our system of checks and balance. Often, you know where the governor's coming from. Other times it's less clear. Here are two bills that had good support in the legislature, and seem to have a logic for our state.

• House Bill 144/166, Senate Bill 6 regarding industrial hemp. House sponsors include Doña Ana County's Bill Gomez and Rick Little. It passed the House (42-26) and Senate (30-12) but Gov. Martinez vetoed it. Often confused with marijuana, hemp is related to it but essentially inert. The strain for agriculture use is different from the one for getting high, the way popcorn is different from sweet corn for the can. Legalizing hemp would bring new agricultural opportunity to New Mexico. This bill is not even to allow hemp, but to research the feasibility. It's a low-water-use crop which could have given our struggling farmers another option. At least 16 other states have already legalized it, meaning this delay probably kills any competitive edge we might have gained. Most hemp and hemp products in America are currently legally imported from other countries, primarily China.

• House Bill 241, regarding teacher sick days and personal time. By now you've likely heard about the governor's veto of HB 241. Seldom do you see a governor veto something with support this widespread. It passed the House 64-3 and the Senate 39-0. Headlines have characterized this as teachers seeking more sick days. Actually, most teachers in the state already receive 10 sick days; the bill does not request more. However, as part of the state's current evaluations, teachers are penalized if they use more than three days of sick leave. The bill asks they not be penalized if their absences are within the guidelines of their local school systems. In the past Martinez has said she would be OK expanding the penalty-free window from three to five days, but doesn't like the 10 days. She cites figures that, since 2012, teachers missing 10 or more days have been reduced by 47 percent, producing savings in substitute teacher expense. Critics say the current system makes sick teachers go to class and could cause good teachers to move out of state.

The hemp bill probably does not have enough support to generate the two-thirds votes in both houses required for a veto override. The teacher bill could probably get the votes, but there may not be enough time left in the session for that effort.

Theatre a little jewel

To the editor:

To those who hold the fate of the Rio Grande Theatre in their palm, I urge those with this power not to close your fist on the Rio Grande. Study the facts. Do your due diligence to understand before you vote. The (Doña Ana) Arts Council is a proven group, dedicated to this fine venue. This little jewel is a linchpin in the old-new downtown experience. I urge the City Council not to fix something that isn't broken.

For that matter, why not double down by increasing city financial and/or maintenance support? "Subsidizing" in this very public interest does not have a demeaning connotation.

Separate and hyphenated

To the editor:

This is in support of Mr. Huntsman's excellent article, "A Caucasian-American's pet peeve."

Someday, minorities will wake up to realize that hyphenated titles only separate them into special categories of "oppressed" people, helpless and needing protection from the government and the Democrat party to survive every step of life.

Which brings up a pet peeve of mine: the resistance to voter ID laws. When will minorities stand up and demand their own personhood be equal to all other Americans? Why can't a minority find out how to get an ID in order to vote, in the age of Google? Why can't a minority figure out when and where to vote, when whites and Asians and all others can? When will the ACLU and so-called social justice groups that purport to stand up for minorities realize that they are engaging in racial discrimination of the worst kind?

Richard Reynaud Las Cruces

U.S. losing visitors

To the editor:

According to the Global Business Travel Association, in a single week following announcement of the ban against certain foreign tourists ... "business travel declined nearly $185 million."

An international scholar withdrew his participation in U.S. conferences, (stating) he "feared customs officials would ship him back to Paris as an illegal alien."

We served on the AFS Committee (student exchanges) at our daughter's high school. Tulsa University was a mile from our former home, a private university and one that had always drawn foreign students to its Petroleum Engineering School. I believe educational and cultural exchanges to the U.S. will decrease drastically.

The real minimum wage is zero

Congratulations, you make $100 an hour ... but you have no job

wo problems: government imposition of a minimum wage is price-fixing. Worse, it doesn't work because people don't live an hour at a time, they live month to month.

It's not in the best interest of consumers when governments fix the price of labor. Technically, price-fixing is when participants in a market buy or sell a product, service, or commodity only at a min fixed price.

MICHAEL SWICKARD

In My Opinion

the labor. The labor is a market buy or sell a product, service, or commodity only at a min fixed price.

Besides causing higher prices, price-fixing a minimum wage raises employment barriers for unskilled workers since workers > trade productivity for wages. If what a worker must be paid does not return an equal economic productivity, they cannot be employed.

Consider someone making $7 an hour for 30 hours a week. Their gross pay is $210 a week. If the minimum wage rises to $9 an hour, since the business labor costs may be fixed, that business may cut minimum wage employees to 15 hours a week, which is $135 a week. Of course, minimum wage earners may be the first cut since they have the least job experience. Then their minimum wage is zero.

Price fixing has been illegal in our country since the Sherman Act in 1890. When has any government price-fixing worked? Soviet Union price-fixing caused low prices for groceries in empty grocery stores.

In World War II our government froze wages, so for businesses to hire someone from a competitor they had to offer something else of value. It was health insurance, which was used rarely before then.

Over the years, the health insurance industry grew into one-sixth of our economy as our resources went to insurance and pharmaceutical companies along with lots of lawyers, lobbyists and politicians. Smaller amounts went to doctors and hospitals.

Price-fixing by government on domestically produced oil brought gas shortages and higher prices for energy in the 1970s along with increased economic power for the Middle East Oil Cartels. President Reagan stopped the price-fixing and oil prices went down.

The more government pricefixes, the worse it becomes for citizens. Economist Milton Friedman wrote, "The most important single central fact about a free market is that no exchange takes place unless both parties benefit."

My biggest concern in these minimum wage increases is that they preclude some, usually low-skilled workers, from even getting a job since they must return in productivity what they are paid. Often, work hours are cut for the already employed low-skill workers, which reduces their gross monthly income. We used to work a standard 40 hours a week. Lately it's 32 or 28 hours.

Now, if the government doesn't like what I, as an employer, pays, it is free to add any amount it wants to the paycheck of my employee (though the taxpayers foot that bill). But I have three factors always: markets including prices for my goods, labor costs to produce those goods and the return on investment that keeps me in business.

If you take the cost of labor over the possible return from the sale of my goods, I must either trim the work-force or close the business. That's Economics 101.

Negotiate lower drug prices

By SEN. JEFF STEINBORN, LAS CRUCES

As New Mexico struggles to cope with declining tax revenues and cuts to classrooms and health care, it is imperative for legislators to find new ways to improve the state's bottom line. That is why it is time to enact innovative policies to rein in the soaring cost of prescription drugs. It places a growing burden on our state budget each passing year.

With its enormous buying power, New Mexico should be more vigorously negotiating pharmaceutical drug prices to lower taxpayers' expense, and to free up resources for cash-strapped public education and other essential services. SB 354, creating an Interagency Pharmaceutical Purchasing Council, will make it happen.

The bill, if implemented, could save New Mexico up to $100 million per year in prescription drug costs, according to Dr. Martin Hickey, CEO of New Mexico Health Connections, the state's largest non-profit health plan.

The state, along with publicly-funded health care institutions and retiree health plans, is a major purchaser of prescription drugs. Together they spent $670 million on prescription drugs in 2016, a staggering 54 percent increase in two years. Spending on prescription drugs now accounts for the fastest growing part our state's health care budget. It could grow to a crippling portion in a few years if we do not act.

My bill would require we leverage the combined purchasing power of taxpayer-funded health agencies in New Mexico including Medicaid, the Departments of Health, Human Services, Corrections, retired state government workers' benefits, UNMH, and other public health organizations to drive hard bargains with pharmaceutical drug manufacturers for lower prices.

Using state buying power and bulk purchasing to negotiate for cheaper prescription drugs works. Some states are using this strategy on their own to save millions. Other states have joined together in multistate cooperatives to create even larger purchasing pools and larger savings. It is long overdue for New Mexico to take a hard look at these successful strategies.

The U.S. Department of Veteran Affairs negotiates for its drug purchases. It pays 40 to 50 percent less on average for the same drugs purchased by Medicare, for example. Bulk purchasing of critical pharmaceuticals in the form of vaccines for children is used by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. It extracts steep discounts from manufacturers, and distributes the vaccines at no cost.

The pharmaceutical industry opposes state government price negotiation, because it hits their profits.

Prescription drugs are valuable tools for health care and in protection and treatment of disease. Spiraling costs and spending on pharmaceuticals is crowding out other key priorities in the state budget. We need new and effective approaches to get dramatically lower prices now. It can be done. That is exactly what will happen if we enact SB 354.

The bipartisan Senate passed this bill unanimously. We urge the House of Representatives to do the same, and the governor to sign it into law.

An early-morning driver crashed into Ashley Furniture Homestore Saturday, March 11. The crash, which sent the driver to the hospital with non-life threatening injuries, left this visible hole in the store, at 3299 Del Rey Blvd. The store was closed, so no one inside the building was hurt. However, Ashley operator Wanda Bowman said the collision caused "major structural damage" to the building.

Chuck Davis: He fought the good fight

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

"Mr. Davis was a man of great integrity and a deep knowledge of New Mexico school laws, regulations, and finance," Las Cruces Public Schools Superintendent Dr. Gregory Ewing said last week about Chuck Davis.

