NM National Guard prepares for Iraq

White Sands hosts training program for 131-man unit

By JIM HILLEY
The Las Cruces Bulletin

On Tuesday, May 22, members of the New Mexico National Guard 2/200 Infantry Battalion had a training session southeast of the Organ Mountains in an area of White Sands Missile Range controlled by Fort Bliss. Charlie Company, which has been called to active duty for a tour in Iraq, was at a firing range familiarizing themselves with several weapons they will depend on while in the Middle East.

Consisting of 131 men, the unit is composed of National Guard troops from around New Mexico, El Paso, the Texas Panhandle and Arizona. Ten are from Alamogordo, 19 are from El Paso and 38 guardsmen are from Las Cruces, where the headquarters are located. According to Executive Officer Rick Ryczkowski, around a dozen of the men have already spent time in either Iraq or Afghanistan.

spent time in either Iraq or Afghanistan.

Their training, on the 50-caliber M-2 machine gun, MK-19 40MM grenade launcher and the M4 carbine, fitted with the M-203 40MM grenade launcher, is part of a 31-day program adopted by the New Mexico National Guard to give guard units more time to become cohesive and combat ready before shipping out.

It was evident most of the guardsmen were not well acquainted with the firearms. Several minutes elapsed before the first rounds fired from the 50-caliber machine guns shattered the silence of the beautiful southern New Mexico morning. The machine guns are a relic of the World War II era, but they have reportedly proven to be effective in the type of combat situations often encountered during the U.S. mission in Iraq. After adjusting the unit's training to date has been mount training (assaulting a building or structure) and training on the handling of detainees. Some of their training took place in the Old State Prison in Santa Fe. Command Sgt. Maj. James Rivera said all the troops being deployed to Iraq were asked if that's what they "really wanted" to do, and their entire families had to

City council approves annexation

Vistas at Precidio effects to be felt beyond city's growing borders

By TODD G. DICKSON The Las Cruces Bulletin

After one of the lengthiest debates over a proposed annexation and development, the Las Cruces City Council Monday, May 21, approved the Vistas at Presidio development on the East Mesa.

The debate was understandable. Philip Philippou's deal to develop nearly 6,000 acres of mostly state land into neighborhoods with businesses, schools, police and fire substations and, more significantly, add between 30,000 and 44,000 dwelling units is estimated to bring in at least 82,000 people, nearly double Las Cruces' current approximate population of 85,000.

What caused the lengthy debate over

What caused the lengthy debate over the huge annexation – 4,200 acres of the which was outside of city limits – was the ruling of the state Attorney General's that state law gave a range of 30 to 60 days for debate, not just a straight 30 days, which had been the city's interpretation of the law.

For those concerned about the scale of the project, extending the debate 30 days wasn't long enough to answer questions about whether the annexation would be a drain on the city's water supply, exasperate traffic congestion and strain city services. Some of the opposition warned they'd remember the councillors' votes come the next city election in November.

But the political fallout may very well extend beyond who remains sitting on the council next year. The scrutiny of the deal also brought to light ethical concerns that could hurt state Land Commissioner Pat Lyons' future political ambitions

Lyons' future political ambitions.

And regardless of the council's decision, recently elected state Rep. Nathan Cote says he will look into revising New Mexico's annexation law if the same rules apply for a 42-acre annexation request as a 4,200-acre proposal.

Hunting, outdoor groups compromise on wilderness plans

Representatives sign pact

By Todd G. Dickson

An agreement between hunting groups and conservationists signed this week calls for movement on establishing permanent wilderness areas in Doña Ana County.

Significant to getting the deal struck were compromises made to improve access to some of the larger proposed areas.

Originally, boundaries for the Broad Canyon-Robledo Mountains and for the West Potrillo Mountains "cherry stemmed" access roads. Now, the maps for the proposals includes boundaries that link the north and south ends of the upper Robledo Mountains and a loop road into the heart of the West Potrillos.

John Moen, president of the Quail Unlimited hunting association, said that willingness to compromise to improve access into these larger areas was key to the negotiations.

"If you don't have access to it, what's the use of protecting it," Moen said after the signing ceremony held Wednesday, May 23, at the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum.

At the ceremony, state Representative and New Mexico Wilderness Alliance's Southern Director Jeff Steinborn noted how compromise is needed in governance and progress. "We need to work together and not let small differences distract us," he said.

According to a statement handed out at the ceremony, Noel Cooley, vice president of the Doña Ana County Sportsmen group, said he was impressed by the willingness for compromise from local conservation groups. "After visiting the areas, we sat down to craft a responsible proposal," he said in the press release. "In the end, I think we came up with something that works for most everyone."

In what's being called the Citizens Proposal, proponents are requesting that more than 300,000 acres be awarded permanent wilderness status. Of that total, the east and west Potrillos, along with the Aden Lava Flow and Mt. Riley, encompass more than 197,000 acres in the southwest section of the county. Besides being used by hunters and outdoor enthusiasts, the area also is used for ranching. The proposal for the Robledo Mountains, which includes Broad Canyon near Radium Springs, encompasses 75,966 acres.

Other nominated areas in the county include 11,068 acres in the Sierra de Las Uvas northwest of the Robledos and 20,800 in the Organ Mountains, which includes Pena Blanca and the Organ Needles.

The Citizens Proposal also calls for the establishment of a National Conservation Area in the Organ Mountains of 103,687 acres, which includes the Doña Ana Mountains and Tortugas Mountain. The Bureau of Land Management also oversees the 56,480-acre Organ Franklin Mountain Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC) that runs north and south through the southeastern county.

Another hunting group signing on is the Southwest Consolidated Sportsmen, which has been a regular supporter of the wilderness proposal.

"My grandson is just now beginning to hunt and explore the county," said Sandy Schemnitz, chairman of the Southwest Consolidated Sportsmen. "He and other children deserve open spaces free from subdivisions and spider webs of roads."

Also signing the agreement were representatives from the League of Women Voters, the Hispano Chamber of Commerce, the Southern New Mexico High Tech Consortium, the Lower Rio Grande Chapter of the Back Country Horsemen, the Mesilla Valley Audubon Society, the Wilderness Society and the Las Cruces Country Club Neighborhood Association. Steinborn noted that more than 115 businesses support the proposal.

This additional support is meant to keep pressure on U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici to re-introduce wilderness legislation. Domenici withdrew a bill he proposed last year because it included releasing 65,000 acres on the West Mesa, which created concerns among both the local conservationists and developers.

At Domenici's request, the city attempted to form a consensus proposal, but there has been opposition to the idea of creating wilderness areas by some ranchers and off-road enthusiasts who don't trust that their livelihoods and recreation, respectively, will be preserved.

Jeff Steinborn, southern director for the New Mexico Wilderness Alliance and state representative, watches as Sandy Schemnitz, chairman of the Southwest Consolidated Sportsmen, signs an agreement Wednesday, May 23, that modifies boundaries for citizen-nominated wilderness areas in Doña Ana County.

Memorial Day a time to remember

Originally established as 'Decoration Day,' holiday began in 1868 to honor those who gave their lives in defense of our country

By David E. McCollum

This weekend we will celebrate Memorial Day. The annual three-day weekend has become a favored time to gather for barbecues, softball tournaments, family gatherings and trips to the lake or the mountains. For some of us, Monday will be a regular workday.

MCCOLLUM

Most retail businesses will be open. In fact, Memorial Day has become an important marketing period for retailers. Consumers are inundated with a variety of media advertising that promotes special Memorial Day sales events. It seems that everything is on sale this weekend, from automobiles to grocery items to furniture.

Actually, this unashamed holiday merchandizing is a relatively recent phenomenon. It wasn't all that long ago that Memorial Day was much simpler holiday with a more solemn purpose.

My personal recollections of Memorial Day, as a child growing up in rural Oklahoma, include our family making trips to the cemeteries to place flowers at the gravesites of family members. I recall the local residents all buying and proudly wearing "Buddy Poppies," which were artificial, single red poppy flowers that were made and sold by disabled veterans.

Over the years our family had many happy family gatherings over Memorial weekend. We typically had outdoor picnics that featured some of my favorite food including hot dogs, hamburgers, baked beans, mashed potato salad and hand-cranked, homemade ice cream. Before we ate, a family member would pray, giving thanks that we were privileged to live in a free country. The prayers also honored the people who had given their lives in defense of our country. There was always a spirit of somber thankfulness and a sense of pride to be an American. This all made a very strong impression on me as a youngster.

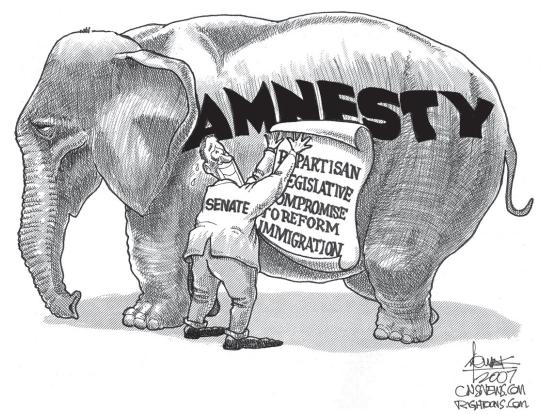

The origin of Memorial Day actually dates back to 1868 when Gen. John A. Logan, the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, proclaimed May 30 to be a day to honor fallen Americans by "strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country...and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village and hamlet church-yard in the land." Because of the act of decorating the graves of military veterans annually on May 30, the day became known as "Decora-

With the passage of the National Holiday Act of 1971, Decoration Day became an officially recognized holiday. The act also moved the day from its traditional May 30 date to the last Monday in May, thus creating the annual three-day weekend.

Unfortunately, today it seems that much of the original purpose for Memorial Day has been lost. While families use the long weekend to gather and have a good time, it appears that fewer and fewer are taking the time to seriously reflect on the contributions and sacrifices of others.

This weekend, we encourage you and your family to look past the sales and holiday promotional advertising. If you have not yet visited our wonderful Veterans Park on Roadrunner Parkway, this weekend would be a perfect time to do so. The park has several monuments, including a wall inscribed with more than 6,000 names of local veterans, dating back to the Civil War.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we all could take the time this weekend to reflect on the original purpose of "Decoration Day" so that the young people in our community can continue to share the reverence and respect for those who have given their lives so that we can live in a free country?

Memorial Day ceremonies

In 1882, the nation observed its first official Memorial Day, a day set aside to remember and honor the sacrifices of those who died in all our nation's wars.

On this Memorial Day, Monday, May 28, we invite you to attend one or all of the ceremonies planned for our community.

First is the Riverside Services on the bank of the Rio Grande under the West Picacho bridge starting at 7:30 a.m. and hosted by the District III, Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars

The Garrison Flag will be raised at 8 a.m. at Veterans Park, 2651 Roadrunner Parkway. We invite our youth to help raise the flag and to lower it and fold it at 5 p.m. that evening.

The American Legion, Post 10, will host for the second year the Memorial Day ceremony at 9 a.m. at Veterans Park. Mayor William Mattiace has been invited as the guest speaker.

Also at 9 a.m. is the traditional Memorial Day services at Hillcrest Memorial Gardens Cemetery, 5140 W. Picacho Ave., hosted by the J.M. Carriere VFW Post 10124 and Ray McCorkle VFW Post

Starting at 8 a.m. at Veterans Park, the Veterans Memorial Wall Committee and the city of Las Cruces will have a display of over 3,000 names of our fallen heroes killed in action in Iraq and Afghanistan. The names will be honorably displayed all day, so please stop by at your convenience and pay your respects.

Let us remember that on Memorial Day we honor the ideals and values our soldiers stood for and died defending. They did their job, and they did it well, now it's our turn to do ours. DOLORES C. ARCHULETA

Gas credit

Over the last few years the Democrats have been screaming about gas and fuel costs and naming the Republican leaders as the cause of the high prices. Now with the Democrats in charge, the price of gas and fuel have soared to well over $3 per gallon with a barrel of sweet oil at $62 and crude oil laboring around $66 dollars per barrel.

Gas prices had dropped under the Republican control to close to $2 per gallon after a surge to $3. It appears that the Republicans controlled gas prices far better than the Democrats.

Why aren't the Democrats screaming about these record gas prices that have reached staggering record highs? They will just add additional tax to the price for you, the public, to pay. That certainly will reduce the price of fuel for us!

It is time for them to quit political stupidity and start performing their true duties in Con-

Swimming Pool

I thought that the city might take notice and change their minds on the importance of building a 50-meter indoor competitive pool at the swimming facility that they are scheduled to start building. Santa Fe has a recreation center with an indoor ice skating rink, two Olympic sized indoor pools, an indoor kids' pool with a water slide, etc. Santa Fe is a smaller city than Las Cruces, but they have a recreation center where children and adults can go to exercise and stay off the streets. Las Cruces should take the funding available to build the swimming pool facility as an opportunity to adequately provide a swimming facility to fit the needs of all Las Cruces citizens.

The saga continues: The Kid, the coop, the backhoe A strange case of digging up desperados to find DNA in the dust

Unless Gov. Bill Richardson is elected president, Billy the Kid remains our most famous New Mexican. But Billy is now in danger of being caught dead in Texas.

The danger really isn't that great. Texas is just doing its usual thing of trying to steal stuff from New Mexico. First it was land. Then it was water. Now it's Billy. Back in 1950, a 90-year-old Texan named "Brushy Bill"

Roberts came to Santa Fe to try to get Gov. Tom Mabry to grant him the pardon territorial Gov. Lew Wallace had promised Billy. Mabry listened but wasn't convinced.

Roberts died shortly thereafter, but his legend didn't. Some locals still believed him and that has led to a monument at Brushy's grave in Hamilton, Texas; a museum in nearby Hico, where he lived and another museum along an Interstate, in Canton, Texas.

We warned in a recent column that Billy's ghost is stirring in Texas. We now learn that Lincoln County Deputy Sheriff Steve Sederwall has asked the Hamilton City Council for permission to dig up Brushy Bill and test his DNA.

Sederwall was one of the three sheriffs who were trying to dig up Billy and his mother three years ago in New Mexico. Court action stopped those two exhumations, although a judge in Silver City ruled that if Billy's DNA can be obtained, he'll reconsider exhuming his mother.

The Texans have themselves a bit of a problem. Since Brushy is buried in a town that doesn't have a museum taking advantage of his bogus claim, the city council isn't particularly interested in letting anyone dig in its cemetery.

So the Hamilton city council rejected the exhumation request after two hearings and considerable discussion.

New Mexicans might be interested to know that the objections raised by the Hamilton councilors were almost identical to those raised in Silver City and Fort Sumner three years ago.

They were worried about relatives who might object. They had trouble believing that a carpenter's bench recently pulled out of an Albuquerque chicken coop really contained Billy's DNA. And they wondered about who has sufficient interest in the exhumation to underwrite it.

But it isn't over yet. Hamilton officials expect those interested in digging to go to court to obtain an exhumation

The only place Sederwall and his associates have been able to dig is in Prescott, Ariz. John Miller, whom many thought to be Billy, was buried at the Arizona Pioneer Home cemetery. His exact grave location is unsure because it isn't marked.

But the investigators dug anyway, with a backhoe, and unearthed two skeletons. DNA from the one thought to be John Miller was tested over a year ago to determine if it was identical to that found on the carpenter's bench.

Since no report has yet been made public on that test and since the investigators now want to dig in Texas, it seems reasonable to assume that no DNA match was found in Arizona.

The people who are wanting to dig now have a different motivation than they originally did. In the beginning, Sederwall said they wanted to prove that Lincoln County Sheriff Pat Garrett did shoot Billy, thereby preserving the reputation of New Mexico's most famous lawman.

Sederwall had visited the Hico, Texas, Billy the Kid Museum and was incensed that it was claiming that Garrett, whose image is on the Lincoln County Sheriff's emblem, killed someone else and lied about it.

But a few years later, Sederwall is saying he has "a lot of stuff that says history is different than what is reported." He now says he has an open mind and wants to "let science show us the truth.

If the truth is that Billy went to Texas to live nearly 70 more years, the title of most famous New Mexican becomes a race between Smokey Bear and the Roswell aliens.

RESERVOIR UPDATE

The Rio Grande flow into Elephant Butte Reservoir this week, as measured at San Marcial, was 2,957 cubicfeet per second as warm weather increased the mountain snow pack runoff, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, El Paso Division, reported.

The San Marcial flow volume was 92 percent of the long-time average for this time of year. The bureau has granted the Elephant Butte Irrigation District 212,997 acre-feet for its 2007 allotment, about 58 percent of normal. The EBID board of directors is holding its farmer quota to 18 inches, about 1.5 acre feet.

The peaking inflow has added 15,834 acre-feet to Elephant Butte to increase the storage to 577,855 acre-feet, 30 percent of a full reservoir, the bureau reported.

Caballo Reservoir, where the irrigation water is released, gained 2,658 acre-feet last week.

War costs

As I read all the distressing news from Iraq and Afghanistan, one thought keeps coming back again and

It seems clear enough that there are extremist Muslims who hate us, who are clearly our enemies. They look for opportunities to abuse us and even go so far as to curse us.

That fellow Jesus, the founder of Christianity, had some specific advice for those who would follow him, but somehow that advice has been ignored, unfortunately to our grievous loss.

That advice could not be any clearer: "Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you." Luke 6:27

Just think what good could have been accomplished if we spent $400 billion doing good instead of what we have spent on really doing evil?

Roses of the Desert

The number of migrants who die each year while crossing the Mexican border has increased dramatically with hundreds expiring due to exposure to heat and cold in the desert, according to a new report to Congress.

According to the U.S. Government Accountability

Office, 472 border crossers were reported to be dead last year alone and 31 deaths reported in the El Paso border region. Though most of these deaths were reported to be men, a fact sheet according to the Border Patrol's data reveals that deaths among women shot from 9 percent to 21 percent of the total during the past seven years. According to the report, the leading cause of these deaths was supposed to be, exposure to the extreme hot and cold weather conditions in the desert.

Though the Border Patrol reports these deaths as a result of human trafficking, we ought to concur with the fact that some these people were just trying to escape their dreadful living conditions and immigrate in search of jobs in United States and a better living.

Whatever the cause of death and the nationality of these individuals, we need to comprehend the fact that these are human beings losing their lives as a result of lack of life sustaining water and food in the wilderness. Besides our political apprehensions and limitations, as human beings, we should honor the lives of our fellow beings or at least be compassionate to their sufferings. Desert Humanitarians is one such compassionate organization, moved by the death toll in the desert and established to help the poor souls in the wilderness. The aim of this organization is to provide humanitarian aid to these immigrants (people) in the form of supplying water, food, medical first aid so as to decrease the amount of life lost in the desert as a result of migration.

The organization also takes part in providing legal support to some of these people as we are aware that apprehensions of border crossers has complicated the legal system and has resulted in large numbers of folks being incarcerated with little hope of advocacy and humanitarian aid. The organization which has set up a resource center at Palomas, Mexico, is appealing to the people to be compassionate to these people and "try to regard the lives of these people as one would regard their own" and it is ascertaining the fact that American people are always upfront in bestowing humanitarian support to the deprived.

Arrival of summer brings West Nile virus danger

Doña Ana County takes steps to alleviate problems with mosquitos

Armando Cordero, Doña Ana County's director of facilities and parks, is cautioning residents of Doña Ana County to be vigilant during mosquito season and to take precautions to reduce the chance of contracting West Nile virus and other mosquito-borne diseases.

Each summer in Doña Ana County, proliferation of mosquitoes follows the spring and summer rains, and then lasts into the autumn season. It used to be that mosquito populations abated in winter, but quito heartier varieties of mosquitoes are now found in the region that survive through the winter months and continue to bite, Cordero said. West Nile virus

West Nile virus has been confirmed in Doña Ana County each year since 2003, and it is prudent for every member of the community to begin taking sustainable precautions to mitigate mosquito populations, Cordero said.

Cordero said most birds are carriers of the virus, but many are not affected by it and don't become ill. Humans are susceptible to the virus, as are horses.

Doña Ana County is involved in a comprehensive testing program in which mosquitoes are trapped weekly from different sites around the county and sent to a laboratory for evaluation. This testing allows the county to identify areas where problems may occur and to prioritize treatment procedures accordingly.

The county owns and operates a small fleet of vector-control trucks that are equipped with spraying equipment. These trucks are regularly sent out in the predawn hours to places where mosquitoes are most likely to breed.

Spraying, however, is only one com-

Spraying, however, is only one component of a successful control program. Doña Ana County's Vector Control division also can provide free mosquito larvaeating fish to private 6 residents whose land is marshy or contains large bodies of standing water.

These fish each consume five times their own weight in mosquito larva each day.

The spray and the fish, Cordero said, are the second-best tools available to government. The best tool is an informed and motivated population whose members will, individually, address problem areas on their properties. "Working together," he said, "we can greatly reduce the risk of mosquito-borne illnesses that affect wildlife, livestock and – most importantly – humans in Doña Ana County."

Doña Ana County's Vector Control unit has some helpful tips on how to mitigate these flying, biting, blood-sucking nuisances.

- Mosquitoe larvae mature in standing water. Removing unnecessary standing water inhibits opportunities for mosquitoes to lay eggs near your home. Empty standing water from old tires, buckets, plastic covers, toys and other concave objects that can hold water.
- Periodically replacing containers with fresh water also can eliminate the full development of mosquito larvae. Circulate and treat water in swimming pools. Change water troughs every three days. Water in birdbaths, fountains, dog dishes, wading pools, rain barrels and potted plant trays should be replaced at least once a week. Yards, pastures, parks and fields that are over-irrigated create largescale breeding sites for mosquitoes.

• During mosquito season, stay indoors during the evening, when mosquitoes are most active. When ventilating your home, make sure windows and door screens are bug tight. Replacing outdoor lights with yellow lights will help repel bugs. If you are going to be outdoors, wear clothing that covers your torso, arms, legs and feet. Effective sprays also can be employed containing the chemical Deet. Other effective mosquito repellents include picaridin and oil of lemon eucalyptus, both of which are considered to be good alternatives to Deet.

For more information, call the county's Vector Control Division at 526-8150. Residents calling from outside the Las Cruces area may call toll-free at 1-877-827-7200 and request the Vector Control office extension.

Mosquitos are the carriers of West Nile virus, which has been detected in Doña Ana County for the past four years.

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

How many of you think of the Humane Society as a benevolent benign group whose focus is to rescue, care for, and/or humanely dispose of the hundreds of thousands of unwanted dogs and cats? So did I. I have always looked at them with respect and lent my support. I am saddened to see their transformation into a radical animal rights group now aligned with People for Ethical Treatment of Animals and the Farm Sanctuary.

They are by far the wealthiest non-profit animal rights group. In 2005 they dedicated $11 million (9.2 percent of their budget) to "campaigns, legislation and litigation," and $28 million to "regional and local programs." I have seen them in action in my state.

Why have they taken the activist approach? Money. They have so much and greed is addictive. They display the mask of their kindly historical image as they continue to seek donations and invest their cash. But behind the puppy face, they appear to have a darker agenda – eliminating animal agriculture as we know it.

If they were truly concerned about improving the welfare of food animals it would be logical to assume they might build their own hog farm or veal barn. They could spend some of their wealth and effort into trying to understand the complexity of producing food at a price affordable to the masses, and improve it if they could. Then, at least, they would have some credibility with the producers they are trying to put out of business.

But they are basically a big money bully corporation. And it has become clear that they are not trying to improve modern animal agriculture, they are trying to eradicate it.

In my discussions with representatives of the anti's, I have observed they have very little knowledge, much less experience in the businesses and methods they are trying to destroy. I would be embarrassed for them if they were not so shamelessly righteous.

Jesus said about lawyers;

"...Woe unto you also, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers." (Luke 11:46)

Las Cruces Public Schools Interim Superintendent Stan Rounds speaks Monday at a press conference.

