César Chávez Elementary School bilingual teacher Susana Rios, Ph.D., took photos of Baylor Pass east of Las Cruces recently, one of which captured this triple bloom of a native Ocotillo cactus. "It was a splendid encounter with local nature," Rios said. "Las Cruces is truly a beautiful place to live!"

And they're off! Campaign signs popping up

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

As of Aug. 7, there are 88 days until the Tuesday, Nov. 3, General Election. Yard signs and billboards are allowed 90 days before an election, and they have already begun to appear.

There are 28 federal, statewide and local races on Doña Ana County ballots, including 59 candidates: 28 Democrats, 25 Republicans, four Libertarians, one Constitution Party candidate and one declined-to-state (DTS) candidate. There are eight incumbent local district judges and one state Supreme Court justice up for voter retention.

There also will be five ballot initiatives for voters to consider: two constitutional amendments and three statewide bond issues that would allocate $200 million for senior centers, libraries, colleges and universities across the state.

Because state legislators and county commissioners are elected by districts, not everyone will see the same names on their ballots. Voters will choose from the same group of candidates for president, U.S. Senate and U.S. House New Mexico district two, county clerk and treasurer and Third Judicial District attorney, and will vote up or down for statewide and local judicial retentions.

But depending on where they live, voters will see different candidates in the six state Senate and eight state House of Representatives races that include Doña Ana County. Three of five county commission seats are also on this year's ballot. The other two commission seats — along with the county sheriff, assessor and probate judge — will be up in 2022.

Democrats are unopposed in one statewide and two local races: Court of Appeals position three, district attorney and county commission district two. Gerald Byers, who also had no primary opponent, will succeed Mark D'Antonio, who is retiring after two four-year terms, as district attorney.

Anthony Mayor Diane Murillo-Trujillo defeated incumbent Ramon Gonzalez in the June county commission district two Primary and will become a member of the commission next January.

The four Libertarian candidates are running for president, U.S. Senate, U.S. House, Court of Appeals position two (a write-in candidate whose status is being evaluated by the New Mexico Secretary of State's office) and county commission district four.

The lone Constitution Party candidate is running for president and the only DTS candidate is running for U.S. House district two.

There are 22 incumbents running: 21 Democrats hoping to hold U.S. House district two, two state Supreme Court and three Court of Appeals seats, four state Senate and eight state House seats, one county commission seat, county clerk and county treasurer; and two Republicans, President Donald Trump and state Sen. Ron Griggs of Alamogordo, whose district includes two of Doña Ana County's 170 precincts.

Two long-time state Senate Democrats — John Arthur Smith (32 years) of Deming and Mary Kay Papen (20 years) of Las Cruces, lost in the Primary, along with County Commissioner Gonzalez. Another county commissioner, Isabella Solis, was elected to the commission as a Democrat in 2016, switched to Republican in 2019 and chose to run for state representative this year instead of running for re-election to the commission.

Plan A Future Trip to Silver City

Just about 100 minutes west of Las Cruces lies a wonderful getaway with way more than 100 things to see and do. Plan your trip today! Silver City, Grant County and surroundings offer wide varieties of fun, adventure and relaxation. Here's just one example:

Hiking, in and out of town

With names like "Adonis Pits," "Luck Separation Mill" and the "King Bolt Pit," sites on Silver City's rugged Boston Hill immediately recall the town's historic era of hard-rock mining for copper, silver and other precious metals. Today, however, these destinations have been transformed into a hiking destination, the Boston Hill Open Space Trail System. This interesting, in-town hiking venue is a great complement to the more extensive hikes of the Gila Wilderness and other nearby environs.

Lake Roberts

A quiet gem in the Gila Wilderness, just 30 miles north of Silver City, Lake Roberts is a fishing, hiking, kayaking and camping getaway for those looking for a cool and relaxing place to get away from city life.

When in Silver, visit these great businesses!

Thomas Branigan Memorial Library launches seed library

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Seeds are popping up at the Thomas Branigan Memorial Library at the new Tierra Sagrada Seed Library (named after the mural in the library's amphitheater). This seed library has been created to encourage Las Cruces to learn more about local food systems and regional community seed-saving projects.

Library public programs manager Brita Sauer said she has been involved in seed libraries both in Albuquerque and Santa Fe, and they have been popular.

"It provides materials to the community," she said. "It provides a way to keep seeds in the community and develop traits for our environment."

The Tierra Sagrada Seed Library is available during curbside hours (between 9 a.m. and noon, Monday through Friday) throughout August and September, while supplies last, Sauer said.

Each library patron can check out five packets of seed per season on library cards. There is no return date this year, but patrons are encouraged to learn how to save seeds and eventually make a seed donation back to the seed library. Visit the library's webpage (www.las-cruces.org/1617/Library) and click on "Seed Library" for more information and a listing of available fall seeds.

"Right now, we have fall varieties and winter," Sauer said. "People can take those and start growing this fall. Our fall planting seeds include beets, carrots, lettuce and chard. A lot of the greens are good once the weather cools down. We also have some herbs."

Community members who are interested in donating seed are asked to fill out a donation form to provide information on seed provenance and cultural history, she said.

"It's important that we see what grows well here," Sauer said. "So the rest of the community can enjoy those. Food insecurity is becoming prevalent, and this is a small way for food security to grow in the community."

The hope is for the seed library to keep seeds in the hands of community members and make them a resource, she said.

"We view them the same as books — for sharing, using and learning from," she said. "We are hoping we will have a physical location inside the library in the spring. We hope to offer programming — workshops related to seeds and gardening, how to get going, and I have materials for some sort of little demonstration garden."

For more information or to register for the program, contact the library reference department at 575-528-4005 or visit www.library.reference@las-cruces.org.

Branigan Library is located on Roadrunner Transit Route 1, Stop 2, City Hall/Library. Thomas Branigan Memorial Library, 200 E. Picacho Ave., hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday thru Friday (curbside and computer lab hours may vary). Hours may vary during COVID-19.

LCU Laser Leak Detection Keeps Gas Safe

By Cassie McClure and Suzanne Michaels

While the nation deals with a looming invisible danger, another invisible service is managed by Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) every day. Colorless and only recognizable by an added sulfur smell, natural gas is an everyday useful part of residents' lives for heating and cooking. However, when leaks occur, natural gas can be dangerous.

LCU Gas Leak Surveyor Adam Valles aims his RMLD at a gas meter. The detector can work from the street and gives Valles an exact percentage of the leak if he finds one.

Adam Valles, LCU gas leak surveyor, has a tool that allows him - crucially important nowadays - to keep his distance. The Remote Methane Leak Detector (RMLD) works from 30 to 100 feet away and lets Valles detect gas leaks from meters from the street or even from outside a fence; in case a gate is locked or guard dogs are present.

“The RMLD sends out an infrared beam to the meter and if it hits a gas plume, it slows the electrical pulse that comes back to my detector,” he said. “That allows me to know not only that there is a leak, but how large the leak might be.”

Previously, each surveyor would need to get right next to the meter and spray soapy water onto the meter. Bubbles meant that there was a leak, but it's a process that would also take much longer. “Now I can walk through a neighborhood in about 20 minutes,”

Valles said. “It used to take me about half a day.”

Valles said the machine does confuse residents as he walks the streets, scanning yards for any leaking pipes; the RMLD looks a bit like a speed detector and he wears special dark glasses to help read the RMLD. “But it's a critical tool for my job in keeping our gas service safe for residents,” he said.

LCU can be reached at 575-528-3500 from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. LCU provides services to approximately 100,000 Las Cruces residents and businesses.

Henson: a nice guy who finished first

A few years ago, a friend of mine who isn't a basketball fan asked me "Why is Lou Henson such a big deal? I mean, he and his wife are super nice and great in the community, but I don't know the history. Help me out."

Having been a college basketball fan since I was 8, and having known about Henson's exploits for years (I even went to college with his daughter, Lisa, at Oklahoma State), I tried to figure out the best approach.

When I remembered my friend was a Dallas Cowboys fan, my path became clear.

"OK," I said. "Do you know who Tom Landry is?"

"Duh, of course I know who Tom Landry is," my friend replied.

"Well, think of Lou Henson as the Tom Landry of New Mexico State basketball," I said. "And think of the Final Four as the Super Bowl of college hoops."

"OK," my friend said. "That makes sense."

RICHARD COLTHARP

From the Publisher

As Landry did with the Cowboys, Henson put NMSU Aggie basketball on the national map. Like Landry, Henson reinvented himself and his teams according to the talent and skills of the players. Like Landry, Henson never had more than a couple of bad years in a row. Like Landry, Henson had the respect of his players.

Unlike the famously stoic Landry, however, Henson had a smile and a kind word for everyone, whether it was the opposing team, the media or the people selling popcorn at the concession stand.