Davis died March 9, just a week after his retirement from the LCPS board of education. Davis, who died a little more than month short of his 83rd birthday, served four terms and 16 years on the board. He was elected in 2001 and re-elected in 2005, 2009 and 2013.

One of Davis' last major votes as a board member was hiring Ewing late last year.

"In my first meeting with him, he terrified me with his questions and in my last meeting with him at his final board meeting his last words to me were 'I love you all,'" Ewing said. "This exemplifies the outstanding character and man he was. He has left a legacy here in Las Cruces for many children in the decades to come. We will all miss him."

"I miss him terribly," said Davis's wife, Helen, a retired teacher. "He was a good man who lived his beliefs and cherished his family above all. Chuck had a deep love and appreciation for Las Cruces and all the people who lived here. He was honored that Las Cruces gave him the opportunity to serve on the board of education. The highlight of his year was graduation."

Chuck and Helen Davis were married for 60 years.

"My dad understood the importance of opportunity and believed it was our job in public education to create that opportunity for everyone," said Chuck and Helen's daughter, Kathie Davis, principal of LCPS' Rio Grande Preparatory Institute. "He believed the role of public education was to make the world a better place. I will miss my dad but I will always hear his voice reminding me to fight the good fight, to stand for those who can't and don't mistake peace for justice."

"Mr. Davis was the patriarch of a family of educators," LCPS Chief Communications Officer Jo Galvan said. "His personal understanding of what it takes to be a teacher was evident during his many years on the school board. He always put students and staff first, and that's why his legacy will endure."

"I remember when I went to the election office, to declare my candidacy, I saw a tall man talking to the clerk," LCPS Board of Education President Maria Flores, who served with Davis on the board for eight years, said. "I introduced myself to Mr. Davis, and told him I was running for school board. He looked me up and down, and said, 'For what district?' When I told him district 3 (Davis represented district 1), he smiled and shook my hand."

"Mr. Davis was a champion for our students, the teachers and staff, and a devoted family man," Flores said. "He cared deeply and was proud to be a board member. He was the parliamentarian of the board and we all looked to him for guidance. I value the time we served together, and he will be missed by many school board members across the state."

"Chuck was one of the toughest and most focused men I have known," former LCPS Superintendent Stan Rounds said. "He was a testament to the New Mexico School Board's Association's (NMSBA) goals."

Davis was the NMSBA board member of the year for the state in 2016. He was also a member of the 2013 LCPS board of education that was recognized as the Large School Board of the Year by NMSBA. "He was NEA-New Mexico's Friend of Education both in 2001 and 2004 for his service on the LCPS board of education and his fight to regain collective bargaining," his daughter said, adding that Feb. 10, 2016 was declared Charles and Helen Day at the New Mexico Legislature due to their service to education.

Davis found error in 2000 presidential election vote

"As a poll watcher in the 2000 presidential election, it was my dad who found a mistake and put New Mexico in the Gore column for good," Rio Grande Preparatory Institute Principal Kathie Davis said.

"When he was poll watching, his Republican counterpart was mocking the Democrats for not voting for president but voting for all other offices. When my dad asked to look at the voting tape, he discovered that the number written on the top of the tape was written in such a manner that it was easily misread. After double checking the bottom of the tape where the machine had tallied the votes, the error was corrected and Gore won New Mexico by 366 votes," Kathie Davis said.

Chuck Davis was "precinct chair and district director for over a decade for the Democratic Party of New Mexico," she said. "He was honored with an Outstanding Service Award from the Democratic Party of New Mexico on April 30, 2011."

Capital Improvements Advisory Committee Member Sought

The City of Las Cruces is currently accepting applications for an opening on the Capital Improvements Advisory Committee that serves in accordance with the Las Cruces Development Impact Fee Ordinance.

Interested applicants must be representatives of the real estate, development, or building industries; including businesses that finance, underwrite, or lend money for real estate, development, or building purposes; and cannot be an employee or official of the City, County, or other governmental entity.

Committee members advise and assist the City in adopting land use assumptions, which includes a description of the service area and projection of changes, and land uses, densities, intensities, and population in the service area over at least a five-year period.

They review the capital improvements plan that identifies capital improvements or facility expansion, for which impact fees may be assessed, file written comments, and monitor and evaluate implementation of the capital improvements plan.

The committee also files annual reports with respect to the progress of the capital improvements plan and report to the City through the City Manager any perceived inequities in implementing the plan or imposing impact fees. It also advises the City of the need to update or revise the land use assumptions. capital improvements plan, impact fees, and advises the City regarding growth management strategies.

Applications can be picked up at the City Clerk's office inside City Hall at 700 N. Main St., or accessed online at: http://www.las-cruces.org/departments/city-clerks-office/ boards-commissions-and-committees. For more information, contact the City Clerk's Office

This year's march coincides with the 75th anniversary of the actual Bataan Death March, which involved the Imperial Japanese Army forcing 70,000 captured Allied soldiers defending the Philippine Islands to march 60 to 70 miles to various prison camps along the Bataan Peninsula in the Philip-

Five blinded veteran athletes from throughout the U.S. will participate in the full marathon. Steve Baskis, Lonnie Bedwell, Nate Gorham, Tim Hornik and Dan Standage, all members of the Blinded Veterans Association (BVA), will be assisted by three sighted volunteer guides - Victor Henderson, Kevin Baskis, and Nancy Standage.

"I really look forward to getting the team together and taking on this challenge," Gorham said. "The event will foster camaraderie among the participants and serve as just one more example of what blinded veterans can accomplish."

Blind participants and their guides will meet in Las Cruces, where they will enjoy the hospitality and encouragement of local residents organized by blinded veteran Terry Kebbel.

The Bataan Death March Memorial in Veterans Memorial Park is modeled after the uncles of Las Crucen Joe Martinez.

Baldonado of Tularosa were U.S. National Guardsmen among 1,800 New Mexicans who suffered in the Bataan Death March.

"New Mexico had the highest number of prisoners in the march of any state," Martinez said.

Martinez was instrumental in designing, paying for and installing Las Cruces' Bataan Death March Memorial in Veterans Memorial Park. The memorial features the names of all 1,800 New Mexicans who suffered through the death march.

"I was friends with (former New Mexico U.S. Senator) Pete Domenici when he was a city councilman in Albuquerque," Martinez said. "He said he thought we never really did enough to commemorate those who took part in the death march."

When Domenici learned that Martinez's uncles were among the original marchers, Martinez said, Domenici asked for his help in designing a monument.

Martinez, with the help of Las Cruces artists, designed the current memorial — two soldiers carrying a third with his arms over their necks — at an anticipated total cost of $300,000.

"Pete said, 'I can get you $150,000,' " Martinez said. " 'If I've learned one thing about projects like this, they require the involvement of the community they're in.' "

Martinez helped raise the remaining $150,000 from Las Cruces and surrounding community members. The project took five years, from 1997 to 2002.

The faces of two of the monument's soldiers were modeled after photographs of Martinez's uncles. The debilitated soldier represents Juan.

"People used to not talk about the death march because it was a surrender, not a win, and you're only supposed to talk about victories, conquests," Martinez said. "But it wasn't a surrender, (the soldiers) were surrendered."

After receiving orders to leave their posts along Filipino beaches and fall behind the densely forested Agno River, many of the soldiers became sick before they were captured and forced to march.

Juan suffered from dysentery prior to the capture and had he fallen during the march, he would have been impaled by the Japanese soldiers' bayonets, as were many others.

Jose and another soldier carried Juan most of the way to the prison camps, as 20,000 marchers died either during the march or in the camps, including about half the New Mexicans. Both Juan and Jose survived and were released three years later when the war ended.

Spaceport America chosen for balloon test

BULLETIN REPORT

In collaboration with teams from Boeing and White Sands Missile Range, a giant heliumfilled balloon lifted off from Spaceport America in New Mexico, carrying a flight-sized boilerplate Starliner spacecraft up to about 40,000 feet where it floated across the San Andres Mountains for a parachute landing on the other side.

The goal was for the spacecraft to reach the same velocity it would experience during a return from space and for the parachutes to deploy as planned.

"We took another step toward returning a domestic crew launch capability to the U.S.," said John Mulholland. vice president and program manager for Boeing's Commercial Crew Program. "Our team is reviewing the data from this first successful test and gearing up for a few more drops that will enable us to qualify our parachutes for spaceflight."

Data collected from these tests will be used to verify the parachute inflation characteristics and landing system performance, as well as the altitude and descent rate of the Starliner at touchdown.

"We are proud that Boeing chose Spaceport America as a test location for the CST-100 Starliner," said Daniel

Increased funding is paving the way to better streets

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

City streets are in better shape overall than they were five years ago, city Public Works Department (PWD) staff told Las Cruces Mayor Ken Miyagishima and members of the Las Cruces City Council at the council's Monday, March 13, work session.

The city spends about $4.5 million a year on street maintenance and repair, compared to an annual budget of about $400,000 five years ago, said PWD civil engineer Hector Terrazas.

The city hired Infrastructure Management Services (IMS) of Tempe, Arizona, in 2011 to conduct Las Cruces' first pavement-condition survey and analysis, Terrazas said. IMS recently completed a five-year update showing that the annual pavement condition index (PCI) for the city increased from 62 (out of 100) with a backlog of 17.5 percent in 2011 to a PCI of 64 and a backlog of 14 percent in 2016.