Superintendent: No layoffs planned

LCPS uses hiring attrition to combat budget shortfall

By Todd G. Dickson
The Las Cruces Bulletin

Rumors of massive teacher layoffs in June are untrue, says Las Cruces Public Schools Interim Superintendent Stan Rounds.

The district is facing a major budget shortfall, however, that will result in more than 100 non-renewals of temporary employment contracts, Rounds said during an interview with reporters on Monday, May 21.

Without significant "belt tightening," Rounds said, the district's $161 million operational budget for the coming fiscal year faces a $2.8 million deficit and state law forbids deficit spending. So, the district sent out 117 letters last week to employees working under the temporary contracts to not expect rehire.

This action, Rounds said, shouldn't be confused with having to lay off employees across the board, often called a reduction in force, or RIF. "This is not a RIF," he said.

To identify the budget's problem, Rounds had administrative staff make comparisons to other school district spending in the state. The most obvious area was in payroll, which in the Las Cruces district accounts for 93 percent of the operational budget, compared to a statewide average of 86 percent. This district currently has some 3,800 employees.

The district's administration is taking a hard look at its budget after identifying a trend in the last three years in which the carryover of unspent money has been shrinking. This year, it is at $2 million, $5.3 million less than three years ago. And the predicted $2.8 million deficit includes the current $2 million carryover.

With expected student growth, 10 new teaching positions are open, but every principal is being asked to review and justify each school's staffing levels, according to Rounds. That goes for departments in district administration, said Rounds, who noted that he isn't filling a vacancy for director of second education at the central office.

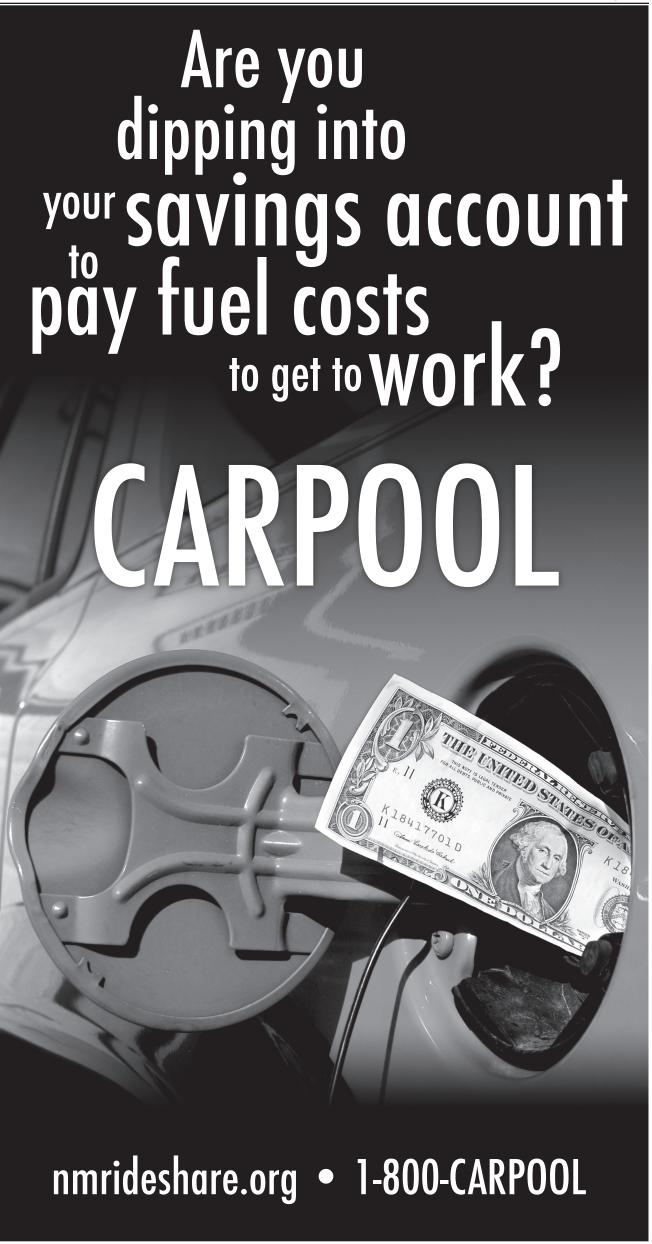

Although the state is not yet restricting what percentage of a school system's budget goes to administration, Rounds said similar comparisons of district spending to state averages will be made for administration. One of the school board's goals is to cut central office spending, he noted.

"Central office does not escape that filter," Rounds said. "We're doing this across the spectrum."

Rounds said no new hiring is being allowed without his approval. "Judicious" hiring in filling vacancies and reorganizing some job duties could allow attrition to close the budgetary gap, according to the interim superintendent.

Rounds also emphasized that it will take some time to get the budget in better balance. "We're not going to do this in one year," he said.

With the city expected to grow about 3 percent a year, and with the expected influx of residents related to a growing military presence in the area, Rounds said "this is the right time to be having this dialogue as we are seeing the genesis of a fairly large expansion."

STATE REP. JONI GUTIERREZ

Also saying he was responding to concerns raised by his East Mesa constituents, councillor Ken Miyagishima at first tried to disqualify councillor Gil Jones, whose sister-in-law is the sister of Philippou's wife, from voting on the question. Jones has insisted that his contact with Philippou has been minimal and that he could make a decision on the question objectively. At the meeting, Jones also noted language in the city's ethical policies that councillors couldn't vote on matters in which they have "direct or indirect" financial interest.

The ethics code also requires some evidence of that benefit, according to Jones and city attorney Fermin Rubio. Without evidence that he somehow stood to benefit from the development's passage, Jones contended there was no reason to disqualify

With the exception of Miyagishima, the rest of the councillors agreed with Jones. Miyagishima would also be the lone dissenting vote against the proposal once the vote was made at nearly 1 a.m.

Before the start of Monday's debate during the eight-hour city council meeting, city officials advised that they could act on the matter because it was a matter of policy.

State Attorney General Gary King has been asked to investigate the legalities about some aspects of the deal between Philippou and Lyons. The state land commissioner sought a request for proposal from other possibly interested developers after finalizing negotiations with Philippou.

Prior to the deal, Philippou had donated money to a political action committee that donated to Lyons' re-election campaign before the deal. Also, Lyons - who is a New Mexico State University graduate got a free ride on a plane chartered by Philippou to Spokane, Wash., to see the Aggies play in the NCAA men's basketball tournament.

As the state land commissioner, Lyons is limited to two terms and was being discussed as a possible Republican candidate for governor in 2010.

At Monday's meeting, Mayor William "Bill" Mattiace said he also spoke with King about whether the council could act on the request with questions about the propriety of the dealings being investigated. Mattiace said King assured him the council's vote on the proposal was a separate question and not germane.

Councillor Steve Trowbridge prefaced the debate by cautioning against an approach suggested by a group calling itself the Quality Growth Alliance that the council could approve the annexation, but hold off on approving zoning. Once the zoning is approved, a developer could build to maximum density allowances which in the Presidio's case could be up to 90,000 dwelling units - and only the developer can request future zoning adjustments.

Without approving the proposal's master plan and zoning requests, Trowbridge said, the council would have to approve some kind of conditional zoning, which results in the city losing some "negotiation" influence.

City staff then tried to answer many of the other questions that's been raised since people became aware of the proposal - much of it in a "Frequently Asked Questions" format:

• Water

City officials cited a series of studies over the past 20 years that have looked at the water supply in anticipation of steady growth in Las Cruces. Those studies are the foundation for the city's 40-year water plan that assumes Las Cruces will keep growing by about 3 percent each year. The city is beginning to add surface water treatment and aquifer replenishing to its water supply efforts, with the first surface water treatment facility being built near the development.

Parks and Open Space

The city has been charged by the State Land Office to ensure arroyo preservation. The setback standards can be made more stringent by the time the development applies for the preliminary plats.

Roads and utilities

Philippou has agreed to put in major roads and utilities before construction. Most significantly, he wants to first connect Dunn Drive with Lohman Avenue. Along with the "new urbanism" approach to put businesses, shops and needs in close proximity to neighborhoods within the development, City Assistant Manager Robert Garza said this major connection will serve to "disperse" some of the East Mesa traffic often seen at the intersection of Lohman Avenue and Telshor Boulevard.

This was one of Miyagishima's main disagreements with the proposal. He contended that the Dunn-Lohman connection should be larger than four lanes sees more a need for six lanes - and that no matter how he crunched the number, Miyagishima said he still sees another 11,000 cars being added to the traffic congestion at that intersection.

Schools

Las Cruces Public Schools Interim Superintendent Stan Rounds told the council he was recommending to the school board that they accept Philippou's offer of 249 acres for schools at no cost to the district. Rounds said he has a commitment in writing from Philippou on the school sites. He added that he hasn't seen this kind of commitment from a developer before. Density dwelling units was unlikely. Philippou's staff is predicting closer to 30,000 dwelling units built over 20 years in nine phases as sections of state land are released. Miyagishima said he believed that number would be closer 44,000 dwelling units.

City staff agreed that the maximum density of 90,000

• Drainage

The developer will have to have to come up with a drainage master plan before platting as part of the platting process.

Arroyos

These will be less expensive than what arroyo crossings have cost in the past, because the development is further up on the East Mesa where the arroyos are more narrow and easier to cross.

Garza said many of the questions being asked are too early in the process to come up with definitive answers for prior to the developer doing more intensive surveying and engineering, which will be required in later stages of the development.

Don Kurtz, speaking for the Quality Growth Alliance, said his group was nonetheless bothered by how it seemed "an inside deal" and that the general public should have known about it sooner, especially since it involved state land. The main result from passing the proposal would be a "loss of trust," he said.

"The community wasn't brought in at the beginning," Kurtz said. "You can't treat this like a 50-acre subdivision.'

State Rep. Joni Gutierrez spoke in favor of the proposal, saying she was bothered by a sense of some residents wanting 'to shut the door" after arriving here. "Please don't shut the door," she asked the John Hummer, speaking for the Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance, read a letter in support of the proposal, citing its ability to attract quality business.

When it came to the councillors' turn to give their thoughts, several noted the many emails they received, and they voiced resentment about the political threats in some of them. Mayor Pro Tem Dolores Connor went as far as to read a portion of one the emails into the record. Connor also spoke in support of Jones, noting that the city is still small enough for officials to easily be remotely related to each other.

In the end, it's still up to personal integrity, she said.

"I will not do favors for my friends if they are illegal," Connor said.

Connor said she liked how this portion of the East Mesa will actually have a street grid and that growth was always expected up to Weisner Road, which borders the development along its eastern Councillor Jose Frietze said it is better for the area to grow in the city with sewer and water service than in the county.

Councillor Dolores Archuleta admitted she was saddened when she first saw the proposal's size and scale, but all of her concerns have been answered by the planning of Philippou's organization.

Trowbridge said the city does need to look at its process to make it more transparent, but that the proposal was a responsible approach to growth.

Mivagishima was able to win one accommodation from the other councillors - a 40-foot height limit on buildings in areas zoned for apartments. He also wanted to limited what types of manufacturing uses would be allowed, but the motion failed.

Honors College Scholarship goes to well-traveled local student

The 2007 New Mexico State University Honors College Scholarship has been awarded to Sandra Yezenia Gutierrez, a senior double majoring in criminal justice and Spanish, originally from Aguascalientes, Mexico.

The scholarship includes a $5,000 stipend, designation as an Honors College scholar, a faculty member to monitor the student's development and a foreign travel experience.

Gutierrez came to the United States at the age of 12 and lived in Hatch, before coming to Las Cruces to attend NMSU. She is scheduled to graduate in December 2007 and is an NMSU Crimson Scholar, a College Assistance Migrant Program (CAMP) alumni and a McNair Scholar.

For her foreign travel experience, Gutierrez will go to Zacatecas, Mexico. Her research will focus on reducing undocumented immigration through education. She also will conduct workshops concerning the dangers of immigrating.

"I will find out about the patterns of potential immigrants, ages 14-17," Gutierrez said. "I hypothesize that as education attainment increases, migration levels will eventually decrease.

In addition, Gutierrez also will write a book on the life of an immigrant. For this part of the project, she will interview Don Jose Acevedo, a member of an indigenous tribe from Zacatecas and her father, Ciro

"Receiving such a prestigious award changed my life," Gutierrez said. "I will have the opportunity to conduct research as an undergraduate, an opportunity many students obtain during their master's studies. I plan to attend graduate school and this project will serve as the seed project for my master's thesis

This is the third year the Honors College Scholarship has been awarded. It is given to sophomore and junior students who exemplify the qualities of intellectual curiosity and achievement, mental agility, questing spirit, moral character and leadership.

Baked to perfection

Lujan Bakery has 50 years of history

Watching the three full-time bakers of Lujan Bakery make Mexican sweet bread from scratch every morning is like watching a well-choreographed dance. They move around each other with the grace of dancers, anticipating each other's next move and pounding down dough in a catchy rhythm. The beats are broken by the sound of requests yelled across the table from one baker to another but, the movement never stops until all the bread has been baked for the day.

Lujan Bakery, located at the corner of Amador Avenue and Mesquite Street in Las Cruces, has been at this location for the last 50 years. The bakery is owned and operated by Enrique and Delfina Sanchez. Enrique Sanchez worked for the previous owner, Alfredo Lujan, for five years before buying the store from him 16 years ago. The couple said some of their customers still confuse them for the Lujan family sometimes.

Sanchez grew up in a family of bakers. His father owned a bakery in Mexico, and Sanchez said he'd pull up a stool alongside his father at a very early age so he could learn to bake.

"My father taught me everything about baking," he said in Spanish. Sanchez said he knows so much now that he can tell if a mix is missing yeast or salt by simply touching it.

Lujan Bakery makes as many as 130 different varieties of bread throughout the year. Different breads are also available during different seasons For example, special bread is baked during Easter and "biscochos" (Mexican wedding cookies) are

"Baking bread is an art," said Sanchez.

He added that more and more of the old-time bakeries have replaced bakers with machines. His bakery uses only two "automated" machines: a giant mixer to handle the different doughs and a handpulled machine that cuts the dough into equal pieces. This helps speed up the process of making bread but Sanchez said the three bakers he employs are still slower than what he's used to. He said he can bake twice the amount of bread in an hour than all three of his bakers, but he doesn't want to automate any further than he already has.

Sanchez enjoys teaching others to bake. He taught family members how to make doughnuts, and he said they now own a popular doughnut shop in Arizona. He beams with pride when he tells me about how light and fluffy their doughnuts are and how they have far surpassed his baking skills.

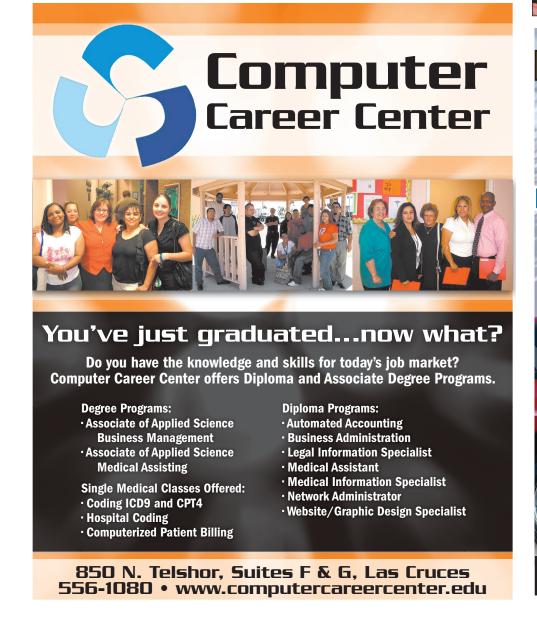

When asked if he's passed on his skills to his four children, Sanchez looks sad. His wife, Delfina, said none of their children have been interested in learning to bake, although they will occasionally help out in the front of the store. Sanchez said he's also tried to pass on everything he knows about baking to his three bakers, but he said he feels they're too young to understand the importance of it or to be interested in it. Sanchez ended by saying that he's afraid he'll die without ever passing on his skills and his love for freshbaked bread.

Alma d'arte students protest teacher dismissals

Arts-based charter school students take 'vow of silence'

Protesting students said they were dissatisfied with answers given to them at a meeting earlier that week.

Travis Relyea, another student protest organizer, said the school's charter calls for democratic governance of the school, located in the Court Youth Center. But students weren't involved in the decision, he said, and the teachers not notified until they learned that other returning teachers had received their contracts.

Protesting students met that morning with Irene Oliver-Lewis, one of the charter school's founders and its executive producer. They told her how much the let-go teachers meant to them and how they felt "blindsided" by the action.

Oliver-Lewis told the students she was limited by law to say what the problems were with the teachers being dismissed, but added that she understood their need to feel heard in the matter.

One idea being considered to give students a greater say in deciding which teacher stays or goes, she said, is to have a student-evaluation process, similar to what's done at the university level.

The protest began as the three-year-old school was preparing for its first graduation on Friday, May 25.

After the meeting with the students in which she promised to re-evaluate the actions in light of their concern, Oliver-Lewis said she saw the students' organized, respectful protest as a good sign the school is teaching them to be involved in their education as "empathetic

Also, she said the protest illustrated the ownership Alma's students have in their school. Many of the school's students did poorly in regular school, largely as a result of skipping school. Most of those students now have high attendance because they passionately enjoy the school, Oliver-Lewis said.

TODD DICKSON I The Las Cruces Bulletin

Students at Alma d'arte Charter High School gather on the front lawn of the Court Youth Center Wednesday morning to plan their "vow of silence" protest over the dismissal of two teachers before meeting with Irene Oliver-Lewis the school's founder and administrator.

For all that makes the small charter high school of 165 students and 36 teaching staff unique with its focus on learning with an arts focus tied to real-world applications, Alma is like any other public and must meet educational benchmarks, she said.

"We are a unique school," Relyea said to Oliver-Lewis about the dismissed teachers. "We look at them and see a person, not an employee.

Students weren't totally out of the loop, Oliver-Lewis said, because two students sit on the school's governing council. Members of the council were informed about the reasons being given for the dismissals, she said, Though Oliver-Lewis said she would be talking to the dismissed teachers again before making the decision final, she also said she stood by the decision made by the school's leadership team.

Oliver-Lewis refused to talk about specific issues with the fired teachers because it is personnel matter and that information is protected.

"It's by law, you guys," she told the students.

Spaceport launch payload retrieved

UP Aerospace finds rocket in missile range flatlands

By Todd G. Dickson

It's mission accomplished for the second flight out of Spaceport America as UP Aerospace began returning payloads to customers this week from its April 28 launch.

Bad weather and a wayward transmitter delayed recovery of the SpaceLoft XL's payload section, UP Aerospace President Jerry Larson told the Bulletin in a telephone interview from the company's Colorado offices.

Last Month, the 20-foot rocket streaked into the sky from its temporary launch facilities at Spaceport America in the desert between Las Cruces and Truth or Consequences. More important than its successful takeoff, the solid-fuel propelled rocket held its trajectory to complete its 15-minute flight to reach suborbital space at 384,000 feet. The rocket's booster then separated from the payload section and they parachuted back down to the surface on the White Sands Missile Range side of the San Andres Search crews easily found the rocket's booster, but had difficulty finding the payload carrying a cargo of experiments and small portions of the cremains, including actor James Doohan, beloved for his portrayal of "Scotty" on Star Trek, and Mercury 7 "Right Stuff" Astronaut L. Gordon "Gordo" Cooper. Alongside the celebrity cremains, the ashes of 200 others took the ride.

The transmitter on the payload section indicated that it had come down in a rough and rugged section of the mountains with heavy vegetation. The searches were conducted in between other tests at the missile range, and rough weather – including tornadoes – also interrupted Eventually, the transmitter was found, but it was no longer attached to the payload.

The transmitter had come loose when it was over the mountains," Larson said.

The team went back to the flight tracking data and the computer model suggested another area to search.

"The landing area was actually in the flatlands," Larson said. "We were looking in the wrong spot."

It was comparatively easier to find and retrieve. The payload section was sent back to Denver and opened on Monday. All the payloads were in fine shape, Larson said. Although they had intended to begin returning the payload contents earlier, Larson stated he was glad to be able to return the educational experiments while school was still in session.

Because UP Aerospace is a new company, the customers have been largely understanding about the delay, Larson said. He also complemented the missile range's staff cooperation in the effort.

Larson admitted he felt some anxiousness when the search first came up empty-handed.

The first SpaceLoft rocket spun out of control soon after takeoff on Sept. 25, 2006, and crashed into the desert.

With the recovery of the payload section, "it all turned out OK in the end," he said

Along with restored confidence comes more enthusiastic customers looking to send small payloads into suborbital space for an affordable price, Larson said.

Four launches are being planned for September, October and November. Larson said adjustments will be made in the flight plan and to better secure the transmitters.

"The dream and the vision is still alive," Larson said.

Sometime in June, the unit will depart for Fort Dix, N.J., where they will formally qualify on the weapons and receive three months of intensive training. Their mobilization time, one year in Iraq and approximately 30 days leave at the end of the deployment, will add up to 400 days. County begins issuing permits for vehicle restoration

According to a press release, county residents will have their property files researched for codes-related issues and citations when vehicle restoration permits are applied for.

In addition, Doña Ana County codes enforcement officers will periodically inspect properties to which permits have been issued to ensure that no codes violations are evident in the area, the release says, and the officers are empowered to issue citations where codes violations are found.

The release states that the county planning office has

The release states that the county planning office has now begun issuing the $35 vehicle-restoration permits which allow a resident to keep a non-running vehicle in plain view on their property for 18 months while it is refurbished.

Vehicles that are garaged or otherwise shielded from public view are not required to have permits the release says. Inoperable vehicles that are neither permitted nor shielded from public view will be subject to codes citations and significant fines, according to the release, and only race cars and agricultural equipment are excluded.

Residents must apply for the permits at the Planning Department in the Doña Ana County Government Center, 845 N. Motel Boulevard and they must bring the title and/or registration for the vehicle being restored and pay a $35 permit fee for each vehicle the release said.

The press release says that as part of the application process, staff will research the property owner's files to determine if other codes issues exist on the property or whether any codes-related citations remain outstanding.

The release says that a maximum of two non-renewable permits will be issued per address, and that each permit will carry a description of the vehicle, as well as the approved location for the restoration work to be performed

Once approved, each permit must be conspicuously placed on the vehicle to which it pertains according to the release.

In most cases, the release says, officers will attempt to educate the owner about codes compliance before any citations are issued, and the release says that residents who remedy violations within a reasonable period of time may avoid citations at the discretion of the codes enforcement officers.

The last graduates

TODD DICKSON I The Las Cruces Bulletin

Last week's graduation of two Rivers Academy students was bittersweet for its founder and students. Carlos Jimenez and Timothy Lytton are the small, private school's last two graduates. Next academic year, Rivers Academy will transition into a lab school and outdoor classroom with tutoring services, with a heavy focus on teaching science, math, technology and engineering.

Senators praises postal changes

In a press release this week, U.S. Sen. Jeff Bingaman said he is pleased that the U.S. Postal Service has agreed to hire 15 employees to staff a third shift at the El Paso mail processing plant.

"I'm very glad that the U.S. Postal Service is hiring additional employees at the mail processing center." Bingaman said. "We'll keep a close eye on the situation to ensure that Las Cruces residents see an improvement in service."

Last month, Bingaman and Rep.

Silvestre Reyes wrote to Postmaster John Potter, asking for a reevaluation of the decision to move the Las Cruces processing operations to El Paso and called on the UŠPŠ to take the steps needed to improve delivery to the area.

"We have received complaints regarding late delivery of mail, specifically of bulk items, many of which are time sensitive," they wrote. "The El Paso mail processing facility has been the focus of many mail delivery issues in the area and the United States Postal Service (USPS) has failed to address the problems sufficiently.

