Mesilla Plaza is uncharacteristically uncrowded this holiday season, as locals and tourists alike take care to avoid the COVID-19 virus, but the town's Christmas tree continues to send a bright, star-topped message of peace, harmony, hope and tradition. With a new year on the horizon, quieter-than-usual communities all around the globe keep optimism alive even in the most unusual of times. From The Bulletin family to yours, we wish you a peaceful and healthy holiday season.

County requests $20 million for infrastructure

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Doña Ana County is seeking about $20 million from the 2021 New Mexico Legislature for the top 10 projects on its capital-outlay-request list. In total, the county's infrastructure capital improvement plan (ICIP) list for FY2022-26 has 76 items on it from across the county totaling almost $51.4 million.

The top 10 items on the list are as follows:

- 1) Brahman Diversion
Channel construction
(Dragonfly) — amount requested from the legislature: $4.2 million to plan, design, acquire, construct and equip a flood-control structure

approximately four miles north of U.S. Highway 70 at Holman Road. To date, the project has received $1 million in capital outlay funding for property acquisition, archeological studies, environmental studies, planning, design and construction.

- 2) Industrial Road Overpass — requested: $9.6 million to plan survey, obtain right of way, design, construct and manage the installation of a grade separation at the intersection of Industrial Road and the Union Pacific railroad facility in Santa Teresa.
- 3) East Mesa flood-control improvements (Longhorn) — requested: $1 million to plan, design, equip, acquire and construct stormwater and drainage improvements on the East Mesa of Las Cruces as part of capital improvements highlighted in the East Mesa Drainage Master Plan.

- 4) BB Romig Bridge at Rio Grande (Hatch) — requested: $600,000 to plan, survey, design and construct improvements to include drainage and guardrail design/construction.
- 5) Salem and Rincon wastewater treatment plants and collection-system improvements — requested: $240,000 to plan, design and construct repairs and upgrades to wastewater treatment plants, lift stations, manholes, mainline replacements and extensions identified by staff in the Salem and Rincon areas in northern Doña Ana County to protect the existing infrastructure and the public from wastewater line breaks, lift station and wastewater treatment plant failures.

- 6) Doña Ana flood control improvements — requested: $2.581 million to plan, design, equip, acquire and construct drainage improvements in multiple locations throughout the community of Doña Ana. Improvements include drainage channels, de-

7) Salem Drainage Master Plan, phase I — requested: $560,972 to plan, acquire, equip, design and construct a retention pond complete with a principal outlet and emergency spillway

- to detain runoff generated north of Salem and downstream along Grande Avenue.
- 8) Shalem Colony Bridge at Rio Grande — requested: $600,000 to plan, survey, design

Las Cruces' Clayton Flowers turns 105 on Christmas Day

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"I'm feeling as well as I can, being 105," Clayton Flowers said in a recent telephone interview. "I never expected to live as long as this."

Flowers was born Christmas Day 1915 in rural Surry County, Virginia. Woodrow Wilson was president of the United States, William C. McDonald was serving as New Mexico's first governor and the Spanish flu (February 1918-April 1920) worldwide pandemic was about two years away.

Mayor Ken Miyagishima said he will proclaim Dec. 25, 2020, as Clayton Flowers Day in Las Cruces. Miyagishima said he also will present Flowers with a key to the city.

A retired housing contractor and teacher, Flowers has lived in Las Cruces since 1984.

Flowers continues to live by himself in the Las Cruces home he helped build. He is visited twice a day by caregivers (who follow COVID-safe practices) and gets Meals on Wheels during the week. He said he routinely rises at 4 or 5 every morning and prepares his own breakfast, as well as his weekend meals. He gets around with both an indoor and an outdoor scooter.

"I feel good about having built houses, having taught school," said Flowers, who also spent five years as a member of the Tuskegee Airmen during World War II.

Flowers said he has been "a robust person" throughout his life. He's always been active, but he "has been careful and moderate in my exercise," he said.

Flowers has three sons and a daughter, along with six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. "I'm really proud of my children," Flowers said. "They became better parents than we did."

Flowers married Evelyn Lorraine Church, a Michigan native who was also a teacher, in 1951 in New York City. She died in 2008 at age 88.

"It's pretty amazing,"

Bayne and her family said they are grateful that Flowers has reached 105, adding that, “106 would be nice too.”

“It’s an honor and privilege to be married to Mr. Flowers’ only daughter,” said Flowers’ son-in-law, Omar Bayne. “He’s been like a father to me. He’s been an inspiration to our family. I lost my father 10 years ago, and I always considered him my second father.”

