Little stone church in Hill has a long, storied history

By Charlotte Tallman
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

For nearly 95 years, a little stone church, now the St. Mary's at Hill Anglican Church, has sat among the dust and the fields that run along Doña Ana Road. Through its doors, numerous visitors have walked, some looking for solace, others looking for faith.

The stone church became a part of history on Oct. 3, 1920, with the fieldstones gathered from the alfalfa farmland that was the heart of the area. Charles Hill, who had recently arrived from West Virginia and became the tiny settlement's namesake, donated the land for the church.

The Rev. Hunter Lewis, known for the numerous churches he founded in the Mesilla Valley during his 43-year ministry, helped lay the cornerstone. Lewis' legacy

Downtown plaza deal set to close July 15

By Elva K. Österreich
Las Cruces Bulletin

A city plaza Downtown continues to move closer to a reality.

Andy Hume, City of Las Cruces Downtown planning and development coordinator, said after years of negotiation and planning, five properties have been acquired for the nearly $5.5 million project.

The deal closes on July 15, Hume said, with the ground breaking planned in late July.

Once construction begins, the contract requires the Downtown plaza project to be completed in 12 months.

Hume said efforts to bring a plaza space back to Las Cruces began virtually as soon as original plaza was removed in the 1960s. Once located where the Bank of the West sits today — 201 N. Church St. — the original city plaza sat in front of Saint Genevieve Church, as the heart of the city.

The new plaza will sit on the next block over, where the Bank of the West drive-through now exists, on Main Street off Griggs Avenue

Public meetings set to vet Unified Development Code

The Doña Ana County Planning and Zoning Commission will host two public meetings to solicit public input on the latest draft of the Unified Development Code (UDC).

Each meeting will be held at 9 a.m. on a Thursday in the Commission Chambers of the Doña Ana County Government Center. The meeting schedule is as follows:

June 25, 2015 – Work session and public input on the draft Unified Development Code

July 9, 2015 – Public hearing to recommend adoption of the Unified Development Code to the Doña Ana County Board of Commissioners

The UDC is a single document that includes all development-related regulations such as zoning, subdivision, and development standards. It will reflect the diversity of the region including the rural environment, the many types of colonias, the post-1930's suburban development, and the different scales of municipalities.

Many are asking if this is a "green development" code, and the answer is both yes and no. There are no requirements for energy standards within the UDC, nor are there requirements to build compact, mixed-use neighborhoods. All of the existing zoning districts currently in use will continue to exist. However many of the existing districts are combined to allow greater flexibility and simplicity. In addition, the existing village districts are evolving into what is known as form-based districts, since they were originally developed to reflect the historic character of the villages throughout the county, they are already based upon this model.

The primary goal of the new code is to update, simplify, and map zone as much of the County as is publicly supported. The UDC is the tool that will be used to implement the vision established through the new Comprehensive Plan. There are many laborious, duplicative, and unclear processes within the current body of ordinances and a primary goal of this process is to simplify that complexity.

Conventional zoning regulates land development with the most emphasis on controlling land use. Form based zoning regulates land development with the most emphasis on controlling form and less emphasis on controlling land uses (although uses with negative impacts, such as heavy industry, adult businesses, etc. are still regulated). Urban form features regulated under form-based standards include the width of lots, size of blocks, building setbacks, building heights, placement of buildings on the lot, location of parking, etc.

The village standards are currently only available in areas that were platted prior to 1930. This has effectively served as a historic preservation code and is by nature form-based. However, with the limitation tied to historic plats, it has been unavailable in the rest of the county. The new code will make these standards that produced regionally beloved places like Mesilla, Doña Ana, and La Mesa available to new development as well.

One of the basic principles in the new UDC is that the towns and villages of Doña Ana County were historically structured as a series of walkable neighborhoods. Walkable neighborhoods require a mix of land uses (residential, office, and retail), public spaces with a sense of enclosure to create "outdoor rooms" like plazas, and multi-modal transportation design.

The form-based zones within the UDC are designed to create complete human habitats ranging from the very rural to the very urban. Where conventional zoning categories are based on different land uses, the Village zoning categories are based on the intensity of their character. All categories within the Village districts will allow some mix of uses.

The suburban standards of the current code will remain in place, with new names and some simplification. These standards will be available for zoning and subdivision requests of new property, as they are now.

City seeks input for West Amador development

Bulletin Staff Report

The City of Las Cruces will join residents and business leaders Thursday through Monday, June 25 - 29, to create a new plan for the Amador neighborhood bounded by Mesilla Street, West Hadley Avenue, Valley Drive and West Amador Avenue.

The area is just west of the Las Cruces Railroad Museum.

It consists of large tracts of vacant land as well as parcels with buildings that are no longer functional. Also, nearby portions of Valley Drive will soon be renovated.

The collaborative planning exercise will begin with an opening presentation and community discussion 6:30 p.m. Thursday, June 25, at Alma d'arte Charter High School, 402 W. Court Ave.

Events throughout the week also will be held at the school.

These include:

- 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Friday, June 26: Discussion of goals and concerns of residents business people and organizations.

- 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Saturday, June 27: "Pin-up" of the design team's preliminary ideas for review

- 6:30 to 8 p.m. Monday, June 29: Wrap of the week's work for community review.

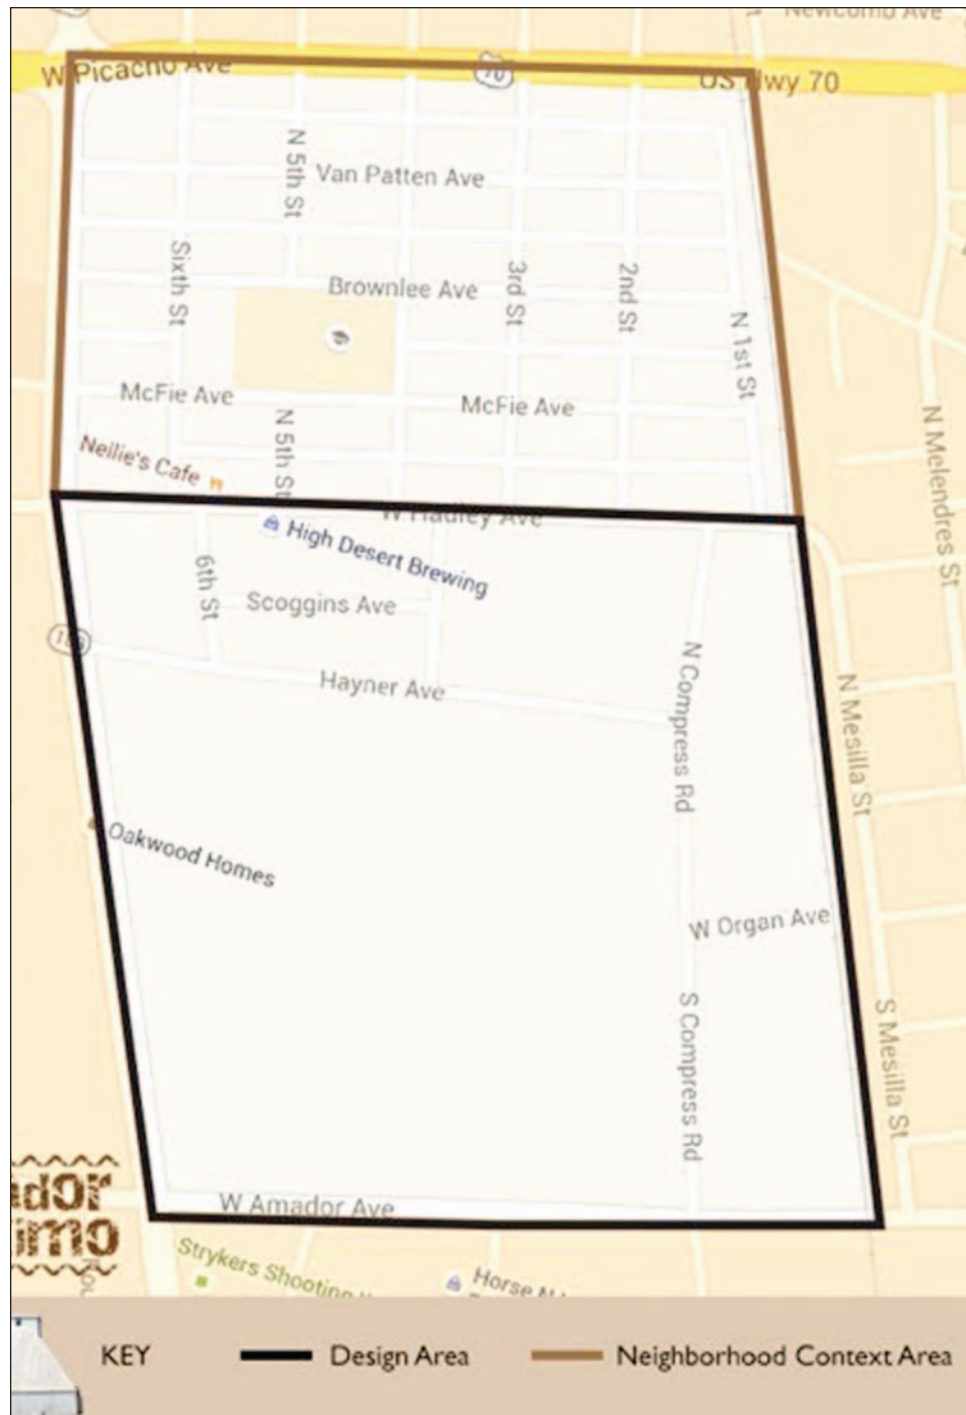

PlaceMakers LLC, the consulting firm that gathered community input and developed plans for the transformation of Downtown Las Cruces, will manage the planning process.

David Weir, the city's community development director said this is an opportunity to "build off previous planning efforts" to create a demonstration project. The idea is to not only suggest ways to redevelop this former industrial area, but to also provide "an example for other areas of the city."

While the neighborhood's assets have been underutilized in the recent past, a variety of residences and businesses have located there, with others suggesting they'd consider relocating if the mix of opportunities was right.

That makes the area ideal for testing the city's strategies for encouraging more integrated approaches to re-development, Weir said.

Goals include better connections between where people live and where they work, an expanded range of housing choices and more options for walking or biking to most daily needs instead of relying only on cars.

For more information, visit the website dedicated to the process, www.amadorproximo.org, or contact Andy Hume, the city's Downtown coordinator at 528-3048 or ahume@las-cruces.org.

Problems from food-tax 'solution' cascade

On a recent morning after playing basketball, I stopped into Pic Quik for some $2.49 Gatorade. The special was two for $4, so I got a second one and, in theory, saved 98 cents.

When the clerk rang it up, the price was exactly $4, which reminded me there is no tax on food in New Mexico.

Then I thought, "I'm not sure Gatorade is really food."

I also pay no tax when I buy Royal Crown Cola or barbecue potato chips or orange Danish cinnamon rolls, none of which should be considered food, either.

In 2004, then-Gov. Bill Richardson began a push to eliminate taxes on food in New Mexico. It seemed a little pointless. The people for whom reducing those taxes would be most meaningful typically already had reductions from food stamps.

For most families, the reduction meant about $10-25 a month in savings. Nice, but not enough to make a real difference in your annual personal budget.

For municipalities in New Mexico, though, the gross receipts tax on food was a huge part of their income. That income was used to pave streets, provide utilities and pay law enforcement officers, among other necessities.

Seeking redress from the state legislature and Gov. Bill, the municipalities were told, "No problem. Gotcha covered."

The state covered shortfalls with other state funds to keep municipalities whole and hold them "harmless." The state did that, for a while anyway, when revenues were flush with oil and gas money. That began to dwindle and, seeing the handwriting on the wall, the legislature in 2010 voted to reinstate the food tax. Richardson promptly vetoed it.

As suspected, oil and gas money slipped further, and the state found itself in worse financial woes and unable to keep municipalities whole. Cities and counties panicked.

Discussions about re-instating the food tax never gained traction, but in the 11th hour of the 2013 legislative session, lawmakers created an opportunity for municipalities to recoup some of the food tax losses through a gross receipts tax hike up to 3/8 of a percent. However, provisions left an apparent loophole regarding overlapping municipalities, such as counties and cities.