That network average of 64 gives the city a grade of B+, Terrazas said. The typical roadway network nationwide scores between 60 and 65, he said. The backlog refers to streets in poor or very poor condition, with a PCI of 40 or lower, Terrazas said.

There are more than 469 miles of roads within the city limits, he said, including local (residential) streets, which make up about 74 percent of the total; collectors, which move traffic from local streets to arterials and make up about nine percent of city streets; and arterials, which move traffic from collectors to freeways and are about 17 percent of the total.

If the city continues to spend $4.5 million annually on street maintenance and also includes city capital improvement projects funds each year, it will reach its target of a 65 PCI and 12 percent backlog within five years, City interim PWD Director Louis Grijalva said.

Funding for street maintenance comes from a quarter-percent gross receipts tax (GRT), along with GRT for flood control, Grijalva said.

This section of Melendres Street from Las Cruces Avenue to Hadley Avenue is a full reconstruction project for the city. All underground work, including gas, water, sewer and storm drains, along with curb-and-gutter work, sidewalks and drive pads, has been completed, city Contracts Administrator David Sedillo said. Crews are preparing the roadway surface for the final pavement application, which will include the natural surface (sub grade), installation of a geo-synthetic grid to help stabilize the existing soils, a layer of base coarse and finally the asphalt pavement, Sedillo said. Barring unanticipated delays, the project is scheduled to be completed by the end of the month, he said.

During the past three years, the city has had an additional $12.6 million in hold-harmless GRT funds to spend on street maintenance, interim Assistant City Manager Loretta Reyes said. That funding will end in 2018, she noted.

Investment in preventative maintenance is more cost-effective than reconstruction, Terrazas said. If streets deteriorate past their overlay rehabilitation limit, the cost of maintenance and its inconvenience to residents and business owners increases. When pavement starts to show cracks, rehabilitation is already overdue, he said.

That's why it is important for the city to keep its backlog of streets in poor or very poor condition below 15 percent, he said.

It would cost the city $107 million over five years to bring all its streets up to an 85 or "excellent" rating on the PCI. Although the city does not have those funds available, Mayor Ken Miyagishima said a future council work session should explore using available city bonding capacity to invest about $35 million in street maintenance.

Terrazas said IMS' report, including the condition of individual streets and scheduled maintenance, will soon be posted on the city's website under the Public Works Department.

The city's "total roadway network" is valued at $500 million, not including the land it occupies, Terrazas said. It is "the city's largest and most visible asset," according to city documents.

CORRECTION

A story and photograph in the March 10, 2017 edition of the Bulletin incorrectly stated that new way-finding signs in downtown Las Cruces were erected by the Downtown Las Cruces Partnership (DLCP). In fact, the leads on the signage project were staff from the City of Las Cruces' Parks and Recreation Department and the Facilities Management section of the Public Works Department, Las Cruces Downtown Coordinator Andy Hume said. They were assisted by city downtown development staff as well as DLCP staff.

Funding for the signs came from the New Mexico Department of Health (NMDOH), Hume said, and their historical narrative was provided by Chris Schurtz.

"City staff appreciates partnering with NMDOH on this project," Hume said. "The new wayfinding signs will provide valuable information and history to downtown visitors and connect downtown with our historic neighborhoods."

Rep. Pearce to attend Las Cruces town hall

BULLETIN REPORT

Congressman Steve Pearce announced this week he will host a town hall in Las Cruces on Saturday, March 18.

The event will take place at noon at the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum, 4100 Dripping Springs Road.

Two recent protests outside Pearce headquarters on Telshor Boulevard were staged to voice criticism of the congressman for not appearing in Las Cruces, the largest city in his district, during the Congressional recess. Pearce's press release announcing the Farm & Ranch appearance did refer to the protests, organized by Indivisible Groups of Southern New Mexico, principally in Las Cruces and Truth or Consequences.

"I'm fortunate to represent a district that is so passionate and engaged in issues that affect the livelihoods of themselves, their families, and that of New Mexico," he stated in the release. "It's important that we take immediate action to come together for commonsense solutions that build up our communities for generations to come."

He continued: "Districts across the nation are facing a difficult political climate right now, which is why I have invited leadership from Indivisible Groups of Southern New Mexico to co-host this town hall with me. I enjoy having a direct yet respectful conversation about the priorities of New Mexico, and I look forward to doing so this weekend in Las Cruces. "This process is not easy, but it's the path we have to take to find common ground on issues from health care, to tax reform, to the security of our southern border. As we meet for the community discussion this weekend, we must keep in mind that our actions moving forward are only as effective as the conversations we are able to have."

This is Rep. Pearce's fourth town hall in less than two months. His telephone town hall drew more than 10,000 participants from New Mexico, and more than 300 constituents showed up to his town hall in Ruidoso. Rep. Pearce's most recent town hall was held in Hobbs.

BUSINESS

Mexico: Re-scripting the narrative

By ALTA LeCOMPTE

Las Cruces Bulletin

Jon Barela, guest speaker for the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce 25th annual awards dinner, called on southern New Mexicans to re-script the narrative often used to describe the economic relationship between the U.S. and Mexico.

Many people who live far from the border fail to understand the importance of trade between the two countries, Barela said.

"Let me state this very clearly: Mexico is an ally of our economy, not the thief of our jobs," he said.

Barela is CEO of The Borderplex Alliance, a privately funded organization that promotes economic development on both sides of the U.S.-Mexico border. He previously served as New Mexico cabinet secretary for economic develop-

Contrary to popular wisdom, a "very interesting dynamic" has been taking place during the past 10 years, he said. Hundreds of thousands of jobs have been reshored from China to the border area.

In the past six years, the rate of job creation quadrupled in New Mexico, "because of our unique relationship with our southern neighbor,"

Bus ridership reaches new high

BULLETIN REPORT

Bus ridership rose 36 percent in February from January 2017 and reached new highs for several bus routes, according to the South Central Regional Transit District, which provides public transportation in Doña Ana and Otero Counties.

A contributing factor was a significant increase in both the Turquoise and Purple routes operating from Las Cruces via Chaparral and Sunland Park to El Paso's Northeast and Westside Transit Centers. Further, the Orange route from Alamogordo to Las Cruces was up 14 percent.

Ridership for the month reached 1,598 rides. "Improving connections, adding bus stops, and advertising in the Camino Real and on our buses has contributed to the improvement in ridership," David Armijo, SCRTD executive director said.

Further enhancements to the bus network are planned in the coming months, including the addition of bus schedule holders at bus stops, the launch of an improved website, more social media, and the use of the Google Transit app. Google Transit is a free bus app that provides access to the bus route schedule on a smart phone.

The bus network ridership growth is on target to reach 20,000 rides this year and is achieving the goals set forth in the 2015 Five-Year plan established by the SCRTD Board of Directors. Ridership is up about 85 percent from this point last year. As the system matures, ridership is expected to grow to 36,000 trips in 2018.

Bus fares are $1 for adults, and 50 cents for seniors (60-plus), youth (6-18), and students and people with disabilities. Children (5 & under) may ride free with each paying adult. Transfers between routes are provided free. SCRTD accepts Transfers from RoadRUNNER Transit, Z-Trans, Sun Metro, and Route 83 Sunland Park.

Barela said.

"Six million American jobs rely on trade with Mexico.

"In this region, there are 275,000 jobs that relate to manufacturing (in Mexico). "In Michigan, 138,000 jobs are directly tied to our neighbors to the south."

Who do we think we are?

Barela said he hopes the cultural, linguistic and historical ties between the U.S. and Mexico "will always be a beacon for how to engage in bi-lateral dialogue."

He said people who live along the border realize the symbiotic relationship between the two countries.

"We are the gateway for trade," he said.

"People who have never been close to the border often view this region in stereotypical terms. They portray us as backward, unsophisticated."

Another stereotype incorrectly associated with the Borderplex is violence, Barela said.

"Let's be honest: We have a very safe, respectable area," he said. "But very often businesses overlook the border area because of safety."

Barela said the Doña Ana County violent crime rate dropped last year while the national rate rose.

The violent crime rate also is dropping in Juarez, he said.

"... St. Louis and cities all over the U.S. have higher crime rates than Ciudad Juárez."

"We must re-script the narrative," he said.

The elephant in the room

Barela called border security the elephant in the room.

"Keep in mind Mexico has its own security issues on its southern border," he said. "Most migration is coming from Central America by way of Mexico, and Mexicans are very concerned about their porous southern border."

He said a common-sense solution would be to work in a bi-national manner and use our resources to help Mexico secure its southern border.

"If we continue as a county to demonize our southern neighbor and portray this region as anything other than a wonderful, safe region in which to live — if the rhetoric continues about our southern neighbor ... we take away the hundreds of thousands of jobs that have been created. We take hope away from Ciudad Juárez and this region. ...

'That is the surest way to destabilize a region," Barela said.

The soul of a region

Again calling for a re-scripting of the narrative, Barela compared the Borderplex with Phoenix.

"The Phoenix crime rate is two and a half times that of our region. They have a horrid climate, education that's not very good and the cost of doing business has skyrocketed. But Phoenix doesn't have the reputation of a lawless, violent place.

"By the way, people live there, but it's not home. Its history is measured in decades, not centuries.