"We urge you to conduct a study and determine whether transferring the Las Cruces processing operations to El Paso was an appropriate action to take. If USPS determines that the move was necessary, then it is clear that more personnel must be hired to ensure the efficient and timely operation of the El Paso facility. While we commend USPS for its recent hires in the Albuquerque area to address delivery issues, these same steps have not been taken to address the delivery issues in the El Paso/Las Cruces area."

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici also welcomed the decision to add personnel to make the facility a 24-hour operation.

Domenici not only called on Postmaster General John E. Potter about the problem, he contacted Dan G. Blair, chairman of the Postal Regulatory Commission, about the mail service problems in southern New Mexico.

Domenici vowed to continue monitoring the situation, as well.

The new workers being added to the El Paso center come on the heels of the USPS decision to hire an additional 75 employees to work in the New Mexico/ Albuquerque District in order to improve mail service to central New Mexico.

Fire Marshal's Office moves

The operations and staff of the Doña Ana County Fire Marshal's Office have begun moving to the Doña Ana County Government Center at 845 N. Motel Blvd.

The Fire Marshal's Office will maintain transitional offices in the Doña Ana County Public Health Building at Spruce and Solano for a few weeks.

"Moving the fire marshal and his staff completes the last substantive step for making the Doña Ana County Government Center a true one-stop shop for county business," said County Manager Brian D.

Military space office opens

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici this week lauded the opening of the Operationally Responsive Space (ORS) office at Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque.

"The ORS will increase Kirtland's value and importance to our nation's defense," Domenici said. "Space is already becoming strategically important to our national security, and now Kirtland will play a larger role in ensuring United States interests are well protected in that realm.

"I also believe this new mission will make Albuquerque and New Mexico even more attractive to researchers and industry in the space field."

Rick Homans, New Mexico Spaceport Authority executive director, also attended a ceremony marking the opening of the ORS office and noted that it is expected to do some of its testing at Spaceport America, 45 miles north of Las Cruces.

Other Kirtland space activities include: Space and Missile Systems Center Space and Development Test Wing; Air Force Research Lab (AFRL) Space Vehicle Directorate; Office of Aerospace Studies; AFRL Directed Energy Directorate; and Sandia National Laboratories.

Crime Stoppers: 1992 homicide

Las Cruces Crime Stoppers is offer- tives learned that the fire was intening a $1,000 reward for information that leads to the arrest of the person or persons involved in 15-year-old homicide.

At about 6 p.m. on March 15, 1992, officers of the Las Cruces Police Department were called to 2029 Sagecrest Court in reference to a structure fire. In 1992 this location was the Las Cruces Nursing Center, which acted as a retirement home.

When officers arrived, they discovered that 74-year-old Inez White was inside the room where the fire originated. White died as a result of the injuries she received during the fire.

Through the investigation detec-tionally set and White was the intended target of the fire. New evidence has shed some light on this investigation but detectives still need the community's help in solving this most heinous crime. Detectives believe that there are persons still in the community who hold valuable information for the successful resolution of this case.

If you have any information regarding this crime, or any other crimes, you can call Las Cruces Crime Stoppers at 526-8000 or outside the Las Cruces area at 1 (800) 897-2746. The Crime Stoppers number is operational 24 hours a day and you do not have to give your name to collect a reward.

Funds needed to help connect community to local churches

By JOEL COURTNEY
The Las Cruces Bulletin

The Las Cruces Prayer Network (LCPN) has found a

After having the Prayer Center based on Mall Drive for the last four years, LCPN Executive Director Fred Schultz has moved the group's office to 1115 Commerce

According to Schultz, the building on Mall Drive fulfilled the group's needs well over the last four years but was too large for the new vision.

'Now the Prayer Network is out in the community, and we didn't need a gathering place," he said.

The LCPN was successful in bringing many Christians together in prayer, but they are now enlarging their focus to further connect the community to the church.

"We are no longer just looking for answers, we are looking for solutions," Schultz said. "We want to know how the faith community can be a blessing on the community (as a whole).'

Another part of the new vision is "forming a regional coalition of citywide ministries," by getting ministries from throughout the Southwest working together towards the same common goals.

To help facilitate this process, Schultz is serving as the chair of the New Mexico Prayer Transformation Council, which works to have all New Mexico churches work together more effectively, share resources and keep their prayers towards the same goals.

We're trying to stir a fresh awakening in the hearts of our leaders," Schultz said.

As a way of further serving the community, the LCPN wants to do more for victims of domestic violence, the poor, the homeless, widows and the fatherless, according to Schultz.

We really need a cash flow to get resources built up. All these things we're going to take on are going to need money," he said.

The LCPN is seeking $7,000 as start-up funds for the enlarged mission and vision.

Donations may be brought by the office or mailed to LCPN, P.O. Box 2591, Las Cruces, NM 88004. LCPN is a 501(c)3, nonprofit organization, so contributions are tax deductible.

In addition to taking on new ministries and goals, the LCPN will continue to coordinate their regular activities, such as the First Friday Prayer, held the first Friday of each month.

Now that First Friday Prayer will not be held at the Prayer Center, Agape Christian Church, 2407 W. Picacho Ave., will be the first local church to host the event.

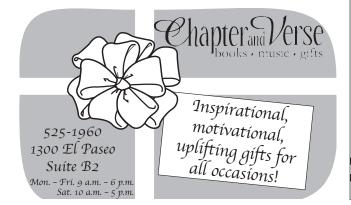

"I would like to see other (First Friday Prayer locations) start throughout the city, instead of them being held in just one place," Schultz said.

Wednesday Open Prayer will still be held at the LCPN office, because it is a smaller group.

"We still pray for the city, always. That's our focus," Schultz said.

The Las Cruces Prayer Network has been serving the Southwest region through ministry for the past six

Prayer Network Childhood trauma can inspire greatness later during lifetime

Eleanor Roosevelt an example of overcoming trauma

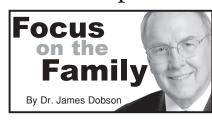

Do childhood traumas inevitably twist and warp a person in the adult years?

No. It is well-known that difficult childhoods leave some people wounded and disadvantaged, but for others, they fuel great achievement and success. The difference appears to be a function of individual temperaments and resourcefulness.

In a classic study called "Cradles of Eminence," Victor and Mildred Goertzel investigated the home backgrounds of 700 highly successful people. The researchers sought to identify the early experiences that may have contributed to remarkable achievement. All of the subjects were well-known for their accomplishments; they included Einstein, Freud, Churchill and many others.

The backgrounds of these people proved very interesting. Threefourths of them came from troubled childhoods, enduring poverty, broken homes or parental abuse. Onefourth had physical handicaps. Most of those who became writers and playwrights had watched their own parents embroiled in psychological dramas of one sort or another. The researchers concluded that the need to compensate for disadvantages was a major factor in the drive toward personal achievement.

One of the best illustrations of this phenomenon is seen in the life of Eleanor Roosevelt, the former first lady. Being orphaned at 10, she underwent a childhood of utter anguish. She was very homely and never felt she really belonged to anybody. According to Victor Wilson of the Newhouse News Service, "She was a rather humorless introvert, a young woman unbelievably shy, unable to overcome her personal insecurity and with a conviction of her own inadequacy.

The world knows, however, that Mrs. Roosevelt rose above her emotional shackles. As Wilson said, "From some inner wellspring, Mrs. Roosevelt summoned a tough, unyielding courage, tempered by remarkable self-control and self-discipline." That "inner wellspring" has another appropriate name: compensation!

Obviously, one's attitude toward a handicap determines its impact on his or her life. It has become popular to blame adverse circumstances for irresponsible behavior; i.e., poverty causes crime, broken homes produce juvenile delinquents, a sick society imposes drug addiction on its youth. There is some truth in this assumption, since people in those difficult circumstances are more likely to behave in destructive ways.

But they are not forced to do so. To say that adverse conditions "cause" irresponsible behavior is to remove all responsibility from the shoulders of the individual. The excuse is hollow. We must each decide what we will do with inner doubt or outer hardship.

The application to an individual family should be obvious. If a child has gone through a traumatic experience or is physically disadvantaged, the parents need not give up hope. They should identify the child's strengths and natural abilities so that they can be used to overcome the hurdle. The problem that seems so formidable today may become the inspiration for greatness tomorrow.

You have described two extremes that are both harmful to kids, being too permissive and being too harsh. Which is the most common error in Western cultures today?

Permissiveness is more common and has been since the 1950s. But harshness and severity still occur frequently as well. These dual dangers are equally harmful to children and were described by Marguerite and Willard Beecher in their book "Parents on the Run." This is how they saw the two extremes:

The adult-centered home of yesteryear made parents the masters and children their slaves. The child-centered home of today has made parents the slaves and children the masters. There is no true cooperation in any master-slave relationship, and therefore no democracy. Neither the restrictive-authoritative technique of rearing children nor the newer 'anything goes technique develop the genius within the individual, because neither trains him to be self-reliant. The way to raise healthy children is to find the safety of the middle ground between disciplinary extremes.

Have you noticed that some people who have little are joyful and content, while many people who seem to "have it all" are never satisfied?

I love the story about the kids who played a trick on their grandpa. They rubbed limburger cheese on his mustache while he took a nap on the couch. When he awakened he sniffed, snarled and said, "Man, this living room stinks." He tried to escape the smell and walked into the kitchen, then the den, then a bedroom. "The whole house stinks," he said. Grandpa hurried outside desperate for some fresh air. He took in a deep breath but before he could fill his hyper he averbed and sored "Good Lord" he his lungs, he coughed and gagged. "Good Lord," he moaned, "the whole world stinks!"

In the same way that the freshest air can smell bad if one has a stinky mustache, the best day can be ruined with a stinky attitude. On the flip side, a great attitude enables one to find the good, and for which to be thankful for in the worst of circumstances

In the Bible we read the words of the Apostle Paul, "By the help of the Lord always keep up the glad spirit (or be filled with joy); yes, I will repeat it, keep up the glad spirit." (Philippians 4:12 WNT)

Always? Did he really mean always? Yes. Paul wrote while imprisoned in Rome, chained to a guard twenty-four hours a day, awaiting the possibility of execution. In every circumstance, even while imprisoned, Paul had learned to experience joy and thanksgiving. How? Because he chose to, with God's help. He chose to focus on the blessings in life that can never be taken from him - God's forgiveness, love, presence, promises and purposes.

This week, take something with you everywhere you go that will fill your life with joy, contentment and thanksgiving – a good attitude. A good attitude which is anchored in God and His blessings.

• Old Mesilla residents sought blessings from San Ysidro, the agricultural patron saint, for highcrop yields, protection from insects and gentle rains with pageants along fields outside of the town.

Participating in the pageant were 100 young women dressed in white bearing the Blue Cross of the Virgin Mary, 100 boys dressed in red as the Children of Christ, 40 choir girls and 20 girls dressed in veils and crowns. The pageant also featured a San Ysidro statue, a two-foot, wooden statue with two oxen, in George Griggs' Billy the Kid Museum.

- W.L. Else, New Mexico A&M Extension Service director, during a Doña Ana County Taxpayers League meeting at the Temple of Agriculture, proposed a cut in its budget. But he advocated more services to advise farmers in marketing to help during the economic depression.
- Leon J. Valdez was elected state deputy for the New Mexico Knights of Columbus.

- NMA&M awarded E.O. Wooten an honorary doctorate degree in biology. He was serving with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in WashingtonD.C., but formerly he had been on the college staff until 1910 and had helped establish the Southwest Plants Herbarium in Foster Hall.
- The El Paso Hay Association was paying $10 a ton for alfalfa and a 60 percent advance to members.

Sister study aims to find cause of breast cancer

If you could help your daughters, granddaughters and nieces possibly avoid getting breast cancer, would you? The sister study needs women between the ages of 65 and 74 who have never had breast cancer and whose sisters had breast cancer. The project will help researchers learn how our environment and genes affect the chances of getting the disease. Conducted by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, one of the National Institutes of Health, the sister study is empowering women to leave their mark on breast cancer research.

The month of May is "Older Americans Month" and with the theme being "making choices for a healthier future," can sign up for the sister study and help prevent future generations from having to battle breast cancer.

The chance of developing breast cancer increases with age. Women in their 70s are almost twice as likely to get breast cancer as women in their 50s. Studying women ages 65 to 74 whose sister had breast cancer will provide clues to how age is involved. Older women are also important to the sister study because they have a longer history of living and working in a variety of surroundings and have more life experience than the younger women

Joining the sister study is not difficult and can be done from home when it is convenient for you. "At the beginning, women will answer some over-the-phone and written surveys and provide blood, urine, household dust and toenail samples," said Dr. Dale Sandler, principal investigator of the sister study. "Then we'll touch base once a year, for up to 10 years, to learn about changes to their address, health or environment." She added, "The sister study does not require participants to take any medicine, undergo any medical treatments or make any changes to their habits, diet or daily life.

The sister study has a number of active nationwide partners including the American Cancer Society, Susan G. Komen for the Cure, the National Center on Minority Health and Health Disparities, Sisters Network Inc., the Y-ME National Breast Cancer Organization and the Intercultural Cancer Council.

Program seeks volunteer mentors for new mothers

The Healthcare Foundation of Southern New Mexico is seeking mentors to be partnered with new mothers as part of a their Las Compañeras: Mothers Mentoring Mothers program. The aim of the program is for mentors to offer positive parenting skills and emotional support to young mothers. The program was developed to support young mothers as they adjust to the challenges and responsibilities of motherhood after a series of child abuse deaths in Doña Ana County. Mentors will provide support to new mothers that will include information on infant care, the mother's well-being, positive parenting skills, handling stress and community services.

A Las Compañeras mentor will meet expectant mothers in their third trimester and will mentor them through the baby's first six months. Mentors will be provided with comprehensive training from the First Step Center, 390 Calle de Alegra, prior to meeting with the mothers.

For those wishing to become mentors, a comprehensive training course will be conducted at First Step Center, beginning June 8 from 1 to 5 p.m., and continuing June 9 at Aprendamos Intervention Team of Las Cruces, 301 Perkins Drive, Suite B, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Volunteers unable to attend some of this training will be able to make up the training hours by videotape at First Step Center. Interested volunteers are encouraged to contact Joyce Gormley at 556-8188 or email lascompaneras@firststepcenter.org for more information.

woman who is holding his hand. He wants to tell the woman that he loves her, but he just can't seem to get the words out.

The boy is 4 years old, and the young woman is his mother. It isn't nerves that prevent the child from telling his mother "I love you," it is his communication disorder. Every time he tries to talk, his words come out sounding garbled and are difficult to understand, even for his mother.

Communication disorders affect people of all ages and can be inherited or acquired. Although a number of medical conditions, such as stroke or brain injury, can result in a communication disorder, the cause often

"Communication is the key to success as an adult. Problems with speaking or reception don't just affect communication; they can impact every part of a person's ' said Charlotte Mason, coordinator of clinical services at New Mexico State University's Speech and Hearing Center.

The Speech and Hearing Center is a full-service audiology and speech-language pathology clinic that serves New Mexicans of all ages who are coping with communication disorders.

The center serves as a training facility for NMSU students in the fields of speechlanguage pathology and audiology in addition to providing an important service for the community.

"I want to pursue a public service career, and working at the clinic has been a great opportunity. I've seen a lot of progress with clients I've been able to work with and am becoming a better clinician," said Jake Martinez, a student pursuing a master's degree in communication disorders. Martinez is one of a handful of male students involved in the program.

"Although we have some very successful male students, the field is primarily dominated by females. About 10 percent of our students are men," Mason said.

Students like Martinez, male or female, can look forward to a successful and enjoyable career in speech-language pathology or audiology. The U.S. News & World Report magazine recently included both careers in its list of the best careers for 2007. According to the magazine, the job market is expected to remain especially strong for Spanish speakers.

The importance of bilingualism in the field is demonstrated to NMSU students training as clinicians in the NMSU Speech and Hearing Center, where many clients receive services in Spanish.

In its 43rd year, the clinic serves New Mexicans from all walks of life and with many different conditions.

We serve clientele from the entire pus and Las Cruces community use the clinic, we get clients from Deming, Hatch and surrounding areas," Mason said.

The clinic's efforts do not end at its walls; in fact, the members of the clinic regularly do hearing and speech and language screenings in the area. Recently, they have done screenings for Gadsden Public Schools, Doña Ana County Head Start and the NMSU Myrna's Children's

The Las Cruces Sertoma Club, part of an international civic organization that supports the field of communication disorders, recently donated $25,000 to the clinic for infant hearing testing equipment.

"This equipment is essential, and the money to purchase it wouldn't have come

Used for hearing screenings within and outside the clinic, the equipment was part of a "wish list" of needs that the clinic presented to the Sertoma club, said Charles Wagner, who serves as a liaison between the Sertoma club and NMSU.

In May, the clinic will join other members of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA) in celebrating Better Hearing and Speech Month.

Jan Martin, wife of NMSU President Michael Martin, is serving as Honorary Chair for Better Hearing and Speech Month events planned by NMSU.

has two primary purposes - education and awareness. We want to educate people about communication problems and make them aware of services that are available," Stout said.

If you have a concern that you or your child might have a communication disorder, you should contact your doctor or a certified audiologist or speech-language pathologist right away, Stout said.

Located on the university's main campus in the speech building, near the intersection of University and Jordan avenues, the Speech and Hearing Center is open during business hours on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Services are offered in English and Spanish. For more information, call 646-3906 or TDD 646-6191.

Student athletes benefit from reduced cost exams

By Melissa St. Aude

On a sunny Thursday afternoon, while many students ran to catch their bus home, others trickled into the Picacho Middle School gymnasium where they lined up to see a doctor. With Family Care Associates on hand offering students athletic physical examinations for the bargain rate of $5, more than 100 boys and girls sacrificed after school hours to accept the offer.

Doctors Conchita Paz and Denise Leonardi performed the examinations while staff members from Family Care Associates volunteered their time to assist.

"This really is a time saver and I'm so appreciative that this is being offered at the school," said Maggie Rey, whose two sons, Austin and Mark, are involved in sports at the school. She said that having the examinations performed after school in the gym eliminates the need to make an appointment with the pediatrician.

Another parent, Sandra Reyes said that her son, Robert, a seventh-grader who plays football, enjoys the camraderie that results from most team members getting their examinations together.

"It feels like a team activity - everyone is getting their physical at the same time and it's more comfortable than sitting in the doctor's office," she said. "It's not so much about the reduced cost of the exam, but the convenience."
Picacho Middle School Ahletic Coordinator Rey Muñoz

said that having one day where all student athletes can have a low-cost examination helps to ensure that on the first day of school, students are ready to play.

"This is a great benefit to the kids and the coaches," he said. "A lot of times, on the first day of practice, kids don't have their physicals either because their parents were busy or they couldn't afford it. This way, before the school year even ends, a good majority of the kids who will be playing sports next year already have their physicals and

Las Cruces is a great place to live

The Wall Street Journal, in a May 2 edition, talked with several retirees who relocated to Las Cruces for the sunny weather and affordable luxury homes. But the article also introduced readers to the Mesilla

The agriculture industry, including "chili peppers," still contributes enormous amounts of money into New Mexico's economy.

Groundbreaking research is conducted at New Mexico State University, which serves more than 16,000 students each semester.

Testing for Future Combat Systems is done at White Sands Missile Range, and thanks to WSMR's restricted air space, Spaceport America has been born.

In fact, Las Cruces is projected to grow 6.7 percent in the next five years, according to the article, and there will be a 19.3 percent increase of residents aged 55 to 65 years old.

An April 15 New York Times article even touched on the annexation proposal, which was finally approved after a long debate lasting through Monday night.

What we have known for years has now become "news" to the national media - Las Cruces is a great place to live, work and play.

As more businesses and families are attracted to the area, our business climate, which has recently been rated as mediocre, will become "good" or "excellent," and our children will be able to stay home to find well-paying jobs once they graduate from college.

And while the entire metropolitan area continues to flourish, more people will get to take in breathtaking views of the Organ Mountains - something we may take for granted as we drive to work or school every

AMR brings more than 50 jobs to county in July

American Medical Response will take over as Doña Ana County's exclusive 911 and non-emergency ambulance provider beginning July 1.

The company was chosen through a competitive bidding process to earn the contract, which will continue through 2011 with the possibility of four one-year extensions, according to a press release.

AMR provided service before Southwest Ambulance Service was awarded the contract four years ago.

"We're just trying to let the commu-nity know that we're coming back to Las Cruces," said AMR spokesperson Amy Coming back to Las Cruces and Doña Ana County, the organization will bring 52 employment positions available to local residents. Mike Beech, AMR human resources generalist for New Mexico and South Texas, said the company will be hiring 23 paramedics, 23 emergency medical technicians, three supervisors, an administrative assistant, clinical education specialist and an operations manager.

"It's going to be a pretty good-sized operation," Viator said.

To recruit employees AMR will hold several job fairs through June 26.

So far, the business has held and Beech said there was a good turnout.

"We've never had less than 10 applicants a day," he said.

Viator said AMR will not be hiring dispatchers, as the county already provides those services through the Mesilla Valley Regional Dispatch Authority.

AMR, headquartered near Denver, employs a total of 17,000 paramedics, EMTs, nurses, doctors and support staff and serves more than 250 communities,

Flood plain concerns residents

FEMA identifies deficient levees

By Marvin Tessneer

Vulnerable property owners are unhappy about flood hazard designations, but local and federal agencies said recently at the Federal Emergency Management Agency meeting that property owners have recourse for readjustment.

More than 150 residents attended the meeting at the County Government Center to ask questions about FEMA's notice that property that would not be protected against what it referred to as a 100-year flood would be liable to higher insurance rates.

They were able to review FEMA maps, Special Flood Hazard maps and Flood Insurance Rate Maps during the meeting. Copies also are available at the Thomas Branigan Memorial Library.

Paul Dugie, Doña Ana Flood Commission director, told people attending the meeting that the maps are preliminary, are being reviewed and could be modified.

He also advised that dissatisfied property owners could appeal their cases at the Office of the Flood Commissioner. For more information, call 525-5554 or visit www.donaanacounty.org/flood.

"If property owners feel that their houses are higher than indicated on maps, they can appeal," said Susie Webb, FEMA spokes-woman. "But they need to provide technical reports showing that it is higher that the 100-year flood plain."

The county will forward the appeals and technical reports to FEMA has been modifying maps into a digital form because of changes caused by housing development and increasing population. If the maps show that the levees do not provide adequate protection, FEMA can withdraw accreditation.

"Our main concern is risk if the levees can't contain a 100-year flood to protect homeowners," Webb said.

Effected homeowners will have the options of adding flood protection to the incomment of the incomment tection to their property or obtaining insurance.

The International Boundary and Water Commission, during an earlier public hearing, has already reported inadequacies in the Rio

Concerns that were expressed at the FEMA hearing were: Will the Letter of Map Revision show property changes or map

If property owners can prove that their property has a higher elevation, can they obtain lower insurance premiums? What agency is responsible for arroyos structures to prevent flooding, city or county?

Would developers help with arroyo maintenance to prevent flooding? And why are some property owners paying for arroyo maintenance that has not been started? Some questioned the accuracy of maps showing flood plains, contending that regular surveys with ground instruments are more accurate than digital maps. Developers and engineers questioned the accuracy of the flood plain maps.

This map highlights flood zones in west Las Cruces including Burn Lake, West Amador and Valley Drive.

Will funds be available to improve property?

FEMA has identified levee sections totaling 38 miles along the Rio Grande that would be deficient in a large-scale flood. The flooding could affect about 3,000 structures.

The reported deficiency is the levees' height, not structure. FEMA mandates that the levels must have three feet of freeboard, or height at least three feet higher than the flood waters, commission spokesman Steven Smullen said.

