Mesilla cuts worker hours

GRT drop takes toll on tourist town's income

By Todd G. Dickson

Mesilla town trustees on Monday, Dec. 22, agreed to cut back the work week for the town's employees to try to avoid a projected deficit of more than $250,000 in its $1.3 million budget.

The shortfall facing Mesilla's municipal government is its heavy dependence on gross receipts taxes, which is primarily driven by tourist dollars.

Despite low gas prices, people aren't traveling as much, nor are people from the region frequenting the town's gift shops, galleries and restaurants as much as they used to.

"People aren't spending as much money as they did," lamented Trustee Carlos Arzabal Jr.

To save money on utilities, the town already switched over to a fourday work week, but with longer hours that still gave employees a full 40 hours each week. Instead of the longer hours, the four days that the town municipal offices are open will stick to the more common 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. schedule, said Mayor Michael Cadena. That will mean the town's 28 employees will be taking home pay for 32 hours, instead of the full 40.

Trustees called the decision very difficult, and they expressed sympathy for the difficulties this will put on the families of these who week for the the families of those who work for the town, as well as the time of the decision so close to Christmas.

Besides employees, the town's five department heads, the trustees and mayor, members of the town's planning, zoning and historical commission, and

'Continuing the Dream' fulfilled

Mesilla Valley Hospice reaches multi-million dollar goal

By Bethany Conway

Mesilla Valley Hospice will hold a press conference Monday, Dec. 29, to announce the completion of their "Continuing the Dream" expansion project.

Started three years ago when the nonprofit was facing constant shortages in available rooms and space, the campaign has taken more than $6 million of fundraising and 150 volunteers to complete.

Additions to the hospice campus will include a new in-home care center and several garden areas, as well as additions to the La Posada building, including a new kitchen, chapel, dining hall, staff gym, maintenance area, donor area and several patient rooms.

It will transform the 18-bed La Posada facility to a 30-bed facility, which will help the nonprofit to eliminate their waiting list.

The facility will also have four fully landscaped garden spaces for patients to enjoy.

We are the only self-standing hospice facility in the entire state of New Mexico, and have continued to be since 1998," Community Development Director Terra Van Winter said. "For our community of Doña Ana County to build this facility on community dollars to support a not-for-profit organization and to have this wonderful building, it's an attribute for the city to be proud of."

Officials pledge cooperation on future schools

City council, school board hold first joint session on growth

By Todd G. Dickson

Las Cruces Public Schools is preparing to build a new high school, middle school and elementary school over the next few years, and district officials gave city council a full briefing on those plans at a joint meeting Thursday, Dec. 18, with the school

As far as anyone could remember, it was the first joint meeting of the two governing bodies that at times in the past had chaffed at each other's plans and actions.
Officials from both the second-largest school district in the state and the secondlargest school system in New Mexico credited open communications from their new City Manager Terrence Moore and LCPS Superintendent Stan Rounds.

The two boards were first briefed on the future, fourth high school for the city, which will be located on Bureau of Land Management land leased to New Mexico State University near the state Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum off Dripping Springs Road.

Unlike Oñate High School, bringing the city into the early decision-making process should help the city be a partner in addressing issues such as road access, said board member Gene Gant. The building's problem with roads was its then remote ocation on the East Mesa.

Rounds said the school district will ask the city to annex the new, 100-acre high school in order to address infrastructure issues like roads, as well as tapping into city water and wastewater systems.

The boards were shown conceptual designs of the new high school and how site development will aim to control storm water runoff concerns – and possibly improve that problem at the adjacent Farm and Ranch Museum. With the neighboring museum, Rounds noted, there's been some talk of creating a future "cultural development."

Richard Branson and designer Burt Rutan walk aside the Virgin Mothership "Eve" in Mojave, Calif., on the eve of its official rollout on July 28, 2008. Last weekend, "Eve" successfully took a short maiden test flight. The aircraft will carry the SpaceShip2 for a high-altitude drop launch to take passengers on a rocket flight to suborbital space above Spaceport America, located 45 miles north of Las Cruces.

Mothership takes first flight

Spaceliner's carrier test called successful

By TODD G. DICKSON The Las Cruces Bulletin

The aircraft to carry Virgin Galactic's new fleet of spaceliners into the sky from Spaceport America successfully completed a short, maiden test flight Sunday, Dec. 21, above the Mojave Desert in California.

The Virgin Mothership "Eve" is a larger version of the first White Knight that carried SpaceShipOne for back-to-back suborbital flights to win the $10 million X PRIZE in 2004 as the first non-governmental system to reach space.

Billionaire Richard Branson bought the rights to develop the system into commercial use with Virgin Galactic, which will fly out of Spaceport America between Las Cruces and Truth or Consequences. The New Mexico project recently won its spaceport license from the Federal Aviation Administration.

The new mothership is made of composite materials and its design was conceived by aviation visionary Burt Rutan and his Mojave-based company Scaled Composites. The carrier is powered by four Pratt and Whitney PW308A turbofan engines and flew for an hour last Sunday morning.

According to SPACE.com, Virgin Galactic has on order five SpaceShipTwo rocket planes and two of the carrier craft, with options on more. When fully operational in 2010, Branson envisions Virgin Galactic flying about twice a day, carrying passengers who paid $200,000 to reach the edge of planet's atmosphere and gravity pull.

"It all went well ... all the big things worked well," Rutan told SPACE.com. "Overall, 99 percent on target and everybody is really happy."

In the test flight, the aircraft reached an altitude of 16,000 feet.

Christmas giving

The Christmas story

The timeless story of the birth of Jesus helps us reflect on love, peace and hope

By David McCollum

The Christmas season is a wonderful time for families and friends to gather, share gifts and enjoy traditional celebrations. Many of us will be attending special Christmas church services where we will once again hear the wonderful story of the birth of Christ.

Because the story is so powerful and important in our local culture, we are pleased to take this opportunity to share with our readers the Christmas story as related in the New King James version of the Holy Bible.

Christ Born of Mary

And it came to pass in those days that a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be registered. This census first took place while Quirinius was governing Syria. So all went to be registered, everyone to his own city.

Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem because he was of the house and lineage of David, to be registered with Mary, his betrothed wife, who

So was, that while they were there, the days were completed for her to be delivered. And she brought forth her firstborn Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling cloths, and laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

Glory in the Highest

Now there were shepherds living in the same country, shepherds living out in the fields, keeping watch over their flock by night. And behold, an angel of the Lord stood before them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were greatly afraid.

Then the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which will be to all people. For there is born to you this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord. And this will be the sign to you: You will find a Babe wrapped in swaddling cloths, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men!"

So it was, when the angels had gone away from them into heaven, that the shepherds said to one another, "Let us now go to Bethlehem and see this thing that has come to pass, which the Lord has made known to us."

And they came with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the Babe lying in a manger.

Now when they had seen Him, they made widely known the saying which was told them concerning this Child. And all those who heard it marveled at those things which were told them by the shepherds. But Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart

Then the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told to them.

Letters to the Editor

Continue Dobson column

We read a letter to the editor in your Dec. 19 issue of the Bulletin that was critical of James Dobson and his column. My husband and I are Christian public school teachers and parents who have appreciated his organization's books and other publications, radio programs, etc., for over 30 years now. We have always seen him as giving good counsel and as very loving. Never have we observed any of the objectionable characteristics the letter writer attributed to him. We feel his column offers very helpful advice for our community's families and hope that you will continue to run it in your paper.

KAREN and RANDY OLDHAM

Critic displays intolerance

Whether you were aware of it or not, you have printed (in the Dec. 19, letters to the editor) a perfect example of the observation, "if you don't like the message, kill the mes-

There was no attempt in the letter to show with reason and wisdom that Dr. Dobson's message is any way incorrect, dangerous or inappropriate.

Further, we have before us a perfect example also of the "tolerance" of those who dislike, oppose, or otherwise disdain truth or ideas of others which should be worthy at least of the courtesy of discussion. This is the very "sin" of which the author accuses Dobson.

He has not supported his argument with reasoned ideas, but has attributed to Dobson attitudes and objectives that exist only in the mind of Mr. Mastellone.

It is in the realm of free speech to hear all sides of the ideas and principles under discussion, not just one person's.

This is an example, also, of political correctness gone mad inasmuch as if one person, and one person only, is offended by the message, the message must be stopped and repudiated by any means necessary.

Keep up the good work

Do I advocate harming them? No! Leave them alone, vacation on spring break on Florida beaches. It has worked out fine for years, why start messing around with polar bears?

Did you know the top of the Empire State Building might have been at or below ice level once? The nearest beach to New Yorkers would have been about 180 miles to the east of New York Harbor. Polar bears were all over (literally) Manhattan, Staten Island, the Bronx, Brooklyn and we humans had nothing to do with it.

Some will say, "What about the methane gas release from lakes and the oceans?" Seismic burping caused by volcanic activity.

Better question why are we not harvesting it instead of ruining perfectly good corn to make about the same thing?

Jay Miller dreaming of a merry Santa Fe Christmas

Spending the Yule in Phoenix just a happy holiday

We'll be spending Christmas in Phoenix again this year. It's easier on the kids and grandkids. Besides our son-in-law always seems to be on call at Mayo Hospital on Christmas Dav.

The entire family would rather be in Santa Fe's snow, farolitos, pine trees and icicles. Someday it may start happening again but until then, we will have to muse along with Irving Berlin about the white Christmas we are missing.

The Arizona Biltmore Hotel in Phoenix claims Berlin wrote "White Christmas" while sitting beside its magnificent pool. The verse of the song mentions orange and palm trees swaying but it also mentions being in Los Angeles where Berlin spent time writing movie scores.

The Biltmore says Berlin also was known to stay at that hotel and write songs. The only reason he didn't say Phoenix is that it doesn't rhyme with much of anything. The Biltmore has been a landmark for nearly 80 years and has hosted many stars. Its pool is said to have been Marilyn Monroe's favorite. Many political events also are held there, including John McCain's election night party.

New Yorkers, of course, say Berlin wrote the song there despite the orange and palm tree references. They contend that since Berlin didn't read or write music, he composed on a piano, which would have been difficult by the pool.

Maybe Berlin wrote it both places. Since he wrote both words and music, he might have written the words by the Biltmore pool. Regardless, it has been the world's most popular song.

Berlin got the secular Christmas music tradition started on Tin Pan Alley with "White Christmas." Numerous others followed during the 1940s, mostly written by Jewish songwriters.

They weren't offended about Christmas. Many were immigrants, as was Berlin, and they were embracing everything American. And since America is majority Christian, they were willing to participate in the experience without partaking of the religious aspect.

But today the attitude seems to be different. We worry about offending others. "Happy holidays" has replaced 'Merry Christmas" in stores and in public places

The problem isn't that there is a law against Christmas greetings and Christmas displays. Maybe it is a fear that in our litigious society there will be court suits from non-Christians so its easier to save the hassle and back down.

There still are Christmas displays on public property but there will usually be a plastic reindeer or a Santa Claus thrown in. Three years ago, when New Mexico provided the tree for the U.S. Capitol, House Speaker Dennis Hastert decreed that it would be renamed the Capitol

Christmas Tree instead of the Capitol Holiday Tree. Actually, the observance of Christmas has had a mixed history in the United States. Early settlers on the East Coast strictly opposed Christmas celebrations because they encouraged public drunkenness, shooting JAY MILLER Inside the Capitol

And since the Bible doesn't mention Dec. 25, the date must have been derived from pagan customs. The attitude spread to mainstream churches. Throughout the 1800s, mainstream churches still were trying to hold the line on Christmas celebrations by not accepting the day as a holy one.

But gradually feelings began to change. Clement Clarke Moore's "Visit From St. Nicolas" at mid-century gave a family feeling to Christmas. Political cartoonist Thomas Nast's cartoons created an image of a jolly Santa who gave gifts to children.

By the early 1900s, the retail industry had caught on that Christmas could become a buying bonanza. It is now abundantly obvious where that has led.

Will Christmas always be celebrated in the manner it is now? Will tough economic times mean a long term deemphasis on compulsive buying? It appears that is what happened this year. Retail merchants are feeling a major pinch. And Christian churches are urging their congregations to find ways to make Christmas a more spiritual day.

Our nation always has had a dynamic society. Change could be coming.

Coaches should be judged by the content of their character

By MICHAEL SWICKARD
For the Las Cruces Bulletin

"I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character. - Martin Luther King, Jr.

This week the controversy is: "Will New Mexico State University hire a black football coach?" I am very offended by the question because it is illegal for government entities to use race as a method of making decisions. Decisions must be based on the content of their character.

More so, after 40 years of having white and black coaches, NMSU is still wit-less about NCAA Division I sports. It is not about skin color, nor is it about who NMSU picks as coach; rather, it is if the NMSU leaders have learned their lesson about the better-financed programs in football overwhelmingly winning against lesser-financed programs like NMSU.

The question that should have been asked is, "How much longer is NMSU going to play Texas and Nebraska, or in the WAC for that matter, before they either pony up considerably more money for athletics or drop down a division to programs with equivalent financing?" The "blackness" or not of the NMSU football coach has nothing to do with the fact that all but the hardcore Aggie faithful fans have turned their backs on NMSU for most of 40 years. There is an old saying in business: The customer is not always right but the customer always is the one with the money. Even more to the point, "If people don't want to come out to the ball park, nobody's gonna stop

'em," said Yogi Berra. NMSU has held a referendum on their philosophy of running an athletic program. The fans voted with their feet, they want value for value. In fact, the potential NMSU fans really want to believe in the Aggies but have spent 40 years being disappointed.

This upcoming NMSU decision of which sucker, rather coach, to throw in with the lions (not the winless NFL team) cannot be about race because race plays no part in football unless someone of evil intent makes it so. The decision of the next football coach at NMSU is all about if the leadership at NMSU will give the fans what they want.

Look how quickly the fans came to love Reggie Theus, not for the color of his skin but for the content of his character that he brought to our little burg.

He came and a lackluster basketball program became the hottest ticket in town. Again, the fans did not come to see a black coach; they came to trade their hard earned money for a good time and were well rewarded.

Theus is always welcome here in Las Cruces as far as I am concerned. It was really fun to hear him on the radio and see him coaching. He made me feel good. I felt a little of that same enjoyment with former football coach Tony Samuels and none of it with Hal Mumme. Should I mention that one of those two was black? No!

Finally, let me quibble with the moniker "black" because with our new president we are descriptively adrift. Is Obama black or white? Yes to both. So how do you describe him? President-elect Obama is importantly of African heritage, the first of his heritage to become our president. NMSU has and has had coaches of African heritage. I hope they are a coach at NMSU for the content of their character rather than the color of their skin.

Please NMSU give me a good reason to come to next season's games other than to support the witless policies of competition that have not been successful in 40 years. The battle is not about black and white, it is about giving fans a reason to be joyful.

Theus did that - so it can be done.

Cowboyness test

One of the hazards of being a colorful duck in the flock is that you are an easy target!

In my travels, my "cowboyness" is routinely tested. If I'm speaking at a rodeo they will graciously invite me to ride in the grand entry. It's always a good bet that I better check the cinch myself and be ready. I spoke in the auction barn at Fort Pierre. They asked if I'd ride into the sale ring and furnished me a horse. Upon entering, I had to duck under a door that just cleared the saddle horn. As I appeared in the ring, the crowd cheered and the horse spooked! As we raced around the ring, I had the horse's head pulled clear back to my crotch! On the third pass I bailed out into the auctioneer's box and you could hear the wood splinter as the horse shot under the door!

I've ridden horses in parades, through crowds, on stage, through branding fires and into hotel dining rooms. In one forced exhibition of my roping skills at a ranch rodeo, I had to chase the steer around the arena four times before he finally stopped, exhausted in a corner where I caught him. I explained to my critics that this is representative of how we do it in real life.

When I'm doing a program, I usually wear a colorful shirt and scarf with a braided scarf slide. Some might suggest that in real life "real cowboys" just tie their scarf, but I wear my scarf slide in self defense.

You see, often after a show, my hosts take me out for late night breakfast or a beer at the local watering hole. Occasionally, a belligerent, loud-mouth, had-one-too-K many troublemaker insists on physically attire. As he approaches, I can quickly jerk the scarf slide off and prevent being strangled.

Recently, a well-meaning lady perused my website and emailed me calling attention to my lack of cowboy correctness. She pointed out that in one picture I was wearing bat wing chaps without tapaderas, that the picture negative was reversed because it made me look left-handed. And, if I was left-handed, God forbid, that I had my rope coiled up and hung on the right side of my swells. Then she quoted Walt Woodward, famous team roper, who said that lefthanded heelers should take a week off and then quit. Her criticism was well meant, she said, and only given to help save my reputation. In defiance, I wrote her that I was wearing leggins, not batwings and that the mesquite had worn the wings off my tapad-

Then, alas, I realized as I took up my pencil to write the column – with my left hand - that cowboy cartoon characters like Jake, Elmo, Earl and me aren't supposed to win.

I'd give my right arm to be ambidextrous.

Foster inducted to 4-H Hall of Fame

Sixteen in state honored in ceremony at NMSU

Doña Ana County resident Larry Foster is among the 4-H leaders and supporters who were inducted into the New Mexico 4-H Hall of Fame in December at New Mexico State University. The induction ceremony included individual recognition for the inductees, an unveiling of new nameplates on the hall of fame plaque and a reception.

The hall of fame, established in 2002, honors 4-H members, volunteer leaders, fair superintendents, advisory board members, 4-H Foundation trustees and former faculty with NMSU's Cooperative Extension Service, which administers 4-H statewide.

These 16 individuals have given cumulatively more than 436 years of service to the New Mexico 4-H Program," said Frank Hodnett, department head of the Extension Service's 4-H youth development. "Including this group of inductees, we have inducted 146 individuals and couples into the hall of fame."

Joining Foster as this year's inductees were Laura Caffey, Nona Cottrell and Charlie Ortiz, all of Bernalillo County; Jessie Fitzgerald of Cibola County; the late LaHonda Fox and the late Billy Jeff Kyle, both of De Baca County; Johnny Ogden and the late Clara Franklin, both of Roosevelt County; Daniel and Kelly Vallo of Sandoval County; Beatriz Gonzales, Gilbert Segura and the late Mary Baca Olguin, all of Taos County; and Lilly Joy Moon and the late Cecil E. Moon of Quay County.

Foster has been active in the 4-H shooting sports program since its inception in New Mexico. C.O. Marricle teaches the importance of agriculture

Students learn where food really comes from

C.O. Marricle

Fairacres teacher

By Marvin Tessneer

C.O. Marricle's method of merging agriculture into his fifth-grade class at Fairacres Elementary School has won him his second straight New Mexico Farm and Livestock Educator of the Year Award.

"I try to incorporate agriculture in all of my class-es," he said, which includes reading, science, mathematics, social sciences and language and arts. "Because a lot of the students are under the impression that food comes from the store. And I want them to know that this Mesilla Valley has its roots based on agriculture."

He works agriculture into social studies by assigning students to research a person who was involved in agriculture and write a biography. The students carry the message to other students with what Marricle calls his Wax Museum. His students station themselves in the halls with nametags, and, when passing, students press the nametags and "they give the farmer's biographical presentation,' Marricle said.

In his Onion Math, his students measure onion rings to determine the relationship between diameter and circumference. Anna and Steve Lyles of the Lyles Family Farm donate chile, tomatoes and onions to his class so the students can make salsa, and he also incorporates that into a mathematics lesson.

We pour the salsa into different shaped containers with gradations to show volume," he explained. "And they learn by the gradations that the shape of the containers doesn't change the volume.'

Dalene Hodnett, director of the bureau's Agriculture in the Classroom program said of Marricle's award: "C.O.'s students are very fortunate to have a teacher who is so passionate about education. They benefit daily from his interest in our state's history of farming and ranching and how that ties into modern food production."

