Daylight Saving Time ends Sunday

Daylight saving time ends Sunday and the Las Cruces Fire Department encourages residents to install new batteries in their smoke alarms when setting clocks to 'fall back' one hour.

Daylight saving time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 5, and the fire department urges residents to install fresh batteries in their smoke alarms when clocks are adjusted to standard time. Most people tend to change their clocks before bedtime Saturday evening.

LCFD also encourages homeowners test smoke alarms to ensure they are in proper working order. To check the operation of a smoke alarm, simply press and hold the alarm's "test" button. If it beeps, or rings loudly, it's properly working.

12 set to graduate from detention academy

Twelve new detention center officers will be sworn in after having successfully completed the seven-week Basic Detention Officers' Academy at the Doña Ana County Detention Center.

The public is invited to attend their graduation ceremony, which will take place in the Commission Chambers of the Doña Ana County Government Center on Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 10 a.m.

District 1 Doña Ana County Commissioner Billy G. Garrett will deliver the commencement address, and Doña Ana County Magistrate Judge Samantha Madrid will administer the oaths of service.

Graduating detention officers are: Rudy Acevedo, Braulio Apodaca, Jonathan Feliz-Bautista, Jacob Bridges, William Contreras, Francisco Jauregui, Mario Macias, Jr., Christian Martinez, Ashley Meister, Arturo Ortega, Juan Peru and Manuel Quintana.

The public is encouraged to attend.

Chaparral

Month-long Byrum Road project starts

Renegade Construction has begun removing the existing pavement on a portion of Byrum Road in Chaparral. Repaving will occur after the roadway has been cleared.

The construction zone runs south from East Lisa Drive to Paloma Blanca Drive. During construction, the affected portion of the road will be closed to through traffic, but will still allow access to residences and businesses.

Construction is scheduled through the end of November from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. each weekday.

Motorists are advised to slow down and to expect delays in the construction area. Motorists also are reminded to exercise caution in all areas where workers are deployed.

Incumbent, two challengers vie for municipal judge

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Three long-time Las Cruces attorneys are running for municipal judge II in the Nov. 7 Las Cruces city election.

Incumbent Kent Yalkut was appointed to the position in 2016 and is running for a full four-year term. His opponents in the nonpartisan race are attorney and homeless advocate Joy Goldbaum and Doña Ana County Attorney Nelson Goodin.

Municipal court “handles all violations in the City of Las Cruces Municipal Code,” according to www.las-cruces.org/departments/municipal-court. “Those violations are considered petty misdemeanor cases, including traffic citations, all of which can carry a fine of up to $500 and/or jail term up to 90 days. DWI cases carry a higher penalty.”

The municipal judge II position pays an annual salary of $101,219.

The city’s presiding municipal judge, Kieran Ryan, is not on the 2017 ballot.

Kent Yalkut

He served as

KENT YALKUT

Kent Yalkut began his professional career as an assistant district attorney in Las Cruces, rising to the rank of senior trial prosecutor during five years in the office. He served as supervisor of the traffic crimes, DWI and financial crimes units.

In 1997, Yalkut became the first person elected to the city’s newly created municipal judge II position, where he presided over arraignments, pre-trial conferences, bench trials and the city’s Drug Court Program.

After returning to private practice, Yalkut ran unsuccessfully for Third Judicial District (Doña Ana County) attorney in 2000, losing narrowly to incumbent Susana Martinez.

Yalkut served as special commissioner for domestic violence and as a mediator for the domestic relations family law division of Las Cruces district court. He was a special assistant attorney general for the state office of guardianship and a contract public defender in Las Cruces. Yalkut served two terms on the state Community Corrections board, where he reviewed probation and parole cases.

Yalkut also has 17 years in private law practice in Las Cruces.

The Yalkut Law Firm specialized in criminal, traffic, juvenile and family law, according to www.judgeyalkut.com/about.

The Las Cruces City Council unanimously approved Yalkut as alternate municipal judge in 2015 before naming him to the full-time municipal judge II position last year.

Yalkut, 58, is a native of Las Cruces and a graduate of Mayfield High School, New Mexico State University and Ohio Northern University, where he obtained his law degree.

In municipal court, Yalkut said, “everyone has an important story that they want to tell you.

You take the time to listen to every single one of them.”

“The charges are fairly repetitive,” Yalkut said. “The people are not repetitive.”

Las Cruces has the largest municipal court in the state, Yalkut said, and deals with about 25,000 cases a year, including petty misdemeanors like traffic tickets, driving with a suspended license or no insurance, shoplifting and violations of city codes such as not cutting weeds or letting dogs run loose.

A court appearance can be intimidating, he said, so “first you talk to people, calm them down, just explain what’s going on.”

The average bond in municipal court is $100, Yalkut said, and he conducts only about one bench trial per month. Few people get jail time, and instead are encouraged to comply with the city codes they have violated. That discretion is essential, Yalkut said, because, if every criminal defendant who came before a municipal judge got the maximum sentence of 90 days in jail, it would cost the city about $180 million a year to incarcerate them.

“I know every issue dealing with municipal court because I’ve done it,” Yalkut said.

Yalkut is campaigning door-to-door, he said, and has been endorsed by the Las Cruces Police Department Officers Association. and said he has a very good relationship with the Las Cruces Police Department and city staff.

NELSON GOODIN

County Attorney Nelson Goodin has served as both a district judge and a magistrate judge in Las Cruces, and would like to return to the bench.

“I like being a judge,” Goodin said. “I think I did a good job. I have the ability to listen.”

As a judge, Goodin said he was “able to balance the application of the law to human beings.”

A judge must ensure the defendant appearing before him understands that the charges he faces were filed against him for a purpose, Goodin said, and don’t make him a bad person.

A judge has to “put the alleged violation in the context of a person,” he said.

Goodin said a judge knows that “this is the law that has to be followed and applied, but there’s a lot of room for discretion.”

In any court, he said, a judge has to seek the best resolution for each individual case.

“It’s not as easy as ‘just throw the book at them,’” Goodin said. In domestic violence cases, for example, issues involving family and employment also have to be considered.

In every case that comes before him, even minor offenses, Goodin said, a judge has to understand what the case is about and who the defendant is so he can “put the alleged violation of law in the context of a person.”

In presiding over divorce cases, for example, Goodin said, one or both sides often do not have an attorney. “You have to listen to both sides,” he said. If the couple has children, the judge has to consider “the best interest of the child.”

“I was able to do that, to listen,” Goodin said.

“My experience speaks for itself,” he said.

Goodin, 52, has been practicing law for 26 years, including the last 17 in Las Cruces.

Go vote! And Amazon, take note!

Something old, new, borrowed, blue

Something old
You hear it every election, and you should.
Go vote.

RICHARD COLTHARP

From the Publisher

The old saying is “All politics are local,” and there is nothing more local than a municipal election.

Tuesday, Nov. 7, is Election Day in the City of Las Cruces.

It’s an interesting election with three council positions open.

In District 3, we are guaranteed a new councilor to replace Olga Pedroza, who did not seek re-election. The challengers are Gabe Vasquez and Bev Courtney. Stephen Jaramillo filed to run, but then dropped out.

In District 5, incumbent Gill Sorg faces challengers Steve Montanez and William Fuller.

In District 6, incumbent Ceil Levatino faces challenger Yvonne Flores.

There is also a three-way race for Municipal Judge II, where incumbent Kent Yalkut faces challengers Joy Gold-baum and Nelson Goodin.

Let’s break the historical trend of low turnout for city elections. Go vote.

Something new

By now you have probably heard about the bold proposal the Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance (MVEDA) and the Border Industrial Association (BIA) have made to Amazon, which opened bids for a location for its planned second headquarters.

More than 230 cities across the U.S. and Canada presented bids. Probably 50 of those are conceivably viable, but the MVEDA/BIA bid, referred to as Los Santos, appears in many ways the most unique.

You can learn more at www.hq2countries.com.

In the plan, the new Amazon headquarters would straddle the border at Santa Teresa and San Jeronimo, Chihuahua, falling within the markets of Las Cruces, El Paso and Juarez, a region with a population of 2.7 million. Combining those markets meets all of Amazon’s requirements and then some.

The concept perfectly fits one of the criteria from Amazon: A community that thinks big and creative when considering site locations.

Even though the proposal is unusual and unexpected, a great deal of logic lies underneath it. It’s already a manufacturing, trade and distribution hub, with easy access to lots of transportation options. Seven major universities provide a great opportunity for training and recruiting.

One report I read asserted the notion that whatever city Amazon selects will be changed forever.

Amazon has said the Headquarters 2 will eventually be as big as their Headquarters 1 in Seattle, and could ultimately employ as many as 50,000 people.

Skeptics have said the Trump administration’s attitude toward the border wall and NAFTA create uncertainty about the plan. However, consider Amazon’s owner, Jeff Bezos. He and Trump have had their differences, and Bezos might be just iconoclastic enough to pick the location as a challenge to Trump and those notions.

At a summit of national tech leaders Trump assembled when he was still president-elect, the Amazon boss introduced himself this way: “Jeff Bezos, Amazon.com. Super excited about the possibilities this could be the innovation administration.”

Selecting Los Santos would certainly be an innovation, it would be driven by the free market and, I believe, it would be a success.

And, yes indeed, it would change this region forever.

Something borrowed

The national press has borrowed the HQ2 Countries news and run with it. Googling “Amazon bid” as I write this brings the Los Santos plan up high. There are also articles about crazy, bizarre and bad bids, and Los Santos did not appear in any of them.

Something blue

It will be depressing and worthy of the blues if we don’t get good voter turnout Nov. 7. This election could change the makeup of our city council at a potentially critical point in our city’s history. We want councilors who will conscientiously and thoughtfully represent the people of their districts.

You are a constituent and you can make that choice. But only if you go vote, Nov. 7.

We want your letters

The Las Cruces Bulletin invites readers to submit letters, preferably by email to editor@lascrucesbulletin.com. They can be sent in by fax at 575-526-4621. Letters also can be mailed or dropped off at 1740 A Calle de Mercado, Las Cruces, 88005. Letters should not exceed 200 words and must include the writer’s name, address and telephone number for verification. Anonymous letters will not be published. Letters may be edited for length or content.

Local business add more to the economy

It happens often that a local business closes. We have enjoyed years of that business in our community but now it is closed. Rarely do we understand what happened.

There is a popular show, "The price is right" where contestants must know the correct price of items. When a local company goes out of business one explainer is that they didn't charge enough for their products. Not always. There are other explainers.

Restaurants are one type of business I notice when they close because several have closed even though I was a regular customer. Businesses come and businesses go. It is a natural happening in our free enterprise model of capitalism.

MICHAEL SWICKARD

In My Opinion

The popular notion is that anyone in business for themselves are rich. Nothing could be further from the truth. The one commonality is most local businesses are started by risk-takers. They put up the money and their own time to see if we will vote for their ideas with our wallets.

The first danger for sustainable businesses is that their prices are too low for the cost of doing business. So, they can be in business for a while before they run out of money. If that happens then they go out of business.

The most important issue is the return on investment for someone in business. There are ways to change the bottom line such as quality and efficiency. But ultimately the buyer is the judge and jury of that success. Except for when the government gets involved.

Government regulations are a component in the price and bottom line. They require the business to do things they may not want to do such as pay more for employees than would allow for a profit. At times.

This is not good for either the employees or the customers when businesses close. Then the businesses that are left leave less choice and price pressure to support customers.

Sometimes the loss of profit is obscured by inventory only to eventually kill the business. The patron of the business pays the asked price or they go somewhere else. The lure of going to a bigger town means that money leaves, which does kill businesses.

The economic pressures on local businesses include competition, cost of goods and the changing needs of our population. In the computer business, it used to be a value-added store where the customer knew little and the store experts were needed to walk customers through getting a computer up and running.

Then it all changed and those stores closed. The new online option for purchase makes it harder to be in local business if you sell some items. The same is true for local restaurants. But there is one thing that local businesses do that the big ones do not: The local business owners spend their money in the local economy. The nationals ship the money out of your town quickly.

Will losing money out-of-town close local businesses? Of course. That price is always wrong for your town.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Solve the mystery

To the editor:

I just received the Oct. 20 Bulletin. You are, apparently, publishing a series of articles about the Doña Ana County Commission. I am hoping that at long last the series will solve the mystery of why, after only three months on the panel, the new commissioners voted to fire County Manager Julia Brown without naming any cause(s).

Many of us who follow the commission's actions are convinced that some of the commissioners are controlled by Sheriff Vigil and that he insisted on the firing. Please address this in the series.

Charlotte Lipson
Las Cruces

Series is informative

To the editor:

In the October 20 issue, you ran member bios of the Doña Ana County Commission, as seated in January 2017. I learned a great deal about each of them, what each brings to the table. I felt that their diverse backgrounds could enable a well-rounded approach to governing our county.

However (reporter) Lynn Moorer ended this first story with comments that raise concerns.

Such a divergence in priorities, as well as no agreement on what the role of commissioners should be?

These are the core of, and crucial to, a successful governing body. Without them, one wonders how DACC can serve its constituents. I definitely wanted to read more.

You ran Part Two on October 27, containing each commissioner's view of successful and non-successful actions by the DACC. The divergence was even greater here. My concerns remain. However, I want to compliment Ms. Moorer for writing the views she obtained from "interviews, commission meetings and emails." How refreshing to read not a columnist's views, but, rather, what the record reflects.

I look forward to additional parts of this series, and hope they will alleviate some of my concerns. Thank you for publishing this excellent series.

Jean Berlowitz
Las Cruces

Editor's note: Part 3 of the series is published in this edition.

Column is insightful

To the editor:

Excellent essay, Chris! (Chris Erickson, "Lessons from Arizona State University," Oct. 27.) Your essay is highly informative, greatly encouraging and incredibly insightful.

In my corporate career a major key to our phenomenal overall success, incredible loyal customer retention and long-term profitability all stemmed from our internal team breaking/discouraging all internal silos, continuously sharing info/insights between departments, constantly collaborating and cooperating to always exceed the expectations of our highly valued customers.

In ASU's case this would be their students and the companies that hire their graduates. Thank you very much for your encouraging and inspiring essay.

The challenge of public education

To the editor:

Regarding Michael Swickard's "Assuming our way to school change" (Opinion, October 20):

The first word of your article headline defines the challenges we and our children face with respect to usable, constructive, creative intelligence.

Assumption is defined as the lowest form of human intelligence. There are so many real-time examples available that are in practice that are eclipsing the structured public educational methods being used in New Mexico. I cannot suggest highly enough the works by Ken Robinson, Sebastian Thrun, Clayton Christensen and Sal Khan that show a different way that does not assume "learning" that fosters collaborative critical thinking skills is occurring with our archaic methodology of "teaching."

I encourage all to become educated on what is available instead of driving forward looking into the rear view mirror of how teacher colleges and school boards decide is the way.

Let's step aside and focus on the inadequacy of our local schools in upgrading their internet capability. Right now the lack of high-speed access and its ability to support the demand for everything in the school building from students and teacher devices, to school security and school management is failing.