After we learned of Coach Henson's passing last week, we ran a front-page photo, published several things about him on our website, and devoted two pages to him in this week's edition, I hadn't planned on writing my column this week about Lou.

But I've read so much, remembered so much, and talked with so many people the past several days, I am appreciating anew all the things he did, and realizing how rare he was, a personality and heart we could sure use more of these days.

"Nice guys finish last," was the bitter — and inaccurate — mantra of longtime Major League Baseball manager Leo Durocher.

Lou Henson finished first many times during his long career, but before anyone mentions his 779 career victories, they consistently mention what a nice, kind and upbeat person he was.

The world today, including the sports world, is vastly different from the era of Henson and Landry.

At the end of his fourth season, in 1963, Landry's record as the only coach the expansion Cowboys had ever had, was 13-38. If any NFL coach these days went 13-38 over four years, well, they probably wouldn't have made it to a fifth year. The Cowboys' owner, however, signed Landry to a 10-year contract extension. Ten years. That was unheard of then, and even more so now. Landry rewarded the confidence with 20 straight winning seasons, 13 division titles, 5 conference titles, and two Super Bowl victories.

Like Landry and the Cowboys' brain trust, Henson had an eye for talent, and not just for basketball.

When the Pan American Center opened in 1968, Henson recommended a young Barbara Hubbard to run the facility. It was a big job, the type not given to women in those days. If you've ever attended a concert at the Pan Am, however, you basically have "Mother Hubbard" to thank.

I played in a celebrity golf tournament in Oklahoma City a while back. Now, I've been to a few celebrity team ropings, a couple celebrity stock dog trials, a million brandings and one celebrity rock pickin' — but this was my first celebrity golf tournament. Generous people paid a lot of money to play golf with well-known folks. The money was donated to help the blind.

BAXTER BLACK
On the Edge of Common Sense

I got in the golf cart with a feller named Phil. He asked me what my handicap was. I couldn't think of anything real bad except an addiction to Miracle Whip, but I was told at one time that my nose would qualify me for handicapped parking. He asked me how well I played. I said not too well. I'm sure he thought I was bein' modest, because after the first hole he turned to me and said, "You really don't play golf too well, do ya?"

You play 18 holes to a game. I don't know why they invented that number. You would have thought they'd play 10 or a dozen or an even 20, but for some reason, they chose 18. Probably the first golfer just played 'til his arms were sore and decided that was enough.

When you get down to the nitty-gritty, there are two weapons you use in the game: the driver and the putter. First you line yourself up between two swimming-pool floats and "tee off." This is done with the driver, which is a fly rod with the handle sawed off. Only my gun-bearer and guide knew which way to aim. He'd stand up beside me and point off to the horizon. Then tell me to hit the ball off in that general direction. It was always necessary to clear the spectators back 180 degrees from my line of fire. It was im-

Aggies, Lobos won't be cracking pads this year

When Mario Moccia was named athletics director at New Mexico State University in 2014, he inherited a men's basketball program that, thanks in part to the legacy of Lou Henson, was a consistent conference champion and qualifier for the NCAA tournament.

That was the good news.

He also inherited a debt of several million dollars owed to the main campus; a football program that hadn't been to a bowl game since 1960, and, even worse, was without a conference; and facilities that were not up to the same standards as their opponents'.

WALT RUBEL

The View
From Here

The Aggies still need to find a conference, but the football team finally won a bowl game by beating Utah State in the 2017 Arizona Bowl.

The basketball team has qualified for the NCAA tournament seven times in the last eight years.

And, through increased sponsorships and fundraising — along with some tough decisions, like ending the equestrian program — Moccia was able to chip away at the debt. Each year, the athletic department made payments to the main campus, while still working to upgrade facilities and salaries to keep the teams competitive.

Then, in this year's legislative session, the burden was lifted entirely when a provision added to the state budget by Sen. John Arthur Smith covered the debts owed by the athletic departments at both NMSU and the University of New Mexico. The millstone that had been hanging from Moccia's neck from the day he was hired was finally gone.

Lawmakers went into that session believing they had an $800 million surplus. That was before COVID-19.

Now the millstone is back, much bigger than before. First, the NCAA basketball tournament was cancelled. Then, all of the money games, where the football team earns millions by taking a beating from much larger and better teams, were also cancelled. UCLA was going to pay NMSU $1.2 million, and Florida $1.5 million.

Which may explain why NMSU and UNM officials recently floated the idea of switching their game to Aug. 29, the first week of the schedule, despite a request by Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham to cancel all intercollegiate sports.

They are keeping all their options open, Moccia said, harkening back to a day when there were options. All one needs to do is look at the sputtering start of Major League Baseball to see that there are no options for collegiate football.

Within days after resuming play, the Miami Marlins had to shut down when 18 players tested positive. Days later, the St. Louis Cardinals had to shut down when at

Apolitical pandemic

It's disappointing to read that the GOP candidate for House District 37 Isabella Solis has chosen to politicize the pandemic response. For her and other local Republicans to suggest that Democrats are purposely targeting restaurant owners, managers and workers is outrageous. The pandemic is not a political football; it's a life-and-death situation. We all need to be pulling together to save lives.

Our governor is in a very difficult decision-making situation. As Tom Hutchinson, the owner of La Posta very eloquently stated, "I recognize the tough spot the governor's in. She's trying to balance the health and welfare of the citizens of this state while being aware of the economic impact of not opening." Of course, he and all the restaurant owners are disappointed with the second closure. But, Gov. Lujan Grisham must and did weigh the health considerations of restaurants serving indoors as case numbers go up. She made the hard, but correct, decision.

Medical experts across the country are recommending groups not gather indoors. Research has revealed that droplets from asymptomatic individuals remain in the air for hours and can be recirculated by AC and fans. One can't eat and drink with masks on. Allowing outdoor eating at restaurants, take-out and delivery is the safest option at this time. Lujan Grisham shows again that she has the maturity and strength to make the tough decisions.

On the other hand, Isabella Solis has demonstrated that she is not ready to go to Santa Fe to represent our best interests. She is not doing her homework before taking a position. Send Joanne Ferrary back to Santa Fe in November. Like your governor, she has shown she does her homework and has your health and best interests as her guide in policy making.

In 1962, when interviewing for his first college head coaching job, in Abilene, Texas, Henson gave Hardin-Simmons University an ultimatum: I won't take the job unless you agree to integrate the school and allow me to recruit African-American players.

When he arrived at New Mexico State in 1966, he continued recruiting black players, as well as Hispanics. When Henson hired his former Aggie player Rob Evans as an assistant coach in 1969, he was one of only a handful of black assistants in the country at the time.

In everything he did, it seemed, this coach from small-town Oklahoma was ahead of his time.

Henson's first superstar was an inner-city player from Syracuse, New York: Jimmy Collins. Together, Henson, Collins and some other great players made it all the way to the 1970 Final Four.

But what does Collins remember more than the basketball success? How Lou Henson helped him become a man.

"He was there when I needed him," Collins said. "We all have guardian angels, whether we recognize them or not. I was lucky enough to recognize my guardian angel, and it was Coach Henson."

possible to predict which direction my ball would go. By the third hole, we'd traded our golf cart in for an all-terrain vehicle and the rest of our foursome was driving an armored personnel carrier.

Once you make the green, it is recommended that one use a putter. The only comparison I can make to putting is that it's like shooting the eight ball on a table the Navy has been landing planes on for three days. I think I could have dropped the ball from a hovering helicopter and had a better chance of hitting the hole. Finally, they let me putt with a snow shovel. They said it improved my game.

A nice feller lent me his golf bag and a pocket full of balls. I lost six of them. I was ashamed to tell him. I'm sure he thinks I stole 'em. I lost so many balls that we eventually rented a backhoe for the sand traps and hired two scuba divers to join our caravan.

They haven't asked me back. But maybe I'll get invited to a celebrity bowling tournament. At least I won't lose as many balls.

least six players tested positive.

Those are professional teams with resources to hire the best health professionals and conduct routine testing; and playing a sport where, other than the catcher, athletes are seldom in close proximity to each other.

The only sports that have been successful have been those where they have been able to isolate the players, coaches and everyone else involved in one location. There's just no way to do that with football.

I don't know what the loss of this season will mean for the future of NMSU football. Continuing at the top level without a conference affiliation was going to be difficult even without the virus. Beyond the rivalry games of UNM and UTEP, there wasn't much to get excited about. And surviving on money games is a hard way to go.

I don't know how the legislature will resolve what is now expected to be a $2 billion deficit, and what impact that will have on NMSU.

But what I do know is they won't be playing football this year.