The City of Las Cruces quickly jumped on the opportunity, and city councillors voted in October 2013 to increase the tax, which went up in 2014. Then, in March 2015, Doña Ana County commissioners enacted the same measure, adding another GRT increase.

Unless something happens, local residents will get the full effect of that double whammy starting July 1, feeling an increase of 3/4 of a percent instead of 3/8.

The same double whammy is happening in Santa Fe County, and now the City of Las Cruces is joining in a suit with the City of Santa Fe and the City of Española against the New Mexico Taxation and Revenue Department to address the double whammy.

Let the unintended consequences begin.

The suit will like put on hold the county's tax collection. It muddies things for multiple organizations who were counting on funds the county had committed based on the tax. The Doña Ana County Sheriff's office, for example.

New Mexico was one of the few states to impose a food tax, and many can make a good case against it. However, it appears in effort to fix one supposed problem, New Mexico has created several more problems.

We know that roadways on which to travel, clean water for homes and businesses, treated water to put back into the water cycle, and the ability to live healthily and productively are essential.

Many of us also see certain amenities contributing to success here: success, which in turn, allows us to better maintain roads, more adequately connect to water, and more fully live long and well. Such success includes a diverse economy that can ride out downturns, more secure and efficient ways to use resources, and equitable opportunities for all here to enjoy good health and to prosper.

Some of the amenities assisting in our building that success include the following:

- Revitalized downtown and the plaza
- Completed Aquatic Center
- Innovative infill development
- Activities and venues for all Las Cruces to enjoy, regardless of age or employment status
- Engaging and well paying work opportunities for all here
- Transportation options connecting employees with jobs, consumers with retail, patients with health-care services, and students with schools

A Father's Day celebration and remembrance

Michael Swickard
In My Opinion

This Father's Day I am thinking about how lucky I was to have been raised by my father, George Swickard. He served his country from 1942 to 1967 and came from a long line of citizen-soldiers stretching back to the Revolutionary War.

I only personally knew my father and his father, Horace Swickard, who served on the border with Pershing in 1916 and then in France. Horace was wounded four times in WWI. I have his Victory Medal, "The Great War For Civilization." It lists his battles: Montdidier - Noyan; Aisne - Marne; St. Mihiel; Meuse - Argonne, and Defensive Sector.

Also I have his Disabled American Veterans Gold Card 69702. He died in 1970. Horace's father John and grandfather Daniel were part of my family who served our country back to 1776. I have a Union Army Civil War sword and cap. This Father's Day I think of them and their sacrifices.

My father was methodical and meticulous in all he did. He was a large, gentle man who never uttered a swear word. Nor did he utter many words, taking his stories, thoughts and feelings to his grave.

This is not unusual. Many military veterans are silent about their time in war. During family gatherings, we understood my father was not going to tell war stories even though he was in the thick of things.

My mother remembered some stories he told when they dated a couple of years after he came back from WWII and was stationed at Holloman Air Force Base. But what she was told was thin and without details. And then he spoke even less as time went by.

Because he was a photographer in high school, he was sent to Combat Photographer's School. Being a combat photographer put him on the front lines of the European conflict. He served in North Africa, Sicily, and Italy, especially the Anzio beachhead.

He also was used as a photographer in bombing raids. I suspect he was on a famous bombing raid, but he never talked about it. After my father's death, I was looking through his collection of photos and found some of the original negatives, including one often used in books.

How much more he did in war I can only guess. He served in World War II, Korea and Vietnam. I grew up watching him sit quietly, not really looking at anything, meditatively smoking cigarettes.

He tranquilized himself daily with alcohol, but was never impaired enough for anyone outside of the family to be aware of his drinking. Even as a small child my father was distant from everyone except his military buddies.

His best friend was another combat photographer, equally quiet. They routinely sat together slowly drinking and smoking cigarettes while speaking in small sentences. Those words spoke volumes to them. I would listen for a few moments, but I did not realize what they saw in their mind's eye.

War finally got my father in 1993. He began smoking upon entry into the military in 1942. Almost everyone smoked. The cigarettes were part of his daily habit the rest of his life.

Instead of bullets or bombs in the wars he documented, what killed him was 50 years of smoking. The "solace sticks" kept his hands busy while his mind was busy with the pictures of war still inside his mind. I did not realize he

SECOND OPINION

From Memorial Medical Center

By Tara Lucero, BSN, RN, CTR

Q. What does it mean when you say MMC Cancer Center participates in clinical trials?

A. The term "clinical trials" refers to a study process that revolves around people who choose to be part of a very important aspect of cancer research. Clinical trials are usually the very end of a long process of research and development that began with an idea and was constructed in a laboratory.

After the research is conducted to develop a drug, trials are written. They undergo intense evaluation by experts who decide whether or not it is a viable study to conduct on people. Once a clinical trial is approved, it is referred to as a "protocol."

When individuals consent to participate in a protocol, they are closely monitored and evaluated by a research nurse and their physician, who is identified as the principle investigator. These medical individuals follow the protocol requirements, called "parameters." During the enrollment and treatment process, specific information is collected based on the type of protocol the patient is on which is then submitted to the cooperative or pharmacologic group in charge of the trial.

When individuals make the significant choice to participate in a clinical trial, it allows for the expansion of new methods for prevention, detection and treatment options for cancer. It is through these studies that researchers can conclude not only if new treatments are safe and effective, but how certain drugs can be used together or alone in order to improve current treatments and outcomes, thereby enhancing a cancer patient's quality of life.

As a Commission on Cancer Accredited Program, MMC Cancer Center is the only cancer center in Southern New Mexico with the capability to offer this important Clinic Trial opportunity to individuals. MMC Cancer Center's research process is under the oversight of the New Mexico Cancer Care Alliance and supported by the University of New Mexico Cancer Center, which is a National Cancer Institute designated cancer center.

MMC Cancer Center's Clinical trials enable patients to access and participate in the latest research studies and still remain right here at home for treatment. The only way true progress can be made in cancer care is for patients to participate in clinical research

Remembering Beau Biden

By Paul R. Miller
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

For those of you who did not watch the memorial service for Beau Biden, 46 years of age at St. Anthony's of Padua in Wilmington, Delaware this past Saturday, you missed American Theatre at its best. It was a powerful drama inculcating and reflecting many of the values we hold dear. Be sure to check your internet.

The service was long, very emotional, embracing many facets, a kind if you will three act drama touching us at many levels of our lives. The first act was the service of worship (ascribing value). You knew when you heard the Processional with the bringing in of the body, this was not going to be an ordinary service of remembrance (if there is such a service). The haunting music of "Bring Him Home" from "Les Miserables" captured the poignancy of human loss and human hope. No singing by the congregation, but the words were already fixed in our hearts. "Bring him Peace - Bring him Joy - He is Young - He is only a boy". As one of the commentators observed, so many of us could identify because we have lost young heroes, family and friends, prematurely, unfairly by dint of violence or circumstance.

Traditional music to be sure (the 23rd Psalm, Ave Maria), intermingled with contemporary pieces like "Be not afraid, I go before you always" and eventually Chris Martin of Coldplay singing "Til Kingdom Come" with the tender lines, "Just say, you'll wait, you'll wait for me". This music gripped us, enhancing and underscoring scriptural truth so ably interpreted by the preacher of the day, Father Leo O'Donovan of Georgetown University in his homily - by any standards a homiletical gem. We learned once again as we entered into the sharpness of death, "no man is an island" and we can "never send for whom the bell tolls". How fitting that the Eucharist and/or blessing were open to all.

In the second act, General Raymond Odierno, Beau Biden's Commanding Officer in Iraq spoke with resolute conviction of Beau's disposition of honor, devotion to duty, selflessness and his oneness with those with whom he served. He left no doubt that such character is indispensable to military life at whatever level or wherever the call to service might be. It surely was a telling moment for all men and women under arms and capped off by the awarding posthumously of the Legion of Merit to Major Beau Biden.

President Barack Obama never fails to encompass in thought and feeling the difficult times of our national life. He stood in admiration of the warm humanity of Beau and his humility in public service to the lowest and least by our rankings to those greatly in need and terribly vulnerable. He was there for everyone with pluck, determination and passion. Beau's strength was his inextricable love of family. His character touched men and women and children in all walks of life. Never has the State of Delaware had a more beloved son. The President made it clear that the love between the Biden and Obama families has been one of the great, good gifts of his life.

Most of us were by this time spent and in no way ready for the wondrous tributes about to be paid by Beau's siblings, his sister Ashley and his brother Hunter. Ashley disarmed us with her reference to her brothers as "Beau-ee and Hunt-ee," so much there for her in the early years of her life and continuing to the present day. She reminded us of how beautiful childhood can be, especially when you have brothers who give you so much affirmation and support. She indicated that Beau led us because he lived for us.

Hunter, reserved and almost withdrawn, took us in because he bared his heart. His soft-spoken demeanor described the contours of a totally shared and supportive life back to the death of their Mother when they were four and three years of age in December 1972 to the necessary closure of life as the cancer took its toll and death beckoned. His affectionate thank you and trust that you will carry on given to his Step Mother Jill Biden told us all what a great comforter and rock of strength she has been within the family. In like manner, his remarks toward his Dad manifested profound respect and admiration for how long and how well by virtue of his love you have kept us all going.

This service of remembrance was indeed a rare moment in our national life. As Hoosiers like to say, this was "down home" in every sense of the word. It was a public witness to who we are and what holds us together. Here was an American family baring its soul, its heartbreak and its need for us to be there with them. Here was real hurt, real pain, real suffering, real grief, real faith, real hope, real love shared in community. For a brief time, love trumped and transcended all the things that keep us apart. It was a call to re-member-ing (bringing together that which was separated) who we are and how much we need each other.

The closing recessional, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" (not sung) said so much, namely how much we have been through separately and together and how the call to wholeness of community and family is a never ending challenge so well understood and lived by Beau Biden and the Biden family. Theatre takes many forms and on this particular occasion, we got it right.

Paul R. Miller is a resident of Las Cruces.

Culinary arts opens doors to a career

By Kim Seifert
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Everyone has a favorite food show chef that they follow. It is very entertaining to watch them in their kitchens preparing food and providing clever and humorous insight into the history, culture and popularity of a particular cuisine or dish. Or judging, dishing the efforts of others in the kitchen.

Before dissing them, one should remember these chefs have risen through the ranks of cooking for many years and are not newcomers to the profession. They have not only survived but have achieved great success in an extremely competitive arena — many starting their own restaurant chains.

Celebrity chef Emeril Lagasse has 12 restaurants in four states while Bobby Flay has 11 burger places alone in 11 different states, in addition to his six other restaurants in four states and the Bahamas. Alex Guarnaschelli has her two restaurants in New York City.

Add to that the demands of authoring cookbooks, making event appearances, researching projects or new restaurants, shooting television programs...the time demands are remarkable.

So it is difficult for Alex, Bobby or Emeril to show up to their restaurants, throw on their cooking toque (hat), belly up to the stove and cook for hundreds of customers. A classically trained chef explained that it is rare for chefs who are that far along in their careers to still be cooking. It is not because they can't, but because of the time demands and the nature of the restaurant industry.

There is a business side to culinary arts. It is just as important to know the math that is required for calculating portion sizes or the supervisory techniques that will be needed to lead a team in the kitchen as it is to learn knife skills, cooking techniques and food composition.

With a restaurant failure rate of 60% within five years, it becomes a matter of survival to effectively supervise and manage a cafe, chain of restaurants or industrial kitchen. Creating schedules, creating menus, ordering food, supervising employees, training, planning, paying the bills, and looking at margins all become part of the successful chef's duties. This career is still very exciting and fulfilling. And because you are the boss, on occasion you can grab your chef's coat and knives, jump in, and help the Chef de Cuisine with a dish that is especially complex and difficult.

Most successful chefs get a solid education in culinary arts. At Doña Ana Community College (DACC), jump start your career in culinary arts. One will learn the basics of cooking and needed management skills. The program trains chefs, pastry chefs, cooks and bakers for careers in restaurants, resorts institutions, cruise lines, hotels, and anywhere quality food is prepared.