The IT demands will become more and more underserved as we move forward. High school students and younger kids of responsible parents will begin leaving the brick and mortar buildings because the quality of on-demand education they can access for free without time constraints is so much more adequate than the public education system can possibly provide.

Within the next five years VR methods of teaching, along with the worldwide collaboration of classroom sisting will become commonplace.

Real-time access versus stored content is a huge data hog and the fiber optic networks within the education buildings as we know them are so under-built now that kids will just walk away saying I can stay at home or at the food court in the mall with friends and get it faster or slower as their learning styles decide,.

What we are facing is a duality of how children get educated. Public schools are looking at only serving the disadvantaged or simply kids of parents that are less responsible or caring about their children's future. This will create a public education funding disaster that dwarfs what we have now.

Please pick up a copy of "The One World Schoolhouse, Education Reimagined," by Sal Khan, and review all the great thinkers that are brought to the forefront by the Ted Talks on education reform (change). Without the parenting society being offered ideas for alternative views of the reality of the situation, this picture looks pretty grim. You have a public voice and I hope you use it to offer ideas and resources that will help improve the challenge through public conversation.

"Assuming" our local or state school boards are up to the task on their own is really a lack of critical thinking skills which is not taught in our schools.

Rob Wood
Las Cruces

Systems require periodic evaluation

To the editor:

Yes-yes-yes...I agree with every aspect of Mike Swickard's essay on school change.

Change for the sake of mere change, or to suit one's intransigent core political ideology, or to suit one's core religious horizons, etc., is a fake veiled ploy that is as old as the hills. Come on!

Swickard's suggestion of having the politically motivated change persons/groups placing their retirement money in escrow beforehand is excellent! This should be a non-negotiable precursor for change. Put some "skin" in the game or find another avenue to skew or "correct" systems (like our public school system) that need correction/innovation but not complete re-makes.

Look, any "system," treaty, agreement, collaboration, etc., is just like a physician's prescription. They all require careful and periodic evaluation as the patient's/members'/groups'/individuals' progress advances with time. Keep situations, systems, prescriptions, treaties, school curriculums, etc., static for decades and this becomes a formula for failure.

Change, for the sake of mere change, is wrong. Change, for the sake of improvement-over-time, is as right.

Eric Sorensen

Gun stats misleading

To the editor:

Quick comment on Richard Coltharp's column of October 13:

There is a difference between gun deaths and gun violence. The suicide method of choice in the U.S. is by firearm. Well over half of all gun deaths in the United States are the result of suicide, making gun violence considerably less prevalent than is probably generally believed.

Americana singer/ songwriter to perform

BULLETIN REPORT

Colorado-based singer songwriter Gabrielle Louise will appear in concert at the Rio Grande Theatre Thursday, Nov. 9.

Presented by Friends of Visit Las Cruces, the show begins at 7 p.m. Tickets are $5 at the door.

The intimate, two-set concert will feature original compositions, including songs from Louise's latest album If the Static Clears, which reached No. 6 on the national Folk radio charts. Her performance will be supported by John Stillwagon on keyboards and Justin Thompson on electric guitar.

The daughter of two vagabond musicians, Louise is a nationally touring troubadour noted for her poignant lyrics and lush voice.

Her music is anchored in folk and Americana, drawn to rich harmonies and melodic adventurousism, according to her press release. "Her sound has the earthy feel of early Joni Mitchell while also veering into the spirited and versatile delivery of fellow genre-hopping artist Eva Cassidy."

She has shared the stage with such notables as Richie Havens, Tom Paxton, Patty Larkin, Eliza Gilkyson and Guy Clark.

Also a poet, painter, writer and orator, Louise presented a talk

In addition to his service on the bench, Goodin worked in the Third Judicial District Attorney's office (Las Cruces) for 10 years, often dealing with people charged with domestic violence. He also served three years as chief legal counsel for the state Taxation and Revenue Department.

Goodin was appointed county attorney in June 2015.

Goodin obtained his juris doctorate from California Western School of Law in San Diego. He also has a masters of law in taxation from the University of San Diego School of Law.

Goodin also has served as an assistant coach for second- and third-grade football teams in the Las Cruces Nerf League and has more than a dozen years' service as a den leader and assistant scout master with local Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts. He also served many years as a football and basketball referee.

Goodin is relying on his name ID, candidate forums, personal contact and door-to-door campaigning in the race for municipal judge II. He is not putting up any signs and is not accepting contributions.

JOY GOLDBAUM

Joy Goldbaum

Las Cruces attorney Joy Goldbaum has been representing indigent defendants in municipal court for several years, and believes municipal court is "the perfect place" to implement a Las Cruces homeless court program. "It isn't just traffic court," Goldbaum said.

By creating a homeless court program, she said, "you make life better for two or three people at a time (and that) impacts the quality of life for the entire community."

Since nearly all homeless people in Las Cruces have some dealings with Mesilla Valley Community of Hope (MVCH), Goldbaum said, its conference room would be a good place to conduct homeless court once a month or once every two months, depending on the caseload.

And, she said, MVCH would be a good place to advertise the program and its benefits to encourage homeless defendants to participate.

Most homeless defendants, she said, are non-violent, and are charged with crimes like trespassing, loitering, public drunkenness and urinating in public. They are often dealing with addictions and mental-health issues and sometimes with physical disabilities, she said, and often don't have access to phones or transportation to deal with the charges against them.

When they do come to court, she said, homeless people often feel intimidated and may be upset because they have been forced to leave all their possessions in a grocery cart or a garbage bag unattended outside the courthouse.

Holding court at MVCH on a regular basis would eliminate those issues, Goldbaum said, and would save police officers' time and other city resources in dealing with homeless defendants.

A homeless court program would also help defendants get other services they need, like meals, health care and a place to live.

Legal issues can't be addressed until defendants have "a stable living environment," Goldbaum said.

With the services already available at MVCH, she said, a homeless court program likely would not create additional costs or staffing issues for the city.

And, while "it's not the court's role to fix social problems in the community," a homeless court program will help, Goldbaum said. "If you don't solve the underlying problems, you're not really giving people justice."

The homeless court program should be tried for one to two years, Goldbaum said. "If it works, it's just such a positive program."

Goldbaum, 58, moved to Las Cruces from Denver in 1994. She also lived for a time in Hobbs.

Goldbaum has worked as a public defender, and also was an assistant district attorney in Las Cruces. She also was a domestic violence special commissioner in Third Judicial District Court.

Goldbaum's husband, Norman Osborn, is a Doña Ana County magistrate judge.

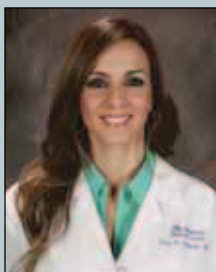

Goldbaum is making her first bid for public office in her race for municipal judge II. She is conducting a door-to-door campaign and is active on social media with a campaign website and Facebook page.

Garrett announces run for lieutenant governor

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

New Mexico has never had a lieutenant governor from Las Cruces, and Billy Garrett wants to change that.

The Doña Ana County commissioner formally announced on Tuesday evening, Oct. 24, that he is a candidate for lieutenant governor in the June 2018 Democratic primary.

“The most important issue in 2018 is restoration of trust in government,” Garrett told about 75 people during his announcement on the historic plaza in Mesilla.

Garrett was joined for the announcement by his wife, Cynthia. He was introduced by Mesilla Trustee Linda Flores. Attendees included former state Rep. J. Paul Taylor; District 36 State Rep. Nathan Small, D-Doña Ana; former state Sen. Steve Fischmann; and former Las Cruces City Councilor Sharon Thomas.

“New Mexico is a special place,” Garrett said. “We also know New Mexico is in serious trouble.”

The state continues to be ranked at the bottom in its economy, education and healthcare, he said.

“Our system of government is based on trust,” Garrett said. “That trust is being violated.”

New Mexicans, he said, are frustrated and angry. Special interests and poor leadership “have caused the breakdown.”

With 35 years in public service, including 13 years as a senior manager and seven years during his current service as a county commissioner, Garrett said he is “uniquely positioned” to serve as the state’s 30th lieutenant governor.

New Mexico’s next governor and lieutenant governor must address the state’s immediate needs as well as long-term threats,” Garrett said.

“Government must reestablish itself as a viable way to get things done ... and respond to the needs of all New Mexicans.”

“This is the kind of work I’ve done my whole life,” Garrett said. “We will bring good government back to New

Garrett said he hopes to raise about $250,000 to finance his campaign.

“That’s a very small budget for a statewide race,” he said.

Instead of a large campaign war chest, Garrett said he will rely on personal contact to help him with the primary.

“We know a lot of people in a lot of contexts,” he said.

“This race is all about what you can do to help me get the word out,” Garrett told his supporters.

He asked for their help to “get people to understand what I stand for and get the vote out.”

As his wife, Cynthia, looks on, Doña Ana County Commissioner Billy Garrett announces his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for New Mexico lieutenant governor Monday evening, Oct. 24 on the plaza in Mesilla.

Reyes announces run for county commission

BULLETIN REPORT

Antoinette Reyes is a Democrat running for Doña Ana County Commissioner in District 1, according to a press release.

Reyes is seeking to replace Commissioner Billy Garrett, who is term limited. The primary election will be held June 5, 2018.

Reyes is inviting residents to attend her third community event Friday, Nov. 17, at Klein Park, 155 N Mesquite St., from 4-6:30 p.m. The event is free and open to the public, regardless of district. For admission, residents are asked to bring canned food items or toiletries (toilet paper, feminine products, and Pampers). These products will be donated throughout the community.

There will be free food, face-painting, a jumping balloon, and a book giveaway. There will be performances by Daring Diamond Hip Hop Studio (ages 3-plus). It is a wheelchair-accessible event.

Antoinette Reyes

Those with questions or an interest in becoming a sponsor for this event are asked to call or text at 575-694-6867.

In a press release, Reyes says she “is committed to improving the lives of all Doña Ana County residents. She believes that a society can be judged by the way it treats its most vulnerable populations. Her top issues include addressing food insecurity, transit, economic development, and infrastructure spending. She has a background in anthropology, sustainable development, and applied economics. Antoinette is a former employee of the City of Las Cruces. She currently works as a caregiver, private tutor, and is a substitute teacher.”

To learn more about her campaign, visit her on Facebook or at www.AntoinetteReyes.com.

More than 75 people attended Doña Ana County Commissioner Billy Garrett's formal announcement of his candidacy for New Mexico lieutenant governor. The event was held Tuesday evening, Oct. 24 on the Mesilla Plaza.

“The cactus is back,” Garrett said, referring to his long-time campaign symbol.

Garrett was elected to the county commission in 2010 and re-elected in 2014. He is barred from seeking a third consecutive term on the commission.

A third generation New Mexican, Garrett grew up in Las Cruces and graduated from Las Cruces High School.

After attending New Mexico State and Arizona State universities, he pursued a career in architecture and organizational management. He and his wife, Cynthia, live in Mesilla; both retired from the National Park Service in 2009.

Ballotpedia lists Garrett among five Democrats running for

New Mexico lieutenant governor. The other four are former Public Education Commissioner Jeff Carr of Taos, Bernalillo County Juvenile Probation Officer David McTeigue, former Bernalillo County State Rep. Rick Miera and current Bernalillo County State Sen. Michael Padilla.

On the campaign trail

After Nov. 7, either challenger Yvonne Flores or incumbent Ceil Levatino will represent District 6 on Las Cruces City Council. For the past few months, however, both candidates have put in the time to understand residents' concerns and earn voters' approval.

Above: Flores, left, speaks to residents at an Oct. 13 meet-and-greet held at 695 Stone Canyon Drive. The discussions ranged from her reasons for running for office to the problems and successes the city is experiencing.

Below: Levatino answers a constituent's question at a Sept. 14 meeting held at the new East Mesa Public Safety Complex. About 40 people attended with questions about traffic, landscaping, noise, code enforcement and partially constructed buildings.

NMSU alum honors mother's sacrifice by helping students

By CASSIE MCCLURE
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

As the son of a single mother, Ignacio Trujillo's journey has not been without challenges, so it's fitting that his ambitious educational plans at New Mexico State University are supported by the mother of an NMSU alumnus who also believed that her children should have the opportunity for education, even if she was raising them alone.

Trujillo, who comes from Española, New Mexico – a rural town that faces its own economic challenges – has set aggressive goals for himself, aiming to have a master's degree in so-ciology half-finished as he completes his bachelor's with dual-credit classes. He's also working toward a minor in finance.

Trujillo believes that his hard work now at NMSU, supported by the Bills Family Endowed Scholarship, can help him lead his entire home state of New Mexico toward being more productive in the future.

"If I want to create social change, I'll need to have a background in finance to be able to pursue funding," Trujillo said. "I want to see New Mexico become more independent from the federal government by increasing its production capabilities."

Philip Bills, a College of Engineering graduate, had students like Trujillo in mind when he created the Bills Family Scholarship Endowment through the NMSU Foundation. The scholarship serves students who are orphans or who come from single-parent families – something Philip knew well.

Philip's mother, Ada Bills, was a professional dancer in her early life, but had no formal higher education. However, she watched her husband's career soar. Thomas Bills entered Cornell University at 16 with a full scholarship and went on to work as a sound recording engineer. He worked with Fox Movietone News of Paris and with MGM in Washington, D.C., during World War II and went on to record Franklin Roosevelt's fireside chats.

Thomas Bills' life was cut short at 47. Philip, who was only 10 when his father passed away, didn't realize the extent to which his life was shaped by the opportunities afforded to his father through education. "I was too young to ask many questions or to understand what a talented person my father was," Philip Bills said.

After Thomas' passing, Ada had to raise her two children, Carol and Philip, alone, and pushed forward to ensure that her children had a path to college.

She worked various jobs to keep the family intact and build enough financial resources to pay for Philip's college education. He went on to earn a degree in industrial engineering from New Mexico State University in 1969.

Philip understood his mother's journey – one that made college an attainable reach for him and his sister. He believed that a scholarship was a way to honor the sacrifices that his mother made to provide him and his sister with the life they have.

"I am thankful to be able to offer this assistance to students attending the university that provided me with a top-notch education and made a difference in my life," Bills said.

Bills, who had a 22-year career with AT&T, was able to match his generous endowed scholarship gift with funds from his employer to increase its impact. To learn more about the Matchmaker employer gift matching program, contact Darlene Nelson at 575-646-2002.

Chaparral recycling facility schedules open house

By SUZANNE MICHAELS

For the Bulletin

Jack Jenkins is a heavy equipment operator at the new Chaparral Transfer Station and Recycling Center who says, "Yesterday we sent five 18-wheel trailers out of here loaded with solid waste and heading for Corralitos Regional Landfill. More and more customers are coming into the Chaparral facility every day."

"We opened five and half months ago; the number of customers using the new facility is growing rapidly as they discover how convenient and inexpensive it is to dump trash here," agrees Rafael Leos, Deputy Director at the South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA).

Saturday, Nov. 18 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., in honor of America Recycles Day, the SCSWA is hosting an Open House at the Chaparral Transfer Station and Recycling Center.

