County reminds residents that trash dumping is illegal

In recent months, illegal dumping has increased in Doña Ana County. The Doña Ana County Codes officers have picked up mattresses, appliances, TVs, computers, construction materials, discarded toilets and other household items.

Illegal trash dumping in Doña Ana County mars the natural beauty of our region and hurts animals and vegetation.

PHOTOS: Doña Ana County.

We have gone to great lengths to identify illegal dumpers, including searching through bags of garbage which puts our officers at great risk as they frequently encounter exposure to bacteria and other pathogens. We began using hidden cameras strategically located in high dump areas, primarily geodistrict 2, comprised of Radium Springs, Fairacres and Doña Ana; geodistrict 3 comprised of Organ, WSMR, East Mesa and Butterfield; and geodistrict 4 comprised of Mesilla, Mesilla Park, South Valley, Vado, San Miguel, La Mesa, Mesquite and Las Alturas in an effort to pick up a license plate number or other identifying information.

We developed an app called "No Throw" that enables the user to report illegal dumping. It is free and available for iOS and Android devices. Alternatively, residents can always call Mesilla Valley Regional Dispatch Authority, MVRDA at (575) 526-0795 and make an anonymous report.

Every day, Doña Ana County Codes Officers patrol all around the county with a concentration on the high-dump areas, along the river levees and far into the desert. Codes Officers also clean graffiti on buildings, bridges and other structures.

Though Codes Officers have no law enforcement capabilities, they do enforce the County ordinances that have been passed against illegal dumping. The fine for illegal dumping is up to $300 and/ or 90 days in jail.

Doña Ana County Codes Division works hard to address illegal dumping and other illegal activities that ruin the natural beauty of our county and we need the public's help to stop this illegal activity. If you see illegal dumping activities or a dumping area, please report it with the No Throw app or call MVRDA at (575) 526-0795.

City names five finalists for city manager

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

After a closed meeting on June 23, the Las Cruces City Council announced the five finalists to be considered for city manager.

The five are former senior advisor to the UTEP president Estrella Escobar, of El Paso; Chula Vista, California City Manager Gary Halbert; consultant and former City of McKinney, Texas deputy city manager Jose Madrigal; Los Lunas, New Mexico Village Administrator Gregory Martin; and Eagle Mountain, Utah City Administrator Ifo Pili.

The next steps in the hiring process will include a review of recorded statements from the finalists on July 7 and virtual interviews on July 21 and 22, the city said.

The city received 63 applications for the position of city manager. A recruiting firm hired by the city narrowed that field to nine, from which the council selected the five finalists.

Las Cruces has not had a permanent city manager since the resignation of Stuart Ed in April 2019. The city council declined to select a new city manager from a previous group of five finalists — Gregory Martin is the only current finalist who also made that list — and so the selection process began again.

David Maestas is the current interim city manager.

The city manager is the city council's only employee. His or her duties, as specified on the city website (www.las-cruces.org) are "recommending and implementing the policy direction approved by the mayor and city council, governed by the city charter; administration of city services and programs through effective leadership and management; appointing and/or dismissing all department heads; and other such du-

"Managers have tough jobs," Mayor Ken Miya-gishima said earlier this year, noting that the average stay of a Las Cruces city manager during the last two decades has been about three years. Miyagishima is helping choose his ninth City of Las Cruces or Doña Ana County manager. He is in his 13th year as mayor and served six years as a city council before that and eight years prior to that as a county commissioner, including service as commission chair.

Here's how to track bills from the special session

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Want to see what bills the New Mexico Legislature passed during this month's special session and what Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham has signed, vetoed or not yet acted on?

Visit www.nmlegis.gov/Legislation/Legislation_List.

For example, the entry for New Mexico Senate Bill 8 can be seen in the infobox at the top right.

- The bill number and which chamber of the legislature the bill was introduced in (SB 8, for Senate Bill 8). You can click on SB 8 to read the text of the bill as it was introduced and amended, how each senator and representative in the state voted on it, an analysis of the bill, amendments, votes and the governor's action, if any;

- The sponsor(s) of the bill, which, in this case, is Doña Ana County's own Senator Joseph Cervantes, chair of the state Senate Judiciary Committee.

- The committees the bill was referred to and their actions, if any, and how each chamber voted on the bill if it made it to the floor of either or both chambers for a vote. For SB 8, SJC means it was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee, DP/a means "do pass

For example, here is the entry for New Mexico Senate Bill 8:

SB 8	LAW ENFORCEMENT	Joseph	[1] SJC-SJC [3] DP/a [4] fl/aa [3] PASSED/S (31-11)-	2020 1st Special
	BODY CAMERAS	Cervantes	HJC-HJC- DP - PASSED/H (44-26)

as amended, committee report adopted" was the Senate Judiciary Committee action; fl/aa means two floor amendments were adopted; PASSED/S (31-11), means the bill passed the state Senate by a vote of 31 for and 11 against; HJC means it was referred to the House Judiciary Committee; DP again means that committee gave it a do pass recommendation; and PASSED/H (44-26) means the bill passed the House 44-26. (The legislature is comprised of 42 senators and 70 representatives, so everyone voted on this bill.)

The bill wasn't amended in the House, so you won't see this abbreviation: s/cncrd for SB 8, which means the Senate concurred with House changes to a bill. Both chambers must agree on a bill's final version before it can be sent to the governor for final action.

- 2020 1st Special refers to the legislative session during which the bill was introduced.

The governor had not yet acted on SB 8 at The Bulletin's publication deadline. SGND means she signed it and VETO means she vetoed it.

- Other than the vote counts, the numbers in parenthesis – (1), (3), (4) and (3), refer to the legislative day the action was taken, with (1), for example, meaning the first day of the special session.

The information is updated on a regular basis, so when the governor acts on the bills that were passed by both chambers and sent to her, that will be added to the list.

There were 16 bills and four memorials introduced in the House during the special session, and 21 bills, two memorials and one resolution introduced in the Senate.

The website also provides information about legislators, including committee assignments and contact information. The archives go back to 1996.

Farm & Ranch to pursue virtual projects

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH

Las Cruces Bulletin

The National Endowment for the Humanities and the New Mexico Humanities Council are boosting “Virtual Learning Experiences” at the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum with a $4,000 grant.

The Las Cruces museum will purchase video equipment with the funds, according to Lisa Pugh, the museum’s deputy director in charge of programs. The equipment will be used to produce educational content.

Pugh said the equipment will be purchased this month, and staff will begin producing programs right away.

“Most will be introduced in early fall, when schools are back in session, so we can share with the students,” Pugh said. “Really, we will have educational material for all ages. We’ll be doing adult programming, as well as trying to take as many of our programs online as possible.”

One of the programs coming up will be “Stories from the Past.” Pugh said the museum has been collecting oral histories for more than 20 years and recently received another grant to digitize those files.

As a part of the museum’s mission to collect and preserve the agricultural heritage of New Mexico, the museum implemented an oral-history program in the mid-1990s. The program includes the systematic collection of people’s recollections of their life experiences with farming, ranching and rural life. This collection is a major component in exploring and interpreting these subjects for visitors and researchers. Producers will incorporate these voices from the past with appropriate imagery to create short video presentations.

“The potential is limitless, so we are very excited about it,” she said. “Some [of the people interviewed] are still alive, some are not. We will be able to incorporate the voices from the past.”

Other projects that may come out of the virtual plan include things like a virtual tutorial on making butter; virtual tours of the exhibitions and livestock areas like “Cattle Breeding in New Mexico from the Territorial Period to the Present and a virtual tour of the current “Home on the Range: From Ranches to Rockets” exhibit on the development of the nation’s first missile range in the midst of World War II. “We have a fabulous design team and they are just dying to get into this virtual world,” Pugh said.

Happy Interdependence Day!

No, that's not a typo in the headline.

Yes, we Americans love our independence, both as individuals and as a nation, and we're right to celebrate it on July 4 and every other day.

We are, however, both as individuals and as a nation, also quite interdependent, and that's a good thing.

The global pandemic has ripped the curtain off of many of our routines, revealing in many cases how interdependent we truly are, often in ways we didn't even realize or care to admit. Here are some examples.

OUR CHILDREN. We've heard the African saying for years: "It takes a village to raise a child." But when our schools and daycares are suddenly shut down, we realize the degree to which we rely on others to help us with our children. We also realize how much those institutions enable us to do our own jobs and earn a living. A big shout-out goes to all those families, and especially single parents, who have juggled their work and small children these past few months. And another

RICHARD COLTHARP

From the Publisher

big shout-out to the teachers and daycare workers, some of society's hardest and most improperly compensated workers. And with distance learning, teachers have had to re-structure their whole jobs in a short time, working even harder than before.

OUR PARENTS. One of the worst aspects of the Coronavirus has been the inability to be with our elder loved ones in familiar ways. Whether they are living with us, in an assisted living facility, a hospital or even dying, our time and experience with our elders have been greatly modified. While it's heartbreaking not to be able to surround a suffering relative with loving company, it's important to acknowledge the efforts facilities have taken to protect our society's most vulnerable. Doctors, nurses, caregivers and funeral directors have worked harder than ever while maintaining empathy, decorum and safety with families.

ENTERTAINMENT. A lot of Americans like to curl up alone with a good book or play a rousing game of solitaire on the computer. But most Americans don't like it when those are the only options. The pandemic has shown even the most introverted of us how much we rely on others for our entertainment and companionship. In some cases, they are people we don't know personally, such as movie stars, rock bands or pro athletes. In other cases, they are people we know, such as local musicians, friends acting in plays or just joining our pals for dinner out. We Americans LOVE to eat out. I appreciate all the take-out opportunities, but I miss sitting down with friends and family and the simple pleasure of having someone wait on you.

BUSINESS BUILDING. The American business ideal often conjures an image of the single-minded individualist. People such as Henry Ford, Steve Jobs, Oprah Winfrey or Joy Mangano. Of course, no great business tycoon ever did it alone, but in this time of the Coronavirus, every business operator is relying on the ingenuity and determination of every employee, customer and trial-and-error advice from industry cohorts all over the country. The results have been some wonderfully creative new practices that will likely last post-pandemic. There have also been some less fun trends that, with luck, will quickly go by the wayside. (I, for one, will not miss the finger condoms some stores provide before you punch in your debit card PIN.) But you gotta try, right? Some of America's greatest success stories were born in times of great crisis, and feature a lot of failure, especially in the early chapters.

America has a great history of rising to a challenge in the face of adversity, and we're doing it again.

At least as long as we don't get into a Civil War about wearing masks.

CORRIENTE AUCTION

BAXTER BLACKOn the Edge of Common Sense

It could only happen to a cowboy.

Thurman had established himself as a figure of some note in the Corriente Association, which had developed into a successful representative of livestock people dedicated to breeding and supplying roping steers. The Corriente breeders in the northwest were gearing up for their big regional meeting in Prineville, Oregon. Being a national officer, Thurman was asked to attend and was given dignitary status.