Bayne said he frequently talks to Flowers on the phone and looks forward to their next visit, “because he always inspires me. His font of knowledge is beyond comparison. He’s been a great inspiration ... and I admire him for all the good he’s done.”

Kathi Bayne said her father still walks outside twice a week, using a walker and accompanied by a caregiver, walking to the end of his block and back home. He also plays Sudoku and Free Cell every day.

“I don’t play either of those as well as he does,” Kathi said.

City of Las Cruces

Even with the shutdowns and restrictions, Las Cruces residents could count on this: natural gas will light up their appliances, their tap will flow with clean water, their wastewater will be flushed away, and their trash will be picked up.

In appreciation of the work that its associates do, Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) created four banners to salute its essential workers who have made it work through closed schools, balancing schedules, and even increased workload due to a good portion of Las Cruces staying at home and deciding to clean out their yard or garage.

Residents may have already seen the in various location: Hector Lozoya, LCU heavy and Jeff Madrid, LCU dispatcher; along with the other three associates, at the Administration Building at 680 N. Motel Boulevard.

“We wanted to put a face on those who have been dedicated in making sure that our infrastructure and customer safety were paramount throughout the pandemic,” Delilah Walsh, LCU director, said. “Everyone has been affected, whether their children were at home or they had to be flexible with a spouse’s schedule. They were transparent with us and we tried to make it work just like they did every day. They have gone above and beyond at every level.”

LCU associates are out there now detecting gas and water leaks, answering your phone call about trash pickups, guiding you to the location for yard waste drop off, and finding solutions for paying down your utility bill.

“We are your neighbors, and we want to make sure our City continues to support each and every resident as much as we can,” Walsh said.

Wrapped in swaddling clothes

Tom Reeves was a big, blustery man.

Six-foot-seven, bald, with some remaining wisps of graying red hair on the sides of his head, he wore cowboy boots and kept two silver dollars in his pocket. The coins were so worn, over time, they had become two smooth disks, with no visible inscription.

In 1995, Reeves brought me to New Mexico. He was publisher of the Alamogordo Daily News, and he hired me to come out from Arkansas and be his editor.

Like me, he grew up in Oklahoma, and like him, I would grow to love New Mexico.

Reeves introduced me to the term "alpenglow." This is the fleeting phenomenon of pinkish/purplish light reflecting from the sunset onto mountains in the east. In Alamogordo, it happens on the Sacramentos; in Las Cruces, it happens on the Organs. When conditions are right, this glow is breathtaking.

Even at its best, though, the alpenglow only lasts about 100 seconds, perhaps a divine metaphor for enjoying and appreciating the beautiful things we have while we have them.

I learned a lot from Reeves, a longtime newspaperman who, over the course of his career, edited, published and owned newspapers in Oklahoma, California, New Mexico and Colorado.

One tradition he long held was publishing a different type of editorial on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. On Christmas Eve, he would run Clement C. Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas." On Christmas Day, he would run the Biblical passage from Luke 2, the story of the first Christmas.

RICHARD COLTHARP

From the Publisher

Where possible, I have maintained Reeves' tradition, but at a weekly newspaper, timing doesn't always cooperate. This is only the second time in my 10 years with the Bulletin our Friday publish date falls on Dec. 25. So, without further ado ...

Luke 2: 1-14

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be taxed. And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.

And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and lineage of David, to be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe

The Last Burro

He was the last burro left in the dusty corral.

His two companions had been sold by the man. They were younger, stronger and finer looking, even by burro standards, which are quite high. They were worth more and brought more money, which was what the man needed.

Pickin's were slim. Every evening, the man would stake the last burro out down below the spring to graze. During the day, he went with the man and packed mud or water or rocks or wood.

One morning, the man fed him a small bowl of grain. This continued for several days until the morning the man brushed him down, bobbed his tail and trimmed his long whiskers. Next thing he knew, the burro was blanketed and fit with a pack saddle. Two panyards were hung over the frame, and a thick pad was laid between the forks.

The burro watched with his wise burro eyes as the man led the woman out to the hitch rail and gently lifted her up on his pack saddle. The man shouldered his own pack, picked up his walkin' stick and clucked to the burro.

The burro was old, but he carried the load as easily as an old man milks a goat. From memory -- automatic. As he walked down the road, he passed his two younger, stronger companions. They were hitched to a water wheel and strained in their harness as they walked round and round. 'Better this than that,' thought the last burro.

They walked all day. It was the cool season, and his hooves were hard as iron. The woman balanced well.

The second day the woman

It's a bad idea to revise elk-hunting process

By SENATOR-ELECT CRYSTAL R. DIAMOND

Recently, a report was published by the Legislative Finance Council regarding a funding method utilized by the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish (NMDGF) to compensate landowners for conservation practices essential to maintaining critical habitat provided to wildlife on their private property.