The event will also be a "Trash Amnesty Day," meaning Chaparral residents can bring in their trash free during those hours. To drop off trash at no charge, Chaparral residents must show proof of residency with a current utility-type bill and a photo ID.

GREEN

The SCSWA will have equipment from other operations on display to show recycling and solid waste services with a large outdoor lineup including:

- Drop-off glass crushing and recycling
- The green waste chipper
- The tire shredder
- A haul truck with a walking-floor trailer
- An automated side-loader curbside trash truck.

Guests are invited to walk through the outdoor displays, and SCSWA staff will be there to answer questions. All guests can enjoy an SCSWA outreach information table with handouts and burritos, soft drinks and a water station to refill water bottles. Keep Doña Ana County Beautiful will be there also providing information to the community.

The Chaparral operation is a model for future facilities being planned for Doña Ana County to meet the solid waste and recycling needs from Sunland Park to Hatch. Customers do not need county punch cards before bringing trash and recyclables; this facility can accept cash, checks and credit cards at the gate when customers come through. Seven days a week, residents can pay $5 plus tax to bring in up to 200 pounds of household trash. Trash is also accepted from commercial haulers, saving them miles of hauling to get to other facilities farther away.

The Chaparral Transfer Station and Recycling Center is open seven days a week: 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekends. Recyclables are accepted

St. Clair Winery & Bistro to serve veterans

BULLETIN REPORT

St. Clair Winery & Bistro will honor all U.S. veterans and active duty military on Veterans Day, Saturday, Nov. 11.

Veterans and current servicemen and women are invited to enjoy a complimentary meal from a specially selected Veterans Day menu. All three St. Clair Winery & Bistro locations in Albuquerque, Las Cruces and Farmington are taking part in what has become an annual tradition to show appreciation to those who've sacrificed so much.

"Veterans selflessly serve our country and we are proud to be able to provide this small token of appreciation by serving them," commented Wayne Moore, director of bistro operations. "Honoring our Veterans means a lot to us, we are so grateful and honored to be a part of this."

This year commemorates the fourth consecutive year for the program. In 2016, St. Clair served about 500 veterans and active duty military to a complimentary meal and also surprised them with an additional $10 voucher to use on a future visit.

Veterans are invited to choose from a select menu that features a hearty taste of home. The options of Southwest Meatloaf, Chicken Picado, Country Pot Roast and other local favorites like Pasta New Mexico and Isabelle's Chicken Salad will be offered to veterans dining in between 11 a.m. and 9 p.m. on Nov. 11. Alcohol and gratuity are not included.

Servicemen and women can claim their complimentary meal by simply presenting proof of service, such as: U.S. Uniformed Services ID Card, U.S. Uniformed Services Retired ID Card, current Leave and Earnings Statement (LES), Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty (DD214), veteran organization card or simply by wearing their uniform.

Mayfield alumna again selected for chorus

BULLETIN REPORT

For the second year in a row, Kayleigh Getkin, a Mayfield High School alumna and New Mexico State University freshman, has been selected to participate in the National Future Farmers of America (FFA) Chorus.

Getkin is once again the only student from New Mexico who sang in the chorus during the group's performances Oct. 25-28 at the 90th National FFA Convention and Expo in Indianapolis, Indiana.

"Last year, Kayleigh was the first member in the Mayfield FFA chapter's history to be selected for the national FFA chorus," said Kim Obyrne, faculty advisor for the Mayfield High School FFA Chapter. "We're proud to see her once again representing our local FFA chapters at a nationally-televised event."

According to Obyrne, Getkin was actively involved with Mayfield FFA chapter throughout her high school career at MHS. Getkin was joined at the convention by Mayfield FFA members Billy Grooms, Lawrence Richardson, Greg Brooks and Ky Massey, who competed as a team in the Agricultural Technology & Mechanical Systems competition, demonstrating their skills in the areas of welding, problem solving and agricultural engineering.

In order to be selected

for the chorus, members submitted a written application and audition video which was judged on: variety of vocal experiences, including participation in choir or talent events at the State FFA level; singing range; timbre; healthy technique; confidence; expression; and potential to blend in a choral setting, according to FFA officials.

In addition to participating in the nationally-televised convention, FFA officials explained that the students who participate in the chorus will also receive a certificate and a chorus pin.

In 2015, Getkin was one of 33 Las Cruces teenagers honored by the Mayor's Top Teens program, which recognizes outstanding teenaged achievers in the community who may have otherwise gone unrecognized, according to the program's website.

The FFA is a national youth organization that provides leadership, personal growth and career success training through agricultural education to 653,359 members who belong to one of 8,568 local FFA chapters throughout the U.S., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Prison raises funds for vets program

BULLETIN REPORT

With the approval and support of Warden Ricardo Martinez, inmates at the Otero County Prison Facility (OCPF) in Chaparral have raised funds to provide 30 backpacks filled with useful supplies, along with a $250 check to assist with the annual Backpacks for Vets program.

Backpacks for Vets is an annual effort organized by the Veterans Democratic Council of Doña Ana County. The backpacks are provided to homeless and near-homeless veterans.

Jeff Dray, council president and organizer of Backpacks for Vets, explains the goal is providing 50 filled backpacks.

“We are extremely grateful and elated with the presentation from the Veterans Club here at the OCPF,” he said. “When Warden Martinez explained the BIONIC acronym – Believe It Or Not I Care – we could see that philosophy resonates through this facility.”

The Veterans Club at OCPF is a group of inmates who donate their own money to assist veterans.

DACC celebrates 'distinguished alumni'

BULLETIN REPORT

A social worker, medical doctor, college professor and business entrepreneur all find common ground as part of the 2017 Class of Distinguished Alumni of Doña Ana Community College (DACC).

On Oct. 28 the college celebrated the accomplishments of Maurice Azzolini, Dr. Russell Baker, Terry Mount and Silvia Terrazas.

Azzolini serves on the New Mexico Substitute Care Review Board, which monitors children in foster care and makes recommendations to the state about the foster care system. Born in Hoboken, New Jersey, Azzolini moved to Las Cruces in 2011. He enrolled at DACC and graduated in 2014 and went on to earn a Bachelor degree from New Mexico State University and a master's in social work from the University of Southern California.

A long-time volunteer, Azzolini also works with Mesilla Valley Hospice, La Posada Assisted Living Facility and the "Toss No Mas" campaign that helps beautify the city.

Baker is a board certified emergency medicine physician and has been practicing medicine for the past 11 years. He is on staff at University Medical Center in El Paso and is an Associate serves as the medical director for several agencies including AMR, the U.S. Border Patrol and Elite Ambulance.

He earned a paramedic certificate from DACC in 1999 after graduating from NMSU with a bachelor degree in microbiology. He graduated from medical school in 2006. Baker, who lives in El Paso, is an avid triathlete.

Mount is an associate professor and Commercial Technologies Department chair at DACC. She earned an associate degree in Water Technology in 1983 and became an instructor in 1992 in the field of water technology. Mount serves on several boards and committees that inform her teaching. She is a member of the New Mexico Environment Department Wastewater Technical Advisory Committee, the New Mexico Water and Wastewater Association, and the American Water Works Association.

She has received several awards, including the Cynthia Hiers-Robinson Outstanding Wastewater Instructor of the year, the John Clark Award for outstanding service to the NM Water and Wastewater Association and the Caroline Martinez Award for Outstanding Achievement.

Terrazasis is owner of the Paleteria La Reyna Michoacana. When she came to the U.S. she opened a small business to sell jewelry and paletas (popsicles) and soon realized that the paletas were selling more than other items. She began making paletas from scratch which increased the quality of the product and the profits.

Working with the Small Business Development Center at DACC, Terrazas expanded her business to include piñatas, household items and other popular Mexican products that her customers wanted. Her business grew and soon she had 12 employees.

A barrier she faced was learning English so she began attending English as a Second Language classes at DACC. Since taking the classes she has been able to negotiate better pricing, which has resulted in greater profit for the company. She is planning another expansion which will add eight new employees to help serve her customers.

With Looming Threat of Tariffs on Panels, Now is the Time to Get Solar.

Seize the moment for unprecedented low installation costs.

The price of solar has fallen dramatically. Installation costs are now half what they were in 2008 and 100 times less than what they were back in 1978.

But new action from the White House could undo much of this progress. President Trump is now threatening to place tariffs on imports of solar panels—an action that could double the cost of solar panels and destroy up to 88,000 jobs in the solar industry.

If you've considered going solar in order to cut your energy bills, get more predictable utility rates, and help reduce pollution, this is the time to act.

Earlier this year, an Atlanta-based solar manufacturer petitioned the US government to put trade restrictions on imported panels. It now appears likely that Trump, acting under authority from a 1974 trade law, may apply the punishing tariffs on solar imports.

It's unclear whether the actions would boost the manufacturers' business. But one thing is clear: The tariffs could double the price of solar panels.

2017 was already an exceptional time to go solar. The federal government's 30% tax credit is set to start scaling down soon. New Mexico's current "Net Metering" law makes solar a smart investment. Solar technologies are more efficient and reliable than ever, and rates of customer satisfaction are at record levels. With climate change and air quality threats demanding attention, installing solar is an effective way to contribute to a clean environment. Consumer Reports—one of the nation's leading personal finance publications—recently declared that "there has probably never been a better time to switch to solar."

But Trump's protectionist threat against the solar industry may be the biggest reason to act now. Tariffs could eliminate much of the progress on solar prices. You can still take advantage of today's record-low solar costs if you seize the moment to make your investment in solar today.

Contact SunPower by Positive Energy Solar: Our experienced team will meet with you to understand your energy goals, provide design options, inform you on available tax incentives, and show how much you can save on electric bills.

Clubs That Help

Did you know that nearly every community has clubs made up of people who want to help other people? Helping others is sometimes called "being of service."

These clubs do a lot for their own communities. Some raise money and then donate the money to help improve their towns. They also do work projects such as cleaning up dirty streets, caring for gardens, serving food and helping kids and education. And some raise money to fight poverty and disease around the world!

Use the code to find out what these kinds of clubs are called.

County must find money for DASO union

BY LYNN MOORER

For the Bulletin

Doña Ana County (DAC) must find funds to pay sheriff's deputies in Communications Workers of America Local 7911 about $3 million more for Fiscal Year 2017 and about $1.5 million more in each future year.

The total could rise to almost $4 million this year if all associated issues are addressed. (See box.)

That results from an arbitrator's decision that became final Oct. 19 when the New Mexico Supreme Court declined to hear an appeal of a court of appeals decision upholding a district court decision affirming the arbitrator's decision. It settled a contract dispute originating in 2014 when the union's contract expired.

During the DAC commission's Oct. 24 meeting, County Attorney Nelson Goodin explained that, under the state Public Employees Bargaining Act and the DAC Labor Relations Ordinance, arbitration was required akin to baseball arbitration. He said the arbitrator "has to accept one side's proposal over the other side's proposal. He can't choose a little from each."

Goodin cited legal authority specifying that the commission has the authority to make appropriations on behalf of DAC. "I believe that process was overridden by the arbitrator" who "appropriated the money DAC has rather than being the board that does that," he said.

The decision also allows DASO employees to be paid for doing union work on county time. "That raises legal issues with the anti-donation clause" of the state constitution, Goodin said, which "we may have to address in the future."

"That's going to have a huge impact on the budget," he said. How the increase will be paid and what other budget items will have to be cut are "hard questions" the commission will have to decide in the near future, Goodin said.

The decision creates a significant disparity between sheriff deputies' benefits and all other county employees' benefits. (See box.)

According to Goodin, deputies' salaries are moved to the 100th percentile based on the 2015 Fox Lawson salary study while all other county employees are at the 37th percentile. The Fox Lawson study examined the salary ranges for comparable jobs in the region. An employee at the 50th percentile is paid halfway between the top salary and the bottom salary, Goodin said.

Payments in February 2018

Financial Services Department Director Joey Rowe explained that base-pay increases for the DASO union total about $1.4 million and retroactive payments (from Aug. 7, 2016), paid in a one-time, lump-sum payment, total about $1.5 million. She said a "time-consuming" review will begin immediately of each time record for the approximately 150 employees affected to recalculate overtime pay and other benefits. Rowe said active DASO employees affected will be paid no later than February 2018, then former DASO employees will be paid.

She noted that the arbitrator's decision "will exacerbate the compression command staff issues currently going on" where the highest paid deputies are paid more than the command staff. Rowe estimated that another $174,000 is needed to address that. She added that when the budget is increased to cover these expenses, an additional 25 percent in reserves will be needed to meet state requirements.

Full accounting and reviews

"I simply think the arbitrator and the courts got it wrong," Commissioner Billy Garrett said. "It should be this board that decides whether it's going to be 100 percent ... or 37th percentile."

Noting that the arbitrator regarded as an appropriation the commission's 2015 decision to designate $4 million in the first one-eighth of the hold-harmless gross receipts tax revenues as reserved for DASO equipment and salaries, Garrett said that's where the money to pay DASO "should be coming from." He asked for a "full accounting" of it.

Commissioner Benjamin Rawson echoed Garrett's request, saying the $1.4 million for base-pay increases, a recurring expense, should be found in the budget while the $1.5 million for retroactive payments, a nonrecurring expense, can be taken from reserves. Afterward, Rawson said, "I don't think county employees have any reason to fear for their jobs."

"Congratulations. They deserve it. They put up a good fight," said Commissioner John Vasquez afterward about the DASO union's victory. "Deputies deserve even more pay, monthly hazardous duty pay for all deputies in the field." He favors a full review of every county department with an eye toward reorganization of personnel. This may mean reductions in pay or elimination of positions, Vasquez said. "The only ones who should worry are those who bring no value to the county. There are some."

The commission plans a work session in November to continue its discussion.

At its meeting, the commission also:

• Heard a presentation by Spaceport America CEO Dan Hicks. "Spaceport America is growing and has a solid future," he said. Through its agreement with White Sands Missile Range, it has unrestricted airspace 24/7 controlled by the Department of Defense, "a unique advantage." Plus, "our nation will look to us for inland launches" for commercial space flight because "we're ideally located, with no worry about severe weather events," unlike spaceports on the coasts.

• Approved (4-1) a proposal by Mountain Space Constructors to reconstruct the southern road to Spaceport America in DAC and Sierra County costing up to $15.3 million and finished in about a year. Garrett said the county acts as an agent for the spaceport.

"This is not county money," he said, but "spaceport money that's been set aside." Vehicles can "bottom out" on the current dirt road, which is impassable in inclement weather. "This is the driveway to a really important place." Vasquez, who voted no, said afterward, "I don't see any return on investment for taxpayers. The only value is to workers there."

• Approved a winegrower liquor license to manufacture and store wine for Mesa Vista Winery, LLC, in Chamberino (4-1, Gonzalez dissenting). The majority was unconvinced by evidence of inaccurate and inconsistent information submitted by applicants Dawn and Bryan Oakley, presented by neighbor Lorraine Limon McCullough, which she said showed their poor "moral character."

