Pearce enters Senate race

Public announcement pending, supporters notified by email

By Todd G. Dickson

PEARCE

U.S. Rep. Steve Pearce is expected to run for the Senate seat being vacated by Pete Domenici who recently announced he won't seek re-election because of health concerns.

Pearce, who had been working on reelection to the 2nd District for a third term, reportedly sent an email to supporters that he has decided to run for Senate, but added he wouldn't formally declare his run

"for some time."

That would pit Pearce against District 1
U.S. Rep. Heather Wilson in the Republican

As for Democrats looking to recapture the Senate seat held by Domenici since 1973, Patricia Madrid – former state attorney general originally from Las Cruces, has announced she won't run against Albuquerque Mayor Martin Chavez. Reportedly, Lt. Gov. Diane Denish may run, but political observers aren't counting out Gov. Bill Richardson, should his presidential campaign not catch traction in early

There are three other Democrats - Don Wiviott, Jim Hannan and Leland Lehrman also running for the Senate seat.

Bill McCamley, the first-term county commissioner who was running to replace Pearce, said in a press release that he is now more committed to winning the election. First, he must win the primary against two See Pearce on PAGE A6

Trackways discoverer finds 280 million-year-old tree remains

By Todd G. DICKSON
The Las Cruces Bulletin

In response to concerns raised about preserving Palezoic trackways he discovered 20 years ago, Jerry MacDonald returned to the Robledo Mountains last year after a decadelong absence.

Although struggling with the early onset of Multiple Sclerosis, the prehistoric call of the Robledos beckoned him, and new fossilized evidence of life some 280 million years ago revealed itself in the landscape scrubbed by the flooding rains of that summer.

There, embedded in the cliff walls of fresh arroyos and ravines, were petrified logs one after another, possibly demarking the Early Permian Age shoreline he theorized existed along the edge of the sprawling tidal mud flats where some of Earth's first predinosaur land creatures left their tracks that would be recorded in what was to become rock strata on the desert mountain range.

Recalling the skepticism that first met his announcement of finding what has since been acknowledged as the best trackway record of early animal life on the planet, MacDonald attempted to keep the new dis-

 "I've been sitting on this for over a year, and it is with some reluctance that I am announcing this discovery," MacDonald said at a press conference held at the Las Cruces Natural History Museum on Friday, Oct. 12. "But we need to protect this ... it is globally

The discovery is unique for a couple of reasons, according to MacDonald. First, petrified wood usually isn't discovered in the same area as trackways, but some catastrophic event must have buried the trees and began the process where minerals replace the wood. Also, many of the finds are relatively intact. "These are not fragments," he said. "These are logs."

Even more unusual is the retention of the wood's cellular structure, which already has resulted in the new classification of three species not known before.

Because petrified wood is as valuable to those who would sell it rather than protect it, MacDonald is reluctant to let more be known than some select photographs of the logs he found that don't give away their

Tough ... and tender enough to wear pink

This touching photograph was shot by Erik Ness last weekend at the conclusion of the Cowboys for Cancer Research team roping at the Calhoun

Thanks, also, to all the volunteers who have given their time, talents and treasures to support the NMSU Aggies ARE Tough Enough to Wear Pink and the Cowboys for Cancer Research campaigns.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Teen pregnancy rate in county is a serious concern

According to our latest statistics, Doña Ana County leads New Mexico in the number of 15-17 year old births. New Mexico is second in the nation in teen pregnancies so that places our county near the top for the United States. While the teen pregnancy rate in the United States and overall in New Mexico is dropping, rates in our gounty are increasing.

county are increasing.

We must deal with this because we must focus on the future of children coming from these early pregnancies, the costs involved in supporting these pregnancies and the education of the young mothers. Middle school students are actively having sex, children are being exposed to pornographic websites, prime time television is emphasizing sexual behavior and many children come from dysfunctional families that never discuss sex. So our children need help in Doña Ana County in learning healthy approaches to their reproductive systems, the responsibility of becoming a parent and family planning.

The New Mexico Department of Education has recently presented school districts with the requirement of teaching a health-education curriculum. This contains a comprehensive sex education component meaning we will expose middle-and high-school students to information on abstinence as well as on birth control. The information is to be scientifically accurate and to be taught in the context of our total physical and mental being. Comprehensive sex education will provide for better decision making and hopefully decrease the number of teen pregnancies.

Based on a government sponsored research project by Mathematica Policy Research Inc.

which reviewed abstinence-only programs, the conclusion was offered that abstinence-only programs don't work in affecting the teen pregnancy birth rate. The federal government in 2007 spent $109 million on these programs. The latest allocations for abstinence-only were squeezed in the SCHIP discussions and reauthorized until Dec. 15. Doña Ana County has had the abstinence-only program in our schools and it has done little to change sexual behaviors.

The director has taken the position that they will not work with any programs that discuss contraception. This may result in abstinence-only being removed from our public school classrooms since our schools will be teaching comprehensive sex education.

A Teen Pregnancy Summit will be held on Nov. 9 at the Doña Ana County Government Center, 845 N. Motel Blvd., from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. We will develop a plan for our county on how to reduce our teen birth rate. We invite all who have an interest in this topic to attend. You can contact me at canern@zianet.com for more information on the summit.

Senator remained true to his local roots

'Moderate' label may have kept Domenici from party's vice presidential nomination

Inside

Pete Domenici has always been special. There has been something about him ever since we became acquainted a half century ago that makes him stand out.

Pete was six years ahead of me at the University of New Mexico but we were both members of the same fraternity and Pete often dropped by the house to visit old friends, and maybe to make some new ones.

I had a room just above the entrance to our fraternity house so I quickly became aware when Pete would walk up to the house in late

I don't remember him ever coming inside to chat. Someone always noticed him approaching and would yell "Hey, Bocce's here.

The story back then was that when Pete was born, his father observed that his head was as round as a bocce ball. Now I read that it was an aunt who said the 10-pounder was as round as a bocce ball. The name stuck with him through college, and with old friends much longer.

Pete commanded an adoring crowd. To him I was just another face in that crowd at the time, but our career paths would bring us closer.

He had a charisma that inspired confidence. He lost only one political race in his life. That was to powerhouse Bruce

King who chalked up a defeat on many candidates' political records.

Pete has always been quick-witted and fun to talk with. In the Senate, he has been hailed as a genius for his grasp of the federal budget. Although I never heard him claim the title, college friends joked that he was the only student in history to major in everything but nursing.

I'm not sure what that means, but it doesn't mean he isn't smart. If true, it could mean he took his time making a career choice. He didn't choose politics until he was practicing law and decided to run for the Albuquerque City Commission.

Even then, he continued his law practice despite serving as commission chairman, the equivalent of being mayor. After Domenici's loss to Bruce King in the 1970 gubernatorial election, he saw another opportunity in the 1972 U.S. Senate race.

Longtime Sen. Clinton Anderson had announced his retirement. He also said he would like to cap his political career by serving as state Democratic chairman. But a number of young Democrats thought it was time for some changes. Rudy Ortiz beat Anderson for state chairman.

So instead of Anderson presiding over a fifth decade of Democratic domination of New Mexico's two U.S. Senate seats, Anderson sat back, refusing to get involved.

Democrat leaders were scared. They knew what this could mean. A story floats in Democratic circles that Domenici was extended an offer to become the Democratic senatorial candidate, but it fell through because Pete didn't seem interested and because of strong resistance from New Mexico's other U.S. Sen. Joe Montoya.

Democratic bosses had thought they might have a chance of enticing Domenici to their side. He was moderate and had been popular with Democrats when he headed the non-partisan Albuquerque City Commission.

But Pete stuck with the Republican Party and has continued to have strong support among Democratic voters, becoming the longest-serving senator in state

Domenici calls himself a conservative when he runs for office because that is a good way to win elections. But now that he has stepped away from political life, it won't hurt him for me finally to reveal

Pete is not a conservative - at least in Washington terms. If he were, he would have moved up his party's hierarchy. His Republican colleagues admired him and knew he was smart as a whip, or even a floor leader, pardon the pun.

But every time he started his path toward party leadership, he was knocked back by those who considered him a mod-erate. He might even have become President George H.W. Bush's vice president in 1988 had he possessed credentials sufficiently acceptable to the nominating

But Pete Domenici remained true to the values held by a majority of New Mexicans, including not getting rich in office.

Letters to the Editor

Abstinence lauds educators

I would like to thank all the school administrators, principals and teachers for their support of our abstinence-until-marriage curriculum. I recently received the teen birth rate figures from the local Department of Health epidemiologist. The teen birth rate in Doña Ana County has declined as funding for abstinence education has been made available through the Doña Ana County Health Services Grant, New Mexico Title V funding, and the Community Based Abstinence Education grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

From  $20\bar{0}0$  to 2002 the teen birth rate went from 48.3to 57.3 respectively. The smallest increase occurred with 60.6 in 2003 to 60.8 in 2004. The Community Abstinence Network started receiving significant funds in 2003 for abstinence to implement Project Reality's Game Plan and Navigator abstinence programs. As funding has increased, the number of teen births has decreased. In 2005 the teen birth rate was 57.6. New Mexico as a whole saw an increase in teen births 15-19 from 59.8 in 2004 to 61.7 in 2005. In Doña Ana County, the teen birth rate went from 80.3 in 2004 to 76.6 in 2005. Since 2003, we tion and school-based health centers, there were no new programs or education initiated during that time and existing programs showed increased teen births 15-19 from 69.4 in 2000 to 79.9 in 2003.

The MVPRC-Community Abstinence Network's abstinence program is the only variable change during that time frame and should receive recognition for their success in the work to decrease teen pregnancy in Doña Ana County.

The fair will focus on helping college students, alumni and qualified members of the community find internships, co-ops and full-time employment with federal, state and municipal government agencies.

NMSU is one of five universities chosen by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) to help attract talented people for federal service as a part of its Federal Career Days initiative. The other selected universities are Louisiana State University, University of New Mexico, Duquesne University in Pittsburgh and Ohio State University.

About 52 agencies have registered for the event, and 43 of them are at the federal level. Participating agencies include the U.S. Postal Service, the U.S. Department of State, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the U.S. Department of Transportation and even the CIA. State and municipal level agencies will attend as well.

The showcase is free, and college students from throughout the region are invited to the event as well as the qualified public. Participants should prepare several copies of their resumes, dress professionally and expect to interact and discuss employment opportunities with government and nonprofit agencies.

Since the Pearce news broke this week, state Rep. Joe Cervantes' name is again being mentioned for both the Congressional and Senate races, though Cervantes has been disinclined to embark on a statewide race at this point in time. State Rep. Jeff Steinborn and Deming state Sen. John Arthur Smith also are reportedly considering a run. On the Republican side, Las Cruces state Sen. Lee Rawson and Earl Greer of Truth or Consequences are reported to being

The powers of regeneration

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

Every time I see a moose head mounted on somebody's wall, I marvel at the size of their horns. They must weigh 40 pounds! It would be the equivalent of me wearing a cowboy hat made of cinder blocks. Night and day for months in a row.

What is even more amazing is that they shed these giant racks annually, take a few weeks off and then spend the next year growing them back!

The same thing applies to deer and elk, but for sheer mass of bone, the moose puts them to shame.

Why is it that longhorn steers, wildebeest and pronghorn antelope don't shed their horns? Are they shy? Is it a fashion consideration, a long-term commitment ... do they need them year round to fight, dig roots or write their name in the bark?

If you want to salute the king of regeneration, look at the lizard. He has the ability to lose his tail, have it broken off and grow a new one back. Talk about commitment. That would be comparable to an elephant shedding his trunk and growing a new one!

Maybe with the advance of science, animation and genetic manipulation, we will someday make it possible for an elephant to regenerate a lost trunk. By incorporating lizard genes in the fertilized ovum, we could give new meaning to the term, "nose job." Which leads me to male pattern baldness. Unlike hearing loss, menopause and crankiness, which can be a result of the aging process, loss of hair on the head doesn't necessarily conform to the rules.

Men actually grow more hair in their beard, on their body, in their ears and eyebrows as they get older. So why would some shed the plumage on their head? As a warning to others in the clan of proof of their testosterone level? So they can be more aerodynamic? To attract the 2 percent of females who are also bald?

Which takes us back to the topheavy moose and his habit of shedding his horns every year. It is one of those persistent questions that haunt the universe.

As is Uncle Leonard's penetrating question on his 92nd birthday when he turned Darwin on his head by asking, "Why can't we shed our cojones and keep our teeth!"

RESERVOIR UPDATE

The influence of La Niña is being felt early as the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation reported a scanty snow pack in the mountains that drain into the Rio Grande Basin.

The bureau reported 39 percent of snow pack compared with 302 percent for the same time last year.

La Niña is a weather pattern that forms when the water temperature in the Pacific equatorial region is colder than normal. La Niña brings less precipitation during fall and winter in the Southwest.

Rainfall also has been less than anticipated, and the flow through San Marcial above Elephant Butte Reservoir is 33 percent of average.

The reservoir storage figures are:

Elephant Butte -333,421 acre-feet, 17 percent of a full reservoir, a decrease of 10,928 acre-feet, 81 feet below the dam spillway.

Caballo – 13,396 acre-feet, 6 percent of capacity, a drop of 1,907 acre-feet.

Banquet kicks off Top Teens' year of youth ambassadorship

Besides recognizing 22 good kids, fund-raiser to help with schooling

By TODD G. DICKSON
The Las Cruces Bulletin

They came dressed like they were going to a senior ball, but the 22 Mayor's Top Teens were at a banquet held in their honor at the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum.

While there were a few of their peers, these teens were celebrating the recognition before mostly their families, family friends and sponsors.

The program was inspired by a youth conference held last spring where young people asked why something wasn't done to publicize the good kids to offset bad news about youths when they get into trouble.

Out of that understandable gripe the Mayor's Top Teens program was born in which the young people selected not only had to demonstrate scholastic achievement and perform community service, they had to overcome a significant obstacle in their lives and still set a good example to be a role model to their peers.

good example to be a role model to their peers.

Mayor William "Bill" Mattiace started off the banquet by announcing that the program had raised enough money to create a scholarship endowment fund for the Top Teens. Assured that this beginning will make the Top Teens a perpetual program, Mattiace urged the teens to return in the future as mentors.

"You are now 22 ambassadors for bettering yourselves and giving back to your community," the mayor said. "This recognition is just one rung in your tall ladder of success."

After that introduction, Mattiace let the young people do the talking and many of the speakers practiced giving advice.

"What's right is not always popular, and what's popular is not always right," said Dylan Anderson of Las Cruces High School.

Many of the teens talked of their future, such as Yonseili Flores, an Oñate High School and EXCEL student who also is taking classes at Doña Ana Community College. She said she plans to pursue a career in hotel and tourism management and dreams of some day running a five-star hotel.

For many of the young people, speaking in front of the large crowd was scary. "This is a lot different than speaking in front of my cats," said Patrick Matthew Montelongo of Oñate High School.

Although she had many achievements she could have touted, Las Cruces High student Desiree Gomez talked about how important it is "to be there for the people who are there for you."

By making community service a part of her life, Las Cruces High's Mariam Sanogo said "every step I take is a chance to help take someone else with me." The Top Teens students also came from Mayfield High School, Mesilla Valley Christian Schools and Alma d'arte charter school.

In the coming year, the Top Teens will have a slate of activities and events to participate in. The Bulletin will be profiling each of the Top Teens with individual stories throughout the winter and spring, as well.

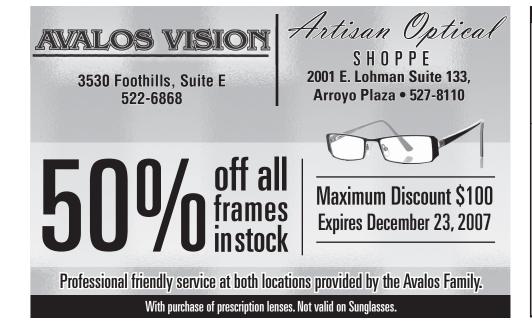

Joshua Rodriguez, one of the Top Teens, offers words of support at the Top Teens banquet held Sunday, Oct. 14, at the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum.

Team roping pulls in a total of 1,027 teams in cancer fight

By Marvin Tessneer

Cowboys for Cancer Research committee members are still tallying collections and donations to determine how much last weekend's team-roping benefit raised, but the turnout is promising.

This year's roping benefit drew a total of 1,027 teams. The money comes from ropers fees, the silent auction, the dinnerdance and corporate and individual donations, committee member Scott Eschenbrenner said.

"The committee will have a meeting in about a week, and then we'll be able to announce the Cowboys for Cancer Research 2007 contribution into the endowment fund," Eschenbrenner said. "We still have contributions rolling in and we have overhead expenses we have to pay.

This year, the C4CR celebrated its silver anniversary raising funds for the Alma Cohorn Cancer Research Endowment. Over the years the roping benefit has contributed about $600,000 for the endowment, which is used in research at the University of New Mexico Cancer Center.

Joel Hernandez, a header from El Paso, won the C4CR three-horse trailer grand prize with a high-point standing of 23

The saddle winners, by handicap rankings, on the Saturday go-around were: No. 5 and Under, Joe Hernandez, and No. 6 and Above, Tom Houghton, Cliff.

The Sunday saddle winners were: No. 5 and Under, Jess Gililland, Tularosa, and No. 6 and Above, Trey Miller, La

Saddles also were awarded to the winning team in the Saturday Mega-Ten roping where each roper paid a $200 entry fee. The winning team, with both ropers from Las Cruces, was header Chad Morris and heeler Brandon Barker.

The UNM Cancer Center also participated in last weekend's C4CR events in Las Cruces. About 50 physicians and staff members attended the roping and dinnerdance, Leann Holt, UNM Cancer Center director of communication and marketing,

"We had a great time," she said. "Partnering with the UNM Cancer Center-South is one of the highlights of our year. We're glad to be in Las Cruces where people can be close to home while undergoing cancer treatment.

On Saturday, six UNM Cancer Center physicians also attended an educational seminar at the UNM Cancer Center-South, requires the expanse of a proposed national monument that would cover more than 5,000 acres.

Some of MacDonald's statements were aimed at opposition by off-roaders whose favorite arroyo-based trails are within the proposed national monument boundaries. Fearing that access to these trails will be curtailed by the national monument status, 4-wheel enthusiast Fred Huff – who was also at the press conference with pamphlets that call for much smaller alternative – contends that all the significant finds were discovered by MacDonald 20 years ago and that there's nothing left to uncover. The petrified wood discoveries shows "we're still finding stuff out there," MacDonald said. "This is all over the place ... it just doesn't end. It just continues."

Add the petrified wood discoveries to the rock records he's found of other plants, insects and the trackways from early amphibians and the area holds a remarkably preserved record of an entire, prehistoric ecosystem, MacDonald said.

"It's got everything," MacDonald said. "It's spectacular for scientists to look at."

MacDonald urged support for the national monument legislation being drafted by U.S. Sen. Jeff Bingaman. Local lawmakers at the press conference said they would do their part to help.

"We need to be known as a community that protects these natural resources," said state Rep. Nate Cote. "It's really an exciting time."

Las Cruces Mayor William "Bill" Mattiace said the city council passed a resolution that added pressure toward the recent Bureau of Land Management decision to close down a nearby rock quarry. "We want to be a city that cares about history and we will continue to do so," he said.

NMSU homecoming events fill weekend

The New Mexico State University Alumni Association will celebrate Homecoming 2007, "Aggie Country through the Ages," until Saturday, Oct. 20, with numerous alumni events, the Aggie Homecoming football game and Reba McEntire performing at the Pan American Center.

The celebrations began Thursday, Oct. 18, with the seventh annual Danny Villanueva Scholarship Breakfast in the Corbett Center Student Union Ballrooms.

