WSMR commander promoted to brigadier general

On May 1, Col. David C. Trybula was officially pinned with the flag-officer rank of brigadier general.

Trybula is the 38th commander of White Sands Missile Range. According to a WSMR press release, the ceremony was conducted by Maj. Gen. Joel Tyler, commanding general of the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command, via video teleconference.

Prior to taking command at White Sands, Trybula served as the deputy chief of staff for Army Futures Command Headquarters in Austin, Texas.

“What a humbling experience,” Trybula said following the ceremony. “This is truly the result of investments by soldiers, civilians and family members throughout my career. My deepest gratitude goes out to each and every person who has been a part of my development. Today is your day, as well! I am thrilled at the opportunity to continue to contribute and serve our nation.”

Trybula came aboard at WSMR on July 17, 2019, when he took over from outgoing commander Brigadier General Gregory J. Brady. Brady introduced Trybula on that day as “the right leader at the right time.”

“The Trybulas are present for duty and humbled to be counted as part of the Army Test and Evaluation Command Team and stand proud with all the outstanding soldiers, sailors, airmen, civilians and family members of the White Sands Missile Range community,” Trybula said as he took command last July. “Truth in testing. Army strong.”

Upon graduation from the U.S. Military Academy in 1989, Trybula was commissioned as an armor officer and served his company-grade time in armor and cavalry units before receiving his functional designation as an operations research systems analyst. He holds a bachelor’s degree from the United States Military Academy and a master’s degree and doctorate in philosophy in economics from the University of Texas at Austin.

Corbett Center, 1600 International Mall on the NMSU campus; and Sonoma Elementary School, 4201 Northrise Drive.

At the county clerk's office, early, in-person voting is available 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday-Friday and 10 a.m.-6 p.m. and on the Saturday (May 30) immediately before primary election day. Alternate voting locations will be open 11 a.m.-7 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday through Saturday, May 30.

Same-day voter registration is available at all these locations during early voting.

Health precautions

All voting stations will be at least six feet apart and no more than five voters at a time will be allowed in a voting location, Doña Ana County Clerk Amada Lopez Askin said. Poll workers will wear personal protective equipment and plexiglass separators will be used to provide a safety barrier between voters and poll workers, she said, disposable wooden sticks will be used in place of a stylus for signing ballots, all pens will be sanitized after each use and regular sanitizing will take place at voting locations.

"I am so grateful that we have so many community partners that are willing to work with us on giving access to voters while at the same time maximizing the precautions we take while they are voting," Lopez Askin said.

Lopez Askin recommended voting by absentee ballot in the primary and she encouraged people who vote in person to wear a mask, but said, "We're not going to deny a person access to the ballot box because they're not wearing a mask." She said a limited number of masks will be available to be given to voters who don't have a mask.

Thursday, May 28, is the last day to apply for an absentee ballot to vote by mail in the primary. Voters can drop off their completed ballots in sealed envelopes at any polling location throughout the county. Immediate family members or caregivers can drop them off a voter's sealed absentee ballot at the county clerk's office at the county government building. Completed absentee ballots must be turned in by 7 p.m. on election day, which is Tuesday, June 2.

To receive an absentee ballot, voters can fill out and mail back the absentee-ballot request form they receive from the Doña Ana County Clerk's office, or they can apply for an absentee ballot at <https://portal.sos.state.nm.us/OVR/WebPages/AbsenteeApplication.aspx>. Or visit www.donaanacounty.org/elections/elections-info and click on NMVote.org to request an absentee ballot online. It takes less than five minutes to fill out the request.

New Mexico Water & Electric

The use of solar energy to either offset standard utility costs or to move entirely away from the established power grid continues to be an ever-improving option for many home and business owners in Southern New Mexico.

While the basics of most solar energy systems are somewhat easy to comprehend, assuring the installation of an appropriate array designed to meet specific customer needs can be difficult and costly, especially with a growing number of variously qualified service providers now vying to install systems before the 2022 sunset of a 26-percent federal tax rebate offer.

Southern New Mexico-based owners and licensed contractors with New Mexico Water & Electric are not only fully qualified and experienced with the installation of all types of solar energy systems, they are fully versed in both the benefits and often misleading information relating to the current federal rebate program and other available support for consumers.

With the federal tax rebate program set to end in less than two years, solar energy service firms from outside the community and state are now flocking to Southern New Mexico to provide solar energy options, which ostensibly will allow local home and business owners to take advantage of the available cost returns. Officials with New Mexico Water & Electric want all of those considering this opportunity to understand that the federal program does not apply to everyone. The current rebate offer applies only to "taxable income," which means many retired citizens and those living on fixed income will not qualify.

New Mexico Water & Electric also wants local consumers to recognize that without the installation of considerable back-up components most residential/small commercial solar energy systems will still be reliant upon connections to the local power grid, and therefore could be wholly ineffective if and when the power grid fails or is otherwise taken off-line.

In addition to this concern, New Mexico Water & Electric reminds potential customers how the installation of most residential systems will involve considerable roof-work and the drilling of possibly hundreds of holes into the roofing surface. This factor makes it critical to assure the installation process is not only professionally executed, but also raises questions about how non-local firms might respond, or not respond when eventual roofing repairs or replacement becomes necessary.

Average costs associated with the installation of residential solar energy systems presently hover at or above $20,000+, leading many consumers to consider package deals and enticing financing options being forwarded by the increasing number of service providers. Assuring the viability of such deals and options, as well as securing connections for follow-up repairs, maintenance assistance and other services are therefore vital, for customers to both justify and feel good about such an investment.

Having hands-on experience with the installation of all available types of solar arrays and integrated components, throughout Southern New Mexico, NMWE's contractors are eager to help area residents secure the most effective solution for every possible need or concern.

Whether you may be looking to supplement power for your home or business, or if you're looking to install a system to be completely independent of the power grid, New Mexico Water & Electric is fully qualified and prepared to help you realize your goals. In addition to quality installation and service capabilities, NMWE's staff stand ready to assist New Mexico residents in making the best decisions possible for their energy future.

Aside from solar energy concerns, New Mexico Water & Electric's licensed contractors are further prepared to assist customers with the development of water wells, water purification systems, as well as with all other types of electrical services.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

New Mexico Water & Electric (NM License No. 394531) is based in Hillsboro, New Mexico, with offices located at 10849 Highway 152. Hummingbirds return

BULLETIN PHOTO BY MONICA V. GUIDI

Hummingbirds are native to the Americas, and there are nearly two dozen varieties making their homes in the desert Southwest. The four most common locals, according to the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish (NMDGF), are the black-chinned, broad-tailed, calliope and rufous. Some weigh less than a penny, but even the largest weighs less than an ounce). Hummingbirds' wings can beat 50-200 times per second with an average heart rate of about 1,200 beats per minute. They need to take about 250 breaths per minute. In contrast, a typical healthy human at rest takes 12-20 breaths per minute. Proportional to body size, a hummingbird's heart is five times the size of a human heart. Photographer Monica V. Guidi is an avid hiker and owner of Life in Balance Pilates Studio, 300 N. Senseless killing angers, frustrates

During all the craziness, health concerns and economic slide of the Coronavirus Times, I've found periodic comfort in the knowledge there are still plenty of good things unaffected by the disease.

For example: Our loved ones still love us, the birds are still singing, dogs still happily wag their tails and you can still get great green chile cheeseburgers in Las Cruces.

The flipside of that is there are still plenty of bad things unaffected by the disease as well.

Insidious things. Like murder.

Murder is not a common occurrence in Las Cruces, thankfully. But when it does occur, it doesn't typically happen to someone who is later in life, someone who has spent that life building a respected business, and who is beloved by friends and the community.

Those words and many more positive and happy ones describe Oscar Amezcuita. No one could ever imagine the words "murder victim" would also describe him.

Since the 1960s, Oscar, 79, was the proprietor of Landis Boot and Shoe Service, which had already been in Las Cruces for generations.

He was shot to death about 6 p.m. Saturday, May 9, at the location of his business near the intersection of Lohman Avenue and Esperanza Street.

As of this writing, the Las Cruces Police were still looking for information. If you know anything to help identify a suspect, call the police department at 575-526-0795, or anonymously to Crime Stoppers at 800-222-8477.

I met Oscar several years ago when looking for a certain style of shoelaces, which Landis didn't have. However, as I'm guessing happened to many, if not all, of Oscar's customers, we got into an engaging conversation.

He seemed impressed by my music trivia knowledge, but not nearly as impressed as I was by his shoe and leather knowledge. He taught me about leather care and the importance of shoe trees, and then the discussion turned philosophical. We covered a lot of ground in a short time, and I appreciated his clear communication.

I'm not sure either of us realized it in the moment, but he had just sold me as a customer. From then on, I never took my footwear anywhere else. When I saw him interact with other customers, I saw the same thing. He treated everyone as if they were important.

The shop did great work on both my dress shoes and my ropers, and I made a mental note to come back and interview him, because I thought his story would make a great column in The Bulletin. We even had a time set up once, but we both had to cancel.

There's a lesson in there about seizing the day.

In a few cases, getting new heels and a sprucing-up for my shoes or boots cost me nearly as much as a brand-new pair. But the price didn't bother me, because the work was top-notch, and also because I found value, benefit and entertainment in the conversations with Oscar.

There was also something special in saving something that still had good life left in it — doing a little re-furbishing instead of just throwing away something of value.

Sadly, painfully and pointlessly, Oscar was robbed of his opportunity to continue his good, humble work.

A wonderful human life that still had a lot of great value has been discarded, treated worse than an old pair of shoes.

Oscar Amezcuita was a good man. Las Cruces lost a treasure.

Second Time Around

We must sell it, I told Mother, for we really have no other choice. The price is much too dear to harbor any doubt.

And though I know we'll miss it the time has come to kiss it goodbye and find another place a little further out.

When the Indians sold Manhattan to a Dutch aristocrat in fancy breeches for a blanket and a twenty dollar bill

It presaged a corrosion, an urban sprawl erosion that covets all the fertile ground and overruns us still.

It's not givin' up, I told her, just that we are gettin' older and besides, the country's really not the country anymore.

We're surrounded by construction that has zoned the mass destruction of our pastures and our neighbors and our never lockin' door.

Why, just look at that horizon where we watched the sun arisin' after milkin' on those mornin's when the air was clear and still.

Now the houses clone each other, everyday, it seems another, as they creep a little closer like a stain upon the hill.

But there's no way we can change it. No way to rearrange it that would suit us 'cause the truth is, they'd plow us underground.

So we take the offer made us, be thankful that they paid us enough to make a better start the second time around.

And we'll find a place less

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Re-elect incumbents

To the editor:
As a former Democratic elected state representative and commissioner on the Public Regulation Commission, I am known to be a progressive and social liberal. I don't know anyone who ever agreed with my votes 100 percent of the time, but the value of a responsible elected official is to recognize that we are not a one-issue community and our senators are not one-issue elected officials.

Current political flyers from challengers purport to be "the real Democrat" or having the "right ideas and vision to move New Mexico forward."

Democratic senators can be conservative. Some are progressive and some are more middle-of-the-road, but they remain real Democrats. They all "have the right ideas and vision to move New Mexico forward," and have demonstrated the experience, skill and knowledge necessary to get their legislation passed – whether you agree with any particular vote they may have cast.