Girl Scouts continue learning, growing online

By PATTY CRAVEN, CEO
Girl Scouts of the Desert Southwest

We are excited about our programs and events being held and all the new opportunities coming from our virtual world. COVID-19 has brought many hardships for members of our communities, created solitude for others and fear.

I am happy to report Girl Scouts of the Desert Southwest has stepped up and created more opportunities for our Girl Scouts to receive programming wherever they live. Programming supplies are available through virtual means and drop-off or pickup of supplies needed to participate completely in ongoing programs.

In the past, our 94,000 square-mile footprint was very large, and it was difficult to have everyone participate in all the different programs. In this virtual world, we are offering all the girls in our council footprint virtual programming.

Each week, we have virtual troop meetings where girls enjoy a traditional meeting. They start with the Girl Scout Promise and Law, work on either a Journey or earn a fun patch, then hear about upcoming events and close with a friendship circle. Programs offered range from learning about flower gardens to educational programming, and civic engagement to agriculture.

We also have challenges for each girl to meet, like the Father's Day Challenge, where girls learned more about the important male figures in their lives, and a Memorial Day Challenge, where girls discovered what Memorial Day means and how to connect to their community, take action and honor the men and women who died while serving in the U.S.

military. We have many other challenges coming up that will allow girls the opportunity to learn more topics, all while having fun.

We had to postpone our in-person resident camp this year, but we found Camp Mitre Peak: At Home Edition, to be an opportunity for girls around the country to “visit” our camp, located near Fort Davis, Texas, and enjoy all types of activities.

Girls learned how to cook outdoors, sew, went on virtual hikes, built a fort and participated in many more fun, hands-on activities. The best part of virtual camp was allowing girls to attend camp who normally did not have that opportunity, including from all over the country and even from Thailand.

We just had our first Virtual Lego Derby. Girls received a chassis and additional Legos to build their cars for the race. They built them at home, dropped them off at our office and we had an action-packed race shown live on Facebook. The girls cheered on their cars online while we raced with no fans in the stands and followed all safety protocols.

Opening ceremonies at the Girl Scouts of the Desert Southwest first ever Virtual Lego Derby

Upcoming events include our National S’mores Day celebration; Girl Scouts Love State Parks, taking girls on virtual tours of several state parks; cyber security; a virtual 5k walk/run; Cookie College; and more. Learn more about upcoming events at www.gsdsw.org.

We offer free membership to new members, thanks to the support of many funders who see the value in girls receiving girl-only programming where their voices are heard, programs are made to help girls grow and they are part of an inclusive organization which believes in diversity, equity and inclusion. If you know a girl in grades K-12, let her know about this opportunity. To join, visit www.gsdsw.org and click on “Become a Girl Scout.”

July 31 was Andrew J. Wright's 67th birthday. It's also the day he retired after 16 years as Mesilla postmaster. Wright and his wife came to Las Cruces after he retired from the U.S. Navy in 1993. He worked at the Las Cruces post office before moving to Mesilla. What will Wright miss the most? "The people, my customers," he said. During his tenure with the post office, Wright said he has dealt with "maybe 20" really rude, disagreeable customers. "The rest were just amazing. That ain't bad," he said. His customers have become like family, Wright said, and he regrets that, because of the current pandemic, he wasn't able to engage in goodbye hugs and handshakes. "I was very fortunate to get this position," Wright said, "because when I arrived the people greeted me with open arms. The well-wishes I've received go to reinforce that. I will miss that the most." Wright said he and his wife have no plans to leave the area.

Dwight Weir and friends watch as friends, Elks and fellow veterans — more than 20 car, truck and firetruck loads of people — drive past his home near Elks Drive Wednesday, July 29, providing a birthday surprise drive-by celebration. At age 83, Weir, a Navy veteran, has been battling health issues. He served as one of the Veteran's Day Parade grand marshals in 2019. In 1944, Weir was assigned as a gunner's mate on the U.S.S. Columbia, a 610-foot, 13,100-ton light cruiser nicknamed "The Gem of the Ocean." He survived three kamikaze attacks in four days and participated in several battles.

Exercise For Seniors

A recent consultation with a long-time client of ours leads me to this topic for today, and will lead me to related issues for the next several weeks. The other day "John" asked to speak with me about his exercise routine. He wants to make sure that he's using exercise properly to 'maintain balance,' speaking generally about his overall health. He described his current exercise routine to me, which was fairly decent considering he's in the 90+ age group.

While the conversation with John was refreshing, in that he was actively seeking advice for his benefit, I realized that there are many people who, unlike him, don't have an understanding that physical activity is an important part of healthy aging. One of the biggest challenges that we encounter in the physical therapy world is convincing people that exercise is medicine, and that consistency with an appropriate exercise routine goes a long way in improving and maintaining our health. Even if we can convince them, they often don't have a great understanding of (1) the specific benefits of exercise, (2) how to get started, (3) how setting goals will help with success, (4) what they might need to do if they have chronic conditions, and (5) what will help to keep them motivated. For the next several weeks, I'll be addressing each of those points, starting today with the benefits of exercise. Much of this material comes from the National Institute on Aging at www.nia.nih.gov.

Physical Therapy

Exercise and physical activity are good for just about everyone, including older adults. No matter your health and physical abilities, you can gain a lot by staying active. In fact, studies show that "taking it easy" is risky. Often, inactivity is more to blame than age when older people lose the ability to do things on their own. Lack of physical activity also can lead to more visits to the doctor, more hospitalizations, and more use of medicines for a variety of illnesses.

Exercise can benefit a wide range of areas of your life. Staying active can help you:

- Keep and improve your strength so you can stay independent
- Have more energy to do the things you want to do and reduce fatigue
- Improve your balance and lower risk of falls and injuries from falls
- Manage and prevent some diseases like arthritis, heart disease, stroke, type 2 diabetes, osteoporosis, and 8 types of cancer
- Reach or maintain a healthy weight and reduce risk of excessive weight gain
- Control your blood pressure

Physical activity also has emotional and cognitive benefits:

- Reduced feelings of depression, stress, and anxiety, while improving your mood and overall emotional well-being
- Increase your energy level
- Improve sleep

Physical activity can empower you to feel more in control, and be more in control with better strength, balance, coordination, and activity tolerance. As we age, we must actively work to maintain our physical and mental condition, and exercise is a critical component of that effort.

Next week, I'll focus on how you can get started with your exercise program.

Congressman, meteorologist, scientist vie for historic New Mexico U.S. Senate seat

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

This year's New Mexico U.S. Senate race pits a Democrat with extensive government service against a Republican who is running for office for the first time. There's also a Libertarian in the race.

Democrat Ben Ray Lujan, 48, has represented the state's Third Congressional District in the U.S. House of Representatives for the past 11-plus years and is assistant speaker of the House. He served four years on the state Public Regulation Commission before being elected to Congress and is the son of Ben Lujan, longtime speaker of the New Mexico House of Representatives. Lujan was born in Santa Fe and lives in Nambe.

Republican Mark Ronchetti, 46, is a meteorologist and former television weatherman in Albuquerque. He defeated two other candidates, including Gavin Clark-son of Las Cruces, in the Republican Primary in June. Ronchetti was born in Shelburne, Vermont, and moved to New Mexico in 1998.

Libertarian Bob Walsh, 83, of Santa Fe, is a retired physicist and co-founder of Rocky Mountain EMS. He unsuccessfully ran for state representative, District 48, in 2010 as a Libertarian.

The three are vying for New Mexico's Fall Senate seat, so named because former secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior Albert B. Fall was the first person to hold it when the state's two U.S. Senate seats were created in March 1912, two months after New Mexico achieved statehood. Fall and the state's other first-ever U.S. senator, Thomas B. Catron, were appointed by the New Mexico Legislature. Most U.S. senators were chosen by state legislatures until after ratification of the 17th amendment to the U.S. Constitution in April 1913 that mandated their popular election.

Whoever wins the Fall seat will be the eighth man to hold it; no woman has ever held a U.S. Senate seat in New Mexico. Previous holders of the seat are Republicans Fall, Holm O. Bursum and Pete Domenici, who was in the Senate for 36 years before retiring in 2009; and Democrats Sam G. Bratton, Carl Hatch, Clinton P. Anderson (who had previously served as secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture during the Truman Administration) and incumbent Tom Udall, who is retiring after two six-year terms and is the only Democrat in the country whose Senate seat is up in 2020 who is not running for re-election.

Only once in the 108-year history of the seat has an incumbent lost, in 1924, when Bratton defeated Bursum. Bursum was the only Republican incumbent to lose a Senate seat that year. Bratton resigned the seat in 1933 to become a federal judge. His son, Howard Bratton, was also a federal judge in New Mexico, including service on the bench in Las Cruces.