In preparation for the auction fundraiser to be held at the gala on the final night, members brought items to sell. Jim, a Californian, brought a big painting. As he scanned the other auction items, he began to doubt the worthiness of his contribution. He asked Thurman's opinion.

Thurman looked at the tall three-foot by two-foot drawing. It was framed with simple yet sturdy 1x2 lathe. A large paint horse was bucking against a desert and mountain backdrop. With no criticism implied, it was obvious that anatomy had not been the artist's college major.

Third strike should spell doom for Gila River diversion

The decision 16 years ago to choose diversion of the Gila River over water conservation and restoration projects resulted in a promise that was always going to remain out of reach: new water.

Local government officials from Catron, Grant, Luna and Hidalgo counties who were selected for the Central Arizona Project (CAP) Entity and made the fateful decision had promised area farmers up to 14,000 acre feet of “new water.”

They would no longer have to make do with traditional crops like cotton and alfalfa. The “new water” would give growers access to more lucrative crops like hemp, potatoes, pecans and grapes.

The CAP Entity was spawned from the Arizona Water Settlements Act of 2004, which was intended to resolve a decades-old dispute over Gila River water that included not only the states of New Mexico and Arizona but also Native American tribes.

It was a classic western water war. In 1938, New Mexico Gov. John E. Miles ordered the State Police to cut locks to the river’s headgates and take over control of the water. But that solution was only temporary. In 1968, Congress passed its first bill attempting to resolve the issue.

The 2004 bill made millions of dollars available to the state, and gave the CAP Entity a choice as to how to use it. They choose diversion, despite warnings that past attempts to dam the river had failed because water levels weren’t consistently high enough.

Norm Gaum, a former director of the Interstate Stream Commission and an opponent of the diversion project, explained in a radio interview last year that New Mexico has the most junior water rights on the river. That means all other users have to be satisfied first and all of the water we divert has to be paid for ahead of time.

The decision to go with a diversion project started the clock on a 10-year time period to come up with a plan. When the 10 years were up, the CAP Entity asked for an extension. And it was granted, until 2019, when the latest request was denied by officials with the U.S. Interior Department.

That was the first piece of bad news for the CAP Entity. The second came last year when Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham vetoed $1.7 million that had been requested by the Interstate Stream Commission for the diversion project. Former Gov. Susana Martinez had been willing to keep funding the project long after it had become obvious that promises of new water for the state would never materialize, but Lujan Grisham was not.

Then came the third strike, a recent decision by the Interstate Stream Commission itself, which now has new members appointed by Lujan Grisham, to finally accept reality and pull the plug on diversion funding.

It is estimated that the CAP Entity spent some $16 million in pursuit of a diversion plan, and another $56 million in potential funding was lost when the request for a deadline extension was denied.

The Gila River diversion plan faced determined opposition every step of the way from those wanting to save the state’s last free-flowing river. In the end, however, it was not politics that led to the plan’s demise, but rather hydrology.

There is no new water. There is, however, still about $70 million in federal money available for projects to make better use of the water we have. The Interstate Stream Commission must ensure that no more federal funding is wasted.

Will Running Damage Your Knees? Studies Say No.

Is running bad for your knees? This is a common question among both avid runners and those who may start running for exercise or to participate in that first 5K. For most people, though, the answer is a resounding no.

This question highlights a common misconception about running – that it’s an activity that’s good for the heart but bad for the knees. But, the truth is that there’s really little evidence that running, when done properly, actually damages or increases a person’s risk of developing arthritis in their knees. In fact, research has shown the very opposite.

According to an analysis of multiple studies, for example – findings that were published in the Journal of Orthopaedic & Sports Physical Therapy in 2017 – 10.2 percent of non-runners develop osteoarthritis in knees or hips, while these ailments develop in just 3.5 percent of recreational runners. Further research has revealed that when it comes to the risk of developing osteoarthritis, running takes a back seat to other, more worrisome factors like knee injury history, genetics, occupational exposure to risky movements, age and obesity.

This and other research simply supports the much broader viewpoint that living a more sedentary lifestyle puts one at a much higher risk of chronic pain and conditions, like osteoarthritis, than living a more active life.

In physical therapy, we often use the phrases: ‘movement is medicine’ or ‘motion is lotion.’ Unless someone has other underlying conditions that make running difficult or cause more wear and tear on the muscles and joints – such as bad form or overtraining – you can rest assured that recreational running is safe on the knees and joints.

That’s certainly not to say that runners are immune to pain and injury. Issues like runner’s knee, shin splints, Achilles tendinitis and foot pain are experienced by thousands of runners every year. These conditions, however, are often due to issues such as bad running mechanics, muscle imbalances, improper footwear, overexertion, or not enough rest and recovery between workouts. The best path to addressing these issues is to reduce impact and gravitational forces without compromising natural biomechanics. The AlterG Antigravity Treadmill at Atrium Physical Therapy is the perfect tool to do this. The amazing treadmill can take away up to 80% of your body weight while walking or running, and allows you to move normally. When used as part of a comprehensive Physical Therapy treatment program, the AlterG treadmill provides the perfect environment to restore proper movement patterns and eliminate muscle imbalances.

Physical Therapists regularly work with runners of all ages and levels to identify these underlying causes of pain and injury. Through professional running and movement assessments, as well as a physical examination of affected areas, Physical Therapists can pinpoint and then address the true sources of the pain, and can then ensure the safety and longevity of runners through one or a combination of strategies, like strength and flexibility exercises, the establishment of better running mechanics, new running shoes/insoles, or the development of a more individualized exercise regimen.

If you are having issues with running (or walking for that matter), we are happy to help you get back to your normal activities without pain. Give our office a call at 575-525-2450, and we’ll be happy to get you started on the path to pain-free running!

Insurance coverage during a pandemic can be complex

Recent events in the United States can be aptly described as being anything but “routine occurrences.” It is prudent at times like these to review our personal insurance policies.

If you have comprehensive coverage included in your private passenger auto policy, damage to your vehicle would be covered. However, keep in mind that comprehensive coverage is optional, and according to the Insurance Information Institute, only around 75 percent of policyowners have this coverage. Comprehensive coverage provides indemnification (after the deductible is paid) for damage to the vehicle and its contents caused by falling objects, fire, vandalism or riot. If your windshield is cracked or shattered, your comprehensive coverage will also reimburse the insured, with no deductible for some policies.

If your home is damaged by an explosion, fire, riot or civil commotion, vandalism or malicious mischief, standard homeowners’ policies would provide coverage for these types of losses. Coverage would extend to the structure of the home along with any personal belongings. In addition, if you are unable to live at your dwelling due to an insured disaster, standard homeowners’ and renter’s insurance policies provide reimbursement for additional living expenses. Additional costs of temporarily living away from home, such as hotel bills, restaurant meals, extra mileage to work or school, etc. would be covered while your home is being repaired.

What happens if you are peacefully protesting at an event that turns violent, and are injured? There is technically a possibility that some insurance companies may deny you coverage for the cost of any medical attention required.

Under the exceptions and exclusions listed by several Aetna student health insurance plans and UnitedHealthcare plans, there is language that could preclude coverage if you were actively participating in a riot or civil disorder or in the commission of a felony. However, many experts believe that it is highly unlikely that an insurer would deny coverage for someone injured at one of the recent protests.

In addition, insurance policies are contracts of adhesion. Any ambiguities in the contract are generally decided in favor of the insured, and several descriptions of a riot in these policies are not clearly defined.

Our society generally does a commendable job maintaining civil order. Unfortunately, as we’ve seen recently, this isn’t always the case. Coverage for property damage, fire, vandalism or other violent acts resulting from a civil disturbance is essential for protecting your home, personal property, vehicles and health. It also contributes to peace of mind during traumatic periods of civil discontent.

If you are unsure of coverage, it is recommended that you contact your insurance agent for clarification.

New cabinet department puts children into sharp focus

By HOWIE MORALES

Lt. Gov. of New Mexico

On July 1, New Mexico launched the Early Childhood Education and Care Department (ECECD), becoming one of just four states across the country with a cabinet-level early childhood agency.

It's amazing to see how quickly this idea has come to fruition.

In 2017, after reflecting on my own experiences as a classroom teacher — and after learning from mentors and education leaders throughout southwestern New Mexico — I sponsored a bill in the State Senate to create an Early Childhood Services Department.

I did so because I knew that our state's children deserve better; each year, New Mexico hovers among the worst states in the country for child poverty and child wellbeing.

I also knew that those rankings don't reflect the love and care we have for our children. They do, however, say something about how our state's early childhood system is organized — and how it could improve.

Right now, many of the programs that serve our youngest children and their families — everything from prenatal home visiting services to health and nutrition support to childcare and pre-K — are scattered across different state agencies. I knew that if we could align these programs under a single agency, we could coordinate their work more effectively and help families navigate and take advantage of these services more easily.

I also knew that by establishing a cabinet-level agency for early childhood, we'd ensure that our little ones had a bigger seat at the table when it came to state policymaking. After all, public education and higher education have their own agencies — and early childhood should, as well.

When I introduced legislation to establish this new department, I wasn't doing it alone. Instead, I was building on decades of advocacy work by providers, educators, parents and concerned New Mexicans who knew that creating a better future for our kids is entirely within our power.

In 2017, my bill didn't pass. But a year later, Gov. Lujan Grisham and I found ourselves elected to statewide office -- and thanks to her commitment, as well as the leadership of Sen. Michael Padilla, Rep. Linda Trujillo and numerous advocates and early childhood professionals dedicated to this cause, we passed Senate Bill 22 and established the ECECD. Then, earlier this year, we created the Early Childhood Trust Fund to put our children's future on even firmer footing.

Of course, I know that a new organizational structure alone won't address all of our challenges. Our state still faces major obstacles, including the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

That said, there is hope. In the space of just a few short years, we have taken an idea and turned it into reality, and leaders from both parties have come together repeatedly to signal their commitment to a better future for our youngest children.

We also have a fantastic team at the helm of ECECD, including Cabinet Secretary Elizabeth Groginsky, Assistant Secretary for Native American Early Education and Care Jovanna Archuleta and a group of seasoned New Mexico early childhood professionals.

Since their first days on the job, they have been working all-out, reaching out and soliciting input from every corner of the state to see how the new department can meet families' and communities' needs. With that all-together-New-Mexico spirit, I see good things ahead.

Legal help available for those in need during COVID

By HON. SHANNON BACON
State Supreme Court Justice

Here in New Mexico, as across the nation, the economic effects of COVID-19 are making a significant impact on the people of our state, and the results could be particularly damaging for vulnerable New Mexicans. As the economic downturn continues to haunt us, people are suffering.

History tells us that when people feel the effects of a downturn, it leads to legal problems, such as evictions, foreclosures, debt collections, loss of benefits and a rise in domestic violence. With the COVID-19 pandemic creating high unemployment and a slow come-back for businesses, it is clear to us at the New Mexico Supreme Court that a wave of new civil legal cases is on the horizon — cases where the parties may not fully understand their legal rights or the justice system.