Under the tutelage of President Pro Tempore Mary Kay Papen, we have major senate committee chairs such as John Arthur Smith, (finance), Joseph Cervantes, (judiciary), Bill Soules, (education), and Vice Chair Jeff Steinborn, (public affairs). These leadership positions are unprecedented for Doña Ana County. Senator Mary K. Papen's leadership brings Doña Ana County's legislators together to achieve capital outlay, social services and economic-development needs in Las Cruces, Mesilla, Tortugas and surrounding small communities in Doña Ana County, and we are now in a position of strength and tonicity.

We have a spectrum of real Democratic senators representing Doña Ana County, and we are very fortunate to move forward with a vision that will serve the most conservative to the most progressive voter of our county. Education, environment and the economy will not be overlooked in our county by our senators.

Voters would be best served by voting to keep and re-elect our Democratic senators.

Stupid masks

To the editor:
On Saturday, May 9, I shopped at three big-box stores in Las Cruces. At two of them, a slight majority of customers wore masks. At the other, most did not. Some folks behind the cloth looked like bank robbers, others like surgeons.

I was unmasked. Perhaps they viewed me as irresponsible.

I saw them as over-reactive to a pandemic no more lethal than the common flu; their garment is not going to repel or contain a sub-microscopic particle about 10,000 times smaller than the width of a human hair (Thomas Webster, Northeastern chemical engineer specializing in nano-scale medicine and technology).

Stopping a coronavirus with a cotton mask is akin to blocking mosquitos with a chain-link fence. We're never going to "defeat" or hide from this virus; it has to mutate out, ushered by herd immunity.

Yet, government often feels compelled to do something, anything, regardless of necessity. So, now that we've flattened the curve, Las Cruces City Council is considering requiring everybody to wear masks in public.

Harris County, Texas (Houston), went this route several weeks ago, and a sheriff's spokesman told a local radio host his department was flat-out not enforcing it, that police have more important issues to confront.

Give citizens a break. They've been cooped up, can't eat out, can't go to a ballgame, can't use a park. Some have lost their jobs, their business. And now they're forced to cover their face every time they step out in 95-degree weather? Because two people have died from COVID-19 in Doña Ana County as of May 10 (NM Department of Health)?

Las Cruces is a diverse, polite city where adults can choose their responses to this "crisis" and mingle. Presumably, all shoppers last Saturday found what they were looking for and made it home to survive another day.

An election campaign without human contact

How do candidates running for office for the first time introduce themselves to the public at a time when public introductions can be deadly?

That is the dilemma faced by not just first-time office seekers, but all candidates running in this year's election, which has already started with early voting for the Primary.

WALT RUBEL

The View
From Here

You can't hold town hall meetings. You can't walk the neighborhood knocking on doors. You can't hold swanky meet-and-greets in the backyards of wealthy donors. Heck, you can't even shake hands. And the idea of kissing somebody else's baby seems almost criminal.

Not to mention the fact that it's hard to get people's attention when all eyes are on a death toll that keeps climbing.

But this election will decide who leads us out of this pandemic. That makes it more important, not less. And, in several local districts, the Primary Election now will be more important than the General Election in November.

Fifty years of experience in the state Senate is on the line in just two years. Mary Kay Papen, first elected in 2000 and now president pro tem., and John Arthur Smith, first elected in 1988 and now chairman of the powerful Finance Committee, both face strong challengers.

Carrie Hamblen, the incredibly active and public CEO of the Las Cruces Green Chamber of Commerce, will challenge for Papen's seat. Neomi Martinez Parra, a former vice chairwoman of the state Democratic Party, will try to take the seat that Smith has held for 32 years.

Other big races are in Senate District 31, House District 34 and County Commission District 5.

For the past several weeks, Peter Goodman and I have been co-hosting on-air forums for local candidates on community radio, KTAL-LP 101.5 FM. They are available online at lccommunityradio.org.

KRWG is taping a debate with Yvette Herrell, Claire Chase and Chris Mathys, the three Republican candidates running for the chance to face Xochitl Torres Small in November.

This may not feel like an important election, but it is. And you can safely participate by absentee ballot without putting your health at risk.

Community Foundation continues awarding funds, fundraising during COVID-19

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico (CFSNM) continues to seek donations and award funds to help local residents and organizations during the public health emergency.

Here is an update from CFSNM President and CEO Terra V. Winter.

• Together Las Cruces has funded more than 1,300 individuals and families. At this time, applications have closed due to low funding. We are continuing to raise funds in hopes of covering the more than 200 applications waiting within our system. Thanks to the hundreds of donors who have given and continue to give. Our goal is to award all eligible who are in the pending applications. In total, we have awarded $392,500 thus far.

• The Thank You Las Cruces Fund (supporting local restaurants and their employees and providing free meals) has raised more than $7,000. Grant recipient La Nueva Casita Café fed 125 people at the East Mesa Baptist Church and food pantry. Habaneros Fresh Mex will serve

Fund benefits colonias in southern part of county

Former New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson and actors Edward James Olmos and Danny Trejo have created a fund to assist families in colonias in southern Doña Ana County severely impacted by the current public health emergency. Partnering with the Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico and the Community Action Agency of Southern New Mexico, the fund offers applicants a one-time check of $150 for individuals or households without children and $300 for individuals or households with one or more children, the Richardson Center for Global Engagement announced in a news release. "The pandemic has only increased the economic strain facing the families of the colonias with many out of work and unable to afford groceries, gas, rent, utilities and other basic essentials," the news release said. Many colonias lack infrastructure like paved roads and functioning sewer systems.

"The colonias have always had a special place in my heart, especially when I was governor," Richardson said in the news release. "The impact of this pandemic on already-struggling areas, like the colonias, has been catastrophic."

"I cherish my time working and filming in southern New Mexico and with the people of New Mexico," Olmos said. "All of us have been impacted greatly by the spread of COVID-19, but it's our collective responsibility to make sure that there's a safety net for our most vulnerable families."

"I've been doing what I can at home to protect and provide for those most at-risk for COVID-19 and I am honored to join with Gov. Richardson to help the people of the colonias in Southern New Mexico," Trejo said. "Now more than ever we should reach out and support our neighbors."

The Richardson Center donated $10,000 to jump start the fund, the news release said. Donations of any size are welcome. To donate, visit bit.ly/SCDACemergencyfund or mail a check to Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico, 2600 El Paseo Road, Las Cruces, N.M. 88001. Falling into space with the Spaceport Authority

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Alice Carruth has been in New Mexico for six years, having arrived with her husband who came here to work at White Sands Missile Range. She has adopted southern New Mexico as her home and says it is a fabulous place to raise her children. But even more than that, it is the place to be when talking about space. And talking is what she will be doing as the new public relations coordinator for the New Mexico Spaceport Authority.

Carruth, one of the primary organizers of the Las Cruces Space Festival

since its inception, calls it a “fortunate accident” that, when she came to Las Cruces, she “fell into space.”

“I have followed all things space for years and have been a fan,” she said. “Then I discovered this whole history in New

No stranger to the communications business, Carruth was a London television producer and brand manager at ITV, an independent British network group. She also worked for Al Jazeera English in the Middle East for nearly six years as a newsroom producer.

Last year, she got a job as an executive assistant with Solstar, working with social media. When she saw the job opportunity at the New Mexico Spaceport Authority, she put her hat in the ring and was hired, starting in April.

“We love it here,” she said. “I recently became a U.S. citizen and am loving life in New Mexico.”

Carruth said she also loves being part of the Spaceport America family.

“We are on the cusp of becoming the largest commercial spaceport in the country and the only one with both vertical and horizontal launch capability,” she said. “We also have other customers than Virgin Galactic, including Boeing testing here, as well as Spin-launch. We regularly have EXOS, Sugarhouse and Up Aerospace.”

Out at the Spaceport on Friday, May 1, when Virgin Galactic completed the first successful test at the spaceport of the suborbital spacecraft, VSS Unity, Carruth said she was able to be there and never gets tired of being at the facility. The space vehicle is scheduled to stay in New Mexico permanently.

“The test flight was a huge success for us,” she said. “We took all the recommended precautions for coronavirus safety and made sure we were following all the guidelines. All their staff and our staff were eager to be part of that. The flight went exactly as planned.”

She said one challenge she faces is educating people about ongoing operations at the facility.

“There is still a crazy misconception that nothing happens out there,” she said. “I have been shocked at how many customers we have lined up. It’s really good news for New Mexico. We are very, very lucky to have this facility at our doorstep.”

New Mexico Water & Electric

The use of solar energy to either offset standard utility costs or to move entirely away from the established power grid continues to be an ever-improving option for many home and business owners in Southern New Mexico.

While the basics of most solar energy systems are somewhat easy to comprehend, assuring the installation of an appropriate array designed to meet specific customer needs can be difficult and costly, especially with a growing number of variously qualified service providers now vying to install systems before the 2022 sunset of a 26-percent federal tax rebate offer.

Southern New Mexico-based owners and licensed contractors with New Mexico Water & Electric are not only fully qualified and experienced with the installation of all types of solar energy systems, they are fully versed in both the benefits and often misleading information relating to the current federal rebate program and other available support for consumers.

With the federal tax rebate program set to end in less than two years, solar energy service firms from outside the community and state are now flocking to Southern New Mexico to provide solar energy options, which ostensibly will allow local home and business owners to take advantage of the available cost returns. Officials with New Mexico Water & Electric want all of those considering this opportunity to understand that the federal program does not apply to everyone. The current rebate offer applies only to "taxable income," which means many retired citizens and those living on fixed income will not qualify.

New Mexico Water & Electric also wants local consumers to recognize that without the installation of considerable back-up components most residential/small commercial solar energy systems will still be reliant upon connections to the local power grid, and therefore could be wholly ineffective if and when the power grid fails or is otherwise taken off-line.

In addition to this concern, New Mexico Water & Electric reminds potential customers how the installation of most residential systems will involve considerable roof-work and the drilling of possibly hundreds of holes into the roofing surface. This factor makes it critical to assure the installation process is not only professionally executed, but also raises questions about how non-local firms might respond, or not respond when eventual roofing repairs or replacement becomes necessary.

Average costs associated with the installation of residential solar energy systems presently hover at or above $20,000+, leading many consumers to consider package deals and enticing financing options being forwarded by the increasing number of service providers. Assuring the viability of such deals and options, as well as securing connections for followup repairs, maintenance assistance and other services are therefore vital, for customers to both justify and feel good about such an investment.

Having hands-on experience with the installation of all available types of solar arrays and integrated components, throughout Southern New Mexico, NMWE's contractors are eager to help area residents secure the most effective solution for every possible need or concern.

Whether you may be looking to supplement power for your home or business, or if you're looking to install a system to be completely independent of the power grid, New Mexico Water & Electric is fully qualified and prepared to help you realize your goals. In addition to quality installation and service capabilities, NMWE's staff stand ready to assist New Mexico residents in making the best decisions possible for their energy future.

Aside from solar energy concerns, New Mexico Water & Electric's licensed contractors are further prepared to assist customers with the development of water wells, water purification systems, as well as with all other types of electrical services.

CAVEAT EMPTOR

New Mexico Water & Electric (NM License No. 394531) is based in Hillsboro, New Mexico, with offices located at 10849 Highway 152. City allocates $400,000 for public-service programs; more for COVID-19

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

A total of 16 local non-profit organizations will share in $400,000 for health-related, public-service programs for fiscal year 2021-22, the city has announced.

The Las Cruces City Council authorized the funding from the city's Telshor Facility Fund (TFF), which is money the city receives for the lease of Memorial Medical Center that is jointly owned by the city and county. The council made the authorizations during a recent regular meeting.