To celebrate NMSU's Homecoming with music and entertainment, both Josh Grider and Reba McEntire will perform in concert at the Pan American center. Grider will perform at 8 p.m. and McEntire at 9 p.m. Tickets may be purchased in person at the NMSU Ticket Office, from Ticketmaster at 532-2060 or at www.ticketmaster.com.

The homecoming events on Saturday, Oct. 20, will begin at 7:30 a.m. with the Eye Opener Breakfast in the Corbett Center West and Middle Ballrooms.

The 2007 Homecoming Parade will begin at 10 a.m. at the Pan Am Center. The parade will continue west on University Ave. and turn onto Knox Street where it will end. From 10 to 11 a.m. there will be a President's Homecoming Parade Reception in the Williams Hall Art Gallery.

Silverleaf joins Steinborn

Steinborn GMAC Real Estate has announced that Silverleaf Land & Real Estate Co. Ltd. has agreed to join the company.

"The addition of Silverleaf's 12 Realtors to our team, under the strong leadership of Greg Green and Mary Holiday, is a perfect match based on the mutual values of strong customer service and demonstrated results for the customers we both serve. Not only will we add value to the Silverleaf Group but so too will they add value and new ideas to our team as we continue to grow, together, with Las Cruces," John Hummer, owner and partner of Steinborn, said.

"We were in the process of re-envisioning our organization and establishing new goals. So, when we were invited to join the Steinborn team, we instantly realized this would be a 'win-win' combination," said Greg Green, an owner and partner of Silverleaf.

"We are extremely excited about the

"We are extremely excited about the move. Becoming a part of the Steinborn network is truly wonderful. By combining our mutual talents and experience, we not only enhance what we can offer in terms of real estate services, we also grow collectively as a group. I see this as a tremendous opportunity to grow and better serve our many loyal clients and customers," Mary Holiday, also an owner and partner of Silverleaf, said.

The move and transition of the Silverleaf Group into Steinborn GMAC's headquarter building at 141 Roadrunner Parkway, Suite 141, will be taking place this month. The Realtors of Silverleaf will become Steinborn GMAC team members but operate under the name, "The Silverleaf Group" – Steinborn GMAC Real Estate. In addition to Greg Green and Mary Holiday, The Silverleaf Group includes: Caleb K. Neskahi, Caye Blick, Bonny Siebold, Ryan M. Burkett, Jack L. Hadley, Kelli G. Rausch, Brandon S. Marlowe, Anthony Linus Telles, Xavier M. Gutierrez and Michael A. Stewart.

For more than 45 years, Steinborn Inc. Realtors has been serving the real estate market of southern New Mexico. According to a press release, it is the largest real estate firm in southern New Mexico and is comprised of a residential division affiliated with GMAC Real Estate, a commercial division affiliated with TCN Worldwide and a property management division managing over 300 properties. Steinborn Inc. Realtors has a team of sales associates who are dedicated to providing Premier Service to their customers, the release said.

The release also said that Silverleaf Land & Real Estate Co. Ltd. specializes in land and residential real estate. Silverleaf Land & Real Estate Company maintains an intimate knowledge of numerous developments and subdivisions in southern New Mexico according to the release.

'Great Old Broads' come to support local wilderness effort

Group of atypical 'enviros' pitches in to assist wilderness designation campaign

A group of 20 to 25 older women calling themselves the "Great Old Broads for Wilderness" arrived last week to join the effort to have more than 300,000 acres around Doña Ana County declared as wilderness.

The women visited areas around the Organ Mountains before finishing up with a trip to Broad Canyon in the Robledo Mountains on Sunday, Oct. 14.

Rose Chilcoat, program director, said the group calls these visits and campouts "broadwalks" and are meant to counter anti-wilderness beliefs that only the most able-bodied outdoor enthusiasts can appreciate and enjoy wilderness areas.

"We're here to tell ya that you don't have to be young to enjoy wilderness," said Veronica Egan, executive director.

At their campsites, the group often displays a banner that reads, "It's time to mother nature."

The women say their presence is often disarming to wilderness opponents. "We're not your typical 'enviros," Egan said.

X PRIZE Cup needs event volunteers

Space expo and air show will be free at Holloman

If you attented last year's X PRIZE Cup event in Las Cruces but are concerned about the expense of having to drive to Holloman Air Force Base near Alamogordo, one piece of news could help – there will be no charge for admission to the public portion of the event on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 27 and 28.

That means the weekend of celebration marking

That means the weekend of celebration marking both the 50th anniversary of spaceflight and the 60th anniversary of the Air Force will be free for the 100,000 expected to attend. The event's first day on Friday, Oct. 26, is reserved for school children and the media to see and meet the pilots, astronauts, military representatives and space entrepreneurs.

Meanwhile, X PRIZE organizers are putting out one last call for volunteers to help with all three days of the event. To get this ringside seat to the X PRIZE Cup, most volunteers need only to show up 30 minutes early and Volunteers are needed for functions such as astronaut presentations, hanging banners and manning the expo hall, scoring Pete Conrad Spirit of Innovation Award submissions, helping the education tent, assisting model rocket launches, headquarters operations, being available to be part of a relief unit to pitch in at a moment's notice at nearly any event function and supporting the executive summit. Also, volunteers are needed to help set up and break down displays before and after the event.

Those interested in being a volunteer should contact Jeanne Gehringer, X PRIZE Cup outreach assistant, by emailing her at mjeanne@zianet.com or calling her at 646-7064.

Symposium kicks off X PRIZE Cup week

Annual gathering gauges progress of emerging private spaceflight industry

By NATISHA HALES

A more detailed description of the future of commercial space and New Mexico's involvement can be found during the third annual International Symposium for Personal Spaceflight, which will be held Oct. 24 and 25 at the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum, 4100 Dripping Springs Road.

The symposium isn't just a technical conference, said Patricia Hynes, director of the New Mexico Space Grant Consortium and chair of the symposium.

"Ît's a conference for all of us, so we can learn about the commercial space business that we're developing in southern New Mexico," Hynes said during the 2007 Workforce Summit last week.

She said attendees can "meet" success and failure in the same room, as representatives of Arianespace Inc. – the largest, most successful commercial space launch facility – and Spaceport Florida – which has fallen behind in recent years – will be present on Thursday, Oct. 25.

"When we started our spaceport, Florida's spaceport was ahead of us,"

TAI

Hynes said. "All they did was blink – they lost the political realm and they got confused. In three years, they're way behind us, and they want to catch up. Too late, and if we cover every competitive move, they won't catch up."

Major players in commercial spaceflight, along with local leaders, will serve as panelists throughout the twoday symposium.

Elon Musk, president of Space Exploration Technologies and cofounder of PayPal, and Alex Tai, chief operating officer of Virgin Galactic, will participate in a panel discussion on the risk of starting commercial spaceflight businesses. Tai also will join a panel that will provide an update on Spaceport America.

Anousheh Ansari, the world's first female private space explorer who provided the $10 million cash award for the Ansari X Prize, will participate in panel discussions as a customer of commercial spaceflight.

Other panel discussion topics include the development of launch and space vehicle systems, government requirements of reusable spaceflight, Spaceport America's impact on Doña Ana, Sierra and Otero counties and the fund-raising process for spacerelated services and technologies.

The symposium will be preceded by the PSL Leonard R. Sugerman Public Forum, which will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesday, Oct. 23, at the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum.

"This is a free public forum on how this spaceport construction is going along, what's going on with the International Symposium for Personal Spaceflight and what's going on with the X PRIZE Cup, in particular, the workforce development effort, because everything we do at the New Mexico Space Grant Consortium is to support the development of students, and these events give students interesting hands-on opportunities and internships," Hynes said.

The cost to register for the International Symposium for Personal Spaceflight is $300, and $325 at the door. Meals are included. Registration information can be found on the New Mexico Space Grant Consortium website, http://spacegrant.nmsu.edu/isps/.

Sugar skull workshop

The New Mexico State University Museum, located on University Avenue at Solano Drive, will have a Saturday Family Workshop from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27.

At the workshop, participants will make a sugar skull as part of the Día de los Muertos celebrations. Children and their parents are welcome. All workshops and materials are free. No sign-up is necessary except for large groups of children.

There will be a Saturday Family Workshop on Oct. 20. For more information, call 646-3739.

Science Café looks at land use

As part of its free Science Café series, the Las Cruces Museum of Natural History, 700 S. Telshor Blvd. in the Mesilla Valley Mall, will host a lecture titled "Science for Land Use Planning," by Jack Wright on Thursday, Oct. 25, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Wright will speak about the science that has been developed for determining the best use of land. Included will be information about Graphics Information Studies (GIS) that aid decisions on land-use values and how this technology is being applied in Mesilla. The public is invited to join the discussion.

Science Café is presented by Sigma Xi, the Scientific Research Society, in cooperation with the museum. Café discussions present explanations of current research.

For more information, call the museum at 522-3120.

Animals experts visit museum

The Las Cruces Museum of Natural History, 700 S. Telshor Blvd. in the Mesilla Valley Mall, will present "Animal Encounters" at 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27. ## Women can find emotional Unity Church expands comfort from other women

Pick and choose battles with a rebellious teen-ager

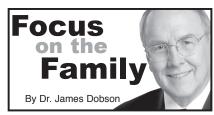

You have suggested that women should seek to meet their emotional needs outside of their marriage. What do you mean?

This principle is particularly important with regard to an emotionally vulnerable woman who is married to a stoic, unromantic man. If she looks to him as the provider of all adult conversation and the satisfier of every emotional need, their marriage can quickly run aground. He has no clue about how to deal with her "soul hunger" or how to make her happy. When she begins to realize that he will never be what she wants, discontent begins to brew in the relationship.

What can be done, then? A woman with a normal range of emotional needs cannot simply ignore them. Something deep within her yearns for fulfillment. One answer is for women in this situation to supplement what their husbands can't give by cultivating meaningful female relationships. Having lady-friends with whom they can talk heart-to-heart, laugh and cry and raise their children can be vital to mental health.

That is precisely how women dealt with social needs in centuries past. Men worked 60 or 70 hours per week and had little time or energy for what might be called "romantic activities." But a well-integrated society of women filled the void. They worked together, had babies together, cooked and canned together and went to church together. And somehow, it was enough.

Why does feminine society not exist in the same way today? Because many women are employed (the neighborhoods are empty), and because the world has become so mobile. The extended family has disintegrated and the culture has moved on. Thus, female companionship is often difficult to find, and many younger women, especially those with two or more preschoolers, abandon the search for friendship. It is simply too much trouble.

To the young wives who are reading these words, I urge you to invest some time in your female friends – even though you are all busy. Resist the temptation to pull into the walls of your home and wish for someone to talk to. Stay involved as a family in a church or a club that meets social needs. Remember that you are surrounded by many other women with similar feelings. Find them. Care for them. Give to them. And in the process, your own self-esteem will rise. Then when you are content, your marriage will also flourish.

It sounds simplistic, but that's the way we are made. We are designed as social creatures who don't do well in isolation. Don't let that happen to you.

In the interest of keeping peace in the household, you have suggested leniency with rebellious teens on issues that don't really matter. What does this mean in practical terms? Give me some examples of demands that would rock my daughter's boat unnecessarily.

Well, you will have to decide what the non-negotiables are to you and your husband. Defend those demands, but lighten up on lesser matters. That may indicate a willingness to let her room look like a junkyard for awhile. Close the door and pretend not to notice. Does that surprise you? I don't like lazy, sloppy, undisciplined kids any more than you do, but given the possibilities for chaos that this girl might precipitate, spit-shined rooms may not be all that important.

You have to ask yourself this question: Is the behavior to which I object bad enough to risk turning the canoe upside down? If the issue is that important, then brace yourself and make your stand. But think through those intractable matters in advance and plan your defense of them thoroughly.

Someday, when the currents have smoothed out again, you may look back with satisfaction that you didn't add to the turbulence when your daughter was bobbing like a cork on a stormy sea.

to full church status

Unity Church of the Mesilla Valley has received its full church status and will hold a celebration of the achievement immediately following the regular 10:30 a.m. service on Sunday, Oct. 21.

"Everyone's very excited about the expansion," said Rev. Terry Lund of Unity Church. "We'd love to have (the community) at our service or at the celebration afterwards."

According to Lund, the church has been under the Expansion Division of the Association of Unity Churches pending their full church status. To receive that status, the church had to receive 501(c) 3 status, incorporate and have at least 50 charter members, in addition to other benchmarks.

Along with the new status, Unity Church now has a full Sunday school with a youth education director and

The expansion church was started by Harriet Valliere in late 2002, and Lund took over the church on Easter Sunday

Lund was a spiritual leader of a church in El Paso before attending ministerial school at Unity Village and becoming ordained in 1989. Afterwards, she served as a reverend in Billings, Mont., before being called back to Unity Village as a teacher.

Tve always wanted to come back to the Southwest, and when this opportunity showed up I couldn't pass it up," she said.

Lund's husband, Jerry, is a licensed Unity teacher, and functions as her co-minister.

According to the church: "Unity is a link in the great educational movement inaugurated by Jesus Christ; our objective is to discern the truth in Christianity and prove it. Our purpose is to help and teach mankind to use and prove the eternal Truth taught by the Master."

Lund describes the Unity movement as "Practical Christianity because we promote putting the teachings of Jesus at work in our own lives. The truth taught by Jesus is just as relevant today as in his lifetime."

Department of Health confirms more West Nile cases in state

Mosquito population expected to decline as Fall brings cooler weather to New Mexico

The New Mexico Department of Health announced recently that it has confirmed 15 new cases of West Nile Virus infection in eight counties in New Mexico. The state has had a total of 42 human cases of West Nile so far this year with two fatalities.

"Mosquitoes have been testing positive for West Nile in very high numbers across the state," said Dr. Paul Ettestad, the Department of Health's public health veterinarian. "We urge people to continue to take precautions against mosquito bites until the first frost in their area. There will be positive mosquitoes circulating until that time."

In Doña Ana County the cases include a 10-year-old boy and a 58-year-old woman with West Nile fever, a 74-year-old man, a 90-year-old woman and a 55-year-old man with West Nile encephalitis. The West Nile fever cases are recovering at home while the encephalitis cases are still hospitalized.

In Bernalillo County, a 72-year-old woman and a 57-year-old woman were diagnosed with West Nile fever, and a 59-year-old man with West Nile encephalitis.

San Juan County has had a 40-year-old man with West Nile meningitis who has been discharged from the hospital and a 48-year-old man with West Nile encephalitis who is still hospitalized.

In Sierra County an 87-year-old man with West Nile encephalitis is still hospitalized.

A 3-year-old boy in Chavez County diagnosed with West Nile fever is home recovering.

McKinley County has a 72-year-old woman with West Nile encephalitis who is hospitalized, in Valencia County an 82-year-old woman with West Nile encephalitis is home recovering, and in Torrance County a 47-year-old woman with West Nile meningitis is now home recovering.

The 42 human cases of West Nile Virus for 2007 come from: Doña Ana County (13), San Juan County (7), Bernalillo County (7), Chaves County (4), Sierra County (2), McKinley County (2), Grant County (1), Roosevelt County (1), Curry County (1), Socorro County (1), Valencia County (1), Torrance County (1), and Rio Arriba County (1). There has also been West Nile in horses and mosquitoes throughout the state.

Common West Nile symptoms include fever, nausea, headache and muscle aches. Symptoms may last from a few days to a few weeks. About four out of five people who are infected with West Nile Virus will not show any symptoms at all. In very rare cases, about one in 150, people infected with West Nile Virus will develop severe illness including meningitis or encephalitis.

Severe symptoms may include high fever, severe headache, neck stiffness, muscle weakness, disorientation, tremors and convulsions. If someone has these symptoms, they should see their health care provider. People older than 50 are at higher risk for severe illness from West Nile Virus.

To avoid West Nile infection:

 Use insect repellent on exposed skin when you go outdoors. Products containing DEET or Picaridin can provide long-lasting protection. Use products with no more than 35 percent DEET for adults and follow the directions on the label for children from ages 2-12. Natural products containing soybean oil or oil of lemon eucalyptus need to be applied more often.

When weather permits, wear loose-fitting, long-sleeved shirts, long pants and socks. Mosquitoes can bite through thin clothing, so use an EPA-registered repellent on your clothing.
The hours from dusk to dawn are peak biting times for

 The hours from dusk to dawn are peak biting times for mosquitoes. Take extra care to use repellent and protective clothing, or consider avoiding outdoor activities during these times.

 Keep windows and doors closed if not screened. If you leave your house doors or windows open, make sure they have screens that fit tightly and have no holes.

Mosquitoes lay their eggs in standing water. Empty water from containers such as old tires, flowerpots and trash receptacles. Circulate water in swimming pools, and change water regularly in birdbaths and pet bowls.

 Vaccinate your horses against West Nile virus, as well as Western Equine Encephalitis also carried by mosquitoes.

 Do not use insect repellents intended for humans on cats and dogs. So far, both have been resistant to the virus.

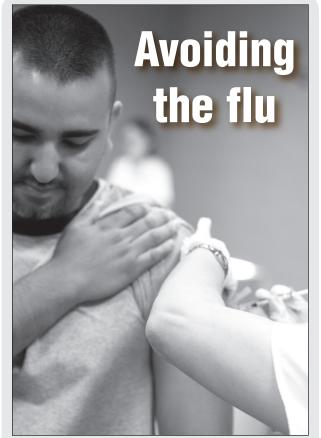

In 2006, New Mexico had eight cases of West Nile with one fatality. New Mexico had 33 cases with two fatalities in 2005, 88 cases with four fatalities in 2004 and 209 cases with four fatalities in 2003.

cases with four fatalities in 2003.

Hospice needs to raise $1.2 million by November 8

Challenge grants brings capital campaign close to $6.2 million fund-raising goal

By TODD DICKSON
The Las Cruces Bulletin

As the Mesilla Valley Hospice's "Continuing the Dream" capital campaign nears meeting its $6.2 million goal for expanding La Posada, two national challenge grants to the nonprofit care facility for the terminally ill helps, but only if the community chips in.

A press conference at La Posada on Wednesday, Oct. 17, announced that the J.E. and L.E. Mabee Foundation is giving the hospice $650,000 to add to a Kresge Foundation challenge grant for the cam-

That means that the foundations will match dollar-for-dollar donations made - or pledged – between Monday, when the latest grant was announce, and Nov. 8, when the hospice plans to break ground for the 14,000-square-foot addition.

To get the grants, the campaign is now calling for the community to donate or pledge $1.2 million over the next three weeks, said John Hummer, who co-chairs the campaign with his wife Amy.

"It is very rare for a national grant to offer that dollar-to-dollar level of match,' he said.

If the campaign doesn't get a total dollar-to-dollar match in local contributions, the hospice will get nothing from the foundations, said Donna Brown, hospice executive director.

"Now is the opportunity for the community to step in," Brown said. "I've always been amazed about what this community can do.' The expansion will primarily add more patient rooms, which is the most important function at La Posada as it provides a caring final home for the terminally ill, said Kiel Hoffman, hospice board president.

Currently, La Posada has 18 beds and a respite room. The addition will increase the number of beds to 30 and provide space to also increase hospice's capacity for assisting in-home care.

Mesilla Valley Hospice's La Posada is the only free-standing hospice in the state, Hoffman noted, so the demand is great. Because the peoples who need hospice are often living on borrowed time, the expansion will serve to help them get in without a long wait, he said.

Hummer, who was in the health care field before moving on to real estate, said he agreed to head the fund-raising campaign because the hospice pro-vides "the most compassionate care I've encountered.

So that finances don't distract from that compassion, Brown is adamant about operating the facility without debt. "That's my burning passion," she said.

Throughout the hospice's existence, Brown said local, state and federal offi-

Crime Stoppers:

September structure fire

Las Cruces Crime Stoppers is offering a $1,000 reward for information that leads to the arrest of the person or persons involved in a fire on Sacramento Street one month ago.