Now more than ever, we need the resources that civil legal services will bring to dealing with the thousands of new cases around the state. Now more than ever, when people are hurting and need us, our legal system will respond to create access to justice for all.

Many people are not aware that while people accused of a crime are guaranteed a lawyer for a criminal case, people do not have the same right to an attorney in civil cases. So, if you have a civil case (evictions, issues surrounding domestic violence, benefits and debt collection are civil matters), you are not given a lawyer if you can't afford one. This leaves many people to navigate the legal system on their own.

These can be very serious cases. Losing your home. Losing your benefits that keep you alive. Filing for a restraining order to protect yourself from a domestic violence situation. The Commission on Access to Justice works with stakeholders to connect those in need with resources like access to self-help centers within the court or a connection to appropriate civil legal service providers. These legal service providers help people in need with legal assistance or representation at little to no cost. Over 20,000 cases are handled each year by these nonprofit organizations.

Now, with COVID-19, a wave of civil cases will hit New Mexico's courts, and civil legal service providers are preparing to meet the demand. The good news is that if you have a civil legal issue, and can't afford representation, you can call 833-LGL-HELP and someone from the civil legal aid community will talk to you and try to assist you in your legal case or provide helpful information that you can use to represent yourself.

We must make sure the law is applied equally to all New Mexicans and that everyone has access to the court system. Additionally, it is important to eliminate barriers to the civil justice system that deny justice and keep people in poverty, such as racial inequities. The Supreme Court's Commission on Access to Justice serves our community to prevent injustices from occurring by connecting people with resources to access the justice system.

The Supreme Court of the state of New Mexico is committed to this cause. As a court, we know that we must look ahead and see the personal damage people could suffer. We are moving forward. We are preparing to help our fellow New Mexicans get justice for the issues that might be burdening them by connecting them to different civil legal service providers or by providing vital resources necessary for their case.

We are also asking that the leaders of this state, our elected officials, the governor and legislators recognize the need for civil legal aid now, and always, to prevent grave injustices from happening and ensuring that our state remains a compassionate place to live and work.

Justice Shannon Bacon has been a member of the Commission on Access to Justice for eight years and presided over thousands of civil cases before being appointed to the New Mexico Supreme Court.

'Course that didn't make Picasso all bad either. Onboard the buckner sat a big-hatted, moustachioed cowboy, chaps flying, spurs flashing and a nose that cleaved the air like an ice breaker in Hudson Bay. The saddle and gear were intricately carved. The curled rattlesnake was detailed down to the papilla on his flickering tongue.

Thurman stood back, overwhelmed, as Jim explained it had been drawn by an inmate at the state prison. "All done in ballpoint," offered Jim, hopefully.

"Jim," said Thurman, "I'm no art critic, but it's beautiful. I'd love to have it myself, but I'll bet it'll top the sale!" Jim beamed.

At the auction that night, things were sellin' wildly. A cassette brought $180. A little statue brought $350. Thurman was helping at the auction table. He personally carried Jim's picture to the front.

"Friends," he said, "this spectacular hand-drawn, original drawing in ballpoint donated by Jim is gonna be the catch of the day. It's a treasure worthy of great museums, historic bar walls and unfinished tackrooms. Look at the detail, the contrast, the poetry in motion harkening back to our forefathers and their foremothers before them. It will be the purchase of a lifetime!"

The crowd looked at Thurman in a new light.

"Matter of fact," he continued, "I'm gonna start the bidding at $125."

Jim was overcome. Admiration for Thurman swelled within him. He rose and walked to the front.

"Ladies and gentlemen, our friend Thurman has done so much for us and although there is no way we can properly repay him, I suggest we stop the bidding right here and let Thurman have it!"

A standing ovation followed. Thurman smiled like a sick dog and rapidly inventoried his airplane ticket home and the $132 in his pocket.

(P.S. It cost him $5 to package it for the plane ride home. He had coffee and a Twinkie and spent that night at the airport parking lot in his rental car. The picture now hangs on Thurman's wall as a reminder.)

Leaders discuss new 'NMSU Ready' plan at town hall

From the NMSU HOTLINE

JUNE 19 TOWN HALL

NMSU President John Floros and Ruth A. Johnston and members of the NMSU COVID-19 Rapid Response Team discussed the NMSU Ready system-wide return-to-campus plan in a June 18 virtual town hall meeting. The plan was released to the community June 16.

At the town meeting, Floros said NMSU is planning for students to return to campus Wednesday, Aug. 19, for a "regular academic semester" which will continue through December and include a commencement. He said students who don't live in Las Cruces will be asked not to travel during the Thanksgiving break.

Floros said the decision to reopen the campus was based in part on a student survey, which showed that 92 percent of students said, "yes," they want to return to campus, six percent said "maybe" and only two percent said "no," Floros said.

Floros acknowledged that three simultaneous crises are currently gripping the country: COVID-19, the damaged economy and the persistent issues of racism, inequality and social justice. He highlighted the Juneteenth celebration and June 19 candlelight vigil hosted by the Black Student Alliance, Black Programs

School district launches re-entry task force

From a Las Cruces Public Schools news release

Las Cruces Public Schools, under the leadership of Superintendent Dr. Karen Trujillo, has appointed an LCPS re-entry task force to develop a plan for teachers, students and staff to return to school Wednesday, Aug. 12, the original date that the 2020-2021 school year was scheduled to begin.

The task force includes seven key subcommittees, led by district leaders and department heads. Community stakeholders, students, union members and two LCPS board of education members are also part of the group.

"Our timeline has indicated a target date in July to have this re-entry plan finalized, but we will have a preliminary presentation for the school board on June 25," Trujillo said. "Between now and then, we have to work on several scenarios that will make re-entry feasible under whatever public health order is in effect in August. Not knowing what that might be, our plan will take into consideration building safety, PPE for teachers and students, continuous learning plans, accommodating our medically fragile students, athletics, activities and how social distancing requirements will impact transportation and how many students we can have in the buildings at one time. There is a lot to consider, but we are on the right track to formulate a plan that will address the needs of all students."

The task force first met June 3 via video conference and will meet weekly throughout the summer. Guiding principles include creating a safe environment, reducing fear, maintaining continuity of instruction, keeping students and staff safe and healthy, ensuring access and equity for all students and providing ongoing, consistent and transparent communication with all stakeholders. Part of the communications plan includes regular updates through traditional and social media, as well as a dedicated, easy to navigate dashboard on the district website. Public feedback is also encouraged. Comments, suggestions or questions can be sent to returnplan@lcps.net. The list of members on the Task Force can be found on the district website at www.lcps.net.

Las Cruces extends gas service to Talavera

By CASSIE MCCLURE AND SUZANNE MICHAELS

For Dan Norris, Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) gas systems inspector, it was the end of the line this month as he and his gas crew finished the year-long construction phase of the Talavera 8-Inch High Pressure Gas Pipeline Extension project to bring natural gas to 960 parcels in the Talavera subdivision.

Over the past 12 months, LCU has installed 2.7 miles of 8-inch high-pressure steel pipe and 4.6 miles of 4-inch low-pressure pipe to begin providing service to Talavera neighborhoods.

"The low-pressure pipe begins at the intersection of Talavera and Soledad Canyon and will eventually make natural gas available to all parcels in Talavera," Norris said.

The last phase of construction was removing trapped air from the gas line, which required welding on a temporary pipe aimed at the sky, climbing into fireproof cotton suits in case of a flash fire and inserting earplugs for noise protection, attaching a sensor to measure the flow of gas and air that rushes out of the pipe, and connecting a simple set of jumper cables to limit static electricity during the brief period the line was open.

One crewmember stood ready with a fire extinguisher, another kept an eye out for traffic on the road and Norris checked for rattlesnakes, since the crew was startled by a rattlesnake in a trench earlier in the week.

With everyone at the ready, it was time to open the gas line with the turn of a wrench.

The natural gas hissed loudly, as Norris held on to the output pipe, and his crewman monitored the meter. Using hand signals to communicate through the noise, they adjusted the flow and then signaled "stop."

In less than five minutes, the natural gas flow measured 100 percent pure — and will eventually be available to all parcels in the Talavera subdivision. Natural gas is now available to those residents immediately off Soledad Canyon road. Future projects (Phase 3A & Phase 3B) will extend the natural gas further north, south, east and west of Soledad Canyon.

Talavera residents who want to sign up for natural gas service should move quickly to take advantage of the gas main extension allowance available now to help pay for connection costs.

Residents who have been notified of gas availability have six months to take advantage of the gas main extension allowance. For more information, visit www.las-cruces.org/2039/Talavera-Natural-Gas-Service-Expansion or call (575) 541-2111.

LCU can be reached at 575-528-3500 from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday. LCU provides services to approximately 100,000 Las Cruces residents and businesses.

As with last year's asylum seekers, fire department steps up during COVID

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

As 2019's influx of asylum seekers and this year's pandemic clearly demonstrate, the work of the Las Cruces Fire Department (LCFD) goes far above and way beyond fighting fires.

"I am honored and impressed to see how LCFD continues to rise up to the most complex situations and provide critical services to our community within Las Cruces and throughout our region," said Interim City Manager David Maestas.

Last spring, LCFD Battalion Chief Mike Daniels was temporarily reassigned to the joint City of Las Cruces-Doña Ana County Office of Emergency Management (OEM) as the city provided humanitarian aid to more than 17,000 asylum seekers brought to Las Cruces by the U.S. Border Patrol.

That work with OEM has continued in the current public health emergency, as LCFD has "undertaken a key role ... to assure adequate safety measures are being acquired, provided to our community, and services completed (such as COVID testing), in a timely manner to assist with the health, safety, and welfare of our citizens with a priority on our vulnerable populations," Maestas said.

Those vulnerable populations include more than 40 high-risk seniors in Las Cruces that LCFD has assisted throughout the pandemic, coordinating with local church volunteers to provide regular welfare checks by phone, and providing needs assessments and case management, said LCFD Mobile Integrated Health Coordinator Paul Ford. LCFD also has coordinated about 150 third-party connections to transport the seniors to and from doctors' appointments and make sure they have food, prescriptions and other necessities.

LCFD has also served as local liaison for COVID testing with the New Mexico Department of Health, said Battalion Chief Shane Mouchette. About a dozen firefighters have been assigned to conduct COVID tests and work at local test sites.

The fire department also is in charge of coordinating delivery of personal protective equipment to all city staff. Firefighters have distributed more than 10,000 face coverings to the public during the pandemic, built 1,000 sanitation kits that were delivered to Mesilla Valley Community of Hope and streamlined medical-supply orders to keep LCFD units available for emergency calls, Daniels said.

LCFD has worked with local businesses to help them comply with the state's emergency health orders since the pandemic began, said Deputy Chief Adrian Arias.

"People were scared" and relied on LCFD for "a lot of help and assistance," Arias said, and that has meant many hours answering phone calls and emails from business owners and managers.

