Five eyed to lead NMSU

Carruthers among president finalists

By Todd G. Dickson
Las Cruces Bulletin

In response to the desire for greater continuity at the helm of New Mexico State University, regents accepted its search committee recommendations of five finalists that includes Garrey Carruthers, former New Mexico governor and current NMSU College of Business dean.

Carruthers is a graduate of NMSU, where he also began his teaching career in 1968. He has been the business college dean since 2003 and served as vice president for economic development. Beginning in 2009, he has been the director of the Pete V. Domenici Institute for Public Policy. His departures from NMSU have been to serve as assistant secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior during the Reagan administration and as governor of New Mexico. He also was co-founder, president and chief executive officer of Cimarron Health Plan, a state-wide managed care company that sold in 2004 to a national corporation.

Carruthers isn't the only finalist who has familiarity with NMSU.

Daniel Howard spent 20 years at NMSU as an assistant professor of biology and eventually as Regents Professor of Biology, head of the Department of Biology and interim associate dean for research in the College of Arts and Sciences before leaving five years ago for the University of Colorado-Denver to be its dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

There is a Hispanic woman among the finalists – Elsa Murano, former president of Texas A&M University. Murano was the first woman president of Texas A&M and endeavored to create greater diversity in university administration.

The other finalists are also former university presidents – David Ashley of the University of Nevada-Las Vegas and Guy Bailey of Texas Tech.

Larry Lujan, chair of the NMSU search committee, said the opening attracted 57 nominations, which regents Chairman Mike Cheney said was more than the County joins city in giving nod to Akela Flats proposal

Joining with the City of Las Cruces' support of an Indian casino west of the city, the Doña Ana County Commission passed a resolution Tuesday, April 9, supporting the Fort Sill Apache's plans for its land at Akela Flats, outside of Deming.

"I am pleased that the Doña Ana County Board of Commissioners recognizes our rights as a sovereign nation and supports our return to New Mexico," said Fort Sill Apache Tribal Chairman Jeff Haozous. "As we continue to fight to regain the rights that are naturally and historically ours, the passing of

Casualty adds emotion to 573rd homecoming

After 9 months in Afghanistan 125 soldiers return to WSMR

By Todd G. Dickson
Las Cruces Bulletin

When soldiers return from deployments, there is always heightened emotion, but there was extra anxiety and gratitude for those gathered in a gym Monday, April 8, at White Sands Missile Range (WSMR) as they waited for the return of 125 soldiers of the 573rd Maintenance Co.

Only a few weeks before the end of their deployment in Afghanistan, the life of Sgt. Tristan Wade, 23, was taken when enemy forces attacked his unit with an improvised explosive device.

News like that makes it harder for a spouse such as Robin Davis whose husband, Spc. Benjamin, was on his first deployment.

"It's been a long and emotional See Homecoming on page A12

Domenici Forum talks sequester April 18

Expert will consider security impacts

Gary Schmitt, of the American Enterprise Institute, will take part in New Mexico State University's spring 2013 Domenici Forum at 1 p.m. Thursday, April 18, at KRWG-TV studios, inside Milton Hall, on the NMSU campus.

Schmitt will discuss sequestration and its potential impact on U.S. strategic defense initiatives. He is a resident scholar and co-director of the Marilyn Ware Center for Security Studies and is the director of the program on American citizenship at the American Enterprise Institute.

Schmitt is a former staff director of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence. He was also executive director of the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board during Ronald Reagan's second term.

Schmitt's security work focuses on longer-term strategic issues that will impact America's security at home and its ability to lead abroad, while his work in the area of citizenship focuses on challenges to maintaining and sustaining a strong civic culture.

Garrey Carruthers, dean of NMSU's College of Business and director of the Domenici Institute, will host the forum, which is free and open to the public.

A panel of students will have an opportunity to pose questions to the speaker.

The forum will be taped for broadcast and those attending should arrive on campus by 12:45 p.m. and be seated in the KRWG-TV studio, in Milton Hall, by 12:55 p.m. Taping will begin promptly at 1 p.m.

The Domenici Institute Forum is an extension of the university's yearly Domenici Public Policy Conference. Its goal is to engage the public and encourage them to discuss and take part in issues of public interest, specifically when it comes to important policy matters.

Visit <http://domenici.nmsu.edu> for event registration and a guide to parking on campus. Registration can also be made by phone at 646-2066.

GENERAL ENGINEERING

The job market for qualified engineering professionals has entered a new age. Regardless of industry trends and forecasts, one thing remains certain – engineers are an essential component to developing new ideas, and furthering the many fields of engineering. From mechanical engineering to environmental engineering, to civil engineering, there is opportunity for graduates to put their professional practice where passion lies. If a student has thought about the field of engineering or any of its many subfields as a career, an associate degree can be a good starting point to pursue higher education.

The General Engineering degree is designed to provide students a set of courses that will articulate into the four-year engineering programs at the New Mexico State University, University of New Mexico, and New Mexico Tech.

BY RICHARD COLTHARP

Anticipation is building for Trout's championship bout

Do we know what we have in our local star?

Elvis Presley's 1969 album "The Memphis Record" – probably his best outside of the Sun Sessions – opens with a song by the sadly underrated writer Percy Mayfield.

The song is "Stranger in My Own Hometown" and talks about someone who's not accepted in the very city where he grew to greatness.

And though it's one of Elvis' better songs, it feels a tad disingenuous because I can't imagine the King ever getting booed in Memphis, dead or alive.

It is fairly common, though, for a hometown not to fully appreciate what it has.

I think Las Cruces is experiencing a little bit of that with our world boxing champ, Austin "No Doubt" Trout.

In San Antonio, Texas, April 20, Trout, the WBA light middleweight champ, will fight Canelo Alvarez, the WBC light middleweight champ, in a unifying bout.

The fight will be televised on Showtime, and in front of a big crowd in San Antonio's Alamodome.

According to blogger Scott Christ at www.badlefthook.com, more than 31,000 tickets have been sold already. Christ said that should make it the biggest crowd to watch a pro boxing match this year.

It certainly doesn't hurt that Alvarez has a huge following among Mexicans and Mexican-Americans. Having the fight in San Antonio makes it relatively accessible for fans of both fighters to make the trip. Alvarez is 41-0 with 30 knockouts. Trout is 26-0 with 14 knockouts.

In another bit of intrigue, Alvarez is claiming this as a bit of a revenge bout, as Trout defeated Alvarez's brother, Rigoberto, in 2011.

After Trout defeated Miguel Cotto in December 2012 in Madison Square Garden, Las Cruces began to understand more what kind of fighter we have in Trout.

Trout has always been amazingly generous with his time here in Las Cruces. Every single charity fundraiser I've attended in 2013, Trout has been there. And I'm sure he's been at several others I've missed.

We've tried to help readers get to know Trout through the column he has written for us in our sports section (page A15) – and will continue to write – leading up to his title fight.

Our city's awareness and appreciation of Trout is growing, but if Trout achieved a similar level of success in the NBA or the NFL, I think we would have already erected a statue in his honor.

Part of the problem is boxing itself.

With a seemingly endless number of boxing councils and associations, and an infinite number of weight classes, it's difficult for the average fan to follow the sport. Not to mention the fans who have foregone boxing for mixed martial arts events like the Ultimate Fighting Championship, or even for women's boxing, which has soared in popularity in the past decade or so.

For generations, boxing and horse racing stood alongside Major League Baseball as America's sport of choice. Boxers like Joe Louis, Sugar Ray Robinson, Rocky Marciano and Floyd Patterson were on par with Babe Ruth and Joe DiMaggio.

Boxing may have hit its peak in the 1960s and '70s when Muhammad Ali (aka Cassius Clay) "shook up the world" multiple times in dramatic heavyweight fights.

In the 1980s, the foursome of Roberto Duran, Marvin Hagler, Thomas Hearns and Sugar Ray Leonard dazzled fight fans from the welterweight and middleweight classes.

In the past 30 years, however, only periodically have boxers come along with enough skill and charisma to capture the attention of the general public – Oscar de la Hoya, Roy Jones Jr. and Johnny Tapia come to mind.

In our own "No Doubt" Trout, we might just have another one. No matter the outcome on April 20, let's make sure we don't make him feel like a stranger in his own hometown.

End unconscionable VA benefits backlog

The backlog of claims by veterans of the Iraq and Afghanistan wars is huge and getting bigger and longer. This is unconscionable.

We have not been a model of support for our volunteer service personnel. Think of soldiers buying their own protective gear such as armored vests, as well as jury-rigging protective armor for their vehicles.

But this is different, we've had the entire duration of these wars to prepare to support the homecoming service members. If we can't shorten the wait time to a reasonable length, and soon, something radical must be done.

How about taking a cue from the Vietnam War and the Gulf War?

As I understand it, in each case an administrative decision was made. For Vietnam, anyone who had been in the country is considered to have been exposed and affected by Agent Orange. In the latter case, it was the Gulf War syndrome.

Let's decide that anyone who has not had his case adjudicated in a reasonable time, such as six months or less, starts receiving requested benefits on a temporary basis until the case is adjudicated.

If the decision is favorable, no harm but a lot of good done. If the decision is unfavorable, support could be denied in a reasonable way.

Equal rights for all individuals supported

Hello. My name is Davina Jones and I am a student at New Mexico State University. I was very pleased when I came across your article on gay marriage and to see Santa Fe Mayor David Cross putting effort into sponsoring an official resolution to recognize same sex marriages as legal in New Mexico, while encouraging county clerks to issue licenses.

As a social worker, I fight for human rights and believe in social justice. The topic of gay marriage has been a controversial debate for some time. I hope to see sooner, rather than later, our Supreme Court and the rest of the world will be open to accepting all human beings as individuals with equal rights in society.

New Mexico, along with a handful of other states are there, now we just need the rest of society to be as accepting and understanding.

Ware will come back from injury

Carruthers would be a good choice for NMSU president

David McCollum
Life is Good in Las Cruces

Anyone playing sports knows there is always the chance of injury, and the gruesome compound leg fracture – shown vividly on national television – to Louisville basketball player Kevin Ware was thought by some to be a career-ending event. However, we now know that the injury is likely to be less serious than a severe knee or ankle injury. The injury has received much international attention because it happened live on a national stage.

My first thought after Ware's injury was that it was very similar to the injury suffered by New Mexico State University volleyball player, Stephanie Ziegler, in a match at Louisiana State University. After having immediate surgery and spending a couple of weeks in a Baton Rouge hospital, the high-flying Aggie spent a year rehabbing the injury, and returned to the team, playing terrifically throughout the season.

I believe we will see the same grit and determination from Kevin Ware as we have seen from our own Stephanie Ziegler, and he, like Stephanie, will be back on the court for next season

Believer it or not

My granddad used to tell me to never believe anything that anyone tells you and only half of what you see. This wisdom has never been more true than it is today, especially with sound bites, the Internet and social media where anyone can make up anything, and someone else will believe it's true.

Hopefully, we can maintain our ability to be skeptical without becoming cynical.

Two grand dames

Two famous ladies passed away this past week – the "Iron Lady" Margaret Thatcher, and actress-singer Annette Funicello. Both ladies leave important legacies.

Thatcher brought England from the brink of economic collapse as she unwaveringly supported the concepts of capitalism and free enterprise. As a result, England's economy has stabilized, much to the chagrin of those who still believe in socialism.

Funicello was known by most every young man in America in the 1950s as their favorite "Mouseketeer" in Disney's original Mickey Mouse Club. She was positioned by Disney as the ideal teenager and later starred in a series of "beach" movies with Frankie Avalon. Her age was listed as 70. This must have been a typo. There is no way Annette could be that old.

How dry we are

Looks like another tough year for farmers in southern New Mexico. Reports from New Mexico water specialists are advising us that 2013 could possibly be the driest year of the past century. The modest snowfall this past winter has been evaporating from the mountains of northern New Mexico and southern Colorado before it could melt and feed into upstream rivers.

Elephant Butte Reservoir is currently at less than five percent of capacity. Consequently, chile and pecan farmers in southern New Mexico's Elephant Butte Irrigation District are likely to be provided with less than 10 percent of their normal irrigation allotment.

Candidates selected

Former New Mexico governor and New Mexico State University's College of Business dean Garrey Carruthers has been announced as a finalist to possibly become the next president of NMSU.

While the other four candidates have exceptional qualifications, my suggestion is that Garrey would be the perfect choice. He is a New Mexican who understands the academic needs of our university. He's a visionary leader with excellent communications skills. Plus, he already knows his way around Santa Fe.

There is a good precedent for a former governor successfully taking over the reins of a major university. Former Oklahoma governor David Boren has been effective during his 19-year term as president of the University of Oklahoma.

Pomp and circumstance

2013 graduation dates are set for Las Cruces, Oñate and Mayfield high schools. All three commencement ceremonies will be Saturday, May 18, at the Pan American Center at NMSU. Las Cruces will be at 9 a.m., Oñate is scheduled for 1 p.m., and Mayfield ceremonies will end the day starting at 5 p.m. The first class to graduate from Centennial High School will be in May 2014.

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

Fire breathing dragon

It was a picture that stopped you in your tracks; a magnificent sorrel stallion with nostrils flared, flames reflecting in his wild eyes, mane flying aloft and a ball of fire roaring at the tip of his teeth. If ever there was a dragon horse snorting fire, this would be it.

This image was the brain-searing mental picture I formed as CB spun me his tale.

It seems CB had made his regular morning visit over to his neighbor's house. The visit was part of their routine. They helped each other do their chores, then had a coffee and discussed the future of Kansas. Whether there was a Democrat west of Lawrence? Should Kansas annex the panhandle of Oklahoma before Texas does? Is there any point in moving the Three Points monument of KS, CO and NE (a mailbox and four livestock panels) to its real location 42 feet to the southeast?

CB and Dale, his neighbor, walked out to the corrals and during their chores they found a dead chicken in the henhouse. Dale was stove-up so CB crouched down and drug it out with a wire.

"Feed it to the dogs," CB said.

"Should I pluck her first?" Dale asked.

They discussed the benefits of feathered or featherless dog food. CB suggested featherless because he had once seen a Pekingese choke on a duck and nearly die.

Neither was want to pluck her but were worried by the Pekingese duck tale.

"We'll just singe them off," Dale said.

They tossed the sacrificial chicken into the stud corral and using a wad of paper feed sacks and kindling, set the carcass afire and went on with their chores.

They were stopped by a ruckus of other chicken squawkin' and tawkin'. They hurried back around the barn and saw the stud runnin' through the flock, scatterin' them sideways. When he turned to look back, he had a big ball of fire in his mouth!

CB and Dale ran toward the scene of the arson. The ball of fire fell out. They could see his whiskers were singed as well as his eyelashes. He snorted and a chicken foot dropped to the ground. Our two wise men looked at each other.

"Horses don't eat meat," CB said.

"Of course they don't," said the second wise man.

At this, the fire breathing dragon dropped his head and ate the foot.

Imagine if we all supported a sustainable future

Alternative energy sources can spur economic development

By Diedre Price
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Imagine – it's 2018.

In the past five years, mining of natural gas in North Dakota and elsewhere has caused so much exhaust, chemical pollution and water contamination that fewer people are willing to mine it.

In addition, coal and nuclear energy have caused such large amounts of air pollution and water damage that there has been a moratorium on coal mining and the building of nuclear plants. Also, in the Southwest, due to persistent drought, there has been a moratorium on planting any crops using large amounts of water.

In 2015, local farmers agreed to share the cost of an acequia retrofit to create a drip system in their fields and in 2016 all new planting began with an underground irrigation system. This has saved huge amounts of water lost through evaporation since crops are now irrigated in a more efficient manner.

All of these environmental changes have caused a boom in renewable energy sources and water reuse, and Las Cruces is experiencing an environmental revolution.

First, in areas both south and north of the city, solar farms are powering 75 percent of our city's homes. These farms were constructed using local residents and the solar panels and mirrors were manufactured in our own local solar manufacturing plant. This state-of-the-art plant on the West Mesa keeps 100 full-time workers busy producing both highly efficient thin film solar panels and solar-string windows. The salaries of these workers average $49,000 per year. These solar-string windows are solar collectors built right into already efficient windows and are the plant's top sellers throughout our country and North and South America.

The rest of our homes are powered by two waste-to-energy plants using crop, dairy and solid waste that are located near the dairies. These two plants were built using 100 construction workers and now each plant employs a large staff to keep the plants managed and maintained.

The construction workers building these plants made an average of $32 per hour and the operational staff averages a salary of $40,000. Odor from the dairies has become a thing of the past and the plants use its waste to provide heating, electricity and biofuels for diesel cars and trucks. An additional tank for biofuels has been added to all of the gas stations near La Mesa and Anthony, N.M., since this fuel was produced in one of the waste-to-energy plants located nearby.

Our trading partners Canada, Mexico and South America decided in 2013 to do the bulk of their trading with countries closest to their points of manufacture. This in turn has saved each country in transportation costs, minimized pollution and kept as many jobs as possible in the Americas.

That's why our part of the world is experiencing positive job growth and economic development, while countries with workers making lower-than-average wages spend more of their production costs on transportation.

Our new Sustainability Center was built in 2015 and houses three different economic development projects. In one building, old clothing and paper is collected and shipped to all of the regional insulation manufacturers who are now producing insulation made from re-used materials.

In another section of the property, glass bottles are being cleaned and stripped and sold back to local and regional wineries, saving these businesses the cost of buying new bottles while keeping them out of the landfill.

The center includes a biodegradable plastic manufacturing plant that produces small and large containers that are used in restaurants whenever a customer wants a "doggy container."

The building was built creating more than 100 construction jobs and each entrepreneurial endeavor creates 15 production jobs. That's 45 new jobs that wouldn't have existed before the city's new "green initiatives."

There is now a plan to include the manufacture of drip irrigation tubing incorporating reused plastic to be used by farmers and gardeners throughout the region and beyond.

Drop-off plants throughout the county weigh and pay our citizens for the glass and clothes and will eventually pay for the plastic, so we have created a marketplace for items that would have been considered worthless before our new initiatives.

The City of Las Cruces has also partnered with the Las Cruces and other neighboring school systems to run tours of our projects so that children learn at a young age how their science and math classes are a natural bridge to these new careers.

Las Cruces has become a sustainable city, making it eligible for more funding sources and a well-publicized stop for out-of-town and out-of-country visitors now that we are a national leader in environmental economic development.

Deirdre Price is a Graduate Certificate recipient in sustainable natural resources from Oregon State University.

“ These environmental changes have caused a boom in renewable energy sources and water reuse, and Las Cruces is experiencing an environmental revolution. ”

Shakespeare's Major Tragedies as Chivalric Romances

The protagonists' deaths in Macbeth, Hamlet, Othello and King Lear define these major plays as tragedies. However significant the protagonists are, they are only a part of the play. What about other parts of the play? What about their successors: Malcolm, Fortinbras, Cassio and Edgar? The tradition of chivalric romance, the most popular literature throughout Shakespeare's lifetime, suggest answers. Shakespeare, whose life in the theater began as a chivalric revival swept Elizabethan England, exploited this literary tradition. In these plays, he used its features to define protagonists and successors, frame the protagonists' tragic deaths and provide successors vindicating romance.

Does Fort Worth ever cross your mind?

Fracking provides benefits throughout U.S.

By Jim Spence
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Once upon a time in America, sound environmentalism was desperately needed. Unfortunately, having run out of sensible things to accomplish years ago, the modern day green movement has morphed into a collection of cynical political manipulators.

The typical radical environmentalist in 21st century America cultivates an attitude toward fossil fuel use that is exactly like the 17th century Puritans' personal approach to sex. They all did it, but they felt very guilty about it.

A few facts would seem to be useful. Since 1949, more than 1.2 million oil and gas wells have been fracked. During the last 64 years, there has been only a pair of instances in which groundwater pollution has ever even been alleged to have occurred as a result of fracking. In both of those instances, it was determined that poor well casing designs, not fracking, caused the problems. Those well casing designs have been corrected.

Like 17th century Puritans, today's anti-fossil fuel crowd believes it is on a religious mission. And despite the fact the manufacture of virtually every modern convenience known to mankind requires fossil fuels, these fanatics spread false hysteria in an effort to suppress new production of fossil fuel. Thanks to widespread ignorance, non-stop efforts to kill golden egg-laying geese has become a way of life in our society.

We can blame our own public education system, one that is now hopelessly trapped in nonsensical politics, for this troubling reality.

Examples of clean fracking taking place in America are almost endless. In Fort Worth, Texas, natural gas and oil is produced in many densely populated urban areas. Wells have been fracked within 200 yards of schools, churches, businesses and homes. There are no instances of groundwater contamination in Fort Worth, even after 15,000 frack jobs. And unlike places where environmentalist fanatics have taken control of public policies, Fort Worth is clean, and the city coffers are brimming with tax revenue to support critical public services.