At around 2:30 a.m. on Sept. 16, the Las Cruces Fire Department responded to a fire at 1455 Sacramento St. The structure fire caused damage to the contents of the building and to the structure itself. The fire damage was estimated at more than $5,000.

During the course of their investigation Las Cruces Fire Department investigators discovered that the fire was intentionally set. The investigation is on-going and the Las Cruces Fire Department is asking for the community's assistance in identifying who may have started the fire.

If you have any information regarding this crime, or any other crimes, you can call Las Cruces Crime Stoppers at 526-8000 or outside the Las Cruces area at 1 (800) 897-2746.

The Crime Stoppers number is operational 24 hours a day and you do not have to give your name to collect a reward.

The flu can lead to serious health problems, especially among the elderly and people with chronic diseases. That's why MountainView is offering FREE flu shots to the community, and you don't even have to get out of the car! Just drive up Lohman Avenue towards the back of the hospital, follow the signs, get your shot and go – all from your driver's seat. There is still plenty of time to get the vaccine and be protected for the rest of the flu season. So, this season, drive the flu away!

C-SPAN bus to visit Las Cruces Tuesday

Local residents will be among the first in the nation to see C-SPAN's new Campaign 2008 Bus as part of the "Road to the White House" tour, when the bus stops in Las Cruces on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

The 45-foot mobile production studio is on the campaign trail to promote and enhance C-SPAN's comprehensive political coverage and also to conduct educational programs for teachers and students.

On Tuesday, Oct. 23, the bus will make stops at Oñate High School, 5700 Mesa Grande Drive from 9 a.m. to noon and at

New Mexico State University from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

A revamped version of the network's award-winning School Bus, the Campaign 2008 bus sports a new exterior design wrap in election themes along with interior modifications that include the latest television production equipment.

C-SPAN's political coverage is on C-SPAN Radio, c-span.org, and the 2008 election Web site, CampaignNetwork.org. In Las Cruces, Comcast carries C-SPAN on channel 17, C-SPAN2 on channel 18, and C-SPAN3 on channel 105.

Candidates give visions on future

S.N.M. High Tech Consortium holds candidates forum

By BETHANY CONWAY

Adequate infrastructure, workforce development and an advanced educational system – these were city candidates' main concerns at the High Tech Consortium of Southern New Mexico's (HTC) candidates forum.

Candidates Candidates gave their visions of a future of hightech business in Las Cruces, and topics included ultra broadband technologies, the commercial spaceport and the barriers facing business-es moving to southern New Mexico.

Those attending asked for the strategies candidates would use in terms of bringing technological innovation to the city in order to attract these new businesses.

Candidates and incumbents cited their own back-grounds as proof of experience with small business development.

Ken Miyagishima, city councilor for District 6 and mayoral candidate, stressed a lack of adequate infrastruc-ture, lack of significant tax credits for high-tech businesses moving to New Mexico and inadequate public information regarding the benefits and contributions of high-tech industries and business as the major factors affecting the

Las Cruces business market. Regarding the commercial spaceport, he said the reason he could not support it in its entirety was that he believed it should have been a state-wide vote instead of a county

He said that he thought it was important to look at how other states have developed their spaceports and collaborate with them.

"We can share our ideas, our goals and other pertinent information. We can work together. Environmental impact studies and economic impact studies are very important," he said.

Incumbent and mayoral candidate William "Bill" Mattiace, said that during his time as mayor the city has seen a dramatic increase in funds that will eventually help to build the infrastructure that the city needs.

"I think we are on a positive road, we just need to

Downtown TIDD process begins

Tax Increment Development District would revitalize area

By Todd G. Dickson
The Las Cruces Bulletin

Downtown property owners may be asked if they are willing to borrow money to support revitalization projects to be paid off by future growth in gross receipts and property taxes through a Tax Increment Development District for the city's Downtown area.

The Las Cruces City Council on Monday,
Oct. 15, approved a resolution that signals its intent to bring the question before the property owners to vote on approving the TIDD.

As simple as this action sounds on the surface, the question was the subject of lengthy discussion at the meeting.

Though now a common revitalization tool in other states, creating a TIDD wasn't possible until a recent action of the New Mexico Legisla-ture. That's attractive to backers of the Downtown revitalization plan in that it provides a way to fund some of the work in manner that does not overtly take money away from other city projects.

Here's how the TIDD would work. If a majority of the property owners vote to form a TIDD, money toward improvement projects, such as reopening side streets, would be borrowed. Those bonds would be paid off over a 25-year period by committing the gross receipt taxes and property tax payments that exceed the year previous to TÍDD approval. How much a Downtown the TIDD approval. How much a Downtown TIDD will generate is not yet clear, but it will be driven by predictions of the improvement of GRT and property tax generated there.

Simple enough, assuming that GRT and property taxes do increase. Councillor Ken Miyagishima asked what happens if the increase revenues don't come through.

The TIDD would be responsible, but such

One of the possible uses for money generated by the proposed Tax Increment Development District would be to pay for re-opening closed side streets coming off of Main Street, such as this former side street next to Dutch's Meat Market.

a scenario would put the city's general fund at risk, said Mark Sutter, director of the city's financial services department.

"I really want to support this," Miyagishima said. "But I would prefer a work session first."

That work session would include stakeholders such as Downtown property owners and would look at other places that have used TIDDs. Though he did not win an official city council work session, City Manager Terrence Moore agreed to hold an informal meeting in the City Council Chambers at 1 p.m. Monday, Oct. 29, to look at some of the questions being raised, such as how much money the TIDD is expected to generate.

There is a tight timetable to be followed in order for 2006 tax collections to be the baseline on which to measure the tax growth, or increment. Following some notification requirements and public hearings, the city council would have to pass another resolution – scheduled for Nov. 19 – to call for the TIDD election, which would be done by mail-in ballot from the prop-erty owners with each fifth of an acre counting for one vote. The ballots would be collected by mail between Dec. 10 and 15, with canvassing of votes completed by Dec. 17.

Solutions offered at Workforce Summit

Business, education and community leaders come together

By Natisha Hales

As local and state leaders in business and education gathered for the 2007 Workforce Summit hosted by Doña Ana Community College last week, one thing was consistent among each speaker Las Cruces cannot compete on a global level with an average

Average, however, is what Las Cruces has been ranked when it comes to the local workforce and business climate ratings, said Steve Vierck, president and chief executive officer of the Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance.

"It's gotten more and more competitive for jobs," he said. Vierck said Las Cruces' unemployment is lower than it's ever been – approximately 3.9 percent compared to 9.7 percent in 1997 but the job and wage quality could be improved.

"We're 30 percent below the national average and 10 percent behind the state, which is kind of at the bottom of the barrel," he said. "We're not poor, but we're not great either. We're not doing as good as we should be.

Although the cost of labor is significantly less in other countries, such as China and Mexico, Vierck said the community can step up by "competing on qualwhich could be done through

According to a survey conducted by MVEDA, New Mexico State University and DACC were rated high by employers – ranging from 3.32 to 3.41 on a four-point scale – and the public school education system was rated a 2.3 on the same four-point scale.

The fair column is not where we need to be," Vierck said.
Of the comments from those surveyed, Vierck said a recurring comment was that most younger employees lack certain skills for employment or they lack the ini-

"We're losing a lot of our mostskilled people, and that's going to affect how we compete," he said. 'We're not making it in terms of overall basic skills.'

Preparation is the key to getting business loans

Organizations assist in overcoming lending challenges

By PAUL GOBLET Financial Advisor, New Mexico Small Business Investment Corporation

Editor's Note: This article is part of a series of articles promoting a state-wide initiative by the New Mexico Small Business Investment Corporation (NMS-BIC), in collaboration with its lending, investment and education partners, to provide and distribute articles that aid small business owners and entrepreneurs in obtaining investment funds available through the State of New Mexico. Designed as a financial literacy program, the idea focuses on educating readers about basic business preparation concepts, the funds and services that may be available to readers and the means to access them

Unlike securing a consumer loan for a home or car, getting a business loan can be difficult. Consumer loans have become readily available, and often a borrower can be pre-approved based on his or her credit score.

A business loan, on the other hand, demands far more documentation, takes longer to close, and is often based on both the historical success of the business and the personal financial strength of the

There are many reasons for this. Valuing a business is not as simple as having an appraisal on a home because there are fewer comparisons – not many businesses are exactly like yours. Nor can the business be sold as quickly as a home or car.

The New Mexico Small Business Investment Corporation (NMSBIC) tries to make the process of obtaining a business loan easier. Through its financial partners, like ACCIÓN New Mexico, WESST Corp. or The Loan Fund, we have provided funding for more than 1,300 business loans throughout the state. While each financial partner has their own credit approval process and each requires different documentation, these partners are accustomed to working with small businesses that might otherwise have trouble securing a loan from a traditional bank.

Like bank loans, most business loans available through our partners are based on the value of assets such as buildings, equipment, inventory and receivables. Lenders also want to know how profitable the business has been for the last few years. The better prepared you are to provide this information, the more likely you are to receive the loan you are looking for

ing for.
The Small Business Development Center (SBDC) helps business owners think through this process by providing classes and business counseling in twenty centers around the state. These services are provided free or at low cost and can be invaluable to the business owner, especially when a loan request is being contemplated. Counselors can help business owners prepare a formal business plan that provides the essential information that will assist the lender in understanding the purpose of the loan.

Do you need a business plan to get a loan? No. Do you need a well documented loan request with all the details about why the loan is requested and how it will be paid back? Probably. Would it help to have a business plan and other background documents in hand when making the loan request? Definitely yes!

If a business has ample assets to pledge as collateral, has been profitable, is known and well-regarded in the community, and the owner can provide the last three years of tax statements, lenders might be inclined to make the loan more quickly without needing as much documentation. Unless you can provide most of this, however, you will need to thoughtfully prepare in advance. All lenders, whether they are banks or non-profit community development agencies, will deny your request if you can not demonstrate that you have thoughtfully planned the manner in which the money will be used to grow your business.

What if the business doesn't exist yet and you merely have an idea? It is even more important to have a well-prepared business plan with financial projections, in order to explain everything in detail since the risks perceived by the lender are so much greater.

While the Legislature has created and funded the NMSBIC to provide loans and to make investments in New Mexico businesses, it is our duty to protect the taxpayer's dollars by making quality loans and investments. Our financial partners have well-established credit policies and, while they use underwriting standards and loan documents that may vary slightly from one another, each partner endeavors to structure and issue loans that will perform well over the life of the loan. For a listing of loan partners and their specialties, please refer to www. financenewmexico.com

Resources, both educational and financial, are available to New Mexico businesses. It's up to you to be prepared.

Look for future articles to assist you in obtaining business skills and funding resources for a start-up or existing business. To learn more about resources available to New Mexico businesses, go to www.FinanceNewMexico.org.

match the finances, the resources, with the visions," Mattiace said. "We are headed (toward the) spaceport, we are headed (toward the) convention center, we are headed (toward) space tourism. I say space tourism because that is the gross receipts tax, that is the money that feeds the general fund. If you can bring 100,000 people into the city from the spaceport to do some symposiums, do some research, stay in our hotels, that's when you can bring the digital age to the city.

Candidates for city council had similar responses to HTC questions, and spoke about "selling" Las Cruces to high-tech companies and creating an infrastructure that would support these companies.

District 2 incumbent Dolores Connor and District 1 candidate Ron Gurley spoke of a need for better education within our schools to prepare individual students for high-tech careers. "If you look at the dropout rate, to me that is one of the most serious problem we are facing. How do we get down to the high schools, the middle schools and try to help those kids out," Gurley said. "These high tech companies want to know about the Las Cruces school system. We have to go out and sell Las Cruces, sell what we have to offer."

Connor is currently participating in the Regional Educational Initiative, a collaborative effort to address workforce development and prepare students to work in a global environment.

"As far as the workforce and the educational system, those have to go together obviously," Connor said. "We have to start way sooner than 10th grade. We can do it within the school system, but they are constrained by national standards. We have to do it outside of the school system holding hands with the schools the whole time.

She also touched on the benefits of the Arrowhead Research Park and said it will help address space issues and act as an intermediary between the academic, research and business communities.

Isaac Chavez, candidate for District 4, spoke about marketing Las Cruces on a global level. He said Las Cruces are losing opportunities because of a lack of infractive is a leaf of the said Las Cruces are infrastructure, including a lack of warehouse and office space.

"I absolutely agree that we need to work on our communications infrastructure here in Las Cruces," Chavez said. "That goes back to the Wi-Fi access, the fiber optic network, the workforce development. The more businesses that we can recruit here as far as high-tech We can draw a lot of people here and a lot of investment here if we can just get Steven Montaño, candidate for District 4, spoke of marketing Las Cruces around the United States and increasing incentives for businesses, especially those concerning workforce development.

He said that the city is fortunate to be part of a college community bringing people from miles around to go to New Mexico State University.

"The City of Las Cruces should really push NMSU; they are doing a great job with the Arrowhead Research Center," Montaño said. He said that workforce development is a top priority and local businesses can help.

"I would ask all of the businesses here to open their doors to some of these young people. You guys are positive influences in our community and sometimes that is what these young people need," he said. "If you open your door to these people, you'll open their minds to many

Building Las Cruces Citizens Bank of Las Cruces

Construction on the newest branch of Citizens Bank of Las Cruces is under way. The new full-service branch at 3030 W. Picacho Ave., near Motel Boulevard, will serve west Las Cruces and the entire West Mesa Scheduled to open in May 2008, the 9,000-square-foot location will provide West Mesa residents with a full line of commercial and retail banking products and services. In addition to providing commercial and consumer lending services, the branch will provide a 24-hour drive-through ATM and safe deposit boxes. The building also will have 4,000 square feet available as lease space. The building was designed by Studio D Architects and will be built by John Curry Construction.

HSAs optimize employee health care benefits while reducing costs

Health care is rapidly becoming a critical cost issue for employers and employees alike. With health care premiums escalating 73 percent since 2000, according to a Kaiser Family Foundation survey, many business owners are turning to Health Savings Accounts (HSAs) paired with a High Deductible Health Plan (HDHP) to control costs, attract quality employees and compete effectively in the marketplace.

Created by the Medicare Modernization

Act of 2003; HSAs help individuals save for qualified medical expenses and retiree health expenses on a tax-advantaged basis. Since Health Savings Accounts (HSAs) first became effective in January 2004, the popularity of these plans is increasing. In January 2006, enrollment topped 3 million, more than triple the number from just eight months prior, according to the Center for Policy and Research. Industry analysts predict HSA enrollment will grow to 15 million by 2010 and 30 million by 2015, according to Celent Consulting.

The reasons for their growing popularity are simple. HSAs help make health coverage more affordable, encourage more prudent use of health services and allow tax-free spending on a wide range of medical expenses.

Benefits to Employers

Whether you are the owner of a small or large business, the benefits are the same. HSAs work with a high deductible health insurance plan to:

Reduce your health care benefit costs By offering a HDHP, your premium costs may be 30-40 percent less than traditional health plans.

Control medical costs

You can make contributions to an employee's HSA up to the annual limit: the lesser of the plan deductible or $2,700 for single coverage and $5,450 for family coverage.

Reduce taxes

Your contributions are excluded from your employee's adjusted gross income and can be deducted as a business expense.

Trim administrative work

Following enrollment in an HSA, the custodian takes over record-keeping including IRS reporting and regulatory reviews freeing up your staff for other tasks. For a small business, a HDHP bundled with an HSA may be the difference between offering your employees' health benefits or none at all.

Benefits to Employees

Your employees will see an equal, if not greater benefit in an HSA including:

Reduced insurance premiums -Insurance premiums are usually lowered 30 percent to 40 percent. Employees can

- Tax benefits Similar to an IRA/401K, contributions to an HSA are excluded from an employee's gross income and grow tax-deferred. Withdrawals used for qualified medical expenses are tax-free.
- Portability Employees own and manage their accounts and can take the funds with them should they leave your
- employment.

  Flexibility Unlike flexible spending arrangements, there are no "use it or lose it rules." Employees can save unused funds for use in later years.
- Greater control over health care
- Employees will take an active decision making role in their health care. They will be empowered to select a provider based on price and quality. Funds may be withdrawn from their account to pay for deductibles, co-insurance, dental and vision care and other items including long term care (LTC) insurance.
- Opportunity to supplement retirement income, save for medical expenses - Since the money in an HSA grows tax-deferred, employees will have another opportunity to invest their funds to maximize their earning power.

Once they are 65, they can withdraw funds for any non-medical purposes at ordinary income tax rates in addition to still being able to withdraw tax-free amounts for qualified medical expenses. Overall, HSAs present new opportunities for employers interested in pursuing consumer-directed health plans. But the greatest hurdle will be a well-designed plan and educating your employees on the benefits.

A financial professional can help you develop a strategy to help increase enrollment rates. The biggest driver of HDHP/ HSA adoption by employees is an employee match or contribution. Roughly one-third of employers who contribute to employee HSAs offer between $250 and $499, according to a survey by the Council of Insurance Agents & Brokers, with 18 percent offering $500 to $749 and 17 percent contributing

Work with a financial professional on contribution amounts from flat dollars or percentages to a tiered approach who can also provide guidance on how to amend your 125 Cafeteria Plan to allow for pre-tax contributions. Employer contributions are subject to nondiscrimination requirements. In general, you must make comparable contributions for all employees in each coverage category (single coverage or family coverage).

While HSAs provide the opportunity to address the underlying problem of the affordability of health care coverage, the most significant difference in employee satisfaction will be to communicate the health benefits and encourage employees to take more control over their own health. You should select a custodian for your HSAs that provides strong communication programs and decision-support tools.

Employees are given greater control at each stage of health care-decision making. That requires detailed information from the cost of health plans to information on health care providers to programs that track their medications and provide them with lifestyle and behavior choices that could impact their short and long term

While implementation and adoption of a new health care program is no small task, studies have shown that the level of employer commitment to promote healthy behavior and responsible financial management has a direct effect on the behavior of plan participants and how much money is saved in the HAS, according to McKinsey and Company. Ultimately, employers will get out as much as they put in.

Lettuce crop a gamble

Early prices look good

By Marvin Tessneer

Mesilla Valley farmers have learned that raising iceberg lettuce is a risky business, but a few are taking the gamble with the current fall lettuce crop.

The Mesilla Valley lettuce quality is rated excellent, the kind that buyers look for, according to a growers survey.

The valley lettuce crop is vulnerable to the market, which fluctuates day-to-day, depending on what happens in other lettuce-growing areas, Doña Ana County Extension horticulturist John White reported.

"Lettuce has to be harvested in its prime," White said. "But if the market isn't right, the farmer has to wait to harvest. But he can't wait too long, maybe a couple of weeks. If he waits too long the lettuce heads begin to break down in quality and go into seed bolting. It loses it crispness and flavor, it doesn't ship well and can begin to rot.

If the market is slow and the lettuce heads start breaking down, the farmer has to plow the crop under, which puzzles con-

"After making that initial investment to plant the lettuce the farmer losses all the money when he has to plow under," White said. "It also costs him a lot of money to plow the crop under."

Lettuce is a risky crop, White emphasized. If the market is good, the farmer can make money, but if it is weak, he loses money. Farmers are sensitive to market fluctuations and are reducing acreage. Last year, the fall lettuce crop was about 600 acres, and this year's preliminary estimates are about 400 acres, White said.

"Lettuce growers here usually plant to fit a crop pattern, right after major crop harvest or just before a major crop is planted,"

White said. "And the market is influenced by what happens to the California or Arizona lettuce crops, which come off before we do, like if it rains there during harvest and ves us a window in the market.'

Charles Johnson Co., a lettuce broker with a seasonal office in Las Cruces, reported that it could be harvesting for another four weeks, depending on the market. The quality has been rated good, and there has been a lettuce shortage.