As the award recipient, Marricle will attend the National Agriculture Conference June 23-27 in St. Louis.

Marricle's program includes a "classroom garden," which he is

Farmers are concerned at the rate cropland is being converted into residential and commercial development, and he is making students aware of the trend through land stewardship.

"If the housing and commercial development pattern continues, the valley no longer will be an agricultural land," he said. "The prices of land and farm operating costs are going up, and we have to learn how to get the most out of the land that we have. I teach my students that this can be done through improved farm techniques, technology and education to use less land to get more production.
"I feel that kids today need to have

The Arnold Brothers pecan partnership planted two mature pecan trees on the campus as an instructional aid.

"The students could watch how they transplant pecan trees with a mechanical tree spade," Marricle said. "And they are responsible for watering and pruning the trees and weed control.

One of his next projects will be installing a compost tumbler, a barrel holding fermenting compost that the students flip to get a good mixture. The compost would contain grass clippings, leaves and cafeteria leftovers.

'The compost would be used as a mulch in our garden and around our trees," he explained. Students have planted more Marricle has attended Agriculture in the Classroom conferences the last three summers, plus the national conference last summer in Costa Mesa, Calif.

"I was able to network with other educators, gather ideas and materials and take part in workshops and field trips," he said. "Presentations by national award winners inspired me to apply for the state award again this year in order to qualify for the national award. This was a wonderful experience, and I plan to use the knowledge I gained to expand my students' knowledge and appreciation for agriculture in our county."

Marricle was one of several applicants for the award, and in his application he wrote: "I always point out that the first leaders of our country were farmers. Washington, Adams and Jefferson were agriculturists. My students are exposed to agriculture because we are in a rural setting. I feel that we are fortunate to be able to have fresh produce that is grown locally. As a former FFA student, I feel that the impact that agriculture has had on me is extremely positive, and I want my students to experience that same impact. I always reinforce the concept that food doesn't come from the store.

"My students learn about self-sufficiency, supply and demand, cause and effect as it applies to agriculture. We discuss why we need to maintain and be stewards of the land and how the housing growth affects agriculture. I emphasize how precious water is and how to conserve it. I am planning to track the hours we've spent working in our garden this year so students can see the economic impact of paying laborers to maintain and harvest our crops.'

Each spring, Fairacres fifth grade teachers conduct a science fair. This year Marricle's students will conduct activities involving the plant-life cycle, seed germination, water conservation and recycling. He brings Cody Lightfoot's Mobile Dairy to the school to demonstrate how milk is produced, safe food handling and how to make butter.

In many of his agricultural activities students are required to write journals and reports. Several other activities take his students out of the classroom:

- A partnership with Steve and Anna Lyles who provide produce for the Harvest of the Month at their U-Pick Garden. Students select pods to make chile salsa and learn about safe food handling.
- Trips to the Southern New Mexico State Fair where students interview fair volunteers and present their findings in class.
- Participation in the El Paso Electric Co. conservation awareness program. Students conduct surveys with their parents about water and electricity conservation. And they receive kits that contain compact fluorescent bulbs and water-saving shower heads.
- Tours of the Chihuahuan Desert Nature Park, Jornada Range Experiment Station and the Mesilla Bosque State Park where students learned about the encroachment of non-native plants on pasture land, improved cattle breeding, rotating pastures to avoid overgrazing, wildlife and how humans affect nature.

Fairacres Elementary teacher C.O. Marricle and student Noah Pierce discuss what he learned while making wreaths for the language and arts class.

The Outdoor Classroom is an important part of Marricle's agriculture program and these students work on the garden: Noah Pierce, Jay T. Arnold, Erick Cereceres and Johnathon Hidalgo.

City participates in safe-house program

Children in danger can look for McGruff signs

In early 2009, Las Cruces will become the third community in the nation – and the first in New Mexico - to put a McGruff Safe House program in place, thanks to the Las Cruces Public Schools Title IV Safe and Drug Free Schools Program. Cooperating partners include the City of Las Cruces and

Mayor Ken Miyagishima, the Las Cruces Police Department, the Doña Ana County Sheriff's Department and the Mesilla Town Marshal's office.

Under the program, homes are identified as safe houses with large, colorful signs in their front windows. That way, if a Las Cruces child gets lost, is being chased by a dog, feels threatened by an adult or another child or finds him- or herself in any kind of a "dangerous, scary situa-tion," that child can go to a McGruff Safe House where they will be guaranteed shelter until authorities are contacted, said Title IV Coordinator Dennis Zamora.

"Safe havens are essential for our kids," said Zamora. "Our goal is to have a McGruff Safe House in every part of our community by the end of

Here's how the McGruff Safe House program works:

Individuals are asked to sign up to make their homes safe houses for Las and Background checks will be conducted on Fridays, Jan. 16 and 23, on every adult in every house before that house is approved as a McGruff Safe House.

The background checks will be conducted by the Las Cruces Police Department and the Doña Ana County Sheriff's Department, thanks to a grant LCPS received from the National Crime Prevention Council (NCPC), said Zamora.

The house resident volunteers receive training in appropriate responses to children and how to help.

Each home approved as a McGruff Safe House must have a working telephone on its premises, so parents and/or the appropriate law enforcement agency can be contacted immediately.

The program's official kickoff will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 12, at the LCPS Administration Building, said Zamora.

The application form to become a McGruff Safe House volunteer is on the LCPS website: www.lcps.k12. nm.us. Look for the yellow McGruff Safe House logo.

Zamora said the program also will include a McGruff Safe Truck program. After staff background checks are conducted, trucks in the LCPS

Physical Plant Department fleet will be identified with highly visible McGruff Safe Truck stickers. Then, if a child is lost or afraid, he or she can approach the individuals in that vehicle for immediate help. No private vehicles will be included in the program, he said.

"I am proud that the Physical Plant can help in providing a service that can have such a positive impact upon a child," said PPD Director Bobby Stout.

'We want to make every child in Las Cruces feel as safe as we possibly can, no matter what," said Zamora. "The McGruff Safe House/Truck program is a fantastic way for our entire community to work together for child safety. And, with the NCPC grant paying for the background checks and signage, there is virtually no cost to the school district or the community," he said.

The Las Cruces McGruff Safe House/Truck program is being administered by a committee comprised of Zamora; Mesilla Elementary School counselor Ollie Ziehl and kindergarten teacher Jeana Gutierrez; Doña Ana Elementary School counselor Rebekah Martinez and first-grade teacher Kerry Sandoval; Central Elementary School counselor Maria Escobedo and first-grade teacher Reba Gantz; LCPD Officer Eric Sanchez; Town of Mesilla Deputy Marshal Jeff Gray; and Doña Ana County Sheriff's Deputy Alan Franzoy.

Service academy nominations made

U.S. Sen. Jeff Bingaman has announced his nominees from southern New Mexico for admission to each of the nation's four service academies.

Each year Bingaman selects students for nomination to the Air Force Academy, the Merchant Marine Academy, the Military Academy and the Naval Academy. The United States service academies are the country's premier officer-training programs.

The selection of nominees was based on the recommendations of Bingaman's Service Academy Nomination Review Board, which is made up of New Mexicans from around the state. The board recommends candidates according to academic achievements, extra-curricular activities and leadership potential. Each academy will make the final selection for an offer of appointment in the coming months.

Among the students nominated are:

Spelling bee scheduled

The Oñate High School Performing Arts Center will host the 2009 Las Cruces City Spelling Bee beginning at 9 a.m. Friday, Jan. 23, said Columbia Elementary School Assistant Principal Kathy Norris. Norris, LCPS Director of Elementary Instruction Elizabeth J. Marrufo and Assistant Principals Rosa Apodaca (MacArthur Elementary) and Marcie Behrens (Mesilla Park Elementary) are working together to prepare for this year's event, said Norris.

Norris said a total of 29 Las Cruces schools are expected to participate in this year's event, including 21 elementary schools, five middle schools, one charter school and two private schools.

NMSU professor and Las Cruces actor and director Richard Rundell will again serve as word pronouncer, as he has done for many years.

Norris noted a couple of changes in the 2009 event from previous years:

"Words for the spelling bee will come from the 'Spell It! 2009' study guide that the students get for free from their schools. This year, words will also come from the list of words from the School Bee. These words are not given to the students to study," said Norris. "We will pick the winner and second-place winner to go to the state bee. Before, our one winner would go to the Regional Bee in El Paso. They have changed this so that we go to our state bee in Albuquerque," said Norris. The state spelling bee will be at 9 a.m. Saturday, March 14, at Highland High School in Albuquerque.

For more information, contact Norris at 527-1561 or knorris@lcps.k12.nm.us.

Emergency training offered

Emergency response personnel from seven southern New Mexico counties will be among the first to participate in a pilot program to test a national format for developing an agricultural emergency annex to their county emergency operations plan.

During the Strengthening Communities Through Agrosecurity Planning training, participants will discuss the agricultural industry in each of their counties and what would be the response procedures within their counties during an agricultural emergency, whether it is caused by natural disasters, disease or humans.

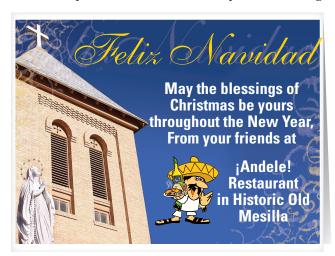

New Mexico State University's College of Agriculture and Home Economics' Southwest Border Food Safety and Defense Center, the New Mexico Department of Homeland Security and Emergency Management and the Extension

Disaster Education Network's Strengthening Communities Through Agrosecurity Planning Committee are sponsoring the training. They will focus on the emergencies that could occur in each county and the damage that could be caused to the agricultural industry and the economy of the county and the state.

The free, two-and-a-half day training workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 13, and Wednesday, Jan. 14, and from 8 a.m. to noon on Thursday, Jan. 15, at the Doña Ana County Government Center, 845 N.

County emergency managers and county Extension agriculture agents from Catron, Doña Ana, Grant, Hidalgo, Luna, Otero and Sierra counties will participate along with county and city managers and representatives from city police departments, county sheriffs offices, animal control departments, fire departments, U.S. Fish and Wildlife and New Mexico Game and Fish departments, U.S. Border Patrol, National Guard, New Mexico State Police, New Mexico Livestock inspectors and New Mexico Department of Health.

Before NMSU President Roger Corbett created the university police department, the campus was sporadically patrolled by the Sheriff's Department and State Police. Seeing Green Green is everywhere, but what does it mean? Green means environmentally friendly products that reduce harmful emissions of Carbon Dioxide CO² or lower the amount of energy used. It can also mean keeping "green" in your pocket. Sun-Tech Services, Inc., wants you to know it pays to Go Green!

Going Green can mean lower monthly energy bills. Sun-Tech has a ProgressivTube Passive Solar Heating System. Don't let the name fool you, it's not complicated!

What the Passive Solar Heating System does is "pre-heat" your water with heat generated by solar panels. Although simple in design, the ProgressivTube can save you up to 80% of your costs for heating water for your family. Plus the ProgressivTube doesn't require pumps, controls, or any mechanical or electrical devices to operate.

Another advantage to going green is the available tax credits. Did you know that there is now a 30% solar tax credit, which can help reduce the cost of your Passive Solar Heating System? Sun-Tech has many green products, so you can go green and save!

In addition to getting information about environmentally friendly solar systems from Sun-Tech, you can also learn about highly efficient, green KINETICO salt-free

Rounds said he's pushing for the new high school to open its doors by August 2011 and for ground to be broken on its construction by this coming June or August.

The district also will be asking the city to annex some land along Peachtree Hill Road on the East Mesa, where state trust will be used for the construction of a new elementary and middle school.

The new school campuses, Rounds said, will provide plenty of green space and bike paths.

"In all site development, we're very cognizant of shared use and green space between buildings," he said.

All agreed the meeting was useful to council members and they vowed to meet more regularly in the future. Moore said he would like to go even further and hold a similar meeting with the school board and county commission.

cent cuts in the compensation they receive.

"This is truly an across the board effort," Cadena said. "I don't know anyone who's happy about this. But we really don't have any other choice.'

The cuts - along with further reductions in utility expenses with the reduced hours – is expected to trim about $150,000 from the shortfall. The cuts begin Jan. 4, 2009, and will last until at least June Arzabal made a point to confirm that the cutback in hours won't mean a reduction in health and other benefits for the town's employees.

Meanwhile, local merchants at Monday's meeting asked the trustees to work with them to make a stronger effort to attract tourists. A starting place, they said, is to put off banning them from using "sandwich-board signs" to help them attract business. The town recently sent letters to a number of businesses informing them that they were violating the town's signage code.

Janyce Leone whose Solamente de Mesilla shop is just off the main plaza told the trustee that putting out a "sandwich-board sign" with the words "Got salsa?" has increased her business by 76 percent.

Some kind of signage needs to be permitted to help attract tourists and other customers to the businesses, said Kathleen Foreman of Josefina's Gate.
In light of the budget crunch, the trustees and mayor said they are willing to work with the merchants to find creative solutions that still respects Mesilla's "old town" character.

Free Christmas tree recycling offered

Compost also available

Las Cruces residents who need to dispose of their Christmas trees can have them recycled. The City of Las Cruces Recycling Center, 2855 W. Amador Ave., will chop old Christmas trees and turn them into compost

Residents can drop off their trees during regular Recycling Center business hours:

Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Closed on Sundays

The center will be closed Christmas Day and New Year's Day and close early at 2 p.m. Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve.

Trees must not have trunks larger than five inches in diameter. Residents must also take off all decorations and tinsel. Free compost is available at the Recycling Center.

Residents who do not wish to have their trees recycled can have them picked up by the city's Grappler Service. However, if trees are picked up, they will be thrown away and not be turned into compost.

For more information, call the Solid Waste Department at 528-3700 or go to www.las-cruces.org/utilities.

RESERVOIR UPDATE

The Natural Resources Conservation Service's Snow Telemetry stations reported two feet of snow in higher elevations as storms moved across the mountains in northern New Mexico and Southern Colorado.

The Upper Rio Grande Basin snow pack is 115 percent of average, compared with 147 percent a year ago, according to the NRCS report.

The Rio Grande flow at San Marcial measuring station is 752 cubic-feet-per-second, 54 percent of average, as it continues to receive irrigation return flows from southern Colorado. The Bureau of Reclamation expects the flow to continue from 700 to 800 cfs for the rest of December.

The reservoir storage figures are:

- Elephant Butte 617,269 acre-feet, 31 percent of a full reservoir, an increase of 6,350 acre-feet, 59 feet below the spillway, elevation 4,348 feet.
- Caballo 21,271 acre-feet, 9 percent of capacity, up 473 acre-feet.

Is it all about the location?

Different businesses need different places

We've all heard that nothing is more important than "location, location, location, location." There's no doubt that location is one of the most important factors when opening a business, and there's a reason why the "better" locations are more expensive. But does that piece of "prime" commercial real estate work for every business?

There's a lot more that must go on behind the scenes when selecting the right home for a business. Factors like the length of a lease, type of space, utilities, fixtures, amount of space required and zoning all come into play, no matter the business.

Naturally, certain types of businesses in Las Cruces are restricted to certain areas – manufacturing facilities and a designer clothing boutique are not exactly next-door neighbors and never should be, unless of course they're opening up in Houston.

The rest of the decision depends on the type of business and the type of customer you'd like to attract. The "convenience" store needs to be in a convenient location, which means, in many cases, on a frequently traveled thoroughfare. The upscale boutique should be in an upscale part of town. Other businesses, such as restaurants and hotels, can decide their location based on the location of other businesses or attractions. How many restaurants surround the Mesilla Valley Mall? How many hotels have the name "airport" attached to them? There's almost guaranteed success with that concept, unless of course, you try to open a Mexican chain restaurant near the mall when there are plenty of great, authentic spots in town. But, as you know, there's much more to that story.

The importance of location not only drives up the price of certain real estate, but it also can negatively impact the pricing of an area.

Remember my column on El Paseo? It was once a main thoroughfare, and now that growth is moving toward the east, the road is not a destination anymore. However, a new grocery store off Wyatt Drive and renovations coming to the Albertsons shopping center near Idaho Avenue may change that area altogether because people love new places to shop.

Case and point: the new Walgreens on El Paseo. I wonder how many people went across town just to see if the new store had something that no other Walgreens has in the world. There's nothing different, yet the store's parking lot is still full. When it was across the street, that lot had more standing water than cars.

Dolores Connor (Citizen of the Year), Cowboys for Cancer Research Committee Chairs Geraldine and Denny Calhoun (Nonprofit of the Year) and Las Cruces Catholic School teacher Michael Nuñez were among those honored by the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce last year. Community asked to choose

Chamber award deadline is Jan. 1

By NATISHA HALES

The Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce is seeking input from the community to select the citizen, nonprofit and business of the year. Each recipient will be recognized at the chamber's annual awards banquet Friday, Jan. 23, at the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum.

The Citizen of the Year award, spon-

The Citizen of the Year award, sponsored this year by Sitel, recognizes a community member for his or her outstanding contributions. Last year's winner was City Councillor Dolores Connor.

The nonprofit of the year will be selected from the 12 nonprofit organizations featured each month in The Bottom Line. Last year, Cowboys for Cancer Research was honored, and committee chairs Denny and Geraldine Calhoun accepted the award.

The Business of the Year, sponsored by Steinborn GMAC Real Estate, will be presented to one of the 12 member businesses that have been honored throughout 2008. Of the 12 businesses last year, Adventure Travel, owned by Bill and Wanda Mattiace, was selected as the winner.

Also recognized at the banquet will be the recipients of the Crystal Apple Award, which honors a local educator; Volunteer of the Year, which will be selected by chamber staff; and Conquistadore of the Year, selected by the GLCCC Conquistadores.

The cost to attend the annual banquet is $65 per person or $650 for a corporate table of 10. For more information, contact the chamber at 524-1968.

Local printer practices lean manufacturing

100 percent of local newsprint is recycled

SUSTAINABLE

By NATISHA HALES
The Las Cruces Bulletin

In an industry that has been negatively tagged as harmful to the environment, local printer Signature Offset is going against the grain by using lean manufacturing practices and developing a sustainable printing concept.

"It's more than using recycled paper," said Signature Offset Sales Manager David Justus, who was part of the marketing team that helped define sustainable printing last year. "It's looking at the entire process, using low VOC (volatile organic compound) chemicals, not wasting a lot of paper. It's saving the company money as well as saving the environment."

High-VOC chemicals are classified as air pollutants by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and can be potentially harmful to a person's health. Using US Ink's Spectra High-Strength line of environmentally conscious inks, Signature Offset uses products that are made from agricultural sources such as soybean oil and wood rosin for their cold web offset process. Other printers may use a heat-set process, which requires more energy to "cook" the ink and bond the chemicals to the paper, making it difficult to recycle, Justus said.

According to the company's website, all of Signature Offset's 30-pound newsprint is made from recycled post-consumer waste, and all the paper waste is pre-sorted for recycling — "from the cores used to handle the rolls to the wrappers used to protect the paper on the rolls." The Las Cruces plant uses 100 percent recycled post-consumer waste, saving approximately 19,159 trees.

From an already printed newspaper, such as the Las Cruces Bulletin, Justus said the ink can be extracted from the paper and reused in addition to the paper itself.

A healthy stop for Las Crucens

Junga Juice also offers coffees, teas and pastries

By NATISHA HALES

When Vicki Voss opened Junga Juice in March 2007, she provided a healthy alternative for Las Crucens and business expertise that some franchisees never have the opportunity to acquire.

Before she opened the smoothie shop, Voss worked for the Junga Juice corporate office in Missoula, Mont., in an administrative position.