U.S. Sens. Pete Domenici and Jeff Bingaman have petitioned the Senate to include $20.56 million in its supplemental bill to support IBWC projects to improve the levees.

The levees sections what would require work to meet specifications were identified as:

Grace Duran: Shaping the local justice system

Former district judge integral part of domestic relations division

By NATISHA HALES The Las Cruces Bulletin

Since she came to Las Cruces out of law school in 1977, former district judge Grace Duran has had a hand in shaping today's local legal system.

Originally from La Luz, N.M. - eight miles north of Alamogordo - Duran said she knew she was going to be involved in groundbreaking work, but she didn't know it would be related to law.

After graduating from the University of New Mexico with bachelor's degrees in secondary education and Spanish, Duran had accepted a position in Pueblo, Colo., to help start a bilingual education pro-

"I actually had no intentions of attending law school," she said.

A high school friend encouraged Duran to apply for the UNM School of Law. She did it, but when she received a letter from UNM, she said she threw it in the trash. Her mother, who was helping her pack, found the letter, which said Duran had been accepted to the school.

"She told me, 'Are you nuts?" Duran said. "Her motivation was she wanted me to stay in state. She talked me into going to law school. Because of my mother, I ended up being an attorney, and ultimately it was the right decision.

After law school, Duran came to Las Cruces and became the first staff attorney for Southern New Mexico Legal Services - now New Mexico Legal Aid.

The organization, funded through National Legal Services, provides free legal aid to those who are unable to afford it. The services are for civil cases.

"It was my introduction to the community," Duran said.

From there, Duran opened her own private practice from 1980 to 1990, when she was named the first Child Support Hearing Officer and Domestic Violence Hearing Officer.

She continued to shape the domestic relations division of the Third Judicial District Court.

"My interest in negotiations convinced the district judges to start the Third Judicial District Mediation Program," Duran

The mediation program helps parents come to a decision regarding their children. Duran also had a hand in creating the pro se clinic for domestic relations, which was designed for those who did not have access to an attorney.

"It started making the Domestic Relations Division more accessible," she said. We started developing people-friendly forms for people who didn't have access to attorneys. My fingerprints are all over the documents you see now if and when you try to get anything done within the domestic relations division.'

Her experience in the court led Duran to run for a district judge position, which she won in November 1995. She was the first woman elected judge in the Third Judicial District.

In January 1996, she began her role as Division 6 judge, which she said was specifically earmarked by the State Legislature for domestic relations.

"The county was growing, it still is," she said. "They were recognizing the need in the amount of filings of DM (domestic matters) cases.'

In the Domestic Relations Division, Duran handled cases involving the dissolution of marriage, child custody, child visitation, child support, adoption, guardianship and others that involved "breaking up the family.

Despite her expertise in domestic relations, being a judge was a challenge, Duran said.

"I especially found it difficult as a judge because there is no right answer," she said. "You have to go with your gut feeling. As a judge, the child custody cases are the most difficult when the people are both good parents. You rarely get feedback that your decisions are correct.'

She did, however, receive feedback from one couple who thanked Duran for her decision regarding a son.

"They were so grateful because their son was graduating from high school and going to college on a scholarship," Duran said. "Most of the time on the bench, you see people who are in crisis. You very rarely get to see the other side. It was very gratifying."

Duran was a district judge until 2005, when she was offered an opportunity do more groundbreaking work.

Duran relocated to San Juan, Puerto Rico, to be a special assistant

U.S. Attorney for the district of San Juan. She was an employee of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) and acted as a liaison for the two governmental entities. Because of her litigation and organizational skills, Duran was asked to help start a litigation unit in San Juan

"That was awesome just being on the island and getting to know the people," Duran said. "Even though it is a commonwealth of the United States, it is still its own little country. San Juan is a huge city, and it has all the problems of a huge city. But the infrastructure is bursting at the seams. A lot of the amenities we take for granted here are hard to get there.'

As an assistant U.S. attorney, Duran handled "impact cases," which were designed to set precedent in Puerto Rico. The cases she handled put her at high risk.

"The federal government is the only effective law enforcement arm in Puerto Rico," she said. "They have municipal and state law enforcement, but there is a lot of corruption and a lot of drug activity because it's a huge port. Because of the dangerous work we were doing, we were targeted.

"As a result of the high-level work I was doing, the experience I got there in one-and-a-half years is equivalent to five to 10 years here.

Although her original plan was to relocate to San Juan with her family, Duran said things didn't fall into place as quickly as they needed to. So she returned about seven months ago.

"This is my home," she said. "I feel very comfortable here, very peaceful here.

She started a private practice and only handles domestic relations cases.

Where she was once secretary for the District Judges Association and a board member for the Diocese of Las Cruces before she left for Puerto Rico, Duran said she is now taking it slowly.

"I was extremely busy before," she said. "A skill people need is the ability to

Spring, summer ideal for selling homes

Seasons spawn additional sales, higher prices and shorter selling times

It's no secret that more people move in the spring and summer months than during any other time of the year, and folks here in Las Cruces are no different. At least that's what statistics from the Multiple Listing and Information Service (MLIS) subsidiary of the Las Cruces Association of Realtors (LCAR) showed on May 21.

According to the MLIS report, 55.6 percent of our year 2005 residential sales of homes, townhomes and condominiums were closed during the spring and summer months, with fall and winter sales accounting the other 44.4 percent of the closings. Sales closed during the spring and summer of 2006 produced a slightly better result, accounting for 56.9 percent of that year's total closings. The fall and winter seasons of 2006 produced the remaining 43.1 percent of the happy buyers and sellers that closed that year.

During the past two years, the number of new and existing homes sold during the winter months averaged 19 percent of the total number of closings for the year. The 388 sales closed during winter 2005 produced 18.3 percent of the 2,123 proper-ties sold that year, while the 458 sales closed during the winter months of 2006 accounted for 19.7 percent of the 2,323 total sales for the year. If the 415 closings booked during the winter of 2007 also make up around 19 percent of our annual total, we can expect this year's number of residential sales to end up in the 2,150- to 2,250-unit range.

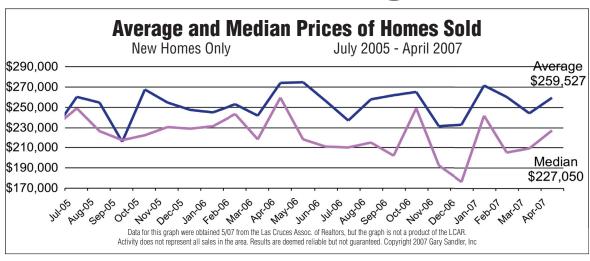

Sales prices also tend to increase during the "selling season," according to the MLIS report. The median price of a new home sold during April of this year was $234,175. That's $13,425, or almost 6.1 percent, higher than January's median sales price of $220,750. The median price is where half the homes sold for more and half sold for less. Existing home prices also rose during the first four-months of this year, with April's median sales price of $173,500 exceeding January's median of $169,000 by $4,500 or 2.7 per-

Market times, commonly referred to as days on the market, tend to decrease during the "selling season." The time required to sell a new Las Cruces area home, townhome or condominium fell to 117 days in April, from the 137 days it took to bring January sales to a closing. That's a reduction of almost three weeks or just over 17 percent. Existing homes are also moving a little faster, with April's 98-day market time just four days faster than January's 102-day span.

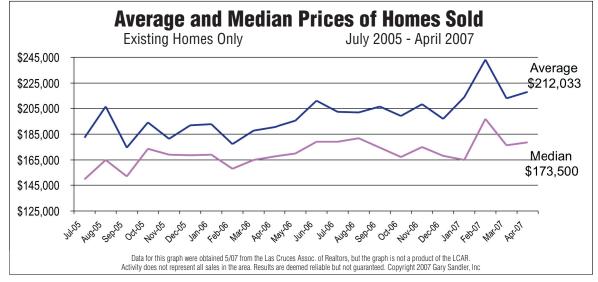

Other statistics also indicate a better time ahead, but I'll wait until next week to share them with you. Until then, I hope to....

Twelve questions every business owner should ask and get answered today

As a business owner you have already engaged in some form of business planning, perhaps when you first started your business or were looking to expand. But all too often as a business owner, we are working so hard in the business that we fail to work on the business.

When was the last time you took a hard look at the business and yourself and asked "What if"? What if you died or became disabled? What if your key person left the company? Like it or not, you and your business are intertwined and an integrated approach is needed to ensure the financial security of both. Depending on your business situation, what follows are should-be-asked questions:

- 1. What would happen to the business and your family if you or a key employee died?
- 2. If you became disabled, could the business assure payment of business expenses?
- 3. What will happen to the business when you want
- 4. Are you able to recruit, retain, and reward key employees?

5. Do you provide an enhanced executive benefit program for select employees?

6. Do you provide a competitive and cost effective employee benefit program, including group benefits?

7. Are you providing for the long-term care needs for yourself and your employees?

8. Is your business funding your personal financial goals (i.e. retirement, college, etc.)?

9. Have you developed an investment strategy for your retirement plans?

10. Have you developed a plan to preserve your assets for the next generation?

11. Can you ensure credit for a business expansion? 12. Can you protect personally guaranteed corporate

HUMMER

Steinborn Inc.
Realtors has been awarded the Certified Commercial Investment Member (CCIM) designation by the CCIM Institute. The designation was awarded to CEO John Hummer during the Institute's business meetings May 3 in Indianapolis.

Hummer was among the more than 220 commercial real estate professionals who earned the designation in May by passing the Institute's Comprehensive Examination, the final element in the designation process. Of the estimated 125,000 commercial real estate practitioners in North America, only 9,000 hold the CCIM designation.

The CCIM designation is awarded to commercial real estate professionals upon successful completion of a graduatelevel education curriculum and presentation of an in-depth portfolio of qualifying industry experience. Hummer's portfolio included his many hospital/medical development projects throughout his career. The curriculum, consisting of more than 160 classroom hours addresses financial analysis, market analysis, user decision analysis and investment analysis - the cornerstones of commercial investment real estate. CCIMs are recognized experts in commercial real estate brokerage, leasing, asset management, valuation and investment analysis.

The CCIM business network encompasses 1,000 markets throughout North America, Asia, Europe and the Caribbean. CCIM Designees include professionals who work in brokerage, investment and development, the corporate environment, property management, appraisal and related segments of commercial real estate. An additional 8,600 professionals are pursuing the designation as Institute candidates.

The Chicago-based CCIM Institute is an affiliate of the National Association of Realtors[®] and is the governing body of the largest commercial real estate network in the world.

SNM SHRM receives distinguished award

The Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) in Alexandria, Va., has awarded the Superior Merit Chapter designation to the Southern New Mexico Society for Human Resource Management (SNM SHRM) for its scope of work in perpetuating and supporting the mission of the organization in 2006.

The Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) is the world's largest association devoted to human resource management. Representing more than 200,000 individual members, the Society's mission is both to serve the needs of human resource professionals and to advance the human resources profession. Founded in 1948, SHRM currently has more than 550 affiliated chapters within the United States and members in more than 100 countries.

"By achieving Superior Merit designation, your chapter has distinguished itself as an outstanding organization dedicated to serving the networking and professional development needs of your members and to the advancement of the human resources profession," noted Keith J. Greene, SPHR, vice president for Member Relations for SHRM.

SNM SHRM receives a Certificate of Recognition, a specialized banner to display at its meetings and events, and is being recognized in SHRM's publications and at its conferences.

During 2006, SNM SHRM increased membership, increased the average attendance at monthly meetings, increased attendance at the Annual Employment Law Update, awarded scholarships to area students, and recognized accomplishments of individual members.

NMSU to host safe produce workshop

To address potential consumer concerns about security of the U.S. food supply since the contamination of spinach, peanut butter, pet food and other issues, a safe produce workshop will be held May 30 with New Mexico producers, processors and retailers.

"We will have the president of the California Growers and Shippers Association, specialists in the Good Agriculture Procedures program, producers, retailers and researchers collaborating in a round table discussion to identify vulnerabilities and areas of potential contamination in New Mexico," said Billy Dictson, director of New Mexico State University's Office of Biosecurity in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

"The New Mexico produce industry cannot afford to ignore potential market loss that can occur when something happens that causes a loss of consumer confidence in the product," said Jeff Witte, director of Agriculture Biosecurity with the New Mexico Department of Agriculture.

The afternoon session will include a food chain assessment and vulnerability exercise.

This event is part of NMSU's continuing outreach efforts and is sponsored by the Southwest Border Food Safety and Defense Center, NMDA, NMSU's College of Agriculture and Home Economics and NMSU's Cooperative Extension Service.

The free event will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Hotel Encanto de Las Cruces, 705 S. Telshor Blvd., formerly Hilton Las Cruces. The Southwest Border Food Safety and Defense Center is providing a free working lunch.

Recent court decision changes credit card procedures

Confusion over the requirements of a federal law restricting the display of credit- and debit-card digits and expiration dates on customer receipts has resulted in a wave of class-action lawsuits against restaurant companies and commercial retailers.

The New Mexico Restaurant Association (NMRA) is notifying all its members about the issue in hopes of avoiding similar actions in this state.

The Fair and Accurate Credit Transactions Act (FACTA), passed by Congress in 2003 requires businesses to not print more than the last five digits of a credit card number or the expiration date on any receipt given to the cardholder at the point of sale. This provision took full effect in December, 2006 but the clarity of the specific language used caused many businesses to hesitate before making any changes. According to Carol Wight, CEO of the NMRA, the resulting litigation - about 130 lawsuits have been filed nationwide, so far - has resulted in only one decision. A federal district court in California ruled on April 6 that the language was clear and that businesses needed to take two steps: restrict printed card digits to five or fewer and get rid of the expiration date.

"I run a restaurant, not a credit-card processing company, so I was surprised to find out my credit card company knew nothing about this," said Jerry Harrell, general manager of the Double Eagle Restaurant. "I'm pleased the restaurant association was on top of this."

The lawsuits seek damages of between $5,000 and $1,000 per violation of FACTA and every time a card is swiped in a business could be counted as a separate violation for alleged "willful violation of FACTA." This could amount to millions of dollars for high-volume restaurants and retailers.

"We suggest immediate consultation with your attorney and your credit card processor," said NMRA's Carol Wight.

More than 200 attend Lohman branch celebration

The newest FirstLight Federal Credit Union branch was officially opened on Wednesday, May 16. More than 200 attendees enjoyed live mariachi music and food before the ribbon-cutting ceremony marking the opening of the third First-Light location in Las Cruces.

The newest branch, located at Lohman and Foothills, was opened in order to better meet the needs of FirstLight customers in that rapidly growing part of the city. The new location features eight drive-through lanes, a night deposit drop, safe deposit boxes, and a full range of low-to no-fee personal and business banking services.

As the first credit union to open on the city's rapidly growing east Lohman corridor, the new facility has promised to be "not another bank," but a new FirstLight Federal Credit Union. FirstLight President and CEO Karl Murphy was on-hand at the ceremony, and said, "It's exciting to be a part of the growth of Las Cruces and to be able to meet the needs of our members. With all the banks already in the east Lohman corridor, we're proud to give people a choice and help them move beyond banking."

Making a home Downtown for 25 years

Insta-Copy provides digital and conventional printing services

By NATISHA HALES

Insta-Copy Imaging has provided businesses and individuals with a one-stop shop for all office needs - imaging, printing, office supplies and office furniture.

The business was started in 1981 by Parry Lyon, who had come to Las Cruces to attend New Mexico State University and "never left."

"I've been involved in the office-products market most of my working life," Lyon said. "It's what I knew."

He also knew Las Cruces businesses were ready for a convenient place to get all the office products they needed. So he opened the store Downtown on Water Street. In 1982, Lyon's wife Diana and Phil and Sylvia Ewing joined Lyon as managing partners of Insta-Copy Imaging.

"We all pitch in," Phil Ewing said.
It started out small, Lyon said, with just a couple of employees and one printing press.

"It just grew as time went on," he said.

As the company grew, Lyon said the business moved several times before making its current location at 318 N. Downtown Mall its home in 1986, but it has always been located in the Downtown area. Now Insta-Copy Imaging employs 23 people, and businesses and individuals can get brochures, forms, banners, logos, invitations, a complete office furniture setup and more than 23,000 office items. marily a business-to-business company, but individuals come in often because they offer additional products and services, such as passport photos, lamination and FedEx. The store also offers greeting cards, cookbooks and artwork from local artists.

"There's a wide variety of little things that we do," Parry Lyon said. "People would come here and go to the post office, pay their gas and electric bills, and all the banks used to be located here, Diana Lyon said.

As Downtown continues to undergo major changes, the managing partners of Insta-Copy Imaging are ready for the new Downtown, which will include the construction of a new courthouse in a few

"We're all looking forward to the Downtown revitalization," Phil Ewing said.
"They've really planned it (the construction) out pretty good," Parry Lyon added. "I think they're only going to close one street and offer a shuttle service (while constructing the federal courthouse). The city's current administration is real good about working with people if there are any problems. It doesn't upset us that they're building that courthouse.

"Downtown's going to change a lot – it's going to have a lot of nice things."

Business for Insta-Copy Imaging won't be affected by the Downtown revitaliza-tion, they said. Challenges did come, however, from big box office supply stores.
"It's made an impact," Parry Lyon said.

"The hardest thing is the perception that we can't compete just because we're smaller. We provide all the services they do."

"But our main thing is customer service," Diana Lyon added. "We really aim to please the customer."

Because Insta-Copy is a local business, the company carries local charge accounts and has an accounts receivable department to work with businesses. All 23,000 items available from Insta-Copy can be delivered the following day.

"We have our own delivery service," Diana Lyon said. "They can pick it up, or we can deliver it - whatever's convenient to the customer."

"We have a lot of very loyal customers,"

Parry Lyon added.

Some customers even have business meetings at Insta-Copy.

"You'd be surprised how many people say, 'Let's meet at Insta-Copy," Diana Lyon said. "We don't mind."

"They develop their own networking just by coming in," Sylvia Ewing added.

Being a local business also allows for more community involvement.

"I got involved in the community, and I

Sylvia Ewing and Diana Lyon are both members of the Junior League of Las Cruces and Diana Lyon also serves on the board for Las Cruces Downtown. Phil Ewing serves as a board member for the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce, and Insta-Copy Imaging is a member of both chambers of commerce.

"I feel it's important to give back to the community," Sylvia Ewing said. "(Three of us) were born and raised here, so it's important to us."

Growth may continue throughout Las Cruces, directly affecting Insta-Copy Imaging, and the managing partners all agreed that Downtown will remain the company's home.

"It was born and raised Downtown, so we're staying Downtown," Sylvia Ewing

How do you keep your competitive edge?

By trying to give better customer service than the competition at competitive prices.

How are you marketing the store?

Outside sales, newsprint and magazine advertisement and word of mouth.

What do you look for in an employee?

Great attitude, presentable appearance and a willingness to learn our system.

What best prepared you for entrepreneurship?

Being trained and working with my eventual partner Parry Lyon. On-the-job training.

What advice would you give to others starting a business?

Make sure you really have a passion for the type of business you go into. You spend a lot of time at work, you need to enjoy it.

What items do you carry, in brief, and their price ranges?

We provide; printing – brochures, business cards, forms etc. Graphic design – logos, invitations, etc. Copy center – color copies, oversized copies, self-inking stamps, laminating and FedEx service.

Parry and Diana Lyon and Sylvia and Phil Ewing have worked together for almost 25 years as managing partners of Insta-Copy Imaging.

Office supplies - more than 23,000 items delivered next day.

Office furniture - from one chair to an entire office setup.

What is the most important thing about your business that you wish people knew?

Even though we are a small business, we can be competitive with any of our competition, no matter how large or small they are.

What is your opinion of the Las Cruces business climate?

It is stable and growing.

What obstacles do you face or have vou overcome?

We are a small business and have had to change the way we do things to compete with the big chains.

What are your business goals?

To be a part of the business community in Las Cruces for many years to come.

Wine festival brings it all together for Memorial weekend

New Mexico wineries, artists, musicians come to fairgrounds

By JOEL COURTNEY
The Las Cruces Bulletin

Memorial weekend is right around the corner, and the New Mexico Wine Growers Association has a real "corker" of a good time set up to celebrate it in 2007.

Of course, the event is the Southern New Mexico Wine Festival.

The Southern New Mexico Wine Festival will run from Saturday, May 26, through Monday, May 28, from noon to 6 p.m. each day at the Southern New Mexico State Fairgrounds, located 11 miles west of Las Cruces on I-10.

The Southern New Mexico Wine Festival is a draw to everyone, from wine aficionados to those who enjoy the occasional glass.

Festival attendees can sample from wines of 12 New Mexico wineries: Blue Teal, St. Clair, DH Lescombes, Santa Rita, Mademoiselle, Tularosa, Luna Rossa, Ponderosa, Heart of the Desert, Arena Blanca and Wines of the San Juan. Each of the wineries will offer a wide range of options, from the sweeter, lighter chilled wines to the full-bodied, robust dark reds.

"The festival is a great way for new wine drinkers to try and compare several varietals and styles without having to spend money on entire bottles until they're sure they like something," said Dawn Starostka, event coordinator.

Wine also will be available to purchase by the glass, as well as by the bottle or case to take home.

Live music is always a big part of the fun at the Southern New Mexico Wine Festival, and this year is no exception. Along with local favorites Guitar Slim, Billy Townes and Captain Radio, attendees can see nationally known recording artist Jason Allen from Austin. Texas.

known recording artist Jason Allen from Austin, Texas.
Allen is an up-and-coming performer that will put on a great show, performing his No. 1 hits "Lucky Arms" and "Your Heart Turned Left." The festival will also host a special guest appearance by Elvis "interpretation artist" Bud Sanders.

"It's so much fun. People dance in the grass and have a good time," Starostka said.

Tents will be set up throughout the Southern New Mexico Fairgrounds for the Southern New Mexico Wine Festival May 25-28. Twelve New Mexico wineries will have wine available for tasting and sale.

The 2007 event will feature all the favorite attractions of previous years, including Sabroso's University of Wine with regularly scheduled seminars throughout each day to help explain the science of winemaking and the art of pairing food and wine.

Approximately 50 arts and crafts vendors from throughout the Southwest will display and offer fine paintings, stained glass, sculpture, original photography, jewelry, weavings and more. Plus, attendees can sample from a wide range of local foods and gourmet treats

Admission to the festival is $13 per adult, which includes a souvenir wine glass. Attendees under the age of 21 are free and must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian.

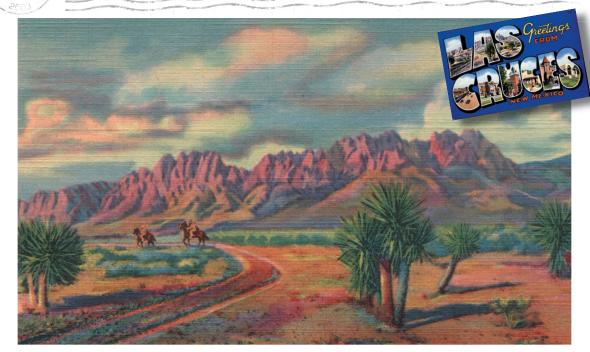

Monday, May 28, is Military Monday, and active duty military receive a $3 discount. Attendees must have picture ID to taste wines.

As always, the use of designated drivers is encouraged.

The New Mexico Wine Growers Association is an association for New Mexico wineries dedicated to promoting locally grown and handcrafted New Mexico wines.

CALL TO ARTISTS

■ LAS ESPERANZAS GATEWAYS & BUS STOPS PROJECT

Las Esperanzas, Inc., in collaboration with the City of Las Cruces, is seeking artists and/or teams of artists to design gateways and bus stops within the Mesquite Historic District/Original Townsite of Las Cruces. These gateways and bus stops will tell the history of the neighborhood through art and should be highly visual original artwork.