The funding, available July 1, is for the specific purpose of providing operating expenses to eligible nonprofits in exchange for qualified health care to the sick, indigent and low-income community members of Las Cruces.

The city conducted a competitive application process for the provision of responsive, cost effective, quality health-related public services through partnerships with nonprofits. Grants are awarded on a two-year funding cycle, with renewed funding based on overall program performance, quality of data collection methods and record keeping, satisfactory monitoring reviews and availability of city funding.

These nonprofits each received $27,500 in funding: Mesilla Valley Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA), for volunteer development and support; Community Action Agency of Southern New Mexico, for the CARE cancer support program; El Caldito Soup Kitchen; Mesilla Valley Community of Hope, for its disability and homeless income program; Southern New Mexico Diabetes Outreach, for diabetes detection prevention, education and support; Big Brothers Big Sisters Mountain Region, for mentoring low-income, at-risk youth; Casa De Peregrinos emergency food program; Boys and Girls Club of Las Cruces.

These nonprofits received $23,500 each: Families and Youth Inc. for its El Crucero permanent supportive housing program; Jardin De Los Niños childcare for homeless and near homeless children for its Healthy and Wise wellness program; La Casa, Inc. domestic-violence program for its child and youth program; Roadrunner Food Bank, for hunger relief in Las Cruces; Amador Health Center, for its Amador Care Connection program; Mesilla Valley Hospice, for pain control and comfort care for its patients; and La Piñon Sexual Assault Recovery Services, for its Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner program.

Catholic Charities of Southern New Mexico received $15,500 for its crime and domestic-violence program.

"The need for community-based services is great, especially during this pandemic," Mayor Ken Miyagishima said. "My fellow city councilors and I are committed to assisting our vulnerable populations, and the TFF allows us to provide this badly needed support."

The council allocated an additional $35,000 from TFF and repurposed a previously awarded $100,000 to assist with the impact of the state public health order to address COVID-19: $75,000 for state programs to purchase and distribute essential supplies; $30,000 to Third Judicial District Court, for veterans treatment court; and $5,000 to Mesilla Valley CASA, for direct services to children aging out of foster case. $100,000 was allocated to

Doña Ana County to receive nearly $290,000 in federal COVID-19 relief funds

Doña Ana County will receive $119,303 to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in the county and $170,092 from the Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act, local Emergency Food and Shelter Program board chair Amanda Morales said in a May 4 news release.

The awards were made by a national board chaired by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency and consists of representatives from American Red Cross; Catholic Charities, USA; National Council of the Churches of Christ in the USA; The Jewish Federations of North America; The Salvation Army; and United Way Worldwide. A local board made up of the Salvation Army, the Catholic Diocese, United Way of Southwest New Mexico, Protestant Council of Churches and private-sector agencies will allocate funds to emergency food and shelter programs run by local service agencies.

Agencies interested in applying for the funds should visit www.uwswnm.org/efsp.

The deadline for applications to be received is Monday, May 18, 2020. Applications must be mailed to United Way at P.O. Box 1347, Las Cruces, N.M. 88004 or emailed to Amanda Morales at impact@uwswnm.org. She can also be reached at 575-524-7561.

the city's Quality of Life Department for its essential supply fund and $25,000 was allocated to various city departments to pay for handwashing stations and sanitation kits.

The allocation brings to more than $2 million the amount of TFF funds authorized to offset the impact of COVID-19.

NMSU grads, one from El Paso, one from Egypt, planning lives, futures

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Bulletin asked two NMSU graduates about the impact of COVID-19 on their lives and about their future plans. Here are the responses from Rawan Elaksher (RE) and Merari Valenzuela (MV), thanks to NMSU Media Relations Officer Minerva Baumann.

Where are you from?

RE: I was born in Egypt, but I lived in the U.S. for the majority of my life.

MV: I am originally from El Paso.

How old are you?

RE: 21

What degree are you graduating with?

RE: I will be graduating with a BS in genetics and biotechnology and biology, along with a minor in biochemistry.

MV: I am graduating with a bachelor's degree in biology and two minors: biochemistry and chemistry.

What are your plans after graduation?

RE: I will be going to the National Institutes of Health (NIH) in Bethesda, Maryland, to conduct research, while working on my graduate school applications.

MV: After graduation,

Merari Valenzuela

I will be applying for a job either to substitute teach or to become a scribe at a doctor's office. During this process, though, I will be applying to medical school.

Will you miss having a graduation ceremony?

RE: Yes.

MV: I will miss not having a ceremony due to COVID because we all worked so hard to reach this goal in our lives. We had countless all-nighters and we were all just so excited for that moment where we could celebrate with all our family and finally say "We did it!" Celebrating with my family over Zoom isn't really what I had pictured when I graduated college.

How has learning been for you since NMSU closed down due to COVID?

RE: My learning at NMSU since COVID has been a challenge. It has been difficult to focus on my studying while being at home all the time.

MV: Learning for me was somewhat challenging. I like in-person classes, because I can interact with people. With online learning, everyone has their videos off and their microphones on mute. The only one talking is the professor and when they ask questions, no one really talks, they just typed something in the group chat, so this made learning boring at times. Also being at home with two younger siblings, I would need to help them with their own schoolwork during the day, while also trying to complete mine. I also felt that I had even less time to do work than I did before. The professors did great, though, in trying to make the best out of this situation.

How has COVID impacted your post-graduation plans?

RE: COVID has not yet impacted my post-graduation plans; however, it may alter the day I start working at NIH.

MV: This summer, my family had planned on going to Disneyland to celebrate my sister's 15th birthday and my graduation, but unfortunately that will not happen due to COVID.

What is your ultimate career goal?

RE: My ultimate career goal is to become a physician-scientist, focusing on research while also working in a clinical setting as a doctor.

MV: My ultimate career goal is to become a pediatrician and get my own clinic.

What are your other interests, i.e., hobbies?

RE: In my free time, I enjoy exercising, especially going on walks near the mountains, and I try to go on a walk at least once a day. I also enjoy reading, and I have a couple of books on my shelf that I am planning on reading once the semester ends, including 'The Chemist' by Stephanie Meyer. One thing that I really enjoy is doing arts and crafts with my friends. Whenever my friends and I are free, we usually get together and paint.

MV: Some hobbies are running, watching movies, writing, going dancing and spending time with my friends and family. This coming year I am hoping to run my second half marathon.

What's the most important thing you learned at NMSU? What will you remember the most?

RE: One of the most important things that I learned at NMSU is to always put myself out there and make connections. I am an introvert, and I am usually too shy to reach out to people, however, I learned that to get experience, whether it's in a job or a leadership position, I had to reach out to people first and put myself out there. One thing that I will remember the most is my research experience in Dr. Paola Mera's lab and the friends I made during that time. It was an amazing experience. I always looked forward to going to lab, because I felt comfortable with those around me, and they made our worktime enjoyable and fun. My research experience has taught me cooperative work and perseverance, and that is something that I will take with me wherever I go in my career.

MV: One of the most important things that I learned at NMSU is that it is important to put yourself out there and try new things. I became a student ambassador for the College of Arts and Sciences. I was scared at first because I am a shy person, but I learned a lot from them, and I improved my public-speaking skills quite a bit. The things I will remember the most are the memories I created with my friends, having study sessions in Branson Library, buying a coffee and a bagel from Einstein's before class, so I could stay awake for those 8:30 a.m. classes, having lunch in Corbett, but mostly being a student at NMSU. I miss going to school, as crazy as it may sound. I would like to thank my coaches at El Paso High School and my cross country/half marathon coaches at El Paso Community College for pushing me to reach this goal and for always believing in me. I would also like to thank my basketball girls' and boys' track athletes that I coached at Wiggs Middle School in El Paso for being a motivation to me. Lastly, I would like to thank my family and friends for always being there for me through good and bad times. Thank you, NMSU. You will be missed.

Funeral industry adjusts to services amid social distancing

By JESS WILLIAMS
Las Cruces Bulletin

The COVID-19 pandemic has had major effects on almost all businesses. The Bulletin reached out to Chad Getz of Getz Funeral Home to ask about operations in his industry during the pandemic.

Bulletin: How has planning and executing a funeral changed in the time of COVID?

Chad Getz: The biggest change comes in the planning of a funeral or memorial service. Most of our arrangement conferences are done over the phone and with electronic signatures. If someone has the need to come in and make arrangements in person, we can have two representatives of the family come in. This is much different than the way we used to do it. Before COVID-19, we regularly had 10-12 family members in a room working on what they would like to do to honor their loved one.

Executing a funeral hasn't changed much. We still follow all protocols of the church in which we are having the service, or beliefs of the family. Some families choose to just have people get up and tell stories of their loved one. The biggest hardship is only having five people in the service that are immediate family only. I have had people tell me that they have been to services where the firm lets five people in each room of their facility and rotates them. To me, this does not make any sense, because you're just moving people from one contaminated place to another, exposing everyone in the facility.

Bulletin: What precautions does your staff take when meeting with families?

Getz: When meeting with families, we require our staff to wear a mask and minimize contact. This is hard for us in such a tight-knit community, where hugging is just a step above a handshake. We're used to being there to comfort, support and guidance. Now, we just have to use our words a little better.

Bulletin: If you know a person died of COVID, are there different protocols for handling/preparing the body?

Getz: Yes, we do use a higher level of personal protective equipment (PPE) when an individual has COVID, using respirators instead of masks and limiting the number of employees who are in direct contact with the deceased. The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) has stated that a deceased can be embalmed and buried.

According to the CDC, there is not a concern of contracting COVID while in the same room as a deceased, but they do recommend not touching or kissing the individual if they did have COVID.

Bulletin: What platform(s) are you using to facilitate video services?

Getz: We decided to go with Facebook live. The equipment we purchased has the ability to give us high quality video through Facebook, and it's portable. We can broadcast from any facility with WIFI or cell service.

Bulletin: Do you get about the same number of viewers via video as you were used to pre-COVID?

Getz: Some of the greatest steps forward in life have come out of hardships. I don't know that any firm in the area had any form of webcasting before this. Adaptation is key. I have had services with five people in attendance but 250 watching safely from home. For a long time, I've seen large families worry about scheduling services where everyone can make it.

They worry about the one family member out of 12 that can't make it. This will continue to give that family member a chance to participate in a small way, even after this pandemic is under control.

Bulletin: What's the future look like for your industry in the near future if the stay-home order is lifted?

Getz: I think this is something that will affect our lives forever. One of the things that makes our community so amazing is how tight our families are. Even if you aren't blood family, you're still family. Many of us grew up in each other's homes. This makes social distancing hard for many people. Hugging, physical comforting and outward expressions of grief are a big part of our culture. I don't think that will change. I think technology helps us improve what we are already doing

Bulletin: What have been the hardest adjustments for you and your staff during this weirdest of times?

Getz: I think the hardest adjustment for us is not having as much face-to-face contact with our families. Sometimes you can see in the face of someone if they just need a hug, or just need a shoulder to cry on for a minute or just to have someone help them get through a time that will ultimately be one of the hardest of their lives.

Shredded tires being utilized at county landfill

By CASSIE MCCLURE AND SUZANNE MICHAELS

At the Corralitos Regional Landfill, a big “Shark” is laying waste to a very tiring stacked eyesore: thousands of used tires. The South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) has rented a TANA Shark shredder, which is ripping its way through the old trashed tires set aside at the landfill.

“Scrap tires are problematic. Stacked against a building or scattered across the desert, they become a breeding ground for mosquitos with the least amount of rain,” said Miguel Fernandez, SCSWA program administrator. “When land-filled, the whole tires tend to rise back to the surface of the solid waste, so we shred them. The shreds then have a beneficial use in trash management.”