That is when the demand-supply formula kicks in. The demand is high and the prices, as of last week, have been in the $15 to $25 per 50-pound carton range, the brokerage reported.

Lettuce grower Buddy Tharp reported good quality and good yields in the Las Cruces area. His crews have been cutting and packing about 900, 50-pound cartons per acre this fall. The average is about 800 cartons an acre.

Joe Nelson, who farms in the southern part of the county, said that with the good weather conditions his lettuce is growing well and will be ready for harvest in a couple of weeks.

Stormy Adams of Hatch reported that he has wrapped up harvest in his 100 acres of lettuce in the Uvas Valley northwest of Hatch, averaging 774 cartons per acre. He also plans to harvest another 30 acres south of Las Cruces in two or three weeks.

"The quality has been good," Adams said. "The head size is good, the color is good, and that's what buyers look for."

The USDA Agricultural Marketing Service is reporting: "Iceberg lettuce, supply light, demand good, market higher."

Shipments of New Mexico fall lettuce, as of earlier this week, totaled 229 tractortrailer loads, each totaling 900, 50-pound cartons, the New Mexico Department of Agriculture, Marking and Development, reported.

N.M. gives go-ahead for credit freeze option

Feds move on 'phantom income' mortgage relief bill

Beginning July 1 of this year, the State of New Mexico began making available to you and me a new tool designed to help us protect ourselves from the growing problem of identity theft. That tool is known as the credit "security freeze." In essence, the "freeze" locks, or freezes, access to our credit reports and our credit scores so that potential creditors, aspiring thieves and other third parties won't be able to poke around in our files unless we give the OK.

Who may take advantage of this newly available safeguard? Any New Mexico consumer is eligible to order a freeze, but keep in mind that freezing a file slows down the approval process for any type of credit you or I may want to obtain. To place a freeze, we simply submit a request to each of the three credit bureaus: Experian, Trans Union and Equifax. The bureaus are obligated to put the freezes in place within three business days if they receive the request by mail, or within 15 minutes if they receive the request by secure electronic method or by telephone beginning on Sept. 1, 2008. We're then issued a pin number so that we can unlock our files at will.

For those of us who are over the age of 65 and/or have been the victims of identity theft, the credit reporting agencies will initiate the service at no charge. For the rest of us, however, putting the freeze in place will cost us $10 at each of the three repositories. The freezes will stay in place until we say otherwise, but certain entities will still have access to our information. Our current creditors and collection agencies acting on their own behalf are two such entities, with other creditors who want to make us offers of credit being another.

Government agencies will also be allowed to nose-around in our files if they're collecting child support payments or taxes or investigating Medicaid fraud. Search warrants, administrative orders and subpoenas issued by government agencies are also keys that can easily unlock our files. Security freezes can be lifted for a brief period of time by paying a $5 fee to each repository. As in the initiation process, senior citizens over 65 years of age and folks who have been the victims of identity theft are not charged the fee.

To learn all there is to know about security freezes, fraud alerts, identity theft, do not call legislation and about opting out of being on the receiving end of unsolicited offers, contact any or all of the three credit bureaus and the Federal Trade Commission. They have the definitive answers you and I need

Now, on to our other "top" story: Did you know that our beloved Internal Revenue Service tax code carries a provision that essentially punishes financially strapped homeowners who have successfully negotiated a short sale with their lender? It's true! Here's how it works: Let's say you and I owe $200,000 on a property for which we can only get $175,000 on the open market. Let's also say that we're behind in our payments and don't have the resources to make up the $25K shortage.

One of our options would be to ask our mortgage company to accept the $175K "short" payoff and call things even-Steven. Our mortgage company might just make that deal with us if their fuzzy math indicates that they'd net more money through our short sale than they would following a foreclosure action. If we're successful, we're out from under our mortgage and on our way to financial recovery. But wait! We may be out from under our mortgage, but we're not out from under the long arm of the IRS.

Under current law, the federal tax code demands that the IRS collect from us income taxes on the full amount of the debt that was forgiven. In our case, we'd have to add the full amount of the shortage - $25 grand - to our ordinaryincome when we do our taxes for the year in which we sold the place. Talk about adding insult to injury. First we go broke, then the IRS wants to tax us on our "phantom income."

Enter House-passed bill HR-3648, which would prohibit the IRS from taxing us on the hard-earned shortage we negotiated with our lender. Also included in the bill is a provision to extend the deductibility of private mortgage insurance and FHA loan insurance premiums, from the end of 2007 through 2014. The bill would be retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year. Similar legislation is pending in the Senate

While Congress is taking these positive steps to help us more easily afford our current home and to help us avoid paying income tax when we have to sell "short," it still has to tackle the question of where it'll get the monies to replace the income lost as a result of giving us the tax breaks. Proposed is a provision to close a loophole that currently allows owners of second homes to convert their vacation or second home to a primary residence.

Under current rules, purchasers of second homes can convert them to principal residences, live in them for two years, and take the full $250,000/$500,000 (single/married) capital gains exclusions even though portions of their gains were attributable to times when the property was used as a vacation home, not a principal residence. Effective Jan. 1, 2008, if a homeowner owned a vacation home for five years, but lived in it as a principal residence for only the final two years prior to the sale, the exclusion would be reduced by three-fifths (or 3 of the 5 years that the property was not used as a principal residence). In that scenario, the maximum $500,000 exclusion would be reduced to $200,000.

There's always more to talk about than space allows, so we'll have to continue our discussion here next week and on my Monday radio show. Until then, I hope to ...

SUE DEERMAN,

Store Owner

By Bethany Conway

For Sue Deerman, it has been a lifelong dream to open a clothing store that moves to the beat of a different drum.

Charlotte's Fashions, 1900 S. Telshor Blvd., is the embodiment of that dream, offering mature fashions for everyone from teen-agers to grandmothers, all moderately priced.

The store items include clothing, jewelry, swimsuits and a prosthesis line for women who have received a mastec-

'We have had style shows where models are as young as 16, and we can find clothes in here to fit (teen-agers). We have a great line of jeans that have the mid-rise that the girls like," Deerman said.

Charlotte's Fashions holds monthly fashion shows to market their products, including a luncheon coming up on Saturday, Oct. 27, at Golden Mesa, 151 Roadrunner Parkway. Most of the shows are open to the public, and she has even held fashion shows at NMSU.

"Those little ladies have so much fun. At the (fashion show) we just had there were about 50 women there. We had a 16-year-old and a 91-year-old. We hit both sides of the spectrum, and they were great," Deerman said

She frequently travels to Las Vegas and Dallas to find the latest fashions and also has representatives come by her store.

On top of their unique clothing and custom jewelry, Charlotte's Fashions offers a mastectomy prosthesis line that includes prosthetic breasts, as well as specially made bras and swimsuits.

"We want to improve our mastectomy prosthesis line," she said. "We get a lot of referrals (from local physicians), and we accept Medicare and Blue Cross Blue

One of my grandsons was born the day I opened my store, so it was very memorable. It made it special," she said.

Deerman said she is happy with her store and does not plan on expanding, only serving her clientele here in Las Cruces and the surrounding area.

"I love my store. I love the reputation that has grown with Charlotte's. I think it's a very reliable store."

IN GOOD COMPANY: CHARLOTTE'S FASHIONS

What inspired you to go into business?

Owning a women's clothing store has always been a dream of mine. I love clothes and enjoy working with people. After being a stay-at-home mom, always keeping the books on our farm in La Mesa, the opportunity to have a store came about. Charlotte's opened on Feb. 1, 2001 and after almost seven years, I am still enjoying my store and my only regret is that I didn't work on my dream earlier.

What is unique about your business?

The reason you go to a smaller boutique is to find something that department stores don't have, or at least not 10 of one thing. Charlotte's usually has four sizes of a style. If a client needs a special size we can call the manufacturer for a special order if it is not in stock. Also, Charlotte's offers personal service. We are familiar with the clothing on the floor so we can help the client with her

Who are your customers?

Charlotte's customers are usually age 35 and up. However, we have had style shows for organizations with models starting at 16 years old. We can usually dress any age depending on the occasion. Charlotte's carries casual to dressy, petite, missy and plus sizes.

Where do you see the business in five years?

Going into the next five years, I hope to keep growing with Las Cruces. Las Cruces is a great community with wonderful people. More and more people are moving into this area from so many parts of the United States because of our climate and economy. We are fortunate to still have a small-town environment. One of the first comments made by some of our new clients is what friendly people live in Las Cruces.

What is your business philosophy?

Charlotte's is in business to serve the women in our area. We are here to "fit your lifestyle." When we sell a

How do you keep your competitive edge?

By going to several different markets I see many of today's styles. The Las Vegas, Nev., and Dallas, Texas, markets show the latest in women's clothing. Many of the clothing reps come by the boutique with clothing for the next

How are you marketing the store?

Marketing the store is my biggest challenge. Word of mouth is always good. However, I have done a lot of newspaper and magazine advertising. Style shows are wonderful for the store. Women can see the clothing on the models, which is a great help. Plus, we always try to encourage the organization sponsoring the style show to select models of all sizes. One of my goals is to market the mastectomy prosthesis line much more.

What do you look for in an employee?

Charlotte's employees are great assets when it comes to being a successful boutique. All of them have a lot of retail experience.

What items do you carry, in brief, and their price ranges?

We carry casual to dressy clothes. We do a lot of special occasion clothing. We can even do special orders. We also carry swimsuits year around. All of are items are moderately price.

What is your most popular item? Our custom jewelry.

Chamber golf event raises more than $10,000

By BETHANY CONWAY
The Las Cruces Bulletin

The Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce Golf Classic was held on Oct. 15 at the Sonoma Ranch Golf Course, raising more than $10,000 for the Chamber's Government Affairs Committee.

"It was a wonderful day and a great turnout," said Travis Melham, Chair of the Golf Classic Committee. "I attribute the success of the event to the Golf Classic Committee, the Chamber of Commerce and especially Marcos Archuleta, general manger of the Sonoma Ranch Golf Course."

This year featured a full tournament with 32 teams, and each received a complimentary pair of FootJoy golf shoes and a golf shirt, which Melham said were great new additions to the tournament.

Also, a student from New Mexico State University's professional golf management program joined each team, a custom that began last year. Melham said that Pat Gavin and the Professional Golf Management Program deserved special thanks for participating in this year's event.

"The money raised goes to the government affairs committee which oversees state and federal legislation," said Jim Berry, president of the Chamber.

Berry said that the money raised funds Las Cruces Day in Santa Fe as well as the committee's annual trips to Washington, D.C. to meet with U.S. representative and senators.

Berry also recognized the hard work of the Golf Classic Committee, and both he and Melham thank the title sponsors for providing the means for a successful golf tournament.

If the process is not completed by Dec. 31, then the TIDD baseline year would have to be taxes collected in 2007, Sutter said.

Councillor Steve Trowbridge said holding off for a year may not be a bad option. The city's budget is based on a 7.5 percent annual increase in GRT collections, he said. With homebuilding slowing down and concerns of GRT growth not hitting that target, Trowbridge said he worried taking away a portion of the GRT growth could result in an even more severe hit to the general fund than that caused by a normal cyclical downturn in the economy, he said.

Trowbridge said that losses to the general fund could exceed $2 million by some estimates. Though a TIDD is meant to confine the risk to the landowners of a redevelopment effort, a $2 million hit to the general fund in an unexpected downturn could end up hurting city services to other parts of the city, according Trowbridge.

Also, Trowbridge asked if it

Also, Trowbridge asked if it was fair to allow the different government bodies to vote on the question – which would probably be in the TIDD's favor – since city, state and federal governments combined own the majority of Downtown property.

Mayor William "Bill" Mattiace said he didn't believe the outcome was so predictable. "We underestimate the value of the private landowner," he said.

Mattiace did say he wanted a commitment from the county and federal government that they would support the TIDD and be willing to give up their share of the improved GRT and property taxes.

Ron Gurley, District 1 candidate, said he didn't like the idea of a TIDD and likened it to a "credit card for developers."

Steve Newby, a local architect that's been active in the Downtown revitalization effort said forming a TIDD was only a small part of the whole effort.

"It is not evil, it is not mysterious," he said. "This is a standard revitalization tool that has been used many other places throughout the U.S."

Other councillors agreed, noting that the idea has been discussed in concept since the new Downtown revitalization effort began and in more detail since June.

"I don't see what else we could hear that we haven't already heared," said councillor Dolores Archuleta in rejection of a motion to table the TIDD again for a second time.

In June, the council approved establishing the Main Street Downtown Metropolitan Redevelopment Area, which is another tool often used for revitalizing downtowns by declaring those areas "blighted" and "substandard." Being a MRA sets the stage for tax increment financing to borrow on future expectations of improved commerce. The MRA designation also helps attracts other government funding, as well as private support, such as through community development and historic restoration grants.

Albuquerque, which the Las Cruces Downtown Revitalization Plan is based on, also uses an MRA in its downtown renewal program.

For more information on Las Cruces Downtown, visit www. lascrucesdowntown.org.

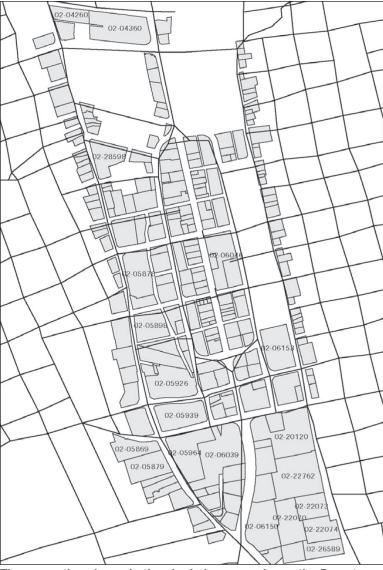

The Downtown revitalization

includes plan re-opening the of Main Street through the three city blocks that once made up the Downtown Mall. Main Street has been restored in the middle, with the north and south ends being re-opened after a civic plaza is built between the Bank of the West building and the old post office that now houses municipal and magistrate court.

The city has relaxed codes requirements for Downtown to encourage mixed uses. Should everything fall into place, Downtown would become a place where people could both live and work with a variety of restaurants, cultural venues and specialty shops — along with a variety of city, state and federal government functions.

"One of the requirements (on a commercial building site) is that we must have onsite superintendents, but that is declining with baby boomers that are retiring and not being replaced," Clute said. "I'm not seeing a new crop of construction superintendents being available."

Dino Cervantes, general manager of Cervantes Enterprises and chairman of the Chile Growers Association, said he, too, had trouble finding young people to fill positions.

"The average age of the labor force continues to increase," Cervantes said. "I don't see 20- to 25-year-olds coming to take jobs. These jobs pay $8 to $15 an hour, they're not bad jobs."

Don Fennerty, plant manager of Rea Magnet Wire, North America's largest producer of magnet wire, said everyone has unique workforce challenges. Because the company manufactures wire 24 hours a day, seven days a week and almost every day of the year, Fennerty's challenge is finding employees with basic skills to take on the challenging work schedule.

on the challenging work schedule.
"What we need is a dual effort of the home and family and the school system," Fennerty said.

Paul Herzog, CEO of Memorial Medical Center, said health care is the largest employer in "virtually every community," and, similar to Fennerty's challenges, the industry is a labor-intenstive area, and it is a struggle to find nurses.

"By 2012, New Mexico will have a shortage of 4,500 nurse," he said. "We have aging employees in general. It's stressful and it's rewarding, but it's physically hard."

It is not evil, it is

STEVE NEWBY,

Architect

Herzog said he also noticed a shortage of physicians in the area.

"New Mexico is not a physician-friendly state in terms of tuition reimbursement and malpractice," he said,

He said it also is difficult to bring medical technicians to the area, due to a state mandate that requires technicians to be fingerprinted and undergo a background check

To overcome these issues, Herzog also suggested educational assistance.

"There needs to be increased funding to Doña Ana Community College and NMSU to expand its programs," he said. "You have to be academically prepared to go through these courses, and it goes back to high school."

Solutions

Businesses and the federal government have given education requirements for all students, said Jennifer Amis, director of secondary instruction, career and technical education at Las Cruces Public Schools.

"As a state, we know we're ranked 48th in the nation," she said. "But there are more tools available to us, and we're increasing standards for all students and raising our expectations."

Using Gov. Bill Richardson's initiative to use seven career clusters, Amis said there are now opportunities that provide pathways for students, which improve advising guidance for students in kindergarten through 12th grade.

Amis said it also is important to have parents involved with their children's education.

Michael Morehead, associate dean of the NMSU College of Education, is helping to coordinate a Regional Educational Initiative (REI) to link business, industry and education to have better communication on workforce needs and solutions.

"There is no easy solution to this," Morehead said.

Initiated by the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce's Education Committee, members of the REI include government, education and business leaders with a vision to graduate students who are prepared to enter an internationally competitive workforce. Committees of the initiative include the employer research committee and committees that assess the transition to post-secondary education. A final report is expected to be compiled by January 2008.

Linda Smrkovsky, chair of the Southwest Area Workforce Development Board, said certain challenges faced by the business community aren't easily solved unless the businesses "buy in" to available resources.

"Employers have to take responsibility and action as well," she said.

Jerry Welch, dean of DACC's Technical and Industrial Studies, said one of the biggest changes he's seen over the years was the "breaking down of silos" between secondary education, community colleges and four-year colleges and universities.

"This issue isn't just here," Welch said.

"This is a national problem."

The 2+2+2 program has aided in breaking down boundaries locally, he added. The program works with students from their junior year in high school to transition to a two-year community or junior college and from there, move on to a four-year institution.

"We're going to see outstanding solutions and be a model for other communities," he said.

Betty Sparrow-Doris, secretary of the Department of Workforce Solutions, reaffirmed the earlier speakers'

"We don't have time for silos," she said. "We know what our challenges are, but our real challenge is a call to action, and implement, implement, implement.

"All of us have a huge responsibility of working with the local workforce system to listen to what their needs are, and we can't wait until we come to a forum like this."

Local restaurateurs lobby for national legislation

Jerry Harrell, manager of Double Eagle Restaurant and Tom Hutchinson, owner of La Posta Restaurant, both operating well-known businesses in historic old Mesilla, recently traveled to Washington, D.C., to lobby for legislation regarding increased food safety inspections in foreign countries, immigration reform and keeping the 15-year schedule for investment depreciation rather than reverting to 39 years.

They met with both U.S. senators and all three U.S. representatives from New Mexico or their assigned staffers to discuss the issues and ask for their support. While immigration reform won't be considered this year, the proposal to increase food safety inspections by locating US inspection stations in foreign countries as the US Customs Office does now rather than waiting till the goods are shipped here seemed to have some support. Five years ago, the Internal Revenue Service depreciation rules for writing off investments was changed from 39 years to 15 but with a sunset clause which means the 15-year rule must be re-authorized by Congress or

DACC hosts job fair

Doña Ana Community College will commemorate National Disability Employment Awareness Month with a job fair from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 24, in the Commons Area of DACC, 3400 S. Espina St. "Workers with Disabilities: Talent for a Winning Team" is the theme of the event, which highlights the abilities of disabled employees and celebrates the many employers who hire them.

 $Interested \ students \ and \ community \ residents \ will \ have$ the opportunity to visit with representatives of a variety of agencies, employers and organizations that advocate for persons with disabilities. A few of those expected are Tresco, Handilinks, the Ability Center and the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. Attendees can make contacts and find out the status of current and future job openings. There is no fee to attend, and door prizes will be awarded. Those who do not have a DACC/NMSU parking sticker may park in the free dirt lot on Gregg Street, just north of DACC.

Congress has designated each October as National Disability Employment Awareness Month. The U.S. Office of Disability Employment Policy has the lead in planning NDEAM activities and materials to increase the public's awareness of the contributions and skills of American workers with disabilities. Various programs carried out throughout the month also highlight the specific employment barriers that still need to be addressed and removed.

The DACC Disability Employment Awareness Day is being sponsored by DACC's Services for Students with Disabilities, 527-7548.