By preventing the continued export of our wealth and the permanent lowering of our living standards, new fracking technologies are responsible for putting millions of dollars per day into the New Mexico state tax revenue coffers. That's right, millions of dollars per day.

At all levels, our public education system is partnering with radical, modern-day fossil fuel Puritans. Accordingly, most education curriculums maintain a blind eye toward their funding sources. They also ignore the sources of funding of critical services for the most vulnerable members of our society. Make no mistake: Public education is spreading financial and economic illiteracy far and wide as it embraces the ridiculous premise that we can somehow do better without fossil fuels.

Ironically, all of our most critical functions, including public education, would come under horrific financial strain if the modern-day environmental Puritans and their partners in public education have their way.

The failure of public education in this area is very sad for society because there is a basic truth that does not change as successive generations are encouraged to embrace economic self-destruction. Not only is poverty quite painful, it is not green either.

The anti-fracking crowd's fantasies regarding the elimination of fossil fuel consumption is the economic equivalent of bridge burning. The bridges they are willing to burn will permanently keep many living in poverty away from access to greater opportunities.

George Strait's catchy lyrics from one of his earliest hit songs encapsulates the proper response to modern-day Puritan approach to fracking:

*"Darlin' while you're busy burnin' bridges
Burn one for me ... if you get time*

*Cause good memories don't fade so easy
Does Fort Worth ever cross your mind?"*
Apparently the good memories regarding all that fracking does for Fort Worth, for New Mexico and for the rest of America, doesn't cross their minds. Even more disturbing is the fact that these bridge burning extremists are slowly gaining control of all aspects of our lives.

Aggies in Paradise

Aggies in Paradise, a fund-raising event for the Aggie Athletic Club, will be at 6:30 p.m. Friday, May 3, at the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum, 4100 Dripping Springs Road. The event includes dinner, drinks, live music from Phat Soul, a live and silent auction and a speaking portion with former and current athletes.

The fundraiser will support the Aggie Athletic Club and help increase funds for student-athlete scholarships.

This event will kick off the NMSU Spring Football Game weekend. The spring football game will be at 6 p.m. Saturday, May 4, and will be free and open to the public.

Tickets for Aggies in Paradise are $50 and can be purchased through the Aggie Athletic Club by calling 646-5151 or by visiting www.aggieathleticclub.com/paradise.

April checkpoints

The Las Cruces Police Department will conduct at least two sobriety checkpoints and four saturation patrols within city limits during the month of April.

Anyone who needs a safe ride home on Fridays, Saturdays or holidays between the hours of 5:30 p.m. and 3 a.m. can take advantage of Project Home, a program sponsored by Doña Ana County and Las Cruces Shuttle and Taxi. One or two people can receive a $5 taxi ride home from anywhere within Doña Ana County. For up to four people the fee is $10.

For Project Home taxi service, call 524-TAXI.

Roller derby practice

The Las Cruces Roller Derby Association, a non-profit organization, is recruiting men and women 18 years of age or older, who are interested in recreational (non-competitive) roller derby for fun and fitness.

The group skates from 4:30 to 6:25 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at Meerscheidt Recreation Center, 1601 E. Hadley Ave. All skill levels are welcome to join.

For more information, visit www.keepderbyfun.com.

Native plant hike set

The Native Plant Society of New Mexico, Las Cruces Chapter, will meet at 8 a.m. Saturday, April 13. Lisa Mandelkern will lead the group on a hike in the Franklin Mountains just south of the saddle on New Mexico Highway 404. Meet at the east end of the Rio Grande Bank parking lot, 2535 S. Telshor Blvd.

For more information, contact Carolyn Gressitt at 523-8413 or Al Krueger, at 532-1036.

Veterans remembrance set for May 27

Memorial Day is a day of remembrance for those who have died serving our country.

Members of the Veterans Wall Candlelight Ceremony Committee will host the second annual candlelight ceremony 8 p.m. Monday, May 27, at Veterans Memorial Park, 2651 Roadrunner Parkway. Family members and volunteers (18 years and older) are needed to light candles for the 192 Doña Ana County veterans listed on the Veterans Wall who paid the ultimate price for freedom from World War I, World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War and Operation Enduring Freedom.

Each of the 192 veterans will be called by name as a candle is lit and placed on top of the Veterans Wall, not only honoring veterans from Doña Ana County, but all the members of our armed forces who died in service to the country.

For more information, contact Dolores Archuleta at darchuleta611412@aol.com or 524-7873.

Elementary school hosts cleanup

Students and staff of University Hills Elementary School will participate in the citywide Great American Cleanup from 1:40 to 2:15 p.m. Friday, April 12, by cleaning up their school grounds and properties near the school, located at 2005 S. Locust St.

In addition to cleaning up the school playground, UHES staff and students will help with cleanup at churches across the street from the school. Fourth-graders and staff will be walking around the block to pick up trash.

UHES Student Council sponsor and teacher Rose Mitchell said the Keep Las Cruces Beautiful program contacted University Hills Elementary "to participate in the yearly event, and (we) were excited to be a part of such a special event," she said.

For more information, contact Mitchell at 527-9649 or rmitchell@lcps.k12.nm.us.

'Swing into Spring' dinner dance April 19

The Las Cruces High School Jazz Band "Swing into Spring" dinner dance will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday, April 19, in the commons area at Las Cruces High School, 1750 El Paseo Road.

The cost is $20 per person or $150 for table of eight.

The menu will include pasta alfredo with chicken and green chile, salad, bread, dessert and beverages.

In addition to dinner and dancing to live jazz, there will be a silent auction.

For more information, call Las Cruces High School at 527-9400 or email Catherine Huber of the LCHS Jazz Band parent committee at chuber@lcps.k12.nm.us.

History buffs convene in LC

The New Mexico and Arizona 2013 Historical Conference will be held at the Las Cruces Convention Center, 680 E. University Ave., Thursday through Saturday, April 18-20.

Attendees will be a mix of historians, history buffs, students and teachers, all interested in the history of both states as well as that of the greater Southwest. Presented by the Arizona History Convention and the Historical Society of New Mexico, the conference is expected to host 350 attendees.

Conference program sessions will include four concurrent tracks and a total of about 75 presentations. These will be held at the Las Cruces Convention Center on Friday, April 19, and Saturday, April 20. The conference will open with a plenary session on Thursday afternoon, April 18, followed by an opening reception and dinner. Friday evening will include a live auction followed by an evening of festive music and historical reenactment performances.

Saturday afternoon will see a justice forum and the joint Arizona and New Mexico awards banquet.

For more information, visit <http://info.hsnmconference.org>.

Legal aid has foreclosure workshop

New Mexico Legal Aid will hold a free workshop Friday, April 12, on foreclosure prevention in their Las Cruces office. An attorney specializing in foreclosure defense will summarize the law and court process for foreclosures. The loan modification process will be described. Attendees will receive instructions on how to prepare and file an answer. The workshop will include a question-and-answer session.

This is an educational workshop; individual consultations will not be available. For more information or to sign up for the workshop, call 505-768-6123.

Waste meetings held in county

Doña Ana County and the South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) are holding a series of bilingual community meetings in Doña Ana County in April to address issues related to solid waste management in the county.

Recent surveys have shown that trash collection is among the top five concerns in a number of communities.

The meetings are intended to begin a conversation with residents and businesses about their issues and discuss how the proposed changes in the solid waste management system could benefit them.

Dates and times of the remaining meetings are:

- 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 16, Doña Ana County Government Center, 845 N. Motel Blvd.

- 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 17, Betty McKnight Community Center, 190 County Line Drive, Chaparral, N.M.

- 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., Thursday, April 18, South Valley Community Center, 875 Anthony Drive, Anthony, N.M.

The meetings will be set up in an informal format with information stations on a wide range of topics, including revisions to the Corralitos Regional Landfill permit, proposed upgrades to the transfer station infrastructure, proposed changes to solid waste system financing and operation through a solid waste ordinance and public education programs aimed at encouraging recycling and curbing illegal dumping.

Solid waste consists of almost everything thrown away from home: paper and paperboard, yard waste, plastics, glass, metals, food waste, rubber, leather, wood textiles and other items.

When not properly disposed of, solid waste can create pollution and become a serious health hazard, especially in a dry state such as New Mexico, which depends on groundwater.

Refreshments will be served.

For more information, call 528-3800 or visit www.thescrappypages.com.

Honor Flight seeks veterans

Honor Flight of Southern New Mexico is accepting applications from any veteran who would like to experience firsthand the glory of the monuments that were built and dedicated to them for service to the country.

Thanks to the generous support of the community, 209 World War II veterans have made this trip over the past five years. In 2012, 20 Korea-conflict veterans were able to join the WWII veterans on the three-day trip. This year the veterans will depart from New Mexico State University Oct. 2, and after a visit to the memorials Oct. 3, they will return to Las Cruces late Oct. 4.

All veterans that have never been to Washington, D.C. to visit their respective memorials are encouraged to apply. Honor Flight pays tribute to these brave men and women by covering all of their expenses through community donations.

Volunteers are also being recruited to be "guardians," accompanying the veterans to the memorials. Applications for both veterans and guardians can be found at www.honorflightnm.com.

For more information, call David Melcher at 202-8102.

Fort hosts campfire cooking demo

Fort Selden State Monument in Radium Springs is currently scheduling campfire cooking classes for the summer, and an horno-building workshop to be held in late September. Anyone interested in attending these classes or workshops is asked to call 526-8911 for further details. Class sizes are limited, and reservations are on a first come, first served basis. Fort Selden State Monument is located in Radium Springs. From Las Cruces, take Interstate 25 north to exit 19, then travel west one mile.

Las Cruces Public Schools lists end-of-year calendar

Graduations set at Pan Am May 18

Upcoming events in the final seven weeks of the 2012-13 school year include:

- Friday, April 26: Snow day holiday for all schools. The day is set aside at the beginning of the school year as a makeup day in case inclement weather causes a day of school to be canceled at any point during the school year. Since that did not occur, there will be no school on snow day. The administration building will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- 8 to 11:30 p.m. Saturday, April 27: Mayfield High School Prom, the Grapevine, 3900 W. Picacho Blvd. The theme is "Can I Have the Last Dance?"
- 7 to 11:30 p.m. Saturday, May 4: Centennial High School Prom, Picacho Hills Country Club, 6861 Via Campestre. The theme is "Vegas Night."
- 7 to 11 p.m. Saturday, May 4: Arrowhead Park Early College High School Spring Ball, at the school, 3600 S. Arrowhead Drive. The theme is "Alice in Wonderland."
- 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday, May 4: Las Cruces High School Prom, New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum, 4100 Dripping Springs Road. The theme is "Around the World."
- Friday, May 10: Seniors' last day.
- 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday, May 11: Oñate High School Prom, Las Cruces Convention Center, 1711 N. University

- Ave. The theme is "Masquerade."
- Friday, May 10: School year ends for Arrowhead Park Early College High School only. APECHS follows the New Mexico State University calendar.
- 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday, May 11: San Andres High School Prom, at the school, 2355 Avenida de Mesilla in Mesilla. The theme is "Black Light."

- Friday, May 31: School year ends for balanced-calendar elementary schools – Booker T. Washington and MacArthur – one-half day of classes.

Kids' football clinic set May 4

NMSU coach Martin, Aggie players to attend

The New Mexico State football team has teamed up with sponsors Sisbarro Dealerships and It's Burger Time to offer the Doug Martin Kids Clinic at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 4, at Aggie Memorial Stadium.

"Our players and staff are really excited about joining up with kids here in Las Cruces and the surrounding areas and introducing them to being an Aggie," Martin said. "I would like to thank Sisbarro and Burger Time for their support in helping us put on this event."

This free kids clinic is for ages 6-12 and limited to the first 500 to sign up. Sign up at www.nmstatesports.com (on the football page) to reserve your child's spot in this opportunity to work with head coach Doug Martin, the NM State football staff and players. Each child will need to be registered individually.

Hot dogs will be provided for kids after the clinic and parents will be given the opportunity to tour the NMSU football facilities during the camp. The annual spring game will follow that evening at 6 p.m. in Aggie Memorial Stadium. The game is a free event.

Regents voted on the search committee recommendations Tuesday, April 9. Cheney said a number of those nominated ended up taking other positions during the search process.

“It has been a very fluid environment,” Cheney said.

Cheney said the level of interest in the NMSU presidency showed that it is “not a broken institution” and campus visits by the finalists will be held April 22-May 2.

When asked if the regents were looking for finalists to have a familiarity with the region, Cheney said each of the regents are looking at different qualities for a new president.

The candidate to be hired as the next president will need to “fit hand-in-glove” with NMSU, he said.

“We’re looking for the best fit for the university,” Cheney said.

Their vision for the teaching, research and outreach roles of a land-grant university will be critical to the selection process, he said.

Regent Kari Mitchell said she was very grateful for the work done by the volunteers on the search committee.

“It has been a great honor to serve as chair of this committee and I am proud of how this representative group came together and stayed dedicated to following the process directed by the regents,” Lujan said.

“The committee was dedicated to what was best for NMSU. We focused on excellence throughout. We wanted to deliver a list of finalists that would make the regents selection difficult because anyone of them will be a great president for our university.

“It is reflective of the quality of NMSU that these highly qualified individuals want to be our president. We fully expect that the statewide community will question the finalists and research their backgrounds.

We are confident that the discussions will be open and candid.”

Additional information on the finalists – including interview schedules – are available on the presidential search section of the NMSU website at www.nmsu.edu/pressearch.

this resolution affirms support from our neighboring community. At the appropriate time, we look forward to receiving support from the governor as well.”

The 30-acre parcel of land at Akela is 40 miles west of Las Cruces off Interstate 10 and was recently granted reservation status, giving its casino plans better leverage for approval by the Interior Department than the Jemez Pueblo’s proposal for an off-reservation casino in Anthony, N.M., according to Haozous.

In both proposals, Gov. Susana Martinez will be asked to approve the casino, but Haozous has said his tribe could more easily appeal opposition by the governor than the Jemez proposal.

In the resolution, Haozous said Doña Ana County now also supports the economic benefits the Apache Homelands Casino would bring to the region. The Las Cruces City Council passed a resolution supporting the tribe earlier this year.

“We welcome the Fort Sill Apache Tribe home to southwestern New Mexico” said Doña Ana County Commissioner Wayne

Hancock. “We look forward to the jobs and economic impact the tribe will bring to our community.”

When available, a copy of the official resolution will be posted on the Fort Sill Apache New Mexico website at www.fortsillapachenewmexico.com.

The Fort Sill Apache Tribe is the successor to the Chiricahua-Warm Springs Apache Tribe. In 1886, they were taken as prisoners of war by the U.S. Army and removed from southwestern New Mexico and southeastern Arizona to Florida, Alabama and Oklahoma, where they were eventually released.

Haozous said the Akela location represents only a fraction of the nearly 15 million acres that were once the tribal members’ homelands. The casino project aims to create economic support for members of the tribe who want to return to their homelands, he said.

Currently a snack bar and smoke shop are housed at a building originally designed for slot machines and other casino games.

The Jemez Pueblo proposal has been re-submitted to the Interior Department and also is being reviewed. Both the City Council and County Commission had previously passed resolutions in support of the Jemez casino.

time," she said. "You spend a lot of time worrying if he's going to come back home alive and safe."

For Sri Mahley, it was the second deployment for her husband, Spc. Matthew Mahley, who was in the same platoon as Wade.

"It never gets easier," she said.

They were among the many relatives, friends and comrades who filled the gym bleachers as the soldiers marched into the gym in formation. They cheered the soldiers as they entered and finished singing the "Star Spangled Banner" when the speakers cut out halfway through the song.

WSMR Commander Brig. Gen. Gwen Bingham gave a short speech to the troops after she noted that this was the first time for her to meet them.

Bingham also spoke of Wade's sacrifice, which is the third fatality for the 2nd Engineer Battalion since it came to WSMR in 2008 and was the second deployment for the 573rd Maintenance Co., both times to Afghanistan. Like many in the 573rd, Wade was a young husband and father.

The other two casualties for the 2E since being stationed at WSMR were Sgt. Brian Pedro, 27, in 2010, and Spc. Nathan Carse, 32, in 2011. All the battalion's casualties have been in deployments to Afghanistan, which illustrates the hazards of their duties to keep transportation routes clear.

The 573rd Maintenance Co. is one of five companies in the 2nd Engineer Battalion. Two of the battalion's companies, the 595th Sapper Co. and the 40th Engineer Mobility Augmentation Co., are still deployed to Afghanistan.

Family members and others jump to their feet as soldiers from the 573rd Maintenance Co. enter a gymnasium at White Sands Missile Range Monday, April 8, after a nine-month deployment in Afghanistan.

NMSU to build new institute

Domenici Hall to also house business classes

New Mexico State University will hold a ceremony to officially break ground on a construction project that will transform the Hershel Zohn Theater into Pete V. Domenici Hall at 1:30 p.m. Friday, April 12.

Construction work will begin Tuesday, April 16, and conclude in fall 2014.

Once the building is finished, it will house NMSU's Domenici Institute and portions of the Arrowhead Center. As the third College of Business building, it will add classroom and office space for graduate students and faculty.

NMSU's Domenici Institute was founded in 2008. It hosts a yearly public policy conference, various public policy forums and sponsors public policy research projects.

The large auditorium inside Pete V. Domenici Hall will be outfitted with state-of-the-art audio-visual technology and be used for classes, forums and other large meetings. Funding for the building comes from a combination of federal and state funds, as well as a significant contribution from the PY Foundation, led by Peyton Yates.

Three high-schoolers win essay contest

Two state winners are from Las Cruces

Three New Mexico high school students will go to college with a little extra money in their pockets – and some legal writing experience for their résumés – as winners of the State Bar of New Mexico's 2013 Student Essay Contest, sponsored by the Modrall Sperling Roehl Harris & Sisk law firm since 1997.

This year's topic was "Passwords, please!" which focused on one's constitutional rights in regard to employment hiring practices and social media.

Micaela de la Rosa, first-place winner of $1,000, is a junior at Centennial High School. Her teacher is Joel Hutchinson.

De la Rosa said she is fascinated by the written word and what can be accomplished and created through its use. She is interested in the arts, particularly performing arts, and has been involved with several choirs and theatrical productions. She said she would like to explore an education in English, the performing arts and the legal profession.

"I feel that these careers offer unique opportunities to connect with people and positively impact their overall life experiences," she said.

The second-place prize of $750 went to Ruaidhrí "Rory" Crofton of West Las Vegas High School in Las Vegas, N.M. His teacher is Carmen Baca.

As a junior, Crofton said he has a passion for American history and government. He volunteers his time at several historic sites and museums, including Fort Union National Monument, the City of Las Vegas Museum and the Las Vegas Citizens Committee for Historic Preservation. After high school, Crofton said he hopes to pursue a degree in U.S. history and museum studies and work as a curator and historical interpreter for one of America's many museums or historic sites.

Ronald Davis III, a junior from Oñate High School, took home the third-place prize of $500. His teacher is Ann Foltz.

Davis said he enjoys tennis and plays on the school varsity team. His other hobbies include reading and playing video games. He plans to attend college and pursue a doctorate degree. Davis said he wants to study programming and software engineering, knowing that the ability to write well and communicate information is imperative.

"This contest challenged me to write as concisely and clearly as possible and to convey the information in a formal format," Davis said.

In addition to prizes awarded to winning students, the teacher of the first-place winner was awarded a $500 prize.

Centennial's Hutchinson is a native New Mexican and has taught high school English for 16 years. He has worked for Las Cruces Public Schools for the last six years, preceded by five years of employment in Denver, three at Rio Rancho, N.M., and two in Pojoaque, N.M.

Hutchinson said he enjoys reading, golf, basketball and skiing. With regards to teaching, Hutchinson said he particularly enjoys

Man on walk robbed

Las Cruces Crime Stoppers is offering a reward of $1,000 for information that helps identify the suspects who stole money from a man who was taking a walk.

Shortly after 9 p.m. Monday, April 8, Las Cruces Police learned that the victim was walking near Baca Road just south of Lohman Avenue when two African-American men approached and demanded cash from him. The suspects did not use a weapon, but were successful in stealing money from the victim.

The victim was not physically harmed during the robbery.

One of the suspects was described as approximately 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing 300 pounds. He was said to be wearing a gray or brown shirt with black sweat pants. The second suspect was described as 5 feet 6 inches tall and 300 pounds. He was wearing a white shirt and black pants.

Anyone with information that can help identify the suspects in this case is asked to call Las Cruces Crime Stoppers at 800-222-TIPS (8477) or send a tip via text message to CRIMES (274637), keyword LCTIPS.

The Crime Stoppers number and text messaging services are operational 24 hours a day and you do not have to give your name to collect a reward.

seeing the growth in writing and reading from his students on a yearly basis.

No stranger to the State Bar Student Essay Contest, Hutchinson won the teacher prize for the second year in a row. In 2012, he was the teacher for all three winning students for the first and only time in the contest's history.