LCFD also had to figure out the best way to comply with social distancing and other health requirements within the department to keep its 177 firefighters and their families safe, said Arias, who has been with LCFD for 20 years, including a decade as a fire investigator. "We still came to work every day," he said. And, within less than two weeks from the onset of COVID-19, LCFD was able to move training and testing online and transition its office staff to working from home.

The department also took advantage of the shutdown caused by the pandemic to conduct annual fire inspections at empty schools and some businesses, Arias said. And, while LCFD has greatly missed children and community members paying visits to the fire station and firefighters visiting schools since mid-March, it's doing birthday fire truck drive-bys and reaching out on social media.

And that's all in addition to the more than 15,000 EMS calls and the fire calls the department receives each year.

The community has expressed its gratitude to firefighters throughout, said Deputy Chief Jason Smith, as many restaurants have provided meals to firefighters. "Our businesses really came through for us," said Smith, who has been with LCFD for nearly 18 years and recently returned to full LCFD duty after a temporary assignment to OEM's COVID-19 management team, where

Las Cruces woman filled with gratitude for EMTs

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

A little more than two months after suffering a stroke, Beverly Nelson is fully recovered – and full of gratitude for the care she received from Las Cruces Fire Department EMTs.

"They saved my life," Nelson, 75, said in a June 29 interview. "When I think about it now, I am so grateful."

Nelson was in her north Las Cruces home the night of April 27 when she realized something was wrong. The weakness she experienced on her left side caused her to fall in her living room.

"The only thing I remember is groping for the phone on the floor," Nelson said.

Even though she can't remember it, Nelson was able to call 9-1-1. The fire department was alerted and EMTs found her unconscious on the floor and transported her to Mountainview Regional Medical Center (MVRMC).

"The EMTs did such a good job," she said.

The next thing Nelson remembers is waking up in the hospital two and one-half days later. Soon after, she was transported to Wellbrook Transitional Rehabilitation Center, where she spent several weeks before returning home.

Nelson had high praise for MVRMC and Wellbrook, and also for From the Heart Animal Rescue (FHAR), which took her two dogs, Mindy and Allie, into care during her recovery.

"There's a lot of points that this hits on," Nelson said about the care and compassion she and her dogs have received.

Allie was in her crate for the night when Nelson had the stroke, but Mindy was loose in the house and found Nelson on the floor and was very traumatized because she could not wake her owner up, Nelson said. Because Mindy, a Chihuahua mix who is about 10 years old, became so protective of Nelson, FHAR is finding a new home for Allie in El Paso.

"Mindy is my shadow because she will not leave my sight," Nelson said.

Like Nelson, Mindy is no stranger to medical care. Her spleen was removed at Crossroads Animal Hospital in El Paso after she was attacked by a larger dog. Both she and Allie are rescues.

This was Nelson's second stroke. The first was five years ago. She had a burst appendix in 2009 and also has had a hip replacement.

"This is why I am so grateful that I have everything back," Nelson said. Other than a little weakness on the left side when she's tired, Nelson has fully recovered from her stroke.

"I feel wonderful," she said.

Nelson has three adult children living in the Denver area, but no family in Las Cruces. She said she's learned the lesson from her stroke and has a medical alert button and DNR instructions posted in her house and has given house keys to several close friends.

"The things that happened to me, each one of them should have taken my life," she said. "My job's not done. I've been given the greatest gift, and I am grateful. This is our lesson because we all have a responsibility to love and protect each other."

City, state, BLM urge fireworks safety

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Due to dry-weather conditions in Las Cruces that are expected to continue through the Fourth of July holiday and worsening drought conditions across much of New Mexico, City of Las Cruces officials are urging Las Cruces residents to use fireworks safely.

Public gatherings for the Fourth of July have been cancelled in Las Cruces, but the city will host a fireworks display.

The federal Bureau of Land Management is also asking for the public's help to prevent wildfires.

Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham issued an executive order June 16 "urging New Mexico cities and counties to consider banning the retail sale of fireworks in the state through the summer or until drought conditions improve," a news release from the governor's office said.

"Approximately 75 percent of New Mexico is abnormally dry; more than half the state is experiencing at least moderate drought conditions and significant portions of the state are in a severe or extreme drought,

Las Cruces fire chief urges fireworks caution

"The City of Las Cruces has approved the use and sale of "safe and sane fireworks" for almost 15 years now," said Las Cruces Fire Chief Eric Enriquez. "This has proven to be the safest way to celebrate the Fourth of July, along with a city public display for residents to enjoy.

"The threat of fires is reduced by safe and sane, but this year another threat to consider is the health concern of the Coronavirus. As a community, we need to be safe and avoid the gatherings while maintaining safe distances.

"This year, fireworks are allowed, and hazards of fire and health concerns of the Coronavirus will be present. Know that the Las Cruces Fire Department is always available to respond to your emergency needs," Enriquez said.

according to the United States Drought Monitor. These percentages have increased dramatically over the past month," the news release said.

The U.S. Drought Monitor was created in 1999. A weekly map showing U.S. drought conditions is produced jointly by the National Drought Mitigation Center at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Visit www.droughtmonitor.unl.edu/.

The governor's order does not affect municipal fireworks displays for the Fourth of July, but state public health orders continue to limit the numbers of people who can gather publicly, and mandate social distancing and wearing face coverings.

In consideration of current conditions, Las Cruces officials said the use of fireworks within the city limits should "follow the safest practices possible." They have asked that the use of fireworks be limited to "areas that are paved or barren and that have a readily accessible source of water."

The city has cancelled this year's Electric Light Parade and community concert because of the public health orders, a city news release said. However, the city "is still planning a celebration to commemorate our national holiday in a safe and enjoyable way. The city Parks and Recreation Department is planning a Virtual Electric Photo Parade with a salute to our local heroes, including first responders, medical workers and all essential workers who have kept our community going through this pandemic," the city news release said.

"The Las Cruces community can participate by submitting photos showing their patriotic spirit in several categories," the release said. "Winners will be chosen in each category and all photos will be showcased in a virtual slideshow parade on the City's YouTube channel, YouTube.com/clctv20."

The city Parks and Recreation Department has announced that the city will celebrate July 4 with a community fireworks display beginning at approximately 9:15 p.m. on Saturday, July 4, visible "from almost every neighborhood in the city," a city news release said.

The BLM, meanwhile, said 87 percent of all wildfires nationwide are caused by humans.

"The National Inter-agency Fire Center's (NIFC) Predictive Services unit, which assesses wildfire potential throughout the country, predicts above-normal wildfire potential this year in New Mexico, Oregon, Washington, California, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Montana, Colorado, Arizona and Hawaii due to expected high temperatures, dry vegetation and other weather factors including high winds," the BLM said. "Because of these conditions, human-caused wildfire ignitions have the potential to quickly grow out of control and threaten lives, property and natural resources.

Additionally, people who live near wildlands should prepare their homes and communities for wildfire, the BLM said.

and the homeless, as well as first responders. Smith has also helped review and refine the local pandemic response, so the community is prepared to deal with a possible COVID resurgence and with other threats, he said.

LCFD "tries to find a way to do more, not less, for this community," Fire Chief Eric Enriquez said. "I'm so proud of this department and what we've done," said Enriquez, who became chief in May 2016. "We stepped up."

"LCFD is the best," Mayor Ken Miyagishima said. "We are so fortunate to have such an incredible group of trained professionals protecting our residents 24/7/365. I want them to know that the City of Las Cruces admires them and appreciates them and their families as they put themselves at great risk daily, while protecting us."

"Movie: Charlie's Angels"

Elizabeth Banks wrote, directed and co-produced this 2019 action film, the third entry in a film franchise that in turn was inspired by the 1976-81 TV series of the same title. Kristen Stewart, Naomi Scott and Ella Balinska star as the titular trio of formidable female agents dispatched by executive Charles Townsend, owner of the Townsend Agency.

"Movie: XX"

Four horrific tales of terror are part and parcel of this 2017 anthology movie that's made up of short films by Jovanka Vuckovic ("Riot Girls"), Annie Clark ("The Picture of Dorian Gray"), Roxanne Benjamin ("Body at Brighton Rock") and Karyn Kusama ("Jennifer's Body"). Melanie Lynskey, Breedla Wool, Peyton Kennedy and Natalie Brown are among the cast.

"Movie: Miss Snake Charmer"

Though probably not for the squeamish, this 2018 documentary chronicles an unusual high-school beauty pageant in Sweetwater, Texas, that requires each contestant to kill and skin a live rattlesnake before they can don evening wear and show off their other talents. The winner then spends a weekend reigning over the pits at the the World's Largest Rattlesnake Roundup.

"Movie: Palm Springs"

A carefree bachelor (Andy Samberg) and a maid of honor (Cristin Milioti) have a chance encounter at a Palm Springs wedding but when they try to leave the venue they're unable to in this comedy movie from first-time feature filmmaker Max Barbakow. J.K. Simmons, Meredith Hagner, Camila Mendes, Tyler Hoechlin and Peter Gallagher round out the solid cast. (ORIGINAL)

Bering Sea Gold

For a special Independence Day weekend episode, the Kellys treat fans to a fireworks extravaganza of sorts in the form of a look back at some of their most explosive moments of the summer. Kris takes his shot with his latest "pie in the sky" project, hoping to break Kelly family history. He also joins his father, Brad, and brother, Andy, for a stroll down memory lane.

Great Performances

Ushering in Independence Day weekend with an encore from 2018, composer Peter Boyer's "Ellis Island: The Dream of America" merges contemporary classical music — performed by Pacific Symphony — with dramatic readings recalling the experiences of specific newcomers to the United States. This production was staged at the Renee and Henry Segerstrom Concert Hall in Costa Mesa, Calif.

"A Capitol Fourth"

7 p.m. on KTSM
Macy's 4th of July Fireworks Spectacular

Partly owing to the fluid health guidelines surrounding the continuing coronavirus pandemic, NBC still is firming up both the format and scheduled performers for this annual special, which has become a holiday tradition. As of this writing, country superstars Tim McGraw and Lady A — formerly known as Lady Antebellum — are due to provide some of the music entertainment. And, of course, there's always the main event come nightfall in the form of a spectacular and

A Capitol Fourth

For the fourth time, John Stamos returns as host of this annual holiday special, joined by co-host Vanessa Williams. This year's program will feature clips from past editions of this show. Among the featured performers are Patti LaBelle, country stars Trace Adkins and Lauren Alaina, the Tempations, Tony Award-winning Broadway star Kelli O'Hara and opera star Renée Fleming, among many others. The special also will include a tribute to workers on the front lines of the health crisis and a segment honoring African-American heroes from the past and present.

9 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Midway

This 2019 combat epic about the Battle of Midway, a turning point in the Pacific Theater of World War II, was a pet project of director Roland Emmerich, who struggled at first to find financing for a drama that called for flashy special effects and a large international ensemble cast. With a production budget of $100 million, it's one of the Movie: Scary Stories to Tell in the Dark

While fleeing a bully, three teenagers hide in a local "haunted house," where they stumble across a secret room that contains a book of horror stories. As new tales begin to appear in the book, the teens and people in their lives are drawn into the chilling action. Zoe Colletti, Gabriel Rush and Austin Abrams play the young trio; Dean Norris, Gil Bellows, Lorraine Toussaint and Matt Smith are among the adult players.