Gateways are to be located at the following sites: the southwest corner of the intersection of Campo and Organ streets (this is the corner which was passed by funeral processions from St. Genevieve's to St. Joseph Cemetery), the front section of the vacant lot in the middle of the block on the north side of Amador between San Pedro and Campo, east of the Saenz building (this is the historic site of the sacred dancing ground of the Piro Manso Tiwa) and the vacant lot formed by the intersection of Hadley and Manzanita where the road logs

Six bus stops will be located throughout the district. The shelters will be fabricated prior to applying the artwork. Because the bus stop architecture will be exactly the same for each stop, designs will not be site specific.

Approximately $500,000 is available for all aspects of the design, implementation and installation of all gateways and bus stops. Approximately $40,000 is available for the design component of this project.

This proposal is for the design only. Execution of the design does not fall under this proposal. Gateway proposals will include renderings of architectural features and land-scaping – the entire gateway design – in addition to artwork. Bus stop proposals will include only proposals for artwork that could be accommodated within the existing conceptual designs for adobe bases for bus stops Compensation for the designs will be $10,000 per gateway design and $2,000 per bus stop design.

Each Mesquite Historical District/Original Townsite proposal must contain the following information: 1) A letter of intent, not to exceed two pages, which includes a description of your ideas and the proposed media for the gateway and/or bus stop. 2) Visual representations on 1-3 sheets of paper, not to exceed 8 1/2-inch-by-11-inch each, of your ideas for the gateway and/or bus stop with views that indicate 3-dimensionality and includes design details, scale, colors, texture, etc. 3) A current résumé, no more than 2 pages. 4) Photos, slides or digital images (JPEG format) of 10 samples of previous artwork, labeled, with a key describing the title of the work, the media, dimensions, community partners (if relevant) and year of completion. 5) An approximate budget for the project, including the design fee, materials, etc.

Submissions must be in Las Esperanzas, Inc.'s possession by Wednesday, July 18. Mail designs to: Las Esperanzas, Inc., P.O. Box 16261, Las Cruces, NM 88004. Deliver designs to: Estella Sánchez, 520 E. Court St., Las Cruces, NM 88001.

For more information, contact Jeanne Abkes at 524-3836 or jmabkes@yahoo.com.

■ JURIED EXHIBIT AT TOMBAUGH GALLERY

The "ROCK ON" show will be open to all forms of art inspired by images on stone (petroglyphs and pictographs) found in New Mexico. The show will be the Tombaugh Art Gallery ArtsHop exhibit for September 2007. The show is open to New Mexico residents 18 or older living within a 150-mile radius of Las Cruces. The work must have been completed within the last two years and not have been exhibited in any show or gallery in Las Cruces. All work must be for sale with a 30 percent donation going to the church. Accepted media include: original oils, watercolors, pastels, graphics, chalk or oil pastels, computer assisted art (no giclée reproductions of work in another medium), collage, mixed media, sculpture, clay and jewelry. One piece per artist will be allowed to height, width and weight specific as listed in the prospectus. For an entry form, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: ROCK ON, Unitarian Universalist Church of Las Cruces, 2000 S. Solano Drive, Las Cruces, NM 88001. Completed entries must be received by June 30 and be accompanied by a $10 jury fee. Works will be selected for the show by Silvia Marinus of NMSU who holds degrees in fine arts and archaeology and has visited many rock art sites. Call 522-7281 for more information.

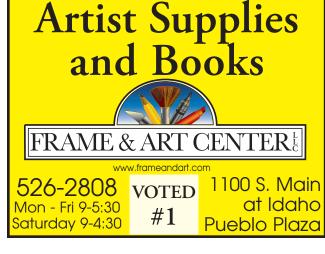

■ NEW HORIZONS SUMMER BAND CAMP

Enrollment forms are now available for the Las Cruces New Horizons eighth annual Summer Band Camp, which will be held at New Mexico State University June 11-16. New Horizons is a concert band composed mostly of seniors aged 50 and up, but open to all adult musicians from beginner through advanced levels. It is part of a network of over 70 bands around the United States. The Las Cruces Band Camp draws instrumentalists from the local New Horizons Band and from around the country. William Clark, retired head of music at New Mexico State University, is the camp director. The day camp, which consists of various sectionals, master classes and band rehearsals, culminates in a free public concert in the NMSU Music Center. Other activities include a potluck dinner and tours of area highlights. Tuition is $110. Participants are encouraged to enroll by May 20, but later enrollment is possible. For more informa-tion, contact Clark at 646-1582 or Beverly Briggs at bjmbriggs@zianet.com.

■ GALLERY OPENINGS

Local contemporary gallery seeks artists to complete its 2007-2008 exhibition schedule. Local artists only need apply. Please send artist resume, statement and 10 slides of your current work along with a self-addressed stamped envelope to Laughing at the Sun, 2346 Aguirre Ct., Las Cruces 88011. For more information please contact Irine Roane or Aline Fister at 522-1890.

Brooks' film unravels the American dream

'Lost in America' shows a modern family falling apart at the seams

The CineMatinee film at the Fountain Theatre for Saturday, May 26, will be "Lost in America" (1985, 90 minutes, rated R). As a special gift for Memorial Day, admission will be free for all veterans.

In the Mesilla Valley Film Society's continuing quest to screen every movie that has been shot at least in part around Las Cruces, they have reached back to the '80s for this topical comedy.

David (Albert Brooks) and Linda (Julie Hagerty) Howard are a California couple who are just about ready to move into a new and larger house.

Although Linda feels in a rut at her job, David eagerly awaits promotion in the advertising agency where he's worked for years.

When David's boss tells him that the position has been given to another man and that he wants him to handle a new account in New York City, the eversteady and responsible David explodes in a verbal torrent of anger and sarcasm. Naturally, he's fired. Eight years of playing the corporate game, and it all comes to zip.

Eager to savor his new freedom, David convinces Linda to quit her job. They liquidate their assets, purchase a Winnebago, and hit the open road. "We'll be like Easy Rider with a nest egg!" he tells his wife.

But the dream is short-lived. Linda, in a rush of adrenalin, blows their $150,000 nest egg at the roulette table while David sleeps in their Las Vegas hotel room. After a clever but unsuccessful attempt to convince the casino manager (Garry K. Marshall) to return their money as a public relations gesture, the Howards drive on to Hoover Dam where David blows his stack and blames Linda for ruining their lives.

An audacious movie, "Lost in America" serves up a seriocomic look at the work ethic of people who measure their worth in terms of financial success while inwardly dreaming about a carefree life of total freedom.

In this well-realized and very relevant movie, Brooks manages to make us ponder the quiet desperation of our working lives and the sharp edges of our fantasies - which if fulfilled could be far more treacherous than we might

Each and every Saturday afternoon, a quality talking picture (with an occasional silent one) will be screened at the Fountain Theatre in Mesilla. The general theme of this ongoing series is life in the West, which could mean the "new" West, the Old West, the historical West or anything in between, including a number of films that have been made in New Mexico.

All screenings begin at 1:30 p.m., unless otherwise noted. Admission is $3 or free for Mesilla Valley Film Society members. The Fountain Theatre is located at 2469 Calle de Guadalupe, one block south of the plaza.

The Americanization of a Dutch director

FILM REVIEW

GRADE

Friday, May 25, at the Fountain Theatre in Mesilla. It richly deserves its "R" rating. It is in Dutch, Hebrew, German and English, runs for 140 minutes and was released in 2006.

By Jeff Berg

THE PLOT - Young attractive Jewish woman is hiding with a Christian family in World War II Holland. A tragedy befalls the family (which, oddly, she does not acknowledge), when an errant bomb destroys the home she is staying in.

Now, on the run, she is helped by a series of benefactors who just happen to show up - unannounced and unexpected. After several narrow escapes, she ends up working with the Dutch underground. She is easily able to make her way around the offices of the SS and Gestapo, since all of the Germans, as the song says, "can't keep their eyes off of you (her)" especially, one of the top Gestapo officers, who she is soon having a passionate affair with. They soon fall in love and are in flagrante at times.

Crosses and double crosses ensue, both within the German command and the Dutch resistance. No one is to be trusted. especially the director of the film.

The war ends, and all of the tides turn. The Canadians enter the scene, and are buffaloed by all that is going on. Our heroine tries to save her Gestapo lover, who momentarily at least, had shown that he might have been human by trying to save some resistance fighters who were to be exe-

THE CAST - Rachel/Ellis is played by Carice van Houten, whose performance is none too convincing. Attractive and fairly smart, one wonders why she doesn't escape through one of the many holes in the plot

Sebastian Koch, last seen in the wonderful "Lives of Others," plays Muntze, and he seems miscast as a stamp collecting Nazi Gestapo officer.

But that may be because he was so convincing in the aforementioned picture where he didn't collect stamps.

SUPPORTING CAST - A variety of interesting actors and actresses fill the ranks, but the most curious is the woman who plays Ronnie. A coquettish redheaded vamp, Ronnie is the Nazi party girl with a secret. Now that I think of it, only one main character in the film is not a double turncoat of some kind.

THE DIRECTOR – Paul Verhoeven directed this film. Early in his career, Verhoeven did some very tailored pictures such as "Soldier of Orange" and "Turkish Delight" in his home land (Netherlands). He came to the United States, where he did a few interesting films, including "Starship Troopers," "Basic Instinct," and "RoboCop." Now, with his return home, it seems like he is trying to do American action movies in Europe but with a European twist. It doesn't work too well, and he would be better off going back to his

THE RESULT – "Black Book" weaves and twists its way through a lot of unnecessary territory. As an old-timey/throwback action film it works OK. It has all of the cinematic platitudes of a World War II flick - nasty Germans, good-hearted civilians, decent battle scenes, dumb guards (Ever see a guard in a movie who didn't end up dead?) and even a bit of historical review, which will certainly appeal to World War II historians. Verhoeven, never one to be afraid of what he has called "real life," adds some spice to the flick with some sexuality and some epic bathroom-related scenes, but somehow the chemistry just isn't quite right.

THE REVIEWER'S SUMMARY – Well, all in all, it is an OK picture. As my wife likes to say when she is not enamored with a film, "It held my attention, and I wanted to see what would happen next." Indeed, that is a good précis. It will hold your attention, and the more than two-hour running time, does breeze right along.

The less your expectations, the better "Black Book" will be.

NSTC holds 'The Bald Soprano' auditions

No Strings Theatre Company will hold auditions for "The Bald Soprano," written by Eugene Ionesco and directed by Bobbi Masters, at the Black Box Theatre, 430 N. Downtown Mall, on Tuesday, May 29, and Wednesday, May 30, from 7 to 10 p.m. Rehearsals begin tentatively at the BBToo Rehearsal

Hall on June 11. Performances are Aug. 3 through 19.
Actors may prepare a monologue or sides will be available for a cold-read. Actors are asked to read the play prior to auditions. A copy of the script is on reserve at the Branigan Library Reference Desk, 200 E. Picacho Ave. Roles available are Mr. and Mrs. Smith – a "very British" couple aged 40-50-ish; Mr. and Mrs. Martin – a "very British" couple aged 20-30-ish; Mary, the maid – youngish and fiery; The Fire Chief – in his prime.

Ionesco describes them as "Characters without character. Puppets. Faceless creatures. Or rather empty frames, which the actors can fill with their own faces, their own shapes, souls, flesh and blood."

The roles of Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. and Mrs.

Martin require minor dialect work.

DAAC readies for Awards Gala

Nautical-themed event salutes art leaders

Each year the Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) honors special individuals who are actively involved in promoting and enhancing the visual, performing and literary arts in the Las Cruces community through leadership, support and advocacy.

Nominations are solicited from the community at large, and the awards are presented at DAAC's Annual Arts Awards Gala. This year, the Annual Arts Awards Gala will be a night of dinner and dancing, held on Friday, June 1, at 6 p.m. and sponsored by the Best Western Mesilla Valley Inn, 901 Avenida de Mesilla.

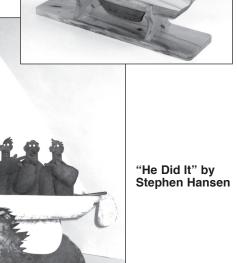

The theme for this year's Arts Awards Gala is "Sail Away with DAAC," and the decorations will reflect a nautical theme. The table centerpieces are one-of-a-kind sailboats by various local artists that will be for sale in a silent auction throughout the evening. The money raised from the silent auction will be put towards DAAC's arts programs in the community.

DAAC will begin with a no-host cocktail hour, continue with a delicious dinner and top off the night with desserts and dancing to live music from the Rio Band. Attendees are encouraged to dress in cocktail or yachting attire. Tickets are $75 per couple or $40 per person, and DAAC requests that reservations be made and paid for by May 31.

To make reservations and for more information, call the DAAC office at 523-6403 or visit www.daarts.org.

"Dream Boat" by Ouida Touchon is one example of the more than 30 boats that will be on display at the Doña Ana Arts Council's "Sail Away with DAAC" 2007 Arts Awards Gala, which will be held Friday, June 1. The boats, which were all made by local artists, will be auctioned to attendees, raising money for DAAC's art programs.

■ 'MURDER ON THE WHITE SANDS' SIGNING

Who murdered Col. Albert Jennings Fountain and his son in January of 1896 as they traveled home from Lincoln by wagon? A jury of the day came to no conclusion and no bodies were ever found. Fountain brought 8-year-old Henry with him when he went to Lincoln to testify before a grand jury. His testimony secured a number of indictments on cattle rustling charges against several prominent local "hard characters." Fountain understood that he was taking his life into his own hands by testifying even before he left his home in Mesilla. But, as his wife said, "No one would be so evil as to kill an eight-yearold child." So, Henry accompanied his father. During their stay in Lincoln, Fountain felt uneasy. On the final day of the court session, he received a crude death threat. But he was not a man who was easily intimidated. Father and son never made it home.

Corey Recko has some ideas about this legendary cold case from the Old West. Recko is the author of "Murder on the White Sands: the Disappearance of Albert and Henry Fountain" to be released on May 30 by the University of North Texas Press. You can hear Recko talk about his work, the first full book-length treatment of this crime, at Thomas Branigan Memorial Library, 200 E. Picacho, on Tuesday June 5, at 7 p.m. After the presentation, he will have copies of the book on hand for purchase and signing. For more information on the program at Branigan Library, contact Mark Pendleton at 528-4001 or mpendleton@las-cruces.org.

■ MESILLA VALLEY WRITERS

Leslie Ullman will be guest speaker at the June 9 meeting of the Mesilla Valley Writers to be held 11:30 a.m. at the Las Cruces Country Club, 2700 N. Main St. Ullman is an award-winning poet who has published three collections of poetry. A recent retiree from UTEP, she currently teaches for the low-residency MFA Program at Vermont College and does freelance editing for creative writers. Her topic will be "How a piece of writing asserts its intentions and establishes authority." The Mesilla Valley Writers normally meet the first Saturday of every month for lunch ($8, including food, tax and tip – or order from the menu), which is followed by a guest speaker and short business meeting. Annual dues are $10. All are welcome. For additional program information call Cheryl Fallstead at 521-3838; for general information, call Vesta Siemers at 532-5897.

Tile art piece by Virginia Maria Romero, who received help for her business, Arte de Romero, from the New Mexico State Arrowhead Center and College of Busine

The business of selling art

NMSU business students help make art profitable

Virginia Maria Romero is a successful, award-winning artist, but now she is taking her passion even further thanks to the work of New Mexico State University business students.

Romero approached NMSU for help with a marketing plan and business strategy for Arte de Romero, a young company she and a partner created. The company markets ceramic tiles with images reproduced from Romero's original artwork for gifts and murals. The project was given to Arrowhead Center, which specializes in helping small businesses get off the ground. This was Arrowhead's first time helping an artist.

"I was able to ask questions and get answers I wouldn't have been able to get anyplace else," said Romero of her work with Arrowhead Center. "Their help was more than anything I ever anticipated."

Romero has won recognition for her artwork. Her gift tiles are sold in a variety of locations across New Mexico, but she wanted to expand to more shops in more locations around the country. She also wanted to market her tiles for murals in museums, universities or other public places, giving large-scale visibility to her work.

Arrowhead assigned Romero's project to NMSU's Business Administration 502 class, the capstone course for the College of Business's MBA program. The student team of Jaren Broadbent, Richard Hernandez and Renee Huber-Landrum met with Romero once a week throughout the semester while conducting market analysis and developing the best plan for her.

Romero asked for marketing strategies to promote and distribute her tiles to a larger client base. She also requested suggestions for what her management team should look like and any other recommendations the Arrowhead Center could provide.

The students studied all aspects of the company

The students studied all aspects of the company including policies and procedures, legal issues, sales, income, cost reduction and marketing. The final draft of their plan for Romero was presented for their BA 502 final exam.

"With the qualities of products Arte de Romero produces, as well as Mrs. Romero's ability to form relationships with people, we believe Arte de Romero has a lot of potential," said Hernandez.

Romero said she is already using some of their recommendations, including charting sales and other figures, to monitor growth. She said she is excited about implementing more of their suggestions.

Linda Montoya

CATHERINE MARTINEZ

Linda Montoya follows in footsteps of the masters

By JOEL COURTNEY
The Las Cruces Bulletin

Linda Montoya not only takes amazing pictures of people, she creates an image so full of life one expects them to move.

Born and raised in the Santa Fe area, Montoya said she came from a very art-oriented family. Her father was a santero and created images of the saints on carved wood. Montoya's grandmother used a Kodak box camera since the 1920s to photograph their family.

While working in Boston, Mass., as a medical secretary, Montoya said she found herself becoming bored and wanted something more for herself, outside of work.

Trying to find an outlet, she took classes in sculpture, ceramics and photography, but found that photography truly held her

"I liked going into the darkroom and seeing what develops in the dark," she

After moving back to Santa Fe in the '80s, Montoya was able to pursue her new interest on a professional level. A friend of the family offered her a job at a custom photography lab and gallery, DeColores. Although she had no experience in the lab, the owner was willing to train Through her position at DeColores, Montoya was able to meet some of the most talented photographers in the Santa Fe area. Not only did these photographers critique her work, but they also shared with Montoya the techniques they used to achieve their work.

After two to three years of working at the DeColores gallery, Montoya decided to show some of her work as fine art.

During her time in Santa Fe, she became friends with famous photographers such as Willard Van Dyke, R.C. Gorman and Yoseph Karsh (through an introduction from Gorman).

Although she enjoys taking some land-scape photographs, Montoya admitted that she always prefers taking portraits.

"I'm always drawn to capture the soul of a person through photographs," she said. "I like showing a passionate and loving side of people."

Montoya moved to Las Cruces in 1998, where she works as a full-time photographer with her own business, Linda Montoya Images. Although she still does fine art photography, Montoya also works as a wedding and commercial photographer.

"I always liked Mesilla and the surrounding areas," she said. "I guess I was looking for some new images, and I like being close to Mexico. I love taking pictures there."

She has worked as a full-time photographer for many years now, but the industry has changed dramatically since

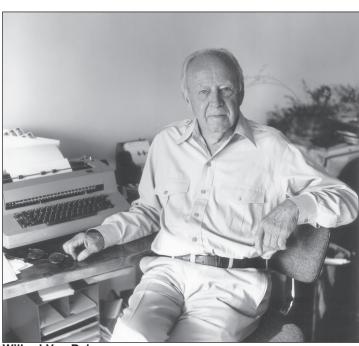

"There's always something to learn in your field. It's always changing," she said. The advance of technology and techniques is a constant issue in the world of photography, and Montoya said she still takes classes to keep up to date. When she began taking photographs 26 years ago, she worked with a 35 mm Pentax camera and black and white film. Now Montoya works with a Nikon digital camera, but still gets some requests to use the black

Montoya's work is part of permanent collections at the Millicent Rogers Museum in Taos, the First National Bank of Albuquerque and the Capitol Rotunda in Santa Fe, as well as several art publica-

CONTINUING THIS WEEK

■ ELEMENTARY SCHOOL ART

Artwork by some very talented Las Cruces Public Schools elementary school students will hang through September in the lobby gallery of the LCPS Administration Building, 505 S. Main St., Loretto Towne Center, Suite 249. Media includes crayon, pen and ink, felt, watercolor, charcoal and paper. For more information, contact LCPS Visual and Performing Arts Coordinator Bonnie Hosie at 527-5888 or bhosie@lcps.k12.nm.us.

■ LAS CRUCES MUSEUM OF ART

"From the Ground Up XXIII" Juried Regional Ceramics Exhibition will be on display at the Las Cruces Museum of Art through Saturday, June 30. The annual event is sponsored by the Las Cruces Potters' Guild and the Museum of Art. Ceramic works by 25 artists representing five states in the Rocky Mountain region make up the exhibition. They range from utilitarian ceramics to ceramic sculpture and installation works. Included are pieces by Liz Fisher, Klyf Brown, Suzanne Kane and Joe Krasean of Las Cruces; Ben Brooks and Geneva Bailey of Roswell; Kari Rives, Heidi Loewen and Judy Nelson Moore of Santa Fe; Lia Rosen of Albuquerque; Saundra Reynolds of Clovis; Mary Holmes of Belen; and George Rodriguez of El Paso. The exhibit also includes works by artists from other areas of Texas, Colorado, Idaho and Utah. The Las Cruces Museum of Art is located at 491 N. Downtown Mall. Exhibits are accessible and free of charge. For information, call 541-2137 or visit www.museums.las-cruces.org.

■ NMSU MUSEUM

Photographs detailing the history of the Chiricahua Apache from 1872 to the present will be housed in the New Mexico State University Museum lobby through Aug. 28. The historical photographs feature Cochise and Naiche family descendants. The museum is free and open to the public. Hours of operation are noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. For more information, call 646-3739.

■ FARM & RANCH HERITAGE MUSEUM

Three legendary saddle makers are featured in the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum's ongoing exhibit, "Legends in Leather: Saddle Makers of the Southwest." For the next year, the historic saddle makers section of the extensive exhibit features three men who played a big part in the booming saddle-making industry in Pueblo, Colo., during the late-1800s and early-1900s. The Museum is displaying the leather work of Samuel Caldwell Gallup, Robert Thompson Frazier and Tom Flynn. While several saddle makers operated shops in Pueblo during this time, Gallup, Frazier and Flynn are most associated and well-known with this community and the Pueblo Saddle. The three men were key figures in the origination and manufacture of the Pueblo Saddle style. All three saddleries made virtually identical saddles, differing only in the custom leather carving decoration and the reputation behind the name stamped on the cantle. All three companies reached their business peak in the 1910s and saw a decline in the 1920s. Ultimately, only Frazier's company survived the Great Depression. The Museum is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and $2 for children ages 5 to 17. For more information, call 522-4100.

■ PATIO ART GALLERY

"Water in the Desert," a Patio Art Gallery Invitational exhibit featuring established and emerging artists, runs through June 16. Carolyn Bunch, Winfrey Hearst, Annetta J. Hoover, Judy Licht, Joyce T. Macrorie, Julie Ford Oliver and Dan Tapper of the Patio Art Gallery, with guest artists Mary Beatle, Jo Ledbetter, Bonnie Mandoe, Lynn Leland, Joan Shepack, Lucia Wilcox and Daphne Wirthlin, will present this timely show. The artists are from Las Cruces and El Paso. "The use of water in the desert often takes on political and social meaning," said Carolyn Bunch, gallery co-owner, "but through art, we can also consider the historic and artistic influences of water. The Patio Art Gallery, which does have a fountain, reflects the beauty and value of water in its show, "Water in the Desert." The Patio Art Gallery is located at the corner of University Avenue and El Paseo Road. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays with art classes offered on Sundays and Mondays. For more information, call 541-7401.