The winners will be recognized at the Albuquerque Bar Association's annual Law Day Luncheon Wednesday, May 1, at Hotel Albuquerque. Shannon Minter, legal director of the National Center for Lesbian Rights, will be the keynote speaker.

Held annually as part of Law Day observances, the contest is open to all New Mexico high school juniors and seniors.

This year's essay topic was written by Ian Bezpalko, an attorney in Albuquerque. All essays were read and scored by a panel of attorneys. The preliminary judges produced 10 finalist essays, with the final top-three selected by a panel of sitting judges.

This year's finalist judges were Judge Abigail Aragon of the Fourth Judicial District Court, Judge Freddie Romero of the Fifth Judicial District Court and Judge Frank Sedillo of the Bernalillo County Metropolitan Court.

For more than half a century, Americans have paused on May 1 to reflect on the importance of being able to govern themselves democratically under the rule of law.

Law Day was declared to be a day of national dedication by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1958 during the height of the Cold War.

Every year, the national legal community, under the leadership of the American Bar Association, has celebrated the contributions attorneys and judges make to the administration and preservation of justice in the United States.

The State Bar of New Mexico is sponsoring events throughout the next several weeks in celebration of Law Day with the heart of the celebrations centering on attorney volunteers participating in call-in programs and referral events that provide free legal counseling to New Mexicans across the state.

Fighting to be great

Austin Trout
WBA World Light
Middleweight Champion

We all have a struggle that we fight for. Some let the struggle hold them back. Others may use the struggle to push forward through the pain.

When I am training, the fire that burns inside of me is recognizable. This pain jolts me up from my sleep in the morning with motivation to become even greater than the day before. Every man has his struggle with the desire to become great.

Saturday, April 20, I will face Saul "Canelo" Alvarez for the unified title of undisputed Junior Middleweight Champion of the World. I will step into the Alamodome hallway in San Antonio, Texas, and hear the chants for "Canelo" fade away as I become focused on the task at hand.

There has been talk that I will be intimidated by the 35,000 plus Canelo fans, but people easily forget that I have always fought in other fighters' hometowns and arenas.

They quickly forget that I walked calmly into Madison Square Garden in New York and listened to the chants for Miguel Cotto. I took in the hatred and pointed remarks of the fans as I walked into the ring and left it all outside the ropes. As I stepped into the ring everything else faded away.

There have been reports that Golden Boy Boxing (Oscar De La Hoya's promotional company) and other advisers warned Canelo not to fight me. I have been calling out his name over the last few years and the fans have been calling for this match as well. I respect that Canelo has stepped up and finally wanted to make this match happen. It is very rare in today's boxing that two undefeated fighters with undefeated records in their prime are able to face off against one another.

Growing up, this opportunity is what I loved about boxing. I loved to see the greatest face off against one another and put it all on the line for their championship and for their legacy.

When I walk through the hallway and make my way to the ring to face off against Canelo, I will be part of a long list of great fighters who have put it all on the line for their legacy. Yes, I will hear the screaming fans chanting for Canelo, but when the ropes are raised and I step into the ring, the crowd will fade away.

When the first-round bell rings there will only be two fighters in the ring. I will be able to look this man in the eyes and see his true thoughts. He will begin to move toward me. All of his struggles, his pain and his training will be on display. His true convictions will pour out of him in the form of punches. This man has more to lose than I do, and he knows that.

He has stated that he is fighting for revenge. He said he is fighting for blood

Aggies earn split with U of A

Adams' homer rallies NMSU past No. 17 Arizona in game one

Bulletin Staff Report

On a blustery day at the New Mexico State University Softball Complex, the NMSU Aggies rallied past the No. 17 Arizona Wildcats to win 3-2 in game one of the doubleheader Tuesday, April 9.

The Aggies dropped game two 8-1 to split the series for the second straight year.

The Aggies' win in game one set a new school record of 11 straight victories for NMSU.

"I thought we played well overall today and we did some great things," coach Kathy Rodolph said. "Alex (Newman) pitched well for us in game one and then came back and helped out in game two.

"Emma Adams really stepped up and got the key hit for us when we needed it."

The Aggies were led in game one by Adams, who smashed her third home run of the season over the left-field fence in the sixth inning to lift NMSU to the 3-2 win.

Senior hurler Alex Newman worked 7.2 total innings on the day with the complete game in the early battle. She allowed just three walks on the day, while junior right-hander Celisha Walker pitched the majority of game two for just her second loss this season.

NMSU was walked in the first inning until the bases were loaded, but did not light up the board until the bottom half of the third inning. U of A was first to plate a run, with an RBI single up the right side to score the runner that was put on by a walk and stole second.

NMSU's Amber Olive worked the Aggies into scoring position with a two-base hit to left center. She was brought in off the bat of sophomore Kelsey Dodd to tie the game at 1-1.

The Aggies allowed three hits in the top of the third to the Wildcats, but stranded the runners with a line drive for the third out.

Arizona took the lead in the fourth with an RBI single after the runner walked and was moved up by a single to short at the bottom of the lineup.

NMSU kept the Wildcats off the board in the fifth as two hits put runners at second and third with just one out. The Aggie defense came up with two big reaching plays for the next two outs to leave Arizona stranded.

Kristi Covarrubia came up with a shot out to left field for two bases and was moved over on a groundout to shortstop by senior Teresa Conrad. Sophomore Kelsey Dodd came to the

NMSU takes series from Dallas Baptist Ags host Sacramento State, visit Lobos

The New Mexico State University baseball team continues its current home stand as it hosts Sacramento State at 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 12-13, and noon Sunday, April 14, at Presley Askew Field. NMSU will then travel to Albuquerque Wednesday, April 17, to play the University of New Mexico Lobos in a 6 p.m. non-conference game.

After winning the first two games against Dallas Baptist Friday and Saturday, April 5-6, the Aggies fell short on a comeback attempt, losing 12-10 in 10 innings to Dallas Baptist at Presley Askew Field, Sunday, April 7.

The Aggies fall to 18-15 on the year and 4-5 in Western Athletic Conference play, while the Patriots move to 17-15 overall and 5-4 in league play.

NMSU was down 9-0 heading into the bottom of the fourth but tallied six runs in the inning. The Aggies sent 12 batters to the plate in the fourth, marking seven walks and six runs on two hits. DBU stopped the Aggie rally as the NMSU offense left the bases loaded with the score at 9-6.

Starting pitcher Michael Ormseth worked 2.2 innings and struck out two batters before relief pitcher, left-hander Trey Higginbotham jumped on the mound to work 3.2 innings. Righty Evan Mott wrapped up the game for the Aggies, working 3.2 innings as well as he struck out five batters, following last night's save.

Mott was credited with the loss and is now 0-2 on the year, while DBU pitcher Aaron Gilbreath earned his first win of the season.

After a Patriot run in the top of the eighth took the score to 10-7, NMSU crossed the plate three times off four hits and two errors in the bottom of the inning. The Aggies had a chance to pick up the win in the bottom of the ninth inning with bases loaded and no outs, but three consecutive Aggie batters went down swinging.

Dallas Baptist then took advantage of the momentum shift and hit a two-run shot in the top of the 10th to take a 12-10 lead before the Aggies left two runners aboard in the bottom of the inning.

Fadke earns WAC honor

New Mexico State's Kenneth Fadke has been named the Western Athletic Conference Golfer of the Week for April 1-7.

Fadke, a freshman from Hobbs, N.M., tied for fifth place at the ASU Thunderbird Invitational over the weekend in Tempe, Ariz. Fadke shot a 5-under 66 in the final round with three birdies and an eagle to finish at 6-under for the tournament (72-69-66, 207). The 66 was a career-low for Fadke and the best by any player in the 100-player field during the third round.

Fadke and the Aggies next compete at the 2013 WAC Championships April 29-May 1 in Las Vegas, Nev.

Lecount is Hitter of the Week

New Mexico State senior Bobby Lecount has been named the Western Athletic Conference Hitter of the Week for the week of April 1-7.

Lecount, a senior from Shoreline, Wash., led the Aggies to three wins last week, including a 10-5 win over in-state rival New Mexico and two wins over Dallas Baptist. Lecount hit .462 (6-for-13). He tallied six walks, nine RBI, two home runs, a double, a triple and scored six runs. His extra base hits equated to a 1.154 slugging percentage for the week, while his six walks helped him tally a .650 on-base percentage in the four games. Lecount reached base safely at least once in every game last week and extended his hitting streak to five games.

Lecount tallied a solo home run against UNM in a midweek game, before he opened the WAC series against DBU going 2-for-3 with a season-high five RBI in a 16-5 seven-inning win. He tallied his second consecutive 2-for-3 day against the Patriots as he led NMSU to a 7-5 victory in game two to clinch the series. That day he also had a double, a walk and a run scored.

Newman garners weekly award

New Mexico State senior Alex Newman was named Pitcher of the Week by the Western Athletic Conference for the week of April 1-7. This is Newman's first honor this season and second in her career.

The Rio Linda native worked for three wins in 17.2 innings over the week, helping NMSU to sweep UT Arlington and claim first place in the conference. Newman finished her week with a perfect 3-0 record with an 0.40 ERA and holding her opponents to a .172 batting average. She boasted eight strikeouts and allowed just one earned run all weekend and two overall. She allowed just 11 hits in the circle, improving her conference ERA to 1.50 in a total of 124 innings. She worked her eighth complete game in Friday's 5-1 win and came back for eight more innings in the 12-inning 3-2 win over the Mavs in game one of Saturday's doubleheader. Newman is second in the conference in ERA overall and boasts a 14-8 overall pitching record.

Undefeated fighter takes fall in fight against cancer

It didn't even take three rounds for Central Elementary School Principal Eloisa Solis – better known as the "Purple Flame" – to knock out World Boxing Association Super Welter Weight Champion Austin "No Doubt" Trout at the school the morning of Friday, April 5.

Trout, who had previously been undefeated, went down in a hail of punches from Solis before a capacity crowd of Central Elementary students, staff, media and visitors. The referee was Roberto Lozano, whose day job is assistant director of Instruction for English Language Acquisition, Bilingual and Migrant Education Programs for the school district. KGRT News Director Jack Nixon, the voice of the NMSU Aggies, was ring-side announcer.

Trout agreed to take on Solis in the ring if the school surpassed its fundraising goal of $2,000 during its annual Pennies for Patients campaign, which benefits the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. Central Elementary (which is LCPS's smallest school, with fewer than 300 students), has to date, raised more than $3,100. So, the only serious punch delivered in the spooboxing match was against blood cancer, which has a special relevance for children and their families, since leukemia causes more deaths than any other cancer among children under age 20.

To date, Trout has not indicated if he will seek a rematch with Solis, who can now hang up her purple gloves with a perfect 1-0 record against a world champion.

The Leukemia and Lymphoma Society is the world's largest voluntary health agency dedicated to blood cancer. It funds for his brother, whom I took the championship belt from. This is the story they are using to sell ratings and tickets.

There is only one story that I am fighting for. I am fighting to become one of the greatest. I am fighting for my own legacy. I am a man that must not let emotions get in the way of everything I have been training for.

When the bell rings, two men will remain in the ring. No fans, trainer or family will be there to help us rise to glory. A man must look me in the eye and be completely honest with himself in that moment. He must ask himself if he is great.

He will struggle with desire as I will force him to question himself with every punch that I throw. In the end there will be doubt on his part.

I don't question my desire, there is "no doubt" that when he looks me in the eyes, I will be ready.

Cheering to championships

The Xtreme All Stars from Gym Magic competed Saturday and Sunday, April 6-7, at the American Showcase National Competition in Anaheim, Calif. The Junior Level 2 team, pictured, won a first-place national title and the Senior Level 4 team won a second place. The Senior Level 4 team also won a first place and national title at the American Grand in Las Vegas, Nev., in December 2012, and received a bid to The Summit, which is the world cheerleading competition for levels 1-4 at Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla., May 3-4. These teams are coached by Jessica Covington, who is also the head coach for the New Mexico State cheerleaders, along with assistant coaches Vanessa Vasquez, Joseph Dominguez and Kayla Esslinger, all former NMSU cheerleaders.

sixth and the Aggies came up with two big hits and two runs in the home half of the inning. Senior Tehani Kaaihue singled her way on base and was brought around by the game-winning home run by Emma Adams. The bomb was the third for the freshman, and lifted NMSU to its second win over U of A in two years.

"I think it was a great day for this softball program to get this milestone win, and I think these types of games make us better players and a better team," Rodolph said. "We learn how to work under pressure in these games and not falter to any team."

Game two

Dodd hit a rocket over the center field wall for a solo bomb, giving NMSU a 1-0 lead over the Wildcats in the home half of the first inning. The homer is Dodd's seventh of the season and helped the sophomore finish the day with two hits and two RBI after her single in the first game.

Conrad walked her way on base, and a shot up the right side by Rodriguez put runners at first and second with two outs. The runners were left on base after a short fly out ended the first inning.

A scoreless second inning put U of A back at the plate where a double by center fielder Alex Lavine. She was brought around off a single RBI to knot the score at 1-1. A pair of fielder's choice hits loaded the bases and Arizona took a 5-1 lead with a grand slam by shortstop Brigitte Del Ponte with just one out.

NMSU made a strong attempt in the bottom half of the third inning with two base hits and a hit-by-pitch to load the bases with one out, but was not able to turn a run.

The teams were scoreless in the next two innings, with Arizona picking up a hit in each of the fourth and fifth and NMSU picking up a walk in each of the innings and one hit in the fifth, a single up the middle by Rodriguez.

A three-run rocket over the left center field wall lifted U of A to an 8-1 lead over NMSU. A double and single put the runners in position for the Wildcat catcher Chelsea Goodacre to bring them home with the three RBI shot and the win.

The teams were both scoreless to finish out the final inning and split the series for the second straight year. The Aggies look back to Western Athletic Conference for the remainder of the season, starting with a three-game series against UTSA on Friday and Saturday, April 12-13.

Allison Seacat

Allison Seacat is a 16-year-old junior at Las Cruces High School. She is on the Lady Dawgs' golf team, as well as being captain and a flier on the cheerleading squad. Seacat was a UCA All-American Cheerleader in 2011 and 2012 (traveling to London to compete), and has been on the varsity squad for three years. She was co-captain of the squad in 2012 and 2013 when the squad won both state championship competitions. Seacat has also played on the varsity golf team four years. She qualified for state in both 2012 and 2013.

Seacat is a leader and a motivator. She is extremely hard-working and pushes both herself and her teammates to do their very best. Seacat does not quit; she stays positive and is determined to excel in everything she does. She is very athletic and friendly toward all of her teammates and peers, which has enabled her to help build a strong sense of unity. Seacat is a dedicated student, maintaining a 3.88 GPA. She plays French horn and is a member of both the National Honor Society and French Honor Society. Seacat will be going to study in France this summer. Her main love outside of music and sports is for animals.

Aggies take charge

Jack Nixon
Jack's Corner

The Aggie track and field team captured top honors and set a new school record at the Don Kirby Tailwind Invitational, Friday and Saturday, April 5-6.

New Mexico State won a pair of relays, a 4-by-100-meter relay and a 4-by-400-meter relay along with an individual title in the 400 meter.

In the 4-by-100-meter relay, NM State won the race with a time of 45.34, which is the best mark in the Western Athletic Conference this season and third all-time for NM State. Juniors Alishia Perkins and Brianna Cromartie, senior LaSasha Aldredge and freshman Cherish Morrison ran the 4-by-100-meter relay for the Aggies.

The same Aggie relay team claimed first place in the 4-by-400-meter relay. In the 400 meter, Aldredge crossed the finish line first with a time of 52.59, setting a new all-time school record and best time in the conference.

The Aggies travel to El Paso for the UTEP Invitational, Saturday, April 13.

Softball back on top: Kathy Rodolph's softball team is leading the conference nine games into the race. It took some extra work last weekend, but it all ended happily with a sweep of UT Arlington.

NM State is now 8-1 in league play and 26-13 overall with a 10-game winning streak, which includes eight straight WAC games.

Good teams win close games and the doubleheader's first game, April 6, saw a 12-inning game end with a lead-off double that led to the winning run. The second victory saw the Aggies come from behind when they scored two in the eighth inning to sew up the sweep.

The Aggies capped a 20-inning day with a combined 13 hits, five in the first game and eight in second game. Senior outfielder Amber Olive recorded a .555 batting average (5-for-9) with a pair of singles and a triple in the first game, and an RBI single and stolen base in the second game that gave the Aggies their initial 1-0 lead.

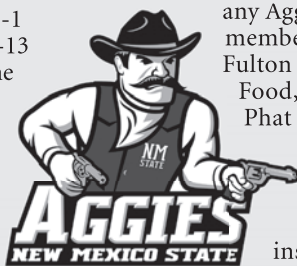

The Aggies are at home for the second straight week. UTSA comes to town for three games, Friday and Saturday, April 12-13.

Time for the annual academic celebration: On April 2, the largest group of student-athletes ever was honored at the El Paso Electric Crimson and White Society dinner. More than 80 percent of the school's scholarship athletes graduated, which is close to double the overall graduation rate of the general student body.

Ciara Brown was named the female academic honor student, and Trevor Walls was the male honoree. The emphasis on academics began under former athletic director Jim Paul and continues to surpass previous bests year after year.

Paradise beckons: The Aggies in Paradise fundraising party is less than a month away.

Tickets are available from any Aggie Athletic Club member or head to the Fulton Center to buy one. Food, live music from Phat Soul, your favorite drink and the chance to talk sports with coaches and other insiders.

Aggie men's golf team learning to improve

Mike Dirks
Men's Golf
Head Coach

Another semester has flown by and the Aggie men's golf team is looking for another WAC Championship.

The goals for the team are to compete at the highest level, but we continue to strive to be the best in our conference as well.

Last season at the WAC, we were three shots short of bringing home the championship, and this year's conference tournament is April 29-May 1 at Rio Secco Golf Club in Las Vegas, Nev.

I tell our players every day that in golf it's not how good your good shots are, but how good your bad shots are. This year, we have seen that over and over.

Our good rounds are really good, but when things haven't gone our way, we have struggled to turn them around and post a score that will allow us to compete another day. In tournament golf, you can't judge your results after each shot, you need to let go and focus on the next as soon as you can. I believe our team is getting better with this, but still has some work to do.

As a team, we still need to become better drivers of the golf ball, golf needs to be from the fairway, it allows you to play the shot you are most comfortable with, which will ultimately let you have the most confidence and success.

Chipping and putting is another area that we continue to work on improvement; we have to have more imagination and creativity to have success around the greens.

Results don't always come as fast as coaches want them, too, but this team is getting better each and every day. We stick by the old saying: "If you think you can or you think you can't, either way you're right."

What's not to like about the Masters?

Augusta tournament the best and here's why

Charlie Blanchard
Golf Doctor

I believe spring is absolutely the best time of year for sports.

For us big screen HDTV sports addicts, we really start with the Super Bowl, which is almost springtime here in the Southwest. Then there is March Madness, opening day at the ballpark, the Final Four (men and women) and the NHL playoffs, where really almost everybody is in.

Soon, there is the NFL draft, the Kentucky Derby and the Indy 500. But the crème de la crème of the rites of spring is the Masters.

There are, of course, some reasons, if you need them, not to be interested in the Masters. For one, it's played on Augusta National Golf Club, a golf course that has undergone so many re-vamps that it barely resembles what Bobby Jones had in mind in the 1930s. Some golf cognoscenti bristle at the convoluted and complicated qualifying criteria for players to make it to the Masters, which guarantees the field will not be made up entirely of nothing but the best players in the world.

I happen to agree with critics that exemptions for past champions should run out after awhile so the field is not salted with so many geezers.

Speaking of special qualifiers, the 2013 edition of the Masters will see the youngest golfer ever to compete in the event with 14-year-old Guan Tianlang from China and winner of the Asian Pacific Amateur Championship.

I don't care about any of that. The Masters is the best. It is arguably the most coveted tournament prize of any and has the smallest field of all the four majors, albeit with invitations being a quirky process. Then there's the champion's green jacket, which is seen by many as the ultimate statement of success in a golfing career.

John Daly may be hawking his lame wares outside the gates of Augusta National, but the tournament this year will not be picketed by women's lib (NOW) highness Martha Burke. Why? Last year, the first two women were accepted as members of Augusta National, to wit: former Secretary of State (and Notre Dame graduate) Condoleezza Rice and well-heeled businesswoman Darla Moore.

Here are my top-10 reasons why the Masters is the best, and why you should tune in to the Masters April 11-14. Or at least appreciate the Masters.