11 p.m. on FX
Movie: Captain America: The Winter Soldier

On top of being an entertaining "popcorn movie" in its own right, this 2014 adventure also proved a dazzling display of Marvel Studios' corporate synergy in action, since the story line simultaneously was being amplified by events playing out on "Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D." The powerful story of how "Cap" (Chris Evans) discovers his past has come back to haunt him is rewarding enough on its own terms.

6 p.m. on LIFE

Movie: Driven to the Edge

Millennial fashion designer Tess gets an easy kick out of using rideshare apps to get wherever she needs to go, partly because she likes to meet interesting new people that way. One of them, Jaye, has an immediate chemistry with Tess, and the two women become fast friends. This quick bonding sets off alarm bells for some of Tess's friends, though, and she eventually realizes Jaye is harboring a dark secret in this 2020 thriller. Taylor Spreittler, Danielle Burgess, Amanda Grace Benitez and Stephen Friedrich star.

7 p.m. on KRWG
Lucy Worsley's Royal Myths & Secrets

Following previous episodes devoted to Elizabeth I and Queen Anne, British historian Lucy Worsley closes out her three-part miniseries celebrating women who changed the course of the world with "Marie Antoinette, The Doomed Queen." This ill-fated royal is often blamed for igniting the French Revolution by callously saying, of her starving subjects, "Let them eat cake." Worsley uncovers the truth about what led this complicated woman to the guillotine.

7 p.m. on KTSM
Hollywood Game Night

Two contestants join tonight's celebrity guests, dancer Stephen "tWitch" Boss, former "The Good Place" star D'Arcy Carden and actress-comic Iliza Shlesinger to play an assortment of funny party games with actors Tone Bell, Yvette Nicole Brown and comic Amanda Seales. Jane Lynch acts as host as the group splits into two teams and competes for a $25,000 grand prize in the new episode "Twitch & Shout."

7 p.m. on HALL
Good Witch

Although Cassie's (Catherine Bell) temporary teaching gig is about to end, a new beginning may be just around the corner for her as Season 6 draws to a close with "The Bird." Forced to schedule some of his many unused vacation days, Sam (James Denton) devotes the time to reflecting with Cassie on a hobby or pastime they might enjoy together. Meanwhile, Joy (Katherine Barrell) would love to stay in Middleton, but faces a tough decision when Donna (Elise Bauman) finds them a new job in Vermont.

7 p.m. on HISTORY
America: Our Defining Hours

Dedicated to the proposition that overcoming adversity is a skill that's baked into the national DNA of the United States, this three-part miniseries, continuing on successive Sundays, recounts stories of how the USA as a nation manages to seize moments of crisis and turn them into an opportunity to make a better future. It's a story that starts with the arrival of the Mayflower and reaches forward through the American Civil War and the 9/11 terrorist attacks.

7 p.m. on TRAV
Paranormal Caught on Camera

Season 2 of this spooky series wraps with a finale called "Pushy Poltergeists and More," which features the story of a man who gets a very unwelcome visitor in his new home. In other segments, a man and his daughter take a walk in the devil's tramping ground, and uncanny entities that appear and disappear wreak havoc with a home's security system.

10 p.m. on HBO
Perry Mason

Seeking to gain an advantage over opponents, District Attorney Maynard Barnes (Stephen Root) goes public with a startling new development in "Chapter Three." Mason and Strickland (Matthew Rhys, Shea Whigham) gain unauthorized access to some physical evidence, with an assist from Virgil (Jefferson Mays), Mason's city morgue contact. Later, Mason also tries to get some information from Drake (Chris Chalk), who is becoming sick of Holcomb and Ellis' (Eric Lange, Andrew Howard) relentless scrutiny. Juliet Ry-lance and John Lithgow also star.

"American Experience"

7 p.m. on KVIA2
Whose Line Is It Anyway?

Actress and former talk-show host Ricki Lake ("Hairspray") makes a special guest appearance in a new episode that also finds host Aisha Tyler welcoming returning guest player Charles Esten, who fits in seamlessly with regular cast members Ryan Stiles, Wayne Brady and Colin Mochrie. The four guys go through a series of spirited improv games that incorporate suggestions from the studio audience.

7 p.m. on TRAV
Buried Worlds With Don Wildman

The new episode "Temples of Doom" takes host Don Wildman to Peru, where he makes an in-depth investigation into an ancient cult by personally undergoing the group's most terrifying ritual. In remote caves, he finds evidence of a supernatural war, then later uncovers clues about bloody sacrifices. By the time the episode reaches its conclusion, he has succeeded in revealing the hidden truth of this deadly religion.

8 p.m. on KRWG
American Experience

With American voting rights becoming more and more of a key issue in the upcoming 2020 presidential election, "The Vote" — a new two-part, four-hour documentary concluding Tuesday — is a timely look back at the epic fight American women waged to secure their right to vote. Focusing mainly on the final decade of that struggle, the film charts this determined march to the ballot box, despite multiple social, political and cultural obstacles. Kate Burton narrates, with Audra McDonald, Mae Whitman, Laura Linney and Patricia Clarkson also lending their voices.

John Quinones

7 p.m. on BRAVO
Million Dollar Listing Los Angeles

In the new episode "Altman Versus Fredrik," Josh Altman hunts for his own flagship office space to create some much-needed distance from New York power player Fredrik Eklund, a former friend who now is trying to make his mark on both coasts, thus encroaching on Altman's prime turf. Meanwhile, Josh Flagg tries to convince his hesitant seller to put in an offer or lose the coveted home forever.

7 p.m. on ID
Still a Mystery

The new episode "Killers Among Us?" starts on a deceptively tranquil note, as a respected police officer heads home after a late shift, while elsewhere a young man who has just moved into his own place relaxes after watching football. Events soon take a shocking twist, however, as what looks to be two thoroughly routine evenings turn deadly. Are these violent events actually cold-blooded, premeditated assassinations?

7 p.m. on OWN
Greenleaf

Forced to wait in agony, Grace (Merle Dandridge) feels torn between giving her family the undivided attention they need and digging more deeply into Bob Whitmore's (Beau Bridges) shady past in the new episode

"The Third Day." Lady Mae and Bishop (Lynn Whitfield, Keith David) take initial steps to turn their dreams of a new church into a reality, but opening a new chapter proves to be even more challenging than they had expected. As the competition continues, one player engages in sloppy political maneuvering, while another takes a shocking gamble to save a friend in a new episode called "Total Madness: Crash Into Me." Ultimately, the remaining competitors are forced into a fight for survival in

Tough as Nails

Executive producer Phil Keoghan pitched this reality competition series in a pre-pandemic world, but it reaches the air at a time when viewers are especially aware of the "essential workers" who have kept the country running during a time of widespread quarantine. The contestants are made up of working-class Americans — a deputy sheriff, a welder, a farmer, a firefighter and so forth — who are put through a series of on-the-job challenges to test their strength, endurance, life skills and mental toughness.

In the new "Summer Grillin' Games Part 1," host Guy Fieri invites eight previous winners of "Guy's Grocery Games" to return to Flavortown Market for a summer grilling tournament. Each week, one chef will be awarded "best dish," win $5,000 and then move on to the next week's competition while the remaining chefs duke it out.

Forged in Fire: Beat the Judges

Season 1 of this companion program to the hit "Forged in Fire" concludes with a music-themed finale called "Rock Star Smiths," in which the bladesmiths must slash through level one to score a chance to rock out a 9-ringed broadsword on their home forges. One champion ultimately lands at the "top of the charts," pitting him against one of the judges in a face-to-face showdown.

At Home With Amy Sedaris

The new episode "Dips and Dunkers" finds Amy hosting a party to watch a major sporting event. She's not remotely a fan of sports, but evidently someone in charge has suggested to her that it wouldn't hurt her or her show to make a play for a younger demographic. On a note that's a bit more in character for her, Amy and a special guest also prepare a perfect game-day dip.

The Season 3 finale "Shelter From the Storm" opens with Joanna and Billy (Kristin Kreuk, Peter Mooney) in a downbeat mood. They have less than 24 hours before the trial starts, yet despite their tireless efforts, they've come up empty-handed in their search for anything on Solomon Stone. They know that, unless they can find some powerful way to expose the bogus science used to wrongfully apprehend children, their case is doomed even before it starts.

"Movie: Scoob!"

This 2020 animated adventure movie finds Scooby, Shaggy and the gang facing their biggest threat yet — a plot to unleash the ghost dog Cerberus on the world. As the group grapples with how to contain the canine, they discover that Scooby has as epic destiny that's greater than any of them imagined. Will Forte, Mark Wahlberg, Gina Rodriguez and Jason Isaacs head the voice cast.

"Movie: The High Note"

Nisha Ganatra ("Late Night") directed this 2020 musical drama about an egotistical superstar singer (Tracee Ellis Ross, "black-ish") and her overworked personal assistant (Dakota Johnson, "Fifty Shades of Grey") who devise a life-changing course of action when the manager presents a career-altering choice. Bill Pullman, June Diane Raphael, Ice Cube and Eddie Izzard are also in the cast.

"Movie: The King of Staten Island"

"Saturday Night Live" regular Pete Davidson co-wrote this semi-autobiographical 2020 dramedy about a 20-something Staten Islander struggling with substance abuse in the wake of his firefighter father's death until events force him to face his grief and move on with life. Marisa Tomei and Moises Arias are also in the cast for director Judd Apatow.

"Dragnet"

Just the facts, ma'am. The first season of the iconic 1967-70 NBC series about a police detective and his partners investigating crime in Los Angeles comes to the streaming service. Jack Webb stars as Sgt. Joe Friday, with Harry Morgan ("M*A*S*H"), Michael Burns and Art Balingier also in the cast.

Las Cruces Bulletin

Former Magistrate Judge Susana Chaparro has emerged the victor in the Democratic race for the District 4 seat on the Dona Ana County Board of Commissioners.

A mandatory recount of the election results was completed June 30 by the Dona Ana County Clerk's Office, and it showed Chaparro edged out a victory by 25 votes over her closest competitor, Debra Ann Hathaway. Sam Bradley ran a distant third.

The recount was required because the margin of victory was less than 1 percent of the total number of votes cast, 3,887.

Chaparro will face Republican Stacey Michelle Durham in the Nov. 3 General Election.

'Vietnam car' art honors service, sacrifice

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"I've always been very grateful to the military, law enforcement and first responders, because without them, we wouldn't be able to do what we do and I wouldn't be able to paint. We wouldn't have those freedoms," said Las Cruces artist Luis Navarro.

Navarro, who moved to Las Cruces in 2010, put his talent and his heart into completing a special art project for U.S. Army Sgt. Richard Lewis: painting memories and icons from Lewis' service during the Vietnam War as part of the First Cavalry.