Fernandez said the SCSWA recently collected hundreds of tires due to community cleanups, especially from a recent Chaparral beautification effort. Plenty of illegally dumped tires are still found in our surrounding desert, but group cleanups help remove the hazard from the desert.

While SCSWA has a mobile shredder, it cannot handle the large number of scrap tires that have come in. The TANA Shark spits out different sizes of material, from fine rubber crumbs to 3-inch and 6-inch tire shreds, about the size of a fist, all the way up to pieces that are one foot square.

“We’re thinking we may rent the shredder quarterly,” Fernandez said. “We can use the shredded material as alternative daily cover at the landfill. Alternative daily cover means we can use this material instead of six-inches of soil at the end of each day to cover the compacted waste to control insects, odors and blowing litter.”

The Corralitos Regional Landfill, located along I-10 about 15 miles west of Las Cruces, is in the process of building a new 14-acre cell to contain waste on its 600 acres. This will be the fourth cell at Corralitos – a highly engineered, lined, permitted, award-winning facility that is the repository for the solid waste generated by the regional population.

The South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) can be reached at 575-528-3800 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or visit www.SCSWA.net.

COVID-19 hasn't stopped the New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service (CES) from continuing to provide services and outreach in every corner of New Mexico, including Las Cruces and Doña Ana County.

"We have continued to maintain phone calls, emails and occasional house calls from clientele who are experiencing issues in their landscape and home gardens," said CES Program Director Teresa T. Dean.

Here is some of what CES staff have been working on since the onset of the pandemic:

- Gardening "Jeff Anderson, CES' long-time agronomy and horticulture agent and director of the county's master gardener program, "assists clientele diagnose the problem and give them advice on how to remedy the situation."

"Jeff filmed four videos at Rich Global Hemp for posting to the CES Facebook page," Dean said. "These videos were created to help farmers consider micronutrients in their soils, and a set of three videos to help farmers secure New Mexico-produced seed for 2020 planting. In addition, he also produced several 'how to' garden Facebook live videos utilizing his own yard to serve as a teaching tool to educate the public."

- Livestock Dean, who serves as CES livestock agent in addition to being county director, has been providing information and educational material to the public regarding the rabbit hemorrhagic disease virus and vesicular stomatitis virus in horses that were found in Doña Ana County, she said.

Dean said she has also been asked a lot of questions regarding a possible beef shortage, so she has been providing information on what people need to know when buying beef from ranchers.

- Family and Con- sumer Science DAC Family & Consumer Sciences agent Bea Favela hosted Kitchen Creations, a four-week diabetic cooking class. The series, which is typically provided in person, has been transformed into a virtual class which teaches participants to plan meals to help them manage their diabetes. To accompany the classes, videos have been created to teach participants how to make the recipes that go along with each lesson.

"With families cooking more at home, we have been providing daily recipes to give followers of our Facebook page an idea of what to make for dinner," Dean said.

- 4-H 4-H agents Dean and Eva Madrid "are attempting to keep youth engaged in 4-H without overwhelming them with all of the extra screen time that is now required of them," Dean said. They agents have created virtual contests for the kids such as a virtual talent show, virtual presentation contest and weekly photo contests.

4-H meetings have continued through Zoom, giving 4-H members the opportunity to network with fellow members and leaders, Dean said. 4-H members have also been busy sewing facemasks to be donated to local medical responders and veterinarians, she said. More than 700 facemasks have been made and donated thus far.

- Website New Mexico State University's College of Agricultural, Consumer and Environmental Sciences has established a website, www.aces.nmsu.edu/covid19/, where NMSU CES is providing relevant and reliable information regarding issues associated with the pandemic that impact individuals, families and communities, Dean said. The website provides links to resources about health and wellness, family life, personal finances, nutrition and food, food safety and handwashing and farming and farmers' markets.

Graduate Together: America Honors the High School Class of 2020

This new one-hour special, which is being simulcast across ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox, as well as several social media platforms, is intended to honor the graduating high school Class of 2020, nearly all of whom will be unable to have a traditional ceremony due to health constraints of the coronavirus pandemic. Former President Barack Obama will deliver a commencement message. Celebrities scheduled to appear include LeBron James, Pakistani activist Malala Yousafzai, the Jonas Brothers, Pharrell Williams, Ben Platt and Olympic gold medalist Megan Rapinoe, among others.

7 p.m. on HALL
Movie: How to Train Your Husband

Marriage therapist and author Jillian James (Julie Gonzalo, "Dallas") has a thriving career, but she lets her work blind her to the reality that her marriage to hubby Justin (Jonathan Chase) is in peril, especially after she declines his surprise anniversary trip to Paris for professional concerns. At the urging of a friend (Karla Mosley) a dog trainer, Jillian gets a puppy who turns out to be a real handful, but her training sessions with the pooch make her less self-absorbed. Peri Gilpin ("Frasier") also stars in this 2020 romantic comedy.

7 p.m. on APL
The Zoo

Margueretta the sea lion pays a price for a zoo visitor's careless act in the new episode "New Chick on the Block." Keeper Sue calls in some help when the zoo's Cock-of-the-Rock may have a new chick. Elsewhere, the reptile department hopes that two critically endangered snakes will breed in captivity for the first time, and two Andean bear cubs prepare to make their Queens Zoo exhibit debut.

8:01 p.m. on APL
Saved By The Barn

Barn Sanctuary rolls out the welcome mat for a blind goat named Charlie and two endearing ducklings who are in need of a swim coach in the new episode "We've Got Pig Problems." Ginger the lamb quickly takes to her new prosthetics, but June and Jasper the pigs get into a real tussle during what starts out as a routine tusk and nail trimming.

9 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Joker

The first R-rated film to earn more than $1 billion at the box office, Todd Phillips' deeply unsettling 2019 psychological thriller polarized critics over its depiction of violence and mental illness. That didn't keep the film from winning multiple global accolades, however, including a best actor Academy Award for Joaquin Phoenix, starring as failed stand-up comic Arthur Fleck, who gradually sinks into madness. His Oscar was one of the 11 Academy nominations the film earned, more than any other 2019 film. Robert De Niro, Zazie Beetz and Frances Conroy co-star.

Mickey Sumner

6 p.m. on STARZ
Hightown

Monica Raymund ("Chicago Fire") stars in this new drama series, which charts the journey to sobriety for an alcoholic National Marine Fisheries Service agent. The party-hard lifestyle of Jackie Quinones (Raymund) is disrupted by her discovery of a corpse on a Cape Cod beach, the remains of an opioid overdose victim. Jackie struggles to clean up her act as she investigates what quickly starts to look like a murder, not an accident. James Badge Dale, Riley Voelkel, Shane Harper and Amatory Nolasco also star.

7 p.m. on KRWG
Call the Midwife

Season 9 concludes on a suspenseful note, as Sister Julienne (Jenny Agutter) receives a letter from the local council advising her that they plan to cut funding to Nonnatus House and no longer provide the staff with accommodations, threatening a demolition of the property. At the clinic, Nurse Crane (Linda Bassett) cares for Bonnie (guest star Ruby Thomas), a heavily pregnant woman with a bohemian attitude who is unwed yet committed to Eddie (guest star Thomas Howes), the baby's father.

7 p.m. on KFOX
The Simpsons

Brace yourself for flashbacks, people! When the Simpson family dog bites Marge (voice of Julie Kavner), the family is moved to explore the tragic past of their greyhound, known as Santa's Little Helper (voice of Dan Castellaneta), in the new episode "The Way of the Dog." Cate Blanchett lends her voice to a guest role; Nancy Cartwright, Yeardley Smith, Hank Azaria, Harry Shearer and Pamela Hayden also are heard.

7 p.m. on KTSM
Beverly Hills Dog Show

Actor and TV personality John O'Hurley and American Kennel Club-licensed judge and analyst David Frei return as hosts of this year's edition, which was taped this past February before coronavirus quarantines were imposed. Mary Carillo, Akbar Gbajabamila and Maria Menounos are on hand as contributors, along with such dog-loving celebrity guests as Lauren Ash ("Superstore"), Brian Baumgartner ("The Office"), Reece Caddell ("Coop and Cami Ask the World"), Bo Derek, Olympic gold medalist Greg Louganis and Miss America 2020 Camille Schrier, among others.

7 p.m. on TNT; 9 p.m. on TBS
Snowpiercer

Like the 2013 action movie blockbuster from Oscar winner Bong Joon Ho ("The Parasite") that inspired it, this new sci-fi series is set in a future world that has been plunged into a new Ice Age after an attempt to reverse climate change goes horribly wrong. In this bleak new reality, Earth's survivors now live aboard the supertrain of the show's title, a 1,001-car juggernaut where one's social status determines placement among the passengers. Jennifer Connelly, Daveed Diggs, Alison Wright, Mickey Sumner and Iddo Goldberg star.

7 p.m. on EPIX
Belgravia

Season 1 of this period drama from Julian Fellowes ("Downton Abbey") concludes as James Trenchard (Philip Glenister) travels to Manchester, where he discovers the allegations against Charles Pope (Jack Bardoe) are false. Susan Trenchard (Alice Eve) tells John Bellasis (Adam James) that she is pregnant, but he refuses to marry her. After Ellis's (Saskia Reeves) deception is exposed, she implicates John Bellasis and Turton (Paul Ritter) the butler.

8 p.m. on ESPN
The Last Dance

The finale of this 10-episode documentary series opens in June 1998, when Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls go up against the Utah Jazz in a rematch of the NBA Finals looking for their sixth league championship in eight years — or "repeat three-peat." For coach Phil Jackson and his team, the series would mark the last time the Bulls hoist the O'Brien Trophy as well as the swan songs in Chicago for Jordan, Jackson and star forward Scottie Pippen.

7 p.m. on KVIA
The Bachelor Presents: Listen to Your Heart

If music be the food of love, as Shakespeare suggested, we've reached the dessert round of this spinoff of "The Bachelor," wherein singles from some aspect of the music industry sing together and otherwise get to know one another better through the magic of melodies. Over the past five weeks, they've gone on dates and watched nervously as other pairings were eliminated one by one. Will tonight's two-hour finale produce a lasting duet? Tune in and see. Chris Harrison hosts.

8 p.m. on KRWG
Movie: Created Equal: Clarence Thomas in His Own Words

Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas, best known for his generally taciturn demeanor or when the court is in session, opens up about his life, legacy and legal theories with conservative filmmaker Michael Pack in this feature-length 2019 documentary, which makes scant effort at keeping things apolitical. Given how rarely its central subject has spoken on the record about many things, however, the film — which also features extensive commentary from Thomas's wife, Ginny — serves as a noteworthy historical document.

8 p.m. on BRAVO
Camp Getaway

In the new episode "Camp Fire'd," it's Camp Getaway's special weekend for LGBTQ guests, and Glen is determined to do everything he can to instill the occasion with a true sense of Pride. The arrival of Gavin, a new social coordinator, has Nile feeling less than proud, and worried that he's about to be replaced. Elsewhere, Adam sends out some mixed signals that result in a very confusing love triangle.

7 p.m. on KVIA
The Story of Soaps

There currently are only four network daytime dramas on TV — "General Hospital" (ABC), "The Bold and the Beautiful" and "The Young and the Restless" (both CBS) and "Days of Our Lives" (NBC) — but this once-thriving genre broke new ground in serialized storytelling that propels modern "binge-worthy" dramas. That proud soap legacy is celebrated in this new two-hour special, which features archival commentary from such soap pioneers as Agnes Nixon and newer interviews with actors including Jon Hamm, Susan Lucci, Alec Baldwin, Carol Burnett and Bryan Cranston, among others.