Although Fall's Tres Ritos Ranch was in the Tularosa Basin in southern New Mexico, no one from Las Cruces has ever held the Fall seat. The only person from Las Cruces to hold a U.S. Senate seat in New Mexico was former state Rep. and Gov. Ed Mechem. He resigned as governor in 1962, a month before his term ended, and was appointed by new Gov. Tom Bolack to the Catron seat (currently held by Democrat Martin Heinrich), vacated by the Nov. 18, 1962 death of Democrat Dennis Chavez. Mechem ran for a full term in the Senate in 1964 but lost to Joseph Montoya.

County awards Triage Center contract

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

“This really is a day to celebrate,” Doña Ana County Health and Human Services Director Jamie Michael said Tuesday morning, Aug. 4., after the county commission voted to approve a contract to license and operate the county’s Crisis Triage Center (CTC).

“Without a doubt, we are moving in the right direction,” Michael said. “People in our community are going to get the services that they deserve. Now we have some heavy lifting to do, but we are definitely up to the challenge.”

The contract is with

Recovery Innovations International (RI), a Phoenix-based nonprofit that offers behavioral health services in crisis, health, recovery and consulting, according to www.riinternational.com/.

The commission approved the contract by a vote of 4-1, with Commission Chair Lynn Ellins, Vice Chair Manuel Sanchez and members Isabella Solis and Ramon Gonzalez voting yes and Commissioner Shannon Reynolds voting no.

The contract is for eight years and is renewable by the commission annually, Michael said. It provides payment to RI of $263,000 from the beginning of the contract through June 30, 2021. Much of that time will be spent getting state licensing for the facility and its staff, as well as establishing a Medicaid reimbursement rate, Michael said.

CTC will operate on a “no wrong-door path,” Michael said, which means individuals can show up at the facility to receive services, and no one will be turned away.

She said the contract with RI mandates that at least 50 percent of CTC hires be local.

“We’re looking for people who are bilingual, who are familiar with the community,” Michael said.

She said the contract also provides for a CTC community-based advisory group.

RI operates 12 other facilities similar to the triage center, Michael said.

RI contracted with the county in February to produce a business plan to operate the CTC, which was “designed to provide a 23-hour safe and secure environment for individuals with serious mental health illness introduced into the system through protective custody by law enforcement officials,” according to the business plan, which was submitted to the county June 1.

The plan provides guidance to the county on the operation of the triage center “as an integrated component of a behavioral health system that reduces the inefficient use of law enforcement, emergency room and detention facilities for individuals with severe mental health disorders.”

Michael said the county has worked with several management companies since the triage center was built in 2013 but none of the contracts proved viable.

See RI’s CTC business plan at www.donaanacounty.org/health/crisis.

Farmers Market hanging in there

Except for food vendors, the Farmers and Crafts Market of Las Cruces (FCMLC) was closed March 14-June 6 because of state public health orders in response to COVID-19, FCMLC Market Manager Tiffany Thompson told the Las Cruces City Council during its July 27 work session. Some craft vendors returned June 13, and the market is now occupying five blocks of Main Street downtown and is open 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m. each Saturday. It’s operating at 25 percent capacity, Thompson said, with about 10 feet between vendors. Masks are required. Handwashing stations are available at the northeast corner of the downtown plaza. “We are definitely struggling with the COVID situation,” Thompson told the council. She said the market is losing about $4,500 a month. Pre-COVID, the market had about 135 permanent vendors, 100 temporary vendors, 41 musicians (including one-half of those under age 18), three to six child vendors, animal services and several rotating nonprofits. FCMLC, a nonprofit, celebrates 50 years in 2021. Contact FCMLC at 575-201-3853 and fcmlcinc@gmail.com. Visit www.farmersandcraftsmarketoflascruces.com.

“Movie: The Peanut Butter Falcon”

This feel-good dramedy from co-writers and directors Tyler Nilson and Michael Schwartz grew from a quiet limited release into a genuine sleeper hit, eventually becoming the highest grossing indie film of 2019. Zack Gottsagen stars as a young man with Down syndrome who escapes from an assisted living facility to pursue his dream of becoming a professional wrestler. He quickly forms a tight bond with Tyler (Shia LaBeouf), a wayward fisherman on the run.

“Movie: Ordinary Love”

Lisa Barros D'Sa and Glenn Leyburn (“Good Vibrations,” “Cherrybomb”) directed this 2019 drama that puts the focus on a long-married couple's (Liam Neeson, Lesley Manville) relationship after the wife is diagnosed with breast cancer. David Wilmot (“Intermission”) and Amit Shah (“Last Christmas”) are also in the cast.

“Movie: Slay the Dragon”

From filmmakers Chris Durrance (“Gerald R. Ford: A Test of Character”) and Barak Goodman (“Woodstock,” “Oklahoma City”) comes this 2019 documentary that takes an in-depth look at gerrymandering, how it affects elections and what some are doing to change the system.

“Movie: Lucky Day”

Roger Avary, who won an Academy Award for co-writing “Pulp Fiction” with Quentin Tarantino, both wrote and directed this 2019 crime drama that got only a limited theatrical release. Luke Bracey stars as Red, a recently paroled safecracker who wants nothing more than just to return home for an honest life with his wife (Nina Dobrev) and family. Unfortunately, a psychopathic hit man (Crispin Glover) who blames Red for his brother's death has other ideas.

Lin-Manuel Miranda

8 p.m. on KRWG Great Performances

As “Hamilton” smashes viewership records on the Disney Plus streaming service, this 2009 episode called “In the Heights: Chasing Broadway Dreams” features composer and lyricist Lin-Manuel Miranda — who started work on this musical while in college, well before “Hamilton” came along — as one of the artists (with director Thomas Kail) who conceive an ultimately Tony Award-winning show infused with Latin and hip-hop elements.

8 p.m. on KVIA2 Being Reuben

This engaging new docuseries revolves around 14-year-old Welsh social-media celebrity Reuben de Maid as he tries to juggle that fame with the daily reality of sharing life with fractious siblings Coco and Sonny, who love taking their brother down a peg or two. It adds up to a handful for their mother, Vicky, to cope with as well.

License to Kill

Plastic surgeon Terry Dubrow ("Botched") returns as host of this true-crime series, which opens a 12-episode sophomore season with more stories of crimes committed by medical professionals. This season, Dubrow uses his medical expertise to take viewers into the mind of each killer, while investigating why these villains committed their crimes and how authorities stopped them. Cases include a surgeon who performed invasive surgeries in highly unsanitary conditions, and a doctor who over-prescribed scribed opioids to unsuspecting college students.

Earthflight

The new episode "Africa" takes viewers arrow-diving with Cape gannets as they bob and weave above sharks, dolphins and whales that are joining the great sardine run. Soaring African fish eagles discover an S-shaped living island composed entirely of flamingos, while kelp gulls get an aerial view of the Great White shark's hunting behavior. Eagles fly through the mist-filled Victoria Falls, then dive for fish in the Zambezi River. David Tennant is the narrator.

Flying back to her rustic small-town island community, Lily takes over running her aunt's bed-and-breakfast while she recuperates. She also starts to grow close to Marcus (Marcus Rosner), a handsome seaplane pilot who transports rescue dogs. Jeff Gonek co-stars in this 2020 romance.

Jodi Arias: Cellmate Secrets

This new one-hour documentary examines information that has come to light seven years after Jodi Arias was convicted of first-degree murder in the death of her ex-boyfriend, Travis Alexander. In an exclusive double interview, former Arias cellmates Tracy Brown and Donavan Bering share startling details they claim to have heard directly from Arias, including an explosive new theory about the night of Alexander's murder. Brown and Bering recount how Arias used her sex appeal to coerce others into being her devoted followers, even attracting a devoted online fan base.

Movie: Countdown

A group of teenagers downloads a new mobile phone app called Countdown, which claims to advise the user how much time they have left before they die. One of them, Courtney (Anne Winters), is horrified to discover she only has a few hours remaining — and when she consciously avoids a dangerous situation, she receives a message from the app that she has "violated the user agreement," and she meets her end another way. That pattern repeats for her friends.

Air Jaws: Ultimate Breach Off

Kicking off Shark Week 2020, this new one-hour offering follows three teams of researchers as they return to one of the last hunting grounds featured in the "Air Jaws" franchise. Their mission: to use decoys, underwater cameras and drones to count the number of breaches and collect data on hunting techniques to confirm whether the shark population in this area has started to rebound.

6 p.m. on LIFE
Surviving Jeffrey Epstein

This new four-hour miniseries, airing in its entirety on two consecutive nights, explores the sordid saga of the late Florida billionaire financier who allegedly used his connections to the rich and powerful to shield his predatory conquest of underage girls. The presentation opens tonight in the first hour, "Lured," as several survivors of encounters with Epstein relate how they were brought to Epstein's home by female recruiters they thought they could trust. Then, in "Trapped," the girls relate how they got swept up in a full-blown sex-trafficking scheme.