DALO and Bob Diven journey back 65 million years for love

Musical premiere 'Extinction' shows some stories never die

By Joel Courtney

While some stories are described as timeless, local artist Bob Diven has taken that idea to the next level through "Extinction: A Love Story" - the latest production by the Doña Ana Lyric Opera. The musical is directed by Mark Medoff opens Thursday, Oct. 25.

Diven explained that the story is simple, a basic love triangle, that just happens to involve dinosaurs in the Cretaceous Period, or about 65 million years ago. What makes the story unique, according to Diven, is that everyone knows how it will end for the dinosaurs, making it a doomed story that happens to contain a lot of funny stuff getting there.

"I think the best thing is to just entertain and make the story light, so when something happens, the audience is ready to be moved," Diven said. "I think musicals, more than any other medium, have a capacity to move people."

The idea for "Extinction" began years ago, when DALO was still under the direction of Jon Linford. Diven explained that originally, the idea was sparked to create a puppet opera based around dinosaurs, but during the creation of the work, Linford became wrapped up in other projects and handed it solely off to him.

The project blossomed again during Diven's stay in Denver, where he met and spent the winter working with Gary Staab an artist famous for recreating paleontoligical wonders with sculpture.

"I just talked to him. He worked with all the great paleontologists," Diven said. "Because of that, I finally got my head around geological time.'

After that, Diven's creation began to come together, and he sought out the help of Medoff, who had worked with him previously on two one-man shows Diven had written, as well as several other projects.

"Mark is just a force of nature in the sense of a dramteur," Diven said.

The two began workshopping "Extinclast summer and have continued working on the piece up until the rehearsals the week before the curtain rises

"Every Broadway show has been through this process. It's amazing the evolution of what it takes to create a musical," Diven said. "You can write a play in privacy, but you don't know what you have until you hear the words coming out of people's mouths.

During the final workshop, Diven was able to bring in composer Randall Shinn and a portion of the actual cast, which he described as invaluable.

"I wrote about three more songs because of that workshop," he said.

In addition to helping to fine tune Diven's work, Medoff and Shinn were able to draw on their experience in creating new works for DALO and other stages.

"Beautiful Princess Available for Rescue" by Shinn in 2004. Previously, DALO premiered Medoff's and Shinn's opera, "Sara McKinnon.'

"For our community, we've had a tradition of showcasing new work, and that's unusual for a town of this size," Medoff

Diven said there is a very mixed reaction to new work, universally and locally.

Some performers feel more comfortable performing only long-running works that have proven themselves successful and whose music has become a part of our consciousness.

Others, namely the cast of "Extinction," are excited about the opportunity and challenges that a brand-new piece of work provides.

The cast includes Jessica Medoff Bunchman, Isaac Quiroga, Ashley Foster, Ian Sidden, Brandon Brown and Richard Rundell.

"I love them so much as people and as actors, I wanted to create opportunities and roles for them," Diven said. "I want them to enjoy and have moments on stage.

Each member of the cast will play a member of the paleontology dig team, as well as a dinosaur version of themselves.

"The dinosaurs mirror these people, making discoveries of their own," Diven said. "One of the subtexts of the story is a mirror of my own understanding and epiphanies about geological time and evo-

Brown and Foster play a brother and sister pair of graduate students that Diven described as "chirpy birds." When the story goes back in time, the pair portray a pair of ornithomimus, a bird-like dinosaur.

Rundell serves as the professor overseeing the dig, as well as the voice of wisdom amongst his students, a role which he continues as the pentaceratops, the last of his species.

"I've long felt about Las Cruces, that while it does not have the depth of talent of - say New York City - it has an amazing collection of talent," Diven said.

Diven has acquired a cast full of talent in addition to the help of seasoned theatrical veterans Medoff and Shinn, but admits that he is still learning from the ordeal of creating a musical.

"It requires things of me that I'm still acquiring, but I trust my ear and I trust my gut," Diven said. "I'm not afraid to cut and change, but I'm also not afraid to stand up in my role as caretaker of this piece.

He added that the piece will most likely continue to be fine tuned even from performance to performance, similar to how Broadway shows are workshopped in smaller cities before returning for "official" premieres.

"This is the biggest project of any kind that I've ever done," he said.

Costume and set design was done by Deb Brunson, and choreography was set by Debra Knapp. Lighting was designed by Gerald Kottman.

"All of the artists involved in making this happen are people I've worked with in the past, some for years," Medoff said. "I respect each of them, as well as adore them as colleagues. We're going to have a great time and that joy will translate to our audiences.

Tickets for "Extinction: A Love Story" are $15 for general admission and can be purchased at the Pan American Center box office at 646-1420, through the F.Y.E. store in the Mesilla Valley Mall, or via Ticketmaster at 532-2060 or www.ticket-

'Gypsy Caravan' shows a slice of oft-misunderstood life

By JEFF BERG

Those who have noted this film as a gypsy version of the highly entertaining and successful "Buena Vista Social Club" (U.S. musician Ry Cooder's delightful documentary homage to Cuban music and musicians of a few years ago) are

"Gypsy Caravan" rambles

into the Fountain Theatre on Friday, Oct. 19, for a full week of good music.

Not rated, it might have a situations. It is in English and Romany with subtitles and plays for 110 minutes.

right on target. Jasmine Dellal directs the film. Born in England, she spent much of her formative years in south India. Later, she returned to England to go to school at Oxford, and later still, came across the pond to attend UC Berkeley. This is her second documentary about gypsy culture, the first, "American Gypsy," was released in 2000 and later played on the popular PBS series POV (Point of View). Sadly, the narrator/subject of that film died this past summer.

"Gypsy Caravan" follows a 2001 concert tour of the United States that was undertaken by five gypsy bands (read that as musical bands) from four different countries - Spain, India, Macedonia and Romania.

GRADE

Their styles of music include flamenco, Balkan pop, raga, brass band, Romanian violin and Indian folk. For good measure, we are also treated to a woman who is referred to as the "Macedonian Diva" or the "Queen of the Gypsies" – Esma Redzepova.

But this is much more than just a camera following a tour of concert shows.

Dellal has wisely chosen to share some of the intimate stories of the musicians' personal lives, as different subjects are interviewed about various aspects of their lives and cultures. It becomes abundantly clear that these talented people are not concerned with making money. Rather, their emphasis is on family, culture and a strong desire to keep their genre of music alive and in the forefront if possible.

Among the more interesting stories is that of Redzepova who is unable to have children of her own. Instead, she and her husband adopted and raised 47 orphans that the couple taught the culture of Roma to and also, at times, were included as part of her musical troupe. Combine this with a 40-year singing career, and you come up with one busy life.

One of the other groups, Fanfare Ciocarila, a somewhat traditional Romanian brass band, used the profits from the sale of their first album to arrange to have electricity brought to their home village for the first time.

Tradition remains important for each group, but also sometimes causes problems or concerns for the various troupes. Dellal also offers somewhat in-depth looks at the musicians' home villages and towns, and deftly compares them to their experiences in huge metro areas such as New York City and Los Angeles, where they perform during the tour. Interspersed with that are interesting tidbits of backstage interviews with many of the

Blended with all manner of terrific music, dance, poetry and slices of culture, "Gypsy Caravan" makes for an excellent and highly informative, not to mention entertaining, look at one of the world's more maligned cultures.

The pure strength of music to help change the world is here – heightened by the strength of the human spirit – such as Redzepova's comment: "I never assimilated for anyone.'

And you'll be mighty glad about that when you see this enlightening little film. Jeff Berg loves life on the road and is think-ing of taking a year off to do just that. He takes all manner of road stories at jeffberg@lascruce

'Ride the Pink Horse' brings melodrama to Santa Fe's 'Zozobra'

The CineMatinee film at the Fountain Theatre for Saturday, Oct. 20, will be "Ride the Pink Horse" (1947, 101 minutes, in black and white, made in New Mexico).

Robert Montgomery directed and starred in this exotic film noir set during a New Mexico fiesta, actually, Santa Fe's annual Zozobra Festival.

Montgomery plays a secretive ex-soldier who plans to extort money from a prominent gangster (Fred Clark) as ret-ribution for the death of Montgomery's

An FBI man (Art Smith) would like the government to get the incriminating information on the gangster that Montgomery is carrying.

Trailed by the FBI agent, Montgomery takes refuge at an old carousel, where he meets a Mexican girl (Wanda Hendrix) who refuses to leave his side.

The girl is on hand when the gangster catches up with Montgomery and has him beaten. She nurses Montgomery back to health, but the would-be blackmailer is determined to confront the gangster again.

"Ride the Pink Horse" is a properly moody melodrama, containing one of the truly good performances from eternal ingénue Wanda Hendrix.

A potpourri of movies, past and present, often with an emphasis on life in the west - which could mean the "new" West, the Old West or anything in between the CineMatinee series is designed to offer area residents a brief tutelage of various types and genres of film.

At least one film each month in this series will have a "New Mexico Connection," drawing from the vast pool of movies made in the state or perhaps featuring a star/story from New Mexico

Unless otherwise noted, screening time is 1:30 p.m., and admission is $3 for everyone, except Mesilla Valley Film Society members who are admitted free of charge. The Fountain Theatre is located one block south of the Mesilla Plaza. For more information, call 524-8287 or 522-0286.

NMSU Theatre Arts and ASTC present 'A Walk in the Desert'

New Mexico State University's Department of Theatre Arts in collaboration with the American Southwest Theatre Company will present "A Walk in the Desert" by Ruth Cantrell Oct. 26 and 27 at the Hershel Zohn Theatre on the NMSU campus.
"A Walk in the Desert" tells the story of a young girl who learns to value the beauty and tradition of the American Southwest. Various Southwestern creatures use distinct forms of music and dance to make their messages clear to the main character and to the audience.

Each character has a distinct dicho and dance," said Cantrell, professor and academic head of the theater department.

"Lizards and roadrunners doing the merengue, coyotes doing the tango, and tumbleweeds dancing the salsa are just a few of the dance sequences that help to tell the story," said Debra Knapp, choreographer and head of the NMSU Dance Program.

"A Walk in the Desert" showcases the combined talents of many area artists. Flamenco guitarist Jake Mossman worked with local composer Justin Raines to provide music for the production. NMSU alumnus Julio Ortiz helped to translate the story. NMSU Theatre Arts faculty members Jim Billings designed scenery and lights, Deb Brunson created costumes, and David Hereford provided props

"Choreographing this play has been so fun. Fitting the different musical and dance styles to Southwestern animals and flora has been a creative challenge. Knapp said.

■ PERSONAL IMPRESSIONS OF SALVADOR DALI

The public persona of surrealist paint-Salvador Dali, whose work is currently on exhibit at the Las Cruces Museum of Art, was as surprising and remarkable as his artworks. An insight into the nature of this famous artist will be given by Mireille Sprengers Dohmen in a free lecture at the Branigan Cultural Center's Shannon room at 11 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 20. Dohmen's talk, "Dali Through My Spectacles, a Personal Impression," is presented in conjunction with the "Dali Illustrates Dante's Divine Comedy' exhibit continuing at the Museum through Sunday, Nov. 25. Her husband, surrealist artist Leo Dohmen, was a contemporary of Rene Magritte and Salvador Dali. Together the Dohmens were a part of the art scene surrounding the surrealist movement in Europe. Ms. Dohmen's experience also includes organizing painting and sculpture exhibitions and interior design for non-residential buildings. She recently collaborated with researchers and organizers on a retro-spective exhibit of the works of Belgian surrealists. Now retired, Ms. Dohmen visits Las Cruces often and travels extensively. The Branigan Cultural Center and the Museum of Art are located in the Downtown Mall. For more information, call 541-2137 or visit http://museums.las-cruces.org.

At the Project Linus Appreciation Tea

Sharing the warmth of giving

Project Linus held an Appreciation Tea last Saturday to thank the blanketeers and Friends of Linus that make their mission possible.

The Appreciation Tea was hosted by the staff of Casas de Soledad Condominiums, 3901 Sonoma Springs Ave., Suite 708, in the clubhouse.

Project Linus is a worldwide organization that makes new, handmade blankets, quilts and afghans for children that are ill, traumatized or otherwise in need. The Las Cruces chapter of Project Linus provides blankets to the pediatrics patients of Memorial Medical Center and MountainView Regional Medical Center and the Doña Ana County Sheriff's Department, among many other organizations that help children in need.

For more information about Project Linus or how to get involved, visit www. projectlinus.org or call Dayle Sillerud at 532-4602.

Munson Quilters members, Inez Todd, Maria Ickler and Renate Flores show one of the many quilts they have made this year. It was one of many quilts and blankets on display Saturday, Oct. 13, during the first Project Linus Blanketeer Appreciation Tea hosted by the Las Cruces chapter at the Casas de Soledad Clubhouse. The Munson Quilters, so far this year, have created and donated at least 150 quilts to Project Linus and expect to donate at least 50 more by the end of the year.

Dot Quaintance, who is visiting from Schenectady, N.Y., front, and her friend, Dorothy Steiner of Las Cruces, look at some of the quilts and blankets on display Saturday.

Working with a message

Mari Blacker's artwork creates powerful metaphors for society and relationships

By JOEL COURTNEY
The Las Cruces Bulletin

To multi-media artist Mari Blacker, there is no job with more importance in this or any other society than that of the homemaker, and that message resonates through all of her artwork.

In her quest to share the significance homemakers play in the world, Blacker has created a skirt – which is a part of her "Homemaking: Paradoxes and Parodies" exhibit at the Rio Grande Theatre – that combines strings representing homemakers from throughout the world. Blacker originally created the piece for a full installation in Vermont, but wanted to share the piece again with her new home in Las Cruces.

"Homemakers take care of not just the home, but also the community," she said. "So-called 'women's' work has to be assessed as importantly as that of an architect or a doctor. This (homemaking) is a job. It's got to

The strings from the skirt are made of a wide variety of materials, from mismatched socks or ribbon to rubber bands or copper wire, and each is accompanied by an explanation of its significance from its creator. Blacker has created a scrapbook of the explanation letters that is shown with the exhibit.

"I've always respected everything that everyone has sent to me, and I've tried to honor them," she said.

She added the response from the piece has been very strong, and numerous viewers have asked about adding a string for their family to the skirt. Originally, Blacker was considering beginning a new skirt, but said she is now looking to add a new strip to the skirt from which additional strings may hang.

"You just have to be human to understand the importance of the piece," she said.

Other pieces on display, such as "Overall Pattern," confront this issue more directly, showing for overalls made from metal and covered with quotes from modern and classical feminists.

A woodfired vase

Blacker said her feelings about the importance of the homemaker come from her own personal experiences, in which she was "looked down upon" for only taking care of her family. She explained that part of her disagreement with the original feminist movement was its insistance on abandoning homemaking just because other options were becoming available. According to Blacker, the loss of homemaking as a valued role in modern life is partly responsible for the breakdown of the "community.

'My idea with art has always been the commitment to revive the arts and the people themselves," she said. "My job is to address the importance of society and the idea of a 'village."

While half of Blacker's work currently on display at the Rio Grande Theatre confronts d vase the issues facing homemaking, the other half of the gallery plays host to "Nesting: Habits and Habitats," which is a ceramic sculpture exhibit.

"Nesting" explores numerous themes, all of which

"Nesting" carry eggshells as a common element and metaphor.

Inspiration for "Nesting" came from a passage from the book "The Poetics of Space," by Gaston Bachelard. In his book, Bachelard explores "home," which he describes as more of a concept created by the collection of memories and traditions rather than any specific place

Although she values the nurturing qualities of the homemaker, Blacker has recently taken on the task of caring for dozens of children. She is serving in her first year as an art teacher for Hermosa Heights and Valley View elementary schools.

"I really love the kids, and they are all doing great," she said. "I'm passionate about this – teaching children to have a sense of the aesthetic.'

A portrait sculpture

Blacker said she realizes she will not be able to spend as much time creating artwork now that she is working full time as a teacher, but she is happy where she is nonetheless.

"They are my studio now. I'm training them to see and appreciate the world around them and that artists are serious people," she said.

To see more of Blacker's artwork, visit the Rio Grande Theatre, 211 N. Downtown Mall, during October.

■ DOÑA ANA COUNTY GOVERNMENT CENTER

More than 100 pieces of original student artwork from the Las Cruces and Gadsden public schools have been installed in the first-floor corridors of the Doña Ana County Government Center, 845 N. Motel Blvd. The exhibit includes paintings, etchings and drawings. The artists range from elementary students to high school students. The student art exhibit complements the permanent art collection within the Doña Ana County Government Center, which includes a series of historical photographs in the upstairs rotunda, as well as a spectacular photograph of the Organ Mountains donated in 2007 by Las Cruces artist R. Frederick Silva. The piece, titled "Fall Splendor," hangs on a second floor east wall, adjacent to the main entrance of the administrative offices of the Doña Ana County Board of Commissioners and the county manager. Also on semipermanent display is one of New Mexico's Las Cruces is covered with more than 2 million tiny, decorative, glass beads. The pony is for sale by the Doña Ana Arts Council, with the proceeds to benefit the historic Rio Grande Theatre. To date, none of the bids for it have met the minimum allowable for sale. The pony will remain on display near the main reception desk of the Doña Ana County Government Center until it changes ownership. Caballo de Las Cruces was designed by local artist Julienne Hadfield. The beading process took more than 4,000 hours to complete by a dedicated group of more than 100 community volunteers. The pony was designed to honor Las Cruces and the surrounding area. The public is invited to view the student art show, Caballo de Las Cruces and "Fall Splendor" at any time during normal county business hours. The official opening of the newest student show will be held Friday, Oct. 19, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Many student artists, their families and public-school faculty art teachers will be on hand. Refreshments will be served.

ute to Vincent Van Gogh, greets theatergoers in thetheatregallery during the run of "Vincent." Van Gogh's sunflowers, big, bright and bold, helped change the direction of how people look at art and the colors of art, notably, other post impressionist artists who found a new sense of freedom in them. Van Gogh probably first painted sunflowers on stems in 1887, but when liv-ing in France in 1888, began painting them in vases. "The Sunflower Invitational" artists include: Rick and Margaret Bernstein, Rachel Courtney, Rebecca Courtney, June Decker, Flo Dougherty, Alice Dressler, Ken and Pat Faner, Mike and Kathy Groves, Peter Herman, Caryl Kotulak, Judy Licht, Susan Long, Meredith Loring, Malu Bender, Charlotte McCarthy, Jim Moore, Julie Ford Oliver, Caryl Porter and Naida Zucker. Thetheatregallery is open one hour before performance times or by calling the Black Box Theatre at 523-1223.

■ MAIN STREET GALLERY

Join the Main Street Gallery, 311 N. Downtown Mall, as they celebrate the introduction of two new artists - Judy Licht, who is joining the Main Street Gallery collaborative, and the October-November guest artist, Ouida Touchón. The Main Street Gallery features original artworks for sale by several of Las Cruces' accomplished artists. This distinctive collaborative includes: Penny Duncklee, whose Southwest realist watercolor studies beautifully interplay color, light and composition; the daringly vivid and capricious scenes of Daphne Wirthlin's desert fantasies; the l'naturál Southern New Mexico landscapes of Mark Ploss; the shim-mering counter-points of Judy Licht's desert themes played out on vibrantly dyed silks; the dazzling and exotic dichroic glassworks and jewelry of Lois Wilson and the exquisitely crafted Spirit Minders of Lynn Unangst, adorned with natural materials, textiles and intricate beadwork. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. For more information, call 647-0508.

■ BRANIGAN CULTURAL CENTER

The New Mexico Watercolor Society, Southern Chapter artists proudly present their third small paintings show at the Branigan Cultural Center, 501 N. Downtown Mall, through Oct. 27. "Small Paintings – A Few of My Favority Things" will feature pointings 12 inches by 12 inches or smaller paintings 12 inches by 12 inches or smaller.