7 p.m. on KVIA2
Stargirl

Featuring characters that were briefly introduced during the "Crisis on Planet Earths" crossover event earlier this season, this new superhero action series is set on Earth-2, where high school sophomore Courtney Whitmore (Brec Bassinger) discovers a powerful cosmic staff, as well as the mind-blowing revelation that her stepfather, Pat Dugan (Luke Wilson), used to be the sidekick of superhero Starman (Joel McHale). Assuming the guise of Stargirl, Courtney inspires some unlikely young heroes to battle villains of the past. Anjelika Washington and Amy Smart co-star in the large ensemble cast.

7 p.m. on HGTV
Bargain Mansions

In a new episode called "Out With the Old, In With the Bold," Tamara unleashes her imagination when confronted with an outdated 1970s Tudor home that is painfully in need of being brought tastefully up to date. As part of her makeover, she gives the kitchen a crucial upgrade and renovates two uninspired living spaces on the first floor into true statement rooms.

8 p.m. on KRWG
American Experience

In the new episode "Mr. Tornado," the filmmaker Michael Rossi profiles Tetsuya Theodore Fujita, a Japanese-American scientist who devoted most of his life to unlocking the mysteries of severe storms.

He's most widely remembered today for creating the Fujita Scale, or F-Scale, which measures relative intensity of tornado damage, and his unique analysis of the aftermath of destructive forces — born out of the ashes of the first atomic bomb — brought new understanding of tornadoes, previously thought to be random and impenetrable.

8 p.m. on FOOD
Supermarket Stakeout

Host Alex Guarnaschelli takes over the parking lot at Bristol Farms in Calabasas, Calif., for the new episode "Meat Me in the Parking Lot," where the chefs are on the hunt for meat and potatoes before starting an around-the-world culinary tour. Just when everyone has had their fill, the final two chefs will have to stuff it. Maneet Chauhan and Sabin Lomac are the judges.

9 p.m. on KVIA
The Genetic Detective

An ABC News production, this new series follows CeCe Moore, an investigative genetic genealogist, as she uses her peerless research skill to revolutionize crime-solving procedures. Working with police detectives and DNA from crime scenes, Moore traces the path of a violent criminal's family tree to reveal their identity, then helps law enforcement agents bring them to justice. Her first case takes her to Seattle to investigate a double homicide from 1987 in "The Case of the Missing Lovebirds."

Once Upon a Quarantine

This new one-hour special shares the highly personal stories of real-life couples who have been self-filming their new reality under the COVID-19 pandemic. While the show is not scripted, there's definitely no shortage of drama as these all-too-human "characters" deal with pregnancies, quarantine weddings and politically charged border issues keeping them apart, all under the added stress of social distancing. These are diverse relationships being tested as never before.

At Home With Amy Sedaris

Actress and comedienne Amy Sedaris ("The Unbreakable Kimmy Schmidt") returns for Season 3 of her delightful, if somewhat deranged, Emmy-nominated variety sketch series, a sweet-natured parody of lifestyle shows. Each episode finds the star addressing a specific theme with special guests, as well as how-to demonstrations that are ... um ... unpredictable. Guest stars for Season 3 include Laura Benanti, Rachel Dratch, Ana Gasteyer, David Alan Grier, Jane Krakowski, Jason Sudeikis, Paul Rudd and Debi Mazar.

8 p.m. on CNBC
Jay Leno's Garage

Jay Leno resumes Season 5 of his car-loving series with new episodes that start with "Dare to Dream," which finds the former "Tonight Show" host on the road looking to meet people with stories of how they decided to throw caution to the wind and just go for their personal dream. He takes country superstar Blake Shelton for a ride in a vintage pickup truck with a "royal" connection and later takes his life in his hands as he tries to teach fellow comic Norm MacDonald how to drive.

Ultimate Tag

NFL sibling trio J.J., T.J. and Derek Watt co-host this new game show based on the popular schoolyard chasing game. This new, high-octane re-imagining of the game, however, is highly physical, challenging contestants to vault, tumble, dodge and dive their way through several epic, three-dimensional courses. As if that weren't enough, while the competitors are focused on executing all those physical challenges, they're also being pursued by Taggers, larger-than-life characters with a wide range of athletic skills. The ultimate rule of Ultimate Tag? Don't get caught!

For Michael Poncé, returning home means bringing his art full circle

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Artist Michael Poncé studied art and worked in New York City and London but chose to return to his native Las Cruces to paint, teach and open a gallery.

"I was born here. I love it here," Poncé said. "I decided to move back here, not to follow any trends, but to paint from within and just enjoy what I do. I honestly feel like I'm not really an artist, but just somebody who loves to paint. I just love creating things. My passion is creating."

At the New York Academy of Art (NYAA), Poncé said the instructor from whom he learned the most was acclaimed artist Steven Assael.

"He put the canvas up and had the model there, and he said, 'watch,'" Poncé remembers. "It was amazing to see the paint come alive (even though most of the time he (Assael) couldn't describe it. There's no vocabulary for art."

"It's very easy to learn how to paint," said Poncé, who has been teaching art for 15 years. "It's not easy to be an artist. There are some technical aspects that you teach. Art history helps and knowing paintings and painters. I think painting's just like anything else – you can teach anybody how to do it, but you have to have the passion."

Poncé teaches art privately and at Doña Ana Community College. He has also taught at NYAA and at Vista College and the Museum of Art in Las Cruces, and he was, for six years, a member and curator at the National Arts Club in New York City.

Poncé said he is especially drawn to works by artists from the Romantic Period, including English artist J.M.W. Turner (1775-1851) and Spanish artist Francisco Goya (1746-1828). "I always feel a connection to them just because of the way they studied and the way they used paints," he said. "It's really, really deep."

Poncé grew up in a poor family in Las Cruces. "My parents had many jobs, cleaning houses, cleaning yards. We always worked,"

he said. "I didn't start painting until later in life. I used to draw a lot – since I was a kid, I was always drawing. My teachers and my mother always loved my drawings [and] that would motivate me to keep drawing."

After he moved to New York City, Poncé said he began studying artwork at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and various other museums.

"I really loved those religious paintings and I tried to copy them," he said, adding that after he enrolled in art school, "it all came together" in his mid- to late-20s.

In addition to graduate work at Oxford University, he has an BFA from the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York and an MFA from NYAA.

In New York, Poncé said he was inspired to paint everything from workers in the fashion industry to horses at Aqueduct and Belmont Park racetracks.

One of the reasons he returned to New Mexico was "to get away from that kind of painting," Poncé said. "My paintings here are more idealized and more from imagination. A lot of my paintings right now have been of Trisha, my girlfriend. I also love the colors in the sunset."

Poncé recently opened the Mandrake Gallery to exhibit the works of artists from the Las Cruces area and some of his friends from New York City. The gallery is located at the corner of Mesquite Street and Hadley Avenue in the Mesquite Historic District, where he grew up.

"It's coming full circle," he said. "It just seems right."

'Majestic Kid'

The show must go on! Black Box Theatre is rehearsing "The Majestic Kid," by Tony-winning playwright Mark Medoff, via Zoom. Pictured are, left to right, top row, actor Luz Resendez and director Ceil Herman, second row, actors Scott Brocato and Debbie Jo Felix and bottom row, actors Rachel Thomas-Chappell and Joshua Taulbee. "While this is not the ideal way to rehearse, it has been very effective, and will allow us to be ready to re-open with a minimum of in-theatre rehearsal time," said Herman, who owns the theatre along with his husband, Peter. Ceil Herman said Black Box is not cancelling its current season. "'Majestic Kid' and 'Next to Normal' (the musical, directed by Nikka Zimmer, scheduled after 'Majestic Kid') are postponed with no date at this point for resuming our programming," Ceil Herman said. "When we do resume, we will continue our current season, honoring our current season ticket holders. Our next season will begin when this one has ended." Artists wanted: 'Metaphor for a Virus'

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) is conducting a call for artists residing in southern New Mexico and El Paso to submit work for a juried online exhibit titled "Metaphor for a Virus, Response to the Current Global Pandemic."

DAAC will begin accepting and jurying submissions on May 15 and will continue accepting entries through Dec. 31, said DAAC Communication Director Kathleen Albers. "The online gallery will be hosted throughout 2020 on the DAAC web page, www.daarts.org, with a link on the "Artists' Corner" tab.

"Sometimes the changes we see in our lives are clearest with 20/20 hindsight," said DAAC Executive Director Greg Smith. "This year, coincidentally the year

2020, includes changes that we are painfully conscious of as they occur. Certainly, we will see more when we look back on this time from some point in the future. Still, the experience now is quite profound. 'Metaphor for a Virus' is one of the ways DAAC is seeking to make the arts a positive part of what we are experiencing. Let us find knowledge, growth and art with which to share what we are seeing. Let us be more for what we have seen and what we have survived."

"At some point, we hope to organize a live show," said DAAC Program Manager and exhibit organizer Karen Conley. "As you can imagine, there are other galleries and art organizations across the nation and the world wrestling with how to keep moving forward with shows and promoting artists."

For an entry fee of $5, artists may submit up to three digital images for the exhibit. Artists should send digital images (jpeg, 72 dpi, 1,200 pixels on the long side, maximum size is one MB) to events@daarts.org. All images must reflect original work, and the artist must own the copyright, DAAC said in a news release.

Submissions should include, the title of each piece to be submitted, its dimensions and medium and a short artist biography or statement. Work may be listed for sale, with all sales transactions exclusively between the artist and buyer. Artists are asked to consider a 20 percent donation to DAAC on all exhibition sales.

For additional information, contact Conley at 314-704-9445 or events@daarts.org.

Temporarily closed until further notice, DAAC offices and the DAAC Arts and Cultural Center are located at 1740 Calle de Mercado in Bulletin Plaza. The mailing address is P.O. Box 1721, Las Cruces, NM. 88004.

For more information, call 575-523-6403 or visit www.daarts.org.

'Stand by Me'

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

When four friends, age 12, go looking for the body of another 12-year-old who had been hit by a train, an epic journey ensues.

"Stand by Me" (1986) was directed by Rob Reiner and based on Stephen King's novella "The Body." It focuses on Gordie Lachance (Wil Wheaton), Chris Chambers (River Phoenix), Teddy Duchamp (Corey Feldman) and Vern Tessio (Jerry O'Connell), who share a bond forged partly by internal damage including abuse, neglect, the death of a brother and debilitating family ties. Their friendship is made up of common fears, insulting one another's moms and an off-kilter tree house. It's easy to like these young people and fall into their stories.

While looking for money that he buried beneath his parents' porch, Vern overhears his older brother talking with a friend about seeing the body of a missing boy. The older boys don't want to report the body to the officials, because they recently had stolen a car and are afraid of being busted. When Vern reports all this to his friends later, they decide to go find the body so they can be recognized for their find, and because they are curious about how a body would look.

After Chris steals his father's pistol to take on the trip, he and Gordie run into local hoodlum John "Ace" Merrill (Keifer Sutherland) and Chris's older brother, Richard "Eyeball" Chambers (Bradley Gregg). Ace threatens Chris with a lit cigarette and steals Gordie's Yankees cap, which had been a gift from Gordie's late brother, Denny (John Cusack).