1. Marveling at the pristine, manicured grounds of Augusta National Golf Club, maintained as a country club was meant to be. Unfortunately, it sets the standards impossibly high for any other golf course. Most of us are simply destined to play on a "club in the country," not a true country club. When I look at Augusta National, I'm in awe and wonder at the closely mown fairways, so fast that even a short-hitter could be made proud. I drool at the snow white bunkers with sharp, clean lips; the perfectly smooth and lightening fast greens; the geometric, flat teeing grounds, with walkways cut ahead to the fairway; the pine trees and pine straw free of trash, junk and debris; the ponds and creeks bordered with slick, sharp and treacherous banks, that aren't unfair, but just intimidating. Azaleas, magnolias and rhododendron flowers all over the place. All this is set up because someone set the bar really, really high with attention to detail like nowhere else, and an attitude of perfection. Augusta National looks beautiful, not only because of a big budget, but because of tradition.
2. CBS covering the Masters on the weekend in a virtually commercial-free format, like all sporting events of galactic importance are supposed to be broadcast. During each hour of CBS telecast, there are less than eight minutes of commercial breaks, which includes The First Tee spots. Are you listening Olympic Committee? Superbowl? Limit the ads.
3. I like the fact that there is no title sponsor for the Masters. This is the Masters – period. It's not the Western Hemisphere Bank Augusta Championship. It's not the Expensive Luxury Car Invitational. Nor is it the Trust-me Financial Services Open, with Fed-up points at stake. It's the Masters – period – and it stands on its own.
4. No blimps at the Masters. Raise your hand if you really love the aerial view of Adam Scott's drive as it goes up and then comes down in a clump of big trees, making us think he has no shot whatsoever. Only to find out, at ground level, he had a direct shot at the green, through an opening in the trees, with a great angle to the green. The incessant drone of blimp engines hovering overhead I can do without.
5. I love the storied tradition of the Masters. No, not the long-dead racism which Lee Elder overcame in 1975. No, not the politics of exclusion. No, not the turmoil that led to former Augusta National Chairman Clifford Roberts' suicide. I'm talking about Gene Sarazen's shot heard 'round the world, eagling 15. Jack Nicklaus' last major at age 46 in 1986. A victorious Ben Crenshaw feeling the spirit of Harvey Penick while holing his final putt. The Mizze chip-in. The Norman disaster. Tiger's first major. Phil's 8-inch high leap, and so much more.

6. Heckler idiots being "escorted" instantly and roughly off the grounds when they click cameras and act like imbeciles anywhere near a TV crew, shouting "get in the hole." The Masters isn't the FBR Open with hordes of over served, rowdy "fans" waiting for a reason to cheer or boo like they were at a soccer match. Sorry, Europe, this isn't fútbol. British Open security chiefs need to come to Augusta to see how it's done. There will be no streakers at the Masters. Promise.
7. The possibility of a 15th major for Tiger Woods. The Masters is his stage. When Jack first witnessed Tiger, he saw "10 green jackets." He already has four. Jack's record 18 majors is still intact, but I'm confident that Jack knows he will ultimately be passing the mantle of history to Tiger sometime within the next 10 years. Jack will be pleased. That will be history.
8. Amen Corner. Nowhere in sports is there a more defining venue than the 11th, 12th and 13th holes at Augusta – the ones that make up Amen Corner. Masters championships have been decided on these holes. They are tough, demanding holes, with the 12th most memorable. I have played replicas of Amen Corner holes in Dallas (at Tour 18 G.C.), and it was special. My dream is to someday get to play the real thing. Someday, God willing, I'll get a press pass.

9. The memory of Bobby Jones, the greatest amateur who ever lived.
10. Watching the game as it should be played. I like the genteel atmosphere that honors the tradition of golf. I prepare pimento cheese sandwiches (that cost a mere $1.50 to this day for patrons) at home on Sunday while watching the last nine holes on TV. Call me a sentimental fool but I even light a fire in my fireplace to mimic being inside the Butler Cabin late in the day. Now, who will win the Masters this year? Right now the odds-makers have Tiger Woods as the slight favorite, followed closely by Rory McIlroy, then Phil Mickelson and Brandt Snedeker.

Bubba Watson is the defending champion, thanks to his brilliant, no, stunning – and lucky – wedge shot from the right hand trees on No. 10, the first playoff hole, in last year's tournament (while most thought he was dead, having pushed his tee shot into the forest).

What makes Tiger Woods the favorite this year is the fact that he has won three times already and it's only April.

USPS to continue Saturday delivery

Udall applauds reversal

The U.S. Postal Service backed down from its plan to eliminate Saturday mail delivery because Congress barred it, officials said Wednesday, April 10.

The Associated Press reported, however, that the Postal Service's governing board said it's not possible for the financially ailing agency to meet cost-cutting goals without altering its delivery schedule. Delaying "responsible changes," the board said, only makes it more likely that the Postal Service "may become a burden" to taxpayers.

New Mexico Democratic Sen. Tom Udall commended the Postal Service's announcement and claimed the decision comes in response to congressional protest and legislative action by Udall and others to ban a reduction in services.

"The continuation of Saturday delivery is a win for the countless Americans who rely on mail services," Udall said. "The Postal Service is facing serious financial problems, but they will not be solved by cutting the essential services that the business community, the elderly and rural residents depend on."

The Postal Service said in February it planned to switch to five-day-a-week deliveries beginning in August for everything except packages as a way to hold down losses.

But that announcement was a gamble. The agency essentially was asking Congress to drop from spending legislation the longtime ban on five-day-only delivery. Congress did not do that when it passed a spending measure last month.

"By including restrictive language ... Congress has prohibited implementation of a new national delivery schedule for mail and package," the postal Board of Governors said in a statement Wednesday.

"Although disappointed with this congressional action, the board will follow the law and has directed the Postal Service to delay implementation of its new delivery schedule until legislation is passed that provides the Postal Service with the authority to implement a financially appropriate and responsible delivery schedule."

On Feb. 15, Udall led a group of 24 other senators in challenging the postmaster general's authority to discontinue Saturday mail delivery later this year without congressional approval. In the letter, the senators acknowledged the financial challenges the Postal Service is facing and urged the U.S. postmaster to work with Congress to address these problems through bipartisan reform, such as the Senate legislation passed last year.

They also pointed out that a shift to five-day service could lead to further declines in mail volume and revenues, worsening the U.S. Postal Service's overall condition.

In 2012, Udall introduced an amendment to the 21st Century Postal Service Act of 2012 that would protect the Postal Service's six-day service.

Ode to the Farmers Market

Alta LeCompte
Around the valley

Before we even bought a home in the City of the Crosses, let alone made the move from the East Coast, the Las Cruces Farmers & Crafts Market hooked me.

We were staying with California transplants Junior and Barbara Adams, who had moved from California years earlier. They had never seen us before we arrived at their door for a five-week visit to check out the city.

They had offered their hospitality after a second-hand referral from a brother Mason.

We were shocked by their generosity. Had we known Las Cruces, we might not have been.

That Saturday, our hostess invited me to the farmers market.

We walked briskly that February morning into what was then the Downtown Mall.

Wow. The arts. The crafts. The music.

I wondered aloud where the produce was, and she told me local fruits and vegetables were in scant supply in winter. Instead of tomatoes, I “settled” for a wonderful Jean Williams print of a family of rabbits sitting snug atop a mesa looking out at the moon over the mountains.

Those rabbits were living the life I pictured for myself – surrounded by family and looking out at the Organs.

Pinch me. It happened. I’m at home on the West Mesa.

The rabbits, gotta love ‘em, are at home here, too. The first summer, they leveled the tomato plants I brought home from the market and naively set on the patio. In order to recover something from my investment, I took pictures of them in action – juveniles sitting up on their haunches and reaching for the last leaf.

It’s hard to believe that was just a couple years ago.

Thoroughly settled in now, we are surrounded by farmers market finds – Living Harvest peasant bread in our kitchen, a jaunty turquoise bench by Upcycle Outdoor Living on our front porch and the beloved rabbit print hanging over the bathtub to enjoy every day.

Now I’m looking forward to our Ohio daughter’s first visit to our new home.

The first place we’ll go is the farmers market.

It’s a favorite – and ever changing

Farmers market blossoms

Last block reopens after reconstruction

By Alta LeCompte
Las Cruces Bulletin

Saturday, April 6, at the Las Cruces Farmers & Crafts Market, shoppers and dogs, bicycles and strollers, moved south along Main Street past Griggs Avenue.

Know it or not, they were taking part in the official grand reopening of the southernmost section of the market. The section had been closed since Smith and Aguirre Construction Co. Inc. began Phase 3 of Downtown Main Street reconstruction from Griggs to Amador Avenue in May 2012.

At the corner of Las Cruces Avenue, Donna Dollar was doing a remote broadcast for 101.1 KVLC-FM in honor of the reopening.

“There will be no speeches or anything like that,” market president Don Kelly, better known as vendor Don Diego, said the day before the event.

Kelly said vendors, who were moving back after having been relocated to the north during construction, did a three-week trial run before the official reopening.

“The purpose of extending the market space is to redistribute the traffic flow, relieving crowding in the central block, and moving some of the (vendors) back from the north end,” he said. “The significance of the grand opening is that now we are ready to present the market pretty much as people will see it going forward.”

Back where they belong

Kelly said 25 or 30 vendors are moving from the far north end to the south and about 20 “floaters” will fill in for now.

A total of about 80 are doing business in the southernmost block. All seven blocks of the former Downtown Mall, now restored to two-way traffic except during market hours, accommodate 238 permanent vendors and more than 60 seasonal or floating ones, on Wednesday and Saturday mornings.

Vendors who have seen their locations shuffled from the south to the north and back again are delighted to be back on familiar ground.

Martin Martinez, who farms in Mesquite and has been selling at the market for 20 years, was happy to return.

“I used to be across the street then I had to move,” he said. “The customers know to look for us down here. I think being back here will make a difference.”

“I’ve been in every block of the market from the 400 to the 300 to the 100 to the 500,” said Lauren Bishop.

Vets’ health insurance switched

Area residents get new provider, similar benefits

By Alta LeCompte
Las Cruces Bulletin

In a steady voice and crisp, declarative sentences, the man on the phone described his dilemma.

He introduced himself as an 83-year-old veteran scheduled for cancer surgery in a matter of weeks. He had read in the Bulletin that his health benefit through the military’s Procure would be provided by UnitedHealthcare rather than TriWest effective April 1.

He wanted to know for certain his medical bills would be covered. He requested a call back that afternoon.

Although the brief notice from White Sands Missile Range read, “United Healthcare will begin to oversee western region Tricare benefits for military members and their families starting April 1,” transitions such as this are complicated, with plenty of room for uncertainty.

The calls the Las Cruces veteran placed as he tracked down assurances could have come from any one of the 2,000 military retirees and the market for 22 years, recently joined her business with that of glass designer Jan Ridley to form Agave Blue Enterprises.

McAfee Army Health Clinic at White Sands Missile Range, 26 miles from Las Cruces, serves about 20 percent of the city’s retired military families. Area veterans whose Procure insurance has transitioned to a new provider, United Healthcare, may visit the clinic or continue to see primary care physicians in LasCruces.

"This is where we're going to stay for the rest of our lives," she said.

As always, shoppers were delighted with the market experience.

"I love the mix of jewelry, arts, music and food everywhere," said Selina Cardozo.

City plans ad blitz

Andy Hume, city liaison who is overseeing market management during the transition to the vendor-run 501(c) 3, said the grand reopening coincides with the kick off of some "heavy advertising" to get the new nonprofit off to a good start.

"This is the final hurrah from the city's perspective," he said.

A diverse mix of radio and print ads and a new website have been planned to reach a broad span of demographic groups, Hume said.

The market will partner with the Las Cruces Convention & Visitors Bureau for promotions in connection with a country music festival planned for May 17-19.

Also in the works is a "Find Your Vendor" campaign, including mapping, and promoting the market online.

The city and the market corporation on Monday, April 1, signed a memorandum of agreement "granting autonomy to the vendors" and will later sign a lease agreement. Hume said his goal is to have the lease agreement ready for action by city council May 20.

After completion of the transition, the city will continue to work with the market, assisting with writing grant applications, launching marketing campaigns and maintaining open communication on each other's responsibilities, Hume said.

Path to independence

Hume, who has been in government service for 20 years, including 12 years with the city, said once the city, vendors, bricks and mortar merchants and Downtown organizations sat down and got acquainted, reaching agreement on how the market should be organized was not overly difficult.

"One of the things that's so fascinating to me is that once you strip down the hard feelings, rumor and innuendo – everything that's not fact – two groups can occupy the same space and find ways to work together," he said, noting that he's seen the same dynamic everywhere he's worked.

When you get down to the facts, generally stakeholder groups are closer to agreement than they realize, he said.

In the case of the market, both vendors and bricks and mortar merchants wanted "to make a viable profit and to promote their businesses and Las Cruces," Hume said. "Guess what? These are the same things."

Las Cruces Bulletin photos by Alta LeCompte

Helene MacMillan and Frank Lovato, The 2 of Us, sing for their supper. They'll appear Saturday, April 20, at Gina's Cantina in La Esquina Plaza at the corner of Main Street and Las Cruces Avenue.

He said the Downtown Las Cruces Partnership has done a wonderful job of facilitating with a "fantastic working group of merchants and vendors."

Farmers market musicians, represented by Adrian Vijil, recently joined the conversation.

"Now that we've gotten together and talked facts, things are really rolling," Hume said.

family members living in the Las Cruces area who are ProCare beneficiaries.

The man with the answers, it turned out, was Jeffrey Schend, deputy commander for administration at WSMR's McAfee Army Health Clinic.

The bottom line, Schend said, is nothing is going to change for veterans and their families.

"Re-enrollment is automatic," he said, although beneficiaries who had automatic payment through TriWest must re-enroll with United in order to avoid gaps in coverage.

The change in providers came about because ProCare Management, overseer of the TriCare West program, which in turn oversees the civilian contractor providing Tricare benefits for active duty military and their families as well as veterans and their families, routinely re-bids contracts, Schend said.

TriWest had held the contract since 2001.

The new provider, United, has a one-year contract with an option to extend for three additional years.

Focus on prevention

"United Healthcare got the contract based on monetary considerations and services they said they could deliver," Schend said. "They provide similar services, but United will work with the military health care system to increase awareness of military health care system wellness programs such as cancer screenings and diabetes care," he said. "The military is moving away from strictly health care to a more preventive mode.

"It's a culture change – we've always focused on taking care of beneficiaries when they were sick."

The overall objective in working with United is to ramp up preventive services and encourage beneficiaries to make McAfee their provider for outpatient services, including primary care, optometry and behavioral health, Schend said.

Retirees under age 65 will for the first time be eligible to use the clinic, he said.

In addition, active duty personnel within a 50-mile radius of the clinic will be required to use McAfee as their primary care provider.

Schend said beneficiaries as well as providers will experience a culture change.

"We will be sending post cards to remind them of annual screenings," he said. "United Healthcare will be working on marketing the cultural change as well.

Las Cruces primary care covered

Veterans may continue to see a primary care physician wherever they choose, Schend said.

The only possible complication for veterans would be if their primary care physician is not affiliated with United. Once those physicians become network providers, they will be listed as an option for beneficiaries, Schend said.

There currently are more than 25 in-network primary care providers in Las Cruces, he said.

There would be no change in the way other providers are paid, he said. For example, the retiree concerned about coverage for his surgery would use Medicare as his primary insurance and Tricare would kick in as the secondary benefit payable through United.

Schend said McAfee is encouraging veterans to use the clinic.

"All retirees can enroll at McAfee or a provider in Las Cruces. We would prefer to have them use McAfee, but we understand, with the distance and the mountains to cross, sometimes it's more beneficial to have a primary care physician in town."

He said one advantage of using McAfee is continuity of care. Some 90 to 92 percent of the time patients will see their regular primary care provider.

Patients generally are seen within a half day of requesting an appointment, Schend said.

He said 76 percent of Tricare beneficiaries in this area are active duty military families, while 34 percent are retiree families.

About 20 percent of Las Cruces' retired military families receive their primary care at McAfee, he said.

Schend invited beneficiaries to stop in at the clinic for more information or call him at 678-6526.

Tricare beneficiaries will have to wait several months for the long version of explanations of their new health care coverage.

Town halls will be held from July to September with the help of organizations such as the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, Schend said.

Meanwhile, information is available at www.tricare.mil-tma or www.uhcmilitarywest.com or by calling United Healthcare at 877-988-9388.

– place to relax and play tourist on Saturday morning at the end of a hectic week.

This week, the changes at the market are greater than most. Saturday, April 6, was the official grand re-opening of the southern end of Main Street.

The added space means room for more vendors. It also will help alleviate pedestrian congestion in the core of the market.

The market is in the process of transitioning back to vendor management after several years under city jurisdiction. It is now a 501(c)3 corporation with its own board, which last week signed a memorandum of agreement with the city. A lease agreement is in the works, scheduled to take effect July 1, when the market's independence is finalized.

Old-timers recall the farmers market once was self-governing, though apparently not in the organized way that is taking shape now. They tell of issues – friction between the bricks and mortar merchants and vendors, the city's frustration with the market and vice-versa.

It's not like that anymore, and, as a farmers market fan, I'm delighted.

I'm also grateful to everyone who made possible the reopening and other impending changes. The list is long and includes the merchants along Main Street who have endured much disruption during the reconstruction of the Downtown Mall, volunteer leaders who stepped forward to organize the vendors and the Downtown Las Cruces Partnership, which brought the city and all the other stakeholders together to come up with some answers.

Since last summer, I kept hearing bits and pieces of the story of growing cooperation among the stakeholders.

Only recently I heard that Randy Harris, market regular and founder of the Great Conversation, played a key role in the stakeholders coalescing around goals they shared.

Thank you all.

Looks like another wonderful year for buying tomato plants.

County's solid waste management system to be discussed

Doña Ana County and the South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) will hold bilingual community meetings on the county's solid waste management system to educate the public about proposed changes and to solicit input.

The meetings will take place at the Doña Ana County Government Center from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 16, at the Betty McKnight Community Center in Chaparral from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 17 and at the South Valley Community Center in Anthony, N.M. from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, April 18.

Individual information stations will be set up to address various issues including: the overall waste management system in the county, proposed revisions to the Corralitos Regional Landfill permit, proposed upgrades to the transfer station infrastructure, proposed changes to solid waste finance and operations and the waste disposal ordinance and available public education programs aimed at encouraging recycling and curbing illegal dumping.

Refreshments will be served at all locations. For more information, visit www.thescrappypages.com.

The Bridge of Southern New Mexico appoints new president

The Bridge of Southern New Mexico announced Stacie Allen has been selected as the new president/CEO effective April 3. Allen most recently served as the chief executive officer of Big Brothers Big Sisters of Southwestern New Mexico (BBBS) for the past five years.

Allen has diverse experience working with both the public and private sectors. Her background includes community relations, marketing and financial management.

Allen will focus on the Bridge's key initiatives, which include research on and support for expansion of dual credit courses; developing mentors in the community; and building an objective way to measure the successes of the program that could be shared within the state.

To learn more about The Bridge of Southern New Mexico, visit www.thebridgeofsnm.com.

High Tech Consortium meeting scheduled

This month's High Tech Consortium (HTC) of Southern New Mexico membership meeting will be 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, April 19 at Hotel Encanto de Las Cruces, 705 S. Telshor Blvd.

This month's speaker will be Rick Holdridge, who will discuss technology advances in farming and water irrigation. Both of these subjects have significant current and future implications for southern New Mexico regarding agriculture and water management.

HTC membership meetings are open to the public and free. Anyone interested in growing high technology in southern New Mexico is encouraged to attend. For more information, call Terry Jack at 522-3868 or Paul Deason at 644-8427.

Accounting & Consulting Group employee to serve on task force

Las Cruces resident and New Mexico State University alumna Celine Tellez, CISA, CICA, has been selected from hundreds of candidates worldwide to serve on a 12-person team tasked with developing Internal Control standards for an IT security concept titled BYOD (Bring Your Own Device).

Tellez has been selected by the Institute for Internal Controls to collaborate with a highly qualified team of international IT professionals to draft a formal ICQ on BYOD for global information security and audit purposes. Tellez will remain an IT Audit Associate with the New Mexico firm Accounting & Consulting Group LLP throughout the course of the project.

Las Cruces Convention Center hosts historical conference

Las Cruces is set to welcome attendees of the New Mexico and Arizona 2013 Historical Conference, which will be held at the Las Cruces Convention Center, Thursday through Saturday, April 18-20.

Attendees will be a mix of historians, history buffs, students and teachers, all interested in the history of both states, as well as that of the greater Southwest. Presented by the Arizona History Convention and the Historical Society of New Mexico, the conference is expected to host 350 attendees, generate more than 650 hotel room nights and contribute over $100,000 in direct spending to the local economy.

For conference information or to register, visit <http://info.hsnmconference.org>.

Workforce Solutions extends hours

The New Mexico Department of Workforce Solutions (NMDWS) has extended the hours that the new Unemployment Insurance (UI) Tax & Claims System is available for approximately 23,000 claimants and 45,000 employers across the state. The online system will now be available from 4 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday through Friday.