7 p.m. on HISTORY
Apocalypse Earth

Earth, air, water and fire are the four essential elements to human life, but what happens when and if these vital elements suddenly turn on humanity? This new speculative docuseries, comprising six two-hour episodes, examines the literally catastrophic consequences that might follow such a scenario in which natural phenomena transform into a lethal threat against humanity, a menace both to the United States and other countries around the world.

7 p.m. on TNT
The Alienist: Angel of Darkness

The psychological thriller draws to a close with two final back-to-back episodes, starting with "Last Exit to Brooklyn," in which Sara and Moore (Dakota Fanning, Luke Evans) confront difficult personal decisions as they accompany Kreizler (Daniel Bruhl) on a quest for clues hidden in the killer's dark past. Byrnes (Ted Levine), meanwhile, schemes to double-cross the trio. Then, in "Better Angels," Sara, Kreizler and Moore race to save innocent lives while evading both the police and an underworld gang during a massive manhunt.

7:02 p.m. on DSC
Tyson vs. Jaws: Rumble on the Reef

In one of the most, um, unusual offerings in the 2020 edition of Discovery's popular Shark Week programming stunt, this new one-hour special presents former heavyweight champion boxer Mike Tyson going head-to-head with some of the ocean's apex predators: sharks. Discovery is keeping most details under wraps for now, apart from saying that Tyson will try to score a TKO over his finny opponent — although the network assures viewers no sharks actually were harmed while filming the program. Ring announcer Michael Buffer calls the shots.

Endeavour on Masterpiece

Season 7 of this "Inspector Morse" prequel opens on New Year's Eve 1969, as Detective Sgt. Morse (Shaun Evans) ushers in 1970 at a glittering opera house in Venice, Italy. Back in England, where normalcy has been restored at Castle Gate CID under the oversight of Chief Superintendent Bright (Anton Lesser), the new decade begins with the discovery of a corpse on Oxford's canal towpath. DCI Fred Thursday (Roger Allam) launches the investigation, with his only clue a witness who heard whistling on the night of the crime.

10 p.m. on HBO
Perry Mason

After the team gets a brutally candid critique from Hamilton Burger (Justin Kirk), Della (Juliet Rylance) tries to persuade a stubbornly resistant Mason (Matthew Rhys) that they should put Emily Dodson (Gayle Rankin) on the stand in the Season 1 finale, "Chapter Eight." Strickland and Drake (Shea Whigham, Chris Chalk) join Mason and Della in trying to tie up loose ends as the sensational trial builds to its climax. HBO has renewed the series for a second season.

tonight's picks

Giannis Antetokounmpo

4:30 p.m. on ESPN NBA Basketball
 A battle of the top two teams in the East is in the offing tonight in Orlando, Fla., where Giannis Antetokounmpo and the Milwaukee Bucks take on Pascal Siakam and the Toronto Raptors. With a big lead in the conference standings, the Bucks won't likely see their playoff fortunes changed by the outcome of this game. They've already beaten the Dinos twice this season so a win here will only represent icing on the cake.

7 p.m. on LIFE Surviving Jeffrey Epstein
 The documentary miniseries exploring the alleged criminal activities of billionaire Jeffrey Epstein concludes with two final hours, starting with "No Way Out," wherein survivors relate how Epstein allegedly saved his most unsavory behavior for his private island, where abuses flourished without any kind of scrutiny. Then, "Avenged" gives the girls a chance to speak on why the July 2 arrest of Ghislaine Maxwell, who reportedly groomed them for Epstein, gives them reason to hope justice finally may be served, despite Epstein's death behind bars.

11 p.m. on E! 10 Things You Don't Know
 Clearly inspired by the many "listicles" (list articles) we see daily on social media and in pop culture publications, each half-hour episode of this new reality series highlights a single celebrity, then counts down what the show deems to be the 10 most unique, hard-to-believe or surprising facts most people probably don't know about that individual. The emphasis in most cases is on humor, and on providing evidence that stars are really just like the rest of us in many respects.

Having recently earned a green light for a sophomore season from its network, this superhero action drama wraps up Season 1 with a finale called "Stars & S.T.R.I.P.E. Part Two." The story finds the Injustice Society of America one step closer to accomplishing their mission, as Courtney (Brec Bassinger) and the JSA face off with Icicle (Neil Jackson) and the villains of the ISA. Luke Wilson, Anjelika Washington, Amy Smart, Yvette Monreal, Cameron Gellman and Trae Romano also star.

America's Book of Secrets:
Special Edition

Much of American history is widely available to anyone who is interested, but a more shadowy history lingers on the edges of public awareness. Each episode of this new two-hour series provides new access to viewers when it comes to stories and places that have been shrouded in secrecy from average citizens. Past episodes have ventured inside the Pentagon, the FBI, Area 51 and the White House, but producers of this new special edition promise to go deeper, further and wider than ever before.

7 p.m. on OWN
Greenleaf

The critically praised drama wraps up its five-season run with a finale called "Behold," which finds the various members of the Greenleaf clan resolving to lay their complicated pasts to rest as they prepare themselves to see what God's plan for their futures holds, together and individually. Merle Dandridge, Lynn Whitfield and Keith David star.

7:01 p.m. on DSC
Will Smith: Off the Deep End

Will Smith may be one of the most convincing movie action heroes on the planet, yet he freely admits that he has a fairly strong phobia when it comes to sharks. This 60-minute special follows the actor as he resolves to confront that fear at last, as well as his general fear of the open seas and all the dark mysteries in the murky depths beneath our feet.

8 p.m. on KVIA2
Tell Me a Story

Frustrated by the police investigation, Jordan (James Wolk) becomes driven to find answers immediately, a hunger that veers into obsession and causes Tim (Sam Jaeger) to become concerned in the new episode "Chapter 3: Greed." Meanwhile, Kayla (Danielle Campbell) is determined to keep her relationship with Nick (Billy Magnussen) a secret, but Ethan's (guest star Rarmian Newton) jealousy complicates that situation. Hannah and Gabe (Dania Ramirez, Davi Santos) try to come up with a plan after she makes a stunning discovery.

8:02 p.m. on DSC
Great White Serial Killer Extinction

The Great White serial killer returns in this new one-hour documentary, which explores how these voracious sharks are pushing the California sea otter to the very brink of extinction. By deploying a very realistic sea otter dummy, researchers are able to observe and record one of the most savage and spectacular attacks in the history of Shark Week.

United We Fall

After Chuy and Marta (Guillermo Diaz, guest star Olivia Taylor Cohen) get into a heated argument, Bill and Jo (Will Sasso, Christina Vidal Mitchell) agree to let her temporarily move in with them in the new episode "You're Doing It Wrong." Elsewhere, when signs seem to suggest Dave

Build Me Up

In the new episode "Crater Needs a Curator," a single mom reaches the absolute end of her rope after she spends months balancing work, parenting and cooking out of a microwave, only to see her kitchen suddenly spring a massive water leak. Fortunately, host Orlando Soria is able to rush in to rebuild her kitchen, getting rid of burdens from the

Adam Devine's Secret Shark Lair

Joined by his former "Workaholics" cast mates Anders Holm and Blake Anderson, comedy actor Adam Devine returns to Shark Week to reflect more on a discovery he spearheaded during last year's event, when a camera tag on a huge tiger shark led scientists to what may well be the largest congregation of tiger sharks on Earth. Naturally, in Adam's feverish mind, that translates into an epic shark "par-tay," but he and the researchers hope to find out what is causing these sharks to gather.

Paranormal Nightshift

At least since the Middle Ages, many cultures view night as the time when spirits may walk the Earth, but that's only a passing notion to most modern folk, who work regular daytime hours and simply spend the hours of darkness in the safety of their secure home. This spooky new docuseries looks at the experiences of workers on night shifts, who occasionally report encountering paranormal presences. The series premiere, "Night Radio, Lady in Red and Spirit Alley," features a nighttime radio host.

School board votes to rename Oñate High School

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

The Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education voted unanimously at its Aug. 4 meeting to rename Oñate High School.

The new name will be Organ Mountain High School. The name change will be effective with the beginning of the 2021-22 school year, public information officer Kelly Jameson said.

Don Juan de Oñate (1550-1626), for whom the school was named, was the first Spanish governor of New Mexico (1598-1606). An explorer and conquistador, he led colonists north from Mexico into what would become the state of New Mexico in 1598, establishing the first European settlements in the Southwest.

Oñate is remembered for the Acoma Pueblo Massacre of 1599 in which an estimated 800-1,000 Acoma were killed.