Community theatre moves 'Harvey' to August

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces Community Theatre (LCCT) is looking forward to bringing live theatre back to the Las Cruces stage when the timing is right, but is proceeding cautiously as the public health emergency continues.

The LCCT board met recently, via Zoom, to discuss how it will move forward with reopening the theatre amid social distancing requirements and public health restrictions.

"The LCCT board has made the tough decision to push our production of 'Harvey' back into the August 14-30 time slot and postpone our production of 'Gypsy' to August of 2021," said LCCT Board President Janet Beatty-Payne. "We certainly wouldn't want to create a situation where our patrons and performers/volunteers are at risk of exposure, and postponing a big, expensive-to-produce show like 'Gypsy' that really needs huge audiences to financially break even and generate sustaining venue for the theatre, really seems like the best choice for LCCT amid the COVID-19 safety restrictions currently in place."

With those considerations in mind, 'Harvey' will be the next show to open at LCCT, 313 N. Main St. downtown, "once the restrictions are lifted and it's safe to hold live theatre gatherings again, even if we have to continue to push back the dates and roll the 2020-21 season back accordingly," Beatty-Payne said. "Safety is our number one priority at this point."

"All subscriptions and tickets will move to the new dates automatically," Beatty-Payne said. "We will inform everyone about date changes when they are made."

"Harvey," which stars Las Cruces artist Bob Diven as Elwood P. Dowd, was in rehearsal in March when the order came to restrict large gatherings and then to shut down all non-essential businesses in the state. Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham announced in late April that the state would begin easing some of those restrictions effective May 15, but the governor has not yet announced when public performances, including those produced by LCCT and other local theatre groups, can return, or the specific health guidelines under which they will be allowed to operate.

Iconic windmill moves to the entrance of Farm and Ranch Museum

By Communications Manager
CRAIG MASSEY

New Mexico Farm and Ranch
Heritage Museum

The skyline at the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum has a new look.

The large windmill next to the Museum's Bruce King Building was taken down and moved to another part of the 47-acre property on Monday, May 4. The 20-foot fan is now on a new, 40-foot, steel tower near the front gate.

There are safety and aesthetic reasons for the move. The old, wooden tower, which was built in 1998, is in a high-pedestrian traffic area and was beginning to show signs of decay. In its new location, the structure adds a dramatic look to the front entrance of the campus, where the gate and arch were to be painted this week.

The windmill is an Aermotor 702 model, with a 20-foot wheel, or fan. It was built circa 1933-58 and was donated to the museum by the Chihuahuan Desert Rangeland Research Center north of Las Cruces. It was used by the College Ranch Camp Well site until 1981, when it was abandoned due to an equipment malfunction. It was re-erected in 1998, the year the museum opened.

Warren Construction worked on the relocation project for a few weeks, building the new footings and steel tower. Weaver's Crane Service helped move the massive fan.

Windmills were important for agriculture in the Southwest. While they could not pump sufficient amounts of water for large-scale irrigation, they could be used for herds of livestock, and watering vegetable gardens and fruit trees.

The museum has three other windmills on site, one near the livestock pens, and two indoors in the Heritage Gallery.

The museum is currently closed to the public due to the COVID-19 health pandemic.

The backstory behind Cruces Creatives

By LEA WISE-SURGUY

For The Bulletin

I completed a bachelor's degree in ceramics in Dayton, Ohio, in 2009, and as I got ready to graduate, I realized that graduating meant I would lose access to all of the tools I had just spent so much effort learning.

There was no way that I or most people could afford all the tools myself, but with a cooperative approach — like a gym for tools — the question of tool access seemed to change completely. I learned that a gym for tools was called a makerspace, and I decided to make one.

At about the same time, my Dad, a career Navy veteran, died as a result of medical malpractice at the VA. My family won a lawsuit, and although the award was ultimately modest, the settlement made it possible for me to work toward launching the makerspace. I wanted something good to come out of my Dad's death, and since the settlement came from taxpayer money, I wanted that something good to give back to our country.

I didn't think the makerspace could work in Dayton, so I started researching cities across the United States, looking for mid-sized cities with lots of local businesses, a reasonable cost of living, relatively centralized development and land use, a university with good art and engineering programs, an active but not oversaturated arts community, a responsible local government, a friendly community and all sorts of other factors.

In the summer of 2009, I visited the top cities on the list, and I fell in love with Las Cruces. I started getting ready, and in 2012, my husband (then fiancé) and I moved to Las Cruces to start the work of launching the makerspace.

After almost 10 years of preparation, including receiving master's degree of fine arts from NMSU and working and leading multiple community events as projects such as the Earth Day Fair and the MESA Project, we officially opened Cruces Creatives in June 2018 with the help of many volunteers and local donors.

The mural on the west-facing wall of Cruces Creatives at West Lohman Avenue and South Church Street stretches nearly a full block. According to Cruces Creative Board Chair and co-founder Lea Wise-Surguy, the mural is about 50 percent complete. It began as part of the "(Il)legal? Art Show," which showcased the work of more than two dozen aerosol artists under the leadership of local muralist SABA. Cruces Creatives is coordinating artists to complete the mural with images reflecting Las Cruces, with a goal of completion by year's end.

Cruces Creatives: a makerspace that hums with art, invention

By JESS WILLIAMS

Las Cruces Bulletin

In 2018, Lea Wise-Surguy chose Las Cruces as her laboratory for a new idea that she'd been putting together in Dayton, Ohio. The laboratory now operates as Cruces Creatives (CC) at the 205 E. Lohman Ave., where — in normal times — the place bustles with staff and volunteers chasing dreams and projects in a space created for exactly those pursuits.

"Our mission is to connect people with the tools, training and community to make practically anything," she said. "This broad mission encompasses related goals for advancing education, the arts, economic development, environmental protection, social wellbeing and scientific research in Doña Ana County and throughout New Mexico."

To facilitate the mission of Cruces Creatives, Wise-Surguy said the physical space has to be both educational and practical, and it has to have broad appeal to a wide spectrum of people in the community.

"People can be involved at CC in multiple ways," she said. "Outside of pandemic times, one of the most straightforward ways to get involved is to attend a class or workshop. During regular operations, there are 60-75 educational events each month, covering every tool area in the makerspace, and many classes and workshops are free."

To fund the operation, Wise-Surguy said CC sells memberships and relies heavily on a cadre of volunteers to keep overhead to a minimum. Individual memberships, she said, are $45 a month, which includes access to the tools and equipment during open hours, discounts on all classes and workshops, multiple free classes and workshops and some members-only events. Other membership options are available for groups and people who volunteer rather than shell out cash.

"Cruces Creatives is run primarily by a team of more than 60 volunteers, and three hours of volunteering per week equals a membership," she said. "Volunteering options are available in pretty much every aspect of the makerspace, from fixing tools, helping keep the space clean, working on marketing, grant writing, accounting or teaching classes and workshops. In almost every area of interest and ability, there's a volunteer position available."

She said people can also support the makerspace by donating cash or tools.

"Cruces Creatives has been built without any major funding using a sort of 'stone soup' approach to gathering and sharing tools, and more cash and tools are always welcome," she said.

Like every other place deemed non-essential when the COVID-19 pandemic reared its head, CC closed its doors to the public when the stay-home order came down from the governor's office. But that didn't mean the space was idle. Wise-Surguy said the staff and volunteers seized on an opportunity to be of assistance to the larger community.

"We're producing personal protective equipment for medical personnel using maker-space tools and a network of 80 volunteers," she said. "We're developing systems and procedures for a tool-lending library, which has been a long-time goal that COVID accelerated and we're using the downtime to plan multiple programs and partnerships that we can launch when it's again safe to open."

As the pandemic comes under control, Wise-Surguy said CC will adopt a phased approach to reopening — and she forecasts growth in both the facility size and the scope of operations going forward.

"We're currently in a 12,400 square-foot facility with hundreds of different tools and dedicated areas for woodworking, electronics, 3D printings, laser cutting, bicycle building/repair, audio recording, photography, textiles, children's learning and more," she said. "In the 5- to 10-year timeframe, we're working to establish a roughly 40,000 square-foot facility that can provide access to world-class tools and draw international artists and inventors to Las Cruces. On the way there, we're continually expanding the tools and programs that we offer, and we're finding more and more ways to benefit the community in cooperation with other partners."

City, Arrowhead Center partner to spotlight local businesses

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Area business owners using new strategies to find customers during the COVID-19 pandemic are being featured in a program by New Mexico State University's Arrowhead Center and the City of Las Cruces that will help shine a light on local businesses, Arrowhead Center said in a May 5 news release.

Business owners are invited to create a two-minute video that Arrowhead Center and the city will share with their network of entrepreneurs, business peers and potential customers to show how businesses are transitioning in the face of economic challenges presented by the global pandemic.

"We've seen plenty of innovation and ingenuity from our local businesses," said Arrowhead Center Director Kathryn Hansen. "Some have quickly built a modified online brand to sell their products or have adapted their services to work in a virtual setting. Sharing how different businesses tackle getting in front their customers can inspire others who are trying to think through tactics to not only survive, but to thrive. The city is a key partner in spreading that message of resilience."

"Arrowhead Center's project highlights businesses as they share how they are adapting and an overall supportive message to the community," said city business development administrator Mandy Guss. "We are excited to partner with Arrowhead to hear the stories of local success and to hear how our businesses encourage people to buy local."

Videos in an MP4 format may be sent via email to Peter Knapp at pknapp@nmsu.edu. Videos must be two minutes or less and must include a greeting and introduction of yourself and your business, a message of support or encouragement and a strategy or insight you have for continuing or pivoting business operations. Business owners are also asked to include website or social media links so that customers and advocates can locate businesses and share their message.

All videos will be posted on Arrowhead's YouTube channel, www.youtube.com/channel/UCQHIotf-BJEP4q58-OTvvnKA.

Construction continues apace in Santa Teresa

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"A bright spot in the current (public health) crisis is that construction on new buildings and infrastructure remains brisk in Santa Teresa," said Border Industrial Association President Jerry Pacheco.

He listed these ongoing projects in Santa Teresa:

- 183,000 square foot spec

building (Franklin Mountain Industrial) will be completed by end of June;

- 140,000 square feet of campus (Admiral Cable of Taiwan) will be completed by July 1;
- 100-acre expansion of Santa Teresa Gateway Rail Park will be completed in July;
- A new five-mile natural gas line being built from Santa Teresa to San Jeronimo, Mexico is scheduled for completion in mid-May, New Mexico Gas Company Energy Contracts Manager Tommy A. Trujillo said in an April email to Pacheco.

"Most of Santa Teresa's industrial base has remained open during the crisis, because most members are considered essential," Pacheco said. "As we work ourselves out of this crisis, we will continue to recruit new companies and create jobs and economic development opportunities for the State of New Mexico."

For more information, contact Pacheco at 575-589-2200 and Jerry@gpi-inc.biz. Visit www.nmbia.org.

Smart home movement means contactless home tours

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Arista means ridge or edge in English, and Arista Development is putting the name to good use, as it moves to the cutting edge of the smart-home movement in Las Cruces, offering online home tours in the face of a public health emergency.

In response to COVID-19 and social distancing, Arista Development has “implemented a way to offer contactless home tours that do not even require the realtor to be present,” said Leah Messina of Sinuate Media, which represents Arista Development.

Arista can remotely unlock a home, so when prospective buyers or renters arrive, they “can tour the home at their leisure,” Messina said. When they leave, the doors are remotely re-locked. In between visits, Arista staff sanitize the house, she said.