Navarro began the project by painting the hood of Lewis' Cadillac and completed the work over a four-year period at his Roundtree Place studio in Las Cruces.

"I got a lot of inspiration from Sgt. Lewis," Navarro said. "He told me stories of what it was like — the good and the bad, things that happened. It was an honor for me," he said. "There's many sides to it, but the point is, the American kids, they had to serve."

The fully painted "Vietnam Car" is "dedicated to the military and the people who are out there fighting," Navarro said.

During some of his painting on the Cadillac, particularly of empty combat boots, "I got teary eyed because I could almost feel the pain and the hardship and the burden of choices you cannot escape and have to deal with sooner or later," Navarro said.

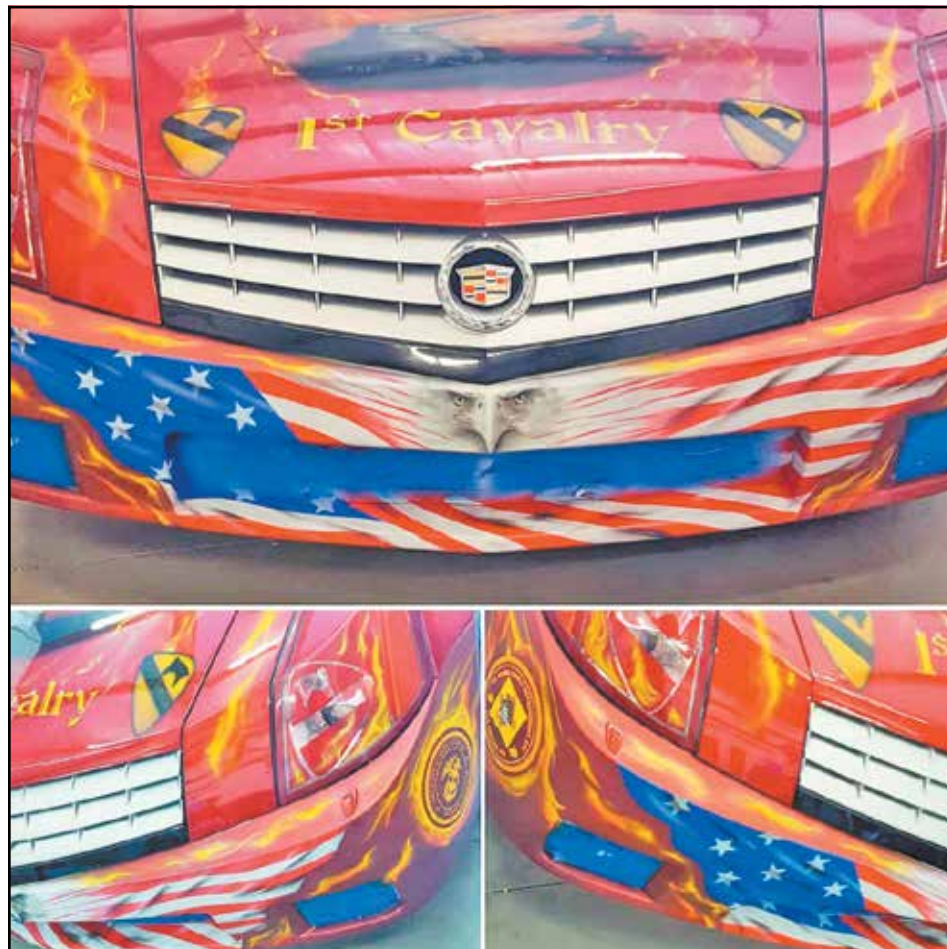

The final product was beyond Lewis' expectations, Navarro said.

"He was just very proud of everything I did."

For "every single client, from the smallest job to the most elaborate," Navarro said, "when they speak, I can almost feel what they're saying," and that's what goes into each commissioned piece.

"It's me personally as an artist," Navarro said. "It's my duty to understand what they want and provide to them what they expect or beyond what they expect. I'm pretty good at that. God gave me a gift and I have to do right by it. It's to bring a smile to people

Arts Council has two free art series in July

By KATHLEEN ALBERS

Doña Ana Arts Council

In July, the theme is “East meets West” for the Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC). Two online art-history series will be offered free of charge for those who register on the DAAC website.

While many COVID-19 restrictions are slowly lifting, DAAC organizers believe it’s important to continue free on-line opportunities for those who wish to stay at home. These “Feed Your Mind” classes are a gift from DAAC and art historians Kathleen Key and Nicholas Dahle, both instructors in UTEP’s Osher Lifelong Learning Institute (OLLI) program.

Dahle will teach an eight-week series on “Buddhist Art: The Art of Enlightenment” via Zoom from 5:30-7 p.m. Mondays, July 6-Aug. 24.

For more than 2,000 years, Buddhism has spread throughout Asia and inspired some of its greatest works of art. Buddhist art was transformed by the many cultures who adopted it, creating a fantastic array of visual iconography. Class one: India and Pakistan; class two: the Himalayas; class three: China; class four: China

The other July course is about art of the West, primarily European and American. “Twentieth Century Art” is a five-session series presented by Key via Zoom from 1:30-3 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, July 7, 9, 14, 16 and 21.

“The 20th century is 100 years of great artists and great artwork,” Key said, including the works of “Pablo Picasso, Henri Matisse, Andy Warhol, Georgia O’Keeffe, Cindy Sherman, Donald Judd,

Maya Lin, Judy Chicago and many more phenomenal artists.”

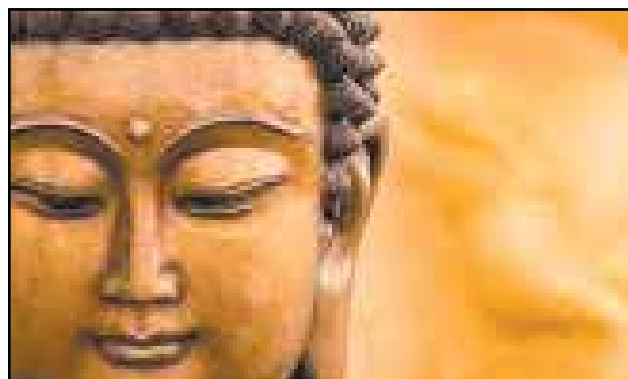

Her five-part lecture series will provide “stimulating and lively art and discussion” of 20th century art.

There is no charge to participate in either course, but registration is required at www.daarts.org/classes-workshops/.

Registered students will receive a Zoom invitation prior to the first class.

Contact DAAC at 575-523-6403. Visit www.daarts.org.

Memorable PSA is just part of Las Cruces filmmaker's directing, writing, teaching career

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

One of Las Cruces filmmaker Rajeev "Raj" Nirmalakhandan's most recent projects was writing and directing a public service announcement for the State of New Mexico encouraging people to wear face coverings to slow the spread of COVID-19. He said he loved the challenge and found a way to bring humor to a serious topic in a way that was safe for his cast and crew.

"You plan every detail possible. But then you have to be able to forget all those plans and navigate the problems and find a solution on the spot," Raj said.

Raj wound up filming the PSA at Sports Accessories, Inc., 250 N. Solano Drive, with cooperation from owner Brian Cox. Raj was one of four filmmakers across the state invited to create a PSA to encourage pandemic-safe behaviors.

See the PSAs on the Film Las Cruces website, www.filmlascruces.com. Click on "Protect New Mexico."

Raj's PSA is "That Guy," at <https://youtu.be/hbDcsDzBSfU>. Raj's PSA has already had more than 20,000 views.

"I just enjoy doing commercials," Raj said. And, he said, comedy was an important element of this one.

"Let's let our hair down a little bit. And, for the PSA, actor David Edwards 'let his pants down a little bit,' Raj said.

"Edwards is the only actor in the PSA who is not wearing a mask," Raj said. In fact, it looks like he's not wearing anything at all. And that's the point of the spot, because during the pandemic, not wearing a mask when you go into a business is "as shocking as walking into the store naked," Raj said.

"I first met and worked with Raj on some of my first film experiences," Edwards said. "He is a very accomplished and discerning filmmaker, as well as a dedicated educator. I also consider him a true friend."

Raj's best-known film to date is 2013's "The Odd Way Home," which stars Rumer Willis, Bruce Altman, Veronica Cartwright, Brendan Sexton III and Chris Marquette. Raj co-wrote the script and directed the film.

"The Odd Way Home" is "a great example of (Raj's) technical abilities as a filmmaker as well as his ability to capture strong images and emotions to tell a story," said State Sen. Jeff Steinborn of Las Cruces, who is president of the nonprofit Film Las Cruces.

Raj is now at work on a film called "Can't Run," about a wheelchair-bound woman from India who comes to America and is terrorized by the owner of the house she rents.

"I wanted to write a film that empowers a really strong female," Raj said.

The script also reflects his own physical struggles – Raj has had four spinal surgeries and finds challenges in simple things that most people never think about, he said.

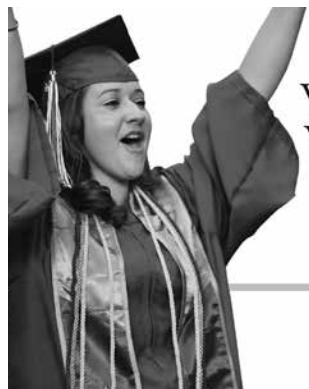

"I wanted to write a character who portrayed those same traits," he said.

Raj, who turns 44 in August, came to the United States with his family at age of 7 or 8 to escape the Sri Lankan Civil War (1983-2009). After living in New Jersey and later Nashville, the family moved to Las Cruces, where Raj's father, Nirmala Khandan, Ph.D., holds an endowed chair in NMSU's Civil Engineering Department.

With a lifelong interest in the arts – he'd tried his hand at painting and sculpting – "filmmaking was the next step," Raj decided while attending Las Cruces High School. It was there that he met Tony-winning playwright Mark Medoff, who would become Raj's mentor.

Raj and his wife have a four-month-old daughter, and he said he is looking forward to continuing his career as a film teacher and filmmaker in Las Cruces. Raj has lived on the East and West coasts and in Dallas, but finds "something special, something unique about Las Cruces. I've been to the Alps in Switzerland," Raj said. "I like the Organs better."

Thoughts on retirement, leadership and service

At this writing, I am approaching my final week as rabbi of Temple Beth-El of Las Cruces, moving into the title of Rabbi Emeritus on July 1, 2020.

June 6, 2020 marked the 39th anniversary of my ordination as a rabbi by Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati, Ohio.

I served as a student rabbi at a congregation in Illinois every other weekend for three years, as well as working at the congregation where I grew up in Kanas City as a rabbinic intern for three summers. All of that training, plus my classes at rabbinic school, offered opportunities to accumulate the knowledge and to develop the skills I would need as a congregational rabbi.

The operative words on my ordination certificate indicated that I would teach, "YOREH," and decide or judge, "YADIN."

After 39 years, I can say that I have done both in ways that I did not expect or imagine.

Most any clergy person has the responsibility to guide his or her congregants in the teachings of the particular faith group and denomination/branch which he or she represents.