Working in state-of-the-art culinary laboratories, students will become well versed in the art of cooking and through the classroom they will be well versed in what it takes to succeed in the culinary business.

Kim Seifert is the department chair of business and marketing at DACC.

was stuck in the past, I was often mad at him for being so distant to me and the family.

He watched sports, but never war films. Not all of the wounds of war are seen by doctors. Many soldiers who did not receive purple hearts were just as wounded, my father being one of them. A grateful nation must look back at our silent fathers and accept they sacrificed more than we can realize for our freedom.

On this Father's Day we celebrate our silent fathers. Freedom is not free. Millions of these men died and were injured for our freedoms. I have forgiven my father for his silence, and I hope in heaven I can apologize for my anger at his silence. I will tell him how proud I am to be his son.

didn't begin or end on with the little church eight miles north of Las Cruces. He first came to the valley in 1905, based out of St. James Episcopalian Church, and stayed until his death in 1948. He shared his time ministering at churches from the south valley to Belen. When he wasn't preaching, Lewis was participating in school events at New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts (now New Mexico State University) and helping his wife, Edith, raise their six children.

"The Rev. Lewis had a great impact on the area. His ministry had a great impact on the area. The little church in Hill is just one of his legacies, and it is standing as strong as the impact Lewis left," said Jack Barclay, who started as a member of the church and eventually became ordained. Barclay feels connected to Lewis in more ways than one...Lewis was 79 when he died, Barclay is 79 as he picks up the banner.

Within a year, the pile of fieldstones that Lewis helped collect shaped an Episcopalian chapel. Over the years, the St. Mary's at Hill Anglican Church housed different denominations, but one shared wish – to maintain the original look and feel of the church.

The church served Episcopalian congregations until the early 1960s, when it was purchased by a Baptist church, but by the 1980s the church remained vacant. In 1994, the small Ministerios Evangelisticos Emmanuel congregation acquired St. Mary's, and the congregation began to mend the church, stocking it with new fixtures like pews and an altar that had long since been gone. The original marble altar and stained glass window were moved to St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Las Cruces in the 1960s.

In the early 2000s, the Anglican congregation that formed St. Mary's at Hill, bought the church from the former state legislator Smokey Blanton. The church required some repairs, including a new roof, and a quest began to stop occasional flooding in the basement. Barclay has worked first hand on the flooding problem, and he watched with a heavy heart while boxes of hymnals, children's church lessons and other church items were removed, soaked and molded, from the basement after particularly bad flooding over the years.

Barclay has also watched with a heavy heart the church lose those who find solace and faith within its walls. When the church's two most recent priests left – one retire and the other found a calling to minister in another state – Barclay was ordained in San Antonio, Texas. He made a commitment to build the congregation, and maintain the church. Now, he finds himself preaching every Sunday to a room of empty pews, with the exception of two seats filled with antique Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy dolls.

"I made the commitment, and I won't go back on it. I arrive at the church every Sunday and begin the service at 9 a.m. I sing three hymns and hold morning prayers. Then I preach," Barclay said. While he didn't place the Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls in the pews, he doesn't mind them being there. "I preach to them when no one else is there, and they listen quite well."

Barclay, who is an active participant in a variety of community activities and an active member of several Optimist Clubs and the Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce Conquistadors, knows it takes work to accomplish anything, and it is work he is not willing to neglect. His hope is to first build the congregation at the church located at 7975 N. Doña Ana Road. (call 202-2796 for more information), then to replace the stained glass window that found a new home all those years ago. He also hopes to see the church once again host weddings.

"I love this little church. I know others would love it too," Barclay said. "I just hope someday soon I won't be preaching to an empty church. But, I won't stop no matter what because if I don't do it, who will?"

Barclay will, repeating a Bible verse that reminds him why: "Also I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said, I. Here am I, send me." Isaiah 6:8.

'I love this little church. I know others would love it too. I just hope someday soon I won't be preaching to an empty church. But, I won't stop no matter what because if I don't do it, who will?'

JACK BARCLAY

Minister at St. Mary's at Hill Anglican Church

Rev. Jack Barclay stands inside St. Mary's at Hill Anglican Church at 7975 N. Doña Ana Road. Barclay started as a member of the church and eventually became ordained. Now he hopes to attract worshippers.

Reflections

100 years ago

June 19, 1915

• An article in the June 20 Las Cruces Bulletin reported that nearly a month had elapsed the assault of Alex Sanchez, his son, Christopher, and nephew Alex Loya, were assaulted in the street in front of their house, yet still no action had been taken and no charges had been filed by the District Attorney's office. A call from the Bulletin found District Attorney Douglas Driggers out of town, Alfred Perez, Driggers' second in command, on vacation, and Assistant District Attorney Susana Martinez, in court.

• Seventy-two-year-old Baylor Canyon resident Alice Hudgins, who had been recently released from the hospital after receiving treatment for viral pneumonia, claimed that drinking water contaminated with chlorine had caused burns and blistering in her mouth, throat and stomach. Mike Jones, Baylor Canyon Water Co-Op company operator, admitted he had used chlorine to treat the lines — a common practice — but question if Hudgins' complaint could be substantiated.

• Las Cruces' Allen Theatres locations — three in all, totaling 12 screens — were screening "Dick Tracy," "Gremlins 2," "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles," "Total

Recall," "The Hunt for the Red October," Bird on a Wire," "Milo & Otis" and "Pretty Woman."

75 years ago

June 20, 1940 Las Cruces Citizen

• The Las Cruces Citizen announced that beginning July 1, "the town hopes to have its new garbage tanks ready for operation." After that date, "it (would) not be lawful for anybody but employees of the Town especially appointed for that purpose, to collect or dispose of garbage." Two collections would be made per week on the west side of Church Street, and one per week on the east.

• Rumors had reached the Citizen telling that "in a very short time, a new men's store will open." From the "standpoint of certain parties, this new store will be one of the largest and best in Las Cruces."

• Mayor Sam Klein had been recently advised by Senator Dennis Chavez that an allotment of $16,961 had received presidential approval for the construction of a modern school in west Las Cruces, with work to begin pending approval of labor by the state WPA office.

50 years ago

June 24, 1965 Las Cruces Citizen

• The Las Cruces Citizen reported Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor said domestic tourism is a

"slumbering giant," based on a study reporting 52 percent of Americans have never taken a vacation trip of more than 200 miles from home. According to reports released by the American Automobile Association and the Commerce Clearing House, travelers leaving Doña Ana County, in planning their trips, should expect to spend $31 per day for two people for basic needs — food, lodging and gasoline — provided they were traveling "within 300 miles in a car that does 15 miles per gallon of gas." That daily $31 broke down to $10.50 for food, $11 for hotel/motel, $7 for gas and oil and $2.50 for "tips and other miscellany."

• Another national report by AAA claimed the year-round cost of ownership and operation of a car was $1,777 a year for a popular-price car driven 10,000 miles per year — $807 for depreciation, insurance, registration and tags and $370 for operating costs (gas, oil, tires, maintenance, etc.) In Doña County, local car ownership cost local drivers to the tune of $29,519,000 per year. Local gas stations reported receipts of $8,931,000 in 1964.

• Las Cruces Police were having a two-fold problem with a recent rash of bicycle thefts — both that the thefts had occurred, and that those bikes recovered, more than three dozen and counting in a matter of months had not been returned to their owners, instead crowding police property custodians out of their working spaces. The chief of police was quoted as saying, "We wish those who have lost bicycles would come to the Public Safety Building and go with us to identify property." The bicycles would continue to clutter the station until September.

New J. Paul Taylor Academy leader picked

J. Paul Taylor Academy (JPTA) announced the hiring of Aine Garcia-Post as its new head administrator, allowing Cynthia Risner to retire.

Garcia-Post comes to JPTA with a vast background and educational experience. She started her career in bilingual education in San Jose, Calif., and her most recent position was as an assistant principal with at McArthur Elementary School. Garcia-Post's philosophy on education and student-centered learning blends perfectly with the mission and charter of J. Paul Taylor Academy, said Jennifer Gorham, JPTA Governance Council secretary.

J. Paul Taylor Academy is a state-chartered, non-tuition, kindergarten through eighth grade school, centering its education in a project-based and Spanish language acquisition format. The school is currently undergoing its fifth year charter renewal with the New Mexico Public Education Department. With a population of 200 students, JPTA offers student-centered education and provides smaller classrooms.

J. Paul Taylor Academy will be relocating this fall to a new location adjacent to the Court Youth Center, which houses Alma de'arte Charter High School. Classes begin July 15 for JPTA students at the academy's current location of 3900 Del Rey Blvd., as part of the school's balanced school year.

Pearce punished for trade vote break

U.S. Rep. Steve Pearce, the lone Republican in New Mexico's congressional delegation, has been removed from the House Republican whip team over a procedural vote on trade last week, the Albuquerque Journal reported.

Pearce was among three Republican House members who were removed from the whip team after they sided with GOP rebels to vote against a rule governing debate on a trade bill.

Pearce also voted against the overall trade bill last week, putting him the rare position of voting with Democrats on major legislation.

"While I strongly support free trade agreements to decrease our nation's trade deficit and promote U.S. manufacturing globally, I do not believe the fast-track bill today provided the guarantees needed," Pearce said after last Friday's vote. "The (bill) missed significant principles that need to be included ... like competitive currency standards, fair trading practices, and including the opinion of the American people."

GOP leaders also this week removed Reps. Cynthia Lummis of Wyoming and Trent Franks of Arizona from the Republican whip team after they voted against the trade rule.

"I made it pretty clear to the members today I was not very happy about it," Boehner told reporters after the private meeting on Capitol Hill. "You know, we're a team. And we've worked hard to get the majority; we've worked hard to stay in the majority. And I expect our team to act like a team, and frankly, I made it pretty clear I wasn't very happy."

Pearce is serving his sixth term. He voted against Boehner for speaker in the last Congress but decided to back him this Congress.

Las Cruces Downtown Planning and Development Coordinator Andy Hume displays an event seating plan for the project. Designs are not yet final and may still be changed.

across from the Rio Grande Theatre.

“We let a huge part of our New Mexican tradition get away,” Hume said.

The actual design of the plaza still has not been finalized but certain elements will be incorporated, Hume said.

The space will be bound by four streets because traditional New Mexico plazas are bound on all four sides. To accomplish this, a new street will be created. But since the property is primarily where the bank drive-through is, existing parking will not be affected.

The plaza will include a performance area with a stage on one side of the plaza. There will be state-of-the-art power supplies and other accommodations for performing artists to be able to utilize for their shows, however high-tech they may be.

There will be a water feature on the opposite end of the plaza from the stage and shade trees around the edges. The fountain is planned in a “splash pad” format and can be turned off to create more seating space for the plaza if needed.

“One feature of traditional plazas is a lot of open space,” Hume said. “That’s what we are trying to recreate.”

The biggest expense of the project will never be seen at all. Before even beginning on the plaza, workers will have to take care of what lies beneath the area. Gas, water and electric lines will be excavated, rerouted and brought up to code.

“There is a lot of science that goes into planning one of these,” Hume said. “You have to consider everything including drainage, water usage and maintenance. We are getting a lot more than a piece of ground.”

Also the old Herndon Hotel used to stand on one of the corners of the property before it was acquired by the bank. Until the contractors start excavating, they don’t know if the hotel was imploded into its own basement. If it was, the whole thing may have to be excavated before construction can move forward.

The St. Genevieve monument commemorating the original church will be moved as part of the project.

The city is purchasing the land and LCCP is handling all the transactions and the construction. The almost $5.5 million for the project is managed through the Tax Increment Development District (TIDD) board.

Watch the Las Cruces City Manager Newsletter, available on the city’s website, for upcoming dates in regards to the downtown plaza, including the groundbreaking date.

Parents urged to not leave children alone in a car

The New Mexico Department of Health (DOH) and the Children's Youth and Families Department (CYFD) urge New Mexico parents and caregivers to never leave a child alone in a car.