County Commission personality emerges

Part 3: funding priorities and departments

By LYNN MOORER
For the Bulletin

One of the Doña Ana County (DAC) Commission's most significant responsibilities is managing the county budget. For Fiscal Year 2017-2018, it is $154.3 million.

Funding priorities for some commissioners reflect their views of how a department is performing. Others want input from benchmarks or auditors to guide funding paths.

The perspectives here are from former county manager Julia Brown, experienced Commissioners Billy Garrett and Benjamin Rawson and newcomers Chairwoman Isabella Solis, Vice-chair John Vasquez and Commissioner Ramon Gonzalez – accumulated from interviews, commission meetings, emails and independent research.

Greater funding needed

Solis wants a “roads initiative” “on the top” of county spending and creation of a five-year plan to see “how many roads can we pave.” Gonzalez says, “Not enough is being spent on roads. Funding should go to districts that need it most, not just fixing four to five roads in each district.”

Garrett and Vasquez agree that spending on infrastructure (roads, dams, drainage structures, wastewater systems) is high priority, especially in the 37 DAC colonias. However, most of the $606 million needed to accomplish these improvements for which the county is directly responsible must come from joint efforts with federal, state, and other entities, according to Garrett.

“We’re not doing enough for economic development,” says Vasquez. Instead of just one staff person, “we need a department of five” that focuses on “everything from the private sector to the public sector.”

“To be aggressive with planning and community development,” Garrett says, the Community Development Department needs a couple additional staffers. DAC needs to “significantly increase its funding support for economic development and infrastructure for communities. We should be putting money into projects, like building and operating a park system. If we wait for the state, sometimes we’ll just keep waiting.”

“I’d like to open up our community centers at night,” Gonzalez says. “Our teenagers need to have somewhere they can say, ‘This belongs to us and I need to be with my friends there.’” He complains that the Health and Human Services Department, which handles community center programming, isn’t doing enough to get this accomplished, although he acknowledges a lack of funding. He also quibbles with procedures HHS uses for the centers.

Vasquez wants DAC to purchase potable water trucks to provide backup to private rural water companies in the county during emergencies.

Solis, Gonzalez, and Vasquez think DAC Sheriff’s office (DASO) personnel should be paid much more and don’t question what the DASO union demands. Gonzalez has explicitly said they should be given everything they ask for, according to Brown. Vasquez thinks field deputies should receive hazardous duty pay in addition.

All three opposed appeal of an arbitrator’s decision awarding $3 million more than designated in the 2016-2017 budget for deputies’ salaries, a decision which recently became final when the state Supreme Court denied review. In contrast, both Garrett and Rawson supported appeal because of implications for commission budget-setting authority.

Overspending

In disagreement with the newcomers, Garrett says, “We have by a couple million dollars been spending more on DASO than be running the county and run it right into bankruptcy.” “It’s a simple matter of arithmetic because the county only has so much money,” Brown says. When she explained this to the newcomers, “it seemed to be rather over their heads.”

- Fleet Management and Engineering – Rawson.
- Animal Control and Codes and sheriff’s deputies – Vasquez.

Problematic departments

• Community and Constituent Services: “A complete waste of five people. They don’t go to community meetings or respond to constituents unless they fill out a very specific form – the epitome of government bureaucracy working against itself.” – Rawson; “They need to be proactive rather than reactive, out there identifying problems before they become big problems, like missing stop signs and graffiti, then follow up to see when the problem is fixed.” – Vasquez.

• Detention: “Our largest personnel department” whose administrator, Chris Barela, resigned in September after being placed on administrative leave when charged with purchasing and distributing marijuana – Rawson.

• Community Development: “What exactly does community development mean? That we’re just trying to make the place better for people to live? It needs to have something to do with economic development, bringing in jobs and opportunities while working on land use.” – Rawson.

Assessment help needed

“There’s a lot of poor spending taking place,” says Rawson. “The budget has increased 60 percent from 2007 to 2017. But our population hasn’t risen 60 percent and we’re not seeing an increase in our services to residents by 60 percent.”

“I’ve been asking for benchmarking” where DAC could compare its expenditures to other counties in the state and find inefficiencies, Rawson says. “The New Mexico Association of Counties (NMAC) does benchmarking for counties that want to participate.” He says, “We could find out how much other counties spend on road maintenance, for example. It would be a good place to begin to see whether the sheriff’s department is underfunded as the sheriff claims.”

Solis thinks the internal auditor will determine “what each department’s spending looks like.” Gonzalez wants an external auditor to do this.

Departments deserving praise

• “All of our departments are functioning well. We’ve got a lot of good people who are working hard and a good management staff.” – Garrett.

we should be.” He adds, “Rather than accepting our proposal for the 37th percentile (pay comparability to similar regional jobs), the sheriff deputies’ union forced us into mediation” which the county lost. “I’m very worried about what the implications are for all of county government.” It will wreak havoc with the budget, lead other unions to request higher pay and set a dangerous precedent undercutting the authority of governmental bodies to control their budgets, he says.

Garrett notes, “Unfortunately, the sheriff, rather than acting as part of the county’s management team which has to work within budget limitations, has been working as an advocate for the deputies.” Requests to DAC Sheriff Enrique Vigil for an interview went unanswered.

Brown cites fiscal management as the top challenge for DAC and says giving the sheriff everything he asks for “puts the county on a slippery slope. If you do that, you’ll never be able to negotiate with any other union because they won’t come to the table.”

Furthermore, she says, the commission would be “giving up its authority ... abdicating its responsibility,” and “the unions will

Silver City opposes Holloman flyover plans

By CHRISTINE STEELE

Silver City Daily Press

Silver City Mayor Ken Ladner, with the full support of the City Council, will be sending two letters to Air Force officials opposing their plans to expand their flyover zone over the Gila National Forest and requesting a local meeting – something that wasn't done prior to Holloman Air Force Base's announcement last month.

The Air Force has said they need the expanded space to train pilots as the current airspace was developed 30 years ago and does not have the optimum volume to support the new F-16 fighter jets. The training would also involve flying as low as 500 feet above ground level, supersonic activity at 30,000 feet and the use of defensive chaff and flares within certain parameters.

The Air Force held open houses in Carlsbad, Truth or Consequences and Las F-16s such as this one may soon be training over Sierra and Grant counties with close to 20,000 missions a year out of Holloman Air Force Base.

Cruces as part of the scoping period, which will end with a draft environmental impact statement that Grant County residents have had no say in.

"I do realize that the Air Force, in order to maintain an effective air combat readiness, must be able to train their pilots," Ladner said. "Our concern, however, is that the citizens of Silver City, Grant County and southwest New Mexico have not had an opportunity to meet personally with representatives from the U.S. Air Force to give their input and voice their concerns. That opportunity was provided to the citizens in T or C and Las Cruces, but not us."

Council members Lynda Aiman-Smith, Cynthia Bettison, and Jose Ray all agreed with the mayor.

"I find it appalling that we were not included in the public meetings," Aiman-Smith said. "I support training exercises but I can't support this kind of training exercise."

"I'm against this also," said Councilor Ray. "Being a veteran — and there are lots of veterans here in Grant County — I've been out there in the Gila hunting when they have flown over us. For lack of a better word, it makes you really angry."

"Our own state senators and representatives had no idea," commented Councilor Bettison. "It's almost as if Silver City, Grant County, and southwest New Mexico wasn't included at all," she said.

Bettison, an archaeologist, also noted how low flyovers can damage sensitive rock formations like the Gila Cliff Dwellings, and have in other parts of the state.

Ladner addressed one letter to Col. Houston R. Cantwell, the 49th Wing Commander at Holloman Air Force Base, and one to the Holloman AFB Airspace EIS in Hampton, Va. Bettison suggested copies also be sent to U.S. Sens. Martin Heinrich and Tom Udall, and Congressman Steve Pearce.

In the letters, Ladner outlines the town's concerns, noting the possible negative impacts on the town's tourism economy, visitors' experience in the Gila

National Forest, including hunting and wildlife viewing, the impact on wilderness areas where motorized travel is banned, and on Native American ruins, including the Cliff Dwellings, and the lack of input from an area that would be so heavily impacted.

"Silver City is a community with a rich history and an economy that is strongly dependent on tourism with visitors to the Gila Cliff Dwellings and to other National sites, and upon the numerous people who utilize the Gila National Forest for hiking, camping, hunting, fishing, scientific studies, their livelihood and other outdoor activities," the letter reads. "Some people who visit actually end up moving back here to live permanently. They fall in love with the people, the peace, the tranquility, the solitude and the generally-quiet lifestyle we all enjoy."

"Both Councilor Ray and I are veterans," Ladner said. "I think we all want a strong Air Force."

In response to public outcry, efforts of the conservation community and leadership from local Grant County Commissioners, the Air Force will offer a presentation at a public meeting hosted by the Grant County Commission at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 14, at the Grant County Administration Building Commission Chambers. While this is not a public input meeting, the public is invited to attend the meeting and to provide written comments.

A public rally has been organized to precede the commission meeting outside the building at 5 p.m. which includes speakers from the Grant County Commission, Backcountry Hunters & Anglers and the Continental Divide Trail Coalition.

The Gospel Rescue Mission on Amador Avenue is the only homeless shelter in Las Cruces that uses no tax dollars.

Rescue mission issues 'challenge'

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces Gospel Rescue Mission, Inc., has launched "The $20 Challenge" to raise $200,000 by Dec. 31 to support those in need.

"We are asking our community to please make their $20 donation and challenge someone else to do the same," says Henry Young, Gospel Rescue Mission chaplain and executive director.

"If 10 percent of the people that live in Las Cruces donated just $20 we would reach our goal."

The Gospel Rescue Mission is the only shelter in Las Cruces that offers Christian guidance, provides emergency food and lodging services 24/7, uses no tax dollars and seeks to re-assimilate the less fortunate into productive society.

"I am so grateful to the Mission for helping me, feeding me, giving me a bed and a roof over my head," says

William Buck of Las Cruces, who has been staying at the Gospel Rescue Mission off and on for three years. "If it wasn't for the Mission I don't know where I'd be."

Credit card donations can be made via "The $20 Challenge" Facebook fundraiser page, and by credit card, cash or check at the Gospel Rescue Mission office, 1050 W. Amador Ave., from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday. Donations of cash and check can also be made at D2 Designs, 101 Perkins Drive, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday.

The Mission also has a critical need for blankets. Blankets may be donated at either the Gospel Rescue Mission Clothing Room, 1416 S. Solano Ave., or at the mission on Amador. Hours for the Clothing Room are 9-11 a.m. Monday and Friday, and 9-11 a.m. and 3-5 p.m. Wednesday. For more information, call 575-642-9619.

ACTION:

Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI)

SUMMARY:

NASA is announcing the publication of a Draft FONSI and Draft Supplemental EA addressing the addition of an energy storage test bed to a 1.6 MW solar array at WSTF. The documents were prepared as required under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) of 1969 and according to the Procedures of Implementation of NEPA for National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) (Title 14, Code of Federal Regulations [CFR], part 1216 subparts 1216.1 and 1216.3, 2012).

DATE:

October 26, 2017

ADDRESS:

A copy of the FONSI and Supplemental EA are available for public review at the Thomas Branigan Memorial Library (200 East Picacho Avenue, Las Cruces, NM; Reference Desk). All comments are invited for consideration by the NASA Environmental Office Chief within thirty calendar days of this notice. Electronic copies of the documents are available on the internet at https://www.nasa.gov/centers/wstf/about_us/environmental_management/public_reading_room/nepa.html.

SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION:

Knowing the peak and average demand of a power system is critical to proper planning. The power system must be designed to serve the peak load, which is usually the busiest part of the day when the majority of the work force is present. WSTF has previously reviewed the purpose and need for a proposed solar array to help provide electricity to the site. The Energy Policy Act of 2005 and Executive Order (EO) 13693 require federal facilities to adhere to a schedule of compliance for the use of renewable sources of energy.

The installation of the initial 1.6 MW solar array started in September 2017. The energy storage test area would be installed on site either next to the solar array or closer to existing electrical facilities. The energy storage test area would be installed after the construction of the initial 1.6 MW solar array is completed. The proposed action of this supplemental EA would set up test areas to determine which of the following energy storage options works best for WSTF. Many different types of energy storage would be evaluated before selecting the one(s) that work best for WSTF. This supplemental Environmental Assessment (EA) considered two reasonable alternatives: 1) testing methods of energy storage to evaluate, implementing, and installing the best energy storage solution for WSTF, and 2) a "no action" alternative.

Cumulative impacts are those environmental impacts that result from the incremental effects of the proposed action when compounded by other past, present, or reasonably foreseeable future actions (40 CFR §1508.7, 2012). The addition of energy storage test areas to the WSTF solar energy project would make minor contributions to impacts at WSTF. Waste generated during this project would be managed and disposed of in accordance with applicable local, state, and federal regulations. Hazardous materials, such as lithium batteries, would be shipped in accordance with U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) requirements and stored in accordance with manufacturer recommendations. In the unlikely event of release of hazardous constituents, such as anolyte and catholyte liquids, site specific spill remediation procedures would be implemented to immediately address the release and minimize environmental impacts. Overall greenhouse gas air emissions associated with power use at the site would be reduced by using onsite energy storage. Noise associated with construction activities would be localized to areas with existing human activity. Vehicle traffic associated with construction and maintenance activities would slightly increase but would not significantly increase traffic loads on the existing and future road network at WSTF. Reducing materials or recycling materials whenever possible during the project would help reduce the overall project cost and resources used.

To minimize potential environmental impacts associated with the proposed action as identified in the preceding analysis, the following mitigations would be adopted. These mitigations are central to the determination of no significant impact. Mitigation efforts would be implemented at the discretion of WSTF. Any unexpected adverse impacts to the environment would require additional mitigation measures.

- There would be mobile sources of air emission present during the construction. Ground vehicles would be used for the installation of the solar array. To minimize dust during these activities, dust control measures such as water trucks or dust suppressants would be used.

- Vehicles would use existing roads when available. If any species listed in Section 3.6 were found following the completion of this EA, WSTF would determine if additional mitigation is necessary to prevent impact to the listed species' populations.

- Noise levels during construction may, at times, reach levels harmful to field personnel. For individual protection, all personnel are required to use appropriate protective hearing devices if 84 dB(A) are surpassed.

- The project would use several possible hazardous materials (i.e., lithium batteries). All hazardous materials would be received and shipped in accordance with U.S. DOT requirements. Hazardous materials would be stored and used in accordance with manufacturer recommendations to mitigate risks associated with their use on site. Hazardous materials and components reaching the end of their service life would be properly managed and disposed of in accordance with applicable local, state, and federal regulations. Any unplanned release of hazardous constituents would be immediately contained and addressed in accordance with WSTF procedures to minimize adverse impacts to the environment. NASA has determined that the proposed action is not a

LEGAL NOTICES

Las Cruces Bulletin - your legal publication for Las Cruces and Doña Ana County, New Mexico

major federal action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment within the context of NEPA and that no significant impacts on the human environment are associated with this decision.