NATISHA HALES I The Las Cruces Bulletin

In a brightly colored atmosphere that also includes free wireless Internet service, customers have "a great place to hang out," said Junga Juice owner Vicki Voss. "It helped me understand the full operation," she said.

Working in an office all day was not something she wanted to do, however.

"I kinda got bored," she said. "I enjoyed working with customers, and I decided I wanted my own store."

While the office position was not stimulating, the Montana winters also were too cold for the former Las

"I used to live in Las Cruces, and I love the climate," Voss said. "One winter in Montana was enough for me."

So she returned to the mild weather with her new concept of the Junga Juice franchise, opening her smoothie bar on the east side of town at 3961 E. Lohman Ave., Suite 21. It didn't take long to gain a loyal following

"Las Cruces is friendly and inviting," she said. "I worked with corporate, and I felt like I gained a lot of experience through that. And our products are the best. They're best tasting products, and they have great nutritional value."

Junga Juice offers smoothies made with 100 percent fruit juice and the "best-tasting" yogurts and sherbets, Voss said.

"There's no high-fructose corn syrup in any of my smoothies," she said.

But that's not all the brightly colored smoothie bar offers. Voss said many customers don't realize Junga Juice also has iced and hot coffees, teas, wheatgrass products, freshly squeezed juices and fresh-baked pastries and pretzels.

"That makes us very unique," she said. "Customers have come in and said we're better than any other smoothie bar in town."

Customers' favorite time to come into Junga Juice is during the lunch hour.

NATISHA HALES I The Las Cruces Bulletin

The Junga Juice location at 3961 E. Lohman Ave., Suite 21, has a lot of potential, owner Vicki Voss said.

"Smoothies offer nutritional value for meal replacement," she said, "and we have free wireless Internet. That meets a need for people to come and hang out."

Lately, as with many businesses around town, business has slowed for Voss, but she's making up for it.

"People who have come in every day are cutting back, and I'm working a lot of hours and cutting back on staff hours," she said. "It's been tough, but there is great potential in this area because the city is growing on this side.

"And I'm really proud of our products. That keeps me coming to work every day. I know that people are really enjoying it."

"It can be used up to five times in that process," he said. "The newspaper that you're reading, the ink and the paper could have already been used five times. When they cannot use the paper anymore, it becomes other things — tissue paper, insulation."

Even the printing plates used by the plant are made from 100-percent recycled material, which is the same aluminum to make soda cans. One recycled plate is the equivalent of 22 cans, and since they began to use recycled plates, the company has recycled the equivalent of nearly 6 million cans. Using plates from recycled cans has also helped save more than 7 million gallons of gasoline.

"Because we are a direct-to-plate business, this means that the films and the high-VOC chemicals used to develop those films are now obsolete," according to the website.

For Signature Offset, the sustainable printing process begins before the paper is even made, Justus said.

"We get our paper from managed forests from North America," he said. "The forests themselves are a sustainable process."

With all of the recycled paper purchased by the company, they are reported to save more than 139,000 trees, and all of the paper made from virgin pulp came from sustainable forests of the South Carolina Forestry Association and the Sustainable Forestry Initiative.

"This is a concept we came up with ourselves," Justus said. "The printing industry didn't have anything at the time. It's a huge industry, and we're pretty much the only ones out there. (Other companies) employ large-format cold web printing, but that's different than what we do."

It's saving the company money as well as saving the environment.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

New Year's forecast: Outlook is gloomy

Things still look better for Las Cruces

I have an unusual New Year's tradition – one that I enjoy and that I'm pretty good at. Yes, while others are enjoying the last eggnog and cleaning up the Christmas wrapping in anticipation of New Year's Eve partying,

LANDMARK

I spend my time calculating forecasts for the next year. Here are this year's prognostications.

The outlook for the national economy is not very pleasant. The financial sector and especially the real estate market are a mess. The Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP) initiated by the U.S. Department of the Treasury has failed to defrost frozen lending, and the result is a credit crunch like none seen for at least 30 years. The credit crunch has spilled over into other sectors – construction, manufacturing and retailing, in particular. Of special concern is the auto industry. Indeed, the problems in Detroit are legion. Sales are expected to be about 10 million units, down from the more typical 15 million units.

On the positive side, the TARP has managed to prevent any further major failures since Bear Sterns, Bush's auto bailout means that industry will avoid collapse at least through March, and President-elect Obama is promising a major stimulus package. All of these are positives for the national economy. In addition, falling energy prices should encourage consumer spending, helping to turn the national economy around.

According to the mavens who determine these things, the national economy has been in recession since December 2007, and the consensus among economists is that the recession will continue at least through July. If it does, it will mean that the current downturn, at 18 months, will be the longest recession in the post-World War II era. I tend to agree with the consensus. My forecast is for continued recession at least until the summer followed by a recovery.

In New Mexico, the state economy

In New Mexico, the state economy may have entered recession. As of October, employment growth statewide was one-tenth of 1 percent. When November's and December's data comes in, it may very well be that New Mexico will see overall employment decline for the year. If we do, it will be the first such drop since the early 1980s. Besides employment, other indicators – falling gross receipts tax revenue, major layoffs in copper mines, the bankruptcy of Eclipse Aeronautics, cutbacks at the national laboratories and falling oil and natural gas prices – all bode ill for the state economy.

On the other hand, our state is relatively insulated from business cycles, having a small manufacturing sector. Moreover, President-elect Obama has suggested that he will target directly help to states as part of his stimulus plan. Taking everything into account, I forecast that the state will finish the year out with zero to -0.5 percent employment growth, and next year will see little or no employment growth. Gross receipts will be flat, which means a fall of about 3 percent, once inflation is taken into account.

Las Cruces is likely to do relatively well, although economic growth will slow compared to what we are used to. Our main advantage is continued expansion of the military, which will add approximately 1 percent to local employment growth. Of setting this is the slowing national and state economies. I expect employment growth to average 1 percent during 2009.

Unfortunately, the slowdown in local growth coupled with layoffs at local businesses will mean rising unemployment. We should see unemployment creep up over the next year. For Las Crucens who lose their jobs, regardless of what the overall economy does, 2009 may be pretty bleak. For those who are more prosperous, next year may be a good time to keep those less fortunate in mind. My final forecast for this new year is that there will be continued need for generous hearts and charitable wallets.

In 1960, when a group of nine mothers of children with disabilities found there were not adequate services for their children or their families within southern New Mexico, they founded Zia Therapy Center in Alamogordo. Now, almost 50 years later, Zia Therapy Center continues with help from organizations like the Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico (CFSNM).

Zia Therapy Center, an active member of the Association of Developmental Disabilities Community Providers, is a nonprofit organization managed by a volunteer board of directors. Each year, the center serves more than 1,000 individuals with disabilities or associated with disabilities through a variety of programs including early childhood education, adult programs, teen programs and child care. The organization is able to stay financially strong with the help of an endowment created through the CFSNM.

"The CFSNM provides the opportunity for Zia, and other nonprofits, to have an endowment, an opportunity we likely would not have taken on, on our own. Agencies like Zia benefit from the knowledge and expertise of the foundation's staff, community leadership and professional investment management," Richard

COMMUNITY FOUNDATION Of Southern New Mexico Helping donors do Barbaras, chief executive officer of Zia Therapy Center, said. "The endowments we create in the Community Foundation are a permanent source of capital, providing assistance today and in the future."

An endowment is a permanent fund that is created through a legal agreement, and then professionally managed by the CFSNM. Once an endowment is created, the principal from the funds lasts forever, and continues to produce earnings. A portion of the earnings can be used for grants, scholarships, programs and specific community needs. In addition to the portion of the funds used for the program, a portion of earnings is returned to the principal of the endowment and a portion is earmarked for management of the endowment. An endowment can be named as the donor wishes. For example, some endowments are created in memory or honor of an individual or with a family or corporate name. The mission of Zia Therapy Center Development Program enrolls children from 6 weeks through 5 years of age, and all classes provide developmentally appropriate activities and learning experiences designed to help children achieve developmental milestones.

Zia Therapy Center provides respite care, temporary or emergency care, for an individual with disabilities for the purpose of assisting the family or caregiver. This type of care is often provided so families can take care of their own needs while their loved ones are cared for by qualified professionals.

"Generous donations to Zia Therapy Center through CFSNM help ensure that individuals with disabilities are provided opportunities in community settings for activities which support their individual definition of a meaningful day and enhance their quality of life," Barbaras said.

The Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico is a charitable resource linking donors with community needs. Founded in 2000, the CFSNM uses knowledge to help connect people who care with causes that matter. Donors are encouraged to inquire about donating to an existing fund or creating a new fund. Call the CFSNM at 521-4794 or visit www. cfsnm.org for information about making a charitable contribution to your community.

Local builders, Realtors feel economic pinch

2008 income loss exceeds $120 million

"Multi-million dollar producer" is a term commonly used by realty agents to quantify the aggregate value of the property sales they closed during a particular month, year or number of years. Homebuilders also use the term as one of their methods of measuring production levels. While there's still no shortage of multi-million dollar agent and builder producers in our little neck of the desert, the right to use the moniker is becoming more and more difficult to achieve.

Take our Las Cruces-area Realtors, for example. According to the Multiple Listing and Information Service (MLIS) arm of the Las Cruces Association of Realtors (LCAR), the total value of the 1,205 new and existing-homes, townhomes and condominiums sold in our area between Jan. 1 and Nov. 23 of this year totaled $265,708,444. Sounds like quite a bit, huh?

While it is indeed a tidy sum, the fact remains that it is $124,786,186 shy of the $390,444,603 value of the 1,750 new and existing homes sold during the same period in 2007. Multiply the $124 million shortage by the 5.18 percent realty commission the National Association of Realtors (NAR) cites as the current average, and the decline in Las Cruces-area Realtor income through the first 11-3/4 months of this year approaches $6.5 million. That's not sales volume, that's income!

Las Cruces area homebuilders were impacted even more severely than were the Realtors, according to the MLIS figures. The $88,435,719 value of the 373 new homes, townhomes and condominiums sold this year falls short of last year's $157.9 million value of the 639 units sold by a whopping $69,501,099. Multiply the $69.5 million shortage by the 20-percent gross margin cited by local builders as the average needed to turn a profit, and the result is a year-to-date income shortfall of $13,900,202

As a group, Las Cruces-area Realtors and builders earned around $120 million less in profits and fees through the first 11-3/4 months of this year than they did during the same period last year.

The $120 million income shortfall is just the tip of the iceberg, however. What about the jobs, wages, local taxes and impact fees associated with the development who spend about three-fifths of their income on goods and services sold in the local economy. It is also typical for a household to pay 1.25 percent of its income to local governments in the form of taxes, fines and user fees.

According to information provided by the Las Cruces Homebuilders Association (LCHBA), the total one-year impact on the typical U.S. metropolitan area for every 100 single-family homes built includes: 284 jobs, $1.8 million in local taxes and $16 million in income in salaries, wages and income to business owners.

I don't know about you, but I think we should thank our lucky stars that we live in an area that is growing economically (albeit at a reduced pace), and where home prices remain fairly stable. In addition, the influx of military personnel to the area is projected to add 1 to 2 percent growth to our local economy through 2012, according to Christopher Erickson, assistant professor of economics and international business at New Mexico State University.

Will Dr. Erickson's projection come true? I hope so. If it does, it'll just be a matter of time until I ...

Local chef recognized in New Mexico Magazine

Larry Campos, executive chef for the Double Eagle Restaurant, has been selected as the Chef's Pick for the December issue by New Mexico Magazine. Chef's Pick honors one chef in the state as outstanding and asks his suggestions for what someone should eat in his restaurant.

Campos recommends starting with the smoked salmon on parmesan toasts with capers and crème fraiche, then enjoying a bowl of New Mexican Tortilla Soup. For the entrée, Campos suggests one of the aged steaks with a double-baked stuffed potato and a slice of meltaway apple pie for dessert.

"I'm extremely pleased to have been selected during the holidays," Campos said. "I love cooking for the family groups that come in at this time of year."

New Mexico Magazine is published by the New Mexico Department of Tourism and sends out more than 1 million copies per year.

Construction management firm named for Spaceport America

The New Mexico Spaceport Authority has announced the selection of Gerald Martin Construction Management of Albuquerque to oversee the construction of Spaceport America, the nation's first purpose-built commercial spaceport. Gerald Martin Construction Management will represent the NMSA in all aspects of design team and contractor integration, quality control, value engineering, scheduling and budget management.

Gerald Martin Construction is a division of Gerald Martin General Contractor, an award-winning construction company founded in 1974 and headquartered in Albuquerque with offices in Santa Fe, Taos and Tempe, Ariz. For the spaceport project, Gerald Martin's team will include specialists experienced with aviation facilities, fire/EMS facilities servicing aeronautic and rocket facilities and working with NASA.

This week's licensure from the FAA/AST and naming of a construction management firm is indicative of the progress of the new spaceport project. The NMSA currently projects vertical launch activity to increase in 2009, and construction with the terminal and hangar facility for horizontal launches completed by late 2010.

Ron Camuñez: Having a grand ol' time in the Mesilla Valley

Seventh-generation Las Crucen loves his community and family

"I've been

since I was old enough to vote."

By NATISHA HALES
The Las Cruces Bulletin

Ron Camuñez knows Las Cruces - the history, the people and the politics. He knows it all, not just because he's a sev-enth-generation Las Crucen, but he's also heavily involved in the community where

"We're one of the pioneer families of Las Cruces," Camuñez said. "My great-grandfather Fidel Sanchez was a deputy sheriff with Pat Garrett, and they were neighbors. We come from a long line." Now, Camuñez is continuing that line.

Owner of a political and emergency-management consultancy, he makes it a point to get involved with the community. His fascination with both industries started when he was a kid. "I've always loved politics, followed by emergency management," he said. "When I was in high school, I was on the student council. Like probably every other kid, I wanted to be the president of the United States.

He continued his political passion after he graduated from New Mexico State University, when he ran against his cousin for probate judge.

"I was 25 years old, and I only lost by 300 votes," he said. "That was my first taste, and that really sparked my interest.

He put politics on the backburner and worked for the local American Red Cross chapter as the director of emergency response services.

Politics still interested him, and although he thought of running for gover-nor of New Mexico, Camuñez decided he would work behind the scenes.

"I helped (former Gov.) Garrey Carruthers and (U.S. Sen.) Pete Domenici get into office when they first ran," he said. "It's nice to put people to the position that they really want."

While Carruthers headed to Santa Fe, and Domenici moved into his office in Washington, D.C., Camuñez held the fort down in Las Cruces and continued his involvement with the Republican Party of Doña Ana County and the Republican National Hispanic Assembly of New Mexico.

"I've been involved since I was old enough to vote," he said. "I saw the need for honest, fair politicians.

He became more involved in the Republican Party of Doña Ana County when he became secretary of the organi-

"The party was really stagnant, and the chair at the time didn't really know the movers and shakers of the commu-nity," he said. "I always say I'm related to half of the community, so I took the chair on and said we need to be involved. It's a business, so we need to act like a

From there, the Republican party became members of the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce and the Hispano Chamber of Commerce de Las Cruces, and Camuñez was a regular at

place in the community, we have to be involved in the community," he said. "We need to be out there and let people see us. We ought to be proud. My goal was to get us out in the community, and that's what's happened." After the 2008 primaries, Camuñez resigned from his post with the Republican party so he could assist candidates with their campaigns.

"Reality sets in as a Republican in a state where the majority is Democrat," he said. "Even if we got every Republican to vote, it was still not enough to win. We had to reach across the aisle. There are many Democrats who are moderate or conservative and have the same values."

Despite the efforts, all Republicans who ran for office in Doña Ana County lost their races.

"It was a hard time," he said. "It was hard to raise money and times are changing. The party has to regroup and get back to its primary goal, which is fiscal conservation and strong family values. It should turn around in the next year or

In the meantime, Camuñez continues to help candidates by providing them with a strategic plan and a clear-cut advertising budget.

"Candidates have got to meet the voter face to face, and they have to have a clear, concise message," he said.

When he's not involved in politics, Camuñez volunteers to serve on the Local Emergency Planning Committee, which assists Doña Ana County with preparation and implementation of the Emergency Operations Plan. That plans includes hazardous materials and incorporates first respondents to an emergency, such as fire and police departments.

While his consultancy keeps him pretty busy, the longtime resident still takes time to get involved with the community he has seen change over the years.

"One of the worst changes we've seen in the community is the urban renewal," he said. "I'm glad to see we're revitalizing Downtown, and it was a big mistake to lose St. Genevieve's Church.

"We've expanded so much toward the East Mesa. Where the mall is now, we used to go rabbit hunting. It's just unbelievable how this community has changed."
While Las Cruces has enjoyed positive growth, Camuñez said there are still some challenges that lie ahead, and he would like to participate as much as he can in meeting these goals. "We don't retain our

Bishop Ramirez to begin 150th anniversary events

On Saturday, Jan. 3, 2009, the parish of St. Genevieve's Catholic Church will celebrate the feast day of their patron saint, St. Genevieve of Paris. A special mass will be held at noon at the church, 100 S. Espina St. This will also mark the beginning of the 150-year anniversary of the establishment of the church in 1859.

In its early years, the Catholic community of Las Cruces was served by the priest from Doña Ana village and met in a small jacal used as a chapel. In 1859 a separate parish was formed and a church built. Father Manuel Chavez was installed as the first pastor. The parish adopted St. Genevieve of Paris as its patron saint.

She was born in 422 in Nanterre, a small village four miles from Paris. Genevieve consecrated her life to God as a nun at a young age. Due to her encouragement of the residents of Paris to pray and do penance, it is believed that Paris was saved from attack by the Huns.

In the later 1800s, before the coming of the railroad to Las Cruces, a beautiful statue of St. Genevieve was imported from France, shipped by rail to Kansas City and brought to Las Cruces by oxcart.

Members of the St. Genevieve Historical Society, as well as other members of parish ministries are helping to plan a festive service followed by a reception with refreshments. A highlight of this event will be the use of some artifacts from the old church previously located on Main Street. There will also be a display of a variety of such artifacts. On this special day, the bells of St. Genevieve's will ring out to mark the occasion.

Bishop Ricardo Ramirez will celebrate a special mass at 11 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 25, and will bless the new church pews, which are expected to be installed by that time.

The St. Genevieve community is very proud of its long history in the Mesilla Valley. Many members can trace generations of their families back to the original church. Their memories associated with the church are being documented in an oral history project currently under way.

Teaching good writing skills to children starts in the home

The 'middle child' has trouble finding their place

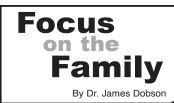

I've always had an interest in creative writing, primarily because I had a teacher who encouraged me to express myself and gave me the skills to do it. My kids, however, have not had that exposure. The school system just doesn't teach writing skills anymore. How did you come to be a writer, and how might I give my children a nudge in that direction?

It is true that writing skills are seldom taught today. That was evident a while back when I was considering hiring a Ph.D. candidate from a large university. I called her major professor for a recommendation. He spoke highly of this woman and said he was sure she would do a good job for me. I then asked if she was an adequate writer. He said, "Are you kidding? None of my students has strong writing skills. Young people don't learn to put their thoughts on paper these days."

He was right.

It hasn't always been that way. I remember diagramming sentences and learning parts of speech when I was in elementary school. It was a major part of the curriculum. Also, my parents encouraged and helped me grow in this area. I wrote a letter to a friend when I was nine years old. My mother then suggested that we read it together. I had written, "Dear Tom, how are you? I am just fine." My mom asked me if I thought that sounded a little boring. She said, "You haven't said anything. You used a few words, but they have no meaning." I never wrote that phrase again; although that is the typical way a child begins a letter.