The system can be accessed through the main NMDWS website at www.dws.state.nm.us, or individuals can go directly to the New Mexico Workforce Connection site at www.jobs.state.nm.us. The hours for the UI operations center will remain the same, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The UI Operations Center can be reached at 877-NM-4-MYUI (877-664-6984).

Additional information about the new UI Tax & Claims System and the NMDWS are available at www.dws.state.nm.us.

Hispano Chamber announces scholarship program

The Hispano Chamber of Commerce de Las Cruces Education Committee announced April 4 a new college scholarship program. These scholarships are for graduating seniors from the high schools serving Doña Ana County who are seeking a college degree at either Doña Ana Community College or New Mexico State University. Students must earn their high school diploma no earlier than May.

Scholarship recipients are selected on a number of criteria: academic record, potential to succeed, leadership, participation in community activities, honors and work experience.

For more information on how to apply for this scholarship, contact your high school counselor or the Hispano Chamber at 524-8900. The deadline to apply is Tuesday, April 30.

NMSU committee searching for next DACC president

New Mexico State University has selected members of a search committee for the next president of Doña Ana Community College.

NMSU Interim President Manuel Pacheco said the committee represents an important cross-section of people from the community and university who will bring excellent perspective to the process.

Current DACC President Margie Huerta will retire in January 2014.

Bernadette Montoya, vice president for Student Affairs and Enrollment Management for NMSU Las Cruces, will serve as the chair of the search effort. Previously, Montoya held a similar position in student affairs at DACC.

Don 'Diego' Kelly: Organizing the farmers market

Don 'Diego' takes new gig

Editor's note: Don Kelly is corporate president of the Farmers & Crafts Market of Las Cruces Inc., the newly created corporation that will manage the market starting July 1.

Tell us about your "day jobs"?

I am mostly busy doing homework, however, when I work as the mission shelter director, I help connect people to resources, manage shelter operations, facilitate small groups and coordinate program activities.

In addition, I provide conflict coaching and mediation services through Peacemaker Services Inc.

What qualities/skills have you cultivated to enhance your performance in the workplace?

Over time, I have developed excellent public relations skills, policy development and implementation skills and financial management skills. In addition, I have strong presentation skills, public speaking skills, strong interpersonal skills, experience working in nonprofits with governmental interaction and grant writing skills.

Most memorable mentors, and the role they played in your pursuit of education and career goals?

When I was with Dispute Resolution Services of North Texas, I met Bob Good, a retired Army major who flew helicopters in Vietnam. At the time, he was the executive director of the organization. I was having trouble with several groups of people while on the city council and he gave me a quote from Teddy Roosevelt: "It is not the critic who counts: not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles or where the doer of deeds could have done better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood, who strives valiantly, who errs and comes up short again and again ..."

I keep this quote in my wallet.

When did you start as a vendor at the Farmers Market and why?

I started a number of years ago. Radio wasn't working out in that I thought radio was more about the common good, but I was wrong. Also, radio wasn't paying very well. Mostly though, I wanted to make myself available to my radio fans. A friend loaned me the money to start the kettle corn business and the rest is history.

In what capacities have you been active in the market?

At first, I was just one of numerous vendors at the market. As time went by, a small group started to formalize by creating a market council. After attending one of the meetings, I remember thinking there were many side issues that were creating distraction. I spoke with one of the members about this and ended up being asked to help. The mediator in me couldn't refuse and I was elected to the council by the vendors in my block at the market.

What has been your role in the market's transition process?

The council came together and decided to incorporate in 2012. The new corporate board elected me as their president. I have worked with the board to develop by-laws, policies and procedures, a Memorandum of Agreement with the city, board protocol and standing committees.

How do you envision the market evolving in its new incarnation as a vendor-run corporation? What are your goals as president?

In my opinion, the market will be in a position to achieve much more in the way of service to the community. By having those who have a stake in the success of managing the market, we can be much more responsive to problems, ensure greater quality control, provide more flexibility in event development and make available a greater venue for hearing the voices of all stakeholders who have a vested interest in the success of "Mainstreet Downtown."

Business as usual

NM economic development policies not working

Chris Erickson
State of the Economy

I'm beginning to think that the Economic Development Department (EDD) should be called the Department of Corporate Welfare.

A search of EDD's website finds 25 programs that subsidize business. There are programs for aerospace, for sustainable solar buildings; there is a deduction for gross receipts tax paid on software purchased by businesses in rural areas; there is an exemption from New Mexico income taxes for residents of Texas working within 20 miles of the Mexico border; etc. The list goes on and on.

Then there is the biggest corporate giveaway of all, which is the film credit. This monstrosity spends millions to attract film productions to New Mexico that are here today and gone tomorrow when the film wraps production. It's a very expensive way to create jobs.

The sad thing is that there is very little evidence that any of these programs work. The oldest of them, dating back to the early '70s, is the Job Training Incentive Program, which subsidizes newly created manufacturing jobs. But despite 40 years of incentives, New Mexico still lags in manufacturing jobs. State per capita income remains stuck at 80 percent or so of the national average.

Yet Santa Fe is offering very little in new ideas. Economic Development Secretary Jon Barela, speaking at a Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance (MVEDA) luncheon recently, touted the administration's achievements during the just ended legislative session. It was just more of the same.

Incentives just don't work. Never have, never will. In part, this is because there is always another community that can outbid us. And we should be glad that they do, as often had they not outbid us, we would have been stuck overpaying for job creation.

A case in point is the recent "loss" of an IBM facility to Baton Rouge. That city put together a $30 million package to attract 800 jobs. Really? That's $37,500 per job. Thank goodness New Mexico wasn't willing to pay that silly price.

What incentives do is divert resources away from programs that are known to promote economic development – education, infrastructure and amenities. Businesses like well-educated workers, good roads and nice parks. Why do you think it is that Denver has been so successful despite a state constitution that prohibits business giveaways?

We need to start to think differently about economic development. One idea would be to adopt a European-style apprentice program. Employers who hire new high school graduates would receive a payment equivalent to what we now give community colleges per student. In exchange for this, students would work four days a week and attend classes the other day.

If the employer hires into permanent jobs, say, three-fourths of their apprentices, they get to keep the subsidy. Otherwise, they would have to refund the state. Thus employers, realizing that the apprentices they are taking on will usually become permanent employees, will have an incentive to training well.

This is the system, more or less, that is in place in Europe and has worked well. And it's enough different that New Mexico will stand out when looking for a place to set up business. We wouldn't be competing head to head against states with more resources than we who are willing to spend ridiculous amounts to attract jobs.

Christopher A. Erickson, Ph.D., is a professor of economics at NMSU. He teaches in the NMSU economic development program. The views expressed may not be shared by the regents or administration of NMSU. Erickson can be reached at cherrick@nmsu.edu.

Median home prices up

Area Q-1 sales price rises for first time in 5-years

Gary Sandler's
Real Estate Connection

Not since the first quarter of 2008 has the median price of the new and existing homes sold in the Las Cruces area exceeded the prior year's median price.

Between 2007 and 2008, the median price of the new and existing homes, townhomes and condominiums sold during the first three-months of the year rose by $2,500, from $185,000 to $187,500. From that time until now, prices either declined or remained unchanged.

During the first quarter of this year, Las Cruces sellers enjoyed a median price of $152,250, up $7,350, from the $144,900 median price posted in the first quarter of 2012.

The median price is where half sold for more and half sold for less. A rise in the median price means that sellers are realizing more sales, indicating that the market may be strengthening. Higher median prices could also mean that lower-priced homes are selling out and leaving fewer affordable homes in the inventory.

This good news comes on the heels of years of falling prices. Since our market hit its peak in 2008, the median price achieved by Las Cruces sellers has fallen just over $35,000. An even more daunting statistic is the decline in the average sales price, which fell more than $59,000 during the same period.

A rise in the median price is a welcome improvement for first-time buyers and others who purchased their homes a few years ago and who currently owe more on their properties than they are worth. The added value will make it easier for those homeowners to sell or refinance as they dig out from their negative equity situations.

Another benefit of rising prices is the "trickle-up" theory. That's where current first-time home buyers purchase the homes of previous first-time buyers who, in turn, move up to a higher-priced replacement homes. Often, sellers of the higher priced replacement homes move up or down in price depending on whether their family size is increasing or decreasing.

“ A rise in the median price is a welcome improvement. ”

So is there a message here? I think so. If you've been waiting for home prices to scrape firmly along the bottom of the market floor, now is the time to act – particularly in the $150,000 and below range. I think the market will have to strengthen a bit more before prices begin to rise in the higher priced segments. Either way, I hope it's not too long until I ... See you at closing.

Downtown Las Cruces Partnership

The Downtown Las Cruces Partnership would like to welcome John Hummer, owner and broker of Steinborn & Associates Real Estate, as our newest board member.

He will be filling the vacancy of vice president for the DLCP board, as well as heading the development committee for the organization.

Hummer is a licensed broker in New Mexico, received his Certified Real Estate Broker designation and is a Certified Commercial Investment Member. Hummer is strongly committed to Downtown revitalization and will make an excellent addition to our team. He also is a member of the Downtown Roundtable.

Thanks to Andrea Lawrence, tourism sales manager with the Las Cruces Convention & Visitors Bureau, Downtown was the destination of a Mystery Tour, organized by AFC Vacations of San Diego. After many attempts to convince AFC to make Las Cruces a destination, her hard work finally paid off and we received 29 tourists from San Diego and San Antonio to the Downtown Art Ramble on Friday, April 5. They were impressed with the beauty of our Downtown, and a few had questions about the cost of living in Las Cruces. I told them Las Cruces was a great place to live.

The DLCP Avenue Art committee is ramping up for another fantastic street art festival. This year's event is set for 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, April 27, on Main Street south of Griggs Avenue. So far, 22 contestants have applied and the caliber of work is quite impressive. This year the committee has increased the categories with an addition of a youth group for grade school and junior high students.

The event will take place during the Las Cruces Farmers & Crafts Market, so bring the entire family to enjoy the day. There will even be a kid's chalk area for budding chalk artists to try this exciting medium. The event is free to attend.

Grant County youth mural program beautifies the area and grows appreciation for the arts

By Charlotte Tallman
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

The Mimbres Region Arts Council (MRAC) is working to make sure future generations have a grounded and well-rounded appreciation of how the arts affect everyday life with help from the Devasthali Family Foundation Fund.

The MRAC recently received a $2,000 grant from the Devasthali Family Foundation Fund to create two murals in Grant County.

"With this funding, we are going to reach many people, both students and community members alike, through these murals," said Faye McCalmont, director of the MRAC.

"This program allows us to connect students in kindergarten through high school with artists. That connection allows our youth to have a greater appreciation for the arts."

Grant County youth take part in the planning, designing and production of murals

A mural from the Silver City Skate Park, created during the two-week MRAC Youth Mural Camp in July 2010.

in the region with the help of Diana Ingalls Leyba, program coordinator for the mural program, and artists Marilyn Gendron, Cecilia Stanford, Carlene Roters, Kate Brown, Fred Barraza, Beth Menzcer, Kathryn Allen, Melanie Zipin and Zoe Wolfe. Hundreds of students have been involved in the youth mural program over the past nine years, creating 30 murals throughout Grant County. In the past, the program has received funding from New Mexico Arts, the National Endowment for the Arts and local sponsors.

"We are grateful for the funding from the Devasthali Foundation. The funding allows us to continue on with our mission and make a greater impact in the community," McCalmont said.

The Devasthali Family Foundation Fund, a fund within the Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico (CFSNM), reflects the Devasthali family's passion for the arts and compassion for humanity. The fund provides grants for arts organizations, including visual, performing and literary arts; educational programs, including vocational and higher education schools and elder care and senior social services organizations. organizations in Doña Ana, Luna, Hidalgo, Sierra, Grants, Lincoln and Otero counties.

For 33 years, the MRAC has provided quality visual, performing and youth arts programs that serve and strengthen the community.

The council offers quality programs that foster an appreciation and understanding of the arts, serve as a resource for artists and cultural entrepreneurs and positively impact the area's economy by creating and supporting events and experiences that enhance the region's appeal as a premier destination. Along with the youth mural program, the council programs include a performance series, Indie/Folk series, youth outreach performances, public sculpture program, artist lecture series, two free music festivals and PNM Fine Arts Fridays Program. Signature events and special sponsorship opportunities include the Blues Festival, Pickamania! And Chocolate Fantasia.

The Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico is dedicated to helping the Southern New Mexico community now, and in the future. Founded in 2000, the Community Foundation offers opportunities for local people who want to give back locally. The Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico can advise you on how best to maximize contributions, no matter what size. Adapting to drought

Grants to help farms and ranches build resilience to extreme water shortage

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack announced on April 4 the award of $5.3 million in Conservation Innovation Grants to develop approaches and technology that will help producers adapt to extreme climate changes that cause drought.

These grants will fund projects benefiting several states that were significantly impacted by last year's drought. The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) remains focused on carrying out its mission, despite a time of significant budget uncertainty. The announcement is one part of the department's efforts to strengthen the rural economy.

"USDA is working diligently to help American farmers and ranchers rebound from last year's drought and prepare for future times of climatic extremes," Vilsack said. "Conservation Innovation Grants are an excellent way to invest in new technology and approaches that will help our farmers, ranchers and rural communities be more resilient in the future."

The grants will address drought-related issues such as grazing management, warm season forage systems, irrigation strategies and innovative cropping systems.

Recipients plan to evaluate innovative, field-based conservation technologies and approaches, leading to improvements like enhancing soil's ability to hold water, evaluating irrigation water use and installing grazing systems that are more tolerant to drought.

Among the projects included are four grazing management demonstrations in South Dakota and Nebraska, computer programs for linking weather stations with irrigation scheduling in Texas and the adaptation of irrigated cropping systems in the Central Plains to drought.

Also included is a $640,000 grant to evaluate how traditional/historical practices aided Native American tribes in dealing with drought, developing a best practices database and using that information for training and demonstration projects. The grant will support 57 tribes in 19 states, including New Mexico.

NRCS has offered this grant program since 2004, investing in ways to demonstrate and transfer efficient and environmentally friendly farming and ranching practices. This specific announcement of program funding was in response to last year's historic drought.

Conservation Innovation Grants projects are funded by the Environmental Quality Incentives Program and awarded through a competitive grants process. At least 50 percent of the total cost of projects must come from non-federal matching funds, including cash and in-kind contributions provided by the grant recipient.

Retirement May Be Far Off, But the April 15 Deadline for IRA Contributions Isn't.

You have only so many years to prepare for retirement. That's why contributing to your Individual Retirement Account (IRA) is so important. Fortunately, you still have time to maximize your 2012 IRA contribution before the April 15 deadline.

By contributing now, your retirement savings can have more opportunity to grow. Even if you already have an IRA elsewhere, it's easy to transfer it to an Edward Jones IRA and begin receiving the face-to-face guidance you deserve.

To learn more about the advantages of an Edward Jones IRA, call or visit today.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Serving those who served

Free business development breakfast, workshops offered for veterans

Military veterans who want to start their own business or expand an existing operation are invited to attend free Business Development Breakfasts and Workshops on Tuesday, April 23, in Las Cruces and Wednesday, April 24, in Deming.

Both workshops are from 7:30 to 9 a.m. The April 23 Las Cruces workshop will be held at the Hilton Garden Inn, 2550 Don Roser Drive (near University Ave. and Interstate 25). The April 24 Deming workshop will be held at the Holiday Inn, 4600 E. Pine Street.

The workshops are presented by the New Mexico Department of Veterans' Services, the New Mexico Veterans' Business Outreach Center (VBOC), the U.S. Small Business Administration, the New Mexico Small Business Development Center (SBDC), the SBDC Procurement Technical Assistance Program, the Deming/Luna Chamber of Commerce, the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce, SCORE and Wells Fargo Bank.

A free breakfast will be served at the workshops, during which New Mexico VBOC Director Joseph Long and representatives from partnering agencies will present information on how the agencies can help veterans succeed with starting and expanding their own businesses.

Among the topics to be covered are: How to determine if a business idea is feasible, available financial assistance for veterans, special business incentives for New Mexico veterans, how to create a business plan, how to pursue government contracting possibilities, veteran-friendly franchise opportunities and other ways the VBOC and the presenting partners can help a veteran business owner.

"This is a great opportunity for veterans to learn how to successfully start or grow their own business," said VBOC Director Joseph Long. "If you've ever wanted to be your own boss – and be successful at it – then this is the event to attend."

After the workshops, veterans can take advantage of free private "walk-in" business consultation sessions from 9 to 11 a.m. to discuss their own business matters.

The VBOC was created by the New Mexico Department of Veterans' Services to help veteran-owned businesses. It was the first such state-funded center in the nation created specifically to help veterans. It is administered by the Small Business Administration and managed by the New Mexico Department of Veterans' Services. It was established through a federal grant to assist military veterans with their business development needs.

New Mexico's VBOC is located in Albuquerque, but provides service to any veteran statewide. It is one of only fifteen VBOC offices in the country.

For more information, contact Danelle Jimenez at the New Mexico Veterans' Business Outreach Center (VBOC) at danelle.jimenez@state.nm.us or 505-383-2403.

Profile

As president, I hope to keep the board focused on the steps necessary for us to achieve the goal of taking over the market July 1. In addition, I hope to help the board solidify the framework for working together as a viable team for the future.

What is the farmer market's role in the emerging Mesilla Valley economy?

The farmers market contributes by strengthening the community environment and having an entrepreneurial framework. It is an example of what can be done when people are willing to compromise and work toward something that benefits us all.

What do you enjoy doing locally when you have time off?

I enjoy going to movies, theater, festivals, going out to eat, church, watching community baseball leagues play, volunteering for nonprofit groups and traveling in New Mexico.

Where to you take out of town guests when they visit?

I like to take guests to La Posta restaurant, Andele's restaurant, Aguirre Springs, San Augustine Pass, Old Mesilla, NMSU and the Farmers & Crafts Market.

Why is life good in Las Cruces?

There is so much to do in Las Cruces, the people are friendly, the weather is mostly perfect (the wind aside) and there is so much culture here and in southern New Mexico.

What would you like Las Cruces to know about you?

I believe in Christ, and I believe that people mostly want to do the right thing.

I love selling kettle corn at the Farmers & Crafts Market because I love to see people smile when they taste it and the new "Green Chile Kettle Corn" is uniquely suited for Las Cruces.

the described property; if the street address does not match the legal description, then the property being sold herein is the property more particularly described above, not the property located at the street address; any prospective purchaser at the sale is given notice that it should verify the location and address of the property being sold. Said sale will be made pursuant to the judgment entered on January 14, 2013 in the above entitled and numbered cause, which was a suit to foreclose a mortgage held by the above Plaintiff and wherein Plaintiff was adjudged to have a lien against the above-described real estate in the sum of $97,042.15 plus interest from December 4, 2012 to the date of sale at a variable rate per year, the costs of sale, including the Special Master's fee, publication costs, and Plaintiff's costs expended for taxes, insurance, and keeping the property in good repair. Plaintiff has the right to bid at such sale and submit its bid verbally or in writing. The Plaintiff may apply all or any part of its judgment to the purchase price in lieu of cash.

At the date and time stated above, the Special Master may postpone the sale to such later date and time as the Special Master may specify.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that this sale may be subject to a bankruptcy filing, a pay off, a reinstatement or any other condition that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, at the time of sale, this sale will be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Special Master and the mortgagee giving this notice shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the real property and improvements concerned with herein will be sold subject to any and all patent reservations, easements, all recorded and unrecorded liens not foreclosed herein, and all recorded and unrecorded special assessments and taxes that may be due. Plaintiff and its attorneys disclaim all responsibility for, and the purchaser at the sale takes the property subject to, the valuation of the property by the County Assessor as real or personal property, affixture of any mobile or manufactured home to the land, deactivation of title to a mobile or manufactured home on the property, if any, environmental contamination on the property, if any, and zoning violations concerning the property, if any.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the purchaser at such sale shall take title to the above-described real property subject to rights of redemption.