"We have a soul here we can market. We have an amazing community with people who respect one another's cultures. "That's a heck of a thing to sell to people."

Half a lifetime at NMSU

Mistakes, successes of university life

t's official, I've been at NMSU for a long time. In fact, I have spent half my life as an Aggie professor. I was 29 years, eight months and 13 days old when I started. And as of March 14, I had been employed by NMSU for 29 years eight months and 13 days.

In my time in Las Cruces, I've had two children, gotten divorced, gotten remarried, been an empty nester and become a widower.

Meanwhile, my career has limped along, receiving periotic promotions, at a slower pace than most, but like a slow moving nerf shark, always moving forward.

Meanwhile, NMSU has seen 10 presidents, 12 if you count Bill Conroy and Manuel Pacheco as two each, both having served two separate times. Some of these presidents have been real characters. Michael Orenduff, who I didn't know very well, was apparently a bit of a scoundrel; he didn't last very long. Then there is Barbara Couture, for whom, unfortunately, I have to take some responsibility. Back then, I was Faculty Senate chair and I served on the search committee that recommended Barbara for hire. Dr. Couture managed to alienate everyone from faculty to deans to legislators to regents. It was the last group that did her in.

Speaking of my tenure as Faculty Senate chair — that was something of a ride. It was the year of three presidents. At the beginning of my term, Waded Cruzado was serving as interim president. After a brouhaha over her being called NMSU's "first woman president" instead of "first woman interim president," she was replaced by Manuel Pacheco. Then in January, Barbara Couture began her short tenure. I like to think I did my part to keep the place going. In fact, I consider my time as chair to be my greatest service as an Aggie.

The Board of Regents made some real mistakes over the years. The worst was the failure of the regents to approve an increase in admission standards proposed by President James Halligan back in the late 1980s. The consequence was the admission of students who weren't qualified. Some of those students overcame their lack of preparation and went on to great success, but too many dropped out without completing a degree. The result was NMSU's abysmal retention and graduation rates. That error wasn't corrected until just recently.

Another mistake was the failure by the regents to hire Waded Cruzado as permanent president. Waded is the most charismatic academic I've ever met. She would have done a marvelous job for NMSU. And she has done a marvelous job for Montana State, which had the good sense to hire her. But she got sideways with the Board of Regents, so that was that.

Recently, the worst mistake by the regents was the failure to raise tuition last year, a decision that resulted in needlessly disruptive lay-offs. Let's hope the regents don't make the same mistake this year.

But don't get me wrong. NMSU has been very good to me. It is a terrific place to work. I love my job. Multiple presidents, misguided regents and all the other problems are nothing compared to the joy of teaching a class of undergraduates or the sense of discovery when conducting research.

NMSU allows me tremendous freedom. Take this column, which I've written now for almost a decade. Any number of times I criticized legislators, governors, mayors, university presidents and yes, even my ultimate bosses, the NMSU Board of Regents. Yet, no NMSU official has ever said anything to me about content, nor asked for pre-approval. I've not been asked ever to change one word.

What a job!!

Christopher A. Erickson, Ph.D., is a professor of economics at New Mexico State University. He is proud to be an Aggie. The opinions expressed may not be shared by the regents and administration of NMSU. Erickson can be reached at chrerick@ nmsu.edu.

Home 2 Stay helps homeowners in design and renovation projects, including exterior work.

Business facilitates renovation process

By ADAM PALOMINO

Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces homeowners looking to renovate their house minus the hassle typically associated with home renovation projects need look no further than Home 2 Stay Design & Renovation, owned and operated by Nancy and Peter Barnes-Smith. Self-described "management contractors," the couple look to make the process as fun and stress-free as possible.

"People watch these home DIY shows and think, 'Oh, I can do that!' But they quickly come to realize it isn't as simple as they thought," Nancy Barnes-Smith said. "We've talked to so many people who've tried taking on a project on their own and had it go terribly wrong, or they've hired someone and the results were less than desired."

To lessen the load, the duo sits down with homeowners to help them make their dream home a reality. "We're here to help them find what they want vs. what they think they want," says Peter. That normally entails accompanying the homeowners when shopping for materials and helping them find the perfect match.

With 40 years' experience as an estimator under Peter's belt, the duo also assists homeowners in avoiding price manipulation, with Peter going in for an initial estimate to give homeowners a broad idea of the price, along with searching the market for the fairest price available.

Home 2 Stay is licensed, bonded and insured, as are all the contractors and subcontractors they partner with. The duo work with several local charities and helps senior citizens making their houses more accessible.

For a free consultation, call Peter or Nancy at 575-522-4022.

Building owners have a big role to play in revitalization

Owning a commercial building is a big responsibility no matter where it's located. The responsibility is greater in a revitalization zone where all eyes are on the success of the district. From daily upkeep to navigating lease rates and finding the right tenant mix, a building owner's work is never done. And yet, good ownership practices can make a big impact on revitalization, and therefore, on a community at large. Great building owners, those who take their roles seriously, and put best practices into place, should not be taken for granted.

Our downtown inventory of buildings is a mixed bag, to be certain. The buildings exemplify a vast range of architectural styles, sizes, and functionality.

ARIANNA PARSONS Downtown Lowdown

No matter the building, certain steps can be taken to make sure they are put into productive use that benefits the community.

Some of these steps are:

• Making sure the space is occupied. Vacant spaces are perhaps the hardest issue for a revitalization zone to overcome. Chronic vacancies present numerous issues, not the least of which is negative public perception. Though finding a highest-use tenant is the ideal, often any tenant is better than no tenant at all.

- Activating store fronts. Even if a building is not vacant, one can look vacant if there are bars on the windows, drawn shades and little activity.
  - · Keeping buildings up to code. The longer property owners allow a building to fall into disrepair, the harder it will be to lease them or sell them later. Consistent, diligent maintenance is key. Similarly, a savvy landlord knows that responding to a tenant's call for repairs or upgrades will reduce turnovers and vacancies and ultimately buoy their bottom line.

- Staying realistic about the market and knowing when it is time to sell. Even in a revitalization zone an old or poorly maintained building will still not appraise for an amount much greater than if it were located elsewhere. Setting realistic goals and prices (both sales prices and lease rates) will help to ensure that properties can be sold, repurposed, and occupied.
- · Making short-term improvements to yield long-term results. Many of our downtown buildings have not been upgraded in decades. Relatively small investments such as new paint, new windows, and larger updates like central air can help attract long-term tenants at higher lease rates.

DLCP works with building owners on a regular basis to establish best practices for building owners, upgrade facades, and attract the right tenant mix for our downtown. We are thrilled at many of the upgrades that have occurred over the last year and hope you will come down and experience the changes for yourselves.

Artist Bill Gambling's "Yellow Arch"

Aa Studios celebrate legacy of Bill Gambling

Artist William Thomas "Bill" Gambling died just shy of his 91st birthday in 2008. But he left behind a legacy of unique and beautiful art.

Gambling's work will be on display at Aa Studios, 2645 Doña Ana Road, during March and April, said gallery owner Roy van der Aa.

Gambling's 70-year career as an artist included the creation of works in a variety of media, including water colors, oil, acrylic, charcoal and ink. His works are on display in private collections across the country.

A native of Boise, Idaho, Gambling and his wife, Helen, lived in New York and North Carolina before moving to Las Cruces in 1991.

For its show, van der Aa said Aa Studios will feature works by Gambling from 1941 to 1955, when the artist was traveling to San Francisco, Mexico City, Alaska and New York. The show will include "original paintings, drawings, collages and hand-pulled prints in various media," van der Aa said. These pieces from Gambling's early work have never been seen in New Mexico before, he added.

Gambling's "preoccupation with form and color is evident from the beginning," van der Aa said.

The gallery is open by appointment. Call van der Aa at 575-520-8752 to schedule a visit.

'Myself and Pangur Ban' is a historically inspired play for St. Patrick's

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

A new play by Las Cruces playwright and actor Megan Berver titled "Myself and Pangur Ban" will be performed for the first time ever at 6 p.m. on Friday, March 17 at Picacho Peak Brewery, 3900 W. Picacho Ave..

Children's activities in honor of St. Patrick's Day (March 17) will precede the play, and will begin at 4 p.m., said the play's director, Joe Pfeiffer.

Tickets are $6 for a parent and child or $12 per family.

"Myself and Pangur Ban" celebrates the folklore and music of Ireland," Pfeiffer said, and includes three Irish legends: "The King With Donkey Ears," "The Giants' Causeway" and "The Children of Lir."

In the play, the stories are told to a monk named Columbanus by his cat, Pangur Ban with assistance from the Irish faerie people (Tuatha du Danan (Irish faerie people), Pfeiffer said.

The play will be performed by a troupe of Las Cruces actors who call themselves Enchantment Historical Productions (EHP). They last performed Berver's original play "Mary Queen of Scots (or Who Done It to Darnley)" at last November's Renaissance Arts-Faire. They also performed at New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum's Cowboy Days earlier this month.

The cast of "Myself and Pangur Ban" includes Berver as the cat, Pangur Ban," Christopher Horning as Columbanus, along with Sean Tierney, Ally Feder, Spencer Gilbert, Cory Gasparich, Micaela de la Rosa, Melody Hagaman-Burns, Andrea Severson, Leslie Hanna Feder and Chrissy Wallace.