Looking back, I can see how, even at an early age, my mother was teaching me to write. In addition, I was also fortunate to have a few English teachers who were determined to teach me the fundamentals of composition. I had one in high school and another in college who insisted that I learn grammar and composition. They nearly beat me to death but I'm glad they did. I earn a living today, at least in part, with the skills they gave to me. Especially, I would like to say "thanks" to Dr. Ed Harwood. His classes were like marine boot camp, but what I learned there was priceless.

It's not terribly difficult or time-consuming to encourage and teach kids some of the basics of grammar and composition. One approach is to ask a family member to correspond with your child and encourage him or her to write back. Then when the reply is written, sprinkle a few corrections, such as the one my mother offered, with a generous portion of praise. Finally, entice that youngster to engage in a little creative expression. As for what you can do to compensate for the deemphasis on writing in school, I really don't know – except to seek instruction outside the classroom.

The teaching of writing has gone out of style – much like the old "homemaking" classes for girls.

But it is an incredibly valuable craft that your child can use in a wide variety of settings. Don't let him or her grow up without developing it.

Does the middle child really have greater adaptive problems than his or her siblings?

The middle child does sometimes find it more difficult to establish his or her identity within the family. She enjoys neither the status of the eldest nor the attention given to the baby. Furthermore, she is likely to be born at a busy period in the life of her parents, and especially her mother. Then during her preschool years, her precious territory is invaded by a cute little newborn who steals Mama from her. Is it any wonder that she often asks, "Who am I and where is my place in life?"

Great Blessings on a Short Budget

Pr 25:11 A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver.

Words are very powerful and can be of tremendous help and encouragement. With so many assaults against the home, have you taken time to tell your husband or wife that you love him or her? Do we show the love of Christ to those around us with good words?

We ought to choose our words carefully to be sure that we give good words; for example, words to express our love and words to show compliment. We should be sure to share words of security. Instead of words to wound, words to build should be that of the Christian. We need to tell those we love words of satisfaction. To those with difficulties, we should share words of kindness and helpfulness.

Words fitly spoken are words that are spoken at the right time for the occasion. To be sure, your spouse would probably enjoy to hear how much you love him or her. Your children would be strengthened with words of praise and satisfaction. Your employer would be helped with words of gratitude spoken from you today.

This time of year, we tend to grab generic gifts to appease those around us. But truly, A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver. Perhaps the best gift we will give is the gift of a fitly spoken word.

I leave you with wonderful words spoken to us by our great God. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. Joh 3:16

• The U.S. Circuit Court in Denver ruled District Court Judge Howard Bratton's decision on New Mexico's ban on exporting water was "vacated, null and void." In 1980, El Paso's Public Board filed for permits to drill 266 wells to transport unappropriated water across the state line for municipal and economic purposes. State Engineer Steve Reynolds rejected the requests, El Paso sued and Bratton ruled that New Mexico had failed to prove its ban on water exportation was not a violation of the U.S. Constitution's Commerce Clause, as El Paso contented. The state Legislature also passed statutes banning exportation of water that would impair existing water rights and harm water conservation. El Paso vowed to continue litigation.

Vicki Johnson provides relief for hospitalized children by reading

Auxilian recently gave away her 350th book at MMC

By Bethany Conway

Since 2007, Memorial Medical Center Auxilian Vicki Johnson has spent her days in retirement reading to children in the hospital's pediatric unit. Armed with a bag full of books, she allows each child to pick their favorite, which will be theirs to keep.

Johnson is excited to spread the word that she recently gave away her 350th book.

"How this got started is what is so wonderful to me," she said. "It was just this little thing that I got going, and it turned into a wonderful program."

While Johnson initially bought the books herself, an anonymous donor who heard about the program now provides all the books, which accommodate a diverse age group.

"I have them categorized. If there is someone that is 11 years old, I bring a book that is age appropriate," Johnson said, crediting her ability to choose the right books to her background in education.

According to Lynda Taylor, director of auxiliary services, it's about making the children feel as comfortable as possible.

that leaves feeling

"When a child is here, it is so hard on the family," Taylor said. "If you have a child that's hurting, you want to make the hurt go away.' For Johnson, it's not just about the children, but about offering caregivers who spend day and night in the hospital a chance to take a break, whether it is for a meal, a shower or a cup of coffee. For example, one mother who hadn't even had time to go home, take a shower and grab a change of clothes was thankful when Johnson offered to stay and read to her child while she left the hospital for a short

> "She had no relief," Johnson said. "She was a single mom, and she had stayed there all night.'

> Johnson said she knows her work is making a difference when she is approached outside of the hospital time and time again by children and mothers who remember her. Not long ago, while Johnson was shopping in Wal-Mart, she felt a small child hug her around the legs. It was one of those she had read to during his time at MMC.

The nurses in the pediatric unit even keep her phone number handy on their Rolodex in case there is ever a child alone or a child that is becoming very restless.

"I am the one that leaves feeling blessed at the end of the day. If you can put a smile on somebody's face or you know that you've helped somebody, then it's all worth it. You make life a little easier for somebody.

La Casa seeks another $125,000 in donations

Money needed for expansion

Despite economic hard times, local businesses and area residents are helping La Casa Inc., Doña Ana County's Domestic Violence Shelter, raise $125,000 by June 30, 2009. This money is needed to pay for the remaining construction costs of the Capital Campaign Construction and Expansion Project that will add 10 new shelter bedrooms and increase counseling facilities.

Recently, Randall Hempling, CEO of MountainView Regional Medical Center, presented La Casa with a $10,000 check for the Capital Campaign. Anthony Martinez, manager of the Wal-Mart on Valley Drive, gave $2,000. The employees of the Sunland Park Racetrack and Casino raised $2,000 towards the construction project.

Local businesses are placing donation jars in their businesses to help pay for the construction costs. M. Philip's Fine Art Gallery is donating 10 percent of their December sales towards the Capital Campaign.

Chris Sanders, local musician, compiled and produced a musical CD, "Peace Begins at Home." This CD features music from local music artists and 100 percent of the proceeds goes to the Capital Campaign. The CD is $20 and can be purchased at La Casa.

Individual donations ranged from $20 to $3,500. La Casa now needs to raise $100,000 to meet its goal.

La Casa provides shelter to domestic violence victims and their family for Doña Ana County. La Casa's counseling programs include counseling to resident and nonresident victims, a children's counseling program, parenting classes and the Batterer's Intervention Program. Last year, La Casa provided services for 2,361 people and provided 42,584 meals and snacks to domestic violence victims and their children. The average shelter stay was 26 days Shelter programs include GED and ESL classes. La Casa also assists in helping transition women from the shelter into new apartments and jobs.

Picks and Pans: The best and worst movies of 2008

'The Wrestler' and 'Drillbit Taylor' top the best list

By JEFF BERG For the Las Cruces Bulletin

It was an interesting year in terms of the continued difference in opinions between moviegoers and reviewers.

A good comparison might be made between two completely opposite movies. "Beverly Hills Chihuahua," which, at press time, had made $92 million at the box office, had been drubbed by critics and listed on www.imdb.com – the all-knowing movie site – as one of the 100 worst movies ever made, garnering a 2.3 out of 10 from viewers. I've not seen "BHC."

On the other hand, a film that has become a critic's darling, the dark, dark, dark French comedy, "A Christmas Tale," ended up in my "worst" of the year list, and has only been able to muster less than $1 million at the box office in its limited release, thus far. It has a 7.4 from IMDB

Certainly, most people still go to the movies for entertainment and escape, a trend that seems to be continuing as a number of distributors of smaller independent and foreign films went belly-up this year, while others struggle. (Although the good news is that some new distributors such as Magnolia and Shadow are stepping up to fill the void with some very fine movies.)

With everyone watching their budget, one can hope that this trend will change and more people will start to see film, at least on occasion, as a form of art as well as a form of entertainment.

So, with that in mind, here is my annual list, albeit brief, of noteworthy films that I saw in the past year. Some of these titles played here already and others will screen in 2009, and others, well, you're on your own if you want to see them.

Documentaries

"Our Spirits Don't Speak English: Indian Boarding Schools" is a horror story of a failed government policy to "kill the Indian, save the man" ... "Cats of Mirikitani" is a touching film about a Japanese internment camp survivor turned street artist and the woman who helps him ... "Girls Rock" is about a camp that helps young women ages 8 to 18 advance their lives through music ... "Encounters at the End of the World" is Werner Herzog's realistic look at Antarctica ... and "Man on Wire" is the taut-and-true tale of a daredevil who walked a high wire between the World Trade Center towers in the 1970s.

Flicks that are just now making the rounds or will soon

"The Wrestler" tops this list easily. Don't let the title fool you, since this wonderfully moving character study offers outstanding performances by comeback-needing actors Mickey Rourke and co-star Marisa Tomei ... "Cumbia Connection" is a Mexican love story that tells its tale mostly through wonderful Cumbia music and near-perfect cinematography. I've never seen a picture quite like this one ... "Quiet Chaos" is an endearing Italian feature - mostly comedic – about a man who becomes so overly protective of his young daughter after the death of his wife that he sets up his office in a park across from her school ... "Cherry Blossoms" is a touching German tale of an elderly man who loses his wife and finds acceptance and life lessons from a young traditional Japanese dancer ... "Doubt," a fine ensemble drama with Meryl Streep and Philip Seymour Hoffman might be the best film I saw in 2008, followed closely by the beautiful Swedish picture "Everlasting Moments, Slumdog Millionaire," a very original drama about a young Indian man who has to "prove" himself in order to claim a prize from a popular television show, and "Milk," the bio-pic about gay activist Harvey Milk.

Now out on DVD

"The Visitor," tells the story of a lonely man and how his life is changed by two migrant musicians ... "OSS 117," is a great parody of all things Bond – James Bond. "Chop Shop" is the story of a young man learning the auto parts business on the dirty streets of NYC ... "When Did You Last See Your Father," is an absolutely moving drama ... same with "The Grocer's Son" ... "Elegy" is a winter/spring romance starring a perfectly cast Ben Kingsley and Penelope Cruz and "Frozen River" (on DVD Jan. 27) is a chilly tale of wintertime human smuggling and redemption.

Stuff from the past that I just uncovered this year

"Time to Leave," depicts a self-absorbed gay photographer who tries to figure out his life after he discovers he has cancer ... "Monsieur Hire," a French thriller about an introverted middle-aged man who is suspected of murder because he is "different" and the dark but realistic Burt Lancaster World War II film, "The Train."

Guilty pleasures

Yes, I do have some, and here is where I confess ... "Drillbit Taylor," great expectations by some made this a box office flop, but its comedy and sweetness were both hooks for me ... "Swing Vote," made in New Mexico, totally unbelievable, totally entertaining ... "The Pope's Toilet" oh, relax – it is just a story about a man who, like his neighbors, wants to cash in on an impending visit by the Pope, and builds a pay for use toilet in his Uruguayan village.

Other notables

"Shotgun Stories" (no, it is not about guns), "Irina Palm" stars aging folk/rock singer Marianne Faithful as a sex club worker in this ultra dry comedy/drama, Gus Van Sant's "Paranoid Park," "Finding Amanda," a vastly underrated Matthew Broderick comedy, "Four Minutes" (from Germany), "Year of the Fish," a modern day Cinderella story in the unique style of animation called rotoscope and "Beauty in Trouble," from the Czech Republic, oh, and "Moscow Belgium," a delightful story of a middle-age working mom caught between two would-be suitors.

Disappointments and turkeys

"Trouble the Water" – the most overhyped documentary of the year about a couple of New Orleans losers who accidentally shot a few minutes of horrific tape during Hurricane Katrina ... "Expired," a hugely unsatisfying sexist comedy with Samantha Morton, the boorish and moronic "Gomorra," the pointless "Priceless" and, surprise, "A Christmas Tale."

So, here's hoping that, if you haven't already, you'll make it a resolution in 2009 to see movies that might challenge you in some way. The Fountain Theatre, of course, will offer you at least 52 chances to do so this year, and as you travel, check out similar venues, such as Tucson's Loft Theatre, The Guild in Albuquerque or The Screen, Santa Fe Film Center and CCA in Santa Fe

After all, how many more talking dog movies do we need to see?

The person who comes closest to guessing how many movies I saw in 2008 wins two tickets to the Fountain Theatre. Email me at jeffberg@lascrucesbulletin.com before noon on Thursday, Jan. 1. Hint: It is more than 100 in spite of my best efforts.

ARTIST'S DIALOGUE AT THE PRESTON CONTEMPORARY ART CENTER

Preston Contemporary Art Center will host an Artist's Dialogue presentation at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 10, by relief sculptor Susan Venable. There is no admission charge for the event.

Susan Venable creates subjective works of art that are both striking and contemplative. Her zen-like approach is intentional and is represented by the honesty in her choice of materials and processes. She combines fiber techniques in copper wire with oil and encaustic panels based on a metal grid. She creates physical metaphors wherein the works' structural aspects are poetically articulated. Materials she uses are ancient and of the earth. Copper, representing fire and light, is one of the earliest-known substances used in art. Both steel and copper have been chosen for their properties, both real and symbolic, of strength. The origins of her work are found in the art of primitive societies where the earth's elements and resources were paramount. In keeping with her commitment to the environment, the metals are all fabricated of recycled materials.

located at 1755 Avenida de Mercado. For more information, call 523-8713 or visit www.preston-contemporaryart.com.

Sunday, JANUARY 11

ARTIST'S DIALOGUE AT THE PRESTON CONTEMPORARY ART CENTER

Thomas Schiff will give a demonstration of techniques used in creating panoramic architectural photography as part of the Artist's Dialogue at the Preston Contemporary Art Center at 1 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 11.

A photographer since childhood, Schiff has worked in various photographic formats for 40 years. In a journey to find a new artistic vision, he turned to panoramic photography in 1994. He is a lifelong resident of Cincinnati, Ohio. In creating his panoramic photographs, the camera is mounted to an extended tripod and rotates 360 degrees or more upon its axis, exposing film in a continuous strip as it turns. Schiff looks for key visual elements on which to anchor the image, becoming the starting point from where the camera's movement is calculated. Schiff has three published books of images shot with his Hulcherama 360 Panoramic camera: "Panoramic Cincinnati" (1999), "Panoramic Ohio" (2002) and "Panoramic Parks of Cincinnati" (2005). In 2003, the "Panoramic Ohio" project included a touring exhibition that opened at the Cincinnati Art Museum.

The Preston Contemporary Art Center is located at 1755 Avenida de Mercado. For more information, call 523-8713 or visit www.preston-contemporaryart.com.

© KCOS TV ART DAYS AUCTION

KCOS-TV's Art Days 2009 art auction will showcase the talents of some of the area's most celebrated and renowned artists along with some exciting new talent.

KCOS can sell approximately 200 items in the time allotted and will accept donations on a first-come first-serve basis. The deadline for submission is Feb. 6. Original art, antiques, collectibles and celebrity items are very popular and create a lot of interest when KCOS has them early enough to feature them in advance.

Art received in the office no later than Jan. 9 may be previewed in the February Viewer Guide and on the KCOS TV website.

The artist's works will be featured over four days on KCOS. The auction will take place from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 18 and 19, from 2 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21, and 2 to 9 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 22.

The auction allows viewers to place bids on recent works that have been generously donated by the artists. Proceeds go to fund public television station KCOS in order to allow it to continue to provide quality programming for the entire Southwest region.

Contact Alicia Meier at 915-590-1313 or ameier@kcostv.org for more information.

Black Box Theatre presents 'The Christmas Pudding'

Christmas celebration told in various ways

"The Christmas Pudding," created, compiled and adapted by David Birney and directed by Jan H. Wolfe, has performances at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 26 and 27, at the Black Box Theatre, 430 N. Downtown Mall. The play is a Christmas celebration told in songs, stories, poems and tales from some of the world's greatest classical writers that evoke the real spirit of Christmas.

Wolfe, an award-winning El Paso direcwolfe, an award-winning El Paso director, started a new theater production company called Framed Wolfe Productions. The "initial voyage" will be "The Christmas Pudding," a show that Wolfe fell in love with at first reading.

"There are no jingle bells or ho, ho, ho, are other asymptotically existent pieces.

ho's or other commercially-oriented pieces. This isn't a story, but rather a series of classic stories, poems, essays, letters and old-fashioned caroling, which take you into the true mood of the season," Wolfe says. "I am Jewish, and I found this material uplifting, noble, majestic and very accessible. You leave feeling full of the joy of this season of giving and sharing.'

Readings include, amongst others, pieces by George Bernard Shaw, Shakespeare, Longfellow, Mark Twain, O. Henry, Luke and Charles Dickens. Even young King Arthur makes an appearance as he pulls the sword from the stone. Humorous and mystical poems are interspersed with heartwarming stories of seasons past.

Musical Director John Bedford Johnson has found the music for the family of carolers, who also are the readers. Some of this music will be well known, but some are old English, French or German carols that would have been sung by neighborhood singers in late 1800 England. His job was to take these diverse voices and put them together into the special sound of friends singing.

The ultimate feeling of the evening that of sitting by a huge fireplace and listening to the best storytellers and singers available. Featured are John Bedford Johnson, Stephanie Conwell, Judith Lee, Jim Daross, David Villanueva and Vanessa Casas.

This will be the first time that Wolfe and Ceil and Peter Herman, the owners of the Black Box Theatre, have collaborated on a project and both are excited. The intimacy of the Black Box is perfect for this show.

Tickets are $10 for regular admission and $9 students and seniors over 65. Reservations are strongly recommended and can be made by calling 523-1223 or online at www.no-strings.org.

Judith Lee, Stephanie Conwell, Johnny Johnson and David Villanueva will perform in "The Christmas Pudding" at the Black Box Theatre Friday and Saturday, Dec. 26

BRANIGAN CULTURAL CENTER

'La Charreada: Fotos de ¡Los Charros Magnificos!" will be on display at the Branigan Cultural Center, 501 N. Main St. Photographer David Shaw happened on a procession of pick-up trucks and horse trailers traveling down a dusty road in Encinitas, Calif., and on impulse followed them. This led to Shaw's discovery of the world of La Charreada, the Mexican Horse Rodeo. An exhibit of silver gelatin prints celebrating the people, Los Charros, and the event, La Charreada, is the culmination of three years of travel into this centuries old competition and exhibition of horsemanship. "La Charreada: Fotos de ¡Los Charros Magnificos!" remains on display through Dec. 27.

Supplementing the photography will be information panels providing the history of La Charreada and describing the various events and feats. The panels will be presented in both English and Spanish.

Shaw has been involved in photography for over forty years. Inspired by Edward Weston's "Daybooks," he began working in black and white using a 4-by-5 view camera. For the Charreada series, Shaw used a twin lens Mamiya camera. Now settled in Las Cruces, he has established Estudio Azul and continues exploring new subjects with his camera

The Branigan Cultural Center is located at the north end of the Downtown Mall. The exhibit and reception is free and open to the public. Galleries are open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. Call 541-2154 or visit http://museums.las-cruces.org for more information

MAIN STREET GALLERY

Nancy Begin will be the featured guest artist through December at Main Street Gallery, 311 N. Downtown Mall. She is exhibiting her fantasy works which depict her pleasingly peculiar watercolor world and her equally curious "Monster Boxes," which can only be described as irresistibly grotesque pets ... the kind you want to take home. The adorably quirky hand-painted and hand-carved characters are liable to charm and compel one into an adoption frenzy. The Main Street Gallery continues to exhibit some of Las Cruces' finest artists including the etchings and pastels of Winfrey Hearst, the impressionisms of Annetta Hoover, Judy Licht's brilliant dyes on office at 523-6403 for more information. silk, Daphne Wirthlin's whimsical fantasy scenes, Lois Wilson's fused and dichroic glasswork, Lynn Unangst's Spirit Minders, Margaret Berrier's detailed rock-art jewelry, Joanna Bradley's flam-boyant gourd artworks and the authenticated limited-edition prints of Robert Highsmith's superb watercolors.