■ THETHEATREGALLERY

Inspired by pictographs and scenic landscapes throughout the Southwest, especially in New Mexico, Margaret Bernstein tries to capture the joy of a moment in paint and color. She loves to work with theatre because of its tradition and spontaneity both relevant to a painter's perspective. This exhibit, "Under Glass," includes new and recent work in watercolor and acrylic media of landscapes, flowers and abstracts. Thetheatregallery is located in the Black Box Theatre, 430 N. Downtown Mall. For more information, call 523-1223.

■ BLACK GOLD FROM THE SUN

Las Cruces artist Seth Frazier will be the featured artist in The Sunspot Gallery at Black Gold from the Sun. Frazier presents his new series "Hymns." Frazier, son of ceramicist Kathryn Story, has primarily focused on interior design, decorating and painting in the past, but has recently branched off into new media such as sculpture and mixed media/collage. These new works focus on current social issues translated through traditional church hymns. Black Gold from the Sun is located in the Old Tortilla Factory at 1910 Calle De Parian in Mesilla. For more information, call 541-9693.

■ NMSU MUSEUM GALLERY

New Mexico State University has opened two new exhibits. "The Pasternack Collection of African Art" shows selected art pieces collected by the late Steve Pasternack, who taught at NMSU for 21 years in the Journalism and Mass Communications Department, serving as head of the department from 1994 to 2002. The pieces include masks, sculptures, baskets and various other representations of African life and culture. The second exhibit, "Africa: From Eritrea with Love" is a collection of 13 paintings by Betty LaDuke, an Ashland, Ore., author and artist who traveled to East Africa numerous times capturing the essence of traditional aspects of African lives in modern times. LaDuke's vibrant and colorful paintings are based on sketches made during six journeys to Eritrea, a small nation on the Horn of Africa, from 1994 to 1998. The University Museum Gallery, located in Kent Hall at the corner of University Avenue and Solano Drive is open from noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Admission is free. For more information, call the University Museum at 646-3739.

■ DRAWINGS BY MARIA CRISTINA

Local artist Maria Cristina brings comic relief to the public to celebrate For the Love of Art Month. "Unlikely Valentines" and "Alternate Universe" are the dual themes of her special collection of drawings to be shown in her studio in the Old Tortilla Factory. "Unlikely Valentines," a spoof on contemporary American culture, shows such pairings as Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama and other interesting couples. Based on Grant Wood's classic "American Gothic," each is a limited edition of 10 and is signed and numbered by the artist. "Alternate Universe" stretches our usual perceptions of our universe. It features an exotic array of hand-painted portraits of alien beings. Also included in the studio's display are some of Maria Cristina's new drawings in Microsoft Word from her "Day of the Dead" series, such as King Tut and Lynyrd Skynyrd, as well as classics from her "Frog" and other series. The artist's studio hours are Friday and Sunday, noon to 5 p.m., or by appointment. For information, please call 521-4694.

■ FUNKY KARMA

Taos artist Dennis Lujan has a new art show at Funky Karma, 207-A Avenida de Mesilla. Lujan will introduce those not familiar with his work by exhibiting new and recent Machinas. Lujan will also introduce his new clothing line "Savage Hobajiven" to the college set. Jeans reworked, distressed, patched and painted tribal designs reinspired from the artist's early years as a fashion designer. For more information, call 635-2275. Funky Karma is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

■ FARM & RANCH HERITAGE MUSEUM

A new temporary exhibit at the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum explores the historical use of the hat by real cowboys in comparison with the hats of movie cowboys and fashionable gentlemen. "Cowboys and Hatters: Bond Street, Sage Brush and the Silver Screen," is a traveling exhibition curated by Debbie Henderson, costume designer for the Wittenberg University Department of Theater and Dance in Wittenberg, Ohio. The exhibit will be in the museum's north corridor through June 26. The exhibit features more than 50 hats with a wide range of styles that begin in the mid-1800s and continue through the 20th century. Also included are photographs, vintage hat boxes and hat-making artifacts. The Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum is located at 4100 Dripping Springs Road and is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and $2 for children ages 5 to 17. For more information, please call 522-4100.

■ STUDIO 309

Las Cruces' newest gallery Studio 309, is featuring three diverse artists: photography by Ken Stinnet, unique one-of-a-kind jewelry by Lavernne Stinnet and paintings by Ruth A. Drayer. Drayer's luminous paintings are layers of colorful acrylics applied to hand textured canvas. Regular hours of Studio 309 are Thursday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and by appointment. For more information, call 649-3781.

GALLERIES & OPENINGS

••LAST CHANCE••

■ BRANIGAN CULTURAL CENTER

The works of 39 local artists will be judged by two signature members of the New Mexico Watercolor Society in Albuquerque at the fifth annual NMWS/Southern Chapter Spring Show. This, the Southern Chapter's first judged show, will run through the Memorial Day weekend. The Branigan Cultural Center will also host the Las Cruces Arts Association. The Las Cruces Arts Association, formerly known as the Las Cruces Arts and Crafts Association, has been exhibiting at the Branigan Cultural Center and formerly the Branigan Library, since 1971. The 45th annual mixed-media art exhibit will feature works by more than 25 members. The exhibit will be open during normal Cultural Center hours, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. View these wonderful paintings, and vote for your own favorite. For more information, call 526-5374.

■ GLENN CUTTER GALLERY

Glenn Cutter Jewelers and Gallery, 2640 El Paseo Road, will host a show for Barbara Howe. Howe's show is entitled "A World Traveler's Expressions of Beauty." Her travels have taken her throughout the world to such places as France, Italy, Spain, England, Greece and Thailand, and the influences of these countries are very evident in her work. She will include paintings from at least 10 countries in her show. For more information, call 524-4300.

■ RIO GRANDE THEATRE

The gourd art and masks of Kathe Stark will be featured at the El Paso Electric Visual Arts Gallery and the Carolene de Mesilla Information Center and Gallery located in the historic Rio Grande Theatre. Stark utilizes locally grown gourds to make adorned masks, sculpture and containers or ollas, all of which are created by layering various dyes, inks and paints on top of burned designs. Brightly colored feathers, beads, fur and other elements are then added to complete the design. The galleries at the Rio Grande Theatre are open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon. Gallery volunteers are needed; contact the Doña Ana Arts Council office at 523-6403 for more information.

"Chacoan Treasures," by Phil Yost at Branigan

■ ALEGRE GALLERY

The featured artist for May at Alegre Gallery, 1701 Calle de Mercado in Mesilla, is photographer Linda Montoya. Her show, entitled "Intimate Portraits of Famous People," features notable figures such as Carlos Santana. Other portaits in the exhibit will be of R.C. Gorman, Lola Beltran and local celebrity Irene Oliver Lewis. The gallery's regular hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. For more information, call 523-2311.

■ TOMBAUGH GALLERY

A solo exhibition of original digital prints by Las Cruces artist Kurt Van Wagner will be featured in May at the Tombaugh Gallery of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Las Cruces, 2000 S. Solano Drive. The exhibit, entitled "Timeless: A Journey Within," will run through May 30. Each piece is a limited edition print using archival Epson inks and paper, which Epson states will last and not fade for over 75 years if mounted underneath glass. The canvas giclée prints will last for over 50 years. His recent works with the human figure are his interpretation of man's purpose and meaningful existence in our world; The beauty that is in each and every one of us starting with our physical presence to our souls. "In order for the journey to be within and realistic, I have created these artworks in a very personal way. Both my wife Jenni and I are the uninhibited models for all the works displayed," Van Wagner explains. His digital art merges figure, place and thought to create unique images that explore the beauty of tasteful nudes and sacred landscapes. They reflect a divinity attained through a life journey - a path where everything has purpose, happiness and peace. Regular gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. For more information, call 522-7281.

■ LAUGHING AT THE SUN

Laughing at the Sun is pleased to announce that Teresa Fernandez is the gallery's Artist of the Month for May. Fernandez is a teacher as well as an artist and teaches Art History and Art Appreciation. But it is her art that is her first love and one glance will tell the viewer this is where her heart lies. Fernandez will be exhibiting her small story boxes as well as a number of her powerful paintings. Her story boxes are a recent addition to her work. Using many layers of vibrant color and diverse textures she creates fascinating shapes to produce narratives. Each one presents its story to the viewer on a personal level. Teresa has exhibited in El Paso and Juarez and had a painting included in the Branigan Cultural Center's Consulate's Exhibit. Laughing at the Sun is located in the Old Tortilla Factory, 1910 Calle de Parian in Mesilla. The exhibit will continue through May 31.

Burger Time tourney grows

JOHN KEITH Sports

Editor

Fourteen years ago, it was simply called the Burger Time Golf tournament.

You could say it in one breath. Squeeze the title into headlines.

Kevin McGrath, the tournament director who operates five Burger Time franchises on the side, apparently owns good lungs. He keeps expanding the name of this event annually.

Not long from now - July 12-13-14 to be exact – the 14th annual It's Burger Time Sandra B. McGrath High School Golf Tournament tees off at the Las Cruces Country Club.

The current one. If the club's new 18-hole course east of the city is completed by the summer of 2008, McGrath will move this golfing atrocity there.

He promises there will be a 19th hole at the new facility, thereby relieving tons of anxiety from many of us who enjoy the social experience rather than

You know the tournament is big when it raised $195,000 for football at Mayfield, Oñate and Las Cruces High School last year. More than 600 golfers hacked their way through 18

And some guy named Richardson (I didn't get his first name) drove all the way from Santa Fe to present the $195,000 check to the schools. That's a long drive, which makes me wonder if maybe he's running for office.

McGrath's tournament is expanding its purpose this year. Not only will high school football benefit, but other prep sports as well.

Last year, the Burger Time tournament gave each school's football program $15,000 plus an additional $7,000 for the raffle tickets team members sold.

Although McGrath plans to spread the wealth this year, athletic programs at all three schools will receive a nice

McGrath, forever focused on the search for dollars, says there are still openings for two 18-hole rounds all day Thursday, July 12, and morning 18-hole rounds on the mornings Friday and Saturday.

Trojans, SonBlazers lose baseball championships

By Craig Massey

Three baseball teams from Las Cruces played their best ball of the season last weekend at the state tournament. And while Mayfield, Mesilla Valley Christian Schools, and Oñate fell short of winning state championships, the three squads created quite a bit of excitement in Albuquerque.

Mayfield, which won the District 3-5A title, defeated Rio Grande and Eldorado in the state tournament, before falling to Rio Rancho in the championship game, 4-1, on Saturday night at Isotopes Park.

The Trojans were in their first season under new head coach Miguel Gomez and finished the year with 23 wins. Gomez's squad got better as the season progressed.

"I think we picked it up right after the New Mexico Invitational," he said. "We only had one loss in district and that was to Oñate, and then the other loss was in the state championship

"The kids just picked it up and started focusing on what we wanted to do in district and what we wanted to do at state," he said. "Tm most proud of our kids and our coaching staff. Our coaching staff was new and they were able to get the kids to buy into our philosophy. The kids did everything we asked them to do. They played hard and ended up having a successful after defeating four-time state champion La Cueva in the first round and top-seeded Valley in the quarterfinals.

Although Jim Bradley is officially retired as Mayfield's head football coach, he still serves on the Trojans' staff coaching the quarterbacks and running the scout team.

Jim Bradley: semi- coach, semi- retired

Jim Bradley retired? Get serious.

Granted, that was the plan. But this cantankerous 74-yearold football coach is far from predictable.

You don't wave goodbye to eight state championships and seven second-place finishes overnight. Football is still Bradley's passion, outranked by family only.

There's also Flipper, the 10year old cocker spaniel mix and the household's senior resident. "She's 87-9, two state championships and three runners-up," Bradley said, referring to his coaching record at Mayfield since Flipper's arrival.

When Bradley's Trojans lost the state championship game to Las Cruces High in 2002 Flipper was on thin ice. "She probably didn't know it, but the family wanted me to get rid of her," Bradley said.

"I got 11 pet turtles. Flipper controls 'em. Without her, the house would be a mess."

Although he officially retired as the Trojans' head coach more than a year ago, Bradley stays involved in Mayfield's program.

"He coaches the quarterbacks and runs the scout team," says son Gary Bradley who succeeded his father as the Trojans' commander in chief.

"Did he say that?" Jim Bradley asked. "Well, at least I have a title. You gotta have a title."

Bradley is semi-working on retirement. "I went fishing last week," he said. "I wasn't too successful. If you're not successful it

"I play golf. I like golf.

"I just try to stay busy. You got to stay busy. Today, I gotta go home and mow the lawn. Not long ago, I tried to fix the air conditioner at home and screwed it up. Had to call a serviceman for help Bradley, a National Hall of Fame coach who won state titles at both Roswell and Mayfield high schools, owns a motor home. "I like it," he said. "Yeah, we do some traveling.'

Despite the high cost of gasoline, he adds. "Boy it goes up fast," Bradley said. "I remember

LCPS athletics director pleased with results

By Craig Massey

It was Friday, May 18, and Ernie Viramontes was headed for Albuquerque to watch some baseball.

The Las Cruces Public Schools athletics director wanted to be there in person to see if Mayfield and Oñate could win their semifinal games and reach the Class 5A state baseball championship game.

He also wanted to see if LCPS could add to its impressive tally of state champions for the 2006-07 school year.

Rio Rancho may have defeated Oñate in the semifinals and Mayfield in the finals, but the all-around successes of the LCPS athletes this year lifted Viramontes' spirits.

"It was another great year," he said. "It seems like in every sport, our schools always do well.

"We had good representation at the state tournaments and all three of our schools did a great job.

Mayfield had an outstanding year with two team titles and three individuals earning state championships. The Trojan football team completed its second straight undefeated season to win another state championship, and the MHS girls basketball team capped off a dominating season

The Mayfield tennis doubles team of freshman Austin Hooker and junior Glenn Turbyfill won the state title earlier this month. Back in February, MHS wrestler Jimmy Nevarez III won the state championship in the 145-pound weight class.

Las Cruces High's state champ this year was wrestler Joaquin Marquez in the 103-pound class. Oñate got a state title from pole vaulter Natalie Wells.

Several teams and athletes fell just short of winning it all. The LCHS volleyball took second at state, as did the LCHS girls soccer team and the Mayfield baseball team.

Viramontes was not only pleased with the performances on the playing field this year, but also the students' work in the classroom.

"Academics come first," he said. "The kids do a great job in the classroom and the grade-point averages are good." Viramontes also emphasized the school district's dedication to sportsmanship. LCPS is implementing a new program called "Pursuing Victory with Honor."

"It teaches morals and ethics in athletics," he said. "The New Mexico Activities Association came down and presented a workshop. It's something we'll do more with next year.

Head coach Kathy Rodolph announced that she has signed Brittany Clifton to a National Letter of Intent to attend New Mexico State and play softball for the Clifton is a utility player from Semi Valley, Calif. and a 2007 graduate of Royal High School where she helped the Highlanders to three straight Marmonte League Championships.

"Brittany has great drive and passion for the game," Rodolph said. "These are qualities we need as our program continues to move towards a WAC Championship."

Clifton also played with the Corona Angels and most recently the So Cal Pumas Junior Olympic Gold Team. She earned All-Maramonte League honors her sophomore and junior seasons and helped the Highlanders to the CIF-SS Division I Championships as a sophomore and to the quarterfinals her freshman year.

Earning numerous all-tournament awards in high school, she was also named the Royal High School Offensive and Defensive Player of the Year twice. She led the team in RBI (22) and home runs (3) her junior season and has hit above .300 for her entire career. She has proven to be an excellent defender, as her sophomore year she had a .992 fielding percentage and a .983 mark as a junior. Also as a sophomore, she led the team with seven stolen bases.

Rodolph has now added five players to the 2008 Aggie softball team. Clifton joins Kristen Marris, Ashley Maroda and Kandis Jones, all who signed National Letters of Intent. The final addition is transfer Daniel Fagan, who comes over from Temple University after she made the Atlantic-10 All-Freshman Team in 2006.

Double your weapons

How to add 14 'clubs' to your mental bag

As I was going through some files recently I discovered notes from a golf program I had done several years ago. In the late 1990s I had been invited

In the late 1990s I had been invited by the men's golf coach at Arizona State University to present a full-day clinic on the mental game. Knowing there is an abundance of sport psychologists in Arizona, I was pleased to hear the ASU coach, Randy Lein, say, "Yeah, but you're one of the only shrinks I've seen who actually knows how to play."

As some know, Arizona State is where

As some know, Arizona State is where Phil Mickelson and several other bigname PGA Tour stars played their college golf. What I presented to the ASU golfers, and later to the NMSU players, consisted of a package of 14 mental golf skills that we all need to master if we are to reach our full golfing potential. Learning these fourteen mental competencies for golf, I believe, is like having 14 more clubs in your bag. Here they are.

1. Positive Attitude. Think positive, not negative. Stay upbeat.

2. Adaptive Thinking. Golf demands that we adapt quickly to change.

we adapt quickly to change.
3. Concentration. This is the "take dead aim" principle, meaning full focus.

4. Mental Toughness. Winners show courage and learn not to choke.

5. Belief in Yourself. You must expect to succeed and trust what you do.

6. Self-control. Always be in control of your emotions and your thoughts.7. Imagination and Creativity. Sometimes golf requires artistry.

8. Strong Work Ethic. Practice, practice, practice. Like piano.

9. Appropriate Priorities. Golf resembles life; but it isn't life.

10. Perseverance. Rewards often come to those who don't give up.

11. Relaxation. Tension is the enemy of the golf swing and performance.

12. Visualization. Seeing the target and picturing the result unleash power.

13. Patience. Success doesn't happen overnight. Neither do birdies.

14. Playfulness. This is a game. Let's play it as a game, not some drudgery.

With 14 powerful extra "clubs" in your bag – the 14 mental golf skills – how can you lose? Golf is an endeavor that takes far more than just physical talent deftness. If we want to be the very best we can be on the golf course, under competitive conditions, we have to have a complete package of swing and shot-making techniques accompanied by mental and emotional techniques emotional techniques.

Two of the college golfers I worked with that day at ASU were Jeff Quinney and Paul Casey. These are two splendid examples of competitors who took advantage of the ability and experience they demonstrated as younger players. I've seen plenty of exceedingly talented college golfers who somehow never are able to make it as tour professionals. Quinney, you may recall, won the U.S. Amateur in 2000. On the PGA Tour this year he has won over $1 million and is ranked 23rd in the world. Paul Casey, the outspoken Englishman who was a member of the winning European Ryder Cup teams in 2004 and 2006, is currently ranked 14th in the world. Both of these fine golfers have since hired their own coaches and counselors, but there can be no doubt that they exemplify how well the 14 mental skills serve someone in the heat of competition.

Putting the mental skills to work takes effort, self-monitoring and practice. When you spend hours on the practice green hitting thousands of putts, you become a better putter; unless you're practicing the wrong technique. The matter of how to practice skills that will make you mentally stronger is certainly not simple, either. It has to involve your teacher or coach. Coach Lein at Arizona State gives each of his players a creditcard size reminder of how "attitude" really works. One of the statements on the card reads, "Attitudes are more important than facts." Quinney and Casey carried the cards in their pockets. Probably still do.

Aggies sign three new women's golf recruits

Bowerman-Ritchie ranked No. 1 in Canadian Junior Golf Association

Paul Brilliant, the New Mexico State women's golf coach, recently announced the signing of three new recruits.

On the top of the list is Buz Bowerman-Ritchie from Oshawa, Ontario, Canada. Bowerman-Ritchie ranked No. 1 in the Canadian Junior Golf Association in national merit points after three victories and eight top-10 finishes.

Bowerman-Ritchie played in the 2006 Callaway Junior World Championships at Torrey Pines and in the Coaches Tournament and Academy in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where she was the runner-up. Bowerman-Ritchie was a member of Team Canada in 2006 for the CJGA Euro Cup where she helped the team win all six of their matches.

On the national level in Canada, Bowerman-Ritchie placed fourth at the Nike Golf Junior Championship and second at the CJGA Mizuno Eastern Canadian Championship. She also had a sixth place finish at the Mizuno CJGA National Golf Championship at National Pines.

În 2005, Bowerman-Ritchie placed second at the CJGA Worlds Qualifier, tied for second at the Ontario Junior Masters College Preview, first at the CJGA Canada Cup Qualifier and first at the CJGA Nike Junior Series, along with many other five other top-10 finishes.

Joining Bowerman-Ritchie on the 2007-06 squad will be Apinporn "Mint" Swaschuto from Bangkok, Thailand. Although Swaschuto is originally from Thailand, she went to high school at St. Hilda's High School in Gold Coast, Australia, where she was captain of the golf team from 2003-05. During the 2003 season her team took first in the regional's, while they took first in regional's and state in 2004 and 2005.

regional's and state in 2004 and 2005.

Suteera "Pang" Chanachai, the third player who signed with NMSU was actually supposed to play in the 2006-07 season but couldn't gain eligibility because of paperwork that failed to process from Thailand.

Chanachai attended Demonstration Yamhumghang University in Bangkok and played golf as an amateur. In 2005, she won two tournaments and finished in the top-five in another. Chanachai led her Thai team to wins at the 30th Demonstration Sport in Khom Pang Sand and the 23rd Sea Games in the Philippines in 2004, while also winning the individual medal at both tournaments. She also competed at both the 2005 Philippines Ladies Open, where she finished fifth, and at the 2005 Junior World Championships in San Diego with an eighth place showing. In 2004, Chanachai won the individual title at the Mercedes Junior Championship and finished 12th at the 2004 Junior World Championship.

Roszkos on NFCA All-Region team

Aggie catcher sets three school records, ties another

Junior catcher Ashley Roszkos was selected to the NFCA (National Fastpitch Coaches Association) West Region

Association) We Second Team on Wednesday, May 16. Roszkos becomes the third player in Aggie softball history to be named to the all-region team.

The honor comes for Roszkos after she had a record setting year for NMSU, as she broke three major offensive records and tied another.

The 43 runs she drove in this season set a new single-season record, and it gave her 109 for her career, which broke the all-time career mark.

The Benicia, Calif., native also set the single-season total base record with the 110 she had this spring, and her 17 doubles tied the most by an Aggie in a sole season. She now has 39 career doubles, one behind Christine Stephens's record of 40.

The other two Aggies to receive the all-region honors were Stephanie Bonillas and Danny Dunn, both in 1997.

Roszkos batted .351 on the year with 61 hits and scored 33 runs while earning Second Team All-WAC honors. She ranked second in the conference for doubles, fourth in slugging percentage and total bases, fifth in RBI and struck out only 14 times in 174 at-bats (just 8 percent of the time). NMSU's talented catcher gets it done defensively as well. Her .986 career fielding percentage is the fifth best in Aggie softball history.

The New Mexico State coaching staff has high expectations for Roszkos next season in her senior year where the Aggies look to improve on their 31-win tally from 2007, the fourth best in school history.

Ags sign three for women's tennis

Three ladies join a talented group of returnees

New Mexico State tennis coach Don Ball has signed Bianca Discordia, Sophia Marks and Manon Sylvain to National Letters of Intent to play for the Aggies next season.

Discordia and Sylvain will both be entering their freshman seasons, while Marks is a junior that comes to NMSU from the University of Lincoln in the United Kingdom.

Discordia comes from Zagreb, Croatia and will join senior Zeljka Juricek from the women's team and junior Roman Stoisavljevic on the men's team who are both from Zagreb. She graduates from Sportska Gimnazija High School this month and her national team was ranked No. 2 in the nation. She has played in 20 ETA and ITF tournaments, three of which were in the United States (Prince Cup, Eddie Herr and the Orange Bowl).

Sylvain arrives from Valence, France where she took part in many international tournaments, participated at the individual French Championships three times and won several league titles. She was selected to represent France at the Nike Tour Tournament in Paris, France, where she made it all the way to the semifinals.