Branigan Cultural Center hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday. For more information, call 541-2155

■ TOMBAUGH GALLERY

The Tombaugh Gallery of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Las Cruces, 2000 S. Solano Drive, will highlight sculpture in fused glass by Lois Wilson and minimal kinetic steel constructions by John Northcutt for October. "Glass/Steel" will run through Wednesday, Oct. 31. Wilson has been working with glass for eight years, moving into stained glass from a long background in quilting. The piecing together of the shapes appealed to her as did the vibrant colors and textures of the medium. Wilson took her first class in fused glass in Canada three years ago, following up with workshops at Hot Glass Training Conferences in Portland, Ore. On moving to Las Cruces a year ago she started Southwest Glass Creations. The fused glass process offers endless creative possibilities. Northcutt has a background in both steel sculpture and ceramics. He has taught and exhibited extensively and has completed several large-scale public and private pieces. Regular gallery hours are Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. as well as occasional Sundays from 8:30 a.m. to noon, before, between and after regular services. The gallery is also open by appointment. For more information, call 522-7281.

■ MESILLA VALLEY FINE ARTS GALLERY

Mesilla Valley Fine Arts Gallery October featured artists, Elaine Frink and Ruth Ann Sugarman, as well as 30 other local artists in many media, offer new and exciting works. Frink's color photography spotlights local and regional scenes; Sugarman's impressionistic oils depict a wide variety of subjects from around the world. In addition to original paintings, ceramic and photography, also available are affordable prints, handmade cards, greeting cards that are copies of original works and miniature paintings. These smaller items would make great additions to gift baskets or bags. Regular gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. The gallery is located at 2470 Calle de Guadalupe, in the historic Fountain Building, just across from the Fountain Theatre. For more information, call 522-2933 or visit http://mesillavalleyfineartsgallery.blogspot.com.

■ CONVENTION AND VISITORS BUREAU

Side by Side: Memories of Trees on Fabric and Paper," the October exhibit at the Las Cruces Convention and Visitors Bureau, 211 N. Water St., conveys the significance and inspiration that two artists find in trees. The partnered exhibit is the second that fabric artist Joan Jensen and watercolorist Margaret Bernstein have designed for the Convention Center and their third collaborative exhibit in Las Cruces. Jensen, a noted historian, author and professor, brings a life inspired in countless ways by art to her fabric creations. Bernstein, a local painter, explores a wide range of styles and subjects in her work. The Las Cruces Convention and Visitors Bureau is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. For more information, call 541-2444.

■ BRANIGAN CULTURAL CENTER

A Collection of Oil Paintings by Cynthia Guzevich-Sommers will be featured at the City of Las Cruces Branigan Cultural Center, 501 N. Downtown Mall, through Saturday, Oct. 27. Guzevich-Sommers, a native of Germany, attended the Academy of Arts in Munich, Germany. She has worked with art notables Helen van Wyk, Ken Gore, Ramon Froman, Frank Gervasi, Lois Krupp and Paul Strisik. She has had 16 prior solo exhibitions, ranging from the Overseas Press Club and the Grand National Exhibition Show, both in New York, to Best in Show at Albuquerque, and the Capitol Building Show in Santa Fe. Primarily a still life painter, Guzevich-Sommers works almost exclusively in oils. In addition to her paintings, she has been a Grumbacher Company Demonstrator and teacher and has often been called upon to judge shows. For more information contact the Branigan Cultural Center at 541-2154.

■ RIO GRANDE THEATRE

Sculptor and painter Mari Blacker will present two distinctly different exhibits in October at both the El Paso Electric Gallery and the Carolene de Mesilla gallery at the Rio Grande Theatre, 211 N. Downtown Mall. "Nesting: Habits and Habitats" features six ceramic sculptures and four oil paintings representing the abstract elements of nesting - the spiritual, psychological, physiological and sociological habitats that we, as humans, choose to take and where we choose to return. "Homemaking: Paradoxes and Parodies" features a community skirt "weaving" which consists of 110 strings knotted together by different participants, each representing their homemaking experiences. The unified skirt represents the "fiber of our society." Accompanying books have images of the participants, their families or ancestors,

More thoughts on art in mid-life

OUIDA

Apparently I hit a nerve with my recent essay "The ivory tower wobbles a bit." (You can access past issues online at www.lascrucesbulletin.com.) I had a feeling about this - that it would resonate - and it did.

Among others, I received a response from an artist in Santa Fe who had read the column. She is doing well, finally, with her career. As you will read, it hasn't always been that way, and the tentativeness of her success is palpable.

Carol Coates writes: "My own experience has been to have worked my way through school with no support from my parents, to have been married for 15 years to an alcoholic spouse, to have raised two wonderful children under difficult circumstances, to have taught for 30 years in a public school that thought nothing of serving me six classes of 40 each day, to have worked a six day week, serving as artist in residence for the school district for eight hours a week for 10 years to augment my income, to have worked my way to my master's degree, to have cared for my aging/dying parents, and to have done my artwork and shown regionally the entire time ... I wonder about both my selfishness and my selflessness; would I have changed the balance?"

"I still invest in my work ... (in myself), and I still mount credit card debt to allow me to challenge and humor my muse and in hope of my work bringing in an occasional windfall. I still aspire to growth, but may have to consider downsizing from the 12-foot work for both financial and physical reasons. My spirit doesn't want to do that, however. It wants to make enough money to hire assistants and to afford the creature comforts of space and travel that would allow continuing full flower."

and letters of the paradoxes and parodies of homemaking. New contributors are welcome to participate. The galleries open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. Gallery volunteers are needed; contact the Doña Ana Arts Council office at 523-6403 for more information.

 $\mbox{``I}$  continue on my path because I can and because I must. I retired from academia twelve years ago and I take one step at a time into the next decade; always searching for growth, for balance, and for the wisdom to make choices that continue to serve a life worth living.'

Alternately, my friend Richard Polese, a publisher in Santa Fe, brought a male perspective to the theme of entering the art world at mid-life. Here's how he responded:

'Some women artists may be late starters, but men of equal talent are often non-starters. So consumed and burned out by their careers that when they get to 65 the creative wind has gone out of the sails. (Think about that!) Women are often more resilient, especially past 50.

"On another thought, some men use making crafts in the garage as a creative outlet, which might have been more of a life-work if they hadn't been involved in breadwinning. Same true for women who sew or make quilts while raising their families ... I see people like that (garage crafts, quilting, etc.) who seem satisfied that they have a creative outlet beyond their expected roles, but never think of those things the way you and I might – as their core life work.

Surprisingly, I have received no written responses from Las Crucens. I know they are reading, and I know they are considering. We live in a fearful, polite time.

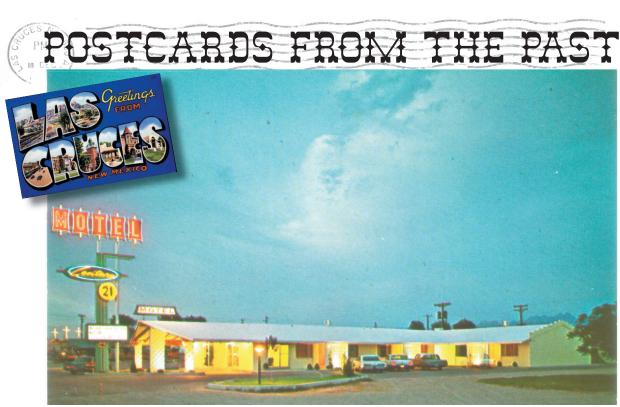

On another note, I am eager to go further on this idea of a Gallery Association and plan to speak to the gallerists in town to see if we can continue this conversation. As always, the limitations of a column in a newspaper is that it can only lay foundational ideas and themes, which then have to grow legs of their own, if only over the dinner table or among those who care enough to bear witness to the needs of our community.

I wish you good work. And I wish you the impetus of independent artists committed to the art of printmaking. Contact her at ouida@lascrucesbulletin.com

■ ALEGRE GALLERY

The Alegre Gallery featured artist for the month of October will be Gabriella Denton. She will be exhibiting some of her newest work through October. She continues to paint with rich, vibrant color and sophisticated design. For more information, call 523-2311 or visit www.alegregallery.com.

City centennial offers locals a chance to 'Remember Main Street'

Photography exhibit gives 100-year walking tour

On Friday, Nov. 2, Main Street – from Las Cruces Avenue to the Branigan Cultural Center – will be the focus of a photographic exhibit entitled "Remember Main Street."

The free public exhibit will recount the history of commerce on Main Street in concurrence with the celebration of the city's centennial anniversary. The exhibit will run the entire month of November and is sponsored by the City of Las Cruces in conjunction with Las Cruces Downtown – citizens promoting revitalization of Main Street.

Spectators will be able to stroll a few blocks of Main Street and view colorful graphic panels with photos and histories of the business, events and fond memories of the Downtown area.

Domenic Metta, of Home & Flower LLC and on behalf of Las Cruces Downtown, has donated project management and research services for the exhibit. Jim Turrentine, owner of The Big Picture, has provided graphic design imaging services for the project free of charge.

Photos for the exhibit have been provided courtesy of the New Mexico State University Library Archives and Special Collections Department, headed by Steve Hussman. Historical excerpts from several publications will include Jon Hunner's book from the "Images of America" series, Gordon Owen's "Las Cruces New Mexico: Multicultural Crossroads" and "Las Cruces: An Illustrated History" by Linda G. Harris

The Las Cruces Bulletin will also be represented through the use of several photos from "Las Cruces and Doña Ana County – A Pictorial History," which the Bulletin published in 1998.

Part of the job of Las Cruces Downtown is to promote the Main Street Cultural Corridor. The "Remember Main Street" exhibit is one event in a series that is intended to bring citizens back to the Heart of the City.

For more information about the "Remember Main Street" exhibit, contact Metta at 312-5027. For more information about Las Cruces Downtown, call 525-2955

A new permanent exhibit, "Las Cruces: Crossroads of History," opens on Nov. 17 at the Branigan Cultural Center, 501 N. Downtown Mall.

The exhibit features a comprehensive look at the history of Las Cruces and the Mesilla Valley spanning the past 400 years.

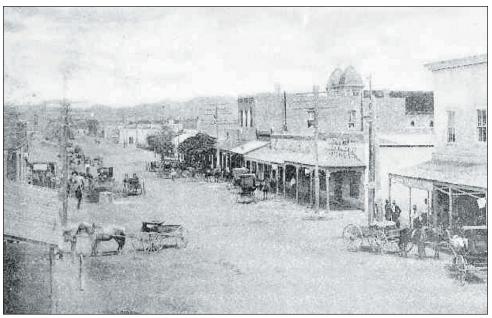

Through the use of photographs, documents, artifacts and narrative, the story of Las Cruces crossroads – from a dusty collection of adobe settlements to the vibrant city of today in unveiled.

This is the first permanent, comprehensive history exhibit about Las Cruces and the Mesilla Valley ever mounted, organizers say.

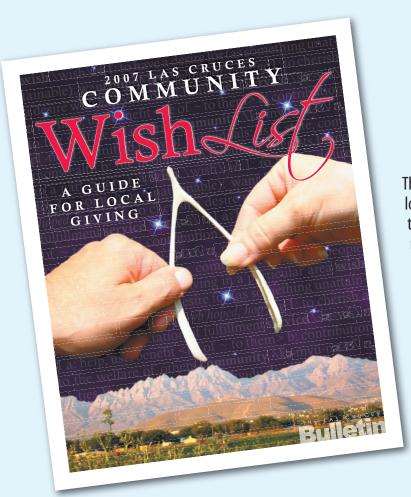

mounted, organizers say.

Promoters expect "Las Cruces: Crossroads of History" to appeal to a wide audience, including both longtime and recently relocated residents.
In addition, visitors to the City of the Crosses will better appreciate the rich, wonderful history that Las Cruces possesses. The exhibit has a very strong education component that was designed to work hand-in-hand with local school curriculum and the New Mexico Education Standards.

The public is invited to attend this free grand opening of this ground-breaking exhibit.

The Ags' new face at QB

JOHN KEITH Sports

Editor

How good was J.J. McDermott against Louisiana Tech last Saturday?

When the Aggies' freshman quarterback completed an impossible-looking 28-yard pass to Chris Williams during New Mexico State's 22-21 loss, Chase Holbrook the injured starter, leaned over to coach Hal Mumme on the sidelines: "It's OK if you want to move me to tight end," Holbrook said.

McDermott, in other words, was superb in defeat. We're talking an 18-year-old rookie delivering against one of the WAC's best defensive units. He threw for 319 yards and two touchdowns, staking the Ags to a 21-9 lead at one point. "I didn't know he'd play that good or I would have put in more stuff," said Mumme at his weekly press conference Monday.

The Aggies threw a smaller playbook at McDermott in practice last week to offset his limited rehearsal time.

New Mexico State is trying to regain its early-season form playing without six injured starters, all of them key guys.

starters, all of them key guys.
Holbrook, nursing a lingering rib injury, watched the first half of the game at Louisiana Tech in street clothes. "He was mad at me for not letting him suit up," Mumme said. "At the half I told him to go ahead and put on his uniform. He probably doesn't know it, but I wouldn't have played him anyway. He would have been at 50 percent."

That was last week. Against Idaho in the Ags' Homecoming battle here Saturday, Holbrook might play. Depending, Mumme said, on how well his No. 1 QB performs in drills this week.

If Holbrook can't make the bell, Mumme will confidently tap McDermott on the shoulder.

Williams, who caught 11 of McDermott's passes for 170 yards and two TDs against La Tech, said he wasn't surprised. "Actually it's just football," Williams said. "Pitch and catch. He (McDermott) did a great job."

Last Saturday's loss dropped New Mexico State to 3-4 overall, 0-2 in the WAC.

The Aggies, however, may have found themselves another quarterback in the process.

NMSU hosts Idaho in Homecoming showdown

By JOHN KEITH
The Las Cruces Bulletin

New Mexico State is hopeful that home field advantage is a reality

Coach Hal Mumme's team finds out Saturday when Idaho invades Aggie Memorial Stadium for a 6 p.m. football game. Both squads are practically yelling for help with identical 0-2 WAC records. NMSU, winless in three of its last four games, stands 2-3 overall. Idaho is 1-6.

"We both need a WAC win," said Mumme in the understatement of the 2007 season. "We're looking forward to playing them at home."

forward to playing them at home."
You bet he is. The Aggies are unbeaten in Las Cruces so far this year. They've won against Southeastern Louisiana (35-14), UTEP (29-24) and Arkansas-Pine Bluff (20-17).

Maybe the fact that it's NMSU's Homecoming will be added incentive. Mumme's team has been crippled with injuries since its 55-20 loss to Auburn. Not many midmajor squads can win with six starters, including an NFL-bound quarterback, sitting on the bench.

But Chase Holbrook, the Aggies' No. 1 QB, may play Saturday. He suffered injured ribs against Arkansas-Pine Bluff, missed most of the 58-0 loss to Boise State and the entire game last week at Louisiana Tech. Eighteen-year-old J.J. McDermott, a true freshman quarterback, found his wheels subbing for Holbrook in the 22-21 loss to La Tech and stands confidently on standby if needed.

Mumme says Idaho likes to establish the run first. "They haven't changed much from last year," he said. "Probably because they have most of their team back."

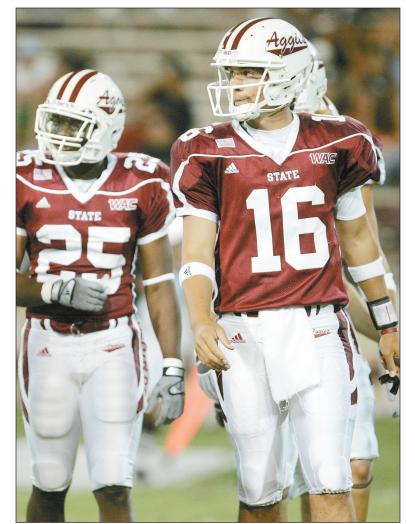

The Vandals have, however, changed coaches. Dennis Erickson, who moved on to Arizona State, has been replaced by Chris Ault.

The Vandals, whose only victory was 20-13 against Cal-Poly, are quarterbacked by both Nathan Enderle (1,070 yards passing) and Brian Nooy (239 yards). Both like to hand off to Deonte Jackson, who's rushed for 786 yards and four touchdowns. He's averaging 112.3 yards a game.

Aside from the possible return of Holbrook, New Mexico State hopes the sprained ankles of tight end Nick Cleaver and wide receiver A.J. Harris have finally healed.

Three of NMSU's four starting linebackers were also missing at Louisiana Tech. La'Auli Fonoti, Chris Nwoko and Jamar Cotton were replaced by brave but inexperienced Nick Ply, Michael Brewer and Kramer Willingham, who had totaled 35 tackles between them during NMSU's first six games. Fonoti, Nwoko and Cotton had 90.

This will be the 14th meeting between the two schools. Idaho leads the series 10-3.

NMS

J.J. McDermott (No. 16) subbed admirably for Chase Holbrook at quarterback against Louisiana Tech last week. McDermott passed for 319 yards and two touchdowns against the Bulldogs.

The glue that holds Mayfield together

Trojans' Suter unanimous MVP

By CRAIG MASSEY
The Las Cruces Bulletin

When Mayfield football player Yanni Suter isn't picking up his teammates or his coaches, he's picking up locker room trash after a post-game pizza party.

Mayfield's pick-up artist is "gold" to the 6-1 Trojan football team. Most outstanding football programs have a scrapper or two who set the tone for the team. They run and hit like their life depends on it and have a natural ability to lead and encourage. Suter is that and more – a player whose off-the-chart intangibles leave his head coach grasping for the right words to explain his value.

"He's the MVP of our whole team," said Mayfield football coach Michael Bradley. "He holds this team together like glue. Without him, this team would go nowhere."

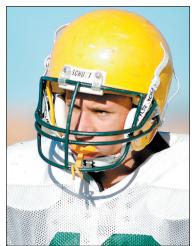

The youngest of seven children, Suter says he actually leads by following. There are dozens of inspirational sayings posted around the MHS football facility, but it's a sign on the wall of his math class that Suter says explains it best: "Leaders are followers of what is true, fair and right"

Suter, who has two older sisters, followed brothers Joseph (2001), James (2003) and Peter (2005) as standout linebackers at Mayfield. His father, Kevin, played college football at Mankato State.

The youngest of the group made an immediate impact at Mayfield when he started as a sophomore linebacker and was named a team captain last year as a junior. "That's never happened before," said Bradley of the honor.

This year, Suter is a team captain again and hasn't let up. He says he likes to lead by example, so maybe that's what he was doing on Aug. 31 against Clovis.

NIKI RHYNES I The Las Cruces Bulletin

Mayfield's Yanni Suter is the guy who holds the team together.

In the season-opener against the Wildcats at the Field of Dreams, Suter dislocated one of his big toes while making a tackle. He was helped off the field, only to return a few minutes later where he continued racing around making play after play. "I went to make a tackle and I picked up the guy," he recalled. "My toe just gave out and it dislocated. They iced it for about five minutes and I talked them into letting me go back in."

"(The toe) was sticking straight

"(The toe) was sticking straight up," said Bradley. "(Mayfield trainer) Doc (Acklin) popped it back in. He's as tough as nails. It still bothers him, but he finds a way to get it done."

While rosters and statistics are essential in the documentation of a team, the numbers and other measurables on those sheets of paper don't begin to reveal Suter's value. The roster says Suter is 5-feet, 7-inches tall and weighs 165 pounds, but that's a stretch according to Yanni.

"I'm 5-5 and a half and weigh 155 pounds," he says proudly and honestly.