That can involve modeling practices that enliven holiday and life celebrations and developing supportive acts that assist people in need in the greater community.

Spiritual leaders may feel compelled to interpret the values of their tradition regarding how to approach issues of the day. Current questions might include: How do we best apply the principles of our tradition to combat racism, to end discrimination and to promote acceptance of all individuals as children of God who were created in the divine image? And, how can we safely re-open our houses of worship?

In religious congregations, leadership includes striking a balance between the spoken word and music during worship. It requires sustained efforts to nurture a productive partnership between clergy and lay leaders. It is about being warm and welcoming to newcomers and long-time members alike.

When conflicts arise, leadership involves both "teaching" and "deciding." First, it is important to outline a range of faith perspectives on the issue at hand. In some cases, a final decision might come from the clergy person. In others, it is a board vote, after hearing the views of lay leaders and clergy together, that provides a final determination.

A few years ago, I was waiting to make a turn onto a major street in Las Cruces. Before the light changed, I noticed a bumper sticker on the car in front of me that taught an important lesson about leadership: "When the power of love overcomes the love of power, the world will know peace."

I later learned that the quote was attributed to guitarist/singer/songwriter Jimi Hendrix.

That statement teaches that leadership is not just about the power and authority that comes with holding a certain position.

It directs leaders to take responsibility for their actions and to make decisions based on love, concern and respect for the people whom they serve.

And, of course, it is possible to lead without holding an official position or title.

So may we find ways, in our daily lives, to set an example, to teach, and to choose the right course of action, always based on the timeless values of goodness, consideration, compassion and love.

Rabbi Larry Karol is Rabbi Emeritus at Temple Beth-El of Las Cruces. He will continue to write his monthly column for The Bulletin.

RABBI KAROL
Seeking Harmony

Desired or not, COVID-19 is giving us gifts

Everything I write comes on a buoyant and steady, if unspoken and unheralded, underlining of prayer.

I have no personal agenda and no political platform. I write in the hopeful belief that large numbers of people possess a shared moral compass and genuinely want to do the right thing.

Life in this time of Coronavirus has been a great gift in ways undesired. We have been exposed to the inglorious inequities of our society, the insidious racism that has always gnawed away at the soft underbelly of our culture, and the mountain of work that remains for us to become in truth a place where, in the Psalmist's words, "Righteousness and peace kiss each other" (65:10): no small accomplishment, this.

Often justice may not contribute to peace when administered harshly, and peace may be invoked as a means to overlook or excuse injustice. The delicate balance the Psalmist seeks often eludes us.

On the other hand, we have been gifted in ways most desirable. We have seen ordinary people rise to extraordinary challenges. We have seen the heroism involved as people stay the course of their jobs in the face of danger and potential personal suffering. In our solitude we may at last recognize our identification and solidarity with all others, especially human beings, including those who are vastly different from us.

This sense of identification leads to an unspoken bond and a conscious recognition that "we are all in this together," and that the lives of all of us matter to one another, although the emphasis on "Black Lives Matter" is warranted right now.

My express prayer is that when the time of Coronavirus is over, we do not forget these gifts both undesired and desired but will continue to seek a renewal of justice and peace — or their implementation for a new time.

I pray also that we may find a way to embrace a slower, more pensive life, that will allow for the deepening of relationships required in order to achieve that righteousness and peace.

City website now pinpoints stray animal calls

By JESS WILLIAMS
Las Cruces Bulletin

Lost a cat? Found a dog? Stray ferret frolicking about your garden?

The City of Las Cruces has added a new map to its website that shows areas within the city where companion animals have been reported as strays.

Clint Thacker, executive director of the Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley (ASCMV), said the idea to create the map came from city Animal-Control Supervisor Ernesto 'Gino' Jimenez. He presented the concept at an ASCMV board meeting, and Assistant City Manager David Dollahon gave it the green light to go live.

"It's a good resource to show stray issue locations. However, this is complaint driven. The only time a dot will show-up is if a person calls and has an animal for pick up," Thacker said. "There are times when a person will pick up a stray dog, drive to their house miles away and then call Animal Control for pick up."

Thacker said he believes some areas will get more calls than others based on individuals who are more prone to report strays.

"The map does not show all stray animals, just ones reported. If someone doesn't like dogs and calls on every stray they see, that area will have more [dots on the map] than others. It all depends on the callers."

A city press release indicates the map can be accessed on the city's home page (www.las-cruces.org) by utilizing the search box in the upper right corner and typing "stray map."

While the map is the latest weapon in the area's arsenal of companion-pet reunion methods, Thacker said things overall at the ASCMV are "going well."

"Our population this time of year usually hovers around the 700 number, but is currently in the 200s," he said. "The pandemic has been hard on our services. Surgeries were canceled for a while, but now started again on a very limited basis. Volunteers are back up and going on a limited basis. The new ASCMV stray adoption center is continuing to go forward. Ninety percent construction blueprints were turned in last week. They hope to have the building completed by December 2021."

He said that while the pandemic has changed operations, the ASCMV team has risen to the occasion.

"They have to deal with a lot of daily changes as we have moved through the COVID-19 pandemic," he said. "Many animal centers across the nation have closed. We have been able to stay open and keep animals moving through the center via adoptions, rescue and fostering."

To see what services the ASCMV is providing, Thacker recommends visiting the website www.ascmv.org.

Take it from me: the exchange-student experience is amazing

Editor's note: News content is rarely written in the first person, but there are exceptions, like this one.

By JESS WILLIAMS
Las Cruces Bulletin

On the hot summer day of Aug. 10, 1976, I boarded a plane headed to Manila as an exchange student through Rotary International's program. I was a scrawny 17-year-old who – in a months-long alliance with my Mom – had browbeat my Dad into letting his kid go live in a place whose shores his destroyer had patrolled in WWII.

When he finally agreed to let me go, he issued a stern rebuke to both me and Mom. "If he goes, he stays. The whole year. No matter what."

My assigned host city was Cagayan de Oro, on the northern coast of the nation's largest island, Mindanao.

Seven days later, a magnitude 7.9 earthquake struck the southern coast of the island, leaving devastation caused by both the earthquake and the ensuing tsunamis and aftershocks. Up to 7,000 people were killed in a matter of minutes.

The Visayan word for earthquake is "linog," and I learned it in the dark of night, while my bed on the second floor of my first host family's two-story home skittered and hopped across the floor.

From down the hall and through the slatted windows, the word was being screamed by people all around me. "Linog!" "Linog!"

Barely dressed, we stumbled along with our neighbors into the streets as the ground lurched below us as the aftershocks rolled in. Most of the glassware in the house was in pieces, but the structure stood.

It took three days for me to get a phone call through to my home in Las Cruces. Both Mom and I were singing a different tune, but Dad stood his ground. "I'm happy you're ok. You're staying."

And am I ever glad he stood firm. That year was nothing short of amazing, as I learned a new culture, tried a lot of new foods and made friendships that endure all these decades later.

Earthquake notwithstanding, I recommend exchange programs for adventurous students with supportive parents.

I tell you all this because last week, The Bulletin received a press release from World Heritage Student Exchange, which has three students enrolled who are eligible to come to Las Cruces for the upcoming school year. They are Carol from Taiwan and Keno and Konrad from Germany.

"Couples and families with and without children in the home are all encouraged to host," said regional placement coordinator Nancy Rodriguez. "Each World Heritage student is fully insured, brings his/her own personal spending money and expects to contribute to his/her share of household responsibilities, as well as being included in normal family activities and lifestyles."

I can vouch for all of that, because the Rotary program was similarly structured. I can also vouch for the rich experience of being a person unfamiliar with a country and its customs and foods navigating through all of it in the company of locals who are eager to open a kid's eyes to the exchange experience. My advice is to do it.

To reach Rodriguez, call 805-310-2072, send an email to nancy@world-heritage.org or visit www.whhosts.com.

EBID to utilize fed funds to conserve water

By JESS WILLIAMS
Las Cruces Bulletin

Elephant Butte Irrigation District will soon use $75,000 in federal funds to convert open canals to covered and metered piping that will enhance community safety while also conserving water.

The project will consist of nearly 1,200 linear feet of underground conveyance infrastructure enhanced by aboveground concrete check and diversion boxes, similar to many that have been in use in downtown residential areas for decades. Total project cost is estimated at $191,097.

The project – which is supported by the Lower Rio Grande Regional Water Plan – is designed to result in the reduction of seepage losses and improved delivery to farmers. The conserved water should allow the district to more reliably deliver water to existing customers, and the resulting pressurized system will allow agricultural customers to make future on-farm irrigation efficiency improvements.

The project is one of three in New Mexico announced last week. Bernalillo County will receive $28,156 and Zia Concrete check and diversion boxes like these located on West Hadley Avenue will be part of a new project to conserve water within the Elephant Butte Irrigation District.

Pueblo will receive $73,000.

In all, 52 projects in 13 western states will share

$3.3 million in WaterSMART grants for small-scale water efficiency improvements.

Selected projects for the Small-Scale Water Efficiency Project grants received up to $75,000, meaning the EBID allocation is at the maximum level authorized by the program. Each selected entity must provide at least 50 percent in matching funds.

Little kitchen makes way for a big kitchen

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Sometimes when Arnold McMillan went to Hatch to buy and roast his green chile, some 35 years back, there would be red chile pods caught up in the green ones and he would just roast those too. Then he found the flavor improved.

"I liked it so much, I started roasting red and green chile, a bag of each," he said. "I found out I like the red roasting. Not many people were roasting red, and I started blending it together to make a salsa."

McMillan also started using the red to make enchilada sauce, because he found making it from fresh red chile, never dried, created a pure chile deliciousness. The red sauce is bright red, sweeter tasting than when made with dried pods. And, he said, it won't cause heart burn.

"We took the stems and the seeds out, then boiled it and ran it through a colander and a blender and made red sauce," he said. "We put it in the freezer."

Soon, the family was creating both fresh red sauce and a red/green chile blend.

Arnold's son Randy, a real estate broker, and his wife, Carol, started making the red sauce and jarring it to send to customers every Christmas. The whole family was involved for those Christmas canning sessions, their children stirring of fresh, red enchilada sauce. When the production outgrew the home kitchen, they rented the Gospel Rescue Mission's kitchen.

"Five or six years ago, we made 800 jars and shipped those to our real estate customers all over the country," Randy said. "They liked it so much, they would call and ask for a case. So, we started a little business."

The Fresh Chile Company has gone from producing about 10,000 jars a year to close to half a million in the space of five years. Randy, in part, credits the pandemic shutdown for increased sales. They have also added quite a few choices to their catalog of products.

"Our sales have gone four times what they were in the last three months. It was an immediate reaction," he said. "The shutdown seemed to push people home, and they are eating at home. A lot more people are on their computers and have more time on their hands and started ordering chile. And when they got the chile, they liked it, and then they ordered it again.

"But everyone is going back to work now, and I don't see it going back down. So, it's probably going to be sustainable as long as we can produce enough product."