He also had Acoma warriors punished by cutting off part of one foot and putting them in servitude. The Spanish government found Oñate guilty of using excessive force against the Acomas.

Originally located at Sierra Middle School, beginning in 1988, Oñate

High got its own building at 5700 Mesa Grande Drive in 1993.

The move to rename the school came at the request of community members in June, after national and local protests following the murder of George Floyd, a black man, at the hands of Minneapolis police.

New DAAC building

The Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) is moving back to downtown Las Cruces. As of Tuesday, Sept. 1., DAAC’s offices and gallery will be officed in the old Bank of America building at 250 W. Amador Ave., said DAAC Executive Director Greg Smith. DAAC moved out of the Rio Grande Theatre to 1740 Calle de Mercado, in June 2017. “DAAC has enjoyed a very special three years in Bulletin Plaza in Mesilla,” Smith said. “So, it is with some sorrow that we say goodbye to a space that has served us so well with such great neighbors nearby. However, this opportunity to be physically part of the Las Cruces Arts and Cultural District and to add some much-needed space was impossible to ignore.” Smith thanked Georgette Malooly, her husband, Norman Todd, and their sons, Chris and Bobby Todd, “for working with us and making this great new location available to us.” The Malooly-Todds own and operate Maloolys Flooring Company. “We also thank Eddie Binns and Binns Enterprises for giving the Arts Council a home for the past three years,” Smith said.

Artist Saba opens studio on West Picacho Avenue

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"I love using graffiti in a fine-art atmosphere," said Las Cruces artist Saba, who is opening a new studio and hoping to start a new Las Cruces art district on West Picacho Avenue.

Saba is opening his studio — Barricade Culture Hop — throughout the day Friday, Aug. 7, at 1175 W. Picacho Ave., at the intersection of Picacho and Fifth Street.

The opening will include selling $10 raffle tickets for a donated Harley motorcycle. He's hoping to create a "trading-post mentality" at the location. During the grand opening, Saba, who is Navajo, said he will be collecting donations of unopened water to deliver to the Navajo Nation.

"Now it's time," he said. "This is what we need."

Saba, 37, calls his work arrow soul art, because the arrow is used for hunting "to feed the soul," he said, and for defending.

Saba, 37, is a native of Farmington who moved to Las Cruces with his wife in 2009.

"I love Las Cruces," Saba said. "People here learned to somewhat co-exist together. Somewhere in time we got along, because I'm still here," he said. "All my life, I've been caught in the middle of two worlds going on at once."

Now is the time to expand the city's art community to include an outdoor art district on West Picacho Avenue, he said. "I've been talking about this for the past 10 years, at least."

"I hope other artists and small businesses take advantage of this opportunity," said Saba, who also encourages young Las Cruces entrepreneurs to explore the area.

Saba, who plans to make an outdoor graffiti garden a part of his studio space, sees a lot of possibilities for West Picacho Avenue. There are already two restaurants nearby — JC Torta's Mexican Restaurant right across the street at 1196 W. Picacho Ave., and Nessa's Café, two blocks east at 901 W. Picacho Ave. And, he said, there's plenty of room for food trucks, as well. He hopes the area can also include temporary outdoor booth spaces for artists, modeling on the success of the Farmers and Crafts Market of Las Cruces.

"People want to be outside to enjoy the view," he said, adding that West Picacho Avenue "has the best view" of the Organ Mountains.

"We can work together to make a pretty picture," he said.

Saba said he also would like to partner with food growers so the graffiti garden he's planning can include food as well as art.

Saba and his family

That way, he said, people can "grow their own jalapeños and tomatoes instead of buying packaged salsa."

"At the end of the day, I'm hoping to create art and sustain my family and myself," Saba said.

Saba said he starting drawing as a child in boarding school, because it was "a way for me to escape my environment."

The graffiti he loves, he said, "is the finest of art" because it has no identified dollar value. "It can't compete with fine art because it far exceeds true art."

"I call it art, and I call art life," Saba said. "This Dance goes on! Music/dance academy hasn't lost a step

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

"The biggest challenge was dance," Academy of Music & Dance owner Leslie Kowalski said, as the academy switched over to virtual classes during the pandemic for dance, music and Kindermusik students.

"[It's about] how to rethink dance," Kowalski said. "I promised the parents and the kids that we would still put those costumes on and have a recital as soon as our governor allowed us to get back together. Once we were given the go-ahead that kid camps could start up with one teacher and five students, we surveyed the parents, found out who wanted to have their six weeks of makeup classes in the studio with four others and who wanted to continue online. With the results at basically half and half, we proceeded."

Kowalski purchased "Mind Your Spacing" decals, a no-contact thermometer device and hospital-grade disinfectant products, she said. She and her staff donned masks and set up a Zoom camera to be fully in-person and online ready.

Parents who usually sat on the other side of a glass wall and observed children at rehearsal, "would now drop off their masked dancers at one door and pick them up at another door, keeping traffic in one direction," Kowalski said.

The staff also began a half-hour of cleaning/disinfecting regimen between classes, she said, adding that no props or any items were shared, and the ballet barre was removed from the studio.

The dance recital that had been scheduled for the Las Cruces Public Schools Performing Arts Center at Oñate High School, was "re-imagined," Kowalski said, and held July 10-11 at the academy studio, 1809 El Paseo Road.

"Instead of one two-hour recital, we held eight one-hour 'units,'" she said, with four-five dancers and a teacher on one side of the glass wall and four to five "pods" of four family members wearing masks on the other side.

is what we do as human beings. People have a "natural urge" to create, to make a mark and to "leave some direction for the future, a survival guide."

"America calls it graffiti," he said, but the art form can trace its beginnings to ancient rock art "that identified a watering hole, an enemy camp, 'no trespassing' or 'this is where you pass,'" he said.

"We can all represent who we are through our art," Saba said. His own art, like his dream of a new art district, "is real and it's really happening."

Beginning at the top of the hour, each dancer had her individual photo taken by professional photographer Jack Diven, Kowalski said, then performed with her peers, each in her own "box." Dancers were then individually dismissed to have a photo taken with their teacher and receive flowers from parents. At the half-hour mark, "the entire place was disinfecting didn't take effect until July 13.

When they return to the studio Aug. 3, "dancers will be wearing masks at all times," she said. Each dancer will have her own prop kit, water bottle, hand sanitizer and ballet barre wrap, Kowalski said, as the barre returns to the studio.

For the upcoming 2020-

cising didn't take effect until July 13.

When they return to the studio Aug. 3, "dancers will be wearing masks at all times," she said. Each dancer will have her own prop kit, water bottle, hand sanitizer and ballet barre wrap, Kowalski said, as the barre returns to the studio.

For the upcoming 2020-

21 year that begins this month, five dance classes filled up in a matter of two hours on registration day, she said.

"That sounds exciting, but a full class is five dancers," Kowalski said. Before COVID-19, five dancers had been the number used to declare a class open. "That was our minimum for breaking even," she said. "So, breaking even is what we hope to do this year to keep the business going."

Kowalski said she and her staff have marked off the studio into six-foot squares to be visually clear for students to practice social distancing.

The academy opened its doors as Musical Beginnings in 1993 with Kowalski conducting Kindermusik classes. In 2008, the company moved and added private lessons in piano, guitar, voice, violin and all band instruments. In 2011, it added "a beautiful floating dance floor," she said, and the name changed to Academy of Music & Dance.

The academy has five dance instructors offering ballet, tap, jazz, hip hop and pom, along with adult tap. Kowalski is preparing to teach Kindermusik on Zoom, she said, and using the same six-foot box system, hopes to soon bring the "musical toddlers and babies" back into the studio with their parents.

Private lessons continue to be in person with mandatory facemasks unless the student prefers Zoom, Kowalski said. The academy also offers Piano Teams, a 45-minute group class for young children not quite ready for private lessons.

Dance and Kindermusik classes and private music lessons began Aug. 3 and continue through mid-May 2021, she said. Any class can be taken live in the studio (the number of participants is five or six maximum) or on Zoom. Classes run Monday-Saturday.

To set up a tour of the academy, find the schedule of classes and other information, visit www.LCMusicandDance.com. Call 575-525-2090 and email lcmad@comcast.net.

Travel lends perspective to history, present

My childhood summers were spent traveling around the country.

My parents wanted my brother and me to learn about and appreciate the country to which our grandparents had immigrated to create new lives for themselves and their children.

We visited many state capitals, entering some of the capitol buildings, and, at the United States Capitol, we sat in the Senate gallery on a day of relative quiet.

We explored the Rocky Mountains, ascended Mount Evans, and rode across the precarious bridge over Royal Gorge. We visited Mesa Verde National Park, Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Carlsbad Caverns, El Paso and Juarez.