In the International Tournament of Passy, she made it all the way to the finals and she was a member of a tennis academy in Nimes, France for five years. Sylvain plays a very aggressive style, has a big serve and forehand, which works well with the courts at the NMSU Tennis Center according to Ball.

"Her level of play in France is pretty good and we've had pretty good results with players from there," Ball said. "On paper she is better than Isabelle Mignot, who is the best player we've had since I've been here."

Marks is from Grantham in the United Kingdom and attended the University of Lincoln, where she did not play tennis. She had a high junior ITF ranking of 400 and competed in grade one in ITF's. In her junior playing days, she proved to be a top player as she reached the quarterfinals of the UK Under 18 Nationals three times and was runner-up in the under 15 and under 16 Clay Court Championships.

She was ranked in the Top 10 Under 18 level in GB in 2004 and won the Fred Perry National Tournament at the Under 16 level and twice won the Under 18 level. Although she did not compete at the University of Lincoln, she has been successful in the ETA, ITF and British Tour events and has completed a number of WTA events. She was a top Division I prospect.

The Aggies finished the year with a 10-14 record and return a talented group of players in addition to the new signees.

NMSU

NMSU's Gustave Diep is the school's first freshman tennis player to be named Mountain Region Rookie of the Year by the Intercollegiate Tennis Association.

Aggie freshman wins tennis awardDiep named regional Rookie of the Year

New Mexico State freshman Gustave Diep was named the Mountain Region Tennis Rookie Player of the Year by the ITA (Intercollegiate Tennis Association).

Diep becomes the first Aggie freshman to receive such an honor and it comes after he was named to the Second Team All-WAC. The Paris, France, native now becomes eligible for the national rookie of the year award, which was announced on May 22 in Athens Co.

"We knew coming in that we had an outstanding recruit and we expect big things from him in the future," coach Don Ball said. "The fact that he played No. 1 for us and was an all-conference selection to go along with this honor solidifies his status as a legitimate top player."

board. He went 21-10 overall in 2006-2007, which tied sophomore Roman Stoisavljevic (Zagreb, Croatia) for the team lead.

In doubles action, Diep finished with an overall mark of 13-11 with three different teammates. In the Aggies first round loss to Nevada at the 2007 WAC Championships, he and classmate Alejandro de Mucha defeated Augustin Myard/Eldar Dzhafarov, 8-3, to help NMSU win the doubles point.

From March 4-30, NMSU's freshman sensation won five-straight singles matches, two of which came at the No. 1 position. He had two wins over players from a ranked team, including a win over rival Max Jones of New Mexico who was ranked as high as No. 73 to start the spring season.

After missing the beginning of the dual match season because of an ankle injury, Diep came out and won his first four matches when he got back on the courts. One of those wins included that huge three-set victory over UNM's Jones on March 2 and he also won nine out of his first 10 matches to open the spring season.

Before coming to NMSU, Diep had an outstanding junior career where he was a three-time member of the French Team and had a Top Five nation ranking in his age group from 1998-2006. He was the No. 1 ranked player in 2000 and 2001.

The pre-medicine major has been excelling off the court as well for New Mexico State, as he has a perfect 4.0 GPA.

New Mexico State finished the spring dual match tennis season with a 9-12 record and the Aggies return a talented young group next season, where NMSU will look to win their first ever WAC Tennis Championship.

Local swim teams hold five-day clinic

'Make a Splash' educates youth on swimming

The Las Cruces Aquatic Team and the NMSU Swim Team participated in the "Make a Splash" campaign initiated by USA Swimming.

The clinic was in response to the alarming number of drownings and near-drownings that occur every year. The initiative reaches out to children and fami-lies across the country in an effort to educate them on the importance of proper swim instruction and water

More than 2,800 USA Swimming member clubs nationwide were invited to host events.

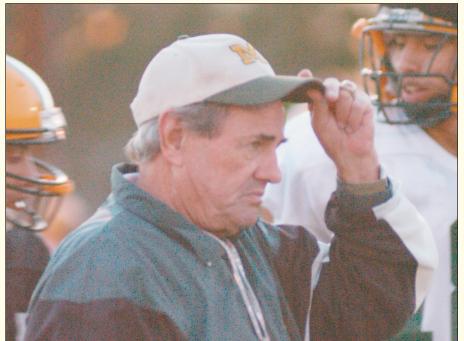

LCAT hosted a free swim week at Frenger Pool, April 30-May 4. More than 100 swimmers from the Las Cruces area participated.

LCAT was also a winner in the "Pride in Your Club" contest. USA Swimming Club members throughout the United States were encouraged to go see the movie "Pride" and send in their ticket stubs. "Pride" is based on the life of coach Jim Ellis who founded and coached the Philadelphia Department of Recre-ation swim team. After seeing the movie, LCAT team captain Sheila Salopek collected and sent in 80 ticket stubs from team members. The Las Cruces Aquatic Team was the winner of the 76-125 member division and was awarded a Dartswim software package ($1,000 cash value) and a "Pride Movie Prize Pack." The Dartswim software is a powerful video analysis program used by the USA National Swim Team and will be used by LCAT coaches to analyze individual technique and race tactics for competitions.

The Las Cruces Aquatic Team is a nonprofit organization sanctioned by USA Swimming. For more information, contact head coach Sean Muncie at 496-8259 or CoachMuncie@yahoo.com.

taking a trip to Phoenix in the motor home a few years ago and gas cost $2.08 a gallon. Two weeks later on my way back to Las Cruces I was paying $2.46.

"I guess if I want to continue driving it I'm going to have to quit eating steaks and switch to hamburger. Maybe I'll drive slower. That oughta save gas.

Short on patience, long on advice, Bradley credits Mayfield's off-season program for its constant success in football. The Trojans lift weights, work on blocking sleds, run, jump and stay in peak physical condition until practice officially opens in the summer.

"Ninety minutes a day," Bradley said. "You gotta keep after 'em.

"We can do anything year round in New Mexico but put on the pads. "As a coach, you have to be there to make sure the kids are working in the off-season. They want you there. If you're not, they'll slack off.

Four swimmers sign with NMSU

Pratt predicts strong team next season

All nine of our in-coming freshman have the

immediate impact at the conference level.

RICK PRATT,

NMSU swimming and diving

head coach

New Mexico State swimming and diving coach Rick Pratt announced that high school stars Paola Garcia, Kelly Runestrand Thomas Illega and Kinstin Bishett trand, Theresa Illgen and Kirstin Pickett have signed National Letters of Intent to attend school and swim for the Aggies school seniors and will enroll at NMSU this fall as freshmen.

The Aggies have now signed nine swimmers and divers to this year's recruiting class.

"This is a very large and talented class," head coach Rick Pratt said. "All nine of our incoming freshman have the potential to make an immediate impact at the conference level and will give us depth in every event. They are all great students and strong individuals and will help take things to a higher level. With our current athletes training hard during the offseason and these new additions joining our program things are going to be very exciting next year.

Garcia is graduating from Eastwood High School in El Paso this spring and swims for the Desert Sharks Swim Club and head coach Steve Flato. A solid butterflyer, Garcia's top times in the 100-yard butterfly and 200-yard butterfly are 58.6 and 2:10 respectively.

Runestrand swims for head coach Mark Taylor and the Bellingham Bay

Swim Team and will graduate from Squalicum High School this spring. In four years of varsity swimming, Runestrand helped the Storm to a combined record of 33-3, three state championship appearances, two district titles and a pair of Northwest Conference crowns. She currently holds the school record in six different events, including the 100-yard freestyle (53.66), the 100-yard butterfly (1:01.49) and the 100-yard breaststroke (1:06.09).

Illgen swims for head coach Fred Russell with the Elmbrook Swim Club. Her best event is the breaststroke and she also excels in the individual medleys. Her top time in the 200yard breaststroke is 2:29 while her personal bests in the 200-yard and 400-yard individual medley are 2:12 and 4:33.

Pickett is a native of Monroe, Mich. And will graduate from Monroe High School this spring. In four years of high school diving, Pickett was led the Trojans to four league titles and was named All-Mega Red Conference each season. As a senior this past season, Pickett was named All-State while leading Monroe High to a fourth-place finish at the state ranked second in the nation academically and was fifth at the 2007 WAC Championships.
The Aggies finished the season

Keeping mature trees intact was one goal in creating this home

By Melissa St. Aude

Nestled on a quiet 1.1-acre lot, surrounded by an orchard of 25 pecan trees, 3021 Mesilla Verde Terrace was built to be at home in its tranquil surroundings. With its rustic, Old-World style and modern features, the home is cozy and warm while at the same time elegantly tasteful, and that's exactly the look builder Shawn Stalls of Phoenician Custom Homes was striving for when he built 3021 for himself and his wife, Amy.

"We wanted to create a home that was homey," Amy Stalls said. "We wanted an open floor plan and a big kitchen so that when we have company, there's plenty of room in the kitchen for people to help."

Designed with company in mind – the couple frequently host family members visiting from out-of-town – the house features a four-bedroom main house with two master suites along with a one bedroom guest casita that includes a living room, bathroom, bedroom and kitchenette. Between visits from family, the casita serves as a game room.

"We wanted a house where we could all gather for Christmas and other holidays and be in one place," Amy said. "Sometimes, family comes in droves, and we'll have 12 guests at a time. We wanted enough space so that everyone could be together and comfortable.'

Shawn said that among other things, keeping as many of the 1.1-acre lot's mature pecan trees intact during building was important to give the final home a peaceful and secluded feel.

"We only removed eight of the 33 trees that were on this lot," he said. "The rest

To accent the pecan trees, Shawn included a waterfall-inspired pond – surrounded by green grass and colorful flowers - in the backyard. He added a drip irrigation system to keep the thick carpet of lush grass healthy and vibrant green.

So that the peaceful landscaping could be easily enjoyed, the home was designed with abundant large windows, rounded walls and easy access to the back yard. A large covered patio, complete with fire-place and built-in grill, add to the indoor/ outdoor living lifestyle.

To enhance enjoyment of the front yard, which overlooks a vast front lawn and trees, Shawn built a wrap-around front porch and accented it with wood-plank ceiling and intricately carved wooden columns. In line with the theme of flow and unity throughout the home, the porch was built with a curved half wall. To achieve unobstructed views in the front, he placed the oversized three-car garage at an angle on the side of the home.

The interior of the home features an open floor plan with the large living room, dining area and kitchen adjacent to one another in the center of the home.

Set against the lush green view of the backyard, the living room features a floor to ceiling fireplace of stacked stone. Wooden floors, towering ceilings, and uniquely angled built-ins add to the room's warm the home herself and included contrasting colors for added warmth and depth.

The home's master suite includes a spacious room with a large walk-in closet with abundant built-ins and a granitetopped folding table. A washer and drver are included in the closet to make laundry less of a chore.

The master suite includes a beautifully designed bathroom with a spa-styled tub, walk-around shower, custom cabinetry and expert tiling. Adjacent to the master suite is the home's fitness room and office.

"We wanted this area to be convenient and functional," Amy said.

The home is the 14th house built by Phoenician Custom Homes. A former professional soccer player, Shawn spent his childhood in Las Cruces and attended local schools.

Phoenician Custom Builders strives to make each home a reflection of the residents that reside within its walls. In building a home for himself and his wife, company owner Shawn Stalls used soft edges wherever possible, such as walls, ceilings and nichos, to give the home a warm, welcoming feel.

Creating spaces that flow together and inspire family togetherness were the themes in building the home. The living room, which overlooks the back yard, features a floor to ceiling fireplace of stacked stone. A rounded back wall and interesting angles on the room's built-in units combine to give the room charm and depth.

Experience outdoor living as an extension of your home

Americans like to be outdoors, and the best place to take advantage of the New Mexico outdoor lifestyle is right here in Las Cruces. Not only do we enjoy the great outdoors, but we also thrive on keeping the reminders of nature around us. The concept is missed as a lot of people tend to think of their outdoor environment as something they see rather than something they experience.

The home is no longer limited by its walls and stretches out across the yard toward the horizon and the sky above. Outdoor areas offer a soul-pleasing mix of civilization and nature's serenity, a spot to stop doing and just be

There's something about sitting outside that's very different from kicking back on the living room couch indoors. Homeowners are taking the concept of the outdoor room literally and establishing a new space for entertainment and relaxation beyond the walls of their homes. The sound of birdsong, the butterflies flitting by, the gentle touch of the breeze, the unexpected hummingbird hovering in the trees the spontaneous beauty of this world can help you unwind and reset your mind. The desire to spend more time outside is strong and growing.

A successful outdoor space is comfort, function and aesthetics, and as the outdoor room evolves, homeowners step across the thresholds and stack their stackable plastic chairs and picnic tables of yesterday for high-fashion furnishings and upscale decor. The trend is being defined in various ways as the outdoor room includes outdoor kitchens and outdoor living rooms. The manufacturers are making lightweight. Mantels start around

The sound of singing birds, the fresh mountain air and gentle breezes are part of what attracts Americans to the great outdoors. A successful outdoor space should be comfortable and functional.

$599. To complement the mantel is the outdoor living room full of furniture. The furniture can be aluminum designed to resemble bamboo, wrought-iron, teak or woven wicker all with a fabric that is now weatherproof. This fabric is called Sunbrella. Durable Sunbrella cushions are thick and filled with air-laid polyester fiber specially woven to increase softness and comfort. The cushions are weatherproof and colorfast Sunbrella acrylic fabric that wipes clean with a sponge, repels water and resists chlorine, soil and stains.

A colorful and elegant way to enhance the outdoor seating area or add relief to a hot patio this summer is to add an outdoor rug. Outdoor rugs come in various sizes from 1 foot by 3 feet to 8 feet by 13 feet. They are crafted from 100 percent fine-spun polypropylene fiber to ensure strength and resistance to mold, mildew, sun and rain. The outdoor rugs are stain resistant, so spills can be spot cleaned or simply rinsed with a hose. These all-weather rugs are now made of soft varns to add comfort and come in floral patterns and designs, a stunning departure from the one dimensional styles.

Kitchler lighting has revolutionized the meaning of the outdoor room, with the newest addition to the outdoor spaces introducing the weatherproof chandelier with matching sconces embellished with glass shades, all designed to be outdoors. So what's left? Curtains! In the Southwest, the sun and heat play an important part in outdoor rooms. To achieve privacy, consider adding draperies in a sun-resistant fabric that can be tied back to let breezes in or pulled closed for complete privacy. Sunbrella fabrics are not just pillows and cushions but can be made into curtains. The weatherproof fabric comes in solid colors, prints, plaids and strips and is sold by the yard.

Now, choose your accessories carefully and add them to the walls of the outdoor room, like you would put accessories on walls in your living room. Manufacturers have created outdoor wall décor such as floral prints framed in wood usually reserved for inside now weatherproof.

We used to call them pretty patios, but now they are outdoor rooms. By viewing the outdoor room as an extension of the home, you can create continuity and movement of energy between interior and exterior

Container Color

Whether you are trying to sell your home or just want it to have some excitement and color, you can't go wrong with container gardening. There are all types of pots to use such as clay, plastic, wood, ceramic or even metal. It does not matter what you use, just make sure everything has a drainage hole in it.

Choosing the right mix or colors does not have to be difficult if you know what kind of light a given area is going to receive. Most flowering plants need about 6 to 8 hours of sunlight per day. The list of what you can use is extensive, but I will use what is readily available for full sun: lantana, aptenia, coreopsis, portulaca, vinca, marigolds, plumbago, various grasses and much more. These plants will take considerable heat as long as they have adequate water.

The plant list for shade is quite smaller and includes: impatiens (loads of color), aucuba, heuchera, vinca minor, pachysandra, monkey flower and lobelia. These plants need shade during the hottest part of the day.

Use a professional potting mix. Don't skimp on this as this is the very foundation of your container planting. As a rule, the lighter in weight, the better the mix. If you want to lighten the mix, you can use vermiculite or perlite. This will help create air pockets in the soil so roots can spread faster.

Finally, fertilize your planting regularly. I find that using water-soluble fertilizers, such as Peters professional mix, works best if you use it every week to every other week, and not "weakly." Whatever you use, please read and follow the directions exactly.

Stay cool and lower your bills this summer

The Comfort Institute offers tips to keep your air conditioner efficient

With hot summer weather just around the corner, now is the time to give your home a "check-up." Here are six tips from the Comfort Institute to make sure your air conditioning bills don't blow your cool.

1. Have your duct system tested for air leaks. Many assume that windows and doors are the major cause of a home's energy wasting air leaks. But according to recent research by the Department of Energy (DOE), gaps, joints and disconnections in the typical home's duct system are much more significant. The DOE states that the typical duct system loses 25 to 40 percent of the energy put out by the central heat pump or air conditioner. Authorities recommend having an AC contractor test for leaks and then seal them with a brushed on fiber-reinforced elastomeric sealant. Duct tape usually dries out and fails. It turns out duct tape is great for many things, but sealing ducts isn't one of them!

2. Ask your AC contractor to perform an Infiltrometer "blower door" test. The blower door is a computerized instrument originally invented by the Department of Energy. It pinpoints where your home's worst air leaks are, such as duct leaks, and also measures how leaky the overall house is. Many homes have significant air leaks into the attic: hot dusty air often gets drawn in through recessed can lights and pulled down stairs. New sealing products are available to fix these significant leaks. Many AC contractors offer an Infiltrometer test as part of a "Whole House Health and Comfort Checkup" that also checks insulation levels and overall duct performance.

3. Close your fireplace damper. Did you remember to close it last time you used the fireplace? Shut it now or waste precious cool air all summer long.

4. Replace your air conditioner or heat pump air filter. Most systems need this done every month to ensure safe and efficient operation. Keep forgetting to do it? Ask your AC contractor for information on an extended surface area whole-house air filter that only needs to be replaced once a year. It also does a far better job of keeping your equipment and the air in your home clean.

5. Have your air conditioner cleaned and tuned. A pre-season tune-up is a great investment. It reduces the chances of breakdowns in the middle of summer and more than pays for itself through more energy efficient operation. Make sure the AC contractor cleans both the indoor and outdoor heat transfer coils, and checks refrigerant gas charge by measuring "superheat" or "subcooling."

6. Consider replacing your old air conditioner or heat pump. Just like a car, central cooling equipment doesn't last forever. Is your system more than 12 years old? Planning to stay in your home more than a few years? Many authorities recommend replacing it before it fails permanently. A new system improves comfort, is more dependable and creates less air pollution. New units are up to twice as energy efficient, which saves money on your monthly electric bills.

However, government and utility research has found that more than 90 percent of newly installed high efficiency systems have energy wasting mistakes. Do some homework before talking to contractors. For more information, visit www.energystar.gov and www.comfortinstitute.org. Print out the free Comfort Institute reports "Tips and Secrets To Buying A New Heating and Cooling System" and "How To Identify a Good Heating and Cooling Contractor."

Summer is prime time for air conditioning units and high electricity bills are generally the result. Try these suggestions for keeping hour house cool and your bills low.

Keep your home office safe

We've all seen it: Too few electrical outlets in your office means that your computer, printer, monitor, scanner, CD player, lamp, cell phone and iPod charger are all plugged into one inexpensive, overloaded power strip. It's pretty unsightly, but did you know that the practice is also dangerous?

Overloaded electrical circuits pose both an electrocution and fire hazard. While we can't always control the number of outlets in our offices, the Electrical Safety Foundation says that if you must use a power strip, use a name-brand product from a reputable retailer. Low-quality or counterfeit power strips may contain wiring that isn't adequate to carry the load.

- Place power strips where there is plenty of air circulation to disperse heat.
- Do not attempt to plug grounded (threeprong) cords into ungrounded (two-slot) outlets. Do not bind, kink or knot electrical cords.
- Never run power cords under rugs or where chairs can roll over them.
- Keep cords close to a wall to avoid trip hazards.

• Keep all non-critical electrical items unplugged until you need to use them.

Consider charging batteryoperated devices in another area.

• If your computer screen flickers or fades, or you detect a burning smell, power down and immediately contact the building engineer. If you work from home, have a licensed electrician conduct an electrical inspection.

"In this high-tech age, many offices are filled with electronic equipment and an accompanying demand for power and outlet space," added Mr. Electric president Jeff Meyers. "However, it's important to follow all safety precautions when using them. Along with ESFI's terrific safety pointers, business owners may also want to contact their local Mr. Electric to schedule a comprehensive and professional 12-point business safety check-up. Visit www.mrelectric.com for more information."

For additional electrical safety information, visit the Foundation's website at www.electrical-safety.org or call 703-841-3229.

All buttered up

Rich in flavor and natural fat, butter has a variety of uses

By Melissa St. Aude

There are few things in the world have the ability to make taste buds dance in delight as the simple taste of pure butter. By its design -80 percent milkfat - butter is an all-natural, rich and creamy concentration of milk or cream that packs a flavorful punch.

Butter is a semisolid that hardens when cooled or melts to a liquid when warm - making it versatile in cooking. With its rich taste and abundant emulsifiers for stabilizing, butter is a key ingredient in a variety of cuisines in many cultures, especially French, and is often used to bring a rich flavor or shine to sauces or to add a flaky texture to baked goods.

Although butter's origins are unclear, historians believe it dates back at least 2,000 years and traces of butter have been found in King Tut's tomb. Just as old as butter itself is the method for making it - a simple process of agitating the cream - which has remained virtually unchanged for thousands of years.

Butter sold in the United States falls into three main categories – unsalted, salted and whipped, in which the butter is whipped to a light and fluffy textures suitable for spreading.

- 1. Carve a butter sculpture. This can be a great centerpiece or focal point for any dinner party or gathering. Start with frozen butter and keep it cool while carving.
- 2. Loosen a tight ring. Slather a bit of butter on your finger so that a tight ring slides off with ease
- 3. Eliminate odors. Rub your hands with a dab of butter before washing to help remove fish, garlic or onion
- 4. Treat your feet. Treat yourself to a butter massage to relieve dry feet, elbows or hands.
- 5. Prevent boilovers. A bit of butter in a pot of boiling pasta water will prevent boilovers.

Around-the-home item: Butter

Treat your feet to a butter massage or clean crayon or ink marks from plastic toys using butter.

- 6. Remove ink stains. Rub butter over ink-stained toys or other plastic surfaces then use soap and water to wash clean. This works with crayon marks as well.
- 7. Slice with ease. Rub butter over the blade of a knife before slicing sticky snacks like marshmallow
- 8. Store it. As long as it is sealed properly to avoid picking up odors, butter bought in bulk may be stored for up to four months in a refrigerator with a temperature of between 32 and 38 degrees. In the freezer, butter may be
- 9. Flavor it up. Make your own butter spread by bringing one stick to room temperature then adding flavorings - cheese and herbs, almonds or other tastes - and beating until flavors are well incorporated. Refrigerate or freeze until ready to serve. Try making apple butter by mixing in a dash of apple cider and bits of diced apple or almond butter by adding almond extract and sliced almonds. Italian butter may be made by mixing butter

Easy homemade butter

Butter is made by agitating cream - either by churning or shaking. Agitation allows fats to conjoin, transforming the liquid into a semisolid, and the method for making butter has not changed for thousands of years. Butter can be made from milk or cream from any mammal and although cow milk is the most common substance used in United States, in other parts of the world, milk from sheep, goats or camels is commonly used.

lent activity for children.

1 cup of heavy cream jar with lid Dash of salt to taste, if desired

Pour cream into jar and screw lid on tightly.
Using a back and forth motion, shake the jar until a solid mass forms – about 10 minutes.

The fats will join together – this is the butter while the liquid separates – this is buttermilk (great for making pancakes or biscuits).