The amount of such interest to the date of sale will be $1,433.66. The Plaintiff and/or its assignees has the right to bid at such sale and submit its bid verbally or in writing. The Plaintiff may apply all or any part of its judgment to the purchase price in lieu of cash. The sale may be postponed and rescheduled at the discretion of the Special Master.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the real property and improvements concerned with herein will be sold subject to any and all patent reservations, easements, all recorded and unrecorded liens not foreclosed herein, and all recorded and unrecorded special assessments and taxes that may be due. Plaintiff and its attorneys disclaim all responsibility for, and the purchaser at the sale takes the property subject to, the valuation of the property by the County Assessor as real or personal property, affixture of any mobile or manufactured home to the land, deactivation of title to a mobile or manufactured home on the property, if any, environmental contamination on the property, if any, and zoning violations concerning the property, if any.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the purchaser at such sale shall take title to the above described real property subject to a one month right of redemption.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to the Judgment in Favor of Plaintiff entered on March 22, 2013, the undersigned Special Master will sell at public auction, for cash or certified funds, at the hour of 10:00 a.m. on May 1, 2013, at the front steps of the Doña Ana County District Courthouse at 201 W. Picacho Ave., Las Cruces, New Mexico 88005, the real property situated in Doña Ana County, New Mexico described as follows:

LOT NUMBERED TWO-B OF HONDO TRACTS NO. 4 REPLAT #1, DOÑA ANA COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, AS THE SAME IS SHOWN AND DESIGNATED ON THE PLAT OF SAID HONDO TRACTS NO. 4 REPLAT #1, FILED IN THE OFFICE OF THE COUNTY CLERK OF DOÑA ANA COUNTY, NEW MEXICO ON AUGUST 1, 1988 IN PLAT BOOK 15, FOLIO 287.

(the "property"), which is commonly known as 9636 Dragonfly Avenue, Las Cruces, New Mexico 88012 (if there is any discrepancy between the property address and the legal description, the legal description shall control).

The property will be sold subject to rights of redemption; easements, reservations and restrictions of record; taxes and governmental assessments; any liens or encumbrances not foreclosed in this proceeding; the valuation of the property by the County Assessor as real or personal property; affixture of any mobile or manufactured home to the land; deactivation of title to a mobile or manufactured home on the property; environmental contamination, if any; and zoning violations concerning the property, if any. No representation is made as to the validity of the rights of ingress and egress. Transfer of title to the highest bidder shall be without warranty or representation of any kind. ALL PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS AT THE SALE ARE ADVISED TO MAKE THEIR OWN EXAMINATION OF TITLE AND TO CONSULT THEIR OWN ATTORNEY BEFORE BIDDING.

This action is a suit to foreclose a mortgage secured by the real property described above. The total amount awarded by the Judgment to Vanderbilt Mortgage and Finance, Inc., with interest to the date of sale, is $84,624.72; plus its costs and attorney fees through the date of sale of the property and any amounts advanced by Vanderbilt Mortgage and Finance, Inc. to protect its interest in the property before sale, including insurance, maintenance, taxes, assessments or other expenses relating to the property.

The proceeds from the judicial sale will be applied first to the payment of the costs and expenses of the sale; then to the payment of the Judgment in favor of Vanderbilt Mortgage and Finance, Inc., including additional fees, costs and expenses as stated in the foregoing paragraph. Any excess funds shall be deposited with the Clerk of Court. Vanderbilt Mortgage and Finance, Inc. may apply all or a portion of its judgment towards the purchase price. Otherwise, terms of sale shall be cash or certified funds.

The best little fest in the West

KRUXFEST offers students and community food, fun and music

By Zak Hansen
Las Cruces Bulletin

For more than 20 years, beginning in 1992, only one music festival has given crowds of eager fans the opportunity to see great alternative local, national and even international musicians and bands, without ever having to leave the Mesilla Valley (or spend their paycheck or financial aid for tickets).

KRUXFEST 2013 opens at 6 p.m. Friday, April 19, at The Game Sports Bar & Grill, 2605 S. Espina St., thanks to the hard work of the KRUX 91.5 FM staff and their dedication to keeping local music alive in Las Cruces.

This year's KRUXFEST kicks off with a meet-and-greet with the five acts scheduled to play – Alister M, The Vision, Arcadian, Second Class Citizens and Janet Ann – as well as KRUX-FM staff members.

Free and open to the public, the event will feature an acoustic “rumble” between a few of Las Cruces’ finest singer-songwriters including Matt Morgan, KT Neely and Kris Koerper, as well as free food for New Mexico State University students who have their student ID.

“KRUX is the only area student-run college radio station offering a strong diversity of musical genres and alternative programming.”

After festivalgoers have eaten and had a chance to mingle with musicians, there will be free – and safe – rides to the night's entertainment.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m., a free shuttle will be available to take KRUXFESTers (21 and older) from The Game to Hurricane Alley, 1490 Missouri Ave., where the evening's performances will be held. The shuttle will run between venues until 9:30 p.m.

At 9 p.m., the music kicks off at Hurricane Alley. The five rockin' locals mentioned above will play in a “battle of the bands” style competition, and fan support will decide the victor.

“Everyone walking in the door will vote on who they are there to support and see,” said Jonathan Goke, general manager at KRUX-FM, “and at the end of the night, the top three acts will receive a cash prize.”

In between sets and closing out the night's festivities, KRUX student DJ Aaron Rodriguez – aka Aaron Scene – will perform a DJ set. Cover at Hurricane Alley will be $6, and $4 for NMSU students with ID.

In a break from the tradition of the past several years – in which KRUXFEST brought national and international acts to stages around Las Cruces – KRUX staff decided to focus this year's event on the oft-overlooked talent found right here at home in the Mesilla Valley.

“KRUXFEST is a great opportunity for everyone in the community to support really talented local artists and their music,” Arrieta said.

After receiving numerous submissions from local musicians and artists, KRUX staff members assessed entries on sound quality, genre fit, presentation and experience. After the review process, five local acts stood out.

“All the bands chosen to perform represent quality area talent,” Arrieta said. “Each band has honed their sound to an impressive degree in their respective genres.”

Arrieta said she feels the bands chosen are not only talented musicians, but important to the burgeoning music scene we have here in the City of the Crosses.

“We chose bands we feel have clearly been working hard to make and support progress for music happening and being made in the Las Cruces area,” she said.

“KRUXFEST is a huge chance for Las Cruces to discover the diversity of music being made and happening in our city.”

Taken for a ride Las Cruces native releases novel on 1930s Hollywood

By Zak Hansen
Las Cruces Bulletin

Steven M. Painter will hold a book signing for his novel "Take Her for a Ride" at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, April 13, at Barnes & Noble Booksellers in Mesilla Valley Mall, 700 S. Telshor Blvd.

Born in Denver, Painter arrived in Las Cruces at 6 weeks old, where he would spend his formative years, graduating from Oñate High School in 2004.

After finishing high school, he attended the University of New Mexico, where he studied journalism, and later earned his master's degree in film studies from the University of Arizona in Tucson, Ariz., where he currently resides. Between his times spent at UNM and U of A, Painter worked as a reporter for the Woodward News in Woodward, Okla.

While studying film, Painter focused his research on the films and culture of the 1930s, the heyday of the studio system, the birth of the Production Code and the dawn of the so-called "golden age" of film, which lasted through the 1940s.

"Once you get past the black and white – and the fact that every actor on-screen is long dead – it really comes down to the basic human condition those films portrayed," Painter said of Hollywood's golden age.

"You don't see that in most movies being made today, those human stories – love, loss, happiness, all of those. The film studios then worked without this huge amount of money for special effects, so they relied on characters, on stories, on the human element."

Painter has fully embraced his love of '30s culture in his novel "Take Her for a Ride," which follows film producer Paul Russell, desperate to save the studio from certain financial ruin. Russell sets to work with little more than a stack of horror scripts, a lot full of old, unused sets and a handful of unknown actors. As the novel opens, Russell has just acquired the rights to "Dracula," but the studio is demanding the lead be the unavailable and contractually limited Lon Cheney Jr.

Meanwhile, Russell's girlfriend, aspiring actress Lillian Nelson, is eager to make it in Hollywood on her own – without the help of her producer boyfriend.

Lillian, who began her life in Oklahoma City – once much smaller than today – before traveling to Hollywood, is in part inspired by Painter's own time spent in the Mesilla Valley.

"A lot of her background is based on my time growing up in Las Cruces," he said. "There's only so much you can get from a textbook or a history book, so you have to rely on some of your own experiences."

Working in the genre of historical novel – which often revolves around fictional characters and stories taking place in a world populated by real people, places, things and happenings – was interesting to Painter.

"Unlike, say, a novel set in medieval times, some of the characters in this book have well-documented lives – and living relatives," he said.

Painter didn't rely on Hollywood's brightest era for setting alone – "Take Her for a Ride" is written in a style known to those familiar with the era.

"It's got a level of romance in it, but 'Take Her for a Ride' is written in the hard-boiled, pulp novel style of the time," Painter said. "The style will appeal to mystery or detective fans, even though it's not a mystery novel."

Populated with some of the studio era's best and brightest – including James Cagney, Bela Lugosi, Boris Karloff and Jack Warner – "Take Her for a Ride" should appeal not only to devotees of '30s culture; with its mix of genres, the

'Twelve Angry Men' delivers the drama

Review by Gerald M. Kane

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

After attending the opening night production of Reginald Rose's important and searing commentary on the roles prejudice and social justice play in our society, 1954's "Twelve Angry Men," I was reminded of the title of a song in Rodgers and Hammerstein's classic "The King and I" – "It's a Puzzlement!"

Which is more preferable? If one had the ability to stream "Twelve Angry Men," the iconic film starring Henry Fonda, Lee J. Cobb and Ed Begley, among others, in the privacy of one's home, or attend the live performance of the show brought to life by local, skilled actors, what should a potential Las Cruces Community Theatre audience member do?

For me, the answer is a no brainer: Watching the classic film in the privacy of one's home may have its advantages, but the "magic" only can take place when we are sitting among members of our community and feeling their passion and discomfort, laughing at the same humorous lines and squirming in our seats as we encounter sections of the play which may force us to be uncomfortable.

If one is a thinking person who believes in the fairness of our justice system, seeing this live production seated among members of our diverse community is something to strongly consider. Of course Henry Fonda's portrayal of "juror nine" stands out in cinematic history, but there are reasons that outweigh a decision to sit in the audience in Las Cruces and feel the variety of emotions that emanate from the stage and circulate through the theater, most especially due to the electrifying performance of Patrick Payne.

First of all, I am one of the loudest cheerleaders in town supporting the role of live theater. There is a magic that transpires when the "chemistry" between actors and audience connect. One can't fully express that chemistry in words.

Also, we need to be there to encourage new talent and provide opportunities for established actors in our community to express themselves.

In this case, I must commend the entire cast for eliciting a sense of spontaneity as they deliver their lines in rapid fire. Kudos to director Joe Pfeiffer for setting the proper pace to keep the tension high and the play moving along.

I wasn't familiar with the work of Payne until I saw him amble into the theater in LCCT's opening production of "When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder?" He scared me. He literally sent shivers down my spine. This actor is magic. Payne is an outstanding director as well. He knows how to play to his audience and thankfully, knows how to project.

In the pivotal role in "Twelve Angry Men," he is the catalyst who makes things happen. He is the one juror in the play who does not believe that the verdict is just, and is able, through his skill, to turn the rest of the jury around.

Others in the cast are strong in their performances, but alas, I could not hear a portion of dialogue because the acoustics in the theater could use a "boost." LCCT board members ought to address this issue in a community with an aging population with varying degrees of hearing loss. It may be too costly to "loop" the theater for the hearing impaired, but I do know that this issue must be addressed in order for audience members to hear the nuances and arguments in this "thinking persons' play."

At one key point in the action, a racist diatribe delivered by juror 10, portrayed strongly and effectively by Jake Burnham, turns the jury around. Sitting in a primarily Hispanic audience and hearing these stereotypes uttered made audience members clearly uncomfortable. I think that watching this production in Las Cruces, surrounded by a strong, vibrant Hispanic community, made the diatribe and its response on stage even more powerful.

In sum, please make reservations to see this important drama. It deals with issues close to home and stirs our sense of social justice that is percolating so strong in every corner of this blessed country.

Share the experience with our community. It's an investment worth making and sustaining.

"Twelve Angry Men" shows at 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays and at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoons at the Las Cruces Community Theatre, 313 N. Main St., through Sunday, April 21. Tickets are $10 for adults, $9 for students, seniors and military, $8 for groups of 10 or more and $7 for children 6 and younger. Reservations for "Twelve Angry Men" can be made online at www.lcctnm.org, or by calling 523-1200.

Gerald Kane has reviewed theater, music, opera, film and books for NPR stations and newspapers in New Orleans, Phoenix and Kansas City as well as for the Las Cruces Bulletin. A former member of the American Theatre Critics Association, he is the Rabbi Emeritus of Temple Beth-El in Las Cruces and teaches "Jews on Screen" at NMSU.

Diversity Day in Doña Ana County

Community college celebrates cultures with daylong festivities

By Zak Hansen

Las Cruces Bulletin

Doña Ana Community College celebrates diversity week with Diversity Day from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday, April 18.

Co-sponsored by the Cultural Diversity Committee faculty group, the Pride and Diversity Alliance student organization and the DACC Student Activities group, Diversity Day is a morning, afternoon and evening filled with food, fun, a geocaching and scavenger hunt, performances and discussions commemorating the cultural diversity found at DACC and, to a larger extent, Las Cruces.

"We want to expose students to cultures they may not be familiar with, that don't often involve the Southwest," said Kurt Depner, associate professor of English at DACC and area chair of the Pedagogies and the Profession Area of the Southwest Texas Popular and American Culture Association.

The celebration begins at 11 a.m., when scavenger hunt participants check in and receive their "passport."

"The scavenger hunt is a new event this year," Depner said. "A passport will be issued the morning. Participants will take it to various offices across the campus. At each office, hunters will receive stickers in their books and answer questions in them. At the end of the day, whoever has the most stamps and answered the most questions wins."

From 11 to 11:30 a.m., Harvey Daiho, founder and Abbott of the Order of Clear Mind Zen in Las Cruces, will give a presentation on Zen Buddhism. Following the presentation, DACC instructor Cher Guerrero will give a demonstration on Tai Chi, an ancient Chinese martial art practiced for its numerous health benefits as well as a form of self defense.

At 12:30 p.m., an authentic Korean lunch will be graciously provided by Kim Chi House, Las Cruces' stop for "authentic Korean Seoul food."

After lunch, DACC theater arts students will give a demonstration on the Priority One Program from 1 to 2 p.m.

Next on the agenda, the New Mexico State University unit of the Confucius Center will lecture on Chinese culture from 2 to 3 p.m. The Confucius Institute is a nonprofit public institution that aims to promote Chinese language and culture and facilitate cultural exchanges between China and other countries around the world.

Following the presentation is a performance by award-winning Las Cruces musician Randy Granger, who will bring his unique blend of Native American and World music to the stage from 3 to 4 p.m.

From 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., there will be a performance of jazz and big band favorites by Bob Burns and the Mesilla Valley Jazz ensemble. Since 2006, the Mesilla Valley Jazz & Blues Society has promoted an appreciation of the jazz and blues art forms and dedicated itself to increasing opportunities and exposure for established and aspiring musicians alike.

Scavenger hunters take note: Campus buildings close at 5 p.m., at which time this portion of the search must be finished.

At 5:30 p.m., chefs from Mix Pacific Rim will give a sushi rolling demonstration, schooling Las Cruces' budding "itamae" (sushi chefs) on the tricks of the trade.

After working up an appetite watching the masters in action, close the evening with an authentic Japanese dinner courtesy of the Mix. During this time, winners of the scavenger hunt will be announced and prizes will be awarded.

"People who come will have an educational and entertaining time, and it's all free," Depner said. "We've got a really talented bunch of local performers."

Aside from all the fun, Diversity Day is about more than just entertainment. According to Depner, "Diversity Day is really an opportunity to meet new people, learn about other cultures – and eat some great food."

Caliche's Frozen Custard, 131 S. Roadrunner Parkway, stands as a beacon of hope for Las Cruces wanting to cool down on those hot summer nights right around the corner.

Caliche's is the hot place to cool off

By Zak Hansen
Las Cruces Bulletin

As spring blows its way into the Mesilla Valley, it's certain to bring with it two things: wind and heat.

For the first one, sadly I have no remedy – especially on these April afternoons with gusts in the 40 mph and higher range – but to beat the heat, no one in town has got what you need like Caliche's Frozen Custard, with two locations conveniently serving both the eastern and western sides of Las Cruces, 590 S. Valley Drive and 131 S. Roadrunner Parkway, as well as a third location in Alamogordo, 2251 N. White Sands Blvd.

Once upon a time – and this may severely date me – Las Cruces turned to Scoopy's for all their frozen custard needs and, personally, I had a lot of frozen custard needs – that stuff is delicious.

Frozen custard – a sweet, frozen treat similar to ice cream, but made with egg yolk in addition to sugar and cream – was invented at Coney Island around the beginning of the 19th century.

Ice cream vendors at the booming turn-of-the-century amusement park found that adding egg yolks to ice cream made their treats smoother, fattier (meaning tastier) and stay cold longer – just about everything you'd want from a chilly confection to combat the summer sun.

Sure, there's some science behind exactly why frozen custard tastes so good – higher butterfat content (10 to 16 percent) than traditional ice cream (a measly 10 percent), lower serving temperature (18 to 19 degrees) than ice cream (20 to 22 degrees), lower “over-run,” or amount of air in the product, than ice cream and a legal requirement (that's right, by law) of no less than 1.4 percent egg yolk solids – but none of that really matters when you take a bite. It may come in handy someday, though, and you'll be thanking me then. (“Oh,” you'll say with a sigh of relief, “thank goodness I knew about the relative over-runs of frozen custard versus traditional ice cream, or surely we'd have been lost at sea,” or something like that.)

Chemistry and – ugh – science aside, what really matters is the taste, and Caliche's has more than got that covered.

Several years ago, Scoopy's became Caliche's, but the change was in name only – their reputation of offering some of the sweetest treats in town remains unaltered. Their homemade frozen custard, made fresh daily (as custard must be), comes in two classic flavors – vanilla and chocolate – ready to combine with just about any topping to your heart's content.

Speaking of toppings: Be ready to be overwhelmed, as Caliche's offers just about anything you could ever want on a sundae – and a few things you'd never know you wanted, too.

All the standards are here, divided into four easy categories: fruity (strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, mangos, etc.), nutty (peanuts, salted pecans, pistachios, almonds, etc.), candy (cookie dough, Reese's peanut butter cups, Butterfinger, Snickers, etc.) and saucy (peanut butter, hot fudge, caramel, butterscotch, etc.). All told, there are more than 40 items to choose from, including one you'd never expect – anywhere but in the Southwest, that is.

That's right, ladies and gentlemen: Direct from Hatch, the chile capital of the world, Caliche's Frozen Custard offers adventurous patrons a green chile sundae. Good luck finding that one at the Wonder Wheel.

Caliche's menu features a number of signature sundaes, including the top-selling Gizmo – rich vanilla custard mixed with hot fudge, caramel and a heaping helping of salted (or unsalted, if you must) pecans – and the Straw-Anna – vanilla custard, fresh strawberries and bananas – a perfect taste of spring.

If none of Caliche's classic or specialty sundaes grab you, feel free to make your own – just don't get lost looking at the toppings.

There's more than just frozen custard at Caliche's, though. They offer thirst-quenching iced teas made with bits of fresh fruit, Nathan's Famous gourmet hot dogs and sandwiches and even that most New Mexican of savory snacks, Frito Pie. (Seriously, try to order that somewhere else.)

If you plan on stopping into Caliche's this summer to cool down – and I recommend heartily that you do so – there's someone special you should bring along.

No, it's not me (unless you're offering and, in which case, yes please) – it's your favorite four-legged friend: Caliche's offers a complimentary pooch cone to well-behaved dogs.

Whether you're looking for a quick bite for lunch or a relaxing way to cool down at night – for you or your canine companion – Caliche's Frozen Custard is the place to be this summer.

Dead by dawn

'Evil Dead' is a splatter spectacular

Review by Zak Hansen
Las Cruces Bulletin

The 1981 horror classic "Evil Dead" changed the face of horror and began what is generally regarded as the largest cult film series in history.

The original film, shot on a shoestring budget, not only redefined the genre, but launched the careers of director Sam Raimi – who would later go on to direct the cult classics and "Evil Dead" sequels "Evil Dead 2" and "Army of Darkness" as well as the hugely successful "Spider-Man" trilogy and, most recently, "Oz the Great and Powerful," among others – and B-movie star Bruce Campbell, who seems to have achieved the perfect level of celebrity: a luminary to fans and an unknown to the rest of the world. I bet he can still do his own grocery shopping.

"Evil Dead" was made for almost nothing – Raimi has said that he nearly "begged" for investments – but upon release became wildly successful, grossing more than $2.4 million at the box office, roughly eight times its original budget.

Production, as those involved have said, was a nightmare. Filmed on location in the remote Morristown, Tenn., the filming process was riddled with mistakes, mishaps and cast and crew injuries.

The crew got lost in the woods on the first day of shooting, there were technical difficulties and injuries throughout and, by the last day on location, after days without showers on top of poor weather and illness, conditions had become so miserable on location that crew and cast members began burning the furniture inside the cabin to stay warm. Campbell later remarked that the filming of "Evil Dead" was "12 weeks of mirthless exercise in agony," though he later said he enjoyed the process nonetheless.