The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. Call 647-0508 for more information.

© RIO GRANDE THEATRE

A show entitled "Americana Revisited, Part 2" created by local art educator Shelley Black will show through Dec. 29, in the El Paso Electric Gallery and Carolene De Mesilla Information Center & Gallery at the Rio Grande Theatre, 211 N. Downtown Mall.

Black majored in fine arts at the University of Southern California and graduated in 1973 with a bachelor's degree in art. During her freshman year, she illustrated "Your Future in Archaeology" by Dr. Gerald A. La Rue While still attending college, she worked as staff artist for Dr. W.J. Bennett Jr. on an archeological dig under the auspices of the American Schools of Oriental Research and the Albright Institute of Archaeological Research in Jerusalem, with funding provided by the Smithsonian Institution. This position took Shelley to the Middle East in 1971 to work on site and continued after returning to Los Angeles until 1978 when the study was published. Black developed her artistic endeavors in technical drawing by branching into architectural illustration and rendering, and pursued fine arts through freelance work, which included short story illustrations. She understudied to Nina George, a well-known award winning surrealist painter who introduced her to the limited palette and inspired further direction in oils on canvas.

Her work includes a broad range of technique and application, ranging from portraiture to non-objective abstraction. Black attempts to bring forth the vibrancy of the world around us through art by focusing on color and poignant moments of life.

The Galleries at the Rio Grande are open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday. Gallery volunteers are needed. Contact the Doña Ana Arts Council

② M. PHILLIP'S FINE ART GALLERY

M. Phillip's Fine Art Gallery features a one-woman show for Carolyn Bunch, an artist that has been very active in the community for several years. The show will run through December. Also, 10 percent of all gallery art sales during December will be donated to La Casa Inc., a nonprofit organization whose program offers safe housing, counseling and support services to victims of domestic violence and their children. Call 525-1367 for more information.

MASTERY IN LIFE CENTER

Raul Madrid, a remarkable individual who just celebrated his 50th birthday with cerebral palsy, will be featured at Mastery in Life, at the north end of the Downtown Mall, during the month of December. Madrid's works include a variety of techniques and media, including watercolor, collage and acrylic on panel. His vibrant and expressive works were created with minimal use of one foot. Call 373-1971 for more information.

IN EFFECT GALLERY
In Effect Gallery, 514 W. Griggs Ave., features their December show titled "The Birthday Suit: Black & White and in Color." Featured artist of the month will be Danielle Lozano, a local artist/photographer. Lozano has an impressive collection of black and white "erotic" photographs, which gave birth to the December theme. Numerous other local artists have entries as well. There is a lot of good, underexposed talent in the Mesilla Valley, as this show will demonstrate that. Additionally, In Effect will accept layaway purchases just in time for the holidays.

While not obscene or pornographic, the subject matter is adult-oriented. It is for this reason the gallery will be limiting entry to those 18 and older only, so as not to potentially offend any unsuspecting parents.

In Effect Gallery is the only gallery in the area to give 80 percent of the sale price back to the artist. The gallery only shows works of local artists, often the ones no other gallery will show. Best described as "urban-contemporary," In Effect is a unique venue for the arts in Las Cruces. Regular gallery hours are from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. For more information,

© GLENN CUTTER JEWELERS AND GALLERY

Glenn Cutter Jewelers and Gallery will host Susi and Richard Bergquist through Dec. 31. The Bergquists are well known ceramic artists from San Simon, Ariz. Susi Bergquist does figures based on Indian Folklore made of ceramic. There are coyotes, wolves, birds, ravens, owls, deer and many other animals. She also does ledger drawing depicting Indian history. Her wall pieces are called mojaves and are hummingbirds, bears, rabbits, porcupines and other creatures. She will also have some etchings, engraving and reduc-

Richard Bergquist does santos or saints clay creations that sit on a shelf with objects representing the miracles of the saints at the base. Each saint has the professed blessing on the back of the pieces. He also does clay wall angels and nativity sets.

The two make all of their own ceramic clays from scratch. She makes figures from stories she draws of her own unique style. The figures are embellished with beads, fabric and hair the way the original Mojave Indian figures were.

@ MILAGRO COFFEE

Kurt Van Wagner of Las Cruces, will be displaying his digital figurative creations at Milagro Coffee, 1733 E. University Ave., through Dec. 31. Van Wagner has emerged as an accomplished self-taught photo based digital artist. He uses his computer to digitally create figurative nude collages as well as digitally painted photographs of local landscapes. The past several years, Van Wagner's art has been published in more than 20 international magazines and books. These recent works of the human figure are Kurt's interpretation of man's purpose and meaningful existence in the world. Van Wagner is a member of the Las Cruces Arts Assocation, CAPA (City of Artists Promotional Association), Art Forms and the El Paso Arts Association, and has won numerous awards the past eight years of his arts career. A beautiful new exhibit at the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum will have people looking at quilts in a whole new way. "Elements from the Front Range Contemporary Quilters" features 35 quilts created by an organization of artists primarily from Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Nebraska and Kansas,

The show continues through Feb. 8 in the Traditions Gallery. The museum has added some traditional quilts from its collections that are displayed in the North Corridor outside the gallery.

Inspired by the themes and atmosphere of the West, these artists explore the concept of elements from a wide array of perspectives. Their quilts allude to earth, air, fire and water, as well as to environmental degradation, seasonal change, day and night and the chemical makeup of the planet on which we live.

These contemporary quilters are a continuation of the art quilt movement of the 1970s, when pioneering artists moved guilted textiles from the bed to the wall, declaring that fiber arts were valuable and worthy of notice as fine art. These quilts incorporate the accessible and familiar with the new and edgy, using a medium that has become, for many artists, a strong avenue for contemporary expression.

The Front Range Contemporary Quilters was established in Colorado in 1988 to educate, inform and celebrate the art quilt. From its eightmember beginning, the organization has grown to more than 200 members and provides a dynamic forum for education, mentorship and support for the contemporary guilter.

The museum is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and $2 for children 5 to 17. Call 522-4100 for more information.

② LAS CRUCES MUSEUM OF ART

The Las Cruces Museum of Art is proud to present "Innovation and Change: Great Ceramics from the Ceramics Research Center, Arizona State University Art Museum Collection." The exhibition will run through Jan. 24.

The exhibit highlights 79 masterworks by many of the leading international artists of our time, offering a panoramic survey of the potential of clay as an expressive art form. The objects on view range from functional ware for everyday use to more expressive art forms.

The exhibit features works by such prominent artists as Peter Voulkos, Stephen DeStaebler, Jun Kaneko, Tanya Batura and Eddie Dominguez. Influenced by European modernist design, as well as Asian pottery traditions, these ceramic pioneers created a new American aesthetic. The showing here in Las Cruces is part of a 10 city national tour over a three-year period.

The Tombaugh Gallery of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Las Cruces, 2000 S. Solano Drive, will host the gourd art of Joanna Bradley and Kathe Stark through Jan. 2.

Stark has been working with gourds since moving to Las Cruces from the Midwest 10 years ago. Through trial and error, her art has evolved to include burnt and carved designs adorned with ink, dyes, paint, pine needles and feathers. The shape of the gourd points the way towards a design and method of embellishment. Both vessels and masks are created harkening to the rich Native American history of the Southwest. Stark's work has been featured in the galleries of the Rio Grande Theatre.

Bradley has had a lifelong interest in the gourd as canvas. She has participated in art shows in New Mexico, Arizona and Texas for 14 years, She has received an award for the most creative entry in the Angel Fire ArtsFest. Bradley's art has been featured at the Mesilla Valley Fine Arts Gallery and the Main Street Gallery in Las Cruces.

Bradley and Stark explore the wide palette of possibilities offered by gourds as an art form. Both use various gourds and a full array of decorating techniques. The finished pieces offer a Southwestern flair that makes it a unique gift for the holiday season.

Gallery hours are noon to 4 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Call 522-7281 for more information. The gallery will be closed on Wednesday, Dec. 24, and Wednesday, Dec. 31.

"Photos and Fibers" an exhibit by John Gustinis and Joan Jensen, is currently on display at thetheatregallery at the Black Box Theatre, 430 N. Downtown Mall. John Gustinis studied physics in Rochester, N.Y., then worked as a technician and engineer at several universities. Jensen studied art in Pasadena and then history at the University of California at Los Angeles. They met in 1971 in San Francisco while both were involved in the anti-war movement. This is their first exhibit together.

After moving to Las Cruces in 1976, they studied art at New Mexico State University off and on. Gustinis branched out into photography and Jensen into fiber arts. They claim to be modernists at heart, growing up during the era of abstract expressionism, but have ventured on to include more representational objects in their work as well, including landscapes, insects and plants. They spend much time outdoors. Jensen hikes while Gustinis kayaks. These experiences find a way into their art in many ways: colors, textures, images, forms, light and shadow.

The gallery is open one hour before all performances at the Black Box Theatre and by appointment by calling 523-1223.

-----FEATURED ARTIST

Megan McQueen: Artist by calling, teacher by accident

NMSU graduate has a place in Las Cruces arts community

By JENNA FROSCH The Las Cruces Bulletin

Megan McQueen is multitalented. She can sing, act and dance, but more than that, she can create productions of all three, star in them and make them a hit.

She used to sit and listen to her father play his guitar and sing, which was the beginning of her musical career. She sang in church, at school and pursued a bachelor's degree in music with a minor in theater from New Mexico State University.

In her senior year at NMSU, she played Cherubino in the opera "The Megan McQueen enjoys performing in musical theater, as the Witch in "Into the Woods."

Marriage of Figaro" and Sally Bowles in "Cabaret."

"I started my degree because I liked singing," McQueen says. Soon, singing became producing, and she began putting together shows during the nights the NMSU Music Center Recital Hall wasn't being used for performances.

"Putting together the shows evolved into me directing/producing a lot of things in the community," McQueen says.

The progression was a natural one for McQueen. In general, McQueen says she enjoyed the organizational part of the process – the creative part.

"In Las Cruces, there is always opportunity to do things I want to do," McQueen says. "Performing is the favorite aspect of everything I do, but I think there is more of a need for the directing aspect now."

With that, McQueen is in the application process to return to school for her master's of fine arts degree in directing, a field that she has become familiar with since her 2001 graduation from NMSU.

In that time, McQueen has working with theater companies in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, while performing professionally. She began teaching at Alma d'arte Charter High School in the fall of 2004, teaching musical theater. With new, popular musicals being produced, such as "High School Musical" and "Hairspray," McQueen says younger students are learning to appreciate the genre.

"These days, musicals are popular with the kids, so I get to teach them how to sing, dance and act," McQueen says.

As part of the school's curriculum, McQueen says the arts are integrated into learning. However, since her subject is the arts, she integrates core learning into her class, such as reading more Sholem Aleichem while learning "Fiddler on the Roof."

This year, McQueen has participated in 10 major productions, and in the fall semester alone, has made at least 50 public performances.

"My husband's a patient man," McQueen says with a laugh.

Earlier in the year, McQueen worked on "We Are Enron" alongside Mark Medoff, who encouraged her to pursue an advanced degree in directing.

"Mark thinks I am capable of directing at a professional level," McQueen says. "I think I do want to see what comes from directing."

While her performances ranged from singing to acting, McQueen says she loves musicals and considers herself an expert on the subject, answering trivia from students and people within the community. She has more than 200 CDs of musicals and at least 100 musical DVDs.

"Musicals are such an open expression of joy and really any other emotion," McQueen says. "Storytelling through music is an incredibly powerful tool for connection between human beings."

She has produced four performances at the Boba Café Cabaret and says the shows are a gift to the community.

"I love piecing together different material for a production and taking the audience on a rollercoaster ride of music," she says. "If you do it well, people trust you and will go with you any crazy place from song to song" song to song."

With her plans to receive a master's degree elsewhere where there is a program for it, McQueen still would love to return to New Mexico and serve as an artistic director for a music theater company. As an artistic director, McQueen could work with the business side of production, as well as choosing performances, overseeing casting and working with a variety of people – something that McQueen has proven she has a knack for. In her most recent venture, McQueen

In her most recent venture, McQueen and a group of her friends will participate in a "One Night Only" performance at the Rio Grande Theatre at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 27. She will perform with Isaac Quiroga and Marco Jimenez. Admission is $10. Call McQueen at 644-7136 for

Isaac Quiroga, Marco Jimenez to perform classic and modern favorites

Megan McQueen, Isaac Quiroga and Marco Jimenez will come together for "One Night Only," a dramatic, energetic celebration of a variety of great music at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 27, at the Rio Grande Theatre.

McQueen has directed nearly 20

revues for the community. As a voice, music and theater teacher at Alma d'arte Charter High School for the last five years, she's been able to stay in town and stage many musicals, most recently "We Are Enron." Šhe's played roles in many Las Cruces musicals, such as Aldonza in "Man of La Mancha," Woman two in "Songs for a New World" and the Witch in "Into the Woods."

Quiroga will return from New York City where he recently earned his master's degree in performance from New York University. He performed in dozens of dance, music and theater events as a student at New Mexico State University (such as "She Loves Me" and "Animals' Christmas") and has frequently returned to Las Cruces to light up the stage (as in "Songs for a New World" and "Extinction"). Last spring, he starred as Jeff Skilling in "We Are Enron."

Jimenez is working on a master's degree in performance in piano at the University of Arizona. He's shared his multiple gifts as pianist or singer in numerous shows for Las Cruces Community Theatre, Doña Ana Lyric Opera, No Strings Theatre Company, NMSU Choirs and other organizations. Highlights include portraying Sancho in "Man of La Mancha," playing for piano for "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" and playing and acting in Tom Smith's "Glamtastic."

The show will include a range of Broadway tunes from the classic Gershwins' "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off" to songs from Broadway's recent "Light in the Piazza" and "Spring Awakening." The set list will also feature hits of several popular music artists such as John Denver and Tori Amos. Also returning to Las Cruces, two professional musicians will make special appearances in the show. Michael Wood of Liars fame will play guitar and Joe T. Meier will play saxophone.

Consider giving tickets as a memorable holiday gift. This exciting reunion of three oft-collaborators in the most beautiful venue in Las Cruces will be a night to remember. Tickets are $10 and will be on sale at the Rio Grande Theatre from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Dec. 27 and at the door. Call 526-7833 for more information.

High-quality eats at El Sombrero

Restaurant serves traditional Mexican dishes since 1956

By JENNA FROSCH The Las Cruces Bulletin

Since 1956, El Sombrero Patio Café has offered some of the highest quality Mexican food in the area, with food made fresh, along with the best service available, according to their mission statement.

They are known for their homemade salsa and variety of dishes to please any palette, and Manager Melissa Robinson says the restaurant serves food from recipes that have remained consistent through their 52 years in

"We have been in business a long time and we are known for our fast, friendly service," Robinson says. She says with a full staff, every customer is treated with the best care.

Their location on Espina Street gives El Sombrero plenty of traffic and with an enclosed patio patrons can enjoy a drink during happy hour or a full meal. The happy hour is one of the best in Las Cruces according to Robinson, and it is offered from 2 to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and all day Friday and Saturday, with $1.75 domestic beer and $2.25 import. They also offer a nach-

For those who aren't looking for a cold beverage, El Sombrero quality food, such as the most popular menu item, green enchiladas served with tortillas, or the Sombrero tacos, three steamed corn tortillas with guacamole, alfalfa sprouts, mushrooms, cheese, lettuce, tomatoes and a side of pico de gallo.

The fajitas caliente are another patron favorite, with grilled beef and chicken with onion, jalepeños and green chile, guacamole, sour cream, lettuce, tomato, cheese and miniature flour tortillas.

"We aren't a steakhouse, but we have a really great rib eye that people seem to enjoy," Robinson says. El Sombrero features daily lunch specials for $5.95. Monday is rolled tacos, beef or chicken, with chile con queso. Tuesday is the double barrel chimichangas, beef or chicken, with green chile topped with red or green sauce and served with whole beans, guacamole, chile con queso, La Posta de Mesilla One of their most famous dishes, the "Tostada Compuesta," originated at La Posta in 1939. This dish consists of a toasted corn tortilla cup filled with frijoles, red chile con carne, topped with chopped lettuce, diced tomatoes and grated cheddar cheese. If you prefer green chile, the local" favorite is the sour cream enchilada. This dish consists of corn tortillas smothered with green chile sauce, topped with grated cheddar cheese or monterey jack cheese and sour cream, and includes refritos, rice and our very tasty Mexican slaw. Other La Posta favorites include their compuesta salad, red enchiladas, folded and rolled tacos, beef or chicken flautas, chile rellenos, as well as a wonderful selection of desserts including their very delicious homemade flan and empanadas. Perhaps one of their best kept secrets is their tasty succulent steaks, served with your choice of baked potato, red enchilada, or steak fries, and includes a side of their green chile (of course!).

Midler, Long and their road trip hijinks hit the big screen

'Outrageous Fortune' shot in New Mexico

The CineMatinee for Saturday, Dec. 27, is "Outrageous Fortune" (1987, 100 minutes, rated R, most of the film was shot in New Mexico). "Outrageous Fortune" marks a motion picture milestone - for the first time in action adventuring, the lead breaks a fingernail. It stops her for a moment, like a flesh wound, but she goes on to scrabble up the mesa in time to get her man.

Fortune smiles on the precedent-setting teamwork of comediennes Bette Midler and Shelley Long, the first female buddies ever to match wits with the CIA and the KGB and the no-good lout who did them wrong. They make a colossally madcap mismatch – natural adversaries who become best pals as they pursue their two-timing lover (Peter Coyote) from Manhattan to New Mexico. High-speed hijinks in high heels ensue.

The pratfalls become death defying when biological cycles make one of our heroines real cranky. PMS Rambo is unleashed, and the battle of the sexes intensifies. Heading West, the women track down the wily Coyote in a bordello, recognizing his lusty love calls through the door. Their illusions shattered and their friendship forged, they soon figure a way to avenge themselves - preferable by pulling his face off.

"Fortune" is every bit as rude and wonderful as "Ruthless People," the second of Midler's three dirty, ditzy comedies. The divine Ms. M works a variation on her tough tootsie as a tacky, sharp-tongued starlet whose last movie might have been called "Ninja Vixens." All that plus the Midler wiggle – like Jell-O in a pantyhose mold. Lewd and low-down, she's a natural counterpoint to Long's perfect parody of Ivy League snootiness.

But debuting screenwriter Leslie Dixon no propagandist. She's a screwball feminist, penning her rough-and-rowdy girl talk in familiar patterns inspired by her role models Preston Sturges and Billy Wilder. And veteran Arthur Hiller proves equally adept at managing a female odd

Unless otherwise noted, screening time is at 1:30 p.m. and admission is $4 for everyone except film society members who are admitted for $1. The theater is located one-half block south of the Mesilla Plaza. Call 524-8287 for more information.

'Tell No One' about the Fountain Theatre flick

Film is a thrill ride to find out 'whodunit'

REVIEW BY JEFF BERG The Las Cruces Bulletin

Since the title of this film insists that I don't spill the beans, I've decided to forego this week's review.

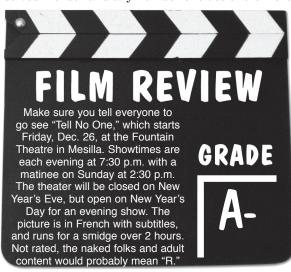

You wish!

'Tell No One" is a marvelously paced and tense seat grabber, with enough plot twists to help keep it going for its two-hour-plus running time. One day, a French doctor, Alexandre Beck, receives an email from his wife. No big deal, you think, unless she was doing a cowardly exit from their marriage? Think again, gentle reader. I almost forgot to mention that the wife, Margot, has been "dead" for eight years.