The Mayfield defense has rarely had a lot of size and in many ways Suter is the prototypical Trojan defender – quick, smart, enthusiastic and well prepared. From his weakside linebacker

Freshman freestyle specialist Kelly Conrad was impressive in her New Mexico State debut. In the season opener against, Northern Colorado and Rice, Oct. 12, the Lake Stevens, Wash., native began the meet with a win as the anchor in the 400-medley relay. Conrad earned her first career individual title in the 50 freestyle after clocking a time of 23.86. She also had a runner-up finish in the 100 free. In her first Aggie meet, Conrad had a pair of personal-best performances. On the second day of competition, Conrad won two individual events and contributed to two Aggie relays. For the second consecutive day, Conrad led NMSU to a win in the first event of the day as the anchor of the 200-medley relay. She also claimed top honors in the 50 and 100 freestyle. In addition, Conrad led off the 200-free relay for the Aggies, which collected a second-place finish with the best split on the team.

Quarter Horse event slated for Nov. 3-17

By Marvin Tessneer

Two valley Quarter Horse riders and trainers – Josh Armstrong of La Mesa and Kelli Younker of Mesilla – will be competing in the American Quarter Horse World Show scheduled Nov. 3-17 in Oklahoma City.

Armstrong will be showing Jarrett Smith's Mr. Sunalena Letters and Martha Johnson's Barbies Red Rooster in the Junior Working Cow Horse Division.

Smith, a Las Cruces homebuilder, and Johnson of Santa Fe are clients of An amateur client of Armstrong, Donna Comyford of Silver City, also will be showing her mare, High Class Madam, in the Amateur Working Cow Horse Class.

Armstrong also will be showing horses in the Denver Mile-High Derby Oct. 17-21. He will be showing his Vons Lena in Free Style and his Von Dutch in the Stallion Futurity.

He also will be showing in Denver Smith's Mr. Sunalena Letters. This horse won the World Champion Cutting and Reining title and was Reserve World Champion in Work Horse and Free-Style Reining at the International Buckskin World Championship Show in Denver.
Armstrong also will be showing The Docs

A Whiz for an amateur client, Sally Broadus of El Paso, at this show.

Armstrong's schedule includes the National Reining Horse Association Futurity and North American Championships, Nov. 22 to Dec. 1, in Oklahoma City. He will be showing Vons Lena in Free-Style and Von Dutch in the Futurity.

Kelli Younker will be showing in the Working Cow Horse Division at the American Quarter Horse Association's World Show in Oklahoma City.

She will be showing Turbo Charged Sugar and Lovin Jose that she had raised from a foal and trained herself, said Jack Younker, her father and president of the Southwest Quarter Horse Association.

"Our association (SWQHA) has 18 shows a year at the fairgrounds," Younker said.
"We have wonderful climate and access from I-10. It's a wonderful opportunity for people who own horses in Alamogordo, Las Cruces, Silver City and El Paso and from other states, Arizona, Texas and Colorado. And now that we have a covered arena, we'll have even more people coming. The City of Las Cruces is unaware of economic opportunities that horse events bring.'

The next SWQHA show will be held on Saturday and Sunday at the Southern New Mexico State Fairgrounds, Younker said.

NMSU opens new golf practice area

The New Mexico State men's and women's golf teams are welcoming a new practice facility to the NMSU Golf Course.

The facility is the result collaboration last winter between men's golf head coach Scott Lieberwirth, women's golf head coach Paul Brilliant and Director of Golf Dan Koesters.

"We were all looking to do something for a short game area," Lieberwirth said. "Since we had some extra land, it all just came together around February.

With the NMSU golf course being one of only two public golf courses in the area, the practice facility gives the athletes the chance to have a more personal area to improve their skills. Both men's and women's golf teams will be able to use the facility without Fundraising by the teams, along with private donations and Price's Creamery Sponsorship made the opportunity to put in a practice facility a reality.

The facility is located on one side of the first tee box, and is equipped with putting greens, chipping areas and bunkers.
"The short area is where you score from,"

Brilliant said. "The game is too punitive; if you hit it three hundred yards counts one, and if you miss a one foot putt it counts one

The facility has only gone through one growing season so it is still new, but one more year will get it into shape so it can be put to

DR. CHARLIE BLANCHARD

Golf Doctor

Nearing the end of the "fund-raiser scramble season," I can report that the annual Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce Golf Classic at Sonoma Ranch was a smashing success.

Thirty-one teams competed with professonal golf management students playing nine holes with each group. This format led to some smashing drives and some low scores. My team was captained by the intrepid publisher, Mr. Dave McCollum, who persevered despite a broken toe (he claims he was sober and ran into a suitcase). It also included NMSU Athletics marketing head Steve Macy (who hits a golf ball a mile), and and Ken Hoeksema, a retired Amway executive and another Michigan transplant. By the way, this is a really good tournament, with great tee prizes (shoes, shirts, bags), lots of opportunities for skills prizes, like for the straightest (note straightest) drive, and a nice brisket luncheon. Just for the record, you have to shoot something ridiculous like 20 under par to get the goodies. We shot a meager 14 under. Not bad, but no booty for that.

You might think this could lead to a few paragraphs about scrambles and fund-raisers and five-and-a-half-hour rounds. But not this time. It's about the connection between the Chamber of Commerce and golf.

During various and many lulls in play during the chamber outing, we had plenty of time to schmooze about golf here in Las Cruces. It's my contention that the important golf magazines, like Golf and Golf Digest have overlooked and underrated Las Cruces as a golfing community. Periodically, the magazines offer rankings of metropolitan areas in terms of desirability for golfers. Las Cruces has traditionally been ranked low. This has rankled me for years. We may show up good in ratings for retirees, but we are bottomfeeders when it comes to ratings on golf. The reason is that it's a matter of stats. They add up the number of municipal holes and compare it to the population in the county. What that gives the "experts" is 18 holes at NMSU compared with more than 100,000 folks in Doña Ana County. By that measure we don't do well. But my argument is that the supposed gurus at the magazines are missing the boat. This is a great golfing community.

During the chamber tournament at Sonoma Ranch it came to light that my team's captain, Mr. Dave McCollum, is now the chairman-elect to the Chamber of Commerce. So I put this proposition to Dave: how can the Chamber use its resources to tell our golf story to the rest of the country and promote golf here in our southern New Mexico region? He seemed intrigued. "Tell me more," he mused.

I told Dave that there are precious few parts of the United States that have as consistently golf-able weather as we do here. Given the fact that we were, at that moment, on a beautiful golf course enjoying balmy 80-degree warmth in mid-October under brilliantly sunny skies with hardly any wind, he couldn't argue. Let's face it, when the ponds are frozen and the air is bitter in Albuquerque in January, we are out in nothing more than a sweatshirt. More and more retirees are moving here because friends have told them the secret. If you're a northern migrant, you know what I'm talking about. This is year-round golf.

Perhaps I see golf in Las Cruces and environs a bit differently than some other folks. For one thing, golf here is really convenient and not expensive. Maybe that's a promotional point greater than the weather. Greens fees at State and Sonoma are extremely reasonable. Folks from Phoenix or San Diego, who are used to forking over a C-note per round think golf here is chump change. By comparison, they're right. Just as importantly, there is a lot more to the overall quality of golf in a locale than just public access golf holes. The private clubs count. Both icacho Hills and Las Cruces Country Club are legitimate private clubs, and to some extent the public has some access to these venues. Junior golfers play on these courses, numerous open-to-the-public outings are hosted by these clubs, and tournaments are held there. Moreover, these clubs are outrageously affordable in terms of membership fees. Under $200 per month for an individual membership. And soon LCCC will have a fabulous Ken Dye-designed course to call home. Right here in little Las Cruces.

So here's my challenge to our Chamber of Commerce. Promote golf here in Las Cruces. We have at least 10 good golf courses within less than an hour drive from Las Cruces, including the new Sierra Del Rio at Elephant Butte. People who go to the lake for fun and fishing don't think twice about a measly hour drive. Why should we golfers? Let's convince our public relations machine and publicists to get on the case. Publish a classy brochure. Do a decent Las Cruces golf website. Get some articles in the golf publications, travel rags and specialized glossies. Take the lead from the recent LPGA Shootout and line up some professionals for exhibitions here locally. Partner with the hotels and put together some legitimate golf packages for Las Cruces as a golf destination. (City fathers, call me if you want more tight-budget promotional ideas.)

Sure, it's not Scottsdale or Cabo Del Sol. But a lot less cash for really good golf. What do you think?

Coach Jim Hess returns to NMSU for homecoming

... the richest

have of coach.

PETE Pete's Ponderings

One of ole Pete's favorites is due back around the campfire this weekend. When it comes to real westerners, this guy is the genuine item. Jim Hess coached the Aggies football team for seven vears and made as many friends as there are grains of sand in the Rio Grande.

He came from a national championship program at Angelo State and taught fans a lot about football and memories are the a lot more about having a big heart. personal ones people The fans that followed the Aggies then couldn't wait for each coach's luncheon because they knew they'd get a great story or two along with a preview of the next game. NMSU was in the Big West Conference and was termed helpless and hopeless by Sports Illustrated in 1992.

That same year coach Hess had the last laugh by turning the team into winners after being portrayed in the national sports magazine as a disgrace. That is his way. Giving from the heart and asking for the best effort from the young men he brought into

The team was enduring the nation's longest losing streak when Hess rode into town. It took a blood oath on "A" mountain from his seniors and some determined play in the last game of the season to end the streak, but

Hess ended the streak.

During Hess's time, one of the greatest running backs in school history carried the mail. Denvis Manns from Lufkin, Texas, was the last player signed in 1996. Before Manns was done, he had rushed for more than 1,000 yards in each of the four years he played for the Aggies and showed the world that modesty and class were still a part of the college football scene.

Another Aggie Hall of Fame player, Todd Cutler, established receiving records his senior year under this Texas mentor. Hess first quarterback achieved fame as well but in another realm. David Chisum is now a New York actor on One Life to Live.  $Completing \ more$ passes to housewives on the small screen than he did as an Aggie.

The names, games and statistics are fun to remember, but the richest memories are the personal ones people have of coach. A spellbinding speaker, he addressed everyone in the state from Indian tribes to the Farm and Livestock Bureau membership. He took the time to make every fan feel important when he was in charge.

Pete is glad Hess is comin' back for homecoming. Las Cruces wasn't his first home, but those that know him want him to know this will always be a welcome place for him to take off his boots and hang his hat.

JACK NIXON Jack's Corner

The Western Athletic Conference Volleyball race is looking like two contenders and seven pretenders. The Aggies and Hawaii have as hot a rivalry as there is in college sports, and it doesn't seem to be cooling down.

After Saturday's match, Oct. 20, with San Jose State is done, the Jordanaires head to Hawaii for a rematch with the Rainbow Wahine Oct. 26. Hawaii has been walking tall in the NCAA volleyball world for some years and the Aggies are step for step with them now. Not that the rest of the league teams won't improve at some point in the future, but it is clear that Nevada has faded like a chorus girl past her prime. Idaho was a solid Big West opponent, but they have not made the right moves to keep the program strong in the league swap, and the rest of the league is just grist for the churning mill of the Aggies and Rainbows

It was obvious that Mike Jordan had grown his program much larger than the Sun Belt competition that was basically beaten before the first serve the last two years NMSU was in that loop. Jordan's first NCAA team is a prime candidate for induction to the NMSU Hall of Fame when its time is ripe for consideration in a year or so. To move into the new league with out dropping a step is truly impressive when you see the growing transitional years other sports have needed to shift gears and "Play Up" in the current league. Not Aggie Volleyball.

All Jordan really needed was a bigger mantel to place the additional coach of the year awards side by side. He is on a four-vear streak in that award arena. Does anyone think that is easy? How did this come to be? Jordan realized talent and has the innate ability and insight to coach the distaff side of the sport. Does any guy think that is easy?

Keep the dates of the WAC Volleyball tournament in bold on that refrigerator calendar. It's less than a month away and it will be great time to reinforce Las Cruces and NMSU as a real home for top quality teams and first class hospitality. Mike Jordan is the Aggies unas suming ace. He has sought to improve that match atmosphere in conjunction with the marketing staff so that the casual fan of the sport can have fun even though they may not know a double hit from a double play. It is the Big Two and the rest, in the WAC. It will stay that way as long as Mike Jordan is

Don't stereotype athletes says sports psychologist

Most are law-abiding and family centered

By Natisha Hales

In the wake of recent attention brought to several New Mexico State University student-athletes and their alleged criminal involvement, a nationally renowned sports psychologist urged local university and community leaders not to assume they are representative of all athletes at the university.

Richard Lapchick, founder and director emeritus of the Center for the Study of Sport in Society at Northeastern University in Boston, said most studentathletes are quite the opposite of the usual stigma associated with them.

"The vast majority of student-athletes are law abiding, family centered and deeply religious," Lapchick said. "These are an outstanding group of people that are leaders on campus today and will be leaders in the community."

He said it's especially dangerous to have pre-conceived notions when African-Americans or other minorities are involved.

"There are studies after studies of racial imagery," he said. "One study at the University of Chicago said white people generally believe African-Americans are less intelligent and more inclined to be violent. They don't say it in public, but that's a very dangerous thing to do. It's a form of racism, and it leads us to judge people who have nothing to do with the incident on hand.'

Aggie volleyball now 18th in nation

New Mexico State may be favored, but coach Mike Jordan believes that San Jose State will be a formidable volleyball opponent here Saturday.

The match begins at noon at the Pan

American Center. NMSU stood 17-3, 8-1 in the WAC prior to Thursday's home match against

The Aggies swept Louisiana Tech 3-0 last week, in what Jordan called a good performance. NMSU also swept San Jose State on the road earlier this season.

Jordan, however, warns that the Spartans will be improved and dangerous. They're a good, athletic team," he said.

Saturday's match with San Jose will be a prelude to the Oct. 26 re-match with Hawaii in Honolulu. The Rainbow Wahine edged Jordan's team 3-2 when the two met in Las Cuces recently.

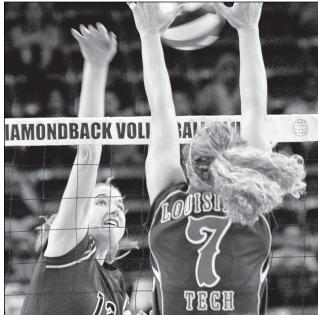

After last week's action, Hawaii led the conference standings at 10-0 (16-3 overall with NMSU in second place. San Jose was in seventh place at 2-6 (8-11 overall).

Hawaii is ranked 11th nationally while NMSU moved up to 18th – the highest ranking ever for Aggie volleyball.

TV basketball schedule announced

With the success of AggieVision during the 2007 football and volleyball seasons, New Mexico State University will continue to bring Aggie athletics to Aggie fans around the state and the region by producing and distributing games for both men's and women's basketball, beginning on Nov. 11, as the men's basketball team takes on UC-Davis at the Pan American Center starting at 7 p.m. AggieVision, which is produced by the university's mobile production unit, will televise these events on Comcast Entertainment Television (Las Cruces channel 4), as well as several other entities.

Comcast affiliates in Las Cruces (Channel 4), Albuquerque (Ch. 53), Gallup (Ch. 66) and Santa Fe (Ch. 21) and Time Warner Cable in El Paso (Ch. 24) will carry each of these events, while Altitude Sports and Entertainment and FSN-Arizona will carry selected events. In most cases, these games will be carried live, excluding in Las Cruces, where all games will be tape delayed.

This is a huge community effort, and Comcast Entertainment Television is proud to be part of this unique event," said John Christopher, vice president and general manager of Comcast Cable Southern New Mexico.

"AggieVision and our partnership with Comcast Cable and our other affiliates are key components to our plan to advance the reach and scope of New Mexico State athletics," said Athletic Director McKinley Boston. "Not only will AggieVision bring our events to more of our fans and alumni, but it will help our coaches in recruiting and increase the value of our brand to our current and future corporate partners."

AggieVision will produce and distribute 15 men's basketball games and four women's basketball games this winter, including home games against rivals UTEP and New Mexico, as well as key WAC contests. Coupled with the three men's basketball games being produced and distributed by ESPN properties (at Duke Nov. 12, Utah State Jan.26, Bracket Buster Feb. 23) and two games being carried by Versus, for the Legends Classic, November 23-24.

For more information about AggieVision, visit www.NMStateSports.com.

position, he makes his reads rapidly and turns to his instincts and quick feet to get him to the ball carrier. From there, his strength and technique help him make quick work of the opponent. Then comes the fist-pumping celebration.

"He could have been an all-state wrestler," said Bradley. "And he could run track if he wanted to. But all he has wanted to do was play

Suter also has been a valuable contributor on offense where he gets a few carries a game and has scored four touchdowns this year, including one in last week's win over Oñate.

But Suter's greatest value this season has been as a leader. The Trojans, who have won back-to-back state championships, are long on talent again this year, but the leadership among the players has fallen mostly on Suter. In his 35 high school games at Mayfield, Suter has been on the losing side only once, so when he talks, his teammates listen. And in the classroom, his 3.8 grade-point average speaks loudly.

While he may be vocal on the football field, Suter is quiet and soft-spoken off the field. His coach says he's the one other players turn to when they have a problem or need to talk. He says he's just a piece of the puzzle.

"We all go to each other, so it's not just me," he said. "It comes natural. I just do what I feel like I should do and lead by example.

Like the time Bradley said Suter was the last one out of the locker room after a win over Rio Grande two weeks ago. The coach saw his team captain gathering all of the empty pizza boxes and throwing them in the trash.

That's usually what the seniors make the freshmen do," Bradley said.

"He's always been a driven person and he's a natural born leader," the coach added. "He motivates his teammates, stays on them and helps the players who have problems. He's the first one on the field and the last one to leave. Those kids are like gold to a coach. He'll be successful in whatever he chooses to do. I've never had anyone like Yanni before."

While the Mayfield Trojans are off this week and Las Cruces High took on Gadsden Thursday night, Oñate hosts Alamogordo Friday night at the Field of Dreams in a district contest.

COLUMNS AND OUTSTANDING CONCEPTION CAN BE FOUND AT 5055 LADERA CANYON

This home is a diamond in the desert

By BETHANY CONWAY

In the sparsely populated area of Talavera, amidst the untouched desert landscape behind "A" mountain, 5055 Ladera Canyon sits on 12.5 acres.

Owned by Peter and Marlene Akel, who also own The Design Center at the Floor Concepts, the home features top-of-the-line interior design including massive Roman-style columns throughout that give the home an Old World feel.

The columns continue throughout the house and the back porch, producing a uniformed elegance throughout.

Intricate tile work and granite can be found in every room, along with extensive use of windows in order to take advantage of the view from all sides.

"There are windows everywhere," said Beth Marr of Emerick Real Estate. "You can capture the view from every room."

Whether dining, relaxing in the living room or playing a game of pool in the second living area, the view is always readily available.

The five-foot windows in the dining room allow for elegant dinner parties with a view of the mountainside. The living room is an impressive sight, with a "soaring ceiling" that has several windows to let in a great deal of light.

The kitchen has the most amenities with Australian granite black countertops, including an island with disposal, GE appliances, built-in spice racks, a sixburner stove with griddle and a reverse-osmosis water purification system.

"This is an upscale quality, top-of-theline gourmet kitchen," Marr said.

The master bedroom has a heavily windowed sitting area, great for reading the paper and drinking an early morning cup of coffee.

The master bathroom features a jetted tub with a windowed shower behind it, granite counter tops, glass tile accents and his and her vanities.

The master bath leads into the closet, which is the same size if not bigger than the master bedroom, and features closet space for the largest of wardrobes.

The home has an extensive back porch, complete with a Jacuzzi, fireplace and fountain.

"The view and the acreage is what sells it," Marr said. "The exclusivity of it all. It will stay private no matter how much Las Cruces grows because of the acreage."

The porch faces the west and has the potential for great sunsets. The fireplace makes this possible even in the winter.

"From up here you can see all the way to Deming, all of the mountain ranges and Doña Ana," Marr said.