All of these obstacles (no budget, inexperienced actors, terrible weather, poorly improvised special effects) are, in my mind, all the things that make "Evil Dead" such a triumph of horror. In the face of all of these difficulties, Raimi managed to make a true horror classic. His film was the epitome of camp: gross but never grim, funny but never jokey, each and every 35 mm frame filled to the brim with gore.

When the remake of "Evil Dead" was announced, fans – including myself – took to message boards and social media platforms in either enthusiastic support of or virulent protest against their beloved horror classic receiving some new blood – pun very much intended. With a budget of more than $17 million, what would remain intact of Raimi's low-budget classic, and what would fall by the studio wayside?

I, like many, was skeptical, after seeing one too many beloved children's classics (I had much older cousins) bastardized by greedy Hollywood moguls. Now, months after the release of the initial – and hideously graphic – trailer, "Evil Dead" has splattered on to screens everywhere, and it's a bloody mess – in a good way.

For those unfamiliar with the 1981 "Evil Dead," the new film follows roughly the same premise. Five friends head out to a remote cabin in the woods, enter a spooky cellar full of dead animals and uncover the Naturom Demonto – the Necronomicon, or Sumerian "book of the dead." Ignoring the protestations scrawled through the book – as horror movie teens invariably do – one reads an incantation from the unholy tome and unleashes a demon. Curiosity and cats, eh?

Let's get something clear, here: If you and your friends ever come across a book bound in human flesh, penned in blood, chock full of pentagrams and horrific images of torture and savagery, skip the translations, yes?

From there, things get ugly. Really ugly. The demon possesses the teens one by one, starting with Mia – already not quite herself due to some heavy-duty opiate withdrawals.

It's hard to tell where Mia's withdrawals end and the possession begins, but it probably starts with her attempted escape into the woods, where she's assaulted – in a very unpleasant way – by the branches and vines of a tree.

Once her four friends bring her back to the cabin, it's an all-out splatter fest, and the weak-stomached need not apply. "One must not put a loaded rifle on the stage if no one is thinking of firing it," wrote Russian playwright Anton Chekov, a metaphor for the dramatic principle of foreshadowing.

Within the first act of "Evil Dead," audiences have seen, among other items, a box cutter, a shotgun, a large syringe, a crowbar, an electric carving knife, a chainsaw and a nail gun. Rest assured, they'll be put to good – and grotesque – use.

While "Evil Dead" has lots to offer moviegoers unaware of the '80s classic, at its core, it's a movie made for fans. Director Fede Alvarez has peppered his reboot with loving throwbacks to the original film – check for the Michigan State sweater and Ash's 1973 Oldsmobile Delta 88, now rusted away outside the cabin – while maintaining enough of his own vision to avoid a simple retreat.

Audiences more used to contemporary (read: not very good) horror cinema – more spook than splatter, more ghosts than gore – may want to skip "Evil Dead." For fans of all things icky, sticky and red, though, "Evil Dead" provides more than enough mid-spring carnage to whet the bloody appetites of gore hounds everywhere.

'Quartet' doesn't hit all the right notes

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

"I wish I was a messenger and all the news was good..." – Pearl Jam

Unfortunately, that's not quite the case with "Quartet."

The beautiful Ellie Caulkins Opera House in downtown Denver was packed last November for the Red Carpet Starz Denver Film Festival screening of "Quartet," the first film directed by actor Dustin Hoffman.

The venue seats 2,225, and unless there were seats upstairs or behind me that I couldn't see, it was sold out.

I love this festival, and one of the best things about it is going to opening night or a special screening at the Caulkins. Everyone, except me, dresses up. I was able to view all of the current styles for all ages of women – short black dresses and tall boots – that warmish evening last year and many of the men were dapperly dressed as well.

The introduction of the films at the Caulkins can be a bit long, since they often involve sponsors or special guests. In the past, I have seen the director of the indie hit "Precious," the young man whose story is told in the harrowing "127 Hours" and director Jason Reitman and screenwriter Diablo Cody for a special showing of "Juno," as well.

Sadly, no guests this year, but the big announcement was that the Denver Film Society, which hosts the festival received a $2.5 million gift from the Anna and John Sie Foundation. The Sies live in Denver and John Sie was the founder of Starz, the huge entertainment network.

The film had already drawn a lot of support from those thinking that it would be in the same vein as the "made for geezers" film, "The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel," which did remarkably well at the box office. Additionally, it has a cast of known British actors and, believe me, no matter where you live in the U.S., a comedy with known British actors always brings out the folks that are in or approaching my age – 90 "Quartet," for me, was a disappointment, the main problem being that the story was pretty awkward and rather predictable and the dialogue was terribly hard to understand.

The script takes place entirely in a rather posh British retirement home for aging musicians. Three of the main characters, all former opera singers, are already there, and the anxiously await the fourth, played by veteran Maggie Smith. Smith, as Jean, was once married to Reggie, but things didn't go well and lasted as long as a Mickey Rooney marriage. Jean is quite the prima donna, not at all wanting to be assigned to this, this house of geezers. Why, she still has plenty of good years of operatic performance in her! Never mind sitting around this, this knitting circle of losers. Harumph!

Ah, but as always things aren't as they seem. Reggie and his two co-conspirators, Wilf and Cissy, are determined to have Jean perform at the home's annual gala, wherein everyone participates in a pleasant fund raising event.

Reggie is a dandy, Wilf is a lecher and Cissy is on the verge of Alzheimer's. But by combining their forces, they know they can out maneuver Jean and get her to help out.

The problems with this film are multiple. First, as Roger Ebert pointed out, it loses a bit since the gala is not to help "save the home," but rather just an opportunity for everyone to perform again. There is also the tired storyline, which is unconvincing, and not to forget that the characters are standard issue. There's nothing new here and that's a shame, since they all work hard with poor material.

"Quartet" is not a bad film; it is just not very exciting or refreshing. It will be a pleasant outing for you, but by breakfast the next day, you'll have forgotten it.

Local home builders display their best

Spring Showcase of Homes returns to the Mesilla Valley

By Beth Sitzler
Las Cruces Bulletin

In the real estate industry, the warmer months of spring typically bring out people searching for a new place to call home, and those on the hunt are in luck, thanks to the Spring Showcase of Homes.

Held by the Las Cruces Home Builders Association, the 31st annual Spring Showcase of Homes will be Friday through Sunday, April 19-21, and Thursday through Sunday, April 25-28, throughout the city.

"People can expect to see the latest style and designs and the latest features and amenities built by the best builders in southern New Mexico," said Spring Showcase of Homes Chair Kimball Hakes.

This year, the show will feature 30 homes constructed by 15 local builders.

"Over the last couple of years, we've relaxed on our requirements a bit," said Steve Chavira, LCHBA managing director. "A few of the homes are existing homes and one was previously featured in the showcase, but they've all been built within the last five years."

"All of the homes are gorgeous examples of home building in Las Cruces," Hakes said.

Various styles will be represented during the showcase, including the unique architecture found in southern New Mexico.

"We have very distinct architecture," said Hakes, adding that builders and builder representatives will be at the homes to answer questions. "It's a blend of pueblo-adobe style with Spanish-colonial style. It's really unique architecture."

"Along with the architecture, every year there are new elements and materials that we get to showcase."

A strong element featured during the 2013 showcase will be green building and architecture, Chavira said, adding that visitors can learn about these items as they tour the homes.

New trends will be featured this year, from layout to location.

"Homes have really opened up," Hakes said. "The great room concept is bigger. ... They have a good, warm feeling that people all want. Outdoor living spaces are also big. Buyers want to utilize their outdoor living space."

Several of the homes featured are in the East Mesa area, where a lot of the city's activities have been in recent years, Chavira said.

"From Lohman (Avenue) up to (U.S.) Highway 70, you'll see a lot of growth," said Hakes, attributing much of this growth to its proximity to White Sands Missile Range and Holloman Air Force Base.

"(But growth) is happening everywhere. There are new, great neighborhoods all over the city."

From behind "A" Mountain and near the Organ Mountains down to Mesilla and Picacho Hills, the entire city of Las Cruces will be covered during the Spring Showcase of Homes.

In addition to style and location, there will also be homes in a variety of price ranges and sizes to fit anyone's needs.

"The bulk of the homes are in the $200,000 to $300,000 price range, but they're all across the spectrum," said Chavira, adding that homes range from $100,000 to $1.5 million. "Every level of buyer will have a home."

A new feature of the showcase is the twilight tour, which will take place from 4 to 9 p.m. Thursday, April 25. During the tour, 25 of the homes will be opened to showcase their lighting elements and evening features.

"We've done this in the past, and we're bringing it back in a strong way this year," Chavira said. "We wanted to give another perspective of what the homes look like. You visit these homes during the day, so you never get to know what they look like at night. Plus, this gives our suppliers and lighting contractors an opportunity to be showcased."

Over the years, the Spring Showcase of Homes has generated much business for local homebuilders, and has become a popular event that even people from out of town look forward to.

"It's an event people know about," Hakes said. "It generates enthusiasm and interest. People come from all over the country to see our showcase of homes."

Chavira said he has received phone calls from people as far away as the East Coast requesting information about the showcase.

"People really know the showcase and its quality," he said.

Hakes added that bringing people from out of town or state to explore the area doesn't just benefit the local homebuilders.

"Las Cruces has so many advantages because of our climate, location and affordability. And home building and real estate in Las Cruces are key components to the local community," he said. "Any time we can showcase that it's a huge benefit to the entire community."

The showcase will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Fridays, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturdays and noon to 5 p.m. Sundays.

The Spring Showcase of Homes magazine, which has a map of the tour and information on the homes featured, is now available and can be picked up around town at various banks, lending institutions, real estate offices, Village Inn, Lowe's Home Improvement and the LCHBA office, 2825 N. Main St.

"It's free of charge and open to the public," Chavira said. "They can go to our websites and learn more about the builders and the tour. They can also call here, too."

The lemon's delicious uses

This tangy fruit isn't such a bad thing after all

By Beth Sitzler

Las Cruces Bulletin

The lemon sure has a bad rap.

After all, sayings such as "When life hands you lemons, make lemonade" and "That (fill in the blank) is a lemon," would make one believe the lemon is some sort of hardship that should be avoided. This is far from the truth.

The tart tree fruit is full of citric acid, calcium, magnesium, vitamin C and limonene, all of which can boost your immune system and help you fight off infections.

It is also beneficial to those trying to lose weight. Studies have shown that lemons can help lower the absorption of sugars because of their high acidic content. Also, those who consume large amounts of vitamin C are less likely to gain weight than those who don't.

The tang of a lemon is also a great addition to a variety of foods. Just about everything from fish to asparagus can be enhanced by a squirt of lemon juice.

In addition to its nutritional benefits and endless culinary uses, the lemon is a fantastic for another reason – all the things it can do around the house.

1. Remove the stink from your cat box:

Loving your pet feline doesn't have to come with a smelly price. Skip those aerosol air fresheners and face masks and get rid of that unwanted odor from its cat box with a lemon. Cut a few lemons in half and place them cut side up in a dish in the room with the cat box. The air will be filled with the fresh scent of lemon, not cat litter.

2. Polish chrome: Mineral deposits can collect on your chrome faucets and other items. Get rid of them and polish these objects by rubbing the lemon rind over the surface. Rise well and dry with a soft cloth and you'll be left with a shiny finish.

3. Stop vegetables from browning: While boiled potatoes and cauliflower can be a tasty addition to your diet, the unsightly brown color they turn can be unappetizing. This doesn't have to be the case, however, when you have lemons on hand. Keep these vegetables white by squeezing a teaspoon of fresh lemon juice in the water while they cook.

4. Keep guacamole green: Potatoes and cauliflower aren't the only vegetables you have to worry about turning brown – avocados are also common victims. After slicing your avocado, the surface exposed to air will begin to turn brown – not very appealing, especially when whipping up a batch of homemade guacamole. Help your guacamole stay green by adding a liberal amount of lemon juice to the mix. Lemon juice stops avocados – as well as apples, pears and bananas – from turning brown thanks to its ascorbic acid.

5. Stop your rice from sticking: Sticky rice has its time and place, and sometimes it's not on your dinner plate. Prevent your rice from clumping together by adding a spoonful of fresh lemon juice to your boiling water when cooking. When the rice is done and has cooled for a few minutes, fluff it with a fork and it will be ready to serve.

6. Deodorize your cutting boards: After prolonged use, your cutting board will begin to smell. This might seem like something you have to live with, due to the onions, garlic, meat, fish and other pungent food your board encounters, but there is hope. Get rid of these unwanted smells by rubbing the board with the cut side of half a lemon.

7. Revive limp lettuce: Your soggy lettuce doesn't have to be destined for the trash can if you have a lemon around. Squeeze the juice from half a lemon into a bowl of cold water. Submerge the lettuce in the solution and place it into the refrigerator for an hour. Dry the leaves completely before putting using in a salad or sandwich.

8. Get out underarm stains: White shirts can be a welcome addition to any wardrobe. Unfortunately, over time the inevitable yellowing of the underarm area will take place. Thanks to lemons, however, you'll be able to raise your arms without worry or embarrassment. Mix together equal parts lemon juice and water. Use the solution to scrub the yellowed area and wash the garment as usual. You'll notice a difference in the stain.

9. Freshen your garbage disposal: If a foul smell has emerged from your garbage can, get rid of it with lemon. Add a few slices or peels now the drain, run the water and flip on the garbage disposal. A fresh fragrance will be dispensed from your garbage disposal. This is a great trick for those leftover lemon slices and saves them from the dumpster.

10. Remove stains from marble: Marble is a porous stone, making it easy to stain. It can be hard to remove stains from marble – good thing there is the lemon. For your tough marble stains, cut a lemon in half and dip the cut end into table salt. Vigorously rub it onto the stain. Rinse well and the stain will be gone. Because the acid in the lemon can damage the marble, do this on only those overwhelmingly stubborn stains.

11. Deodorize a humidifier: Living in the Southwest, land of sand, dirt and plenty of wind, your home is most likely equipped with a humidifier to moisten the dry air. After time and use, your humidifier can develop an unpleasant odor. Remedy the situation by pouring 3 to 4 teaspoons of lemon juice into the water. A more pleasant, lemony fresh smell will be emitted. Do this every few weeks.

Living Green

The Las Cruces Home Builders Association's annual Spring Showcase of Homes begins Friday, April 19, and continues that weekend and next.

Be sure to schedule time to see the homes over one of the two showcase weekends. We really have a great community of homebuilders in Las Cruces and I don't think you can match the quality and value anywhere else in the state.

While you are enjoying these 30 beautiful homes, keep in mind that seven of the homes on tour are also certified energy efficient and green. I am sure that this is a record for the number of green and efficient homes available during our Las Cruces showcase.

Flair Custom Home Builders have been a pioneer in construction of Energy Star-certified homes in southern New Mexico and have completed more Energy Star homes than any other active builder in the area. Flair continues the trend with two homes on tour, one in White Sage at Sonoma Ranch and the other in Corazon del Valle in the north valley.

Veloz Homes' showcase entry at 4248 Canterra Arc is an example of this builder's Energy Star-certified product option. This home utilizes an energy and material efficient offset wall frame structure and boasts a very respectable Home Energy Rating index of 58.

Kyle Schueller at Schueller Homes continues to add to his list of Build Green New Mexico (BGNM) certified projects with the new home at 4476 Maricopa Circle in Sonoma Ranch East. BGNM homes must meet stringent guidelines for low energy use while also meeting requirements for low water use, healthy indoor air quality, value protecting site selection and smart use of building materials.

The other BGNM certified entry is from Coyle & Associates. David Coyle is a National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) certified green builder. The Insulated Concrete Form (ICF) home at 2551 Mesilla Hills is a beautiful example of how ICF construction provides exceptional structural and thermal performance with no tradeoff in design.

when you walk through its LEED for Homes platinum and Energy Star 3.0 certified homes in the new Metro Verde NAHB Sustainable subdivision.

Emmanuel Dominguez and Javier Cabrera call on a wealth of design and engineering experience throughout the construction of their structural insulated panel (SIP) homes. SIP is an advanced wall design that uses simple plywood and polystyrene insulation sandwich panels to create structural walls and ceilings that are stronger and far more thermally efficient than standard wood framed construction.

Similar to BuildBGNM, but probably more recognized in the architectural community, LEED-H rigorously requires green best practices are implemented at each stage of construction. NetSolar achieved LEED platinum with the showcase entry at 3602 San Clemente Ave. and is targeting platinum for 3655 Santa Cecilia as well. LEED platinum is recognized as the pinnacle of green and energy-efficient building.

Home Energy Rating indexes on these NetSolar homes that include solar photovoltaic electric production range from 30 down to 20.

Spend some time in these green and efficient homes. Talk to the builders about the low utility costs that their customers pay. Smell the air in these homes and slam the doors – you will see that this is not just a fad but a great way to design and build homes.

Miles Dyson is the owner of Inspection Connection LC - Professional Home Energy Rating and Home Inspection Services in Mesilla Park and can be reached at 202-2457. Dyson is a RESNET certified Home Energy Rater and ASHI certified Home Inspector. For more information, visit www.icenergyrate.com.

“Spend time in these green and efficient homes.”

Hakes Brothers Construction held a golf tournament to benefit the March of Dimes Thursday, April 4, at Sonoma Ranch Golf Course. The event raised more than $7,000 for the organization, which helped Chris Hakes and his wife, Francisca, after their twins were born prematurely. "It was a world we never understood – there are so many resources," he said. "We felt very blessed by the whole situation and wanted to give back."

Time for asparagus

Sunny Conley
Chile Knights

April is peak season for asparagus, so on my last trip to the grocery store, I purchased 2 pounds.

To keep them fresh, I plunged the stalks in about 2 inches of water in a tall jar, covering the tips in a damp paper towel. Now they'll stay fresh and crisp for three to four days, giving me ample time to consider which recipes I'll whip up over the next few days.

Asparagus can be steamed, stir-fried, roasted, blanched, nuked, grilled and eaten raw. When selecting asparagus, and if they're available, opt for stalks with the largest diameter – they offer the best quality. The key to great tasting asparagus is to not overcook it. Mushy asparagus not only appears less than appetizing but it tastes flat.

A few years ago, I published a recipe for a sandwich wrap, which received plenty of positive feedback.

Espárragos Medley Wrap with Pine Nuts

- 1 package oversized flour tortillas, lard free
- 1 pound asparagus, steamed
- 1 large and firm red bell pepper, stemmed, seeded and julienned
- 1 medium onion, sliced paper thin
- 6 roasted, peeled and de-veined plump Sandia (or other favorite) chile, cut lengthwise
- 1/2 pound of asadero or Monterey Jack cheese, sliced thin
- 1/2 cup pine (piñon) nuts

- (roasted tastes best)
- Fat-free sour cream
- Fresh or dried parsley or cilantro
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Steam asparagus, preferably resting in a vegetable steamer, until just tender or until it offers a slight resistance when bitten into. Set aside. Place a flour tortilla on a microwaveable dinner plate. Put three pieces of cheese across the center of the tortilla. Wrap a chile slab around a bundle of five slender asparagus stalks, use fewer if asparagus is chubby. Place bundle in center of tortilla. Top with bell pepper and onion.

Scatter tortilla with parsley and pine nuts. Roll tortilla into a burrito. Microwave until just heated through and cheese begins to melt. Top with two or three dollops of sour cream and garnish with Parmesan sprinkles and two or three cilantro sprigs. For additional color, add a bell pepper sliver. Repeat with remaining tortillas. S Makes about 6 servings.

Spicy Sweet Chunky Asparagus Salsa

- 1/2 pound asparagus spears
- 1/4 cup orange marmalade
- 2 tablespoons jalapeño peppers, minced
- 2 tablespoons fresh cilantro, chopped
- 1 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 3/4 cup fresh pineapple, coarsely chopped (or substitute an 8-ounce can of pineapple chunks, drained)
- 1/2 cup seeded orange sections, coarsely chopped

Diagonally slice asparagus spears into small pieces. In large skillet, stir fry asparagus with 2 tablespoons water just until color intensifies, 1 to 2 minutes. Drain; rinse with cold water, drain well and set aside. In a medium bowl, stir together orange marmalade, jalapeño pepper, cilantro, vinegar and garlic salt. Add asparagus, pineapple and orange and gently toss together until coated. Chill at least 30 minutes before serving. Makes 2 1/2 cups.

- 1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 6 ounces Vermicelli or angel hair pasta, cooked and drained

Asparagus Pasta Stir Fry

- 1 pound asparagus, trimmed
- 1/2 cup onion, sliced
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon fresh ginger root, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Diagonally slice asparagus into 1 1/2- to 2-inch pieces. Stir-fry asparagus and onion until crispy tender. Add seasonings and mix well. Add cooked pasta and stir-fry until thoroughly heated and evenly mixed. Makes 6 servings.

Don't forget the iris show

Annual event held Saturday at Mesilla Valley Mall

Bulletin Staff Report

Both participants and spectators will have a chance to see brightly colored blossoms grown in the area during the 40th annual Mesilla Valley Iris Show Saturday, April 13, at Mesilla Valley Mall, 700 S. Telshor Blvd.