Nine children have died in New Mexico from heatstroke after being left in hot cars since 1998. Safe Kids Worldwide reports an average of 37 children have died in hot cars each year in the U.S. in that same time period. Of those lives lost, 53 percent resulted from adults intentionally or unintentionally leaving children unattended in automobiles. An additional 47 percent resulted from children gaining access to unlocked vehicles without supervision.

"We don't want to see this tragedy happen to any family," said DOH

Cabinet Secretary Retta Ward, MPH. "That's why we're asking everyone to help protect kids; never leave a child alone in a car, not even for a minute. It may be tempting not to 'wake the sleeping baby' for a quick trip inside the store, but that puts the child's life at risk."

The New Mexico Department of Health leads Safe Kids New Mexico, a coalition which provides staff, operational support and other resources to assist in keeping kids safe.

Union Pacific invests in New Mexico's railroad safety

Union Pacific plans to invest about $23 million in 2015 to improve New Mexico's transportation infrastructure.

The investment is intended to enhance employee, community and customer safety and increase rail operating efficiency, according to a company press release.

The planned private investment covers a range of initiatives: $21 million to maintain railroad track, $120,000 to enhance signal systems and nearly $2 million to maintain or replace bridges in the state. Key projects scheduled for this year include:

- $4.6 million investment in the rail line between the Arizona-New Mexico state line and Santa Teresa to replace 34,453 concrete railroad ties and install 1,418 tons of rock ballast.
- $3 million investment in the rail line between Tucumari and Las Palomas to replace nearly 6 miles of rail.
- $5 million investment in the rail line south of Orogrande to replace

The dirt flies Wednesday, June 10, as members of the Las Cruces Home Builders Association and local dignitaries participate in a ground breaking ceremony at 3058 Cheyenne Drive for LCHBA's 2015 anniversary house, which when completed will be sold to raise funds for local charities.

Home Builders breaks ground for 2015 Anniversary House

By Alta LeCompte
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Las Cruces Home Builders Association (LCHBA) 2014 anniversary celebration was such a success the party will continue through 2015.

At an emotional meeting in February, the association handed out checks for a total of $64,000 to 13 nonprofits for expanding their services or undertaking capital projects.

The money came from what sounded like a one-time-only project – building and selling the 2014 Anniversary House in celebration of the association's 55th birthday.

"Last year when we gave away all that money, it was so heartwarming," said Jason Lorenz, president and owner of Veloz Homes Inc. "I can't wait to do it again."

Lorenz is heading up this year's Anniversary House, a 2,000 square-foot, three-bedroom, two-bath Spanish colonial home at 3058 Cheyenne Drive.

"Our company and our association are really excited about being able to return something to the community that supports us," he said.

Lorenz said when Kimball Hakes, former LCHBA president, approached him and said somebody needed to do a 2015 anniversary House, he was eager to accept the challenge.

"I went home and had a real short discussion with my wife, Julie," he said.

"This year I want to reach to more association members ... to get them involved," Lorenz said.

He said he'll be looking for more help from both members and the community who can "donate cash to add to the pile and make this as big a deal as we possibly can."

The Anniversary House is the April, which Lorenz first built in Metro Verde. He said it has been their No. 1 or No. 2 seller for the past couple years.

"What's really neat is it has a great, partially enclosed outdoor living area with a 450 square foot patio," he said.

The outdoor living area features a fireplace with hearth and electrical outlets. The indoor and outdoor living areas face east to capture the view.

LCHBA CEO Steve Chavira said the 2014 Anniversary House confirmed the need for such projects.

He said more than 40 nonprofits applied for financial assistance, seeking more than $350,000.

The Gospel Rescue Mission, Casa de Peregrinos and the New Mexico State University Scholarship Fund each received $10,000.

Other organizations benefiting from the LCHBA fund-raising project were: Community of Hope, Mesilla Valley Hospice, Cancer Care (C.A.R.E.), Boys & Girls Club, El Caldito soup kitchen, Jardin de los Ninos, Southwest Honor Flight, Tutti Bambini, La Pinon and the Dyslexia Institute of Southern New Mexico.

The contributions enabled the Boys and Girls Club to update facilities and the Community of Hope to buy tents for residents and install solar panels for the office building. El Caldito expanded the kitchen from which it has served more than 2 million meals for those in need, while the Gospel Rescue Mission, refurbished its building with more energy efficient materials.

NM economic development department revamps website

New Mexico Economic Development Department Cabinet Secretary Jon Barela has announced the launch of the NMEDD's revamped website.

The new layout offers the same beneficial information — such as marketing New Mexico as a competitive destination for businesses and providing resources and data for New Mexico communities — in addition to new features, such as the Business Resource Center.

The BRC is a one-stop-shop resource for all New Mexico businesses that need to know the steps to take to register and license their company with the state, and be successful. The BRC includes a searchable directory of business development programs and services. It also features NMEDD's business service programs: the Job Training Incentive Program, finance development, ISO 9000 training, the statewide business retention and expansion (BRE) program, international trade and the Office of Business Advocacy.

The New Mexico State Data Center offers a searchable database of available commercial properties; county and tribal data profiles and a comparison of New Mexico data with the other 49 states

"NMEDD is making it easier for entrepreneurs to find what they need to successfully take advantage of state programs designed to help businesses open up shop, grow and expand" Barela said.

The website can be found at www.gonm.biz.

Valley Drive braces for reconstruction

By Alta LeCompte
Las Cruces Bulletin

A traffic study completed late last year, an environmental analysis and ongoing public input are paving the way for a $14 million reconstruction of Valley Drive from Picacho Avenue to Avenida de Mesilla.

Although construction won't start until 2017, time is running out for business owners, consumers and others to suggest features they would like to see incorporated into the preliminary plan.

Molzen Corbin, an engineering firm consulting for the New Mexico Department of Transportation, will be collecting comments until June 30.

The public input process began in late 2014 with a community meeting and the launching of a website for the latest on the project, www.valleydrive.net.

At stakeholder meetings and public input sessions, including one televised and streamed live in December, six options were presented for upgrading the four-lane artery. The section slated for improvements is from Picacho Avenue, U.S. 70, south to Avenida de Mesilla. Construction would extend west on Avenida de Mesilla, state Highway 28, about 1,100 feet to Hickory Loop.

Bike lanes and sidewalks proposed

All the options include drainage/flood prevention improvements, two 12-foot driving lanes in each direction, a raised center median, curbs, sidewalks and protected bike lanes. ADA improvements and property access management would be incorporated.

The options vary in proposed methods of dealing with drainage issues, Kartchner said.

He said the consulting firm will recommend a design that utilizes a parkway to separate the curb and gutter from the sidewalk, acting as a physical barrier that increases safety and adds space for landscaping and beautification.

The drainage plan would consist of drop inlets along the curb and gutter that will feed into the large storm pipe running under the roadway, which will empty at designated ponding areas.

Due to right-of-way constraints, a slightly different design will be used north of Hadley Avenue and on Avenida de Mesilla to provide "seamless transition to add modes of transportation," Kartchner said.

He said there will be recommendations for additional turning lanes at the Picacho, Amador and Avenida de Mesilla intersections, as well as modifications to the Hadley Avenue intersection.

At Hadley Avenue there would be a dedicated left turn lane, with a shared right turn and through lane. "There are a lot of left turns there," he said.

About 30 people, mostly Valley Drive business owners, showed up for a June 3 meeting at City Hall, Kartchner said. Rebroadcasts will air 6:30-8 p.m. every Tuesday in June on Comcast channel 20, the Las Cruces City channel, CLC-TV.

Although business owners won't be able to avoid the disruption of reconstructing corridor, they have convinced project consultants it would be a good idea to undertake the project in two phases.

"Based on comments, most businesses wanted us to take the phased approach, working from Avenida de Mesilla in one phase and from Amador to Picacho in another," Kartchner said. "We think it's a good idea."

Communication key

At the meeting business owners stressed the need for ongoing communication throughout planning and construction.

Kartchner said attendees also discussed the findings of the environmental analysis conducted by Ecosphere.

"One of the things they found was a lot of old gas stations along the corridors, some with potential contamination," Kartchner said. "In plans prepared for bid we will note the locations for contractors and give them instructions on how to handle and dispose of any contamination that's found," he said. "It will only be an issue if the construction hits contamination in the soil. It's more a safety concern for construction workers than an environmental threat."

Kartchner said currently reports are being written on the environmental analysis and the research portion of the construction project.

The next step will be a preliminary design plan.

Why reconstruct Valley Drive?

Valleydrive.net spells out the reason the project is being planned.

"As Las Cruces has urbanized over the past 20 years, Valley Drive has seen its importance to the community grow as well," the project website stated. "After the construction of the Interstate 10 and Interstate 25 around Las Cruces in the 1960s, travel demand on Valley Drive took a sharp decline. However, within the last 15 years, Valley Drive has rebounded and is expected to grow even further into the future."

The segment slated for reconstruction is part of the historic U.S. Route 85, the primary route between El Paso on the south, extending north to the Canadian border prior to the construction of the interstate highway system.

Questions may be directed to at wkartchner@molzencorbin.com or 522-0049.

NMSU to inspect Elephant Butte Dam with UAS

By Mike Cook
Las Cruces Bulletin

Dennis "Zak" Zakland, deputy director of Unmanned Aircraft Systems (UAS) at the Physical Science Laboratory at New Mexico State University, was the guest speaker at the Friday, June 12, meeting of the High Tech Consortium of Southern New Mexico.

Zakland told attendees UASs — also called drones — are "going to be the future" in a wide range of applications, including mapping, fighting forest fires and checking the safety of bridges and other large structures. The military applications in the Middle East and elsewhere are already well known.

This summer, Zakland said NMSU will use UASs to conduct the Federal Bureau of Reclamation's first dam inspection — of Elephant Butte Dam north of Las Cruces.

One of his department's goals is to "get these tools where they need to be, but safely."

The PSL is working with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and the state to develop regulations for the safe operation of UASs, including the small UASs that can be purchased commercially and are sometimes — often without the operator knowing it — being flown illegally.

Zakland said he hopes the NMSU UAS program can be part of a statewide committee to provide guidance and oversight of commercial and privately owned UASs.

The NMSU UAS program operates a flight test center and 15,000 square miles of airspace, and conducts training and testing. It has become a national leader in "procedural development and validation," Zakland said.

Q: I currently offer Health Insurance to my employees. What am I required to pay toward that coverage?

A: Most insurance companies require that the employer contribute a minimum of 50% of the employee's premium. Most employers do contribute more than that, and use this benefit as a tool to recruit and retain quality employees. Also, for large employers there are requirements for the maximum amount and employee can contribute towards the premium. The FUN conference was planned by a wide range of community members and organizations led by youth participants as a way to empower the youth voice, to help identify pathways for youth to engage with their schools and their community and to promote creativity and leadership development.

This conference is organized for youth, by youth from the FUN Youth Leadership Committee of the Empowerment Congress, a project of Ocotillo Institute for Social Justice, an initiative of the Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico.

The development team behind the conference includes student leaders from Las Cruces, Hatch and Gadsden school districts; local teachers; Court Youth Center; New Mexico State University Borderlands Center for Educational Studies (BOCES); Anthony Teen Advisory Council; Anthony Youth Group; Boys and Girls Club Las Cruces; Groundwork Doña Ana and the offices of U.S. Sen. Martin Heinrich and Tom Udall and U.S. Rep. Steve Pearce.

"Without an informed and civically active population, our constitutional republic could not endure as it has for over 200 years. Our nation will increasingly look to the next generation for solutions to our greatest challenges. I am pleased to know that our youth are taking initiative to prepare themselves for positions of leadership," Pearce said.

Head out to the ballpark

By Brook Stockberger
Las Cruces Bulletin

Ah, summer.

The season officially arrives Sunday, June 21, but we've been slugging through summer weather — and even a few rain drops as the monsoons peek around the corner — for some time now. Also very season appropriate is the sound of horsehide smacking bats at Apodaca Park.

As most of you know, the Las Cruces Vaqueros of the Pecos League returned after a hiatus of a couple of seasons and are plying their trade against the likes of Pupfish, Invaders and Train Robbers.

The professional baseball team here in southern New Mexico's largest city is in the midst of a stretch of 11 home games in 12 days, so there is plenty of opportunity to head out to the ball field — located at 801 E. Madrid Ave. — to catch the boys of summer.