"I've really enjoyed working with these people to bring these stories to life; our guiding principle is that we want our audience to have fun, and we have a lot of fun doing that," Pfeiffer said. "We're always aware in our productions that we're telling old stories in a new time, and we're able to use that to bring in a lot of humor."

EHS "presents light-hearted, family-friendly, historically inspired plays, skits, and other Entertainment," Pfeiffer said. "Our plays are written to take advantage of and showcase the individual skills and talents of our members, including acting, music, dancing, physical comedy, juggling, acrobatics and sleight-of-hand. Our costumes strive to be as historically accurate as possible."

How high will a basketball bounce when dropped from shoulder height?

a. back to shoulder height b. less than shoulder height c. higher than shoulder height

If you answered "b" you are right! When a ball is dropped to the ground, it comes back up almost to the point it was dropped from, but

How many differences can you spot between these two players?

When a basketball is held above the ground, it has a lot of potential energy and no kinetic energy. As it falls, it starts losing its potential energy and gets kinetic energy.

When the ball hits the ground, it has lots of kinetic energy. The friction against the ground slows the ball down, but it also slightly heats the ball. This is thermal energy.

The ball bounces back up but to a lower height than where it started. The original potential energy was transformed into thermal energy and kinetic energy. And that's just the way the ball bounces.

'20th Century Women' a poignant film

By JEFF BERG

For the Bulletin

The film is not about anything other than the confusion of the main characters, shown in a series of well-planned and positioned together vignettes. It is sort of a coming-of-age film, about a 50-plus-year-old single mother along with two boarders who live in her old house.

It's a trifle hard to describe this interesting and well-done film which stars my second-favorite actress Annette Bening, (who looks exactly like -or vice versa, an inamorata from my past) as the confused but freethinking and independent mother who is determined to raise her son, Jamie, in an upright way.

Dorothea chain-smokes and wears Birkenstock's in '70s California. She oversees a somewhat chaotic household that has an open-door policy, and has unplanned dinner parties for groups of people she might have met earlier in the day. Dorothea loves her home, her cat, and her smokes but she is taken aback by all the cultural changes taking place around her.

GRADE: A+

Director Mike Mills has made this movie based on his own mother. Mills' earlier work, wherein Christopher Plummer won an Oscar, was "Beginners," which was about his father, who came out as gay at age 75. Mills must have had an interesting and unique experience growing up!

"20th Century Women" takes place in Santa Barbara, California, in 1979. Jimmy Carter looks worn out while giving speeches on TV. Skateboarding, Judy Blume, and punk are 'in'. The two boarders are Abbie, a young woman played by an almost unrecognizable Greta Gerwig, who is a would-be photographer recovering from cervical cancer; and Bill, an earnest but somewhat unusual young man who cobbles together a living as a mechanic and carpenter, but who really wants to be a potter. He is helpful but unfocused, while Abbie is just the opposite.

Son Jamie's best friend is Julie, who has an interesting blend of depression, confusion, and promiscuity. One of her favorite things to do is to slip into Jamie's room at night and sleep with him, sex-free and clothed on the mattress on the floor. Jamie must work hard to keep his own raging hormones in check, especially when Julie shares mild stories of her sexual adventures.

In a moment of panic and insecurity, Dorothea doubts her own skills as a mother and asks both Abbie and Julie to help her, by sharing their lives with the boy. An unusual approach, but one that sort of works for Jamie, as Abbie is soon taking him to punk rock shows and offering him feminist literature to read, including "Our Bodies, Ourselves," a ground-breaking book of the times. Jamie certainly delves into the subject of the book when he gets into a fight with a school chum over the subject of "clitoral stimulation." A favorite scene is when Mom and Son discuss the reason for the sparring match.

Jamie's head is probably spinning from all the female stimulation in his life...each woman is loving, but also complicated and eccentric. He learns about cancer, pregnancy scares and the fear of aging. He's a good kid who tries hard, but he needs time sort this all out.

"20th Century Women" is terrific. It is funny, poignant, pointed, well-acted, well written, and very believable. And it's unfortunate Bening wasn't nominated for more awards, although AARP's "Movies for Grownups" recognized her diligent work.

Film festival celebrates second year in Cruces

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH

Las Cruces Bulletin

After five days of film-watching, workshops, awards ceremonies and schmoozing, the second Las Cruces International Film Festival wound to a close March 12.

The events attracted such celebrities as Brendan Fraser and Johnny Galecki, who shared their kindness and humor with festival-goers.

"It was fantastic, better than I hoped," said LCIFF Executive Director Ross Marks. "It's a great, incredible reflection of New Mexico State University and of our city."

Marks, an NMSU instructor at the Creative Media Institute, said this is the only film festival of which he knows presented by a college. He expressed gratitude to volunteers, sponsors and the community.

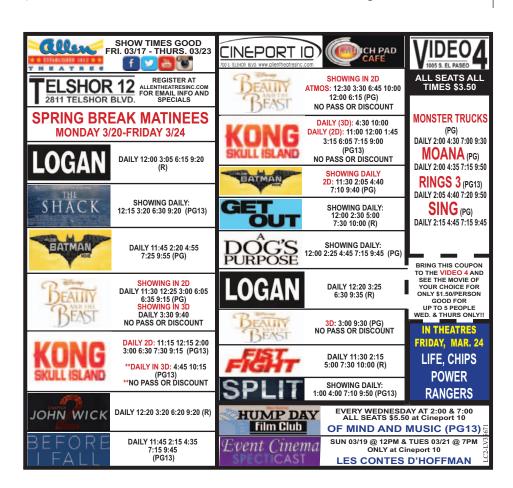

"I wanted the filmmakers to love it and they did," he said. "I wanted the patrons to love it and they did. I wanted the sponsors to love it and they were happy, and the special guests loved it too." Special guests included Jon Heder ("Napoleon Dynamite") and some of the cast and crew of "The Tiger Hunter," which aired on the festival's opening night.

Thursday was Brendan Fraser day. At NMSU's Corbett Center he spoke for an hour-and-a-half and answered student questions.

"(Acting) is not just declaring a major," Fraser told the students. "It's a choice, and you have to stick to it. Have you really made up your mind? If you hear that voice of dissent that says distance yourself, listen to it, if you trust your gut, you will usually do the right thing."

Fraser also introduced and answered questions before and after the two films he had requested to be shown, "School Ties" and "The Quiet American." And finally, during an awards ceremony held at Hotel Encanto, he graciously accepted the LCIFF "Outstanding Achievement in Entertainment" award.

"Brendan and Johnny sent messages that they were extremely grateful," Marks said. "Brendan wants to come back and make a movie in Las Cruces."

On March 10, films showed continuously, and workshops on screenwriting, film technology and getting started in show business highlighted the day. Priscilla Moralez, Los Angeles producer and talent manager, was honored during the evening filmmakers' reception.

All-day screening continued on March 11. A makeup and special-effects workshop was packed at the NMSU Creative Media Institute Theatre, and a comedy workshop brought out some "Big Bang Theory" crew members (Galecki; Don Foster, a set writer for "Roseanne" and "Big Bang Theory:" writer and director Deborah Kaplan; and Mary T. Quigley, fashion set designer). They had the audience in stitches talking about their experiences.

Foster, former NMSU student, closed the Q&A period at the comedy workshop telling the audience, "If you seek wonder and show compassion every day — you'll be all right."

The festival awards ceremony brought together filmmakers, judges and others to celebrate the long but satisfying days of the event.

Marks said that, after a few weeks of teaching at NMSU, he and his crew will be planning for the 2018 event.

"My goal is every year to get a little better," He said.

President of Temple Beth-El convenes with North American Jewish leaders

BULLETIN REPORT

Ellen Torres, president of the board of trustees of Temple Beth-El in Las Cruces, joined more than 50 presidents and presidentselect from Reform congregations throughout North America for the Union for Reform Judaism's 19th Annual Scheidt Seminar in San Diego, to discuss solutions to everyday congregational problems, explore Torah-based governance, improve leadership skills, network, and share successful program ideas. Dozens of additional congregational presidents will attend a second URJ Scheidt Seminar in April 2017, in Atlanta, Georgia.

The seminar was established 19 years ago, when Rudi and Honey Scheidt partnered with the Union for Reform Judaism (URJ). Scheidt noted that there had not been a training opportunity for him when he was president of his congregation, Temple Israel in Memphis, Tennessee, and recognized how helpful it would have been.

Seminar participants heard from URJ President Rabbi Rick Jacobs and Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion (HUC-JIR) President Rabbi Aaron Panken about the Reform Movement and how the congregations, HUC-JIR and the URJ can work together to strengthen congregations.

Torres said in a press release that she attended the Scheidt Seminar to learn much-needed, valuable information, and to make contacts to help the Las Cruces Temple move forward in the 21st Century. The theme of the four days was "Building a Sacred Partnership" and discovering the "why" – defining the purpose of devotion and commitment in synagogues and congregations. We are here for the "why," not just the "what."

"The role of the synagogue president is critically important to the vitality of modern Jewish life," Jacobs said in the release. "Presidents are the cornerstone of congregational life, inspiring sacred action in their community, investing in our Jewish future, and repairing the world. The knowledge and tools these presidents receive at the URJ Scheidt Seminar enable their individual congregations to play essential roles within the powerful force that is Reform Judaism, as together we help more people lead lives of wholeness, justice, and compassion."