RABBI KAROL

Seeking Harmony

Most years, we traveled east. I remember President Abraham Lincoln's home in Springfield (and his tomb). We spent time at Gettysburg and Antietam to deepen our knowledge of major Civil War battles.

We saw the sites of the first battles of the Revolutionary War at Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill. We toured President George Washington's home, Mount Vernon, and President Thomas Jefferson's home, Monticello. We visited the Statue of Liberty, as well as the Liberty Bell at Independence Hall.

We went to the top of the Washington Monument, stood inside the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials and gazed at the memorial flame at the grave of President John F. Kennedy.

Rhonda and I took our son, Adam, to many places I had not yet visited, including the Grand Canyon, Ellis Island, the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Adam and I also toured the baseball and basketball halls of fame.

The United States Holocaust Memorial Museum and the museum and memorial at the Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City challenged us to consider how to combat hatred in all its forms. Rhonda and I did the same at the 9/11 museum in New York City.

My rabbinic convention in 2017 took us to the National Center for Civil and Human Rights in Atlanta. We paid our respects at the graves of the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Coretta Scott King. We sat in the original Ebenezer Baptist Church. We were welcomed at the center of the The Names Project/

AIDS Quilt.

Adam and I attended the 2004 dedication of the Brown v. Board of Education National Historic Site, commemorating the United States Supreme Court decision to end racial segregation in America's schools (a short distance from our home).

There are many places to explore locally and in our state that are integral to the American story, offering reminders to recognize narratives told from different perspectives, to which, I know, I need to listen.

I know, also, that I need to pray. These words conclude a prayer for our nation in the Reform Jewish prayerbook, Mishkan T'filah: "Help us all to appreciate one another, and to respect the many ways that we may serve You. May our homes be safe from affliction and strife, and our country be sound in body and spirit."

May we truly appreciate one another, especially at this time of challenge, and may we add new and positive chapters to our shared story.

Exceedingly difficult times require faith to get through them

We are living through exceedingly difficult times. The coronavirus is a Dammocles sword hanging over people's heads, but there are more difficulties in our time than that. We've also been through an economic upheaval, and we have not yet seen the end of this disruption.

Then there's the social upheaval that has, to greater or lesser extent, depending on where one lives, exacerbated the other problems. Fuses are short everywhere, and the streets could erupt at any moment in protest and riot.

We are living at the extremes, or at least we are seeing life at the extremes. No center seems to hold.

As W. B. Yeats so famously said, "Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world." Please note the significance of that two-word phrase: "mere anarchy" is what you get when civil discourse is no longer possible.

GABRIEL ROCHELLE

Tales from the Cassock

In such circumstances, it becomes tempting to swing on a wide arc between extremes of right and left. We react to events and movements in our society, and it's all too easy for normally sensible people to overreact. In times of social and mental stress, our natural tendency is to hit back, which makes the situation worse. We see this escalation around us in many ways.

These are exceedingly difficult times for me as a person of faith and a leader in a particular faith community. I see this overreaction in the very places where I usually look for balance, namely, in religious institutions and movements. Many of us are disgusted by the caving in to far-right agendas on the part of some churches. But there's no monopoly here: the far-left is more than adequately represented in religious groups, too. The point of both seems to be, "conform or get lost." The sycophants of extremism are everywhere.

I've been around long enough to see how this drift into extremes happens. You have sincere and genuine concerns about what is happening or not happening in the social sphere. You look around to see who shares your concerns. They appear to be picked up by particular social-action movements, and so you go along with that movement. Then suddenly you find yourself sucked in at a deeper level, and without time for thoughtful reflection on what's happening. Inauspicious beginnings can lead to unexpected consequences.

For those of us with deep spiritual commitments, the center should hold, however. We should look at social movements with a critical eye sharpened by the perspective of faith. For many years, I've taught that the proper approach is to enter alliance rather than identification. I believe we can ally with the values of certain movements (e.g., Black Lives Matter, Pro Life) without embracing the overall agenda of such a movement. We don't want to be identified by the movement. We want to be allies where we are needed. Only by such an approach can we keep our balance.

If people put God first in their lives, and followed the teachings of Jesus, the world would be a much better place. Thou shall love thy neighbor as thyself.

Magic and science combine to enchant, teach children

By JESS WILLIAMS
Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces native Britton A. Goodwin has always been fascinated with science and magic performances, so he combined them to create Professor Bah-Boom Educational Entertainment.

As Professor Bah-Boom, his performance props are a lab coat, various chemicals and household items and a table, where he performs his act for whatever size audience books the gig. The goal behind the business, he said, is “educating children about science and math through hands-on demonstrations and experiments.

“By using common supplies, I guide children on how to conduct scientific experiments in a safe environment,” he said. “I then address the physics behind it all and further explain what we did to create each scientific reaction.”

Equipped with a self-written “cookbook of about 100 experiments,” Goodwin said he uses each one to bring to light what he calls “the FUN-damentals of chemistry, physics and engineering.”

“One example is mixing food dye, glue and laundry booster together to make colored slime,” he said. “This helps demonstrate some basic principles of chemistry and the chemical bonding process. Once the slime is finished, the young scientist then has his or her very own sensory manipulative that they helped to create.”

Before COVID-19, Goodwin said he performed at birthday parties and other special events for $110 an hour, which covered his prep time, performance time, supplies and tax.

“This allowed me to make enough profit to cover things such as travel expenses, insurance, advertising and living expenses,” he said.

Then came COVID-19, which forced him to develop web-based educational packages in a price range of $35 to $90. The goal, he said, is to

Sister power: Mas Art moves to new location

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Sisters Malu and Sandra Bender have taken their art and frame business, Mas Art, from its downtown location to a spacious, new storefront. But it wasn't easy.

“We are so exhausted, and we are so happy,” Malu said. “We did everything in six weeks.”

By “everything,” she means they completely renovated the building they bought at 144 Wyatt Drive. By “we,” she is talking about their little team of four – Malu and her husband, Scott Tuft; and Sandra and her partner, Adrian Tenorio.

Mas Art started in a garage, but suppliers said they would only ship to a storefront. Malu and Sandra Arts became Mas Art at 126 N. Main St. During COVID-19, the store closed for a while and is now open on an appointment-only basis. The sales turned out to be good in June and July, but the bills were still piling up, and they were thinking about closing their doors for good until realtor Angela Potter had a better idea. They bought the building.

“We rented the Main Street location for seven years,” Malu said. “But rent is expensive, and we thought with this money, we could pay a mortgage, have a gallery, offer classes [and host] wine parties.”

The new building has been configured into four independent spaces, with the art shop in one and a gallery in another. The other two are rentals.

Mas Art opens for COVID-safe business on Friday, Aug. 7. There will be a grand opening celebration in September, which will also mark Mas Art's seventh anniversary. Visit www.masartllc.com or find them on Facebook and Instagram. Email info@masartllc.com or call 575-526-9113.

“The curriculum will be based on learning through experiments,” he said. “I’m planning to provide prepackaged experiments to families who would rather avoid the trip to the store for supplies. I will then lead the young scientists through each experiment via video call.”

Despite adapting to COVID-19, Goodwin said Prof. Bah-Boom Educational Entertainment is dedicated to the education and scientific enrichment of the children in Las Cruces.

“The overall goal of the business has always been to teach children about the world of science through fun, laughs and hands-on learning. This goal remains unchanged, but the pandemic requires us all to find a new normal,” he said.

Henson's life leaves lasting legacy

By RICHARD COLTHARP
Las Cruces Bulletin

Lou Henson earned a spot in the College Basketball Hall of Fame for a coaching career that spanned 42 seasons and three universities, as well as two Final Four berths.

His death July 25 at age 88 sparked an outpouring from friends and fans all over the country.

He coached New Mexico State University to 289 basketball victories during two different stints (1966-75 and 1997-2005). In between, he coached the University of Illinois to 423 wins. Add that to the 66 victories at Hardin-Simmons, his first coaching job, and the total was

Perhaps more than the victories, though, he and Mary, his wife of 65 years, were beloved for their engaged community service in two different cities, Las Cruces and Champaign, Illinois.

“Our university and our entire community have lost a remarkable man,” said NMSU Chancellor Dan Arvizu. “I have such fond memories, when I was a student at NMSU, of watching Lou Henson lead the Aggies all the way to the Final Four. I will always remember those games, and I will always remember how he cared about our community and about our people.”

“Aggie Nation's hearts are heavy today,” said NMS Athletics Director Mario Moccia. “We have lost an Aggie icon. Coach Henson may be gone, but the memories he provided us with and the legacy he created will last forever. He was responsible for almost 800 wins in the record book, and the most memorable event in our university's history of athletics: the trip to the 1970 Final Four. Coach Henson's legacy was equally felt off the court in the lives he touched — those of his former players, people on this campus and friends in Las Cruces and around the state of New Mexico. We are all better for whatever time we were privileged to spend with Lou. Coach made everyone feel like a friend.”