Still on tap this month are home tilts against the Roswell Invaders, the Garden City Wind and Las Vegas Train Robbers.

The sole away game during this home stand comes Sunday, June 28 at the White Sands Pupfish.

Las Cruces is off to a tough start with a 7-20 mark as of the writing of this column. The season so far, though, can be broken into two parts. After a 1-11 start, the Vaqueros have ridden a little easier in the saddle, with a 6-9 stretch.

Outfielder Nick Howell from Nashville, Tenn., has set the pace from the plate for the team with an amazing .415 batting average in 82 appearances at the plate. He has 12 RBI, has crossed home 30 times himself and has smacked a pair of home runs. Howell has three triples and 12 doubles.

Third baseman John Hotta, a University of San Diego product, has the most at-bats on the team with 91, and most RBI with 14. He has a .286 batting average and has sent the ball out of the park two times as well. Hotta has five triples and six doubles.

Crucen picks up rowing at Lehigh

Without any experience in the sport, freshman Zach Hille joined the Lehigh University men's rowing club.

By season's end, the Las Cruces resident and walk-on had become a valuable member as he competed in multiple crews at the Pennsylvania school.

Among 12 athletes on the roster, Hille was the lone rower who wasn't from the Northeast or Southeast. He started the fall season by rowing in novice e vents. Eventually he rowed in different varsity boats and seats during the main spring season.

He was part of the novice 8+ crew that finished sixth at the Murphy Cup Regatta in March.

Thomas Schlenker, who coaches the men's varsity squad, described in an email how Hille was "one of the men who delivered."

"He has made immense progress this season in both skill, raw power and conditioning," Schlenker said. "His natural body type is the ideal build for rowing. He learned the true meaning of team and became a selfless teammate committed to the success of those around him."

Women's lacrosse

Corinne Griffiths was a freshman attacker for Southern Virginia University. The Oñate High School alumna started four of the eight games she played.

Women's swimming

Out of Las Cruces High, Cara Leapley was a freshman for Western State Colorado University. She was second in the 50-yard freestyle and was a part of the winning 200 freestyle relay against Colorado State University-Pueblo. She was second in the 50 freestyle and fourth in the 100 freestyle against Adams State University.

Women's track and field

University of Notre Dame senior Amber Lalla, a Mayfield High graduate, was a part of the 4-by-400-meter relay that finished 12th in the semifinal at the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships in Eugene, Ore.

From there, the offense statistics thin out. Just one other player, catcher Roberto Cuneo, has more than 4 RBI, and just one other player, short stop Ricardo Garcia, has a home run.

On the mound, relief pitcher Guadalupe Barrera of Rio Grande, Texas, has a team-best 2.5 ERA, coming out of the bullpen 11 times.

Former New Mexico State University hurler Casey Collins has started five games for the Vaqueros and sports at 4.11 ERA, second-best on the team, and has also come out of the bullpen four times to pick up a pair of saves.

Golf tournament is for the dogs ... and cats

As your dedicated “Doctor of Golf,” I wear lots of hats from week to week, including the performance-advice cap, the great-new-products cap and the be-safe-and-protected cap.

This week I’m proudly putting on the championing-a-great-cause, golf-fundraiser cap, because the annual Mulligans Fore Mutts Golf Tournament is coming up Saturday, June 27, at Pico Hills Country Club.

Team registration starts at noon and golf begins with a shotgun start at 1 p.m.

Individual tournament entry is $125; team entry is $500.

The Mulligans Fore Mutts Golf event began two years ago to benefit Action Programs for Animals. The APA reports its mission is to promote progressive and friendly animal welfare programs and services to help Doña Ana County reach an absolute minimum of companion pet euthanasia.

The group’s slogan is “helping people, saving pets.” To this end, established APA programs include the Doña Ana Pets Alive! Campaign, which pulls at-risk animals from municipal shelters, and the Second Chance Dogs and Cats Rescue Program for formerly abused animals.

In addition, the APA offers low-cost vaccinations and helps pet owners find alternatives so they do not have to turn them over to the municipal shelter.

APA also operates a pet food bank that has distributed more than 550,000 pounds of pet food and supplies to more than 1,400 needy families. I can personally vouch for how terrific it is to bring home a rescue dog, having had a handful of golden retrievers.

The Mulligans Fore Mutts fundraiser tournament consists of a standard four-person team with nice awards to winning teams, including tickets to the 2015 Sun Bowl game for the top group. If you make a hole-in-one, you get a Skidoo as the top prize compliments of Las Cruces Motor Sports.

This golf event, like others in our wonderful town, is about coming together for a cause, friendship, having fun, donating generously and meeting people.

Following play there will be an after-party — $15 per person and $25 per couple — featuring light hors d’oeuvres, live music and plenty of laughter.

On the golf course, after nine holes, the group makes the clubhouse turn, there will be an optional putting contest. I’m told that if a golfer makes a ten-foot putt, then it will qualify the golfer to have a shot at a 50-foot putt, which may be worth $10,000.

Wow!

There will be a silent auction for some valuable items and raffle tickets will be available for even more prizes.

The title sponsor of the Mulligans Fore Mutts is The Gregg Martin Agency of Farmers Insurance. Like several other established local business owners who generously support worthy causes, Martin feels strongly about giving back.

“This event will save lives for companion animals and we are proud to be a major sponsor and have even committed for next year,” he said.

APA is a 501c3 nonprofit, so all donations are tax-deductible. Sponsorships remain available at various levels of exposure and benefits from, the “Top Dog” level at $5,000, down to the “Chihuahua” level at $150.

Rich Fisher is the Mulligans Fore Mutts organizer and he can be contacted by cellphone at 704-341-0344 or by email at fishyankees@sbcglobal.net.

See you there.

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

Agricultural Ignorance

The editor of the Delmarva Farmer made the observation that Americans as a whole have reached the Age of Agricultural Ignorance. This stage in our civilization is a direct result of the lack of “kids growing up on the farm.”

There are many reasons for them leaving. One of the greatest being that farming requires manual labor. As our country has progressed, each generation was drawn to professions that demanded less and less physical exertion. A perfect example is the importation of foreign labor to do the grunt work. Grandparents and parents crossed the border to work in the fields. They, themselves were close to the land and understood farming. But when they raised their children, they deliberately discouraged them from working in agriculture.

In the last five generations in the U.S., we have whittled down the percent of the population engaged in production agriculture from 25 percent in 1933 to less than 2 percent today.

So what? Using modern agriculture practices, the reality is, 2 percent is enough to feed everyone else. It's an amazing accomplishment that is now taken for granted. However, there is an accompanying negative progression that has contributed to the Age of Agricultural Ignorance. It is the expanding ignorance of science. Today in the U.S., 50 percent of all post-graduate degrees in science-based curriculums are earned by students who are foreign born. “Science-based” include subjects like math, chemistry, engineering, medicine, physics and agriculture. Political science and economics are not sciences.

What those of us in agriculture find hard to believe is, according to popular culture, we are not doing a good job. The community of denigrators accuse farmers of misuse of animals and land and our environment. They are innocently supported by an ignorant media (journalism is not a science) who are incapable of evaluating information like statistical significance, withholding times, FDA requirements and the writing on the back of a bottle.

I grant that they get a disproportionate amount of the front-page scares and the denigrators stir up contributions to their anti-farming causes and the gutless media-sensitive politicians (lawery is not a science) and pop stars are no help, but...

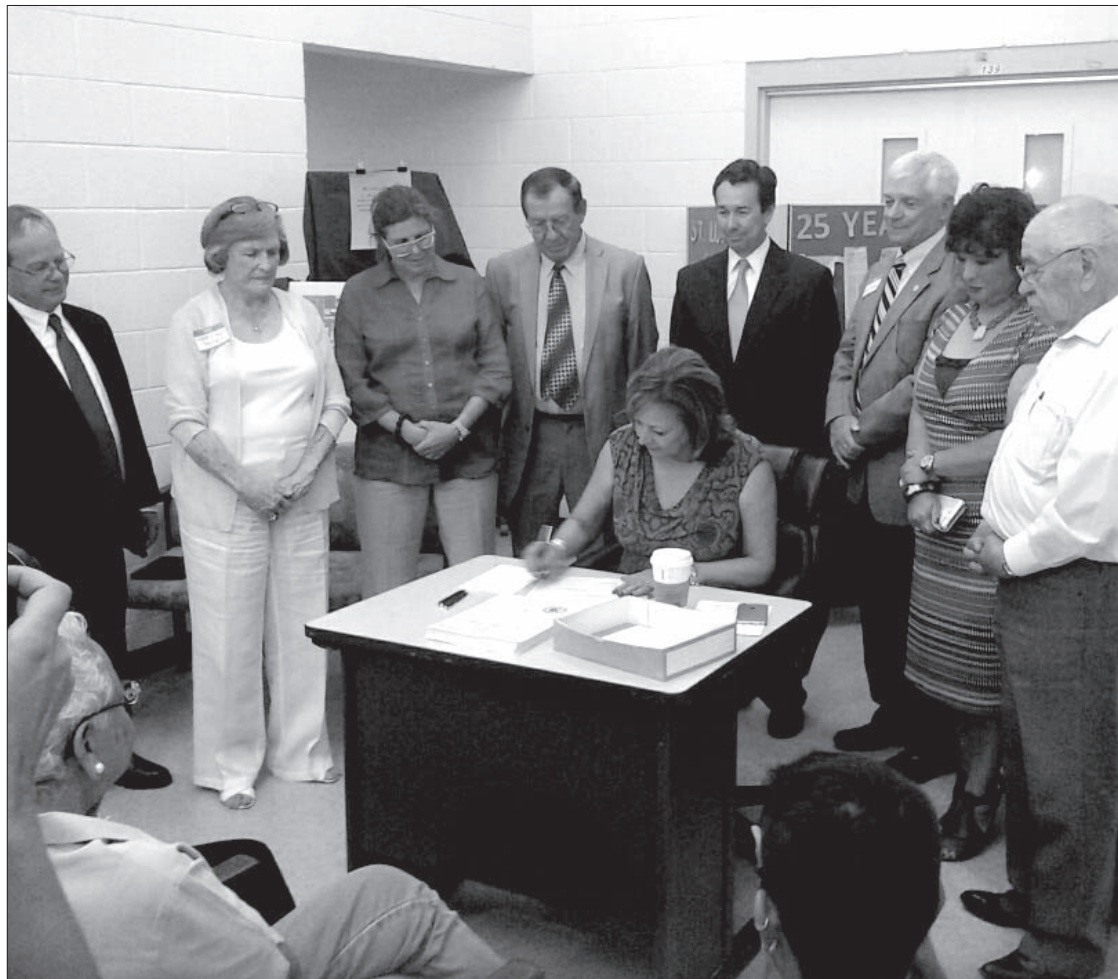

Dwarfing their squealing, the landslide of food production roars down through the planting, harvest, transportation, preparation and consumption of what we choose to eat. The food chain never stops. It is feeding 320 million people in the U.S. daily, plus furnishing $45 billion worth of food exports (2013).

One might conclude that America's horn of plenty will survive as long as foreign-born students help us continue to technically and biologically streamline farming. And as long as foreign-born laborers who are willing to pick up a shovel or drive a tractor keep immigrating, that we will not go hungry. A sad conclusion.

Then again, there might be a renaissance of 21st Century Agricultural Awareness, where farmers and ranchers will be recognized for their contribution and treated like royalty! In the league of astronauts, Heisman Trophy winners, or even Oscar winners!

Hey, you never know. Hunger is a powerful influence.

Gov. Susana Martinez signs the capital outlay bill (Senate Bill 1) at St. Luke's Health Care Clinic on the Mesilla Valley Community of Hope campus Wednesday, June 17. Looking on are Tom Church, secretary of the New Mexico Department of Transportation; state Sen. Mary Kay Papen, D-Mesilla Park, who is president pro tem of the state Senate; St. Luke's Executive Director Pamela Angell; state Rep. Bill Gomez, D-Doña Ana; New Mexico Economic Development Secretary Jon Barela; state Sen. Ron Griggs, R-Otero, Doña Ana, Eddy; state Rep. Doreen Gallegos, D-Las Cruces; and state Rep. Andy Nunez, R-Hatch.