Then comes another email along with other brief but mysterious clues that indicate that his wife might not be dead after all. It was eight years ago while the couple was taking a needed day off that Mrs. Beck ended up dead. The couple was attacked while relaxing at a small rural lakeside beach and Dr. Beck was injured and nearly drowned, but not quite. How did he live?

The good doctor has long been a suspect in the still unsolved murder and any number of clues offers more pound his possible guilt, the bodies of two men were found nearby, when his wife's body was found. Whoever said that dead men tell no tales, might be terribly wrong

Dr. Beck becomes pursuer and pursued.

Along the way, we are introduced to a flurry of other characters, some of whom help round out the plot and keep the sometimes frantic pace of the film going, but not quite enough for keen observers to see through some of the plot holes. Each of these characters carries a secret or a solution to the puzzle, and soon the good doctor is facing a sort of jigsaw puzzle solution.

Dr. Beck attracts an unlikely ally – a thug whose child he helped during a time of need – who becomes Becks' benefactor and occasional bodyguard. Beck is pulling out all the stops to follow the mystery, and soon finds himself without money or a home, medical practice or clean shirt, until the hooligan appears. But is he actually a helper?

Hitchcockian in nature, and Bruce Willis-ish in pacing, "Tell No One," although slightly over-hyped, especially since it wasn't due to get released at all, became one of the best grossing foreign films of the year, won't allow you to put your brain in park and go along for the ride. It requires strict attention and is bound to raise a gasp or two from attentive audiences who appreciate a good murder mystery.

But in case you don't feel like going to the theater, here is the name of the killer: Professor Plum in the parlor with the candlestick.

The back of this postcard reads, "The Tortugas Trading Post derives its name form the Tortugas Indians who live just south of Las Cruces. The name Tortugas is Spanish for "turtles," and these Indians are so named because of their belief that they are descendants of turtles.

Chew on 'Marley and Me' this holiday

Aniston, Wilson star in this lovable book-based flick

REVIEW BY JEFF BERG For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Anyone who has ever had a pet for many years will certainly appreciate this choppily edited, overly long, warm and fuzzy picture based on the book of the True to the original story, "Marley and Me" tells the tale of how writer John Grogan (Owen Wilson, slightly out of character) and his wife Jenny, played by Jennifer Aniston, end up with the big mutt who overtakes their lives.

Encouraged by his editor, played by Santa Fe resident Alan Arkin (who gives the best performance of the movie), to buy Jenny a dog to help keep her mind off of babies, Grogan takes her to a kennel where they end up with the dog they note as a "clearance puppy," since for unknown reasons, the puppy soon to be known as Marley is offered for half the price of his fellow pound puppies.

Marley makes an immediate impression by eating anything in sight, running rampant throughout the neighborhood and trying to destruct the only dogfriendly beach in the coastal Florida community where the Grogan's reside.

As the Grogan's lives change - Jenny and John eventually end up with three kids, Jenny quits her own position as a writer for a competing daily paper, a move to a bigger house and Grogan's own conflicts with his career and family - Marley pretty much stays the same, except bigger and more lovable. Soon he is 100 pounds, still showing his penchant for chewing everything that he can sink his teeth into and flipping out during every thunderstorm.

But there are problems with this gentle and sometimes funny story. Listen hard to catch some of Wilson's best throwaway one-liners - they are easy to miss - and most of them can be attributed to the lousy editing. It makes the film rife with obvious continuity problems, the most noticeable being when John takes Jenny to the airport in one of their clunky old cars and returns home in the other one. Not too hard to tell the difference between a Toyota and a Honda.

Owen Wilson and Jennifer Aniston star in the holiday movie "Marley and Me, opening on Christmas Day.

Other major blunders include a sunny thunderstorm, Wilson sporting different shirts in the same scene and "misplaced"

There is not much chemistry between Wilson and Aniston, who also don't age well over the course of the film, but here again, Arkin's scenes make up for that a little bit. Another short scene includes an extended cameo by an almost unrecognizable Kathleen Turner, who looks very haggard and woefully overweight. I was taken aback by her physical appearance.

But with those asides, the film is made as an audience pleaser – an achievement that it conquers – and is given a big boost by its bittersweet ending, which is very moving and well acted.

There is not much here that you haven't seen before, and the dog poop jokes are thankfully kept to a minimum, thus allowing "Marley and Me" to be a perfect popcorn movie for the holiday

'Seven Pounds' is a pretty heavy film

Will Smith takes audience on an emotional rollercoaster ride

REVIEW BY NATISHA HALES

Ever since his debut in "Six Degrees of Separation," Will Smith has always been a phenomenal actor, and his role in "Seven Pounds" is no different. He may not have met his full potential with roles in summer blockbuster action films like "Wild Wild West," but he has come full circle with more realistic roles in "The Pursuit of Happyness" and, most recently, "Seven Pounds."

Apparently, that's Smith's fascination lately – to portray the bittersweet part of life, the part that includes despair. In "Seven Pounds," Smith's character combines guilt, life and death, taking the audience on the ultimate emotional rollercoaster ride.

Smith plays Ben Thomas, an IRS agent haunted by his past with mysterious ties to seven strangers - much more than overdue taxes. Slow-moving at first, the movie gives glimpses of Ben's past as he meets with several people to deem them worthy of a gift he claims to have for them, and the audience discovers that gift is not more time to pay taxes.

While scheduling encounters with each person, the story mainly focuses on Ben's fascination with Emily Posa (Rosario Dawson), whose congenital heart condition is quickly moving her up on the national donor list, and that means she has very little time left. The two quickly develop a bond that deepens beyond friendship – maybe a little too quickly to be convincing. Woody Harrelson also has a role in the film, playing Ezra Turner, a blind meat salesman, who has no idea why Ben keeps harassing him.

Smith works again with director

Gabriele Muccino after successfully working together on "The Pursuit of Happyness." As he did in "The Pursuit of Happyness," Muccino – in a very cryptic way - cinematically provides a sense of desperation. Paired with Smith, the combination is convincingly real. What people experience in actual life can be torturous, and Smith's expressions and state of mind portrays that very well.

You never get what you want

JOHN KEITH

Some guy with a long white beard wearing a red uniform cornered me in the mall and asked what I wanted for

You got plenty of time?" I asked. "Go ahead," he said.

I delivered the following Christ-

- A football coach at New Mexico State before spring practice starts.
- A job for Reggie Theus. Otherwise, he will be forced to try and get by on the $4 million the Kings paid him to leave.
- A year's worth of free meals for Herb Taylor who still hasn't learned how to reach for his wallet when it's time to pay.
- An explanation of why Taylor is nicknamed "Touchdown" when he never scored one playing four years of football at Wyoming.
- A road victory for Marvin Menzies.
- College baseball returning to wooden bats. The "Ping" of aluminum fails to grab me.
- Less media mania over the poorly owned Dallas Cowboys, fast becoming as insignificant as Notre Dame.
- Less media mania over Terrell Owens, better known as T.O. to journalists and fans who act like they personally know him enough to call him that. Get a life.
- A younger girlfriend for Yankee third baseman Alex Rodriguez. Remind him, please, that Madonna will soon be eligible for Medicare.
- A new press box at Aggie Memorial
- More free food for the always hardworking media at NMSU's press conferences.
- Elevated shoes for Paul Brilliant.
- A generous expense account for the Bulletin's sports editor.
- Quit using the term "student athlete!" What ever happened to the word "player?"
- More afternoon basketball games at NMSU that end in time for happy hour.
- No more cell phone conversations while driving the car.
- No more distracting cell phone conversations in restaurants.
- No more cell phone conversations,

I'll email our readers a Merry Christmas when I learn how to get on the Internet.

Peppers Pride: retired or is there more?

Undefeated thoroughbred leaves her trainer unsure of what's next

By John Keith

When they led her out of the stable to be photographed, you could tell she was something special. Even if you knew little about horse racing, you could tell.

Peppers Pride, 16.1 hands tall, sleek, well groomed and very alert, stood at attention like a five-star general during

She knew a camera when she saw one. This 5-year-old thoroughbred bay mare, undefeated and untied in 19 straight races, had been in how many photo shoots now? She is a worldwide celebrity, and, by the way she carries herself, you can tell she knows it. "Sure she does," said Joel

Marr, her trainer. "No doubt about it."
On a windy Sunday afternoon, Dec.
14, at the Sunland Park Racetrack and Casino, Peppers Pride thundered home to win her 19th, capturing the $125,000 New Mexico State Racing Commission Handicap at six furlongs. She won by five and one-half lengths, pushing her career earnings to $1,116,855 in a four-year career. All of her races have been on New Mexico tracks.

Sadly, it might have been her last

"We're not sure yet," said Marr. "We're leaning toward retiring her. There's nothing left for her to do. Gosh, I'd like to keep racing her, but the next race we'd put her in won't be run until March. We'll just have to wait and see.

"We're thinking about breeding her.
Maybe in Kentucky to something nice.
We're still not sure yet."

The 19 consecutive wins is a new, modern day North American record. Three more than the 16 in a row won by Cigar, Citation, Hallowed Dream and Mr. Frisky, four of horse racing's best.

Marr, a soft-spoken graduate of New Mexico State University, has been training horses for 15 years. He grew up in Tularosa in a horse-riding environment.
"My mother (Pat Marr) was the national barrel racing champion in 1965," he said. Joel's father, Gerald Marr, owns a stable

LCHS girls winning with depth

Mayfield starts fast; Oñate young, but promising

By Craig Massey

The Las Cruces High School girls basketball team reached the semifinals last year in the state tournament, and this year's squad is looking like a group that is capable of at least duplicating that effort.

Las Cruces is currently ranked fourth in the state in the New Mexico High School Coaches Association poll with an 11-1

We're playing really well," said LCHS coach Matt Abney. "We're getting after it defensively. We're 10 deep, and that's important with the style we play.'

LCHS is forcing its opponents to an average of 29 turnovers per game, and is turning those opportunities into points. The Bulldawgs are averaging 71 points per game.

Senior point guard Samantha España guides the aggressive style of play, and she's joined in the starting lineup by sharp-shooter Andrea Aragon, 6-0 post Devon Mulheron, Zoe Meade and top-scorer Ashley

At a tournament in Moriarty earlier this season, Aragon and Mulheron were named to the all-tournament team and Godfrey

The team will get even more depth and firepower after the Christmas break when Oñate transfer Jade Brown is eligible for varsity action.

"Everyone understands their role and is playing hard," said Abney.

Mayfield

Another team off to a fast start is the 7-2 Mayfield Trojans.

Like Las Cruces High, Mayfield is a wellbalanced team with great depth.

"We don't necessarily have one real standout, but we have 12 kids that can play," said Mayfield coach George Maya. We play hard and all of the kids are athletic, fast and quick."

The Trojans have good size in 5-11 Jenna Franzoy and 5-10 Catherine Chavarria. They're joined by Jeneca Maya, Justina Adams, junior standout Justina Apodaca and sophomore Elena Holguin.

Holguin is one of five sophomores that see playing time, and Maya likes his mix of youth and experience.

"Defensively, we're getting better and better because we can run 12 people in and out," he said. "Offensively, we're good at times, but we need to be more consistent."

Torres named All American

Ags' libero picked honorable mention

Senior Krystal Torres earned her first All-American honor as she was chosen for the American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA) All-American team.

Torres (Las Cruces), was named honorable mention on the 2008 squad. She led the Western Athletic Conference in digs with an average of 4.41 per set. She had 10 or more digs in 32 of 34 matches and had 20 or more digs seven times.

had 20 or more digs seven times.

"This is a huge honor to receive," Torres said. "I couldn't have done this without my teammates, coaches, school and community"

Torres also etched her name in the NMSU record books by breaking a long-standing record. This season, she set the school's all-time career digs record with 1,942. She broke the record after tallying 17 against Fresno State, Sept. 18, in the Pan American Center. The previous record, held by Vanessa White, stood since 1991.

"Krystal has meant a lot to our program, our university and our community," coach Mike Jordan said. "I've always thought of her as one of the best, if not the best, liberos in the region. She truly deserves this."

The Las Cruces native also owns the top-three slots on the NMSU single season-digs list. As a sophomore, she recorded 615 digs, which stands in first place. In her junior season, she registered 590 digs, which places her second and she posted 534 digs this season, which placed her fourth in the record books. Her career best performance came against WAC foe Hawaii, in Honolulu on Sept. 22, 2007, when she had an impressive 33-dig effort, which tied the NMSU single game record list. She was also named the WAC Player of the Week as a senior.

Krystal Torres, the Aggies' senior libero, was recently named an honorablemention All American by the American Volleyball Coaches Association.

The Golf Doctor's 2009 wish list

Including a prosperous and healthy New Year for all

As I reflect back on this past year in golf, I find there are so many issues and situations that have gone unresolved. Last year I vowed to cut down my complaining, which I partly did. Yet in my role as a journalist I feel bound by duty to report and expose things that my golf readers should know about. It saddens me that sometimes folks are offended, but that comes with the territory. As I look ahead to 2009, I fervently hope for things to get better. I'm hoping for better with our economy, our financial markets, our environment, our world in turmoil, our social problems and our country's sagging morale. I'm sure you're not interested in my hopes for our planet, but you may actually enjoy my wish list for golf in the coming year.

It's no secret that I've been trying to be a positive force to help improve the quality of our fine golf venues here in Las Cruces. Something is working because I see significant progress. And here's what I wish for. I want to see Donald and Louis Biad, owners of Picacho Hills Country Club, proudly bring their new $1 million sprinkler system online without complication in 2009, so the golf course can return to being one of the finest private clubs in the Southwest. Congratulations to Gil Martinez as the new greens superintendent, and I wish you the best as you move forward with your projects to elevate the quality of the grounds.

While our attention is focused on that side of town, let me wish Patrick Hanlon the best of luck as he begins the new year at Brigid's Cross Irish Pub. After a long, agonizing wait for the genuine crafted-in-Ireland interior to arrive, the pub is now open and the reviews have been really good. Patrick, it was worth the wait since the ambience and the authenticity bring something refreshing to our town. When you go, try the Smithwick's ale and the ample portion of fish and chips.

Over at Sonoma Ranch, I'm wishing that Zach Wilson will be the new permanent club manager and head of golf operations. Herb Wimberly and I have conducted our Performance Golf Schools at Sonoma Ranch ever since they opened in 1999, and consider the facility our home course. Zach may be young for a GM, but smarts, high energy and good people skills can go a long way. Plus Zach has a really good crew of young apprentices handling the shop and the golf activities, with a solid greenskeeping department. With the new membership program now on line, the ambitious management team at Sonoma will be able to keep the quality of golf at a high level. My other wish is that the regular golfers will also support Zach and his team.

A quick conversation with Ed Perez, club president at Las Cruces Country Club, reveals that the new golf course, Sierra Norte, is scheduled to be complete late next summer. He says the turf has been completely

ISN'T ALWAYS REFRESHING BUILT TO LAST The full-grain waterproof leather and moisture-wicking lining are quaranteed not to leak for one year. seeded and sodded and is filling in suitably. The hangup has been the access roads, which have delayed the clubhouse permits, but the issue now appears to have been resolved. Play is estimated to begin late in the year. I'm wishing that I'll get to play a few rounds on the new course and that it will be everything Ken Dye and the member says it is.

One thing I have wished for ever since I moved here more than 20 years ago, is that someone would host an exhibition match featuring PGA Tour players. Sierra Del Rio has done their part over the past two years in bringing quality professional women's play to southern New Mexico in the form of the "LPGA Shootout." But I'd like to see PGA stars right here in our town. It's too much to ask for someone to step up and title-sponsor a PGA or Nationwide tournament, but I think an exhibition would be doable. I'm thinking Rich and Bart and Brad and Tom and D.J. and J.P. and Kent and Notah and a few others from our area.

Equally high on my wish list is that we could get a nine hole, par 3 course built here in Las Cruces. Maybe this is more of a fantasy or a pipe-dream, but I'm serious. Nationally there is a movement afoot for shorter, more compact, less time-consuming golf formats, which include six-hole layouts and executive type configurations. A prototype is the "Great 28" course at Marty San-chez Links in Santa Fe. There is a "short course" in New Jersey that is so tough, according to stories, that it took Tiger Woods three tries to even break par. The Hickory course at the elegant Hamilton Farm Golf Club in Gladstone, N.J., boasts ponds, creeks, steep bunkers, thick rough, towering trees and expansive greens to justify its high USGA toughness rating. How can we get this project started here?

In the random yearning department, I wish that golfers would dress a little better on the golf course. I'm old school enough to think golf is a genteel sport; we should dress like it.

I wish that rakes were routinely kept out of the bunkers. There is no actual rule or policy, but let me offer this. The USGA dictates that rakes be out of the bunkers for tournament course set-ups, partly because it makes the process of marking and replacing a ball that is resting on a rake a whole lot easier. I don't think you'll ever see a rake left in a bunker on the PGA Tour.

DR. CHARLIE BLANCHARD

Golf Doctor

I wish that common sense would prevail with the rules gurus at the USGA and on tour. You have rules officials, cameras, caddies and a designated scoring 'marker" with each group of players. Don't come down with the death penalty when a mistake is made with a scorecard. Sure there's "tradition," but our sport needs to inch forward with some measure of reason. I also wish, as does Jack Nicklaus, that the high priests of rules would declare divots in fairways as groundunder-repair.

I'm not a big fan of putting celebrities under the microscope. Secretive stakeouts, rumor attacks and paparazzi harassment seem criminal sometimes. But one wish I do have is for better investigative reporting by the golf magazines when it comes to actual information. I would like to hear more about the cheating that goes on at the highest levels of the game, something that Boo Weekly has spoken about in plain language from time to time. What about the third speeding ticket that Colin Montgomery recently got in his zippy Bentley? Maybe it's because the golf writers enjoy so many perks, but it seems to me that the golf media treats our tour stars like they're untouchable.

Speaking of tour celebrities, I'm truly wishing that Rich Beem and Bart Bryant win again. These former Aggie golfers should still be at the pinnacle of their golfing powers, so this may be the season. Beem is a major winner, and Bart, who is also a multiple-tour event winner, nearly edged Tiger at Bay Hill, were it not for some 72nd hole heroics by the anointed one. Bart and Rich, I'm pulling for you.

My last wish is for good health to everyone and especially to all my readers and golfing friends. My uncle used to say, "If you have your health you have everything," and it's largely true. I've been blessed with my health, but some of my good friends could use our support and our prayers over the coming months of the New Year. After beating cancer, tour veteran Paul Azinger said rightly that it makes a four-foot putt mostly irrelevant.

Getting philosophical: How to be a true Aggie

It helps to be thick skinned

As we approach another year, ole Pete is getting a little philosophical about being an Aggie. Make no mistake, there is no doubt whatsoever that being an Aggie is what ole Pete is all about.

But I began to ponder, so to speak, on the qualities real Aggies possess.

One thing an Aggie definitely needs if he lives in the Land of Enchantment is a good, thick skin. First of all, Mother Nature is sending her sunshine at you all but five days out of the year. Plus, an Aggie needs to be indifferent to the japes that come from the North or the South, knowing what is best for us and not letting those comments get under our skin.

Also, an Aggie needs confidence. I think confidence can breed all kinds of good things for you in life and in sports.

Look at what confidence has done for the Aggie volleyball team, which has gone from mediocrity to national acclaim. It didn't happen without Mike Jordan's belief and the way he showed it to his teams. Their confidence has won many matches internally before it all starts.

This next quality is one that takes a little poetic license, but an Aggie has to have chile in their blood. Not just in their bloodstream from a plate of enchiladas and a gordita for lunch. That chile needs to be a part of an Aggies DNA to make it real.