AGENCIA:

La Administración Nacional Aeronáutica y Espacial (NASA por sus siglas en inglés) de Johnson Space Center (JSC) en White Sands Test Facility (WSTF)

ACCIÓN:

Hallazgos de Impacto No-Significativos (FONSI por sus siglas en inglés)

RESUMEN:

NASA está anunciando la publicación de un borrador FONSI y un borrador complementario de la Evaluación de Impacto Ambiental (EA por sus siglas en inglés) relacionado con la adición de un sistema piloto de almacenamiento de energía en un sistema solar de 1.6 mega watts (MW) ubicado en WSTF. Los documentos fueron preparados siguiendo los requisitos de La Ley Nacional de Política Ambiental (NEPA por sus siglas en inglés) de 1969 y de acuerdo a los procedimientos de implementación de NEPA para La Administración Nacional Aeronáutica y Espacial (NASA) (Título 14, Código de Regulaciones Federales [CFR por sus siglas en inglés], sección 1216 subsección 1216.1 y 1216.3, 2012).

FECHA:

26 de octubre de 2017

DIRECCIÓN:

Una copia del FONSI y del Complemento de la Evaluación de Impacto Ambiental están disponibles para la revisión del público en la Biblioteca Thomas Branigan Memorial (200 East Picacho Ave., Las Cruces, NM en el centro de atención de público). Todos los comentarios serán considerados por el Director del Programa Ambiental de la NASA durante los siguientes treinta días del calendario de esta notificación. Copias electrónicas de los documentos están disponibles por internet en https://www.nasa.gov/centers/wstf/about_us/environmental_management/public_reading_room/ne

INFORMACIÓN COMPLEMENTARIA:

Adquirir la información de consumo máximo y de demanda del sistema de energía eléctrica es crítico para una planeación apropiada. El sistema de energía eléctrica debe ser diseñado para proveer energía para el consumo máximo en el cual usualmente es la parte del día en la que la mayoría de la fuerza de trabajo está presente. WSTF previamente analizó el propósito y la necesidad de la proposición de instalar un sistema de fotovoltaico de energía solar para proveer electricidad para tal sitio. La Ley de Política de Energía del 2005 y la Orden Ejecutiva (EO por sus siglas en inglés) 13693 requieren que las instalaciones federales se adhieran a un programa para el uso de fuentes de energía renovable.

La instalación inicial del sistema de energía solar de 1.6 MW empezó en el septiembre del 2017. El área de pruebas de almacenamiento de energía será instalada cerca de las células solares o cerca de instalaciones eléctricas existentes. El área de pruebas de almacenamiento de energía será instalada después de que la construcción inicial del sistema de energía solar de 1.6 MW haya sido completada. La acción propuesta por el complemento del EA será para preparar áreas de prueba para determinar cuáles de las siguientes opciones de fuentes de energía funciona mejor para WSTF. Varias fuentes de almacenamiento de energía serán evaluadas antes de hacer una selección de la que funciona mejor para WSTF. Este complemento de la Evaluación de Impacto Ambiental (EA) considero dos alternativas viables: 1) pruebas piloto de almacenamiento de energía para evaluar, implementar e instalar la mejor solución de fuente de energía para WSTF, y 2) una alternativa de "no acción".

Los impactos acumulativos son aquellos impactos del medio ambiente que resultan de los efectos incrementales de la acción propuesta agravada por una acción del pasado, presente o futuro previsible razonable (40 CFR §1508.7, 2012). La adición de un área de pruebas de almacenamiento de energía al proyecto de energía solar de WSTF tendrá contribuciones mínimas a los impactos de WSTF. Residuos generados durante este proyecto serán adecuadamente manejados y desechados de acuerdo a las leyes locales, estatales y federales aplicables. Materiales peligrosos tal como baterías de litio, serán transportadas de acuerdo al Departamento de Transporte de los Estados Unidos (U.S. DOT por sus siglas en inglés) y almacenadas de acuerdo a las recomendaciones del fabricante. En el remoto evento de la emisión de componentes peligrosos tales como líquidos anódicos y catódicos, procedimientos de remediación específica del lugar serán implementados inmediatamente para remediar la emisión y minimizar los impactos al medio ambiente. En general las emisiones de gases de efecto invernadero asociados con el uso de electricidad en el lugar serán reducidos con el uso de almacenamiento de energía del sitio. Ruido asociado con las actividades de construcción serán localizados en el área con actividades humanas existentes. El tráfico de vehículos asociados con las actividades de construcción y mantenimiento incrementará levemente pero no incrementará significativamente la carga de tráfico en la red de carreteras futuras o existentes de WSTF. Reducir el uso de materiales o materiales reciclados en lo posible durante este proyecto podría reducir el costo total del proyecto y el uso de recursos.

Con objetivo de minimizar impactos posibles asociados con la acción propuesta identificada en el análisis precedente, las siguientes mitigaciones serán incorporadas. Estas mitigaciones son parte central de la determinación de impactos

"No-Significativos". Las mitigaciones serán implementadas a la discreción de WSTF. Cualquier impacto adverso inesperado al medio ambiente requerirá medidas de mitigación adicionales.

- Habrá fuentes móviles de emisión de aire presentes durante la construcción. Vehículos terrenales serán usados para la instalación del sistema de energía solar. Con objetivo de minimizar la generación de polvo durante estas actividades, medidas de control de polvo tal como un camión de agua o un supresor de polvo será usado.

- Los vehículos usaran las carreteras existentes cuando estén disponibles. Si se encuentra alguna especie enlistada en la Sección 3.6 después de la emisión de este EA, WSTF determinará si mitigaciones adicionales son necesarias para prevenir el impacto a la población de la especie enlistada.

- El nivel de ruido durante la construcción podría en momentos alcanzar niveles dañinos para el personal en el terreno. Para protección personal, se requiere que todo el personal use dispositivos de protección auditivas si el ruido es más de 84 decibels (dB(A)).

- El proyecto usara algunos materiales posiblemente peligrosos (i.e., baterías de litio). Todos los materiales peligrosos serán recibidos y transportados de acuerdo con los requisitos de U.S. DOT. Materiales peligrosos serán almacenados y usados de acuerdo a las recomendaciones del fabricante para mitigar los riesgos asociados con el uso en el lugar. Materiales peligrosos y sus componentes que alcancen el fin de su vida útil serán debidamente manejados y desechados de acuerdo a las leyes locales, estatales y federales aplicables. Cualquier emisión no planeada de constituyentes peligrosos será contenida inmediatamente y remediada de acuerdo con los procedimientos de WSTF para minimizar impactos adversos al medio ambiente.

NASA ha determinado que la acción propuesta no es una acción mayor federal que afecta significativamente la calidad del ambiente humano dentro del contexto de NEPA y que no hay impactos significativos en el ambiente humano asociados con esta decisión.

The address of the real property is 839 Clark Lane, Las Cruces, NM 88007. Plaintiff does not represent or warrant that the stated street address is the street address of the described property; if the street address does not match the legal description, then the property being sold herein is the property more particularly described above, not the property located at the street address; any prospective purchaser at the sale is given notice that it should verify the location and address of the property being sold. Said sale will be made pursuant to the judgment entered on August 11, 2017 in the above entitled and numbered cause, which was a suit to foreclose a mortgage held by the above Plaintiff and wherein Plaintiff was adjudged to have a lien against the above-described real estate in the sum of $84,984.08 plus interest from April 1, 2017 to the date of sale at the rate of 6.36% per annum, the costs of sale, including the Special Master's fee, publication costs, and Plaintiff's costs expended for taxes, insurance, and keeping the property in good repair. Plaintiff has the right to bid at such sale and submit its bid verbally or in writing. The Plaintiff may apply all or any part of its judgment to the purchase price in lieu of cash.

At the date and time stated above, the Special Master may postpone the sale to such later date and time as the Special Master may specify.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this sale may be subject to a bankruptcy filing, a pay off, a reinstatement or any other condition that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, at the time of sale, this sale will be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Special Master and the mortgagee giving this notice shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the real property and improvements concerned with herein will be sold subject to any and all patent reservations, easements, all recorded and unrecorded liens not foreclosed herein, and all recorded and unrecorded special assessments and taxes that may be due. Plaintiff and its attorneys disclaim all responsibility for, and the purchaser at the sale takes the property subject to, the valuation of the property by the County Assessor as real or personal property, affixture of any mobile or manufactured home to the land, deactivation of title to a mobile or manufactured home on the property, if any, environmental contamination on the property, if any, and zoning violations concerning the property, if any.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the purchaser at such sale shall take title to the above-described real property subject to rights of redemption.

Symphony musician writes and sings from the heart

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Janet Blair is both an orchestral oboist and a singer/songwriter who plays a yellow upright piano.

Blair will be in her classical mode on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, Nov. 4 and 5, when she performs in concert with the Las Cruces Symphony Orchestra at the New Mexico State University Music Building.

A second principal of the Las Cruces Symphony Orchestra, Blair also writes and performs her unique blend of piano-based jazz, pop, ballads and faith.

A native of Bowie, Maryland, Blair played the oboe and piano in junior high school and earned bachelor and master's degrees in oboe from the University of Maryland. She has played the double-reed instrument for the symphony since arriving in Las Cruces four years ago, when her husband took an aerospace job at White Sands Missile Range.

"I love the quiet of this area," she says.

Earlier this year Blair recorded her first album, "Songs for the Waiting," in Nashville. She wrote all 10 songs, including two co-authored with Jars of Clay guitarist Matthew Odmark. Odmark also produced the album, which recently reached No. 6 on the Billboard Mountain Heatseekers chart.

The songwriting process began in earnest after the loss of a friend.

"I just started hearing this song in my head," Blair said.

Eventually, "For Shania (I Will Wait)" was an expression of her grief, a song, she says, that was both a cry out to God and a gift from God.

"I really learned that I loved songwriting."

Those songs are the result, she said, of writing mostly in her "head space" during the day and her "heart space" at night.

"Story is so important," Blair said. "Human beings love a story."

There is a Christian element to her music, too.

"Faith is fundamental to everything I do. God is the ultimate storyteller."

Blair, 29, is already at work on a second album and meanwhile plans to perform in house concerts and other local venues.

And, she'll continue to perform with the symphony.

"For me, there's so much music out there," Blair said.

But is she mostly a classical musician or a singer/songwriter?

"I love writing music," she said. "I love performing. I don't find life to be a straight path. I prefer to just be called a bridge. Music is service to other people. If it's just about myself, then it just falls flat. "When I perform, I feel this is where I'm supposed to be. This is the stuff that's coming from my heart."

Blair and her husband have two small children and a pair of ducks.

NMSU theatre auditions are Nov. 27

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The New Mexico State University Theatre Arts Department will hold auditions for its spring 2018 productions of “The Odyssey” and “Rent” from 6-9 p.m. Monday, Nov. 27, with callbacks scheduled for 4-9 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 28.

Sign up for an audition slot at www.nmsutheatre.com/auditions.

No roles in either production have been pre-cast, and community members and NMSU students are welcome to try out for parts for men and women ages 17-65.

Auditioners are asked to prepare a 60-90 second monologue and a song excerpt of 16 bars.

“The Odyssey,” written and directed by Mary Zimmerman, NMSU theatre arts Assistant Professor Larissa Lury, is looking for actors 17 and older to play mortals and gods.

“The play is very physical, so actors will be expected to be able to move well, will in most cases be asked to play multiple roles and should enjoy working as an ensemble,” according to the website www.nmsutheatre.com/spring2018auditions.php.

ARTS DEPARTMENT

Musical or other special skills will count in auditioners' favor.

“Rent” will be directed by NMSU Theatre Arts Department Head Wil Kilroy, with Assistant Professor Megan McQueen serving as musical director.

McQueen will present helpful tips for the musical portion of the audition from 4:30-5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 8, in the second-floor rehearsal hall of the ASNMSU Center for the Arts, 1000 E. University Ave.

Auditioners will be asked if they wish to be considered for the department's spring production of “Broadway Today 2018,” which McQueen will direct; and/or Scaffolding Theatre Company's production of “Five Course Love,” which will tour Las Cruces, El Paso and Socorro in January and February 2018.

For more information, contact NMSU theatre arts production coordinator Mike Wise at 575-646-5418, www.nmsutheatre.com/spring2018auditions.php; or www.scaffoldingtheatrecompany.com/home.

‘Photograph 51’ has roles for five males

BULLETIN REPORT

If you've always wanted to play a British or an American scientist, now is your chance.

Black Box Theatre has scheduled auditions for five male scientists for its upcoming production of “Photograph 51.”

Auditions are 7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 3, at Black Box, 430 N. Main St. downtown.

Needed are five men for these roles: British scientists Maurice Wilkins (aged 30s to 40s), Ray Gossling (in his 20s) and Frances Crick (30s or 40s); and American scientists Don Caspar (in his 20s or 30s) and James Watson (early 20s).

The role of Rosalind Franklin has been pre-cast.

Auditions will consist of cold readings from the script.

A copy of the script will be available at the research help desk at Thomas Branigan Memorial Library, 200 E. Picacho Ave., after Nov. 6.

The play, written by Anna Ziegler, will be directed by theatre owner Ceil Herman.

“The play is a humorous and moving portrait of Rosalind Franklin, one of the great female scientists of the 20th century,” Herman said in her audition notice.

Performance dates are Jan. 26-Feb. 11, 2018. For more information, contact Herman at 575-523-1223 or nstcbbt@zianet.com.

Community theatre holding auditions for 'Lend Me a Tenor'

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces Community Theatre (LCCT) will hold auditions for "Lend Me a Tenor" from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18, and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 19, at Isabelle M. Crouch Readers Theatre, located behind the Barnes & Noble bookstore at University Avenue and Jordan Street on the NMSU campus.

No roles in the show have been pre-cast.

For auditions, actors are asked to prepare a two-minute contemporary comedic monologue and be prepared for a cold reading from the script. Those auditioning for Max, Tito and the Bellhop should also prepare and sing (acapella) from the following operatic piece: "Don Carlos" by Verdi, Dio che nell'alma infondere, Act 2, scene 1.

Auditioners should also bring a current head shot and theatre resume, if available.

The show includes four men and four women. Character age ranges listed are for stage portrayal. Actual actor ages may be flexible to allow for optimum matching and chemistry between actors.

A copy of the script is on reserve at Thomas Branigan Memorial Library, 200 E. University Ave.

"Lend Me A Tenor" "is a door-slamming, dress-dropping farce with mistaken identities, mischievous misunderstandings and compromising positions," according to LCCT.

"It is the biggest night in the history of the Cleveland Grand Opera Company, and world-famous Italian tenor Tito Merelli ('Il Stupendo') is guest artist in 'Otello,' the highlight of the company's most important 1934 fundraiser. But Morelli is nowhere to be found; when he finally arrives drunk, it is too late for any rehearsal. Tito is given a double dose of tranquilizers and passes out. Saunders and Max believe he's dead. Saunders coerces Max, an opera singer wannabe, into impersonating the Italian tenor to save the show. In costume, wig and make-up, he's a dead ringer for the dead singer. But can Max find the courage to go on with the show? Will it be enough to impress his girlfriend Maggie (who has a crush on Tito)? The surprises have just begun when Morelli revives and dresses for his second act. With two Otellos now in costume and two women, each thinking she is sleeping with 'Il Stupendo', the farce spins out of control onstage and off."