St. Paul's to host March 31 enchilada supper fundraiser

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 225 W. Griggs Ave., will hold its annual spring enchilada supper from 4:30 to 7 p.m. on Friday, March 31 at the church, said St. Paul's music director, Douglas Weeks.

Twice a year, St. Paul's

Church provides local chile and pinto beans, to Roberto of Roberto's Restaurant on Amador Street, who prepares his famous sauce to make red chile cheese enchiladas.

The meal includes red enchiladas (with an egg on top by request) or a chicken-pot pie, beans, slaw, roll, drink and dessert for $8 for adults and $3 for children under age 12. The meals are available to eat in or take out. Tickets for the supper are available in advance through the church office or at the door.

Proceeds from the supper will benefit St. Paul's music ministry program, Weeks said.

Hand-bell choirs began enchilada supper fundraisers at St. Paul's back in the late 1960s, he said, "although the church had held fundraising dinners in the basement of the church dating back at least to the '20s. This dinner helps support the music ministry of the church, providing funding for a college student choir intern program, underwriting a concert series and other special events, and providing for purchases of instruments and equipment beyond the budget, as well as supplementing the regular church budget,"

Weeks said more than 75 church members and music ministry participants work in each biannual supper.

For more information, contact Weeks at 575-644-6999.

Appropriate plants for your landscape

By SUZANNE MICHAELS

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

"I think everyone should have some outside time every day," says Rachel Gioannini, Master Gardener, who is now completing a Master's of Science degree in Horticulture at NMSU and has been designing residential landscapes for the past 12 years.

"It's important," she continues, "to turn off the TV, get out of the house, and find an outdoor serene place to be quiet." Gioannini will be helping attendees create their own serene setting while being water-wise at the Lush and Lean presentation on Thursday, March 23 sponsored by Las Cruces Utilities (LCU).

Gioannini's topic is selecting appropriate plants for our climate and placement in your landscape. She stresses, "Too many people think water-wise means a yard full of rocks and two agaves!" But the trick is understanding there are a multitude of plants that will thrive in our region with very little water. Gioannini adds we need diversity in the plant community we create around us. She thinks many plants, such as oleanders have been overplanted in the desert southwest; her goal is to expose residents to other beautiful plants that will succeed here.

Her top three suggestions for choosing the correct plants for your serene space:

1) Understand the size of the mature plants – will they work in the location you are considering?

2) Think about the kind of investment you are willing to make in your landscape – in terms of time, money, and water

3) Think about how the landscape will look year-round.

As a Landscape Designer, Gioannini's job is to listen to customer's ideas and challenges explaining, "Everyone has to work within the environment we live in and within a budget; maybe there are kids and a dog that also im-

'Back by Noon' trip to Pena Blanca

The Southwest Environmental Center invites the public on a free exploration of Pena Blanca on March 18.

The hike is part of SWEC's Back by Noon Series. Participants will meet in front of SWEC, 275 Main St., at 8 a.m.

Participants will see lichen-covered rocks, unique cracks and crevices, shallow caves, native flora, and Native American sites with great views of the Mesilla Valley on this hike.

Richard Spellenberg, botanist, author and retired NMSU professor, will guide the one-hour round-trip hike. Footing is uneven, with a couple of small hills to climb. RAT-ING: Moderate Advanced reservations are required. Space is limited. For more information and to register, call (575) 522-5552. Visit www.wildmesquite.org to see the full Back by Noon schedule.

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces Railroad Museum will host a needle-punch embroidery workshop March 29 and April 5 from 10 a.m. to noon.

This two-part class will introduce you to the technique and allow time for practice. The first session will teach you the punching technique and practice on a small swatch of fabric.

In the second session, students will begin on a piece of their own design.

Class size is limited to six participants, ages 15 and up. Cost: $10. All supplies will be provided, but if you like you may bring your own sewing scissors and a bottle of inexpensive clear nail polish.

During the Victorian Era, women created many beautiful items for their homes using a variety of needlecraft techniques. One of these was needle punch embroidery, a fun and easy-to-learn craft. Needle punch embroidery has been used to decorate clothing and decorations since the ancient Egyptians, and was used extensively by the Russians in the 17th century. It regained popularity during the Victorian era when home decorating trends leaned towards embellishing everything.

Come try your hand at this fascinating craft and take home a creation suitable for framing. Once you've learned the technique, you will be able to create many items for your home, from bookmarks, to throw pillows, to wall hangings.

Students must register in person at the Museum of Nature and Science located at 411 North Main Street. Registrations are due by Saturday, March 25.

The Las Cruces Railroad Museum is located at 351 N. Mesilla Street and is open Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. For additional information, visit the website museums. las-cruces.org or call (575) 647-4480.

If you need an accommodation for a disability to enable you to fully participate in this event, please contact the museum 48 hours prior to the event.

Las Cruces ranks No. 10 on National List

BULLETIN REPORT

Las Cruces is one of the most overlooked cities in America, a new list from DK Eyewitness Travel reports.

At number 10 on the list of the 20 most underrated U.S. cities, DK's in-house travel experts write, "Thanks to its proximity to three natural and historic wonders – the Organ Mountain Desert Peaks, White Sands National Monument, and the Prehistoric Trackways National Monument – Las Cruces has long been an important tourist base. But these days, attractions within the city itself make a longer stay far more appealing. There's a lively theatre and arts scene (check out the monthly Downtown Ramble), spectacular year-round golf, and tourist trails that highlight local ale and wine producers, and even the humble green chile."

In acknowledging the designation, Mayor Ken Miyagishima said, "This rating is a real positive for Las Cruces. The classification means Las Cruces is a national treasure that hasn't yet been fully discovered. Receiving such global exposure will certainly draw more visitors to our area."

"The timing is perfect," interim Economic Development Director Philip San Filippo said. "There are three major events that the article could help generate more outside interest, and tourists; the Las Cruces International Film Festival, now underway; the Bataan Death March on the 19th of this month, and the Las Cruces Country Music Festival April 28 through 30."

City Manager Stuart Ed said, "Over the years, Las Cruces has been recognized as a Best Place to Retire, a Playful City USA Community, Best Small Metro Area for Business and Careers, Top 20 Boomtowns and more. This is one more giant feather in our hat!"

According to its website, DK is the bestselling and award-winning publisher of DK Eyewitness Travel Guides, with more than 500 books, eBooks and apps that cover more than 200 destinations worldwide.

NMSU Plant and Environmental Sciences Department Head and Professor Rolston St. Hilare stands in a greenhouse at the Fabian Garcia Science Center. St. Hilaire developed and patented the Acer grandidentatum "JFS-NuMex 3," a type of Bigtooth maple tree.

NMSU professor develops maple tree, secures patent

By KRISTIE GARCIA

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Next fall you may see trees in New Mexico with more colorful leaves. Specifically, you may see Mesa Glow maples with bright crimson leaves. Its scientific name is Acer grandidentatum "JFS-NuMex 3," and New Mexico State University has recently been awarded a patent on the plant.

Rolston St. Hilaire, NMSU Plant and Environmental Sciences department head and professor, is the scientist who has been leading the effort since 2000. When he first arrived in Las Cruces in the late 1990s, he began hiking in the area, inquiring about maples and studying area maps. He noticed a type of maple tree – the Bigtooth maple – in the Organ Mountains and in other areas in the Southwest, such as the Chiricahua Mountains near Wilcox, Arizona.

"The significance of the Bigtooth maple here in New Mexico is that it has brilliant fall colors that are, in my opinion, better or rival that of the sugar maples that we see on the East Coast," St. Hilaire said. "My vision was: If I can get this plant to work, it could fill a niche. Obviously the color is important. People really like the color, and they just love maples. It has ornamental appeal."

The problem with the Bigtooth maple in the Southwest is that it's only found in mountainous areas, not in the lower desert. Also, in nature, many Bigtooth maples do not stand completely upright. St. Hilaire had worked extensively with sugar maples and black maples while pursuing his doctorate at Iowa State University, so he had plenty of experience with that type of tree.

But how could he develop a tree that would have colorful leaves, stand upright and withstand the dry climate, salty soil and high light? He was on a mission. He spent much of 2001 traveling to places in the Southwest, such as Arizona, Texas, Utah and other New Mexico locations to collect seeds of

"Once we did that, we brought that material back to our greenhouses at the Fabian Garcia Science Center, and we grew thousands of seedlings," St. Hilaire said. "We began a process of test-his graduate research assistant at the time, had a breakthrough in 2005. She developed a tissue culture method - a form of micropropagation - to reproduce the plant. With this method, researchers were able to clone the plant by using specific buds from the stem.

Because this technique is very involved and time-consuming, NMSU partnered with J. Frank Schmidt & Son Co. in Boring, Oregon, to test the plant. St. Hilaire sent the company three plants with all the necessary characteristics. One of the plants - clone number three - emerged. Hence, the "3" in the name Acer grandidentatum "JFS-NuMex 3."

Growers at J. Frank Schmidt & Son Co. propagated the plant on a sugar maple stock and tested it for about eight years. The company recently trademarked the Mesa Glow maple name and has entered into a partnership with NMSU to produce the trees. While the name Mesa Glow was trademarked, it's completely separate from the patent.