Randy credits business partner Chris Lang with the increase in sales. Lang is already well known in the community as the owner of Organ Mountain Outfitters.

"The reason we went to half a million is Chris," Randy said. "His expertise is Internet marketing. He has done the Internet marketing for many local companies."

Fresh Chile Company's website is augmented by social media presences on Instagram and a popular Facebook page, where a recipe-sharing group hosts weekly contests. The recipe group, Fresh Chile

Johnny Garcia works in the Fresh Chile Co. kitchen preparing red chiles for chile sauce. One of the secrets of the company is that it juices its chile and adds the juice back into the product rather than just using water as a thinner.

Co. Cookin!, has almost 9,000 members and gives out a box of products once a week to the best recipe submitted. The Facebook page boast 46,000 followers.

Among many other plans, Fresh Chile Co. will be putting out a recipe book soon. Many of those recipes are family favorites created by Carol. Some of them can be found on the website.

The company expanded into the old Pro's Ranch Market on Wyatt Drive and keep working on new products to sell. From the original fresh red enchilada sauce and red/green roasted chile mix, they have added a pure green chile, a traditional dried red chile sauce, red and green chile powders, a posole seasoning and many other products. Of course, all the chile products come in a variety of heats, as well.

Their newest creation, Papa's Salsa, was introduced last week. Mama's Salsa will come out soon. The difference is the first is chunky and the second is smooth.

"Dad (Arnold) came out with the original recipe for the original fresh red sauce, and from there, now he's come up with a recipe for a salsa, its Papa's Salsa," Carol said.

What's next? Barbeque sauces, one sweet and one savory.

"We worked with a local barbeque restaurant chef," Randy said. "We gave him our chile, and he has come up with an amazing barbeque sauce. The base is our fresh red chile that dad started making years ago."

Fresh Chile Co. products can be found at locations around Las Cruces, including Toucan's, Natural Grocers and a couple of wineries and specialty stores, Randy said. El Sombrero has the fresh red sauce available for special order, and Ice Box uses the sauce as marinara on pizzas.

"But really, 95 percent of our sales are on the internet," he said. "Every day we ship out 300 boxes. They go everywhere — Alaska, California, Montana, across the United States."

And it doesn't end there. The company has acquired a restaurant in Mesilla, which will become a showcase for its products, as well as the products of the McMillans' vineyard, Mesilla Vineyard Estates, where they intend to begin producing wine.

"At the restaurant, we will have wine tasting and showcase the chile," Randy said. "We want to ship out a lot of wine when we do the chile. The customers are really interested in the wine."

What makes Fresh Chile Co. products the best?

"The difference is we are the highest quality," Lang said. "Randy and I will be in Hatch, We'll make sure the chile gets to the roaster, and we'll cook and bottle it the next day. It's our standard of excellence."

"Picked today, brought here tomorrow and canned the next day," Randy added. "I don't know of anybody who makes the enchilada sauce with the fresh red chile. It's a very short window that you can do it. We'll get started in late August and be done by Oct. 1. We have to make all of our red chile for the year during that time."

Annual economic development course goes online

By GRANT TAYLOR

Community Economics Lab
Finance New Mexico project

Rather than cancel the annual New Mexico Economic Development Course in the face of COVID-19, organizers have announced the basic course will be delivered online in 2020.

Students will begin the six-week course in mid-July via Zoom. Lectures, discussions and case studies will be conducted remotely and over a longer time frame than in previous years, allowing people who couldn't attend in the past to participate remotely.

New Mexico's economic development course organizers believe teaching the course is as important as ever, particularly in light of the economic devastation caused by COVID-19.

Starting with an afternoon orientation on July 19, students will attend lectures and discussions led by nationally known economic developers every Friday for six weeks. Course curriculum covers the core components of economic development, including business retention, expansion, recruitment, workforce development, real estate, finance, marketing and ethics.

Students will also break into groups for a couple of hours each week to apply themselves to job-creation case studies that explore real communities facing real challenges. Students are exposed to a framework and methodology for planning and managing the complexity of an economic-development program, course director Noreen Scott said.

Sanctioned by the In-

Where are the jobs? Just look up!

The aerospace, commercial space and defense industries represent some amazing career opportunities, not just here but anywhere.

White Sands Missile Range and Test Facility, Jacobs Technology that runs the NASA contract, Virgin Galactic, Spaceport America, Boeing and the Physical Sciences Lab at NMSU employ thousands of our neighbors in private-sector companies, contracting firms and government employment. Collectively, their jobs are among some of the highest paying in the area, ranging on average from $56,000 to $75,000 and higher.

It takes people in the business office, human resources, maintenance, information technology, hospitality, communications and finance, as well as the engineers and scientists that you would expect, to keep these organizations at the forefront of their fields and their missions.

In total, these employers account for 1,700 jobs in our community – which is only half the total jobs of this industry, as other private contractors account for almost 2,000 more. A quick look through the 2,905 job postings on the Workforce Connections site shows numerous career opportunities even now.

So, to take the next step in maximizing the “ecosystem of opportunity” in these fields, The Bridge of Southern New Mexico and the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce recently completed a first-of-its-kind effort to better understand the employment opportunities in this high-flying industry.

Replicating the U.S. Chamber of Commerce’s Talent Pipeline Management approach, we’ve put business voices in a leadership role in talent development. With detailed, actionable intelligence, we can now guide high school and college students, graduates, those who’ve recently lost jobs and those who are un- or under-employed toward career opportunities.

We learned that we do a pretty good job of preparing our future talent with math, reading, writing, language, employability, technology and digital literacy skills – a great credit to the amazing educators and institutions in our community.

A gap analysis between what skills employers need, and what job candidates are equipped with, showed only a few areas where we have some work to do: problem solving, critical thinking, entering data accurately, understanding online securing risks and evaluating the credibility of digital sources.

We learned that credentials and degrees are a non-negotiable minimum requirement for some government jobs, but work experience will tell them more about the person’s likelihood to be successful. What’s great is that virtually all of them offer internships, apprenticeships and co-ops to students pursuing their education — intentionally preparing them to be perfect candidates for hire after graduation.

And we discovered how important it is to educate our prospective talent on the need to obtain security clearances to do much of the work in these fields.

We were able to define the top credentials and degrees for entry level candidates (mostly in engineering and technical fields), as well as the top jobs for those without degrees:

- Logistics/supply chainmaterials handler/inventory

- Administrative assistants
- Facilities
- Mechanical technicians
- Electrical technicians
- Chemical technicians
- Computer technicians
- Laborers
- Baristas

The most helpful thing we can do as a community is use our relationships with alumni, economic developers and regional marketing efforts to help them reach out to mid-career professionals who are looking to come back to New Mexico and/or looking for a great place to grow to higher levels of education and/or responsibility to advance their careers.

The return of golf poses some intriguing questions

I have a few questions to offer you, if only to stimulate your thinking.

My first question is when will Harold Varner III win his first PGA tournament? HV3 was the poster child of the first two days of the Charles Schwab Challenge tournament at Colonial CC in Fort Worth, the first live tour golf event in three months. He fired a 63 on day one to lead at seven under. After a triple bogey early, he returned with a 66 to still lead.

Then even par on “moving day,” and a disappointing two over on Sunday, to finish nine under and tied for 19th place. A lot of folks were cheering for him, partly it seems because of the feel-good story that might follow. There is no question that he has prodigious talent. He’s smart and forthcoming with difficult media questions. I believe it’s only a matter of time before he lifts a big trophy.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

My next question is how can we remain safe as golfers? We are now permitted to ride two players to a cart. So play and ride the cart with someone you know well. Right now, I wouldn’t travel to golf resort destinations because of the uncertainty. We are pretty safe here at home.

Golf leagues are beginning and charity fundraiser tournaments are starting up, with appropriate distancing. Stores and restaurants are open. Four wonderful golf courses are all in very good condition. We have it all right here.

For me, I keep hand sanitizer in my golf bag, don’t touch anything but my own equipment and don’t shake hands. I’m playing better than I did in January, thanks to my continued workouts at my home gym and now at my regular gym. Learning that Bryson DeChambeau was working out three times per day during the tour’s hiatus, drinking protein shakes and is driving it over 335 yards, I’m thinking about upping my workout schedule. Maybe I can move my driver length up to 250!

The whole golf world is now wondering how would a professional golf tournament work without spectators walking the grounds and cheering for the players? We did get some indication of that with the Charles Schwab Challenge at Colonial. The telecast by CBS and The Golf Channel, with feeds and announcers at multiple locations, was virtually flawless, but it was certainly weird without fans.

The next PGA Tour event with fans on the property will be the Memorial at Muirfield Village in Dublin, Ohio on July 16-19, hosted by Jack Nicklaus. Still, the PGA Championship at San Francisco’s Harding Park in August will be a fan-free zone. There remains a question whether the Ryder Cup, scheduled for Sept. 22-27 at Whistling Straits in Kohler, Wisconsin, will be played with or without fans.

Several players have already voiced their opinions. Brooks Koepka says, “I just don’t want to play it without fans.” Rory McIlroy asserts, “I think there’s enough people within the game that don’t want the Ryder Cup to happen without fans.” And U.S. Captain Steve Stricker believes the Cup without fans would be a real “yawner.” There was early talk about moving the Cup to 2021, but ticket sales are brisk.

For my final question, why not bifurcation. That’s a complicated question, since it has to do with the rules of golf, and even more so, the equipment. Back in early February, the USGA and R&A put out a statement called the “Distance Insights Project” report.

That document asserted that the driving distance of male professional tour golfers was now becoming so outrageously long that it will soon render classic golf courses obsolete, among other problems. Then, quickly the stuff hit the fan, and there wasn’t talk of distance.

The talk was mostly about when we would get back to playing and seeing live golf. [I don’t watch Big Break re-runs.] But distance is also a problem for seniors because we need more! What about us? Anyway, we could use longer clubs, longer balls, shorter fairways and personal trainers.

Scott said the course is ideal for current or aspiring economic development practitioners, local- and tribal-government officials, financial institutions, chambers of commerce, public utility professionals, workforce developers and a variety of professionals interested in promoting the economic prosperity of their communities.

“With not only struggling community economies, organizations and local governments are facing budget shortfalls, so we’re sensitive to needed belt-tightening,” she said. “This year’s online basic course allows many professionals to attend without incurring additional costs of travel and lodging.”

sumer and the Executive Officers Councils of affiliated state associations.

Black’s two-year term will begin immediately after being sworn in at the 2021 International Builders Show in Orlando, Florida.

“I am not only excited about expanding my industry knowledge and being surrounded by other great HBA executive officers, but this will help get New Mexico, especially Las Cruces, on the map on a national level,” Black said. “I am excited to help, to hear from and to work closely with my fellow executive officers and associations. I intend to represent all HBA executive officers, our state, our association, our members and the building industry by giving my absolute best to my new role and responsibilities.”

Black has served as executive officer of the LCHBA for nearly five years. She will be one of 12 members on the council that consists of three senior officers, five regional directors and four directors-at-large.