The capital outlay package passed by lawmakers in the special totaled $295 million, but the governor line item vetoed $1.1 million of projects her office said didn't have sufficient funds to complete. At press time, the specific items vetoed had not been released.

State Sen. Joe Cervantes, D-Las Cruces, reported in a Facebook post that the capital outlay approved for Doña Ana County also included $1.5 million to completely fund renovations at New Mexico State University's Jett Hall, $99,000 for NMSU's Creative Media Institute to buy new equipment, $100,000 for NMSU's Speech and Hearing Center and $900,000 for the New Mexico Department of Agriculture, which is housed at NMSU.

Other Doña Ana County that had projects in the capital outlay bill included NMSU athletic facilities, Veterans Memorial Park in Las Cruces, Las Cruces police and fire departments, $402,000 for cinema infrastructure, $220,000 for swimming pool expansion in Las Cruces, playground equipment at Young Park, $195,000 for Amador Hotel improvements, more than $250,000 for Doña Ana County Sheriff's Department vehicles and equipment and a variety of road, park, septic tank, waste water and flood control projects around the county.

Dolores Connor, president of the Jardin de los Niños board, said the capital outlay bill also included $50,000 to renovate the kitchen and laundry room at the daycare for homeless and near-homeless children, also on the Community of Hope campus.

State Senate President Pro Tem Mary Kay Papen, D-Mesilla Park, said the half-day special session was able to pass the capital outlay bill quickly with bi-partisan support because lawmakers from both parties “came together with a single purpose” to support the spending measure.

“Dollars are being spent so our economy grows,” Martinez said. “(The capital outlay bill) is an example of what we can accomplish when we put politics aside.”

The capital outlay legislation Martinez signed included $45 million for major, critical highway infrastructure projects, which she said will create jobs in the short-term and lay a stronger foundation for long-term economic growth.

“Far too many of our roads are dangerous, and they are in dire need of repair,” Martinez said. “By signing this legislation, we will

NMSU's 'SkitoSnack' project wins Gates Foundation grant

A New Mexico State University biology professor is among 52 researchers in 19 countries to receive a share of $5.2 million in Grand Challenges Exploration grants funded by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

Immo Hansen, an associate professor in the College of Arts and Sciences, was selected from among 1,800 applicants to receive $100,000 for his project to develop an alternative meal for mosquitoes to meet a critical need for researchers trying to stop the spread of the disease-carrying insect.

"Mosquito-borne diseases like malaria and dengue fever are a serious threat to human health around the world," Hansen said. "During the past decades several mosquito control strategies have been developed that require the release of large numbers of mosquitoes grown in laboratory culture."

Hansen's project called "SkitoSnack -- Replacing Vertebrate Blood in Mosquito Mass Rearing" will provide an alternative to blood needed by researchers to feed and breed large quantities of mosquitoes in the lab so they can be introduced into the wild and impact the mosquito population.

"Sterile Insect Technique, endosymbiotic Wolbachia bacteria, or replacement of field populations with GMO mosquitoes that are refractory for diseases all depend on mosquito mass culture," said Hansen. "Mosquitoes need blood for egg development. Therefore, a source of blood and an efficient feeding system has to be acquired at every mosquito mass-rearing facility."

SkitoSnack consists of serum albumin and another protein that together support egg development in female Aedes aegypti mosquitoes. Hansen will analyze the mosquitoes fed on SkitoSnack versus vertebrate blood to identify the need for any supplements to maximize egg production, and evaluate ways to stabilize the alternative meal and attract the mosquitoes.

Hansen has trademarked the SkitoSnack name. He and his team will also look at commercialization of the product for widespread use.

"We will work closely with NMSU's Arrowhead Center on developing SkitoSnack into a commercial product," Hansen said. "Alternatives to vertebrate blood are urgently needed in mosquito rearing facilities all over the world. This grant will help us to further develop SkitoSnack to help meet that need."

To win the funding,

Hansen demonstrated in a two-page application his idea to break the mold in solving a persistent global health challenge. The Grand Challenges Exploration grant is among four major grants Hansen has received over the last five years.

"Grants like this allow us to test new hypotheses and ideas," Hansen said. "The SkitoSnack project also supports the thesis research for Kristina Gonzales, a Ph.D. student and fellow in the Research Initiative for Scientific Enhancement program in the biology department at NMSU and it will provide the salary for post-doctoral researcher Dr. Anthony Clemmons."

Grand Challenges Exploration is a $100 million initiative to provide grants for scientists around the world with innovative early-stage projects. Phase II grants of $1 million have been awarded to five researchers selected from among earlier Phase I grants.

“Our roads and highways serve as the literal foundation for commerce. When we invest in major highway projects, we are creating jobs and making it easier to develop and grow our economy.”

Funding for road projects was part of the problem that led to a capital outlay bill not being passed during the regular session that ended in mid-March.

Martinez also traveled to Santa Teresa to tout more than $8 million approved for highway infrastructure improvements in and around Santa Teresa’s booming borderplex.

“The capital outlay bill should be a job-creation bill. It should be an infrastructure bill. A construction bill. An economic-driver bill. A bill that puts New Mexicans to work,” Martinez said. “When we invest in infrastructure, we create jobs – lots of them – in every corner of the state. And we achieve critical, lasting objectives. That’s exactly what this capital outlay bill aims to do.”

In total, the bill contains more than $70 million for highways and roads across the state, including local projects.

In addition to prioritizing spending for transportation infrastructure projects, the bill also expands New Mexico’s closing fund by $12.5 million, to a total of $50 million, up from nearly zero when Martinez took office. The bill included funding for the Local Economic Development Act (LEDA) to help recruit new businesses to the state and help those already in New Mexico to expand and grow.

Altogether, Governor Martinez authorized funding for $211 million in severance tax bonds projects, $30 million in general fund projects, and $52.7 million in projects using other state funds.

Nosotros feeds body and soul with benefit concert

By Zak Hansen
Las Cruces Bulletin

There's little question food nourishes the body – any grade-school science student can tell you so – but what feeds the soul?

Anecdotally, it's always been music that soothes even the savage beast, but recent research into the therapeutic benefits of listening to or creating music has shown some major positives – things like increased happiness, decreased stress, reduced depression and increases in feelings of hope, optimism and competence.

Beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday, June 20, Las Cruces will get a chance to do just that – and give the same nourishment to those in the community who need it most – with an evening of dining, drinking, dancing and great live music from a hometown legend when Nosotros takes the stage for Feed the Body & Soul, a benefit concert and fundraiser for Casa de Peregrinos emergency food bank and the educational programs of the Doña Ana Arts Council.

That night, Project Mainstreet – another community organization dedicated to feeding both the bodies and souls

Nosotros takes the stage Saturday, June 20, for Feed the Body & Soul, a benefit concert and fundraiser for Casa de Peregrinos emergency food bank and the educational programs of the Doña Ana Arts Council.

of Las Cruces – will organize a food truck roundup on Main Street featuring favorites from the Farmers' and Craft Market of Las Cruces, and High Desert Brewing Co. will be on-hand to serve up their finest suds. At 7 p.m., guests will head inside for two hours of Flamenco, jazz, salsa and rock music – along with plenty of dancing – as Nosotros takes the Rio Grande Stage. Food trucks and beer sales will continue an hour after the show, too, closing up shop at 10 p.m.

The idea for this dual fundraising event came up by chance, when two years ago, Casa de Peregrinos Executive Director Lorenzo Alba was seated next to Doña Ana Arts Council Executive Director Kathleen Albers at – what else? – a community event held by CFSNM.

Said Alba of their discussed collaboration, “We thought this would be really unique because our organizations have two completely different missions, but we're really trying to bring people together for the support of both organizations.”

Alba isn't wrong. His organization, Casa de Peregrinos, has for more than 30 years provided food services and supplemental groceries to families and individuals experiencing hunger in Las Cruces and Doña Ana County, serving as a “safety net” for those residents in need of a meal, regardless of their circumstances. Since its foundation in 1979, Casa de Peregrinos has provided more than 1 million food distributions, saving untold numbers of those in our community from missing a meal.

Very different from Casa de Peregrinos, but in many ways just as important to the health and happiness of the community, is the work of the Doña Ana Arts Council, which since 1971 has worked within the community to ensure the visual, performing and literary arts stay an integral part of life in Las Cruces and beyond, through arts advocacy along with performances – many on the stage of the famed Rio Grande Theatre – community outreach and educational programs, which will benefit from this special one-night-only concert event.

While Alba acknowledges the differences between the organizations' goals, he's quick to point out the giving nature of the Las Cruces community, despite what it lacks in riches, and thinks this type of event could be the new standard.

“It's a very generous community in Las Cruces, and we are hoping to set a precedent with this kind of event in town, because with the limited resources we have here, more nonprofits could benefit from doing this kind of thing.”

Who better to bring the community better, then, than Nosotros, which began in in 1994 as a Las Cruces guitar trio and has since gone on to become one of the Southwest's hottest Latin music acts, celebrating its 20th anniversary just months ago.

“We stand behind Casa de Peregrinos in their efforts to feed the less fortunate in Las Cruces and Doña Ana County,” said Nosotros founder Randy Sanchez. “It's our honor and privilege to perform at this year's event and we hope to see many donors from the community come out and celebrate with us.

“We believe, as a group, that everyone deserves access to food and it is a necessity and right to feed our people. We also believe that everyone deserves access to art and art education. We would like to thank the Doña Ana Arts Council for their continuing efforts to helping make the arts essential to the City of Las Cruces and Doña Ana County.”

A great cause, indeed, but a great evening on the town as well. As Alba said, “It makes for a really nice night out – grab something to eat, go into the concert, do some dancing, come back out, have a beer and maybe something else to eat, then on home or to your next destination.”

What more could you ask for?

Las Cruces Community Theatre keeps great 'Company'

Review by Mike W. Cook
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

There were at least three separate occasions when William Gilbert gave me chills in "Company," which has six performances remaining at Las Cruces Community Theatre (LCCT). I saw the show opening night, and was completely wowed by Gilbert and the many Las Cruces theatre veterans and newcomers who sang and danced and acted in the Steven Sondheim musical.

Gilbert is making his first appearance on the LCCT stage, to go along with his many very successful performances at UTEP Dinner Theatre and the El Paso Opera – and what a debut. His performance as Bobby, the lead in "Company," was like a golden thread woven throughout the fabric of this amazing production. His part was huge, but he was more than equal to every challenge. There were moments when he stood on the edge of the stage, singing "Someone is Waiting," "Marry Me a Little" or "Being Alive," when he quite literally held the audience in the palm of his hand.

The rest of the cast were right there with him ... Janet Beaty-Payne, wonderfully paired as wife and husband with the immensely talented Chris Rippel, nearly brought the house down with her performance of "Getting Married Today." She also had my favorite line in the play, and one which seemed to define the angst-ridden and ever-undecided Bobby. At one of several scenes built around Bobby's 35th birthday, she tells him, "Blow out the candles, Robert. Make a wish. Want something. Want something."

Margie Brouhard's rendition of "The Ladies Who Lunch" was one of the show's most sparkling highlights. She was paired with Norman Lewis as another of the five married couples in "Company." I haven't seen Lewis on stage before, but I thought he, too, was wonderful. Their lunch scene was classic, and his performances with the other "husbands" – Rippel, Matthew Esqueda, Mario Ragazzone and Cameron Lang – were terrific.

Ragazzone and Lang are both

New Mexico State University theatre arts students, and had great scenes in this show. Lang and Autumn Gieb were paired as husband and wife in one of my favorite scenes, as they tempted Bobby to smoke pot. Gieb also was the choirmaster in another great scene.

Ragazzone was "married" to (and divorced from) Vanessa Dabovich in some very funny "balcony scenes." The two complimented each other perfectly. Dabovich is a local radio personality who does as well on stage as she does on air.

I've seen Esqueda in many performances in Las Cruces and El Paso, and he never disappoints. He and "wife" Jamie Smith joined Gilbert in performing "Sorry – Grateful," which helped get the show off to a terrific start. Jamie is another NMSU theatre arts student who can now add a great performance at LCCT to her many successes on NMSU stages.