In 2014, St. Hilaire began working closely with Terry Lombard, director of Intellectual Property and Technology Transfer for Arrowhead Center.

"Dr. St. Hilaire is in the ideal situation for our model here in the tech transfer office," said Lombard. "A large portion of the licensing that happens comes through the relationships that researchers develop. We helped him take action to get his goals filled quickly, meet the goals of the licensee and protect the intellectual property."

The tree has been tested in both dry environments and in high-salinity soil, and it does well in both. It's also not prone to disease. Another benefit of the tree to homeowners is its relatively small size

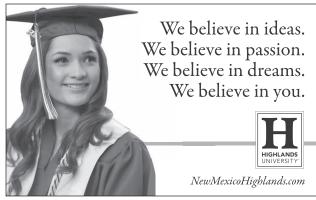

"The other huge significance is that it's a smaller maple, it only grows to about 30 feet," St. Hilaire said. "So, if a homeowner wants to have a tree that will have brilliant fall color, he or she can have that plant in his or her backvard."

The trees are available to the wholesale market at this time, and they're expected to be available from retailers by spring 2018. St. Hilaire ensured a special stipulation was included in NMSU's agreement with J. Frank Schmidt & Son Co. Any nursery in New Mexico will receive a discount on the wholesale purchase if they choose to produce and carry Mesa Glow maples.

"All in all it's a great plant, and we think it will make a significant contribution to the ornamental plant industry," St. Hilaire said.

WELL BEING

Palliative care now available at MountainView

BULLETIN REPORT

MountainView Regional Medical Center has opened a new palliative care program to ease the suffering that results from illness.

This comes after Senate Bill 173cs, sponsored by Sen. Craig Brandt (R-Sandoval County), unanimously passed the state Senate and now goes to the House of Representatives.

Palliative care is not hospice care but may include hospice, and includes treatments for a patient's symptoms, even when the underlying disease cannot be cured.

"This care has been found to extend a patient's life by as much as three months and has found to save considerable expenses," Brandt said.

Palliative care also includes assistance with medical, spiritual and mental health care issues, and arranging funeral services.

Senate Bill 173cs would create a Palliative Care Advisory Council to advise and coordinate information to various state departments and agencies on Palliative care initiatives and to enhance Palliative care services in the state.

Patients can receive palliative care at any time during their hospital stay and can receive other medical treatment as well. This care is appropriate at any age and for any stage in a serious treatment, whether or not it is considered lifethreatening.

"We know that being in the hospital is a stressful time for both patients and their families, even when the hospital stay is related to something minor," said Denten Park, MountainView CEO. "When patients are here for something more serious, or have long-term health issues that may call for more complex care, it puts even more pressure on patients and families.
Creating a palliative care program is our way to provide more support and resources to those patients. Palliative care is the right thing to do for our community."

MountainView's palliative care team will include the physicians involved in the patient's care, nurses, case managers and pharmacists on MountainView's staff. This team is available to serve as an additional resource to discuss and establish goals for care, help with advance care planning and advance directives, and can assist with complex pain and symptom management.

Most insurance plans, including Medicare and Medicaid, cover palliative care services. Check with your provider for specifics. For assistance with this program, call 575-556-7585.

2016 Transparency VICTORIES

• The New Mexico Press Association and its member newspapers across the state are constantly reporting on and advocating for transparency in local, county and state governments

 The New Mexico Foundation for Open Government filed a lawsuit against the New Mexico Department of Health. The Department of Health issued new rules that pulled back the curtain on identities of medical cannabis producers and grower applicants which had been kept shielded since the program's inception in 2007. NMFOG argued that unless provided in a specific statute, neither the Health Department nor any other public body can adopt administrative rules to block information that the Inspection of Public Records Act (IPRA) does not specifically exempt.

 NMFOG held free transparency camps in Las Cruces and Albuquer> que. The informative workshops were attended by journalists, lawyers, politicians and citizen advocates.

• In spring and summer, NMFOG conducted an Inspection of Public Records Act compliance audit of 122 agencies, all 33 counties and 49 of the largest cities. The results were mixed with less than a majority responding "as soon as practicable" as mandated by the IPRA statute.

- Over the past 12 months, NMFOG continued to help citizens, journalists and public officials with IPRA and OMA problems through its free hotline service.

HEMP HEMP HURRAY!

HILDA LUZ

CHAVEZ

s you may know by now, I am a hemp advocate. I love the nutritional hemp products that are available at any health food store, such as hemp hearts, hemp milk and hemp oil. I recommend them to all my patients.

They are a viable source of vegan protein, with omegas and small amounts of cannabidiol. Every day we see more and more hemp products on the shelves.

For many years now, many of us "hemp enthusiasts" have been tirelessly educating and bringing to light the 10,000 uses and benefits of hemp. Well, this month, we have seen some progress with the hemp bills presented at the Roundhouse. Looks like one passed, HB144.

Doña Ana, Rep. Bill Gomez presented the bill, titled Research on Industrial Hemp.

On March 10, Gomez told me Martinez had vetoed the legislation, unfortunately, but Gomez said Republicans are trying to override the veto.

There are more bills on the table but hemp Research is definitely a step in the right direction. I personally commit to being one of the first hemp farmers in Doña Ana County.

Many thanks to Gomez and the other senators and representatives for not giving up on hemp and doing all they can to have a positive impact on New Mexico's economy. As a practitioner and medical patient, I am elated to know that after advocating for hemp in New Mexico for years, there is a glimmer of light at the end of the tunnel.

I have over 38 years of experience with herbal medicine and have to say that medical cannabis and hemp have made the biggest impact on my own health and on my patients' health.

We are all healthier and able to enjoy our lives more.

Likewise, hemp can make our state's economy healthier. We need to grow it, produce hemp oil for biodiesel fuel, build houses out of hemp hurd, and produce cannabidiol oil for patients suffering from cancer, PTSD, etc. Time to catch up with other states that are benefiting from the hemp industry.

There is proof there is medicinal value in all forms of cannabis: sativa, indica and ruderalis—hemp.

However, let's also be honest, we do have an epidemic of addiction in the state. Recreational users of cannabis may not admit this but they can become psychologically addicted to cannabis. Addiction to anything is an illness that befalls millions. Many lives are ruined and families are torn apart. Cannabis addiction and misuse is real.

Having said that, there is also the proper and legal use, and it is real as well.

In any case, medical cannabis can and does have a positive impact on our community when used properly and legally. In New Mexico we now have over 32,000 medical cannabis patients and more are certified each day.

I am all for educating New Mexicans and for stimulating the economy and creating jobs and entrepreneurs in the hemp and cannabis industry. What about you?

Reports show that the states that have medical cannabis programs and those who have legalized cannabis and hemp have thriving economies. It's time for us to have the same. More money in our economy means more value for our citizens, more educational opportunities, more entrepreneurs means more businesses, more research means more awareness.

In April, cannabis users generally celebrate on 4/20. A big celebration for recreational users, but medical patients can celebrate as well.

This year, a local group, Southwest Publishing, Ken and Melissa Thompson, are bringing the 420 Music and Education Fest to Las Cruces on April 20-21.

Two days of presenters, booths, music and more.

'Kitty Glitter' jewelry sale benefits pets

BULLETIN REPORT

ACTion Programs for Animals (APA) of Las Cruces will host a "Kitty Glitter" jewelry sale on Friday and Saturday, March 17 and 18 at the Griggs and Reymond House, 504 W. Griggs Ave.

A pre-sale event will be held from 5:30 to 8 p.m. on Friday, March 17. The entry fee is $10 and refreshments will be served.

The jewelry sale will continue from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, March 18, with free admission.

Kitty Glitter will include thousands of new and gently used jewelry items, said APA board member and volunteer Katie Garcia. Proceeds will benefit Project Save a Kitten and other local rescue programs that "save kittens during kitten season in the spring," Garcia said.

"This year, we have more than 700 pairs of earrings, a banker box of bangles and bracelets and hundreds of necklaces." said Kitty Glitter volunteer Jackye Meinecke. "The prices range from $1 to more than $100. The pleasant surprise this year is many donations of men's jewelry from tie tacks and tie bars to cufflinks to belt buckles. This year, we are adding a $1 store in one of the rooms, where everything will be $1. Bargain hunters can start there, while those who are looking for more impressive pieces can shop the other selections. We sort the jewelry by color and into themes. such as Southwest, bling, tropical, sparkling glass, critters and creatures and sterling silver."

"Volunteers from Cat's Meow, FCamp, Big Kitty Fix, and APA collaborate to create this fundraising event to rescue kittens and cats in our community." Meinecke said.

"Springtime means lots of kittens, so we are thankful to Project Save a Kitten for allowing APA to be one of the beneficiaries of the Kitty Glitter event," APA Executive Director Michel Meunier said. "Creating a no-kill community is important, and we're all in this together."

Also on Saturday, March 18, APA will sponsor a dog adoption and donation drive at the Walmart store at 3331 Rinconada Blvd. The event will be held from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"We invite people to stop by the Rinconada Walmart on March 18 to meet our lovable, adoptable dogs," Meunier said. "If people are not in a position to adopt at this time, we welcome donations of food and cleaning supplies, which our rescue can always use. No matter how big or small, every donation helps."