The show opens Friday, Jan. 19, 2018, at LCCT, 313 N. Main St. and continues through Sunday, Feb. 4.

Rehearsals will be Wednesday, Dec. 6, through Thursday, Dec. 21; and Wednesday, Jan. 3, through Thursday, Jan. 18.

'The Viceroy's House' divides India once again

By JEFF BERG
For the Bulletin

If you need a movie to entertain the family for Thanksgiving here are two recommendations: The wonderfully funny and often touching "Planes, Trains, and Automobiles" with Steve Martin and John Candy, or, for a bit more serious work, "What's for Dinner," directed by Gurinder Chadha, who also does this picture, which is based on some of her own family history.

And if you must pick between "Viceroy's House" and "What's for Dinner," certainly go for the latter, not this one.

"Viceroy's House" is a story about the dividing of India when the British left in 1947. Although mostly about politics and ethnicity issues, a romance is added for good measure.

GRADE: C+

You can see the Viceroy's House since it was booked by the Mesilla Valley Film Society for a week run at the Fountain Theatre in Mesilla, beginning Nov. 3.

When the country was divided, there was, of course, mass chaos and displacement of many people, not to mention riots, murder, mayhem, and all other kinds of human tragedy.

The story spends most of the time on the negotiations, secret and public, between the Indian factions and British Lord Mountbatten, who was to be the last Viceroy of the country. Some of the history portrayed in the film has also come under scrutiny as well.

Mountbatten wants to be fair and open with the situation, but such is not always the case for those around him. His wife, Edwina, also attempts to bring some order to the bedlam, which of course is never ending, even to this day.

A new valet in training also arrives at about the same time as Mountbatten. Jeet is his name and he successfully tries to revive a relationship of some kind that he had with a dynamic young woman working in the house, Aalia.

One of the problems with this is that he is a Hindu and she is a Muslim and that, of course, is not a great idea, especially when Mountbatten and company are trying to divide India along religious lines.

The two stories never really blend well, and I found the political one to be somewhat more interesting, partially because it was believable. There is little chemistry between Jeet and Aalia, but the story really wouldn't work at all without both pieces. They just don't mingle well.

In general, it remains bland, although the actor who plays Gandhi, (he REALLY looks like him) could use a referral to a dentist—badly. There is also a very good portrayal of Lord Ismay, one of the blokes that is kind of undermining Mountbatten's attempts by being in cahoots with London.

The film relies too much on platitudes, and beyond Mountbatten and Ismay the other characters seem rather transparent and flimsy.

There is also much grumbling, pushing, and shoving among the rest of the staff of the Viceroy's house, all of whom have unwavering opinions of what should be.

Riots soon break out around the country, putting more pressure on all those involved, including Jeet and Aalia, but the level of tension that this requires just doesn't exist.

All in all, it is not a terrible picture, just not one that you will remember after this week.

Get involved in all the great local theatre

There is so much great theatre in Las Cruces – and more on the way!

MIKE COOK
Theatre 101

I just found out Rio Grande Theatre will produce several live theatre performances in 2018. RGT has done some exceptional live, locally produced theatre, including Mark Medoff's "Marilee and Baby Lamb" and Megan McQueen's "Passion." (It's probably a bit tacky to say "Passion" was "exceptional" because I was in the cast. But, with Megan and Isaac Quiroga singing the leads, it was an amazing show, I think, from any perspective.)

I don't know any details about RGT's plans, but their productions will be a welcome and valuable addition to what's already going on downtown at Black Box Theatre and Las Cruces Community Theatre.

Black Box just

wrapped up a successful run of "Little Shop of Horrors" and is preparing for "Crimes of the Heart." It will be directed by Nikka Zimmer, one of my favorite people in all of Las Cruces theatre. It opens Nov. 24.

LCCT is getting ready for its holiday musical, "Annie," directed by the amazing Janet Beatty-Payne. I've had a couple of opportunities to hear Tatiana Garzon sing songs from the show, and she is an 11-year-old powerhouse who will rock in the lead role. And, there's a fabulous rescue dog playing "Sandy." Megan McQueen is also in the cast, along with Brandon Brown, Cindy Pitts and Norman Lewis. Wow!

"Annie" opens Dec. 1.

Megan also continues to produce amazing shows featuring local talent at Boba Café and Cabaret. She joins her husband, Matt Reiter, along with pianist Mark Klett, the amazing James Gier and Marybeth Torres for a civil rights-themed show that runs Nov. 10-11 and 17-18.

And, Megan's Scaffolding Theatre Company has already set up tour dates in Las Cruces, El Paso and Socorro for its January-February 2018 production of "Five Course Love," which Megan will star in with Brandon Brown and Algernon D'Amassa.

Let's not forget the NMSU Theatre Arts Department (where, by the way, Megan is an assistant professor). After their successful collaboration with Layle Chambers and the Doña Ana Community College theatre program on "Mariachi Girl," the department is gearing up for "It's a Wonderful Life – A Live Radio Play."

It opens Nov. 16 for a three-week run. I will be going on preview night, Thursday, Nov. 16. The show will be directed by NMSU theatre's arts newest assistant professor, Nichole Hamilton.

There are great shows to see at all our local theatres; there are also fantastic opportunities to act and direct. LCCT is looking for directors for next season's shows, and LCCT, Black Box and NMSU theatre arts have scheduled auditions for upcoming shows with a lot of great parts available.

And let's not forget Doña Ana Repertory Theatre, Las Cruces School of Dance and Music, ToadHall Productions and the NMSU Creative Student Theatre Company, which is working on "Broadway Bent."

Las Cruces theatre is booming all over the place. The only thing it really needs is more participation – bigger audiences, more actors and directors, more stage managers and costume makers and light and sound techs.

Somewhere on that well-lit stage way up yonder, Dick Rundell and Larry Chandler are smiling down, laughing and saying, "Set aside your fears and doubts, come explore the ins and outs of musicals, plays and other shows; be cast, be crew – my God, who knows!"

Conversations in color

BULLETIN REPORT

The Tombaugh Gallery presents “Conversations in Color,” works by Las Cruces artist Ruth Drayer. The exhibit opens with an artist reception from 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 5, with an artist talk at 12:15.

Drayer has managed two art galleries, created pottery and sculpture and has studied history and therapy. While researching and writing the life story of the artists Nicholas and Helena Roerich, she felt she needed an outlet for the “colors blooming in her head” and began painting. Each of her paintings is the result of a journey using the language of form, color and design.

The Tombaugh Gallery is located at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 2000 S. Solano. Hours are 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday. The exhibit continues through Nov. 25 (closed Thanksgiving Day).

Bring four artistic entities together, give them rein to work on the walls of a gallery with paint and cultural perception and you invite the fantastic into the New Mexico State University Art Gallery.

Interference+Interaction immediately strikes the visitor with a 39-foot wall covered with an 8-foot-tall “Paradox,” Laura Turón’s striking black-and-white serigraph.

Nabil Gonzalez’s “Los Placeres del Poder” plasters the back wall with black-and-white posters, a reminder of overlapping notices that once covered city spaces with political messages and upcoming events. Gonzales also displays an artist book that can be examined with provided gloves and a sculpture installation titled “Femicide,” made of Japanese Kozo paper, watercolor, sand and hair. His work is political, biting and powerful.

Daisy Quesada produces understated yet disturbing work. In porcelain, steel, wood and concrete she captures the artifacts of people passing through. For example, “Sostener o Refrenar 2017” depicts a torn porcelain bra in realistic detail hanging from a shovel.

Colorful and in your face, the Jellyfish Colectivo, a Ciudad Juarez art collective working to rejuvenate the visual culture of their city, has painted an installation of sheep, violence and strange interactions in a section called “We are the ones who follow.” The viewer can turn and spin in place, looking at the progressions and wide lines of movement and seeing something new each time.

GALLERIES & OPENINGS

A-1 Machine Shop

Exhibit "A-1 Machine Shop" features photography by Mel Stone at the Branigan Cultural Center, 501 N. Main St., through Nov. 8. Exhibit is a photographic tour of A-1 Machine Shop, owned and operated in Las Cruces by native Rudy Tirre for more than 30 years in the historic Mesquite District. The Branigan is open from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Saturday. Info: las-cruces.org/museums, 575-541-2154.

American Plains

The American Plains Artists 32nd Annual Juried Exhibit & Sale is on display in the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum's Legacy and Traditions galleries, 4100 Dripping Springs Road, through Nov. 5. The exhibit features 104 two- and three-dimensional realistic and representational artworks in traditional media that depict the American Great Plains regions – its landscape, wildlife, people and way of life in historical and modern times. Info: www.nmfarmdranchmuseum.org or 575-541-4100

Fauna & Flora of New Mexico

The photography of Nirmal Khandan is featured at the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum, 4100 Dripping Springs Road, through Dec. 3 in the Arts Corridor. The images capture a variety of birds in their natural habitat. Khandan intends to bring awareness of the diversity and beauty of the local avian life, as well as the importance of habitat. Info: www.nmfarmdranchmuseum.org or 575-541-4100.

Great Moments in Art IV

The paintings of Stephen Hansen, through Nov. 5 at Catter Gallery, corner University Avenue and El Paseo. Hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday and 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday.

Interference + Interaction

Through Nov. 17. University Art Gallery, 1390 E. University Ave., presents a group show featuring works by Nabil Gonzalez, Daisy Quezada, Laura Turón, and the Jellyfish Collective, who "mediate everyday noise, communication, and social predicaments within personal and political spheres, negotiating the boundaries of the complex and multi-layered issues that arise due to the current relationship between the U.S. and Mexico." Gonzalez hosts an artist workshop noon-2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4; Daisy Quezada presents an artist lecture 6 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 9. All events free.

Trotando Pasos Ajenos

The art and cultural exhibit runs through Jan. 6, 2018, at the Branigan Cultural Center, 501 North Main St. The exhibit features 12 interactive educational installments focusing on regional issues of justice inequality as they pertain to identity, environment, history, immigration, law, and faith. The exhibit was curated by Dr. Dulcinea Lara, Dr. Nicholas Natividad professors at NMSU's department of Criminal justice who specialize on issues of social justice in crime and law. The exhibit designer is artist and filmmaker Daniel Aguilar. Open 10-4:30 p.m. Tuesday-Friday and 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Saturday. Info: 575-541-2154 or museums.las-cruces.org.

The landscapes of Lindy Bridgers

M. Phillip's Gallery, 221 N. Main St., hosts a one-woman show for artist Lindy Bridgers, opening during the First Friday Ramble Friday, Nov. 3, and running through November. Her works feature landscapes of White Sands, the Organ Mountains and the surrounding area. Contact the gallery at 575-525-1367 or www.mphillipsgallery.com.

Mesilla gallery exhibits local painters

The Mesilla Valley Fine Arts Gallery, 2470-A Calle de Guadalupe, Mesilla, features two local artists in November.

Roberta "Bobbie" Widner is an oil painter who expresses her talent in subject matters from abroad, mainly France and Italy, where she has taken extended workshops rendering her artwork in the old masters' style.

Kurt Van Wagner is a self-taught digital artist, transforming personal photographs into collectible works of art. The results are varied, full of colors and textures.

The gallery also announces newest member Anne Laslo Small, a pastel artist influenced by the beauty and history of New Mexico. She recently moved to Las Cruces from Pennsylvania,

Picacho Hills artists return for the holidays

BULLETIN REPORT

The Artists of Picacho Hills host their annual Holly Day House show and sale at Saint Paul's Methodist Church, 255 West Griggs, from 4-7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 10, and 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11.

More than 20 artists – painters, weavers, quilters, jewelers, ceramicists, woodworkers, metal creationists, and photographers – will be on hand to share ideas.

Artist Larry Felhauer of Spirit Horse Designs creates sculptural figures, tabletop pieces and hanging items working with steel, ceramics, and glass. His outdoor and garden pieces often feature Southwestern and Native American influences.

Marilyn Payne creates detailed beaded jewelry, knitted shawls, small fabric purses, and her famous bitty bags. Some will have holiday themes and may be embellished with beads.

Linda Lee gathers stones locally as well as from beaches of the Greek Isles. She polishes them and creates jewelry pieces and napkin rings that highlight the natural beauty of her finished product.

Other artists specialize in paintings, both watercolor and acrylics, wood items, decorative gourds, hand-woven basketry items, quilted items both decorative and useful and wall hangings woven in desert colors. All of the artists look forward to meeting the public.

In addition to the Art Show and Sale there will be a raffle of artist-donated items to benefit The Mesilla Valley Hospice.

Community commitment powers solar sales team

By ALTA LECOMPTE
Las Cruces Bulletin

So what do you talk about at a wedding reception in Silver City?

If you're Cory Asbill of Sun Power by Positive Energy Solar in Las Cruces, you talk about the value of solar to homeowners and businesses.

And from there, solar sells itself – again and again and again.

“I met a couple at a wedding,” said Asbill, sales manager with Positive Energy. “We put in a system at their home. He was the son of the owner of Southwest Bone & Joint Institute. We sat in front of them and convinced them to put in solar. They needed enough for an employee carport and an installation on the roof.”

The Southwest Bone & Joint project caught the eye of executives at Western Bank in Lordsburg. They installed three systems, two in Lordsburg and one in Silver City, Asbill said.

“Because of Western Bank, a lot of prospects have come in,” he said.

Both residential and commercial solar sales often are a result of referrals, he said.

“Commercial people do their research, go online and come across reviews and we typically come out on top of the vetting process. If you're a profitable business and you pay a tax bill, it's worth looking into. The value is even better for businesses than residential customers because they get a tax credit and depreciation compensation.”

An education in solar

Asbill said the reason most people install a solar system – and the reason the systems are easy to sell – is that solar makes financial sense.

“A lot of what we do as a sales team is education,” Asbill said. “We sit with people and address their questions.”

He and his colleagues encourage prospective clients to consult with their tax professionals regarding the solar tax credit and how it affects them, because tax implications vary with each individual situation.

They also connect their customers with a credit union that can walk them through the financial aspects of adopting solar, Asbill said.

A team with a vision

Asbill said when Positive Energy recruits new team members, the company looks for good listeners who share their values.

“What we look for is how they will fit in here and how they will relate to other people customer-wise. Are you a good person? Will you come into our office friendly or are you going to cause a ruckus? Will you protect our culture?"

Positive Energy Solar, he said, is a 20-year old company that has grown from three employees to some 70 across the state, thanks in large part to the careful selection of staff.

As an employee-owned, certified B-Corp committed to people, profits and planet, respect for team members is built into the culture, Asbill said.

"From my perspective, our work life takes so much of our time that I really value our comfortable work environment of open communication, cordiality, treating others with respect, listening and a sense of humor," he said.

Asbill said his team shares a commitment to making a difference in the community, but the team members come from vastly different backgrounds.

Technically speaking

Asbill joined the company about three years ago.

He previously earned an undergraduate degree in electrical engineering at New Mexico State University and stayed on to do research as chief engineer at NMSU's Southwest Technology Development Institute.