Separate the buttermilk and store separately.
Add salt or other flavorings to butter and stir.
Store it away – wrap the butter in plastic wrap and either freeze or store in the refrigerator.

with Parmesan cheese, oregano and garlic. Mix your favorite mustard with butter for an extra rich sandwich

BARRY MURRAY The Bug Guy

Although termites are known for their industriousness and can find a way into your home whether it is made of wood or concrete, homeowners need to be aware that have more at stake than just their homes when it

Termites cause more

than storms, fires

comes to these destructive insects. In fact, according to Phil Koehler, professor of Entomology at the University of Florida, homeowners may not realize that their home isn't the only thing a termite will find satisfying.

The deed to your home is just as vulnerable as your home itself!" said Koehler. "Consumers should be aware that anything made of cellulose, a material found in all plant cells, is inviting to a termite," said Koehler. "Whether it's photographs, a family Bible, a legal will or other important documents, these valuables can be safeguarded against through continuous protection."

billion in damage every year.

Termites cause more damage in the United States than storms, fires and floods combined, and Homeowner's Insurance will not cover the cost of treatment. While you sleep, termites may literally be eating you out of house, home and even your business.

The rising cost of construction is a second trend Koehler believes makes continuous protection of homes from termites important.

fuel for $5 billion dollars in termite damage every year "The cost of construction has risen from $140 to $250 $\,$ per square foot for a house over the last five years," said Koehler. "If a home isn't continuously protected from termites, the repair costs can be exorbitant because it is almost impossible to find people who can handle such a repair.

Koehler said another potential issue with construction is the way pipes are wrapped during the building process.

"Termites are using the wraps around PVC pipes that come up into the slabs as their highway into a home," said Koehler. "While the wrap is imperative for copper pipes to help prevent corrosion, they are not necessary for PVC pipes. Therefore, many cities are trying to clarify the building code so builders are aware the wrap is unnecessary. Until these changes are made, continuous termite protection will help keep these intruders at bay."

Eastern subterranean termites are one of the types of termite that can cause problems $% \left(x\right) =\left(x\right) +\left(x\right)$ in a home or personal belongings. Cellulose nourishment enables them to tunnel their way through solid wood such as house timber. Left undetected, they will tirelessly attack a home, causing dangerous and costly structural damage.

"Although Eastern subterranean termites generally swarm in spring, and fall, they can also swarm anytime environmental conditions are right such as unseasonably warm weather," said Murray.

Another termite that causes untold damage is the Arizona termite. Arizona termites are small, but much more aggressive. In fact, in comparison to the standard Eastern subterranean termites, these pesky critters congregate in more colonies per acre, causing more damage. Serious infestations or resistant termites require a professional.

A termite prevention program should include the following elements:

- A professional inspection done at least once a year because the potential damage is too great to rely on
- "do-it-yourself' methods.

 An ongoing preventive system including the newest sodium borate-based materials, which can be painted, sprayed, or spread onto the wood, or injected into hollow spaces inside the walls of the home.
- Having your pest control professional establish an "early warning system" that detects termites in the soil before they reach the home itself. The newest systems establish bait stations around the perimeter of the home, to detect the approach of termites while they are still several feet away.
- Anytime termites are found within five feet of a structure, begin more aggressive control treatments.

Homebuilding the Desert Sage way

Customer service and teamwork are the foundation of this company

By MELISSA ST. AUDE The Las Cruces Bulletin

Orchestrating the building of a highquality custom house is much like leading a team to victory, and at Desert Sage Building & Development, each team member strives to play their part to perfection.

"This company would not be where it is today without everyone's contributions," said Michelle Gordon, vice president of Desert Sage Building & Development. "One reason why this company is not named Gordon Builders is because the company is not about us – it's about the teamwork that goes into making every house we build a truly custom home."

Desert Sage Building & Development was started in 1994 by Michelle's husband, David, who serves as the company's president. From the beginning, Desert Sage was designed to be a different kind of homebuilding company – one that combined innovative ideas and fine craftsmanship to create uniquely beautiful one-of-a-kind homes.

The customer experience was also designed to be different and from the beginning, the company took strides to remove the stress and guesswork from the homebuilding equation for its clients. Over the past 20 years, the company has fine-tuned its processes and continues to improve.

"As a company, we've always been attracted to innovative ways that make the home building process easier for clients," Michelle said. "Many of our clients are from out of town, and others live in town but have busy careers and lives so we needed a process that catered to their needs."

In March, Desert Sage opened the doors to its new showroom, located in Picacho Plaza. The home-like showroom serves as a one-stop shopping source for clients and houses samples of all the materials and fixtures that go into or onto the home – roof tiles, floor tiles, paint samples, door and bathroom hardware, cabinetry and other amenities – so that the client may visualize how the home will look when it's complete.

"They can see how the tile looks against the paint and how everything will look when it's all together," Michelle said. "They can also change things if they decide later that they don't like what they've chosen."

The showroom itself is set up like a home with a kitchen, living room, dining room, media room and other rooms to highlight products and materials that work well in many homes.

"People need to see materials and fixtures in place to be inspired," Michelle said. "Even if they see it and know right away that it's not what they want, it helps them determine what exactly they do want in a home."

To help clients achieve the desired outcome – a home they will be happy with for years to come – the Desert Sage team works with them at every stage in the homebuilding journey.

That journey usually begins with a sitdown with Roger Cole, the company's chief operating officer and design and planning expert.

"Every home we build is a custom home from the ground up," Cole said. "Even the planning is custom."

With Cole, the client decides on a floor plan and discusses the layout and structural characteristics of their home. They are able to view a three-dimensional image of the home to have a better understanding of how the final home will look.

When the layout and structural components have been settled, the next team member, interior design expert Connie Brittle, takes over.

"Our process is a true team effort. Everyone communicates at every stage in the process and everything goes very smoothly," Brittle said. "Everyone on this team has a passion for our jobs and that's evident in every house Desert Sage builds."

With Brittle, the client puts together a palette of colors and material for the home that is appealing to them. Brittle's background as an accountant, along with her passion for home planning, help to ensure that the customer ends up with the look they want in a home within budget.

When the house is complete – the walls have been painted, the tile is laid and the home is ready for its new residents – the next member of the team, service administrator Janet Acosta, takes the lead.

"Janet works with the clients to ensure that they understand the warranty process, but she also educates them on the > materials in their home and how to care for their new home," Michelle said

> Acosta is a point of contact when the client has questions or concerns about their new home and she maintains relationships with the clients.

^aOur service to the customer doesn't end when the customer moves in," Acosta said. "People call us often with questions or even years down the road, they might want an addition put on or have their home updated. We're here to provide that service as well."

Other team members also play a crucial part in the customer experience. Everyone from office personnel Dawn Shults and Julie Harris and project manager Luis Martinz do their part to ensure that the customer is happy, Michelle said.

She added that the subcontractors the company uses are also important team members and the showroom is dedicated to showcasing their work.

At any stage in the homebuilding journey, customers, whether they are local or out of town, may check the status of their home through the company's Internet-based program that allows them to log in and see photos, view documents or schedules and confirm appointments.

"They can see what the schedule is for everything, from having the concrete laid to having the cabinets installed," Michelle said.

She added that the Internet program is also a great organizational tool for the company and its subcontractors.

"All the information for each project is stored in one place," she said. "We're excited about the capabilities of this program."

The program is also useful in the early stages of planning a new home, allowing the customer to select everything from a neighborhood and a floor plan to pricing estimates.

"What's nice about this is that because it is an Internet-based program, people can access it from anywhere (provided they have a log in code and access privilges)," Michelle said.

Michelle is quick to point out that the teamwork at Desert Sage is designed to make the process easier for the client and it is not a case of "too many cooks in the kitchen."

"Every client is different and has different needs. Our process allows us to not only build a custom house but to provide custom service as well," she said.

David is active in the community having served as the past president of the Las Cruces Homebuilder's Association and received the organization's "Builder of the Year" award in 2001. As well, he is a past president of the New Mexico Home Builder's Association and serves on the board of directors for the National Association of Home Builders and Trust. Michelle and David have two children, Robbie and Meg.

Desert Sage builds approximately 20 custom designed homes annually.

Pounding with pleasure

By MELISSA ST. AUDE The Las Cruces Bulletin

Chicken Kiev, chicken cordon bleu, Swiss steak and many other recipes require one common ingredient - a well-flattened piece of meat. Whether pounding meat for quick cooking or for a rolled meat recipe, a meat pounder is a vital tool to achieving the right degree of thickness.

What is it?

Used to flatten meats, the meat pounder is a heavy tool often weighing between one and three pounds. It features an easy-grip handle, usually between three and six inches in length, and a flat pounding head that can be round, square or rectangular.

The tool is most often made of wood, stainless steel or high carbon alloy steel, but specialty pounders made of brass or other materials are also easy to find.

How is it used?

Cover the meat with plastic wrap and using a repeated, gentle, up-and-down motion, hit the meat with the pounder. Despite the name of the tool, meat should not be flattened with overly vigorous pounding motions, as doing so may tear the meat. Make sure that the meat is on a flat, sturdy surface before pounding.

What to look for when buying one:

Keep one rule of thumb in mind when shopping for a meat pounder – the heavier the tool, the easier pounding will be. A sturdy meat pounder often weighs two or more pounds. Along with having a heavy, preferably smooth head, a pounder should also have a comfortable, non-slip handle. Many meat pounders are sold as multi-use tools and feature both a pounding head and a tenderizer. Unlike the pounding head, the tenderizer is designed to break down tough fibers in the meat while the pounding head is reserved for flattening the meat. Using a tenderizer to flatten meat may cause holes and tears in the meat.

A dishwasher safe model is a plus.

How much does it cost?

A good quality meat pounder can be pricey compared with other kitchen gadgets its size. Expect to pay anywhere from $15 to $25 for a basic stainless steel meat pounder or more than $80 for a brass or specialty one. Wooden pounders are a bit less, averaging about $5, but they are often not as heavy and not dishwasher safe.

Easy Chicken Kiev

4 boneless chicken breasts

1 cup dry bread crumbs salt and pepper to taste

In large bowl combine softened butter, lemon juice, zest and dill and stir until all ingredients are well-mixed. Wrap in plastic wrap and form into log. Freeze for at least two hours.

Using a meat pounder, flatten chicken breast until they are thin, but be careful that they do not have any holes. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

Slice frozen butter into four even pieces. Place one piece of butter on each piece of chicken and wrap the chicken around the butter making sure that there are no open edges.

Beat egg and dip chicken roll into egg then coat with bread crumbs. Cover with plastic wrap and allow to sit in the refrigerator for at least two hours. Brown both top and bottom of chicken in hot skillet for three minutes on each side then bake in a 375 degree oven for about 20 minutes.

Other uses?

Because they are heavy, a meat pounder doubles nicely as a paperweight. It's also a great tool for weighing down sandwiches during grilling.

F.Y.I.

In a pinch, a rolling pin or the bottom of a saucepan may substitute nicely for a meat pounder.

Featured Kitchen Gadget: The Meat Pounder

Despite its name, "meat pounder," this tool should be used gently, not vigorously, to avoid tearing the meat.

Surprising summer side

For your next summer gathering, pass on the macaroni salad and can the coleslaw. Break from tradition with a colorful, cooling and crunchy side dish that's easy to make and sure to please.

Whether you need something fast for an impromptu backyard barbecue or something to jazz up a family reunion potluck, beet and corn salad is the perfect summertime side. The fresh ingredients like red bell pepper, sugar snap peas and corn in this tangy salad pair perfectly with grilled favorite entrées from burgers and chicken to chops and sausages.

The dressing on this seasonal salad comes together fast. Simply mix some of the liquid from the jar of Aunt Nellie's pickled beets with vinegar, Dijon mustard and oil, finishing with fresh basil. And it's not just the dressing that's quick and easy because the beets are already pickled, the whole salad can be prepared in just 15 minutes. Plus, if you're serving a crowd, the recipe can be easily doubled.

Let beet and corn salad shine at your next summer meal. For more information, visit www.senecafoods.com.

Beet and Corn Salad

1 jar (16 ounce) Aunt Nellie's Whole Pickled Beets*

1/2 cup fresh, cooked or frozen corn (thawed, if frozen)

1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley

2 tablespoons white wine vinegar

1 teaspoon Dijon mustard

to 3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

2 teaspoons chopped fresh basil

To prepare dressing, whisk together reserved beet liquid, vinegar and mustard. Slowly whisk in oil until well blended. Stir in basil. Pour over beet mixture; toss gently to coat. Serve immediately, or chill.

*Aunt Nellie's Sliced Pickled Beets may be substituted, if desired. Serves 4.

1/2 cup chopped celery

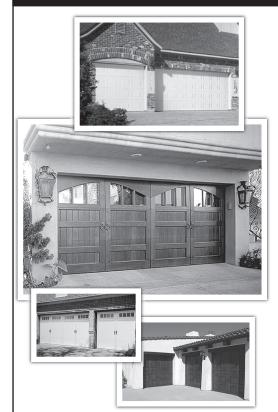

1/4 cup chopped red bell pepper 1/2 cup stringless sugar snap peas

Drain beets, reserving 2 tablespoons liquid. Cut beets into quarters and combine with celery, corn, pepper, snap peas and parsley in a medium bowl.

Summer evenings by the grill can be stress-free and fun

School is out which means the summer vacation season is underway. Family gettogethers by the pool and neighborhood barbecues by the grill are summer traditions. The sunshine and warm summer nights complement a backyard setting and provide us with the perfect atmosphere to entertain friends and build lasting memories with family.

For your next backyard party, get the most out of the occasion with these helpful tips:

Don't Spoil Your Dinner - Prepare foods that can withstand several hours outdoors with reliable ingredients such as barbecue sauce, and steer clear of mayonnaise and other perishable foods.

Get the Whole Family Involved -Create quality family moments by involving everyone in the cooking and preparation. Kids can set the table, relatives can make side dishes and friends can craft icy drinks to ease the heat.

Think Outside the Grill - Outdoor entertaining doesn't mean that all the cooking needs to happen on the grill. Try incorporating new grilling ingredients, such as tangy barbecue sauce, into conventional, kitchen-made recipes for a flavorful twist

Do you think you have a winning recipe? Then enter your most innovative recipes in the Creative Kitchen Masterpieces contest for a chance to win $4,500 of kitchen appliances at www.kcmasterpiece.

Plan Ahead – Cook savory, flavorful recipes that can be served cold and made in advance, like Legendary Chinese Chicken Salad. When your guests arrive you can devote more time enjoying their company instead of on last-minute prepa-

Legendary Chinese Chicken Salad

2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts (about 2 pounds) 3/4 cup KC Masterpiece Ginger & Garlic or Honey Teriyaki Marinade 1/4 cup soy sauce 1 head iceberg lettuce (or one 10-ounce bag shredded lettuce) 1/2 cup snow or sugar snap peas

1 cup cucumber, diced 1/2 cup carrots, shredded 3 green onions, sliced cup crispy chow mein noodles 1/2 cup chopped cilantro over chicken; allow to stand at room temperature while oven preheats.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake chicken 45 minutes, basting frequently, or until chicken is cooked through and nicely browned. Pour off juices from pan into a small container; skim all fat that rises to the top and reserve for use as salad dressing. When chicken is cool enough to handle, cut into chunks. (Chicken and sauce may be prepared in advance to this point; cover and refrigerate until serving time.)

At serving time, arrange lettuce in a large bowl or platter. Scatter snow peas, cucumber, carrots, green onion, chow mein noodles and chicken over lettuce. Spoon reserved dressing over chicken and sprinkle with cilantro, if desired. Serves 6.

Enjoying birds is one way to interact with nature for a richer life

Birds are abundant in the Southwest and most need little encouragement to visit your backyard but there are some steps you can take to help more birds find their way to your home.

In today's highly interactive and short attention-span society, the backyard increasingly beckons to us as that accessible personal space in which to repair from life. And life has become increasingly defined as the flickering space of a television, computer screen, personal digital assistant or smartphone. Obviously, these ever-present devices are easy to take anywhere, even our backyards. But taking them there is one thing. To disengage is to realize the natural interactivity all around, just waiting to enliven our "backyard experience."

Also, momentarily forget the other entertaining elements for backyard enjoyment to be open to one of the most entertaining, soothing and natural of backyard activities – birding.

The allure of birding can be found anywhere in a range from infrequent to dedicated pursuit, with your backyard serving as the stage. No matter how you decorate or "accessorize" your personal outdoors, keep in mind you're doing it to create a haven for birds.

So what are the building blocks for enlivening your outdoor stage to attract the little winged actors?

Trees and Shrubs

For birds, trees and shrubs are elements of security within your yard. The types and densities of your trees and shrubs have a direct bearing on the amount and types of birds that visit your yard. For example, just planting shrubs in groups rather than a line and not closely pruned can afford covered ground access attractive to colorful robins, blue jays and cardinals. Single plantings or groupings of pine and fir trees provide yearlong insulation, cover and nesting perches. Without a doubt, tree and shrub type and arrangement are integral to optimum backyard bird activity. Visit www.howtoattractbirds.com to learn more.

Wildflowers

Wildflowers are natural magnets for attracting birds. They require minimum maintenance once the initial planting is complete. Not pruning or "deadheading" blooms is best for attracting birds through their remaining seed pods.

Birdhouses

Whether you build it yourself or buy a birdhouse, you'll find that putting up any house will gain residents. For certain types of birds, follow specific birdhouse structures. Details such as floor area, house depth and rise of entry hole above the floor, are a few dimensions that make a house more conducive to specific bird types. Knowing the type of birds desired should guide your birdhouse choice. Web sites like www.birding.about.com/od/buildhouses/a/completehouse.htm and www.birdhouses101.com contain house specifications for almost any bird you hope to attract.

Birdfeeders

Feeders come in general types: tube feeders, wall feeders, hopper feeders, sock feeders, suet feeders, tray or platform feeders, lantern feeders and variations on all of these. A tube feeder with a tray attracts cardinals, crossbills, finches and sparrows while a suet feeder attracts woodpeckers, chickadees, nuthatches and wrens. Feeders near the house call for a window feeder while an open area requires a tube feeder mounted on a pole. And then there are add-ons. The most common are squirrel deterrents such as baffles or cones. Go to the National Wildlife Federation's site at www. enature.com or the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service Web site at www.fws.gov/birds for complete sources for feeder information.

Bird Food

If you put the right food out, the birds will come. In fact, bird food is the most affordable and effective birding lure. Whether sunflower, safflower, white millet, cracked corn or thistle seeds, knowing which seed your favorite bird likes guides your bird seed purchase. Buying higher-quality mixes versus mixes with fillers can ensure complete consumption, as well as minimize ground or patio debris from uneaten fillers.

Filler debris attracts unwanted rodents under feeders or near your home. "Knowing the bird you want to attract, the quality of seed used and the ease-of-use in the packaging are the ABC's of an enjoyable birding experience," says Tony Vahedian, vice president and general manager of ScottsMiracle-Gro Wild Bird Food division. For easy Web information on bird food products, go to sites like Scotts' www.scottswildbirdfood.com and the Cornell Lab of Ornithology's Web site at www.birds.cornell.edu to learn the basics of quality bird seeds.

Warm months mean an increase in stubborn stains

Summer adventures may bring smiles to kids' faces, but for parents they can mean laundry marathons. Grass stains, grease slicks, pink lemonade puddles, and ketchup smears can mean spending more time in the laundry room, and less time basking in the sunshine.

As luck would have it, the hot color for the summer season remains that stain magnet – white. In fact, according to a recent survey conducted by The Clorox Company, 65 percent of respondents said they wear more white clothing during the summertime than any other season. However, 35 percent of respondents with children in the household said they are more likely to avoid wearing white for fear of nasty stains.

"Dry Clean Only," "Handwash Only," "Wash Inside Out/With Like Colors/Gentle Cycle/Cold Rinse" - it's not just color that deters some people from wearing whatever they want this summer. Almost 60 percent of women decide not to buy certain clothing items based on the care label because they are afraid of ruining the garment.

So what's a family to do when faced with summer's unique stain challenges? Smart stain-fighters are calling Dr. Laundry at Clorox. Instead of wasting time searching for a solution to get out that mustard smudge, Dr. Laundry's Summer Stain Hotline provides easy solutions to common summertime blunders including cold beverages such as iced tea or coffee, ketchup and mustard and much more. Everyone can enjoy the season knowing the stain removal secret to saving their crisp white shirts or their kids' khaki shorts is just a phone call away.

Stains don't stand a chance with these stain-fighting tips from Dr. Laundry.

- Immediately blot off excess
- Rinse with cold water from the back

Patio picnic Southwest style

Kick off Memorial Day with yummy grilled treats

Traditionally, Memorial Day launches the grilling season. But Southwesterners, such as us, can barbecue yearround. Nevertheless, what would Memorial Day be like without the great American cookout kickoff? Memorial Day falls on Monday, May 28, and many of us who have jobs have the day off. Take advantage of this free day by throwing a party on your patio. Ask friends to bring their favorite "grillable" and a side dish to share. (Consider one of the recipes I share below.) As a treat, make homemade vanilla ice cream, scoop into bowls and top with fudge sauce and sprinkles of minced habañeros - a sweet-heat tropical treat.

And lest we forget, Memorial Day salutes our American soldiers and war heros, which was officially designated a holiday in 1868 by General John A. Logan, who volunteered for the Mexican War in 1846 and then later traveled to Santa Fe, where he served as post quartermaster and learned Spanish. General Logan died December 26, 1886, in Washington, D.C., where he lies buried in Soldier Cemetery

Cuban Garlic and Lime Pork Chops

thick (about 1 1/2 pounds)

2 tablespoons olive oil

2 tablespoons lime juice

2 tablespoons orange juice

2 teaspoons minced garlic 1/2 teaspoon salt, divided

1/2 teaspoon red pepper flakes

2 small seedless oranges peeled and chopped 1 medium cucumber, peeled, seeded and chopped

2 tablespoons chopped onion

Put pork in a large, resealable plastic food storage bag. Add oil, juices, garlic, 1/4 teaspoon salt and red pepper flakes. Seal bag and shake to evenly distribute marinate; refrigerate up to 24 hours.

Combine oranges, cucumber, onion and cilantro in small bowl; toss lightly. Cover and refrigerate 1 hour or overnight. Add remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt just before serving. Spray grid with nonstick cooking spray. Prepare grill for indirect cooking. Remove pork from marinade; discard marinade. Grill or broil pork 6 to 8 minutes on each side or until desired doneness. Serve with orange mixture. Serves 6.

Beer-Basted Chicken

1/2 firm cantaloupe, peeled and cut into 1 to 2-inch pieces

16 green onions cut into 2- to 3-inch pieces

Place lamb in heavy-duty resealable plastic food storage bag set in shallow dish. For marinade, in medium bowl combine vinegar, water, oil, garlic, rosemary, salt, cumin, coriander, red pepper and black pepper. Pour marinade over lamb in bag. Seal bag; turn to coat. Marinate in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours, stirring occasionally. Drain lamb, reserving marinade.

Thread lamb, cantaloupe and green onions on four 24inch skewers. Brush with marinade. Place on grill rack directly over medium coals (or adjust for gas, which is easier to regulate temperature-wise and may take less time to cook). Grill 4 inches from coals 15 to 20 minutes or to desired doneness, turning once and brushing with marinade. (Or, broil 3 to 4 inches from heat 10 to 15 minutes, turning once and brushing with marinade.) Makes 4

Jerk Ribs

2 tablespoons dried minced onion

tablespoon sugar

1 tablespoon onion powder

2 teaspoons salt

2 teaspoons ground allspice

2 teaspoons black pepper

1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

Place all ingredients except ribs in small jar with tightfitting lid; cover and shake until well blended. Rub dry mixture onto all surfaces of ribs. Prepare grill with rectangular foil drip pan. Bank briquettes on either side of drip pan for indirect cooking. Place ribs on grid over drip pan. Grill, on covered grill, over low coals 1-1/2 hours or until ribs are tender, turning occasionally.