“I thought this was a clever way to remain respectful to our guidelines but still provide an essential service when moving cannot be put on hold,” Messina said.

For more information, visit www.aristadevelopmentllc.com/smart-home/. Contact Messina at 443-992-4691. Sinuate Media is located at 1910 Calle de Parian in Mesilla. Visit sinuatemedia.com.

What's That Smell?

Do you know how to identify a natural gas leak? You might smell sulfur or rotten eggs, you may notice dirt or debris shooting up out of a hole in the ground, dead or dying vegetation in an otherwise green area, and a loud hissing or roaring sound near pipeline markers. These and many more are all telltale signs of a natural gas or pipeline leak. Use all your senses, even common sense and report any possible leaks to Zia Natural Gas Company. When in doubt call us out!

As always, Zia personnel are available 24/7 for all natural gas emergencies. Call (575) 526-4GAS (427) if you have a natural gas emergency.

Amador Health Center continues full service during COVID-19

By PAMELA ANGELL

Special to The Bulletin

During the COVID-19 pandemic, Amador Health Center (AHC) is considered an essential service, and all staff from the janitor to the CEO are considered healthcare providers. So, when the COVID-19 cases started to crop up in New Mexico on March 11 and the governor declared a public health emergency, AHC's staff of 30 dug in their heels for the journey.

"Staff seemed to be sharing the same level of anxiety coming into work every day and potentially exposing themselves and loved ones to potential viral infection," said Richard Wright, a recovery support specialist at Amador Recovery Project, one of AHC's programs. "At first there was terror and a feeling of not being prepared to handle a pandemic crisis, on top of caring for people who are already living with chronic illness, homelessness and mental health and substance use disorders," Wright said.

While staff began ordering disinfectant supplies and personal protective equipment (PPE) in early February, availability was already strained through its various vendors. Like the rest of the nation, policies and procedures addressing who would wear what type of PPE and in what circumstances were dictated by the availability of supplies, not by actual safety.

The weekend of March 13-15, the national news became ever more dire as thousands of people were being infected and dying across the nation, including the medical providers and maintenance workers caring for them.

"We implemented changes even before the governor placed New Mexico on a 'stay-at-home' order and that I think has made a big difference to our clinic's safety," said AHC Medical Director Fatima McElveen. On March 16, AHC staff, she said, took action before the first case was reported in Doña Ana County March 20. All staff and patients were screened for fever and symptoms of COVID-19 before they entered the building. The front doors were locked and a stone pathway leading around the building to an outdoor lobby and screening area was set up.

"Our CEO and administrators supported local businesses by purchasing cloth face masks for personnel and their families, which was very thoughtful and beneficial,"

Amador Health Center Medical Assistant Maria Anchondo helps Medical Director Fatima McElveen-Milbourn suit up for patient screening.

McElveen said.

These initial steps were just the beginning of multiple levels of safety changes that took place in the initial weeks of the pandemic's assault on Doña Ana County.

"We altered staff schedules, took inventory of our supplies and created a plan to use supplies when necessary to decrease the potential exposure of COVID-19 to staff and patients," McElveen said. That included limiting face-to-face contact with patients and converting medical and behavioral health visits to telephone calls or web-based programs. Two staff started working from home, and they and their patients are adapting well to counseling through telehealth.

Many others are opting to stay in the workplace, although the work environment has been altered through increased disinfecting and social distancing to minimize exposure.

"Every day I struggle between wanting to stay safe at home and not wanting to abandon clients and co-workers at work," Wright said. "Clients still need medical care, substance-abuse treatment and counseling. Just because a virus has our attention at the moment, the difficulties that people had before COVID-19 don't end. Mental illness doesn't take a break, substance use doesn't stop, people still experience suicidal ideation," he said.

Amador Recovery Project Director Ray Stewart said that while some services like Smart Recovery meetings were paused in the short-term, they've redesigned some workflow processes to reduce risk. His program has a walk-up window where people can request harm-reduction supplies (syringe exchange, naloxone) and staff deliver it outside the building.

"There is a tremendous opportunity to do good in so many angles with our clients," Stewart said. "Just delivering a food box or prescriptions, helping someone avoid eviction or assisting in applying for Medicaid or SSI/SSDI may improve an individual's health status."

With a clinic that integrates behavioral health with medical care, AHC provides in-depth primary care to anyone in the community, even if for now it is at a distance of six feet or by telephone or video. A prescribing psychologist and a medical provider can serve a patient for their depression as well as their chronic disease condition. While patient visits are down by about 30 percent and the clinic has seen a decline in revenue from insurance billing, there have been several federal funding infusions for the clinic through its federal Health Resources Services Administration grant.

The first funding from the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act is intended to address preparation, prevention and response and included enough funding to purchase a vehicle, more PPE and workstations to separate staff. The second infusion is for "Safety, Response, and Capacity" and will help AHC meet existing needs while remaining secure in the future.

The state's public-health plan includes increasing COVID-19 testing and tracing positive exposure connections to help reduce the spread of the virus. AHC has helped coordinate two testing events through the New Mexico Department of Health for essential volunteers and staff, as well as clients on the Mesilla Valley Community of Hope (MVCH) campus. Of the 100 tests performed April 22, two percent of those tested were positive and put into self-isolation, which is less than the state average of five percent. The results of the May 11 testing event are not yet available.

With the federal funding, AHC has maintained its full staff and is providing testing at local housing programs, as well as hosting its own testing events. Due to the lack of COVID-19 test kits available, AHC has only been performing tests for people who are showing symptoms. The commercial lab that services AHC will be providing more tests as they become available and more PPE orders are delivered.

Funding that helps AHC keep its doors open to those in need of services has also allowed staff to feed their families and pay their bills.

“I feel very honored to be part of a healthcare organization and campus of nonprofit agencies serving people coping with extreme poverty or experiencing homelessness or housing instability,” Stewart said, adding that if people in the community take personal responsibility by practicing social distancing, washing their hands often and vigorously and wearing masks of any type in public, it may help slow the course of the disease in our community and encourage Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham to further roll back some of the restrictions on businesses that are deemed non-essential.

“I feel that it is our duty to keep ourselves healthy, for staff to practice good hand hygiene, maintain proper social distancing and cover our coughs and sneezes,” McElveen said. “We all must be good stewards to our fellow human beings and ourselves.”

AHC is located on the MVCH campus alongside a soup kitchen, day-care center, food bank and housing-service center.

Its hours of operation are 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Appointments for medical, behavioral health or substance-use services are open to the entire community and can be made by calling 575-527-5482.

5 Exercise Ideas During a Social Distancing Era

As we all spend more time at home, lots of options still exist for getting your daily exercise. Gym closures, group fitness class cancellations and restrictions on going to places are making it more difficult for people to get their recommended weekly dose of exercise. And yet we're in a time when exercise and physical fitness could do a lot of good.

Regular exercise is proven to help stabilize and even strengthen the immune system. It's not going to prevent someone from contracting a virus like COVID-19 – social distancing is still the key to this – but a strong immune system can help your body fight such viruses.

And during a time of great life and economic uncertainty, exercise plays an important role in reducing daily stress while boosting one's overall mood.

If there's one prescription I'd give most anyone during this crazy time, it would be to get regular exercise. Granted, with isolation such an important goal right now, your exercise is going to have to be a more individual, at-home effort. This can make it challenging for some.

But, regular exercise is still possible. Today I'm offering five exercise ideas to consider during our current era of social distancing:

Try Virtual Classes/Apps: not only are there a number of free and paid services and apps available that will take you through a variety of daily workout routines (i.e., cardio, yoga, stationary cycling, etc.), but a few higher-end services are offering extended free trial sessions during the current pandemic. Some gyms are even sharing streaming daily workouts during their closures.

Become One with Nature: There are plenty of parks and wildlife areas that are open for hiking, running, cycling, etc. Enjoy the fresh air and natural sites, but still be sure to keep your distance from passersby.

Be Creative at Home: If you don't have gym equipment at home, don't fret. With a little imagination, items like soup cans can serve as weights, towels can be resistance bands, and a set of stairs can be your cardio machine. Even cooperative young children can offer added weight during resistance exercises.

Use Your Body Weight: Many great exercises don't require equipment, save for your own body. Burpees, lunges, squats, push-ups and sit-ups (to name a few) can combine for quite an effective workout. Also, don't forget cool-down stretching to exercise your flexibility.

Get Stuff Done: Finally, don't overlook the exercise benefits that come with simply doing home projects. Set time aside to do some deep cleaning and organizing, or finally get to those home maintenance projects you've been putting off. Even yardwork and gardening can make for great workouts.

Even though you're at home, don't take exercise too casually. Be sure to always warm up before following through on any of these ideas. If pain or injury is keeping you sedentary, contact our clinic and we'll be happy to assess the issue and offer potential treatments and alternatives.

Orthopedic surgeon joins MountainView RMC

From a MountainView Regional Medical Center news release.

Las Cruces orthopedic surgeon Dr. Michael McGuire joined the MountainView Medical Group (MVMG) Orthopedic and Musculoskeletal Care Clinic earlier this month.

thopedic surgery and orthopedic sports medicine. He opened his practice in Las Cruces in 1996 after obtaining fellowship training at the American Sports Medicine Institute in Birmingham, Alabama.

McGuire earned his bachelor's degree from Brown University and graduated from medical school at Georgetown. His training in orthopedic surgery was completed at the University of New Mexico.

McGuire has been an orthopedic surgeon for NMSU athletes and local high school athletes. His services include knee- and partial-knee replacement, non-operative treatment of arthritis of the knee, knee and shoulder arthroscopy, ACL reconstruction, meniscus surgery and rotator cuff repairs.

In joining MVMG as an employed physician, McGuire can leverage the assets of the community's largest integrated medical care delivery team. MVMG has more than 120 employed providers providing a full scope of services from urgent to primary to specialty care.

MountainView RMC resumes outpatient surgeries, elective procedures

From a MountainView Regional Medical Center news release.

MountainView Regional Medical Center (MVRMC) resumed outpatient elective services May 11.

The hospital is following Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham's latest public-health order allowing elective surgeries and procedures. Safety remains the hospital's highest priority.

Numerous precautions for infection prevention, access control, social distancing and patient flow are in place to maintain a safe environment of care. Everyone who enters the building, including staff, is screened, and all employees, physicians and patients are expected to wear masks. The daily number of procedures performed is being limited, and furniture in waiting areas has been spaced to maintain appropriate social distancing. Cleaning and disinfection of frequently touched surfaces and caregiving spaces has been intensified. Visitor restrictions for inpatients remain in effect, with exceptions for laboring mothers, pediatric patients and end-of-life situations.

"As we reopen elective procedures, our entire MountainView team is working diligently to keep every patient safe," said MVRMC Chief of Staff Karina McArthur. "Patients who delayed surgery or other non-emergency procedures can now work with their physicians to schedule necessary care as we resume elective procedures, surgeries and diagnostic studies."

Non-COVID-19-care zones have been delegated in the hospital, where patients who are screened as negative for COVID-19 will receive care. COVID-19 positive patients are grouped together in the same unit away from all other patients.

"As we resume more healthcare services, we are laser focused on patient safety and taking many steps to create safe care environments for all of our patients" said MVRMC CEO Derrick Cuenca.

All patients scheduling surgery or other invasive procedures will be tested for COVID-19 in advance of the procedure, the news release said. The hospital is closely monitoring its inventory of test kits, personal protective equipment, medications and other needed supplies, to ensure sufficient resources to support the number of patients in care.