I suppose it would have to be red chile in this instance. An Aggie doesn't have to be tall, an Aggie doesn't have to be thin, or rich or even good looking. These traits run much deeper than the surface.

It was said once that if you wear out a pair of shoes while you live in Las Cruces, you will never leave. This has been true for ole Pete, but the many alumni who are making their way around the globe still feel the kinship through their memories of our town and that is part of it as well.

Most of all, an Aggie needs a big heart. It has to be able to accommodate the joys of victories on the field and in the classroom. There has to be room for compassion and insight when a fellow Aggie stumbles along the path. But an Aggies heart has to be one that embraces all as friends. After the competition, we all have to work to make this world a little better.

That's what ole Pete thinks we Aggies are.

It's a numbers game

Basketball team at NMSU keeps improving each game

Let's break down the NMSU men's season with some numbers as a means to see how things are progressing things are progressing.

42 to 64: That is the amount of improvement in sophomore forward Wendell McKines' freethrow shooting. His perimeter shooting has improved as well, but the increase in efficiency is an indicator that McKines worked hard on his game in the off-season and is serious about improving as a player.

7: The number of times sophomore guard Jahmar Young has scored 16 points or more this season. Last year, Young was in double-digits 11 times. He has only been in single digits once, in a game when the Aggies didn't need him to score big versus Sacramento State.

9: The number of games in which freshman forward Troy Gillenwater has recorded a blocked shot and ...

6: The number of rejections he had versus Pepperdine.

22: The number of offensive rebounds freshman center Hamidu Rahman has grabbed – you can add 26 defensive boards as well. Rahman has worked hard to adapt to the rhythm of Division I basketball. His 19 points at UTEP is another example.

23: The number of rebounds sophomore guard Gordo Castillo has pulled down to date. That is better than twice the number of boards he grabbed all of last year.

43: The number of assists freshman point guard Hernst Laroche has dished out. When you add in his 15 turnovers, you have an incredible stat for a first-year player. 62 percent: The 3-point 62 percent: The 3-point field goal average for junior guard Jonathon Gibson in the last home stand. When Gibson takes his shots out of the offensive scheme he is hard to stop. His looking too early for the quick points has kept him from a consistent 3-point stat. You have to realize that statistics are good indicators of how things are going, but they can't measure the team's fire and other intangibles. There is another number that is not disputable.

5: The number of consecutive home wins for the men this year. It has been 19 years since the Aggies were able to have a perfect record at home.

16,439: The number of hostile fans NMSU faced in Lawrence, Kan. The more experience a team has in situations like that, the more the learning curve goes up when you play on the road in conference venues that are much smaller.

7.3: The number of steals the Aggies are averaging per game. This year's squad is adapting to the aggressive style of defense earlier in the year.

Aggies win swim meet

West Coast swing productive

The New Mexico State swimming and diving team concluded its West Coast trip with a 152-105 victory at Loyola Marymount, Friday, Dec. 19, in Los Angeles.

The Aggies opened the meet taking firstand second-place honors in the 200-medley relay. Senior Stephanie Peacock, freshman Maria Spies and sophomores Kelly Conrad and Kelly Runestrand touched the wall first with sophomores Tessa Bain and Alannah Lawrence and juniors Victoria Eickerman and Meghann Percy following.

Junior Liz Thomson won the 1,000 freestyle with a season-best time and freshman Rachelle Bassen scored with a second-place showing. Thomson also finished first in the 500 free with an unrested lifetime best performance. Eickerman collected a pair of individual victories with a lifetime best in the 100 butterfly and a near lifetime best in the 200 fly.

In the 200 free, freshman Brittney Moore was victorious and Percy claimed third place. Conrad gave the Aggies a win in the 100 free.

Head coach Rick Pratt said he was impressed with the Aggies toughness after spending a week working out away from home

"We swam great," he said. "We trained like crazy this week and to come and race that well was a nice surprise."

The Aggies swept the 100 backstroke with Peacock, junior Bonnie Taylor and Bain taking first, second and third, respectively. Taylor and Percy then proceeded to tally points in the 200 back with first-and second-place showings.

NMSU also swept top honors in both the 100 and 200 breaststroke. In the 100, the Aggies had Lawrence, Spies and Runestrand finish first, second and third, respectively. Then Spies, Runestrand and Lawrence earned the gold, silver and bronze, respectively, in the 200.

The Aggies have a break from competition until traveling to Northern Colorado, Jan. 16.

Aggie freshman Maria Spies won the gold in the 200breaststroke against Loyola Marymount.

Lobos invade Pan American Center in rematch Tuesday

The New Mexico State men's basketball team returns home to host Loyola Marymount at 1 p.m. Sunday.

The Aggies will play the second of two rivalry games with the New Mexico Lobos at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Pan American Center.

NMSU's three-game winning streak was snapped at UTEP, Saturday, Dec. 20, at the Don Haskins Center in El Paso. The Aggies fell to the Miners, 84-69, to split the I-10 rivalry this season.

Freshman center Hamidu Rahman scored a careerhigh 19 points to lead the Aggies. Sophomore guard Jahmar Young supplied 18 points and freshman forward Troy Gillenwater contributed 14.

The Aggies trailed 39-33 at halftime, despite outrebounding the Miners, 28-27. Sophomore forward Wendell McKines had a game-high eight rebounds. Offensively, NMSU struggled only shooting 26.5 percent from the field and 25.0 percent from the 3-point line.

Rahman had 11 points at the break with Gillenwater adding 10 points.

UTEP began the second half with a 12-4 run to take a 51-37 lead without sophomore guard Randy Culpepper. He was ejected following his second technical foul of the game during a halftime incident in the tunnel.

The Aggies' 6-8 forward Troy Gillenwater is expected to continue to pick up valuable experience against Loyola Marymount on Sunday and in the Aggies' rematch against the UNM Lobos on Tuesday.

Peppers Pride

Born at the A&A Farm in Anthony and owned by Joe Allen of Abilene, Texas, Peppers Pride joined Marr's stable when she was two years old.

Meanwhile, Marr says he will move her away from his stables to a training center nearby. "She needs to be away from the noise of the track," he said. "From her stall, she can hear the races going on over there. I'm sure it hurts her not to be running. We'll move her to the training center for a while where it's quiet. We can exercise her, walk her and she can get plenty of sun. She just needs a break.

Peppers Pride's gallantry is due to several factors, Marr said. "She's together," he said. "She's stayed healthy. Living close together in the stables, horses often come down with one health problem or another. She has had no physical prob-

"She trains passionately. She enjoys her workouts. Some horses don't. She does. She's anxious to run. She's a big eater. Horses might go a day or two without eating. Not her.

"We feed her three times at day - at 4:30 a.m., again at 10:30 and again at 4:30 in the afternoon."

The horse's diet is first class. Grain, hay and alfalfa. "At the evening meal," Marr said, "we cook her oats and mix them with her grain. A 1,200-pound horse that trains hard, needs all the vitamins and nutrients he or she can get. These horses (Marr is training 30 of them) eat comparatively better than the football players in the NFL do."

Peppers Pride has an impressive personality. "She's very intelligent, a little aggressive at times, competitive and eager," Marr said. "She's level headed. She's just about got it all."

Carlos Madeira, Peppers Pride's exclusive jockey, has an almost spiritual admiration for his mount. "She's a big inspiration to me," he said. "In everything she does. She knows when it's race day. You can see it in her eyes. She's always ready to go.'

Madeira, who competes on several of Marr's horses, says that Peppers Pride is easy to handle on the track. "I just let her go," he said. "She knows when it's time to step up the pace. She's such a competitor. You don't have to worry about her.

"She can be a little rambunctious at times. I just try to keep her calm, cool and collected. She does the rest."

Peppers Pride's daily workouts vary, says Marr. "If we're getting close to race day, we might take her out to the track at six o'clock in the morning. Sometimes it's still dark.

"We'll gallop her for two miles. Then we'll jog her a mile and walk her. Her workout usually takes about 20 min-

The horse, Marr said, has enjoyed consistent care, a sameness to her itinerary that allows her to perform at a high level. "She's had the same jockey," he said. "She's had he same vet, the same farrier to shoe her, the same groom, the same exercise riders, the same pony horse to accompany her and the same farm manager at the training center.

"She's enjoyed a pretty stable life."

Oñate

Veteran coach Rick Viramontes has returned to try to resurrect the Oñate program, and the team is off to a 5-9 start heading into the Christmas holiday.

"We've lost to some good teams. Games that could have gone the other direction," he said.

The team, which is mostly comprised of underclassmen, is led by players such as Cindy Burciaga, Santana Martinez, Jennifer Royer and Aleeza Mata-Hill.

Viramontes said the team's tough schedule is about to get even more challenging.

"We come back and play Valley and Eldorado, so it doesn't get any easier," he said. "Then we get ready for Cruces and Mayfield. It's a tough district. We're small compared to everyone else. It's been a challenge, but we'll enjoy the break and then get our feet back under us.

"I want our players to work hard and enjoy themselves," he added. "I want them to experience some success."

Mesilla Valley Christian Schools

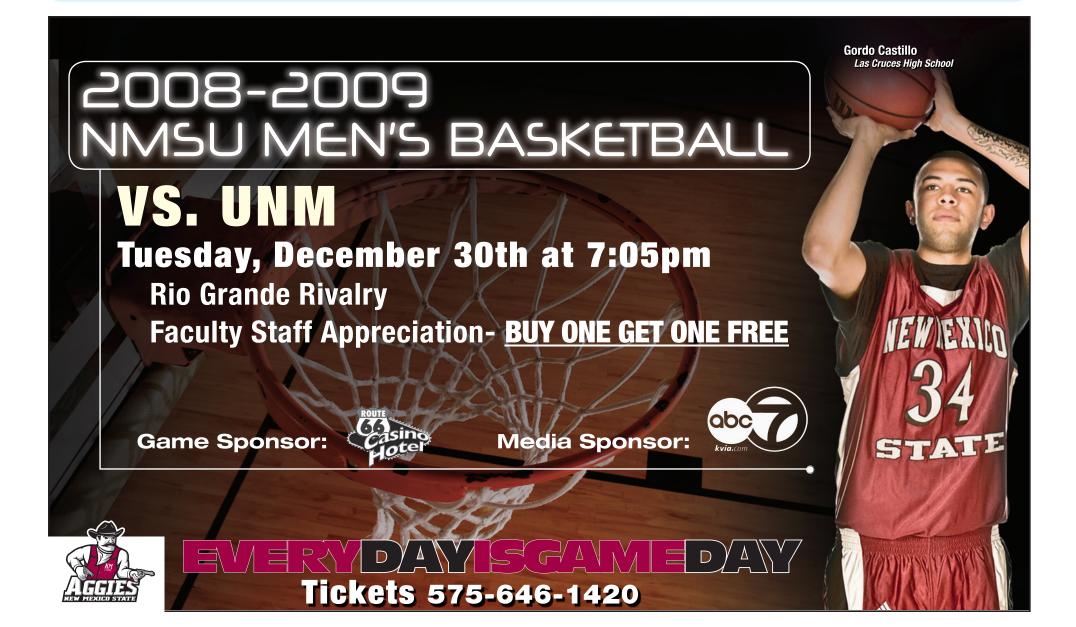

In Class 2-A, the Mesilla Valley Christian School

SonBlazers are off to a 5-6 start under new head coach

"Our team is starting to gel, and we should be pretty strong for the rest of the season," said Austin. "We're a well-balanced team that plays tough defense and plays with a tremendous amount of heart.

The team is led by senior Natalie McMillan, the team's top scorer and rebounder, as well as Geneva Hernandez, Krystalynn Wilkins, Felicia Mancha and Jessica Rhodes.

"I think the girls are hitting their stride right now," said Austin. "I see a lot of good things taking place. We are holding our opponents to under 30 points per game, and we have balanced scoring."

Explore the benefits of an energy-efficient adobe

Bask in the sun's rays in this secluded dwelling

By BETHANY CONWAY

While the majority of classic adobes in Las Cruces are anywhere from 50 to more than 100 years old, 3219 Snow Road has all the typical accents and only 20 years under its belt.

With pressed-adobe brick walls, saltillo tile, bancos, kiva fireplaces and latillas and vigas galore, it has all the beauty of a Southwestern abode, along with cutting-edge, energy-efficient design that normally wasn't taken into consideration in the building of historic homes.

"It's a passive-solar adobe house," said Ysidro Lopez, the home's current owner. "It's designed to take in the heat during the winter time and keep the heat out during the summer time."

After taking a class in passive-solar design while he was in college, Lopez said he was always interested in finding a home that put the idea into play.

"That's why \bar{I} bought this home. It's well situated to receive the sun," he said.

Designed in a long rectangle with southern-facing windows in every single room, the house is not only bright, requiring little or no lights on during the day, but is also extremely energy efficient.

"I don't use a heater or an air conditioner all year long," Lopez said.

He added that during the winter the pressed-adobe walls in the home actually absorb the heat during the day and continue to release the heat well into the night.

Set on 3.93 acres, the home is sheltered from the surrounding lots by large pine trees to the south and a field to the east.

"It's a great location," said Divelia "DI" Babbey, Realtor with EXIT Realty Horizons. "It feels like you're in the country, but you're not. You're right here in Mesilla."

"The privacy is phenomenal," Lopez added.

While many buyers will be impressed with its energyefficient design, more impressive than its floor plan are its beautiful accents.

According to Babbey, though the home was only built in the late '80s, it has a historic feel because of the use of adobe and the many traditional accents such as the latillas and vigas and saltillo tile.

"A lot of people love this look," she said. "I have had people mention that it could be a great bed and breakfast."

Past the entryway, one first comes upon the great room, which is the only room to break the floor plan's rectangular form. Shaped in a large circle approximately 32 feet in diameter, it is large enough to facilitate several seating areas.

Latillas and vigas come to a culmination in the center of the circular room, which, like the rest of the home, is filled with southern-facing windows.

"That's what really makes a difference," Lopez said of the windows. "It save me about $400 a month in energy bills."

Of course, this 3,782-square-foot home is great for entertaining and includes a bar in the round room that was actually created to match the house. It is not mounted down so it can be placed anywhere depending on the night's event.

Located conveniently near the great room are the kitchen and dining room. A long hallway leading down the entirety of the house is also filled with southern-facing windows, and according to Lopez he can fit a large table down the length of it when he hosts large parties.

The home's four bedrooms line the north side of the hallway, including identical Jack-and-Jill bedrooms with built-in shelves and bunk beds with lofts.

Brick is finished to a shiny smoothness in both the hallway and the master bedroom. And in the master bathroom, brightly colored green tile makes the Jacuzzi tub and shower stand out.

Two patio spaces offer places to lounge outdoors in the peaceful atmosphere of Mesilla, and because the property borders a field to the east, the Organ Mountains are visible in their entirety.

The numerous pecan trees on the grounds produce about $8,000 worth of pecans, and Lopez said he doesn't have to takes care of them, but simple sits back and waits to reap the harvest while a nearby company keeps them up to speed.

"I have been making $6,000 a year on the pecans," he said.

Anyone looking for an energy-efficient adobe with some of the best views Mesilla has to offer need look no further.

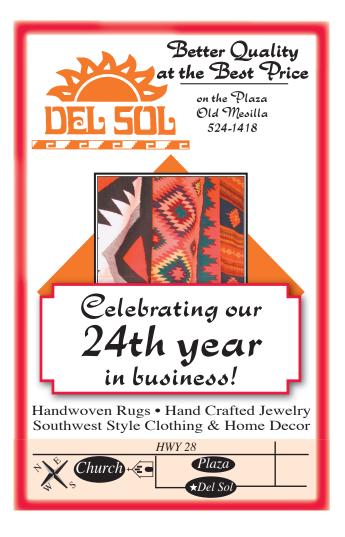

"This is like a hacienda home in Mesilla," Babbey said. "It is very unique." $\,$

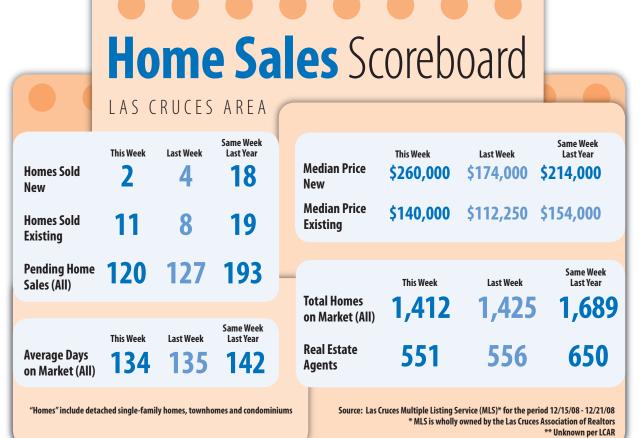

The master bathroom's large tub is found in its own nook along with the walk-in shower.

The kiva fireplaces in both the dining room and great room create a "romantic" atmosphere.

Shedding some light on lanterns

This functional and decorative piece has a long history

The golden light of a lantern is often used to set a mood with its calm, decorative, natural glow. Ancient art and architecture is the base of today's most popular accent-lighting system, and in the Southwest, lanterns are a common décor item, especially for the patio.

But they can also be used as a centerpiece with some greenery for celebrations from Christmas to New Years, and then set back on the patio for summer fun. Chinese paper lanterns are a festive way to brighten the upcoming Chinese New Year. Beyond their practical benefits, lanterns have become symbols of hope.

There is a large selection of attractive lanterns in retail stores. As a table centerpiece, a lantern with a candle inside creates a unique and simple design and comes in a variety of metals including iron, brass, copper and colorful painted surfaces. Lanterns also come in many interesting shapes.

I noticed that lanterns have become a common element for décor in the home with designs taken from the Lincoln Globe Lantern or the Bell-Jar Lantern. Some lanterns are being designed as hanging ceiling mounts for entry foyers.

For patios, the lantern is a must and comes in so many styles. My favorite is wrought iron with lattice designs. They come in every style from old rustic to creative and artistic materials to slim and they can be taken back outside for garden lighting that enhances outdoor beauty and can also add security and reduced risk around walkways, decks, pools and spas.

> These lanterns can be brought inside during Christmas time, and when the holidays are over,

It's easy to forget how dramatically such a prosaic item such as the availability of light can change everyday life. Early lanterns were not decorative at all, but rather utilitarian only. They were primarily square-shaped and their design was very plain. The only reason for their existence was to shield the flame of the candle from being extinguished by a breeze or the wind.

European lanterns date back from the 1300s. The Coleman lantern was introduced to the United States in 1914, which is still used today as it cast a bright light in a 100-yard circle. Shipping and railroad commerce was dependent on the signals of lanterns, and gold mines and coal mines were dependant on lantern light.

In 1775, Paul Revere's ride through the American countryside included an original tin lantern that flashed from the belfry of Boston's Old North Church, The common elements of all lanterns were, and still are, their portability and ability to protect the flame from wind or rain.

Lanterns, traditionally a light fixture for the great outdoors, can be used in unique ways within the home to go along with a rustic or more elegant style.

Old lanterns, with chipped paint or missing globes may seem nothing more then dusty relics tucked away in basements, attics and garages. Yet, they may make the most unusual centerpieces for the New Year and Chinese New Year.

One hint I can pass on is concerning the candle if used outdoors. The candle is typically placed in the center of the lantern on the wax catcher dish. However, if you burn several candles in the lantern the wax will drip all over the bottom of the lantern. The clean up is messy, so I set the candle in a slightly larger glass container to catch the wax. In some cases, I have bought the candles that are already in glass containers and set the container in the lantern, instead of the single candle.

On tables, in planters or around the yard, lanterns are both functional and decorative and create a special magic when lit.