"We went all over the country talking with installers, inspectors fire inspectors ... inspecting and designing systems," he said. "It was fun."

Asbill said Scott

Burns joined Positive Energy after selling books and insurance door-to-door.

"Troy (Guglielmina) was a self-employed artist when he came on board a year ago today," Asbill said.

"He came walking in going to the Progressive Voting Alliance upstairs and he ran into our CEO Regina Wheeler in the hallway."

Guglielmina recalled Wheeler asked whether he had solar in his home.

"That was so Regina."

He said Wheeler invited him to attend a fundraiser the company was putting on that night for a candidate who supported solar energy.

"It impressed me they were so active on the civic level," he said.

"The more I found out about the company and its ethos and culture, its status as a Certified Benefits Corporation, the more I liked it. It just felt like a fit."

The Eureka native had recently moved to New Mexico after owning an art tile business with his wife and later becoming a painting contractor.

Previously, he had graduated from Humboldt State University with a B.S.

Selling something different

Asbill said Donald Wiklund, who works mostly in Alamogordo, had been selling alcoholic beverages before he joined Positive Energy Solar. He changed jobs because he "wanted to do something that made him feel good."

Scott Burns said his wife, a high school teacher, encouraged him to get into renewables because he was passionate about the product.

He also was attracted to the technical elements of solar energy – the science of capturing and harvesting the light of the sun.

Scott had studied electrical engineering at New Mexico State University, specializing in optics.

He also had worked at White Sands Missile Range.

He said his job in sales is to communicate engineering concepts to clients, explaining the financial and environmental benefits to customers with diverse backgrounds.

As a result of assisting the Centennial High School Science Olympiad with a fundraiser, he has expanded his contacts to include several high school sports teams.

"We support them instead of investing a ton in billboards," he said. "We shift our marketing resources to things that benefit kids."

The diamond-water paradox helps explain 'value'

The diamond-water paradox is a problem that has long flummoxed thinkers about market economies. It arises from the observation that a useless sparkly stone that is a diamond can be worth thousands per carat, while something essential for life – water – costs only fractions of a penny per gallon.

The solution to this paradox is to recognize that the price reflects not the average value, but the value of the last unit. If you have gone three days without water, that first glass would be worth literally the price of your life. The second glass would also be quite valuable. The third glass less valuable but still very welcomed. Ultimately, as the available water increased, the next glass would be less and less valuable.

For the typical Las Cruces, water is so plentiful that the price of a gallon is a few tenths of a penny, so cheap that we use water for rather frivolous things, like watering lawns and flushing toilets. But that does mean that the first glass is any less valuable, as it is still necessary to sustain life. What this does mean is that the first glass is a real bargain – survival for a pittance. Meanwhile, diamonds are much rarer, so they cost much more, despite being of such little value for survival.

CHRIS ERICKSON
State of the Economy

The diamond-water paradox pops up in many settings. Recently, for example, I read an article that claimed that MBAs are more valuable to society than are business PhDs as MBAs go on to be CEOs of successful companies, earning high salaries, while business PhDs, the ink stained wretches that we are, earn much less. Clearly, CEOs are a rare breed. MBA programs can help to transform an average business person into one, but not reliably. Because good CEOs are hard to come by, like a diamond, they come at a high price. Business PhDs are much more plentiful. Moreover, we know how to train PhDs, so if the price is right, we can have as many as we want. Like plentiful water, their salaries are less.

But nothing about salaries says anything about the total social value of PhDs vs. CEOs. In fact, the business PhDs, by training students about best practices, have an enormous impact on productivity. It's just that PhDs come cheap, not that they aren't compensated as much as CEOs.

Each college course corresponds, according to Census Bureau calculations, to about $15,000 in present value of future earning capacity per student. Times the typical 20 students per class, that's $300,000 of value added per class. A pretty good deal given faculty pay.

The diamond-water paradox is also relevant when talking about school teachers.

One study found that a teacher in the top third, as measured by student achievement tests, increases the future earnings of a typical student's future earnings by $400,000 in a classroom of 20 students compared to an average student.

So, a top-third teacher's contribution to society, as measured by his/her students' earning power, is $400,000. How many classroom teachers are paid $400,000? I'd guess none.

Christopher A. Erickson, Ph.D., is a professor of economics. He is also CEO of his family business, a forest products business based in Oregon. He believes his contribution to society as a professor far exceeds his contribution as a CEO. Opinions expressed may not be shared by the regents and administration of NMSU. The community served by El Calvario United Methodist Church is larger than its congregation.

The church, located at 300 N. Campo St., directly across from the U.S. Post Office downtown, has about 80, mostly older, parishioners, said Senior Pastor Rev. Nema Rivers-LeCuyer.

It serves hundreds more in the downtown area through ministries like its refugee program, monthly community market, an upcoming community garden, its backpack and school supplies program and its services to young women just leaving prison, Rivers-LeCuyer said.

This month, the church

(ECUMC) will begin providing sanctuary for families coming into the United States from Central and South America as they await final connections with their close relatives in the U.S. who will provide them with permanent homes.

"These are the poorest of the poor," Rivers-LeCuyer said. "These people are fleeing for their lives."

After long waiting periods and often dangerous journeys to the U.S., she said, the refugees are "shell shocked" by the time they arrive by bus in Las Cruces.

"These people are so fragile," Rivers-LeCuyer said. ECUMC has "the honor of serving them."

The individuals or families will arrive regularly at the church and stay for up to three days before receiving bus or plane tickets to continue their journeys to their new homes.

In addition to feeding and housing the refugees, both adults and children, the church provides them with children's car seats, diapers, small blankets, toiletries and snacks for those trips, which could be thousands of miles long.

The church has converted Sunday school classrooms into a bedroom, family room and bathrooms for the visitors, who can stay up to three days. The new rooms are furnished with beds and other items donated by ECUMC parishioners.

Rivers-LeCuyer said ECUMC is partnering with the Catholic Diocese of El Paso on the refugee program, Rivers-LeCuyer started the church's Agape Market in 2015 to provide free meals and other services to area residents, including students participating in the city's nearby Weed 'n Seed program.

ECUMC also plans to start a community garden and pond before the end of the year in a parking lot just north of the church building and incorporating the church's old parsonage. The garden will provide fresh fruits and vegetables – and even chicken and duck eggs – to needy families, Rivers-LeCuyer said, in an area that is considered a food desert because of its lack of grocery stores.

The pond will be a source of fresh fish, she said.

The garden will provide food for the neighborhood market, which the church hopes to expand from monthly to weekly.

The church is working with the Backyard Farms program of Las Cruces on the garden, and also will seek additional funding through grants and company and individual donations.

The garden will also allow the church to grow vegetables native to Central and South America, which can be served to refugees during their temporary sanctuary, Rivers-LeCuyer said.

Las Cruces has the first urban farm program in New Mexico, said Rachel Ryan of Backyard Farms of Las Cruces.

Rivers-LeCuyer, who is a volunteer jail chaplain.

Rivers-LeCuyer became ECUMC's first woman and first non-Hispanic pastor in 2014, when the church had fewer than a dozen regular attendees at Sunday services.

"The entire identity of El Calvario had to transform," Rivers-LeCuyer said in a recent United Methodist Church Disciple Ministries article, "as the church became a multi-cultural mission church reflecting the integrated and diverse population of Las Cruces. 'We have retained our beautiful Latin appearance and many traditions, but we are clearly a church of many colors, mixed and intertwined races and cultures.'"

"This is an old, old church with a whole new meaning and purpose,"

Rivers-LeCuyer said. "This is what God called me to do."

The gift of song may unite us as one

There is a place in the world of Facebook that was created as a refuge where people could come together to share, and benefit from, the gift of song.

Last fall, Jewish singer/songwriters Beth Schafer and Stacy Beyer laid the groundwork for "Harmony in Unison," a "virtual stage" on Facebook, where musicians have been performing original music since January on Sunday-Thursday each week.

In her book Einstein and the Rabbi, Rabbi Naomi Levy quoted a teaching of the rabbis that noted that "there are ten levels of prayer, and above them is song." Music has the potential to enable our spirits to soar.

RABBI KAROL
Seeking Harmony

On Oct. 23, I offered my third performance on the Harmony in Unison Virtual Stage. I titled my set "Conversations with God," which gave me an opportunity to perform some of my original songs based on texts from the book of Psalms.

The biblical book of Psalms brings together ancient songs and prayers that have had a lasting appeal because they speak to our joys, our love, our grief, and the challenges we face every day. Psalms declare that, even when everything may seem hopeless, there are still reasons to be optimistic and to trust that good things will come our way.

The first song I chose for my set, based on Psalm 139, begins, "You know me, inside and out, through and through." When a friend of mine, who wasn't sure about her belief in God, once asked me about how to approach the book of Psalms, I cited this song (called "Where Can I Run?") and Psalm. I explained that it is the people who know us "inside and out, through and through" who have an uncanny ability to point us in the right direction just when we need counsel and guidance. I believe that there is a depth of spirit in our closest relationships, in which some people might see a touch of divine presence.

Psalm 34 includes a declaration, "Taste and see that God is good." That line suggests a way that we might approach life in general. We try to strike a balance between our best times and our difficult days, hoping that it is the good that will endure. The chorus for the song I created based on that Psalm asks and proclaims: "Is there love enough for giving? Is there goodness enough to fill our days? When I taste and see that life's worth living, I will sing this song of praise." The praise is an expression of the trust we have that our own lives do have inherent value because of all that we do and because of the companions along our journey.

Psalm 97 proclaims, "Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart." What struck me about that statement is that it suggests that light – perhaps in the form of understanding, wisdom, and mutual respect – is a response to our acts of righteousness and justice.

Creating a society based on justice and righteousness could lead us to the "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" that we so deeply desire in American society.

Across many musical genres, singer/songwriters give voice to feelings, concerns and hopes that many people share. May we be open to those harmonious expressions that can touch our souls and could, ultimately, unite us as one.

Rabbi Larry Karol has served as spiritual leader of Temple Beth-El (www.tbelc.org) in Las Cruces since July 2011. His writings are available at rabbilarrykarol.blogspot.com.

Project's volunteers create blankets, quilts, comfort

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The colorful quilts and blankets made by Project Linus of Las Cruces volunteers provide warmth and comfort to children in crisis situations in southern New Mexico.

This year, Project Linus will make and deliver about 3,500 quilts and blankets to the Las Cruces police and fire departments, the New Mexico State Police, Mesilla Valley Hospice, Mesilla Valley Hospital, Memorial Medical Center, Mountain View Regional Medical Center, La Piñon Sexual Assault Recovery Services, La Casa, Inc. Domestic Violence Shelter, Jardin de los Niños, Las Cruces Public Schools, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, Gospel Rescue Project Linus volunteer America Ulmer.

Mission, state Children Youth and Families Department offices in Las Cruces and Deming, Gerald Champion Hospital Alamogordo and other organizations.

"These blankets are very special as they are made with care," Las Cruces Fire Chief Eric Enriquez said.

Project Linus volunteer Deborah Sarabia.

"The individuals that make these blankets show deep concern for our community in good times and bad."

They blankets and stuffed animals, says Las Cruces Police Chief Jaime Montoya, are handed out to children police encounter during their calls.

"I believe it is important for us to give these items out ... as a way to show the human touch and kindness. Many of the kids we meet may not show physical trauma but are suffering from mental trauma from what they witness on the streets or in their homes. It shows and hopefully demonstrates to the kids that the world is not as cruel as they may think, hopefully it gives them hope."

About seventy Project Linus "blanketeers" gather from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. the third Wednesday of each month at Good Samaritan Retirement Village, 3025 Terrace Drive, to sew, crochet, bag and deliver blankets and quilts of different sizes and shapes and in a vast array of colors and patterns to children up to age 18, said Suzi Stoltzfus, Project Linus coordinator for the past nine years.

Others are invited to join by showing up at one of their blanket-making gatherings. Or, you make and donate blankets and quilts to the organization on your own – they will even supply the materials.

Project Linus regularly trades fabric with Los Colcheros Quilt Guild of Las Cruces, and also donates fabric it can't use to the New Mexico State University Theatre Arts Department's costume shop, said Stoltzfus, who joined Project Linus after her grandson was born prematurely in an Albuquerque hospital and was given a blanket by Project Linus in that city.

Donations of fabric and yarn for Project Linus can be brought to Quillin Fiber Arts, 121 Wyatt Drive #24; Sew What's New, 3961 E. Lohman Ave. # 9; and Bernina Sewing and Design Center, 1601 E. Lohman Ave.

Cash donations are accepted, but Project Linus corporate headquarters keeps 20 percent of that donation. However, 100 percent of gift card donations from Jo-Ann Fabrics and Crafts, 1711 E. University Ave., benefit Project Linus of Las Cruces.

Contact Stoltzfus at 575-526-3695 or sgstolt13@gmail.com.

Cannabinoids or opioids – a no-brainer

In October I attended an opioid prevention program at Las Cruces City Hall. It was a good first step in bringing the community together. Many attendees work in the trenches with the patients in the community and who will benefit by meeting each other. I would say that more networking is needed. It will take a village to move through the opioid epidemic. I appreciate the effort the City went through to create this first gathering.

There were a few presenters doing some good in the community. Piper Coalson, project manager for the WAVE Program (wellness, alcohol, violence, education) at NMSU, is doing a good job of reaching and supporting the students regarding the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse.

Heather McMurray, representing the DEA, as the Supervisor of Diversion Investigation, put a compassionate face on the DEA and their efforts to educate the community.

Joe Provencio, counselor with the EAP with the City of Las Cruces, is humble and experienced

HILDA LUZ CHAVEZ

in his approach to educate and provide support for city employees and the community at large.

The opiate epidemic is in the news daily. All of a sudden everyone wants to cure addicts. Even the president is in on it. Really? How are you going to get the pharmaceutical companies and cartels to go along with your plan, Mr. Trump?

To be clear, opiate addiction is not new. Addiction is rampant in our world. Opiates are but one of the culprits. Addicts are created every day, openly and knowingly. Our fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers, husbands, wives, our children and our friends may all be accidental addicts.

According to www.naabt.org/education/opiates_opioids.cfm:

“Opiates are drugs derived from opium. At one time ‘opioids’ referred to synthetic opiates only (drugs created to emulate opium, however different chemically). Now the term opioid is used for the entire family of opiates including natural, synthetic and semi-synthetic.

“All opiates are highly addictive and can result in drug abuse even when the medication is used as directed by a medical doctor.”

Do you think doctors don’t know that prescribing opiates is going to create addiction? Of course they do, and so do the pharmaceutical companies that profit in the billions from the addicts that they help create. It is no mystery that greed and profit are the bottom line.

After 38 years in the field of natural medicine, I have seen and worked with hundreds of chronic pain patients that became addicts. It often starts innocently with patients lacking wellness education and personal responsibility. Then there are the patients who trust their doctors, because they are doctors, after all. These doctors often mean well. They may be well versed in prescribing drugs but have little to no interest in educating their patients.