Presented by Mesilla Valley Iris Society, an affiliate of the American Iris Society (AIS), the show will line the area outside of the Cineport 10 beginning at 8 a.m., when participants are asked to drop off their prize-worthy perennials.

"Anyone can participate, as long as they have the name of the iris, the name of the hybridizer and the date it was introduced," said Cynthia Wilson, chair of the local iris show. "And you have to have grown it yourself."

Wes Wilson, a member of iris society, said entries will be gathered until 10:30 a.m. and members will be on hand to help show participants display their specimens. There will be a variety of categories for both youth and adults to enter.

"We're always encouraging youth to participate and grow irises," Cynthia Wilson said.

After the entries have been gathered, a panel of six judges will inspect the flowers from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The public will be able to view the flowers from 1 to 6 p.m., and the awards will be distributed at 5 p.m.

There is no limit to how many iris can be entered, said Cynthia Wilson, adding that one Mesilla Valley Iris Society member previously entered 50.

"We had a couple hundred entries last year," she said.

When it comes to judging, the panel of six, who are certified by AIS, will be looking for "the perfect flower for its species," Wes Wilson said. Every piece of the flower will be evaluated, from the shape of the petals to the branching along the stalk.

For more information about the iris show or society, email mvis.newsletter@comcast.net or visit www.aisregion23.com/aisregion23/MVIS.

The Music at St. Paul's concert series will continue with a performance by the Percussion Ensemble from New Mexico State University at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 14, at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 225 W. Griggs Ave. For more information, call 526-6689.

SUMMER FARMERS MARKET
Girls Ministries at First Assembly of God is sponsoring an outdoor Summer Farmers Market/Arts and Crafts Fair Saturday, May 4, at the church, 5605 Bataan Memorial West. Cost is $25 per space until Monday, April 29, and includes an 8-foot table and two chairs. A $5 late fee will be added after this date. All proceeds will go to their missions project "Samuel's House" in Venezuela. If you would like to reserve a space, contact Mary Helen Gonzalez at 524-0654, ext. 101.

YARD SALE
University Methodist Church, 2000 Locust St., will hold a Trunk Treasure yard sale from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday, April 20. For more information, call 522-8220.

SALAD LUNCH
Women of St. Paul's will sponsor a salad luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday, April 24, at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 225 W. Griggs Ave. The salad buffet will include fresh greens, potato salad, pasta salad, fruit salad, assorted vegetables and chicken breast. Cost is $7 and tickets are available at the door. Proceeds will benefit local mission projects, including La Casa Inc., Jardin de los Niños and the Las Cruces Gospel Rescue Mission. For more information, call 526-6689.

ECKANKAR EVENT
Eckankar, Religion of the Light and Sound of God, will hold a free event from 11 a.m. to noon Saturday, April 27, at Funky Karma, 3207 S. Main St. The theme will be "Past Lives."

TEMPLE BETH-EL EDUCATIONAL EVENT
Temple Beth-El, 3980 Sonoma Springs Ave., will host "Mexican Exiles and the Jewish Experience" at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 28. Carlos Spector, eminent Jewish Hispanic attorney who specializes in immigration law in El Paso, will examine the parallels between the world's indifference to repression of Jews in the pre-World War II era to that of Mexicans today seeking asylum in the U.S. For more information, contact 652-3124 or wanderingjeb@gmail.com.

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER
National Day of Prayer is Thursday, May 2. Festivities will kick off with a Prayer Breakfast at 6:45 to 8:30 a.m. at the Las Cruces Home Builders Association, 2825 N. Main St. The full breakfast buffet is $15, and tickets will be sold at the door. The day will continue with a proclamation and prayer at 12:05 to 1 p.m. at City Hall, 400 N. Main St. Admission is free and complimentary sandwiches, fruit and water will be provided. The festival will end with a Praise Concert by Myra Green from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at The Dream Center, 1400 N. Sixth St. Admission is free but a free will offering will be collected. CDs will be available for free. Prayer tents will be stationed at both Walmart locations and City Hall throughout the day. For more information, call 523-1272.

LC FIRST SATURDAY SERVICE
Las Cruces First, 5605 Bataan Memorial West, will begin holding services at 5:30 p.m. Saturdays to accommodate those who can't attend Sunday morning service. The Saturday services offer a casual and inviting setting with great worship, a timely message from the Lord and refreshments and fellowship at the end of every service. For more information, call 524-0654 or visit www.lascrucesfirst.org.

OPEN SPIRITUAL GROUP
The Association for Research and Enlightenment (ARE) Edgar Cayce Studies and General Spiritual Group hold group meetings from 10 a.m. to noon the first Sunday of each month. The meetings are hosted by local chapter leader Linda Aragon and are open to the public. Anyone seeking spiritual study, knowledge and awareness is encouraged to attend. For more information and location, call Aragon 382-6400.

GRIEF RECOVERY SUPPORT GROUP
If you've lost someone close to you or know someone who has, Grief Share is a special weekly support group held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursdays, at the Morning Star United Methodist Church, 2941 Morning Star Drive, Room 105. At Grief Share you will learn valuable information that will help you through this difficult time in your life. Each session stands alone. For more information or to register, call the church office at 521-3770. Jackie Sledge at 915-525-2575 or Jim Maxon at 532-9699.

lead discussion on praying the Apostles Creed. Bring your Bible, a copy of the Catechism of the Catholic church (available for a small donation) and any "goodies" you'd like to share. There is no charge, but registration is required. For more information, call 523-0167.

STABAT MATER AT ST. PAUL'S
St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 225 W. Griggs Ave., is preparing a performance of Anton Dvorak's "Stabat Mater" at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 12. Douglas Weeks will be conducting the performance by choir, soloists, and orchestra of this beautiful late 19th century choral work. Singers from across the community regardless of affiliation are invited to sing this monumental work. Rehearsals will be at 8 p.m. Wednesdays in the choir room at St. Paul's with occasional Saturday afternoon rehearsal times. Scores will be provided. The work, which moves from grief to assurance, was intended for concert presentation rather than liturgical use. For more information, call 644-6999.

PEACE LUTHERAN PRAYER GROUPS
Peace Lutheran Church, 1701 Missouri Ave., offers two prayer groups. A centering prayer group meets weekly at 8 a.m. Saturdays for 20 to 30 minutes. Gathering for Prayer meets Monday afternoons from 4 to 5 p.m. For more information, call 522-7119.

The first five years are crucial

Rorie Measure
The Reading Solution

When we think of the most influential teachers in our lives, we often remember a special elementary, middle or high school teacher, a first boss or someone else who entered our lives at a pivotal moment.

Yet our first and most important teachers are often overlooked. They are those who care for us as babies and guide us through the first five years of life. Because these primary caregivers are our first teachers, their influence is more important than anyone who comes later.

Scientists now know that the fastest learning and most brain development occurs from birth to 5 years old. All future learning is built on this foundation. Yet parents may not recognize their role as their child's first and most important teacher.

First Teacher: Ready for Kindergarten, a new project in Las Cruces, addresses parents' need to understand child development and provides tools to promote their children's future success in school.

Parents with preschoolers are now "playing with a purpose" in 70 households as a result of unique parenting classes offered at three Las Cruces schools. Moms, dads and grandparents participated in a pilot program conducted by Children's Reading Foundation (CRF) of Doña Ana County.

Families with 3- and 4-year-old children residing in the enrollment districts of Conlee, Valley View and Jornada elementary schools were invited to enroll in a six-week early literacy program. Parents learned how their interactions with their preschoolers affect future success in school. Each hands-on session focused on a specific area of literacy and provided tools and books for the parents to use at home.

"Some parents assume that learning begins in kindergarten," said CRF Vice President Terry Miller. "Actually, a child is expected to enter kindergarten knowing numbers, colors, shapes and the names and sounds of letters. Without these skills, and without the shared experience of reading books at home, a child is at a disadvantage on the first day of kindergarten."

With funds provided by a grant from the Stocker Foundation, Miller, Ann Rohovec, CRF board secretary and myself created First-Teacher: Ready for Kindergarten specifically for parents in Doña Ana County.

Principals and teachers at the three elementary schools joined forces with Miller and Rohovec to work around parents' schedules by offering the classes on Thursday evenings and Saturday mornings. Participating teachers were Elizabeth McDonald, Kim Ortiz and

Living with Tourette's

Bringing awareness to the community

By Lorena Sanchez
Las Cruces Bulletin

"Obviously, it's been a blight on my existence for a while," said Joseph Ortiz, a Las Cruces High School (LCHS) senior and ambassador for the national Tourette Syndrome Association (TSA).

Ortiz, who has Tourette syndrome, was diagnosed with the neurological disorder when he was 8 years old.

"(Having Tourette's) prepares you," Ortiz said. "I can handle anything. I feel like I'm an adaptable person."

According to TSA, the disorder is characterized by involuntary "multiple motor and vocal tics lasting for more than one year. The first symptoms usually are involuntary movements (tics) of the face, arms, limbs or trunk. These tics are frequent, repetitive and rapid."

Tourette's affects all races and ethnic groups. Approximately 200,000 people are known to have Tourette's in the United States; however, the disorder can often go undiagnosed.

"It's genetic," Ortiz said. "You're born with the condition but it doesn't manifest until 6, 7 or 8 years old and gets worse around puberty. It diminishes after that. It calms down significantly when your hormones do."

Tourette's is diagnosed in those 18 or younger. Those with the disorder tend to have one vocal tic and one motor tic.

"They change frequently," Ortiz said. "There aren't certain tics you get. It's a neural synapse, but there are commonalities – shaking hands, nodding of the head, Coprolalia."

During a speaking engagement at the Rio Grande Rotary Club Tuesday, March 19, Joseph Ortiz, who has Tourette syndrome, spoke about the disorder's symptoms and patterns.

One misconception people have about Tourette's is the prevalence of Coprolalia – an involuntary vocal tic that takes the form of curse words or something socially inappropriate such as offensive remarks, sexual comments or racist slurs – when in reality less than 15 percent of those with Tourette's develop it.

Ortiz admits that he has Coprolalia, however, as Ortiz explained before, tics can develop or change on their own.

"Another misconception that is that people who don't know you think you're slow, when it's actually an excess of neuro-energy," said Ortiz, adding that Tourette's manifests as a way for the brain to get the energy out.

"My AES facilitator used to say, 'Everyone has a curveball they have to deal with in life no matter how old they are, and you got yours early,'" Ortiz said.

His AES facilitator assured him that in the long run, it would help him better deal with

5K run held to remember Las Cruces

By Lorena Sanchez
Las Cruces Bulletin

It's a fight far too many people battle.

According to the National Cancer Institute, more than 1.6 million people in 2012 were estimated to receive a cancer diagnosis; of that number, 9,640 lived in New Mexico.

In 2012, it was estimated that of those with cancer, 577,190 would die as a result of their illness.

On May 6, 2012, Las Cruces resident Ginger Esparza passed away after battling pancreatic cancer.

Diagnosed in 2011, Esparza's cancer came "fast and furious," said her sister-in-law Rita Flores.

"She went (to the doctor) for an entirely different thing and they caught it," Flores said. "They gave her three to six months and she ended up living a year."

While Esparza was at Mesilla Valley Hospice, Flores witnessed the importance of caring not only for the patient, but their families.

"Ever since Ginger's diagnosis, we've heard so many stories of people or someone in the family affected by pancreatic cancer," said Flores, adding that she witnessed how understanding her husband's employers were to the situation and saw that other's with family members in hospice weren't as fortunate.

Flores got the idea to organize a race/walk in Esparza's honor and to raise proceeds for families who have loved ones with pancreatic cancer. With the help of family and friends, the race/walk came together.

Ginger's Race to the Rainbow 5K Run will be held 8 a.m. Sunday, May 5, at Barnett's Las Cruces Harley-Davidson, 2600 Lakeside Drive.

The race was named for Esparza's love of Hawaii, a place she had the privilege to often travel to for work.

"(The cancer) moved very quickly," said Flores. "She tried to work as long as she could. She wanted to have quality of life. Her and her brother, my husband, took a trip to Hawaii and then she passed."

Flores said, the family was grateful for the year they had with her, and that Esparza was able to do the things she wanted to.

Two hundred to 300 participants from Las Cruces and El Paso are expected to participate in the race/walk, which will begin and end at Harley-Davidson.

Medals and trophies will be awarded to the top finishers in each category. There is no age limit for those who want to participate.

"It's a fun race you can walk or run," Flores said. "It's all about raising money and awareness for families affected by cancer."

Festivities will include music and refreshments.

To register, visit www.raceadventureunlimited.com. The race/walk is a chip-timed event.

other obstacles that would come his way.

"A lot of people take for granted how easy it is (to do certain things)," Ortiz said. "There is so much I do that I have to hold back. It's hard to do even rudimentary things, but I manage. I have to work harder at everything. I try to be normal – cleverness and humor distracts."

Ortiz said he compensates for his disorder so he isn't memorable because of his disorder, but for his humor and wit.

"As omnipresent as it is, I kind of forget," Ortiz said. "There comes a point where you can't tell everyone you meet you have it, but there are situations where it is necessary, like at the beginning of every school year."

Some people don't know or understand what Tourette's is and thinks the tics are voluntary, Ortiz said.

"I know it doesn't make an easy first impression," he said.

Ortiz became involved with TSA after his neurologist referred him. Ortiz currently makes presentations educating people about Tourette's or how to educate people who have Tourette's.

"It's a national organization, but it doesn't get a lot of attention," Ortiz said. "I'm thinking of getting more involved with events. It's easy to feel alone. (Working with TSA) makes you realize people are going through the same thing."

Due to his responsibilities as an ambassador, Ortiz recently attended a TSA conference in Washington, D.C., and met other ambassadors with Tourette's from across the U.S.

"I can't describe what it's like to have Tourette's, and they know," said Ortiz, adding that no one really knows what it's like unless they have it.

"You'll be surprised by the kindness of people," he said. "Some people are cruel, but there are so many people who are very understanding."

Although Ortiz said he doesn't personally know anyone in Las Cruces with Tourette's, his work as an ambassador allowed him to meet a local elementary school boy who has the disorder. Ortiz spoke with administrators and teachers at the school to help them better understand Tourette's and make things easier for the student, who he hopes has an easier time than he did.

"If you have a kid with Tourette's, getting them to exercise and in a sport is a big thing," Ortiz said. "Playing an instrument, writing – any thing that focuses the brain (will help). Video games and TV are bad – stimulation is bad, creativity, creation is good."

At a young age, Ortiz became involved in swimming and competes on the LCHS swim team as the swim captain. He also is involved with the high school newspaper as the health and science writer and is involved in the theater program.

"Diagnosis is a weird road," Ortiz said. "It's nice to have an excuse, but there's no cure only treatment and sometimes those may not even work. Ultimately, it's what you make of it."

For more information about Tourette's, visit www.tsa-usa.org.

Knowing some parents may be unfamiliar with the expectations their children will face in kindergarten, CRF is committed to reaching parents who don't speak English or may have had only limited contact with schools in the past.

Veronica Carmona, a veteran community organizer, created a family focused campaign that includes home visits, follow-up phone calls and informational gatherings.

"We are determined to reach all parents, including those facing challenges that interfere with making education a priority," Rohovec said. "While the First Teacher program does not attempt to solve or even ameliorate the life problems of parents, the program was developed with a decided respect for the powerful forces in our parents' lives," Rohovec said.

Parent Maria Mendoza attended First Teacher sessions at Valley View.

"My child is using her imagination more and we are making reading more fun," Mendoza said. "She is learning shapes, colors, numbers, words and even sounds of the letters. We really make it fun when we read. I have enjoyed every class. And I think this really benefits parents and shows us how to be more of a teacher to our children by making reading fun for them. The teachers made this class fun and interesting."

CRF continues to grow throughout the community. There are many ways to get involved. Right now we are looking for warehouse space, volunteers to work with inventory and various office and computer tasks, people with strong backs to move boxes of books, as well as skilled fundraisers, grant writers and people who would enjoy reading to children this summer.

Rorie Measure serves on the Board of Directors of CRF-DA as director of public awareness. She is a reading specialist and train teachers. Contact Measure at roricr@gmail.com.

New senior fitness programs offered

$1 donation, age 60 or older to attend

The City of Las Cruces Senior Programs is offering three new health and wellness classes at various community centers in Las Cruces.

Chair exercises led by Lisa Ortega are offered from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, at the Eastside Community Center, 310 N. Tornillo St. Hatha Yoga, taught by Nora Bailey, is offered from 8:15 to 9:15 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, at Benavidez Center, 1045 S.

McClure Road. A new class is Tai-Chi, Moving for Better Balance, taught by Jason Shoberg from 8:15 to 9:15 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, at the Benavidez Center.

In addition to the three new classes, Senior Programs also offers Arthritis Foundation Aquatic Program classes from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, at the Regional Aquatic Center, 1401 E. Hadley Ave. Enhance Fitness from 8:45 to 9:45 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, at Munson Center, 975 S. Mesquite St., and Tai Chi: Moving for Better Balance classes are from 8:45 to 9:45 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, at Munson Center.

The City of Las Cruces Senior Programs receives funding from the Non-Metro Area Agency on Aging (NMAAA) for health and wellness classes. Each class offered is considered evidence based and all classes are funded in part under an agreement with the NMAAA, which requires Senior Programs to post a recommended donation of $1 per student, per class in support of the program. Participants must be 60 or older and a member of Senior Programs. Membership is free and cards are issued at Munson Center.

Title IIID of the Older Americans Act was established in 1987. It provides grants to states and territories based on their share of the population aged 60 and older for education and implementation activities that support healthy lifestyles and promote healthy behaviors. Such education and activities can reduce the need for more costly health care interventions. Priority is given to serving elders living in medically underserved areas, and to those who have the greatest economic need.

Transplantation is one of the most remarkable success stories in the history of medicine. Despite continuing advances in medicine and technology, the need for organs and tissue is vastly greater than the number available for transplantation. Currently, nearly 120,000 men, women and children are awaiting organ transplants in the United States. As of March 2013, there are 65,991 multicultural patients and 1,760 pediatric patients awaiting transplants. In 2011, 28,052 organ transplants were performed. In 2012 there were 14,013 organ donors. More than 1 million tissue transplants are done each year and the surgical need for tissue has been steadily rising. Anyone can be a potential donor regardless of age, race or medical history. All major religions in the United States support organ, eye and tissue donation and see it as the final act of love and generosity toward others. When you are on the waiting list for an organ, what really counts is the severity of your illness, time spent waiting, blood type and other important medical information. An open casket funeral is possible for organ, eye and tissue donors.

Health Briefs

Student nutrition art contest underway

The Las Cruces Public Schools Nutrition Services Department will sponsor two student art contests during the month of April.

The menu calendar art contest is for students in second, third and fourth grades.

Students are asked to draw or paint a picture that illustrates foods or agriculture of the Mesilla Valley. Entries are due Tuesday, April 30. The artwork of 11 winning students will be used to illustrate the pages of the 2013-14 LCPS elementary menu calendar. Each of the 11 winners will receive a cash prize and his or her artwork will be displayed at the Southern New Mexico State Fair.

Tresco hosts March of Dimes bowling event

Tresco Inc. has formed a team for the March for Babies walk set for Saturday, April 27, and will be raising money for the March of Dimes during the month of April.

Tresco will hold a bowling event from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Saturday, April 20, at Ten Pin Alley, 1201 E. Amador Ave. Teams of up to five people can register to participate by Monday, April 15.

For more information or to register, call Sylvia Washington at 527-4901 or Ruben Maynez 644-3502.

ASCMV seventh annual Mutt Show

The seventh annual Mutt Show, hosted by the Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley, is set for 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, April 20, at Young Park, 1905 E. Nevada Ave.

The Mutt Show contests will include prizes, and other festivities, such as Frisbee demonstrations, local dog groomers, adoptable dogs, free K-9 demonstrations, children's activities, a face painting booth, baked goods for purchase and raffles throughout the day.

As a reminder, due to disease control and the outbreak of Parvo, please do not bring any puppies 6 months old or younger to the Mutt Show.

TETWP asking for nominees

In recognition of the community's outstanding efforts and achievements, the New Mexico State University Aggies Are Tough Enough to Wear Pink committee would like to recognize individuals who have contributed each year to raise money and awareness for Cowboys for Cancer Research. The committee is actively seeking candidates for the first TETWP Outstanding Service Award.

- Nominees must:
- Be a member of the university community.
 - Have provided above-and-beyond service and support to the TETWP campaign in past years.
 - Have been directly involved for more than one campaign year.

Send nominations with the individuals name and a short description of their involvement or contribution to Megan Shannon at mshannon@nmsu.edu by Tuesday, April 30. The award will be presented at the TETWP Kick-off Oct. 14, on the NMSU campus.