Through the Pets Alive program, APA "strives to rescue the shy/timid small dogs that will die if we do not, sick/treatable dogs of any size/age and the unruly bigger dogs that have been overlooked due to size, behavior or

Aggie men rewriting the history books

BULLETIN REPORT

First-year head coach Paul Weir and the 2016-17 NM State men's basketball team continue to make school history in punching their ticket to the NCAA Tournament.

The Aggies' 70-60 victory over top-seeded CSU Bakersfield March 11 in the Western Athletic Conference Tournament championship was the school's fifth conference title in six years, and the school's seventh in 12 years of WAC membership.

At 28-5, the Aggies also set a record for season victories, surpassing the 1969-70 Final Four team (27-3) led by legendary Aggie head coach Lou Henson.

The Aggies are seeded 14th in the NCAA Tournament and will play 3rd-seeded Baylor Friday, March 17, in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Tip-off is 10:40 a.m., Mountain Time (ESPN, KXPZ 99.5 FM). It should be a tough matchup for NMSU, which could make the argument it deserves a higher seed.

Three-peat is sweet for Aggie women

BULLETIN REPORT

Going into the Big Dance, the New Mexico State women's basketball team is peaking at the right time, winning its 17th-straight game in capturing the Western Athletic Conference Tournament championship March 11 in Las Vegas, Nevada.

The 63-48 win over the Seattle University Redhawks was NMSU's third-straight WAC title and only the second three-peat in WAC history (Louisiana Tech, 2002-2004).

The Aggies are seeded 15th in the NCAA Tournament and will face the 2nd-seeded Stanford Cardinal (28-5) of the PAC 12 on Saturday, March 18, in Manhattan, Kansas. Tip-off is 11:30 a.m. Mountain time (ESPN2, KRUX 91.5 FM).

With the victory, NMSU improved to 24-6 on the year after a tepid 7-6 start. That momentum dictated the Seattle game from the tip. After Brianna Freeman won the opening toss for the Aggies, the team grabbed an early lead and did not look back. The Aggies' defense forced four to grab a 14-12 lead at the break.

NM State opened the second quarter with a 15-2 run, holding the Redhawks scoreless over a six-minute span. Led by Moriah Mack with 11 points and Tamera William with eight points and seven rebounds, the team ended the first half up, 33-18.

The Aggies dominated inside, outscoring Seattle U in the paint, 14-8, and owning the boards, 24-13, in the first 20 minutes.

The Redhawks opened the second half on a 6-0 run but NM State responded with a 10-1 run of its own and maintained the lead, 48-37, through three quarters.

NM State added to their lead in the fourth with an 11-0 run, and while the Redhawks made a late push, NM State's lead was never in jeopardy.

Three Aggies scored in double figures, led by William with 19 points, followed by Mack with 18 and Zaire Williams with 11. On defense, NM State finished with 12 steals and three blocks. Seattle U's 48 points were the fifth-lowest total allowed this season by NMSU.

After the game, head coach Mark Trakh sounded more relieved than ecstatic. "We just defeated a really good team that had an incredible season." he said. "Credit to their head coach Suzy Barcomb and the team on a great year. With this win our team made history and I'm so proud of these girls because they represent the New Mexico State University so well on and off the floor."

Mack and William were named to the WAC All-Tournament Team and Mack also earned tournament Most Valuable Player after totaling 39 points, 10 rebounds, six assists and four blocks in two games.

TEN'S BASKETBA

"After the handshake line (with Bakersfield's players and coach Rod Barnes following NMSU's win), it was really emotional for me," NMSU coach Weir said in a press conference March 13. "It was really a combination of excitement, exhaustion, support from the school and the community."

Baker was named the WAC Tournament MVP after knocking down all 15 of his points in the second half. The Washington, D.C., senior finished 5-of-8 from the floor, including three from deep, with four assists.

Joining the Aggie floor general on the all-tournament team was Braxton Huggins and Chuha. ## Here are Doc's friendly 'Rules of Golf' ery recently the USGA (with the R&A) announced proposed modernized rule adjustments which could possibly be approved

The current set of rules of golf went into effect in January 2016, thus replacing the rule book from 2012 through 2015. There are at least 10 notable proposed changes. Without going through them all, here are a few of the more long-awaited and needed proposed rule adjustments.

One is that there is no longer BLANCHARD a penalty for accidentally mov-Golf Doctor ing your ball while searching for it, or for accidentally moving your ball or marker on the putting green. Another is that a ball is deemed lost if it is not found within three minutes (rather than the current five minutes) after you begin searching for it.

Also, red and yellow marked "penalty areas" may soon cover areas such as deserts, jungles, or lava rock fields, in addition to areas of water; this would save damage from protected areas as well as provide safety for golfers. Plus, there would no longer be a penalty if you touch or move loose impediments or touch the ground with your hand or club in a penalty area; and you may remove loose impediments from sand bunkers.

According to online Global Golf Post, "the number of rules has been more reasonable representation of the modern game, the presentation is expected to be a lot more userfriendly, with easy-to-read summaries and rules written from the player's perspective to make the game less intimidating ... and more fun to play."

The final revised code would officially go into effect on Jan.

Now, as you may have guessed, the Golf Doctor has detailed my own proposed rules with the object of speeding up the game while preserving some traditions and encouraging good behavior.

The first of "Doc's Rules" is the penalty for slow play. I mean, really slow play. After a first warning, which may be from a marshal or from annoyed fellow golfers, the offending golfer and group must pick up their balls and immediately move to the next hole. For the second warning to the group of snails, upon finishing the hole, players are fined $20 each. The third contact for a slow-play infraction would be that all the players in the slow group be escorted off the golf course. They may be allowed back no sooner than three for inappropriate dress on the golf course. Let me ask you something. Would you wear an undershirt and gym shorts to church? Would you wear blue jeans to your daughter's wedding? Then why show up at the golf course looking like a homeless panhandler? Here are the proposed consequences. A player may be permitted to proceed to the proper locker room (according to his or her birth gender) and change into approved attire. Such attire may be purchased in the pro shop. The player may then join the original group or wait for an opening in the tee time

The third of Doc's Rules concerns club throwing. Note there would be no penalty for "tossing" a golf club, say within a few feet of a golf bag when not provoked by anger. The difference therein would be readily evident and obvious to all players present who indeed have a brain. The penalty for the first thrown club is one stroke with a payment to the pot of $5. For a second club thrown, a two-stroke penalty plus $10 fine. For the third throw, three strokes plus $20, and so on.

There are a few no-penalty rules I propose but time is short so I'll mention just two. A ball lodged up in a tree – it's obvious because it went up and stayed in the tree for everyone to see, and is nowhere on the golf course turf: remedy is a no-penalty drop below where the ball was last heard and seen going up into the tree. Similarly, a "lost" ball, which was stolen by a golf thief, or a squirrel, hawk, or rodent may be replaced where it should have been with no penalty.

Las Cruces' winning basket against Cleveland

Las Cruces schools lose title games

By MARTY RACINE

Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces High School saw its hoops dreams dashed March 11 when the boys' basketball team lost the 6A state championship game to Albuquerque's Volcano Vista, 47-39.

The game was played in WisePies Arena in Albuquerque, formerly known as The Pit.

The No. 2 seed Bulldawgs were the last Cruces team standing in class 6A after No. 1 seed Oñate lost in the quarterfinals March 8, 55-47, to Albuquerque's Atrisco Heritage Academy. The Knights finished the season 23-6, a record that included a 14-game winning streak.

Ironically, Las Cruces defeated Oñate 70-54 on Feb. 14, while Oñate defeated eventual state champion Volcano Vista by two points back in December.

Against Volcano Vista, the Dawgs trailed throughout, and the game really wasn't close.

LCHS, which finished 27-5 with winning streaks of eight and nine games, earned its way into the title game with a first-round defeat of Clovis, 88-55; a quarterfinal win over Hobbs, 79-44; and a semifinal victory over Cleveland of Rio Rancho, 47-45 (see photos for the sequence of the winning basket).

In boys' 2A, Mesilla Valley Christian School lost the class title game, 64-38, to Lordsburg, a team they beat back in February by eight points on the road. The fifth-seeded SonBlazers reached the final by beating Alamo Navajo, 81-58; Fort Sumner House, 66-53; and Magdalena, 55-52. MVCS finished the year at 23-9.

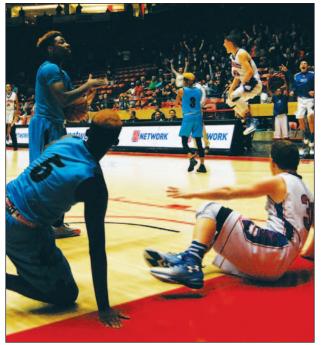

Las Cruces High's Marcus Scott (23) sees an unblocked path to what turned out to be the winning basket against Cleveland in the state semifinal. Cleveland's Tyrique Weaver, at left, rushes in to stop Scott.

Scott goes up for the winning basket with 1.5 seconds left, as teammates Vincente Johnson (34) and Cayden Sherwood (10, behind Scott) watch to see if the ball goes in.

Las Cruces High's Cayden Sherwood, right, jumps for joy, as teammate Vincente Johnson is down on the floor under the basket and Cleveland players are in disbelief at the sudden end to their season.