Perhaps they have no knowledge in wellness or nutrition or in herbal medicine. Hippocrates, the Father of Medicine, taught us that natural medicine is vital in patient care and education. The Hippocratic Oath clearly states, “First, do no harm.”

Everyone knows that prescription medicines are important in our culture. They can often save lives.

However, if you are taking prescription pain killers every day, for years and years, you are an addict. You will need treatment and care.

What does opiate addiction have to do with cannabis, the good herb, la yerba buena?

In NM alone, there are now over 46,000 patients in the NM Medical Cannabis Program. A good percentage of these are chronic pain patients, with rheumatoid arthritis, peripheral neuropathy, chronic back pain, migraines.

Unfortunately, opiate addiction, which many patients suffer, is not a condition accepted by the NM MCP, yet. There have been numerous attempts to get the NMDOH to include it as a condition. It is in the works as we speak. It has been proven that cannabinoids are safer and effective for pain management. If you are affected by opiate addiction and want to see this condition accepted, write to the Secretary of Health, Lynn Gallagher and voice your opinion and concern.

BTW: Cannabinoids also exist in other plants: Echinacea, liverwort, cacao, black pepper, hops and electric daisy, among others. They all are useful for pain and inflammation.

Hilda Luz Chavez, ND is a traditional naturopath and medical cannabis expert. She may be reached at 915-204-5440 or chavezhl@aol.com.

“I’ve Got ANOTHER Headache!...”

If You Know Someone Who Suffers From The Torment of Recurring Headaches So Fierce They Have To Lock Themselves In A Dark Closet... It’s Time To Show Them This Letter!

- By Physical Therapist Dennis Prickett

Las Cruces (NM) - Did you know that some people suffer from headaches so frequently that they consider them to be a regular part of life? That’s why things like aspirin and other headache pills are such big sellers.

But drugs can only relieve the symptoms temporarily - when many times, the recurring headaches may actually be the result of something else.

In my years of experience, it’s often the case that if someone is suffering from regular headache episodes, they just haven’t got to the real, underlying ROOT CAUSE of the problem.

Many times, the recurring headaches may be the result of a dysfunction with the shoulder, jaw or neck... and it is usually possible that an expert in recognizing such problems, can create permanent relief from headaches for someone like you!

Is Headache Free Living Possible?

Absolutely, Chronic headache sufferers, even ones with migraines so fierce that they have to lock themselves in a dark closet... can get real relief and lasting freedom from pain. That’s why I want to tell you about this new “Consumer Awareness Report” that I’ve created to help you first spot the warning signs that your recurring “headache”... isn’t just another headache, and what you can do about it.

My name is Dennis Prickett from Las Cruces, and through this report I want to show you things that you can do at home, starting tonight, to make a significant and lasting difference to your pain.

Here’s Just Some Of What You’ll Discover

This Free Report is entitled: “How To Get To The Root Cause Of Neck Pain (And Migraine Headaches)... Without Relying On Pills To Get Relief”... and here’s a sample of what’s inside:

- The 7 urgent coping strategies every headache sufferer must never forget when tension strikes!!
- The 3 things you can do if you’re hoping to avoid repeat episodes - that’ll cost you nothing.
- 1, 2 or 3? Just how many pillows should you sleep with? And what about your mattress... It’s covered in here on page 5.
- The new, and most successful treatment for tension headaches that doesn’t involve any drugs, seeing a chiropractor or talking to a doctor.
- The one simple exercise you can do in your kitchen, starting tonight, that is proven to ease down the intensity of migraines and neck pain.

A ‘best’ route for information

By RAY VIGIL
For the Bulletin

Social Security has a toolbox full of resources on its website, www.socialsecurity.gov, to help with your financial planning. Here, we highlight one of our “best.”

B.E.S.T. is the Benefit Eligibility Screening Tool, available at <https://ssabest.benefits.gov>. It can help you find out if you might be eligible for retirement, disability, survivors, Supplemental Security Income, or Medicare benefits. Although B.E.S.T. asks a series of questions to determine your eligibility, they are not personal in nature and the answers are not stored.

On average, it takes about 10 minutes to complete the B.E.S.T. questionnaire. First, it guides you through the questions needed to find out if you could qualify for benefits. Just to the right of each question is an information icon (a white “i” in a blue circle) that gives you tips on how to answer each question.

The “results” section appears automatically after you have completed basic questions. B.E.S.T. lists each program for which you might qualify. By clicking on the “read more” tab, you’ll find a description of the benefits program, its requirements, and what your next steps should be. If you are eligible for benefits, you must file an application for benefits with Social Security because B.E.S.T. is not an application. The best way to do this is by visiting www.socialsecurity.gov.

You can go back and narrow your resource responses by answering additional questions. After you have reviewed the results, you can print a copy for your records or email yourself a copy.

COLA benefits to increase

By MARK HINKLE
Social Security Administration

Monthly Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits for more than 66 million Americans will increase 2.0 percent in 2018, the Social Security Administration announced.

The 2.0 percent cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) will begin with benefits payable to more than 61 million Social Security beneficiaries in January 2018. Increased payments to more than eight million SSI beneficiaries will begin on Dec. 29, 2017.

The Social Security

Act ties the annual COLA to the increase in the Consumer Price Index as determined by the Department of Labor’s Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Some other adjustments that take effect in January of each year are based on the increase in average wages.

KITTY OF THE WEEK

Spooky

This young female Domestic Short Hair named Spooky would love to go home with you and be a part of your family. To see him, call 575-639-3036. Happy Halloween!

The Cat's Meow no longer a kitten

The Cat's Meow Resource and Adoption Center (CMAC) is now 3 years old, having opened its doors in October of 2014.

The dream became a reality for a small group of "cat fanatics" (Jake Sims, Anne Markman, Michel Meunier, Evelyn Hancock and Michelle Corella) who had visions of a feline-only adoption center that specialized in mostly adult and senior kitties, which are often overlooked by folks looking for kittens and younger cats.

Jake, a realtor, found the perfect property on Mesquite St. and, once the details were ironed out, the work began to transform a former plant nursery into a feline paradise.

The result is an environment that is both tranquil and happy, which is beneficial to both the felines (approximately 25-30 reside in the facility at any given time) and the volunteers who tend to them on a daily basis. During the day, when the volunteers are present, the majority of the cats run free inside the building, interacting with each other and with the volunteers.

At the end of the day, each cat returns to his/her kitty condo, where they are safely secured for the night.

CMAC has found good homes for approximately 200 cats, but the number of kitties needing new homes generally always outweighs our ability to take them all in. We encourage people to do everything they can to keep their cat – rehoming should be a last resort, as it is often very traumatic for a cat to lose its home. However, if you find yourself in a situation where rehoming is a possibility, please stop by our facility and talk to someone. We might be able to help, or at least offer some options. Thank You!

Cat's Meow Resource and Adoption center is located at 2211 N. Mesquite St. It is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday or by appointment at 575-640-0011. Visit online at www.thecatsmeowlascruces.com or find them on Facebook.

Aggies still searching for a program

A chance to reach .500.
Coming off a bye week.
Momentum from the previous game's victory.

Homecoming.

It was all set up for the New Mexico State Aggie football team against Arkansas State Oct. 28, a chance to turn this beleaguered program around.

MARTY RACINE

Aggie Athletics

That will have to wait.

NMSU had everything going for it until Arkansas State crashed the party and decided otherwise, handing the homeboys a 37-21 whipping.

Three days before Halloween, it was a weird night at Aggie Memorial Stadium. An underwhelming Homecoming crowd announced at 10,041 showed up under clear skies with little wind and a game time temperature of 65 degrees.

As if to escape recognition, the offense and defense donned costumes and switched roles. Sure, the defense gave up a ton of points, but most came late, after all the trick-or-treating was over.

"I thought defensively we competed pretty well," Head Coach Doug Martin said after the game. "Arkansas State is a really good team and that's the best we've played them in the last couple years."

The Aggies even led at the half, 14-7, when the defense harassed ASU quarterback Justice Hansen into numerous sacks and scrambles. Hansen was sacked five times on the night. Linebacker Dalton Herrington tied a career-high with 16 tackles.

Presented with opportunity after opportunity, the offense could get nothing going. Quarterback Tyler Rogers, who entered the contest as the nation's leader in pass completions, repeatedly lofted wounded ducks on deep up-and-out routes to the sideline. They hung in the air forever, giving the defense time to react. Other floaters simply missed their mark.

Why not quicker strikes to the flat or over the middle? How about a slant? Put the ball into open space and allow your skill positions to make plays.

After a quiet start that featured seven straight scoreless possessions from NM State (3-5, 1-3 Sun Belt Conference) and Arkansas State (5-2, 4-0), the Red Wolves finally got on the board with a 21-yard touchdown pass.

The Aggies answered after recovering a fumble deep in Red Wolves' territory. Malik Demby forced the turnover and Larry Rose III subsequently ran it in from the 1.

After another exchange of possessions, Rogers hit Jaleel Scott for 41 yards and Bryce Roberts on a three-yard play-action pass for a touchdown to put the Aggies up at the half.

And then it all fell apart.

The Red Wolves outscored the Aggies 30-7 in the second half, including the final 20 points. The Aggies repeatedly went three-and-out (3-of-17 on third-down conversions) and wound up punting 12 times on the night.

Rogers, the completions leader, tossed 20 incompletions, including a few which should have been caught. He was intercepted twice.

"Tonight was disappointing," Martin said.

No, it was just plain weird.

On the road again

BULLETIN REPORT

New Mexico State travels to San Marcos, Texas, to take on Sun Belt Conference opponent Texas State Saturday, Nov. 4. Kickoff is 1 p.m. MT.

Texas State enters with an overall record of 2-6 and a 1-3 mark in the Sun Belt. The Bobcats most recently ended a six-game losing skid with a conference victory over Coastal Carolina, 27-7.

Through eight games, the Bobcats have been outscored 233-121 and outgained through the air and on the ground 3,012-2,636.

The Bobcat offense is led by senior quarterback Damian Williams, who has passed for 1,186 yards and four touchdowns with an additional 120 yards and four touchdowns on the ground.

On defense Texas State's inside linebacker Gabe Loyd is tied for the team lead with 51 total tackles. Loyd also has seven tackles for loss with 3.5 sacks. The senior has recorded three pass breakups and a pair of forced fumbles.

The Bobcat defense also excels on fourth down. They are eighth best in the NCAA, holding opponents to a .286 conversion percentage.

The game can be heard on KXPZ 99.5 FM with Jack Nixon on the call and Danny Knee as the analyst.

The name and the coach behind the tournament

A couple of weeks ago the Aggie men's golf team finished second in the annual Herb Wimberly Intercollegiate golf tournament at NMSU Golf Course. For those who may not be aware of Herb Wimberly, he is a former Aggie golf coach and a member of the national Golf Coaches Hall of Fame who in 2009 was honored by the university when it bestowed on him an honorary doctorate degree.

My association with Herb goes back to the first day I moved to Las Cruces in 1988, when I was welcomed at the modest golf shop on University Avenue by a warm and smiling head golf pro named Herb Wimberly. "You're going to like it here," were his first words; "this is an awesome golf course."

Our association became much closer after I earned my doctorate at NMSU, when Herb invited me to be a guest teacher at the Rocky Mountain Golf School in Gunnison, Colorado, where Herb spent most summers teaching golf.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

Then in 1999 Herb and I started Performance Golf Schools in New Mexico and El Paso. At that time Herb had retired from coaching but not from his love of teaching.

In his prime Herb was an awesome player. In 1962, the year he came to Las Cruces to start the NMSU course, Herb won the New Mexico Open, after having won it two years earlier. Four years later a young Lee Trevino would win the same tournament.

"I played a lot of golf with Lee and he was talking all the time," Herb recalls. "But when the moment came to hit the shot nobody could focus more intensely."

Herb coached the Aggie golf team for 31 years (1962 to 1993). He won six Missouri Valley Conference championships and one Big West Conference championship. Each time he was named Coach of the Year.

Among the players Herb coached were 18 NCAA All-Americans.

One was the late Larry Beem, who himself coached the Aggie men in the late 1990s. Larry's son, Rich Beem, winner of the 2002 PGA Championship, also played for Herb, as well as PGA Tour players Tom Byrum and Bart Bryant.

Another standout golfer (and now veteran PGA professional) on Herb's 1977-81 golf teams is Dan Koesters, who retired a couple of years ago as director of golf at NMSU Golf Course.

"Herb has a great understanding of people," Koesters reflects, "which helped him put up with our antics. He knew when to let things slide."

Koesters is quick to attribute the early growth in his own game to Herb.

"He gave us a platform to succeed."

Koesters told me about the day in 1980 they coaxed their busy and reluctant coach into getting out on the golf course one afternoon. "He goes out and shoots a quick little 6 under on the front nine," chuckles Koesters. "We're looking at a course record day. But Herb went in 'cause he had to get things done. 'No big deal,' he said."

One of Herb's legacies is the Professional Golf Management Program at NMSU, housed in the School of Business and now in its 30th year. Among PGA circles the PGM Program is regarded as the very finest and is now directed by Pat Gavin, with Josh Salmon assistant director. Over the years the program has turned out thousands of PGA club professionals. I was told about one PGM student who had just won a big tournament in Ruidoso. Later, this young man approached Herb with thanks, not as much for a new golf swing, but for being there at the right time. The aspiring PGA pro then said to Herb, "you have made such a difference in my life." That's Herb.

Senior Olympics luncheon

The Doña Ana County Senior Olympics (DACSO) held their fall luncheon Saturday, Oct. 21 at the Trails West Activity Center. Besides the lunch, the attendees heard about the financial health of the organization, some of the plans for the annual games in the spring, and some of the results of the state games in Albuquerque held in July. There were 73 members from Doña Ana County taking part in the state games, taking home 191 medals in various events. Shown here getting ready for the fall DACSO luncheon are, from left, Mike Simione, the office manager and coordinator; Mike Frieze, member of the Board of Directors member; and Jack Welch, past President.

NMSU soccer heads to tournament following loss

BULLETIN REPORT

The New Mexico State women's soccer team lost 3-2 to UT Rio Grande Valley on Oct. 28 to finish the regular season with an overall record of 9-9-2.

The Aggies opened the Western Athletic Conference Tournament as the fifth seed Nov. 1 in Phoenix against Seattle U. A win would match them with top seed UMKC on Friday, Nov. 3. The championship match is Sunday, Nov. 5.

NM State paced itself offensively in the first half against Rio Grande, taking five shots with two being on goal. In the 17th minute, Aileen Galicia made a cross to Jody Hernandez, who put the ball into the net for a 1-0 lead. UTRGV (9-7-3, 4-2-1) scored the equalizer at 18:25. The Aggies led at the half 2-1 on a Devin Hart pass to Galicia, who scored on a long shot in the 32nd minute.

"It was a tough game tonight," head coach Freddy Delgado said. "We had some excellent individual performances, but as a team we didn't do the gritty things we needed to do to close out the game. We mentally turned off at key moments in the game. We let a victory slip through our hands. We need to take this feeling and let it fuel us for the WAC Tournament. We have a great team and we have a great chance in the tournament."