And let's not forget Bobby's three girlfriends, played by Aylin White, Alyssa Gose and Miranda Lukens. With her talent and stage presence as a singer and actor, you would never believe that Gose just graduated from high school (Go, Bulldawgs!). She will study musical theatre at Colorado Mesa University this fall – a gain for Grand Junction but a loss for Las Cruces. White (theatre arts) and Lukens (dance and musical theatre) are two more NMSU students who brought their gifts of talent and experience to the great benefit of "Company."

Joel Fisk played the waiter, and even without lines to speak, he brought something valuable to the show. Another music and theatre student at NMSU who already has a lot of theatre experience, he has a bright future on Las Cruces stages as an actor and singer.

I knew this would be a great show, not only because it's a Sondheim, but because it was directed by NMSU Theatre Arts Production Coordinator Michael Wise – one of the very best directors (and actors) in Las Cruces and far beyond. His use of colored blocks as almost the only stage props in the show was just one of the many wonderful things he gave "Company."

Wise was ably assisted by stage manager Erica Krauel, music director Christa Fredrickson, scenic designer Bob Diven, costume designer Megan Thompson, lighting designer Chris Lininger and accompanist Barry Shaw. And, in addition to her role on stage, Beatty-Payne was the show's choreographer. She deserves congratulations here as well, because the dancing was another terrific part of the show.

"Company" continues at Las Cruces Community Theatre, 313 N. Main St., at 8 p.m. Fridays Saturdays, June 19-20 and 26-27, and 2 p.m. Sundays, June 21 and 28. Tickets are $14 for adults; $13 for students, senior citizens and members of the military; $10 for children ages six and under; and $11 per seat for groups of 10 or more. You can make reservations at www.lcctnm.org or by calling 523-1200. You can also get tickets at the door, but I would recommend reservations – the remaining shows are a sure bet to sell out.

'The Salt of the Earth' a stunning and startling documentary

Review by Jeff Berg
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Not to be confused with "Salt of the Earth," the only banned movie ever shot in New Mexico, the extraordinary documentary "The Salt of the Earth" is nearly as good as that 1950s film.

Sebastião Salgado is the subject of this documentary, which opens with some amazing footage of thousands of men climbing in and out of giant pit. I immediately thought that this was some sort of mine where the workers were held in servitude for some large horrible corporation, ala "Sixteen Tons" as Tennessee Ernie Ford sang years ago.

Alas it is not. Rather, it is the Serra Pelada mine, located in Brazil, and every one of the men in the hole, perhaps as many as 50,000, are "slaves to the cause of getting rich." One can tell immediately that they won't be as they climb up and down the steep walls, hoping the sack on their back will hold the gold they so ardently seek.

Salgado says while watching this scenario, "Every hair on my body stood on edge. The pyramids, Babel, the history of mankind unfolded. I had traveled to the dawn of time."

The film is co-directed by Wim Wenders ("Paris, Texas") and Salgado's son, Juliano Ribeiro. They follow Salgado over the years on what amounts to two separate journeys – an inner one, which was riveting, and the outer one, which has taken him around the globe and allowed him to shot hundreds, if not thousands, of strong, stunning and startling images of people and places.

He spends time with the Yali tribe of Papua New Guinea, near an ice floe filled with fat walruses and then to Amazonia, where he photographs the "lost" Zo'e people in their natural surroundings.

After being raised on a huge ranch in Brazil, Salgado's first career choice, oddly, was that of an economist. However, that changed when he met his strongest supporter, his wife, Leila.

They traveled to France in 1969, just in time to get involved in the student unrest of the times. Leila had purchased a camera, and Salgado's first photo is of her. After an ill-fated attempt in the world of commercial photography, Salgado embarked on around-the-world adventures, leaving Leila behind to care for their son.

However, about two-thirds of the way through the film, after photographing human tragedy, suffering and atrocities, something is revealed to him.

"We humans are a terrible animal; we are extremely violent," he says. "Our history is a history of war; it's an endless story. We should see these images to see how terrible our species is."

He covers the horrific genocidal murders in the Congo and Rwanda in the 1990s, but it is during this time he questions himself and his work.

"My soul was sick," he recalls in the film. "I no longer believed in anything, in any salvation for the human species." He returns to the family property in Brazil to reevaluate his life.

Upon his return, he is aghast at what has taken place since he left Brazil. Deforestation has its surge, ruining the land in the process. Instead of continuing with his photo work, he takes a sabbatical from that and, with Leila, starts the Instituto Terra at the ranch, taking the lead in a plan to reforest the area. To date, more than 2 million seedlings have been planted in a sincere and honest attempt at restoration. He finds this new project invigorating.

The film is disheartening at times, as one can witness the horror of war and greed and the complete insanity of "human" beings, but this is only a caution, not a note to stay away from this beautiful black and white film.

Rather, I strongly recommend this film to anyone who thinks they cannot change their own life – to see things that they should see but have not.

Donated house brings a family home

A donated house will soon become a family's new home. Volunteers, donors, staff and partner families plan to gather at noon Tuesday, June 30, at 2091 Chateau Drive, for a dedication and light snacks to officially welcome Habitat for Humanity's newest family.

The house was donated by an individual who believed in Habitat's mission in the hopes that a new family would be able to create its own memories. Since its inception in 1987, Mesilla Valley Habitat for Humanity had never received a donation of an entire house. Now one more family - Jesus Barncastle, Renee De La O and their 3-year-old daughter, Kara - will realize the dream of homeownership, due largely to one family's generosity.

The home, donated September 2014, was restored within the last few months, Mesilla Valley Habitat for Humanity Executive Director Maria Vasquez said. Volunteers gave their time and energy to renovate the home. Mesilla Valley Habitat for Humanity made minor cosmetic changes to model the houses that Habitat builds during its construction season.

Though the house has a different floor plan, the family was able to personalize lighting fixtures, tile, carpet and other selections, just like every other partner family. Like other participants, this family also completed sweat-equity hours on their home and the homes of others, and will pay a zero-interest mortgage on the home.

"To have a house donated is the best thing that could happen to Habitat," Vasquez said. "Having a house already built helps us in so many ways. It keeps the cost of building down, and we are able to recycle items being replaced by taking them to the Re-Store, which then get sold and produce funds for another family's home."

Anyone interested in donating property should contact the Habitat office at 525-0475. Donations of homes are tax deductible.

"Donating a house helps you, a local family, and your community which furthers Habitat's mission of providing decent, affordable housing," Vasquez said.

Fire up Father's Day with savory ribs

It's Father's Day season – time to fire up the grill and treat Dad to succulent, finger-lickin', nose drippin' grilled ribs. Serve the racks with a chilled salad – I recommend green chile potato or a spicy three bean. An added perk? Have his favorite beer on ice and, more importantly, within easy reach. It's a sure bet that you'll win Dad's heart (and tummy) over on this special day.

Whisky "Wrapped" Baby Back Pork Ribs (Serves 4)

2 (2-pound) slabs baby back pork ribs
Coarsely ground black pepper
Salt
1 tablespoon ground red chile pepper
1 1/4 tablespoons vegetable oil
1/2 cup minced onion
1 1/2 cups water
1/2 cup tomato paste
1/2 cup white vinegar
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 1/2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
1 1/4 teaspoons liquid smoke flavoring
2 teaspoons whiskey
2 teaspoons garlic powder
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1 tablespoon dark molasses
2 teaspoons ground red chile pepper

Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Cut each full rack of ribs in half, for 4 half racks. Sprinkle salt and pepper (more pepper than salt) and 1 tablespoon ground chile pepper over meat. Wrap each half rack in aluminum foil. Bake for 2 1/2 hours.

Meanwhile, heat oil in a medium saucepan over medium heat. Cook and stir the onions in oil for 5 minutes. Stir in water, tomato paste, vinegar, brown sugar, honey, and Worcestershire sauce. Season with 2 teaspoons salt, 1/4 teaspoon black pepper, liquid smoke, whiskey, garlic powder, paprika, onion powder, dark molasses and 1/2 tablespoon ground chile pepper. Bring mixture to a boil, then reduce heat. Simmer for 1 1/4 hours, uncovered, or until sauce thickens. Remove from heat, and set sauce aside.

Preheat an outdoor grill for high heat. Remove the ribs from the oven, and let stand 10 minutes. Remove the racks from the foil, and place on the grill. Grill the ribs for 3 to 4 minutes on each side. Brush sauce on the rib while they're grilling, just before you serve them (adding it too early will burn it). (Adapted from allrecipes.com)

Aloha! Sweet Heat Baby Back Ribs (Serves 4)

3 baby back rib racks
1/3 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
1/4 cup low-sodium teriyaki sauce (I use Kikkoman's)
1/4 cup ketchup
1/4 teaspoon habanero powder
1 garlic clove, minced
1 tablespoon brown sugar well-packed
1 tablespoon fresh ginger, minced

In a large Dutch oven, combine ribs and cold water to cover. Bring to a boil over med-high heat. Cover, remove from heat, and let stand for 30 minutes.

In a small saucepan, combine pineapple juice, teriyaki sauce, ketchup, 1/4 teaspoon habanero powder, garlic, and brown sugar.

Bring to a boil, stirring, over med-high heat. When it starts to boil, reduce heat to low, and simmer for 10 minutes. Stir in ginger. Remove from heat, and let cool.

Heat gas grill to medium. Drain ribs. Place on grill rack. Brush with half of the sauce.

Grill 6 inches from heat, covered, for 5 to 7 minutes per side, carefully watching so they don't burn. Brush with remaining sauce. Grill covered until browned, about 3 to 5 minutes per side. Remaining sauce can be refrigerated or serve it with the grilled ribs as a dipping sauce.

Sweet 'n Smoky Spiced Ribs (Serves 4)

For the sauce:

2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup finely chopped yellow onion
2 teaspoons finely minced garlic
1 1/4 cups apricot preserves
1 cup ketchup
1/3 cup honey
1/4 cup rice vinegar
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon jalapeño jam
1 tablespoon finely chopped chipotles in adobo plus 1 tablespoon adobo sauce from the can 1 tablespoon yellow mustard

Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper

Heat oil in a medium saucepan over medium heat until shimmering. Add onion and cook until softened, about 5 minutes. Add garlic and cook until fragrant, about 30 seconds.

Add apricot preserves, ketchup, honey, vinegar, soy sauce, Worcestershire sauce, jalapeño jam, chipotles, adobo sauce, and mustard and stir to combine. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat to low and simmer, stirring occasionally, until sauce has thickened slightly, about 20 minutes.

Puree sauce with an immersion blender, or transfer sauce to the jar of a regular blender, and process until smooth. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Let cool to room temperature, transfer to a jar or container, and refrigerate until ready to use; sauce can be made in advance and refrigerated for up to 2 weeks.

For the rub:

1/3 cup paprika
1/4 cup dark brown sugar
2 tablespoons kosher salt
1 tablespoon freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon chile powder
1 tablespoon garlic powder

1 tablespoon onion powder
2 teaspoons cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon mustard powder
Mix together rub ingredients in a small bowl and set aside.

For the ribs:

2 racks St. Louis-cut spare ribs
2 cups apple juice in a clean spray bottle
2 fist-sized chunks of light smoking wood, such as apple or cherry wood

Remove membrane from back of each rack of ribs and trim meat of excess fat. Generously season ribs all over with rub mixture.

Fire up grill (or smoker) to 225 degrees, adding chunks of smoking wood when at temperature. When the wood is ignited and producing smoke, place the ribs in smoker or grill, meaty side up, and smoke until the ribs have turned a deep mahogany color, 2-3 hours. Spray ribs with apple juice and continue smoking, spraying the ribs with apple juice every 45-60 minutes, until they bend slightly when lifted from one end, about 2-3 hours longer; during the last 30 minutes of cooking, brush top of each rack with sauce. Remove from smoker, slice, and serve. (Adapted from seriouseats.com)

How to put the brakes on pet car sickness

By Kim Salerno
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

With summer travel right around the corner, many of us plan on hitting the road with our pooches for a little summer fun. However, for some four-legged family members, road trips can mean upset tummies.