Mariann Novack is a design consultant and welcomes your comments at 541-9484 or marnvck@aol.com. Building a home, remodeling or considering interior decorating? Give Novack a call.

Lanterns can be brought inside for decorating during the holiday season, and taken back outside after the festivities are over for beautiful garden lighting.

A bright idea in home décor

Deck the halls all year-round with Christmas lights

By Bethany Conway

While the earliest use of celebratory lighting during winter festivals predates Christianity, electric Christmas lights truly revolutionized the idea. They saved many homeowners from burning down their houses as well. because before Christmas lights, candles were often used to light up the tree.

The first known electrically illuminated Christmas tree was the creation of the Edward H. Johnson, an associate of inventor Thomas Edison who has rightfully been dubbed "the father of electric Christmas tree lights." Johnson proudly displayed his first tree covered with Christmas lights in 1882, and by the early 1900s, businesses everywhere were using them to attract customers, and homeowners were happy to display a bright Christmas tree in their living room window. Christmas lights eventually made their way outdoors, and today millions of homes are decorated with them in celebration.

After the holiday season has come to a close, homeowners will begin packing up their Christmas lights to be stores away until next year. But wait! They might come in handy around the home or be of use to the college student moving away in only a few months.

Try one the following "bright" ideas:

1. Brighten a dark closet: For those who lack a light fixture in their closet but have an outlet located near by, Christmas lights are the perfect solution. A string of lights is a cheap and easy way to brighten up this dark space. Lights can be run up the walls and hung on nails or hooks. Searching through a dark closet will never be a problem again.

2. Decorate a dorm room: When freshmen venture out of the family nest to start life on their own, boring dorm spaces can be a bit saddening. Send a student away with a string of colorful Christmas lights to brighten up their otherwise dull quarters.

3. Keep an office bright: Those who spend a great deal of time in their home office know how monotonous the dim light from a desk lamp can be. For a solution, string up a strand of white Christmas lights to create a soft glow.

4. Create ambient lighting: Christmas lights can be used to create ambient lighting in a number of ways around the house. Try tacking a strand of Christmas lights or tube lighting underneath kitchen cabinets or on the underside of a bed frame for a nice glowing light source. Thread Christmas lights through the back of a bookshelf to create a backlighting effect behind books, movies and other media. Use a strand or two of Christmas lights to string around the bar or under the dining room table. They can even create a romantic effect.

5. Deck the patio: Since Christmas lights are almost universally meant for indoor and outdoor use, they're as practical for summertime patio decorations as they are for snow-covered trees. String them up on a deck or even an unused clothesline as a cheap way to create a fun atmosphere.

6. Turn the garage from scary to chic: Those who have a dark garage should considering plugging in a long strand of Christmas lights to be strung throughout the space. This works great for those wanting to turn the space into a game room or a hangout for the kids.

7. Keep plants warm: Plants that suffer during the colder weather can be given a boost using Christmas lights. They will not only serve their decorative purpose, but the lights can work to keep weather-sensitive plants warm during the colder months.

The Las Cruces Bulletin

In 1977, when Ted Shelton first came to southern New Mexico looking for a small town in which to practice architecture, there were only three architects in the City of the Crosses.

Making his home in what was then considered a "small town," Shelton watched Las Cruces and its number of quality architects grow by leaps and

"Today, the local chapter of AIA (the American Institute of Architects) has 25 to 30 members. It is a totally different environment," he said.

Coming from a small town in the Lone Star State, Shelton grew up around his father's machine and custom fabrication shop, learning what it meant to be "handson" at an early age.

"That was my playground," he said. "I grew up thinking if my family needed something, we just built it.'

In high school, he already found himself on the jobsite, where he got his first lessons in building.

"I think I owe a lot to the construction background that I got started in when I was 16 years old," he said. "I learned skills that still serve me today.

These days his attire is much more professional than that of the construction worker, and Shelton can normally be found downtown in the offices of ASA Architects, where he has worked since 1980 and serves as president and principal officer.

"ASA have been practicing in southern New Mexico since 1968, and we have had a physical presence in Las Cruces since 1972," he said. "Our firm has always been located downtown, so we have a long history of being a part of Downtown Las

One of the largest architectural studios in a region, their offices are located in Las Cruces, Roswell and El Paso, and they also have an affiliate firm in Zacatecas, Mexico. In the last three years, ASA has completed more than $150 million in projects with clients in both the public and private sectors.
"The core of our practice has always been public school work," he said. "We have probably designed 10 to 15 new school campuses for the Las Cruces Public Schools over the years.'

Their next public school project will be the city's newest high school, which will have an $80 million budget (the budget for Oñate High School totaled only $22 million). He said it will include great views and many 'green" attributes.

As president and principal officer, Shelton said his firm and its employees with a steady stream of projects.

"Being the primary principal of the firm, one of my biggest responsibilities is marketing and business management," he said. "Most of my time is spent making sure that we have good-quality work and enough of it to maintain our staff size.'

With their "small-company philosophy of service and responsiveness" and sterling reputation, keeping his staff busy hasn't been difficult, and they continue to receive some of the areas most important contracts.

One project in the works for ASA, is the new Center for the Arts on the New Mexico State University campus, which they are creating with the help of Malcolm Holzman of Holzman Moss Architecture in New York. Shelton said he will follow the project from beginning to end.

"It's a very exciting project on a number of levels. It's going to be a LEED certified project, which will be something special for NMSU and for the city of Las Cruces,' he said. "There is going to be a lot of attention paid to energy efficiency and alternative energy and sustainable

According to Shelton, the past few years have been an exciting time for architects with groundbreaking changes in the design process.

"There is something of a revolution going on in how we do construction documents and design drawings," he said. Using a system called Building Information Modeling (BIM) the process has gone from two-dimensional drawing to three-dimensional renderings.

Now, most of us are actually building the project on a computer," he said. "Once you create a building on the computer, you can rotate it, walk through it, fly over it and resolve a lot of the coordination problems that were more common when we didn't have those three-dimensional tools. It lets us spend more time on the design and less time drawing.

He said this not only makes for better quality buildings and better design, but also allows the client to really visualize a project.

When we are telling (the client) about a project, we are seeing the building in our imagination, and they are seeing lines on paper. In the past, there was a fairly large disconnect, but now we can show them exactly what a building will look like."

For Shelton, the most rewarding part of his job is of course the final result.

"Any architect I think would tell you that the most rewarding part is seeing something built that you were involved in imagining," he said. "Maybe even more than that is having a satisfied client. That's what keeps an architect going.'

Projects he was involved in that stand out in his mind are the NMSU Music Center, where he learned a great deal about acoustics, and the Doña Ana County Detention

"The jail I found to be incredibly interesting because it is such a high-tech building. People don't realize that jails aren't what you see in the movies with the clanking bars. There are no bars, there is no steel, the inmates are behind glass," he said. "It's basically a computer with people in it.

The firm's other current projects include the new magistrate court and a colonia replacement project in Vado,

For ASA and firms across the country, Shelton said the future lies in eco-friendly construction.

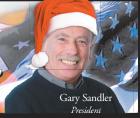

"The future is all about sustainability and this computer-based revolution in how we do our work," he said. We are going to be able to design more effective, more efficient, greener buildings and reduce our carbon footprint.

ASA Architects, with Holzman Moss Architecture, is designing the new Center for the Arts at New Mexico State University.

More cookies, less work

Add a professional touch to cookies with a cookie press

By Bethany Conway

Though the holiday season is almost over, any-time of year is a good time for cookies. For most of us, this means spooning gobs of dough onto a cookie sheet, hoping for a uniformed look in the end. Sure the cookies will be tasty, and for those making a midnight snack that is all well and good, but for those who are making cookies for a work party or family gathering, presentation may be a little more important.

These individuals might want to try the cookie

What is it?

A cookie press is a device used to force dough through a molding disk to create everything from a Christmas tree and Santa Claus to flowers, four-leaf clovers and stars. They are available in hand-press manual models, electric models, and even battery-operated models, and all of them have a see-through barrel that allows the cook to see how much dough is left at any given time. While they all come with a multitude of different discs to choose from, some are season specific, even coming in the shape of black cats and witches for Halloween. Some presses even come with interchangeable barrels and stainless-steel tips for decorating cakes.

Whipped Shortbread Cookies

1 pound butter cup powdered sugar teaspoon vanilla Pinch of salt 1/2 cup cornstarch 3 cups all-purpose flour

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream together butter, sugar, vanilla and salt. Gradually add cornstarch and flour. Whip with an electric mixer until fluffy. Place into a cookie press and press out cookies on cool baking sheet. Decorate with candied cherries or dragees if desired. Bake 12-15 minutes. Let cool for 2 minutes on baking sheet, then remove to wire rack to cool completely. Store in an airtight container at room temperature.

How does it work?

To use the cookie press, first make the dough as usual. Place the desired disc into the press and then fill the barrel with dough. Those that are electric and battery-operated will work with the simple press of a button, producing dozens of cookies in no time. Those that are manually operated produce a cookie each time the trigger is squeezed.

When shopping for a cookie press, it is important to make sure the chosen design is durable (some manually operated cookie presses have been rumored to break after only a few uses). Also, the larger the barrel, the more cookies it can produce, and bigger barrels produce larger cookies.

Most of the plastic and steel parts can be cleaned easily with soap and water.

Featured Kitchen Gadget: the cookie press

How much does it cost?

The cookie press can cost anywhere from $20 to $60 depending on its size and accessories. While $60 might seem like a lot for a cookie press, sound construction is important in order to make uniformed cookies easily every time. Plus, for those who love baking cookies, this gadget can come in handy for years to come.

Where can it be tound?

The cookie press can be found at kitchen specialty stores or from numerous websites online.

Helptul hint:

The possibilities don't stop with cookies. Cookie presses that come with stainless steel tips can be used for filling hors d'oeuvres, stuffing pastas, making mousse cups and a number of other food items.

Web 2.0 and educating the masses

Truly Nolen is creating a marketing buzz with Internet initiatives

As more companies explore ways to have an Internet presence, Truly Nolen has recently launched several "Web 2.0" initiatives that allow our company to interact directly with customers, potential customers and those just wanting to take a quick peek.

Aside from the work involved with maintaining our Internet presence, it's basically free and is helping provide our company with exposure that we may not otherwise have received.

Our Internet presence, which was featured in the Dec. 2 edition of "MediaPost News: Marketing Daily" includes:

- A weekly blog on www.trulynolen.com called "The Insect Inquirer," which serves as a teaching tool while allowing readers to share their own insect adventures.
- A www.youtube.com site entitled "Mouse-Cam: When Bugs Attack," which has been viewed more than 450 times in three months and features a Truly Nolen technician reportedly getting the fright of his life on his first day on the job.

A www.facebook.com page for the Truly Nolen Mousecar, which has more than 120 friends since launching in late August and is written as if it is the actual mouse-car talking with people. In addition to the videos and pictures, the mousecar site also includes a profile that lists his favorite pastime as "moonlight drives on the beach." People from all over the world, including France and Turkey, have befriended the Truly Nolen Mousecar and posted their own mousecar pictures.

A www.twitter.com presence as @TrulyNolen, which has received more than 70 followers since launching Dec. 1. The account is used to send 140-character status updates to automobile enthusiasts, customers, people with bugrelated connections and anyone else with an interest in or questions about pest control and entomology. A sample tweet: "Beware the fig whitefly. We're riding around with our windows down looking for infestations."

By being involved in social media networks such as Facebook and Twitter, we believe we are creating some buzz about our brand, no pun intended, while giving ourselves a better avenue to interact with people on a one-on-one basis. Besides, when your company's cars have ears and a tail, you can pretty much get away with almost anything!

We invite all of our friends in Las Cruces to join us on Facebook and Twitter so you too can see what the buzz is all about. Happy holidays to all, and to all a good night!

As national spokesperson for Truly Nolen of America, Barry "The Bug Guy" Murray has more than 20 years of experience in the pest control industry. Murray brings an informative and uniquely entertaining perspective pest problems of the 21st century. Founded in 1938, Tucson, Arizona-based Truly Nolen of America is one of the largest family owned pest control companies in the United States. ¡Feliz Año Nuevo! Las Cruces

Throw an unforgettably delicious New Year's Eve party

Now that Christmas is behind us, it's time to gear up for your New Year's Eve party. Some hosts will serve full-course meals, while others will bring out hot and spicy chile-tizers. To help kick off the New Year, I share numerous easy-to-prepare recipes. Several are gleaned from a bargain book I picked up years ago – "365 Snacks, Hors D'oeuvres & Appetizers" by Lonnie Gandara and Peggy Fallon.

I also include a chiles rellenos puff ball recipe from a very dear friend of mine, Paul LaVine, a diehard chilehead who lived in Radium Springs "forever" before moving to Oregon with wife Cecilia. (Radium Springs is just a horse trot away from Hatch, also known as the Chile Capital of the World.) Although the LaVines enjoy being closer to their children, they miss New Mexico, its weather and the annual chile harvest. Paul is a regular recipe contributor to the Chile Knights column, which celebrates its 11th year in 2009. Mil gracias, Las Cruces and ¡Feliz Año Nuevo!

Mexican Peanuts

4 garlic cloves, minced 2 tablespoons olive oil 1 teaspoon crushed hot red pepper 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin 2 pounds dry-roasted peanuts teaspoon coarse (kosher) salt

1 teaspoon chili powder

In a large frying pan, cook garlic in olive oil over moderate heat for 1 minute. Add hot pepper and cumin. Mix in peanuts and cook for 2 minutes while stirring.

Sprinkle with coarse salt and chili powder. Mix well and store in a covered jar or tin.

Cayenne Anchovy Spread

2 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened 1/3 cup pimiento-stuffed green olives, coarsely chopped 1/4 cup dry sherry or white wine 1 (2-ounce) can flat anchovy fillets, drained and chopped 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper

In a medium bowl, combine cream cheese, olives, sherry, anchovies and cayenne. Blend until well mixed. Serve with crackers. Makes 2 cups.

Budget-Wise Faux Caviar

3 large onions, chopped 3 garlic cloves, minced 3 tablespoons vegetable oil

2 green bell peppers cut into 1-inch squares

6 carrots cut into 1-inch squares

2 large eggplants (about 3 pounds total) cut into 1-inch cubes 2 cups ketchup

2 teaspoons salt

1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

1 teaspoon sugar

1/2 teaspoon New Mexico hot red chile powder 1/2 cup chopped parsley 1/4 cup fresh dill

In a large heavy saucepan, cook onions and garlic in oil over medium heat until softened but not browned, 3 to 5 minutes. Add bell peppers and carrots and cook, stirring frequently, until crisp-tender, about 5 minutes. (If mixture begins to stick to pan, add water, about 1 tablespoon at a time.)

Stir in eggplant, cover, reduce heat to low and cook, stirring frequently and adding water if necessary, until vegetables are very soft, about 1-1/2 hours.

Uncover and continue cooking until liquid has evaporated, about 10 minutes. Stir in ketchup and season with salt, pepper, sugar and chile powder. Stir in parsley and dill and cook until mixture is well blended, about 10 minutes longer. Let cool. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours before serving. Serve with black bread or favorite crackers. Makes 6 cups.

Fiery-Sweet Cheese

This one is an oldie but goodie.

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened 1/2 cup green or red hot pepper jelly Unsalted crackers

Place cheese on serving plate and top with jelly. Serve with crackers. Makes 6 cups.

Smoked Salmon Spread with Scotch and Chives

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened 1/2 pound smoked salmon

2 tablespoons Scotch whisky

2 teaspoons lemon juice

1/2 teaspoon prepared white horseradish

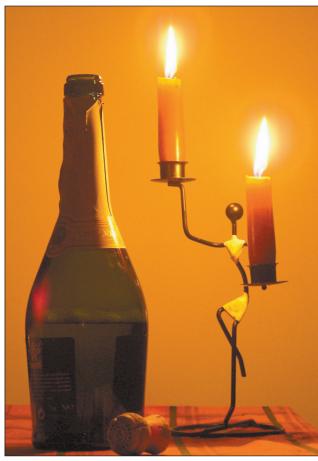

1/4 teaspoon or more of hot red chile powder 2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives or scallions

In a food processor, combine cream cheese, smoked salmon, Scotch, lemon juice, horseradish and chile powder. Process until well mixed. Add chives and pulse. Serve at cool room temperature. Can be refrigerated up to 3 days. Makes 2 cups.

Chiles Rellenos Puffs

This recipe is from Paul LaVine, formerly from Radium Springs, N.M., now living in Oregon.

1-1/2 cup water 1/2 cup butter 1 cup flour 1/2 cup cornmeal 1 teaspoon salt 6 eggs beaten 3/4 cup shredded Jack cheese 1/4 cup shredded cheddar cheese 2 cans chopped green chiles, drained

We're just days away from uncorking the bottle to help celebrate another hot and spicy New Year.

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Spray 24 regular-sized muffin cups with cooking spray. In 3-quart saucepan, heat water and butter over high heat to a full rolling boil. Remove from heat.

Stir in flour, cornmeal and salt until mixture forms a dough and all lumps have disappeared. Gradually stir in beaten eggs a little at a time. Blend well. Stir in both cheeses and the chiles. Spoon dough evenly into muffin cups, filling each 3/4 full.

Bake 25 to 29 minutes or until golden brown. Cool See Chile Knights on PAGE E12

2 minutes and remove from muffin cups. Serve warm. Good with a dollop of sour cream and avocado dip.

These keep well in the freezer. Place them on a cookie sheet in the freezer. When frozen, put into a plastic freezer bag for safe keeping in the freezer. Whenever you're hungry for some, pull out what you want and pop

Vino-Chile Tater Tart

1 large garlic clove, minced

1/4 cups olive oil

1 teaspoon ground cumin 1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper 1 fresh, long green chile, minced

1 serrano pepper, seeded, stemmed and minced 2-1/2 pounds baking potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced

1/2 cup dry white wine

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. In a small saucepan, cook garlic in olive oil over low heat, about 1 to 2 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in cumin, salt and pepper. In a small bowl, combine chiles and toss until well

Arrange a thin layer of potato skins in a greased 9inch quiche or pie plate. Brush potatoes with seasoned oil and top with 1 to 2 chiles. Repeat layer, ending with a layer of potato slices. Drizzle wine over potatoes and brush with remaining oil.

Bake until crispy brown on top and tender in center when pierced with tip of a knife, about 1 hour. Transfer to a rack and immediately top with a piece of parchment or wax paper, a plate and heavy cans to weigh down tart. Let stand until cool and pressed flat, about 30 minutes. Cut into pie-shaped wedges and serve at room temperature. Serves 8.

Spicy Beer Shrimp with Cilantro Cocktail Sauce

1 quart flat, dark beer 1-1/2 pounds large shrimp (16-20 pieces per pound) in shell esh lemon wedges Chile Cilantro Cocktail Sauce (see recipe below)

In a medium non-reactive saucepan, bring beer to a simmer over medium heat.

Rinse shrimp under cold running water. Using a slotted spoon, heap a portion of shrimp (about 1/4 pound) into simmering beer. Cook until pink, 2 to 3 minutes. Remove with the slotted spoon and repeat until all shrimp is cooked.

When shrimp cool, shell and de-vein. Serve chilled or at room temperature with fresh lemon wedges and a bowl of cilantro cocktail sauce for dipping. Serve 6 to 8.

Chile Cilantro Cocktail Sauce

1-1/2 cups chili sauce

1/2 cup cilantro

2 scallions, chopped

1-1/2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

1-1/2 tablepoons prepared white horseradish

In a small bowl, combine cilantro, scallions, lemon juice, horseradish and hot sauce. Stir until well blended. Can be refrigerated up to 24 hours before serving. Makes about 2 cups.