At the same time, MountainView Medical Group physician practices are opening back up for in-person visits. Telehealth will continue to be available for visits, as needed. Clinic staff will be kept to a minimum to maintain appropriate social distancing.

Anyone having questions regarding the resumption of MVRMC services should contact his or her primary care provider or specialty care provider.

Las Cruces man, 29, in Denver awaiting new heart

By JESS WILLIAMS
Las Cruces Bulletin

At just 29 years old, Spenser Lopez should be having the time of his life. Instead, he's in a fight to save it.

Lopez and his mother, Gueneveré “Genni” McMahon, are spending this week settling into unfamiliar living spaces in Denver, where Lopez is awaiting a heart transplant.

His ordeal began in late 2018, when local doctors found evidence of a streptococcal infection that was manifesting itself in his heart and moving through his bloodstream to other areas of his body, most alarmingly, his brain. He was in constant pain.

After weeks of a series of misdiagnoses and wrangling with insurance companies — as well as regimen upon regimen of antibiotics and IV therapies — Lopez eventually underwent surgery in Albuquerque on Feb. 11, 2019, to install two artificial heart valves designed to repair the areas damaged by the infection.

Having the surgery meant he would have to take blood thinners and other medications for the rest of his life, and his recovery was both slow and painful, but he and his family had hopes that the worst of his ordeal was over.

It wasn't.

On Sept. 9, 2019, Lopez began experiencing chest pain and shortness of breath. The diagnosis came relatively quickly: His heart was failing. One of the valves had begun to separate. He would likely need a transplant.

Weeks of wrangling with cardiologists and insurance companies began anew, and McMa-

A May 8 parade of vehicles files past Genni and Chuck McMahon's Mesilla home, from which Spenser Lopez left May 9 to travel to Denver to await a heart transplant. Family members and friends waved and shouted support for Lopez. In total, there were six cars, 15 people, three dogs, two balloons, two flags and some hand-printed signs of support in the parade.

hon — Lopez' principal caregiver — began to feel overwhelmed by both her son's health predicament and the byzantine process of navigating the American healthcare system for a patient who was unable to work, unable to procure insurance and unable to drive.

In a blog comment dated Oct. 24, 2019, she wrote, “Each day, we start over. And over. And over.”

On Halloween of 2019, Lopez was finally referred to the University of Colorado/Denver Heart Transplant Program (UCDHTP) for evaluation and determination of whether he would be a candidate for transplant. Although the referral meant the beginning of yet another process to navigate, McMahon felt like there was light at the end of the tunnel.

He was approved for evaluation and on Dec. 11, 2019, with his first in-person appointment scheduled for Dec. 30. There was more wrangling with insurance companies, but McMahon eventually solicited the assistance of Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham's Office. Then things began to move quickly, and for the better.

They arrived in Denver for the evaluation process to begin on March 8, 2020. The UCDHTP, she blogged, was everything that healthcare should be in America: A team that cared and anticipated next steps; a support network whose people listened and cared and treated both she and Lopez like people instead of adversaries; a patient-centered approach to best outcomes. They even helped her wrangle records from past providers, as well as insurance assistance from reluctant corporations.

“It was a long day,” she wrote at the end of March 9. “The standard of care here is leagues above and beyond what we experienced in New Mexico. They seem to really care, they are on his side and want to help us succeed. It's really refreshing.”

Tests upon tests were performed. The six-day evaluation process was thorough and methodical. And in the middle of it came the serious reactions of state and federal authorities to the emerging pandemic of COVID-19.

McMahon and Lopez traveled back to Las Cruces on March 18, taking precautions all along the route. The next afternoon, she was notified by UCDHTP that Lopez was eligible for transplant. He was placed on the waiting list process that day and by April 2, he was officially a candidate for a new heart.

“Meanwhile,” she blogged, “we shelter in place, wear our masks and wait.”

A telemedicine conference took place on April 13 to nail down logistics and timelines to the greatest degree possible, as well as to discuss how COVID-19 might affect the process. They were told to keep their guard up, but be ready.

Less than a month later, on May 2, they were given six days to relocate to Denver. A May 8 parade was held by family and friends to show support for Lopez in front of McMahon's Mesilla home. They arrived in Denver Monday, May 11, with plans to stay there until a heart is available.

McMahon is taking her sewing machine with her to continue to make artful masks for friends, family and others. With no certain date for a transplant on the horizon, neither Lopez nor she can make long-term plans.

But it's coming. And it's almost certain that when he turns 30 this coming September, Lopez will have a new heart beating in his chest, giving him back a semblance of the life a young man deserves a shot at living.

Social Security projects 2035 as depletion date

By RAY VIGIL
For The Bulletin

The Social Security Board of Trustees has released its annual report on the long-term financial status of the Social Security Trust Funds. The combined asset reserves of the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and Disability Insurance (OASI and DI) Trust Funds are projected to become depleted in 2035, the same as projected last year, with 79 percent of benefits payable at that time.

The OASI Trust Fund is projected to become depleted in 2034, the same as last year's estimate, with 76 percent of benefits payable at that time. The DI Trust Fund is estimated to become depleted in 2065, extended 13 years from last year's estimate of 2052, with 92 percent of benefits still payable.

In the 2020 Annual Report to Congress, the Trustees announced:

The asset reserves of the combined OASI and DI Trust Funds increased by $2.5 billion in 2019 to a total of $2.897 trillion.

The total annual cost of the program is projected to exceed total annual income, for the first time since 1982, in 2021 and remain higher throughout the 75-year projection period. As a result, asset reserves are expected to decline during 2021. Social Security's cost has exceeded its non-interest income since 2010.

The year when the combined trust fund reserves are projected to become depleted, if Congress does not act before then, is 2035 – the same as last year's projection. At that time, there would be sufficient income coming in to pay 79 percent of scheduled benefits.

“The projections in this year's report do not reflect the potential effects of the COVID-19 pandemic on the Social Security program. Given the uncertainty associated with these impacts, the Trustees believe it is not possible to adjust estimates accurately at this time,” said Social Security Commissioner Andrew Saul. “The duration and severity of the pandemic will affect the estimates presented in this year's report and the financial status of the program, particularly in the short term.”

Other highlights of the Trustees Report include:

- Total income, including interest, to the combined OASI and DI Trust Funds amounted to $1.062 trillion in 2019. ($944.5 billion from net payroll tax contributions, $36.5 billion from taxation of benefits, and $81 billion in interest)

- Total expenditures from the combined OASI and DI Trust Funds amounted to $1.059 trillion in 2019.
- Social Security paid benefits of $1.048 trillion in calendar year 2019. There were about 64 million beneficiaries at the end of the calendar year.
- The projected actuarial deficit over the 75-year long-range period is 3.21 percent of taxable payroll — higher than the 2.78 percent projected in last year's report.
- During 2019, an estimated 178 million

- people had earnings covered by Social Security and paid payroll taxes.
- The cost of $6.4 billion to administer the Social Security program in 2019 was 0.6 percent of total expenditures.
- The combined Trust Fund asset reserves earned interest at an effective annual rate of 2.8 percent in 2019.

View the 2020 Trustees Report at www.socialsecurity.gov/OACT/TR/2020/. View an infographic about the program's long-term financial outlook at www.socialsecurity.gov/policy/social-security-long-term-financial-outlook.html.

Gardening is a great way to enjoy the work you do

I enjoy planting and growing a vegetable garden. My parents always did, and provided fresh, delicious food and saved a bunch of money.

As children, my brother and I were put to work on the garden to learn a little about what work was all about. It involved weeding and hoeing around the plants in the hot sun, but I realize now that it was good for us.

RUTH MOORER
Not for Sissies

Some of the “good old days” were back when it was the usual thing for people to have enough fertile ground around or near their homes for space to grow a nice-sized garden. I feel sorry for all the people who have little or no space to grow some of their own food. Children growing up in the country and on farms gained skills and an understanding of life which city kids do not have.

I also feel sorry for all the children who have little or no exposure to farm life, to wide open spaces, or adults who are able to teach them about the world around them. How many children have any understanding of where milk comes from? For that matter, how many people in general, including myself, know or appreciate the origin of most of our food?

Raising a garden starts with planning what you want to grow. The seed catalogs show so many delightful possibilities. They always display the best, thus creating hope and desire to have plants and fruit that look equally great. Planting the seeds is the easy and fun part. The little plants breaking through the soil nourish your hope.

As the plants begin to flourish, the darn weeds also appear. It seems that they grow faster than what you planted.

As the weeds flourish, the temperature climbs and the mosquitos arrive. That is when enthusiasm starts to wane. The day you are able to pick your first lettuce and radishes, your enthusiasm has a sudden burst of energy, but more weeds are soon to follow. From then on, until you are able to harvest the delicious tomatoes, the greens, the onions, the pole beans, the squash and all the other good vegetables, it is a battle.

If the rain does not come on time, one has to keep up the watering. But the whole experience is rewarding. Life was not intended to be without challenges and hard work. We have not been promised roses without thorns nor life without risks.

Ruth Justice Moorer is a resident of Las Cruces since 1996. She is a former public-school science teacher and United Methodist pastor.

him so, under the guise of camping out with friends, they pack bedrolls and head along the tracks to the place the body lies. The way proves to be many things – fun, frightening, tiring, bonding and a life-changing rite of passage.

As they walk, the boys flee a junkyard dog, fall in a swamp full of slugs, must run from a train when they are caught on a trestle bridge and, eventually, find the body. They have to face off with Ace's gang for the glory of discovery and, in the end, find their motivation has changed. One of the big messages here is about learning what it does and doesn't mean to be a hero.

This movie is full of touching moments, one of the most powerful when they find the body, and Gordie stares at it asking, "Why did he have to die?" We know he is not talking about the dead kid, but about his older brother.

"Stand by Me" is perhaps the king of coming-of-age movies, addressing the formative moments of children entering the confusion of growing up and universal truths at the same time. It is probably the best film adaptation of any of Stephen King's work and, while containing none of his signature supernatural horror elements, it captures the spirit of innocence and childhood wisdom.

DIY Cold Porcelain Modeling Clay – No heat, air-dry recipe

Have you ever tried making clay from jellies, juices, and oils? Cold porcelain modeling clay is made from common household ingredients and once dried, it will harden and become denser than many other do-it-yourself clays. Give it a try!

City of Las Cruces[®]
MUSEUMS

Supplies:

- 1.5 cups of cornstarch (base ingredient)
- 1 cup of glue (base ingredient)
- 1 tablespoon of olive oil (helps create a smooth surface)
- 0.5 tablespoon of lemon juice (helps preserve the clay)
- 0.5 tablespoon of Vaseline jelly (adds plasticity)
- Plastic wrap and airtight bags

Directions:

1. Mix the cornstarch and glue together to make a paste.
2. Slowly add the olive oil and lemon juice and then mix.
3. If the mixture is too sticky or moist, add in a teaspoon amount of cornstarch and mix again. Repeat if necessary.
4. Add the Vaseline jelly and mix.
5. If the mixture is still too sticky, add cornstarch again.
6. Spread a small amount of Vaseline jelly on a sheet of plastic wrap and wrap the clay (not too much, we don't want the jelly to saturate the clay).
7. Place in an airtight bag and leave in a cool dry place for 24 hours (do not refrigerate or put in direct sunlight).
8. After you shape your clay, leave it to dry in a cool place out of direct sunlight for at least 24 hours. Once it has sufficiently hardened, you can decorate it with inks and paints or other materials of your choosing!

Recipe can be used to make decorative items only

Have fun!