Queasiness in the car is not just a human problem. Dogs and puppies do sometimes experience motion sickness on car rides. Unfortunately, car sickness can make any kind of pet travel a distressing ordeal.

Car sickness doesn't have to be a serious or lasting problem for your pet. With the right treatment, it can be mitigated or even stopped altogether.

There are several causes of car sickness in dogs and puppies. The most common include:

- Immature ears. In puppies, the ear structures that regulate balance aren't fully developed, which can cause them to be extra sensitive to motion sickness. Many dogs will outgrow car sickness as they age.
- Stress. If traveling in the car has only led to unpleasant experiences for your dog – to vet exams, for example – he may literally be worried sick about the journey.
- Self-conditioning. If your dog experienced nausea on his first car ride as a puppy, he may associate car rides with illness and expect to get sick in the car.

Car sickness doesn't look like you might expect it to in dogs, and you might not even realize that this is the challenge you're dealing with. Here are some symptoms to look out for:

- Inactivity / lethargy
- Restlessness
- Excessive / repetitive yawning
- Whining / crying
- Hyper-salivation (drooling)
- Vomiting

If your dog is suffering from car sickness, symptoms will typically disappear within a few minutes after the car comes to a stop.

Fortunately, there are a number of different methods available to help prevent and/or treat canine car sickness.

Increase his comfort level

- Turn your dog so that he faces forward. Motion sickness is related to the brain's ability to process movement. The less blurring movement he sees out the window, the better he might feel.
- Keep your dog as close to the front seat as possible (but not in the front seat). The farther back in the car you go, the more you sense motion.
- Opening the windows a crack brings in fresh air, which is soothing, and helps reduce air pressure.
- Avoid feeding your dog for a few hours before a car trip.
- Transport him in a travel crate. A crate will limit his view to the outside, and will help to keep any sickness he may have confined to a small space.
- Keep the temperature low. Heat, humidity and stuffiness can exacerbate car sickness.

- Distract him. Toys, soothing music, or just hearing you speak may help calm and distract a high-strung dog.
- Take frequent breaks. Getting out for fresh air or to stretch his legs can help him feel better periodically.
- Exercise before your car ride.

Reconditioning

For dogs who have negative associations with riding in cars, reconditioning could be the answer. Reconditioning does take time and patience, but it really can help relax your dog.

- Drive in a different vehicle. Your dog might associate a specific vehicle with unpleasant memories.
- Take short car trips to

A cooling herb for horses

I use peppermint and spearmint for my horses and for myself almost daily now that the weather is heating up. The cooling properties of mint are active internally in iced mint teas and externally in sprays and rinses.

Peppermint relaxes the muscles of the digestive tract and stimulates bile production so it is a great choice for indigestion, flatulence, colic and nausea. The volatile oils in peppermint contain menthol, so it also can be a profound pain reliever and decongestant. Peppermint leaves are used in infusions (teas) and can be made into a tincture, used in liniments, vaporizers or infused into oils like olive or safflower oil. Peppermint can stimulate the liver and the uterus, so it is contraindicated for pregnancy. It is too strong for babies of any species. In the very young, it can cause respiratory distress. Spearmint is milder and a better choice – in moderation – for the youngsters.

Essential oil of peppermint is very cooling. It can be used in a spray bottle – one pint of water with 20 drops of oil – for a cooling skin spray in the summer. Be sure to test a small spot first for any reactions. I use this cooling spray a lot at horse shows, during lessons and while mucking. The spray is useful for people and horses alike.

The scent or flavor of peppermint will antidote, or nullify, homeopathic medicines, so wait an hour before or after its use to dose the medicine.

Mice and spiders are repelled by the scent of peppermint, so I place the strong mint candies Altoids throughout my feed room. They are non-toxic to the horses, so if they get into the pellets or bran, no one is harmed. I make a very strong spray for the tack room with peppermint oil in water with Dr. Bronners liquid soap. I have sprayed full strength essential oil of peppermint around the engines of parked vehicles to repel pack rats, who like to chew wiring.

Peppermint tea aids in the relief of all digestive disorders and is a pain reliever internally and externally. Peppermint essential oil added to carrier oils such as sesame or olive oil can be very helpful for massage. It also has protective properties for the cells of those undergoing radiation treatments.

Spearmint is especially good for flatu-lence, given as an infusion or "tea." Its mild properties make it useable by young ones of most species. Essential oil of spearmint has gentle antifungal properties. I have used this oil on my own battered toe nails and on things like "seedy toe" in horses' hooves.

It will also antidote homeopathic remedies and flower essences. This just means that you want to use strong scents and flavors long before or well after a dose of a homeopathic remedy or use of a flower essence or combination, like Rescue Remedy.

Growing a pot of mint on the porch or dedicating part of the garden to mint can provide comfort and medicine for everyone.

Rick Hahn — Dad of Thor, King of Chips

By Elaine Stachera
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Rick Hahn likes animals so much that there are about 800 dogs and cats in Doña Ana County who are far safer, thanks to Hahn's efforts. As of Saturday, June 13, Hahn has been the chief organizer behind five successful, low-cost microchip events in Las Cruces.

Hahn became involved with local animal issues by accident. While he was outside working on his car one day, a young lady walked by with a terrier pup who had an injured back leg. Hahn struck up a conversation and found out that the young lady's "friend" had kicked and slammed the little dog against some furniture, and now both she and the pup were homeless.

Hahn took the dog — now named Thor — to the vet, the "friend" was arrested and the story hit the news. Before he knew it, a local news station was at Hahn's door and people stopped him on the street to ask if he was "Thor's dad."

Shortly after, Hahn said, "pretty much the entire board of DACHS" (the Doña Ana County Humane Society) came to his door, and Hahn became an animal advocate.

Currently, microchipping is Hahn's pet project. Hahn said one in three animals will get lost in its lifetime. Without a form of identification, there is a 10 percent chance a lost animal will make it home. If there is a microchip in the animal, the odds go up to 90 percent.

Both city and county animal control officers carry chip scanners and can access the chip database while out in the field. You may or may not receive a citation, but if a microchipped animal is found, he doesn't go to the shelter but instead he comes right to your home, and you avoid paying the impound fee to get your animal back.

Chipping became Hahn's focus while he was volunteering at the Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley (ASCMV), taking photographs of intake animals. He says well-cared-for little dogs wearing cute little sweaters and rhinestone collars would be places your dog enjoys. This will replace negative associations with positive ones.

- Gradually acclimate your dog to the car. Start by sitting with your dog in the car while the engine is off each day for a few days. When he seems comfortable, let it idle. Once he is used to that, drive slowly around the block. Gradually progress to longer and longer trips until your dog seems comfortable driving anywhere.
- Offer your dog treats or offer him a special toy that's just for car rides. This will make the car a fun and rewarding place to be.

Medication

While motion sickness can be helped in natural ways for some dogs, there are cases in which medications is the only option. There are both over-the-counter and prescription medications available, including:

- Anti-nausea drugs: reduce nausea and vomiting.
- Antihistamines: lessen motion sickness, reduce drooling, and calm nerves.
- Phenothiazine: reduces vomiting and helps sedate the dog.

Always discuss any medications you plan to give your pet with your veterinarian to ensure that your dog is healthy enough to take them, will be given the correct dosage, and won't suffer any adverse effects.

Holistic approach

Holistic treatments are another way to go for dog parents. They really can be effective, and are worth trying. Some common holistic choices include:

- Ginger. Ginger is used to treat nausea. Try giving your dog ginger snap cookies or ginger pills at least 30 minutes before travel.
- Peppermint, chamomile and horehound naturally help calm the stomach and nerves of your dog. These are available in pills and teas.
- Massage can help soothe and relax your pet before you travel.

As with other medications, always discuss any holistic remedies you plan to give your pet with your vet to ensure that it's appropriate and the dosage is correct.

In short, with some patience, training, or the right medications or holistic treatments, you and your dog will be able to ride safely and happily together anywhere you need to go.

brought in after being picked up as strays because they had no identification. Clearly, this was someone's beloved pet, but chances were that animal wasn't going home. With chip technology, this does not have to happen anymore, if people just take the time to get it done.

The June 13 event was sponsored by the Coalition for Pets and People, with many other supporting organizations – the ASCMV, Cat's Meow Adoption Center, Better Life Pet Foods, and Jake Sims & Co. Real Estate Services. Volunteers were on hand to get people registered, keep the line moving and take down contact information for people who need to get their furry friends spayed or neutered.

To find out about upcoming microchip, vaccination, spay/neuter and adoption events, check out the Facebook page for Coalition for Pets and People, the HSSNM website, and, of course, keep your eyes on the Las Cruces Bulletin. Hahn said he is always looking for volunteers, especially those who would like to learn how to microchip. For more information, contact Rick Hahn at 636-7686.

The Zero in 7/Coalition for Pets and People created the I Promise pledge. The Promise reads, "In exchange for companionship, loyalty, and love, I promise that every animal I care for will be spayed or neutered, microchipped, vaccinated, and treated humanely. I will never abandon my animals or allow them to run loose. I accept this responsibility for the full natural life of my animals."

The purpose of the Coalition for Pets and People, which includes representatives from organizations in the animal welfare community and animal welfare departments, is to eliminate the killing of healthy or treatable animals at our public shelter by the end of 2018 and to promote humane, responsible pet ownership.

The Coalition for Pets and People was formed for the purpose of transforming the Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley to a no-kill shelter within seven years.

SALLY

Meet Sally, an out-going, sweet little girl who loves to go on walks and play in the sprinklers. Sally might be small in stature, but don't let those little legs fool you – she definitely has some wheels on her. When she's not kickin' up dust, Sally loves to cuddle up next to you for a good ear rub, and belly scratch. Please help her find her forever home today.

Sally has been at the Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley, 8551 Bataan Memorial West, for approximately five months. For more information, call the shelter at 382-0018.

APA Adoption Events in June

ACTion Programs for Animals (APA) will offer free adoptions noon to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 20, at its adoption center, to celebrate the location's one-year anniversary.

From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Sunday, June 28, the group will join Your Pet Space and others at the old Dickerson's Barn, 3920 W. Picacho Ave., for a Pet Adoption and Wellness Fair.

Due to the group's Mulligan Fore Mutts golf tournament on Saturday, June 27, at the Picacho Hills Country Club, the adoption center will be closed that day.

APA rescues cats, kittens, dogs and puppies from the municipal animal shelter and, using foster homes and the Furrever Home Adoption and Education Center, works to find these animals new homes. By adopting from APA, you help the group rescue more animals from the shelter. APA's regular adoption fees are $50 for all animals, and the animals are spayed or neutered, vaccinated, microchipped and have routine tests done.

The APA Furrever Home Center, 800 W. Picacho Ave., is open noon to 5 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday and most Saturdays, and is available by appointment as well.

For more information, visit www.actionprogramsforanimals.org or www.facebook.com/APA-LasCruces, or contact the adoption center at 571-4654 or leave a text or voicemail at the info line, 644-0505.

Dog training and daycare

An intermediate dog training class will be held 9 a.m. Sunday, June 28 at AJs Canine Academy, 2735 Desert Wind Way, two miles east off of the Doña Ana exit.

Grumpy Dog Daycare, where dogs are taught to socialize under strict, loving supervision, is also available from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays.

For more information, call 635-9888.

Seniors Cat Adoptions

Senior citizens are special at the Cat's Meow Adoption Center, 2211 N. Mesquite St., the only shelter in southern New Mexico devoted only to felines. Come by and adopt your purrfect senior kitty at no cost to you. The center is a no-kill facility, and all sweet companions have been vaccinated, sprayed or neutered. The center is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday.

For more information, call 386-6938 or visit www.thecatmeowlascruces.com.

Shelter asks for donations

Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley is in need of dog crates and treats as well as collars, leashes, towels and igloos.

Donations can be dropped off from noon to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and noon to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. For more information, call 382-0018.

Foster homes needed for pets

Fostering can be a rewarding way to enjoy the companionship a pet provides without having the commitment that goes along with it.

For more information, call Safe Haven Animal Sanctuary at 527-4544.