“Lou Henson was the epitome of class and a one-of-a-kind coach,” said NMSU Head Men's Basketball Coach Chris Jans. “What he did for New Mexico State and the sport of college basketball is something that few before or since have accomplished. He is revered by two fan bases, which is extremely rare in our business.”

‘Actions of kindness’: Players, colleagues, coaches recall a legend

JIMMY COLLINS

- » NMSU all-century team
- » Leading scorer of the 1970 Final Four team
- » Assistant coach under Henson at University of Illinois-Champaign-Urbana, 1983-96
- » Head coach at University of Illinois-Chicago, 1996-2010
- » First round draft pick of the 1970 Chicago Bulls

“It's like losing a guardian angel,” said Collins, a 6-2 guard from Syracuse, who averaged 24.3 points a game for the 1969-70 Aggies. “It started back in 1966 and I'm sure it will continue until I leave this life.

“We didn't go long periods without talking. I'd call him or he'd call me. He seemed to have a sixth sense. Every time in life I would stumble, or I would have some turmoil, the phone would ring, and it would be him.

“The last few years, I knew he was very ill, and sometimes he wouldn't be able to talk. But I would talk with Mary, who was as much a part of developing our program as he was.

“There are things as a young man, that are minor conflicts, but as you get older, you realize those conflicts were positives that made me not only a better basketball player, but a better person.

“He pulled me back into basketball, working with him at Illinois as an assistant coach, and then helping me land the job at the University of Illinois-Chicago (where he was head coach for 14 seasons).

“I was raised by a single mom, with no father in the picture, and most of the things that guide me in my life, I got those ideas from him.

Perhaps it was a fitting day, the last conversation they had was on June 21.

“He called me on Father's Day and you wouldn't have known he was ill. We had a great conversation.

“From now on, I know I will hear his voice in my head, with something to help me or show me a way to help others.”

“I can't tell you how much the reign of Lou Henson meant to me,” Hubbard said. “We started on the ground floor with him at the Pan American Center.

“Lou and I started out together at Las Cruces High School. He was the basketball coach, and I ran the cheerleaders. And when he came back to coach NMSU, Lou and I stayed together all the way through. I also ran the NMSU cheerleaders for about 20 years.

new arena, Lou called me over to run the Pan Am, and I became the first woman business manager on campus.”

She went on to earn an international reputation for landing and booking musical and entertainment acts to play the Pan Am. Despite all the celebrities who befriended her and called her “Mother Hubbard,” she always cherished those early Pan Am basketball days.

“Lou was one of the winningest coaches of all time, and I was so proud to go to the Final Four in 1970 with the team and the cheerleaders. Getting to ride that glory with him has been a part of my life ever since.

“And now I’m going to be making a donation to the Boys and Girls Club of Las Cruces for him and Mary.”

Fans, friends remember Lou

One of Coach Lou Henson’s proudest moments was when he was inducted into the National Collegiate Basketball Hall of Fame in Kansas City in 2016. One photo shows Lou and wife Mary making a red-carpet entry into the grand venue where he was to receive his honor. The other photo shows Lou in the Hall of Fame, observing for the first time, the permanent plaque inscribed with his name. I will always be grateful to Athletic Director Mario Moccia for allowing Jaki and me to represent NMSU at Coach Henson’s Hall of Fame induction ceremonies, and to photograph the Hensons and the events surrounding Lou’s special weekend. – David McCollum, former owner/publisher of The Las Cruces Bulletin.

I had the honor of meeting Coach Henson while attending NMSU, and he was as kind as they come. Sending prayers to Coach’s family and players, and all those who loved him. – Claire Chase, former Republican candidate for U.S. Congress.

RIP coach, nice man. Gave me a signed copy of his book to give my mom, who was a fan. Said hello every time we crossed paths. My condolences to his wife and family. – Perry Sanchez, NMSU graduate conference champs, and made it to the NAAs.)

“He didn’t curse, and he rarely raised his voice, but you didn’t want to let him down. He respected you as a man, and so you had to respect him for that. He never had an altercation with a player.

“When I retired from my professional career and he found out I wanted to get into coaching, he said, ‘Who can I call? Let’s go to breakfast.’ And so we went to breakfast at Burger Time and he got napkins out and started drawing up plays.”

WILLIAM BENJAMIN

- » NMSU all-century team
- » Aggie player from 1988-92
- » Current head coach, Las Cruces High School boys’ basketball

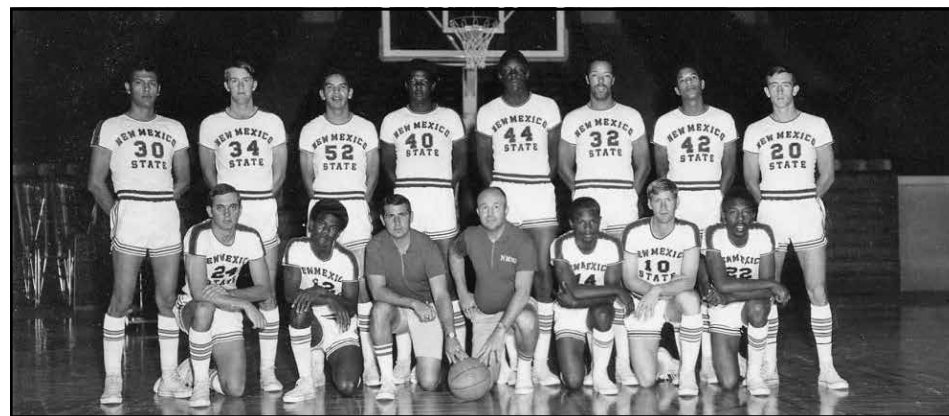

Though he did not play for Coach Henson or even know him that well, Benjamin had several positive interactions with the coach.

“I remember all of his actions were actions of kindness,” Benjamin said. “He invited me and my family one year to join him and his wife at their table at the Boys and Girls Club Breakfast. They were both so attentive and gracious. And when we won the state championship in 2013, I called him and asked if he would come and speak at our banquet, and he did so without hesitation.”

That 2013 title was the first Las Cruces High School boys state championship since 1976, when Lou Henson Jr. was a standout player on back-to-back Bulldawg state title teams. Previously, Lou Henson Sr. had coached LCHS to three consecutive state titles, 1959-61. LCHS won again this year, meaning if Benjamin coaches the Bulldawgs to another state title, he will tie Henson for the school record for most titles as a coach.

“I met him just as they opened the Pan Am. It was the ‘House that Henson Built.’ He was a special guy. Everybody loved him, he was so sincere and genuine and he and his wife, Mary, were such contributors to the community. I can’t think of a better example than him of what it means to be a great Aggie.

“There are very few icons in New Mexico, and even fewer in Las Cruces, but one was Lou Henson. And he had such a wonderful sense of humor.

“When I applied to be president of NMSU, Lou Henson essentially decided to be my campaign manager. He took it upon himself to call people and speak on my behalf. When the regents met to decide, the vote was 3-2 in my favor over Dan Howard, who became our provost.

“I knew Coach Henson often met for breakfast with friends at Burger Time. So shortly after the vote I went to Burger Time and, sure enough, he came in. I said, ‘Coach, I came here to fire you as my campaign manager. With your campaigning, I only got the vote by 3-2.’ Then Lou looked at me and said, ‘Well, it was 0-5 when I started.’

RUS BRADBURD

- » Former NMSU assistant coach
- » Author and current associate professor of creative writing at NMSU

“Nearly everyone as successful as Lou innately has a big ego,” Bradburd said. “I think Lou believed he was a good coach, but he would never say that. He was very much a big-picture guy and was very interested in how people were going to be in the long run.

“Lou accomplished enough to be called a legend, but he didn’t want to set himself up that way. He was more of an everyman, ‘We’re all in this together in building the program.’

“He never said to his team, ‘Don’t swear.’ But his players didn’t swear because that was his lead.

“When he went to coach at Illinois, he helped turn the program around with an idea that shouldn’t have been novel. He said, ‘We’re at Illinois. Let’s recruit Illinois kids.’

“Watching him after all those years of being a decent human, I think we can all take strength from his humility and his grace.”

JACK NIXON

- » Longtime radio voice of the Aggies
- » Member, Aggie Hall of Fame

“Of course, he knew a lot about basketball and won a lot of games and went to the Final Four and all that, but the things that come to mind first when I think about Coach is how kind he was and how positive he was,” Nixon said. “He enjoyed having fun with life, and when we were traveling, he was light-hearted. He took winning very seriously, but he didn’t let a loss eat at him. He was so positive and good-hearted, you just felt really good around him.”