The Akels said they have spotted New Mexico wildlife on several occasions, including deer and a mountain lion, which have come to their land to drink from a trough they have set up a little way from the home.

The house also includes an oversized three-car garage, with a 44-foot RV area that can be used for other recreational vehicles as well.

For those looking for a home in the solitude that this wilderness area of the city has to offer, 5055 Ladera Canyon is the place. The home can be purchased either with the five acres on which the home was built, or with the extent of the property equaling 12.5 acres of beautiful, unaltered New Mexico landscape.

Creative entrances that sell

Historic traditions come full circle

the first impression becomes the lasting impression ...

Residences in the Southwest have great style. These features include red tile roofs, timbers, bell towers, tile, arches, stucco, baroque ornament, metal work, columns and fountains. What you do with these features and your imagination can be a great start to enhancing any entrance.

To begin, the entrance should evolve. Most homes have the front door right off the driveway, nothing out of the ordinary.

With some imagination, the first impression becomes the lasting impression and along the way the drama, mystique and sense of welcome builds with every step to the front door. The visitor enters the front gate, absorbed with every detail, wanting more. They keep walking, and they are overwhelmed. By the time they get to the front door, they're excited. Now that's an entry!

Inspired by an unusually creative entrance, a person will look in one direction, then another and another, trying to take it all in because there is always something of interest to excite the eyes. Basically, the entry leads to the front door, but how one gets there begins the drama of the house that lies beyond the Entry ways can be hidden under archways, surrounded by rock walls, elaborate gates or winding pavement. But the real mystique comes from having the entry away from the house. The build up of anticipation, the glamour, the excitement and beauty of every step adds mystique. The front door is like life - if you see it all at once, it is not as interesting as if you discover a little at a time.

Capturing the ultimate experience is to be inspired, recreating a little bit of history, With some imagination, involving a treasure find or overstating a simple feature. Bringing a sense of awe to the front entry makes the trip well worth the effort. Ultimately everyone has the same opportunity to build an entrance. But what makes one more pleasing than another is the imagination. Materials can help convey the message of welcome and drama with layers of texture such as stone, tile, wood and glass.

As a focal point, the front entry gate provides the design trend for the whole house, and it should make a powerful statement. A friendly entrance, a meandering path, curves, arches, roof lines and layer upon layer of walls all add dimension to build up the front door.

Homeowners can add a sense of mystique to their entryway with an archway and gate that opens into a Building an archway with a gate to enter into an inner patio then the front door, or a gated driveway to enter before you wander down the road to the house, all creates a sense of mystery. We all like to be carried away with our imagination, and by blending the dwelling into the terrain with walls, the house becomes more secluded. Trends today are blending the Southwest casual style with the influence of grand European style.

Are we repeating history with a different twist? Our ancestors incorporated large outdoor plazas into their dwellings for socializing, trade, cooking and ceremonies. The Spanish built their homes around a central courtvard, an architectural element that continues to influence Southwestern design. Our changing lifestyles and the need for privacy and reclaiming the body and soul are the same elements that prevailed for decades and are coming full circle. We use the same elements – the fireplace, the plants, rock walls, wrought iron gates, wooded doors and decorative tile and stone - but this time it's putting distance between our lifestyle and the outside world.

Let's take the first step, upon arrival at the exterior gate, trees or greenery create a canopy. Once inside these protective walls, the lush desert retreat appears to be far from the noise and intrusion of city life. In a quest for character and shade, various patios are built, offering an option of outdoor entertainment settings. Enhancing the area is a quiet splash of the courtyard's fountain or bronze sculptured art that is blended with the visual eloquence of flowers. We sit back, relax and enjoy the peaceful sense of serenity, putting distance between our lifestyle and the outside world. And, what an amazing trip to the

Things you can do with a can

Food preservation is only the beginning

BY BETHANY CONWAY The Las Cruces Bulletin

Tin cans are one of those items that gets tossed into the trash without a second thought ... or maybe not. The tin can has many uses that will make someone think twice before throwing it away.

In 1795 Napoleon offered 12,000 francs to anyone who could come up with a method of preserving food for his armies, which were traveling far distances and suffering from hunger. In 1810, an inventor named Nicolas Appert won the prize, and the can was born. That same year, Peter Durand patented the can and made a large impact on food preservation.

The original can was made of iron and was much heavier than modern cans. Craftsmen could produce 60 cans at best compared to the can making assembly lines of today, which can produce more than 1 million a day.

Since its invention, the tin can has evolved into many shapes and sizes along with the can opener, which was patented in 1858.

The uses for cans have evolved as well, though no one will forget two tin cans on a very long string.

Here are some practical and decorative ideas for used cans; some are great for group or family projects.

- 1. Luminaries: The next time when opening a few cans make sure to leave the flip-top lid attached just slightly. After the can has been cleaned, fill it a little over three-quarters full of water and drop in a floating candle and place outdoors to accent a garden or patio. Leaving the lid slightly attached and open keeps the wind from blowing out the candles and also reflects the candlelight.
- 2. Fun finger foods: Fill the bottom of a tin can with marbles or any other item that can be used as a weight. Make skewers of fresh mozzarella, cherry tomatoes and basil or any other combination of fruits or vegetables and stand them up in the weighted can for easy decorative

3. Mini plant garden: Tin cans can be used as pots for small plants. Keep a garden of basil, mint and thyme in decorative tin cans on a patio table. 4. From can to pan: After washing and drying a can, spray the inside with a vegetable coating such as Pam, fill about two-thirds full with banana nut bread batter and bake. After removing from oven, let cool in the can. Take a knife and slide around the inside of the perimeter of the can to release the little round loaf of banana nut bread. Can be wrapped in saran wrap and tied with a bow to be given away.

Banana Nut Bread

3 1/4 cups all-purpose flour

2 teaspoons baking soda

1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon salt

4 large eggs

2 1/3 cups sugar

1 cup vegetable oil

3 cups coarsely mashed very ripe bananas (6 large)

2 teaspoons vanilla

1/3 cups walnuts (4 oz), toasted and chopped

Preheat oven to 350°F. Spray 3 to 4 clean and de-labeled tin cans with non-stick cooking spray such as Pam.

Sift together 3 1/4 cups flour, baking soda, cinnamon and salt into a bowl. Beat together eggs and sugar in bowl with electric mixer at medium-high speed until the mixture is very thick and pale and forms a ribbon when beater is lifted. Reduce speed to low and add oil in a slow stream, mixing, and then mix in bananas, and vanilla. Fold in flour mixture and walnuts gently but thoroughly.

Fill each tin can about 3/4 full and bake in middle of oven until golden brown and a wooden pick or skewer comes out clean (1 to 1 1/4 hours).

Cool loaves for 10 minutes. Take a knife and slide around the inside the perimeter of the can to release the bread. These make great gift ideas for

5. Protect your plants: Remove both ends of an aluminum can and any paper label. Then push it down into the garden to serve as a collar to protect young plants from cutworms. Use a soup can or a coffee can, depending on the size you need.

6. Make a can candle: Tin cans can be used as candle molds as well. Make sure to hold the wick straight up while pouring the wax into the can. The wax must be very hot. Make sure to let the candle cool completely and the skin forms before taking it out of the can. For a more creative candle, layer different colors of wax; make sure to let the first layer cool completely before adding the

LYN HASTON,

Owner

A satisfying builder with a safety plan

By BETHANY CONWAY

When Lyn Haston moved to Las Cruces he searched for the perfect Southwestern home, only to find himself sorely disappointed. His solution was creating New Construction Realty. He started by building his own home and since then has been actively building for more than four years.

"I came here from California looking for a change, and after looking at some 30 homes, I couldn't find one I liked. So I hooked up with a builder and built my first house, and today I have built close to 100 homes," Haston said.

Haston builds Southwestern-style homes and said he uses a lot of wooden columns, both as center and accent pieces along with several nichos and art walls.

"We do (the nichos) specifically to let people use as they will," Haston said. "I think it gives a little definition to a house to have the ability to have art and artwork, things you like and things that make a difference to you as a person on display.

We claim to have the most standard features of any builder," said Jorge Lopez, marketing coordinator for New Construction Realty. "Those standard things make the home that much nicer and that much better.

New Construction Realty has many homes in the Park Hill Estates area along with the Diamond Springs area of Sonoma Ranch. They have built in seven different areas in Las Cruces, and Haston said that all are the same floor plan and the same quality, and the features and amenities never change.

"I won't build a house unless I would live in it," Haston said. "I would move into the houses I build without hesitation. That is how sure I am of how well we build it and how well we do it.'

Haston said that what sets him apart from other builders is not only his attention to detail, but also the consideration his company has for the neighborhoods in which he

"We stand out when we build our homes because of our respect for the people who build our homes and the people around us," Haston said. "Our framers wear hard hats, and you don't find a lot of sand and dirt in the street when we are building. We have adopted a safety plan that is utilized in every house that we build.'

As a realty and building company, Haston said that New Construction Realty has the advantage of looking at what people are actually buying and then tailoring their homes to meet those needs.

"This was my builder of choice, and I have been with him three years," said Barbara Childs, real estate agent for New Construction Realty. "I wanted something I could feel comfortable selling."

As for the Las Cruces homebuilding market, Haston says its condition could be worse.

"I don't believe that the real estate market is as poor as a lot of the press seems to indicate," he said. "It is slower because of an over supply, but we have not seen a dramatic decline in the prices of homes.

Realty includes intricate tile design in their homes as a standard feature.

Fall Parade of Homes sees great turnout

Results are in for this season's judging

By BETHANY CONWAY
The Las Cruces Bulletin

The Fall Parade of Homes kicked off this weekend, and reactions from builders and attendees were the same allaround. This year saw better homes and more attendance.

"I think the homes looked better for this parade than they have in a long time. Everybody stepped up their game," said Jennifer Baca, senior loan officer for Precision Mortgage and co-chair of the judging committee for the Las Cruces Home Builders Association (LCHBA).

Builders saw a steady attendance on-lookers throughout the weekend, and this year, Baca said builders really participated.

were "Builders the homes visiting with has a large enclosed courtyard people, and that's fairly new," Baca said.

All 38 homes were on display over the weekend although three homes did not make the LCHBA inspections and could not be judged in the competition.

This year's overall winner was 102 Mesa Grande in Elephant Butte, built by Homes by Joe Boyden LLC.

"Interestingly we have a home in Elephant Butte. Our territory is not only Las Cruces and Doña Ana County, but also Deming, Truth or Consequences and Elephant Butte. We had a home that was out of town for the first time since I can remember, and we were concerned that they wouldn't get the traffic, but they did,' said Richard Hummel, LCHBA events and marketing administrator.

Although it is a far drive, Baca encourages parade goers to visit and said the drive is well worth it.

"Over and over I heard people saying, 'I can commute.' The setting was perfect. They utilized a very difficult lot very well and thought of little things that other builders did not," Baca said.

Although the winning results have already been released, the Fall Parade of Homes will continue this weekend on Oct. 19, 20, and 21, with houses open from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Friday, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

"We anticipate another strong weekend coming up,' Hummel said.

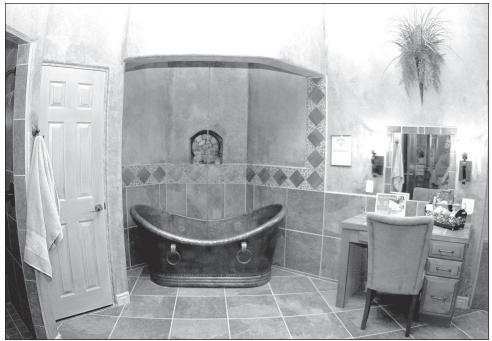

Winners in each range judged on curb appeal, kitchen, bathroom and interior construction as well as overall construction. Winners are as follows:

Old World charm thrives in modern homes

Builders and homeowners embrace antique elegance

Old World design is all the rage in the New World these days. Home owners and their builders are reworking neglected old properties and constructing brand new villas that celebrate many of the architectural details and finishing touches brought from England, France, Italy and Spain during the 17th and 18th centuries.

Kitchens and baths are often the spaces most dramatically influenced by design elements from days of old. Today cabinetry and faucet fixtures in the kitchen and bath are taking on new looks that actually steal concepts from old standbys. Homeowners want to create kitchens and baths that feel as though they were built centuries ago. A perfect way to achieve that old world look is with finishes that have been created to look old, but perform with all of the dynamics of modern day.

For example, the brush mark crackle finish uses an 11-step, hand applied process to create the effect of a 17th- or 18th-century antique, but without the hassles and dangers of original antique

Add the fact that many of these finishes are offered in a range of colors from white to black and a full spectrum in between, and you have complete customizable options. Gorgeous old world inspired faucets and fixtures are the details that give kitchens and baths the charm of the old while offering all of the best in innovation of today.

Since these finishes are often best expressed on pieces with intricate details like carved moldings, mantels and korbels, they are perfect complements to homes trying to recreate Old World elegance while also maintaining modern day amenities. Whether used simply on an accent piece or on a wall of cabinets coupled with modern day appliances, these finishing techniques are a great way to intermingle the old with the new.

This trend continues to be especially popular with custom builders and designers who often take upwards of two years to complete that perfect new home that looks as though it has been around for years.

Publications have touted the beauty of creating a lovely new house with classical details that evoke a sense of heritage. Basically, today it's all about creating a new home that echoes the past while keeping all of the comforts of current lifestyles. Often finding the perfect elements to achieve this look is difficult. Working with craftspeople, who revere the techniques of the past but leverage the technologies of today, offers the hom-eowner solutions not available previously.

Sassy squash recipes for autumn

Squash recipes with chile pepper makes a spicy treat

Ah, squash. I love it - both kinds - winter and summer. Summer squash is thinner skinned; winter thicker. The winter variety is grown September through December. Grocery stand bins are now loaded with the colorful and often heavy-set gourds. The name squash comes from the Indian word askutasquash meaning, "eaten raw or uncooked." Although the Indians may have savored uncooked squash, today we like our squashes cooked – boiled, baked or fried. For specific directions on squash varieties and how to cook them, visit http:/ whatscookingamerica.com/squash.
On a side note, one time I failed to pierce a spaghetti squash (piercing lets the steam escape) before cooking it in the microwave. When cooked, the flesh separates in strands that resemble spaghetti pasta. Needless to say, squash strings draped the inside of the microwave, the kitchen floor and the ceiling. So, cook with care and

Sassy Squash Pancakes

These pancakes can be prepared with butternut squash, Hubbard squash and other varieties of winter

1 cup all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon baking powder

1/2 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice

1 teaspoon cayenne pepper, or to taste*

1 egg, slightly beaten

2 cups squash purée

1/2 cup molasses or maple syrup 3-4 tablespoons buttermilk or milk

2 tablespoons unsalted butter or margarine, melted

1/2 cup chopped pecans or hazelnuts, optional

Powdered sugar for dusting
In a large bowl, sift together flour, baking powder, salt and pumpkin pie spice. Set aside.
In another bowl, beat egg slightly. Add squash purée, molasses or syrup, milk or buttermilk and melted butter ar margazine. Mix artil amount. Pland in the day. ter or margarine. Mix until smooth. Blend in the dry ingredients all at once. Mix until batter is smooth. Allow batter to rest for 30 minutes or more.

Stir nuts into batter, and add additional tablespoon of buttermilk or milk if batter is too thick.

To make pancakes, spoon a heaping tablespoon of batter onto a lightly greased preheated griddle or heavy iron skillet. With the back of the spoon, flatten batter to about 1/2-inch thickness. Cook slowly until bubbles appear on top and bottom is golden brown. Lift edge to check. Turn and cook until other side is golden brown.

Put cooked pancakes on an ovenproof platter and set in a warm oven. Continue making pancakes until all of the batter is used. Garnish with powdered sugar or serve with corn syrup, maple syrup or your favorite pan-

*Or skip cayenne pepper entirely and rather than topping pancakes with syrup, substitute green chile

Makes about 24 3-inch pancakes or 4 to 6 servings.

Butternut Squash Muffins with Habanero Butter

2 cups whole-wheat flour 1 cup grated butternut squash 3/4 cup low-fat milk 1 egg or 2 egg whites 1/4 cup canola oil 1/4 cup brown sugar, packed 3 tablespoons pure maple syrup 2 teaspoons baking powder 1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg

1/2 teaspoon salt 1/4 cup butter, melted

1/8-1/4 teaspoon habanero powder (or to taste)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Prepare 12 muffin cups with paper baking cups or non-stick cooking spray. In a medium bowl, stir together the grated squash, brown sugar and maple syrup. Let sit for 10 minutes.

In a larger bowl, sift together the flour, baking soda, nutmeg and salt. Add squash mixture to flour mixture. Add remaining ingredients (milk, egg and canola oil). Stir until flour mixture is fully moistened. Do not over

Spoon batter into the prepared muffin cups, filling each cup about two-thirds.

Bake for 20 to 25 minutes. Test the center of the largest muffin with a toothpick to assure muffins are done. If toothpick comes out clean, it's done. (Bake longer if necessary.) Makes 12 muffins.

Serve with melted butter mixed with habanero powder.

Spaghetti Squash with Spicy Red Pepper Oil

1 large spaghetti squash (2 1/2 to 3 pounds), halved and seeded 1/2 cup water

Squash: Heat oven to 350 degrees. Place squash halves, cut side down, in small roasting pan. Add water. Cover pan with foil.

Bake in oven for 50 to 60 minutes or until squash is

Spicy Red Pepper Oil

1/2 cup olive oil 6 cloves garlic, chopped 1/2 teaspoon red-pepper flakes

1/3 cup white wine 3/4 teaspoon salt or to taste

1/4 teaspoon black pepper 1/3 cup Parmesan cheese, freshly grated (preferred)

In small saucepan, heat oil over medium heat. Add garlic and pepper flakes; cook 1 minute or until garlic just starts to color. Do not let garlic burn! Add wine, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil for about 2 minutes.

Using fork, shred squash into strands. Place strands in large bowl. Add olive oil mixture; toss. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

Tex-Mex Pumpkin Soup

2 cups fresh or canned pumpkin pounds lean ground beef or turkey

2 (15-ounce) cans red kidney beans 2 medium white onions, chopped

3 (15-ounce) cans chopped tomatoes (with jalapenos, optional)

2 tablespoons chili powder or to taste 1/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes (if using canned tomatoes with jalapenos, you may want to skip this)

2 tablespoons sugar teaspoon salt

Brown ground beef or turkey and drain off excess fat. Add meat and remaining ingredients into a Dutch oven or stockpot. Cook on low for 1 to 2 hours. Serve with hot-from-the-oven garlic bread. Note: This can also be prepared for the crock pot. Cook on low all day. Serves 6.

Roasted Acorn Squash with Chile Vinaigrette

2 (1 1/2-1 3/4-lb) acorn squash

1/2 teaspoon black pepper

1 teaspoon salt

6 tablespoons olive oil

1 garlic clove

1 1/2 tablespoons fresh lime juice, or to taste 1 to 2 teaspoons finely chopped fresh red jalapeno, including seeds

2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro Put oven racks in upper and lower thirds of oven and preheat oven to 450 degrees. Halve squash lengthwise, then cut off and discard stem ends. Scoop out seeds and cut squash lengthwise into 3/4-inch-wide wedges.

Toss squash with black pepper, 3/4-teaspoon salt, and 2 tablespoons oil in a bowl, then arrange, cut sides down, in 2 large shallow baking pans. Roast squash, switching position of pans halfway through roasting, until squash is tender and undersides of wedges are golden brown, 25 to 35 minutes.

While squash roasts, mince garlic and mash to a paste with remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt. Transfer paste to a small bowl and whisk in lime juice, chile (to taste), cilantro, and remaining 1/4 cup oil until combined. Transfer squash, browned sides up, to a platter and drizzle with vinaigrette. (Adapted from Gourmet magazine, Oct. 2006.) Makes 12 muffins.