The report prompted Sen. Martin Heinrich, D-N.M., to write a critical letter outlining his disapproval, as well as an article by the Albuquerque Journal. Designed with input from numerous stakeholders, the Elk Private Land Use System (EPLUS) has taken the NMDGF decades to perfect and has been credited as a model system among other western hunting states.

EPLUS provides landowners with elk-hunting authorizations through a system that determines the level of wildlife benefit their property is producing. The landowner must apply for EPLUS, and NMDGF subsequently conducts a physical inspection of the property to ensure the wildlife benefit. Once the authorization is awarded, the landowner is free to sell or give that permit to whomever s/he wishes.

SENATOR-ELECT CRYSTAL R. DIAMOND

Contrary to what Sen. Heinrich alleges, altering the EPLUS program will have the most damaging impacts on small acreage properties. Approximately 38 percent of EPLUS recipients own 500 acres or less, and a large percentage of those are 100 acres or less.

A great number of these property owners rely on revenue created from the sale of their EPLUS tags as part of their family's annual income. These permit sales can represent $5,000

-$10,000 or more of their annual earnings, depending on the property location and number of tags.

These are not wealthy absentee owners. They are hardworking, rural families with great financial burdens, especially in the COVID climate.

Additionally, the impact to rural land values should be considered. Removing elk permits from a property is likely to reduce the market value of that land up to 50 percent, based on current market conditions. That doesn't just impact the EPLUS landowner, but all properties in the rural areas around them as comparable prices tumble, and all land values subsequently decrease.

To put that in perspective, if legislation or regulation changes were presented to decreased property values in the metro areas by up to 50 percent, there would be substantial push back and the proposed changes would likely stall right from the start. Why should rural New Mexicans be subject to the likely financial ruin that urban New Mexicans are not?

Although rural econo-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Justice and peace

To the editor:

Although most of us are “muddling through,” 2020 is unlikely to be recorded as a national success story. Seems all our sociological flaws are bearing evil fruit simultaneously. Economically, we are a house of cards built upon a manure foundation.

In service to our major corporations for the past 50 years, our government has been in continuous active military conflict with countries who’ve never harmed this country. We are actively sabotaging dozens of countries, none of whom have ever harmed us, with extortion called “economic sanctions.” Our government has repeatedly swindled and betrayed its non-billionaire citizens.

A friend years ago recommended to never crap on your karma. It appears to me that we are receiving numerous “karma boomerangs” we’ve recklessly thrown at other countries for decades. Karma time?

At Christmas time, we might want to demand repentance from our national corporate and political leaders. We need to stop operating like the Antichrist and sow seeds of justice and peace.

Trapping

To the editor:

I keep seeing articles about how horrible and archaic trapping is and that the only clear choice is to ban it. The only state to ban trapping is California. Colorado allows public land livestock owners to obtain 30-day trapping permits and Arizona has hired trappers to do damage control. The best management tool is regulated trapping.

The Torrance California City Council, by a vote of 6-1, approved an initiative to hire trappers to control coyotes. This happened immediately following the ban. They did this because of pressure from residents complaining about coyotes eating their pets, usually right out of their yard. These hired trappers are the same people who were paying the state, through license fees, for the privilege to trap. Now the state is paying them with tax money.

Extremists have learned how to use the courts and electoral loopholes to outlaw what they don’t like in society, whether they understand the issues or not. All outdoorsmen/women know managing wildlife from the ballot box is a dangerous endeavor and puts the North American model of wildlife conservation in jeopardy. So many people in modern society are far removed from our agricultural roots. So many people don’t know that the foods they eat, the clothes they wear and ingredients of the medication they take come from farmers and ranchers who work closely with trappers to provide.

Below is our expectation of members, which is written on every membership form and is on our website, and which we hold our membership to.

“The NMTA expects its members to be: lawful, always following NM trapping statutes and rules; respectful/ thoughtful of other trappers, users and landowners; and ever diligent in improving their equipment and techniques to ensure the ethical capture, treatment and/ or dispatch of the animals they encounter on the trapline.”

mies will bear a greater weight, the state as a whole will suffer great loss in revenues generated through tourism, as hunting/fishing remains the highest grossing outdoor recreation tourism business in the state, an industry already on the brink of collapse as a result of the pandemic.

Speaking of revenue shortfalls, it’s important to note that NMDGF does not receive any money from the state’s general fund. The agency’s annual budget is funded through hunting and fishing license sales and excise tax dollars produced on the sale of hunting and fishing equipment. Wildlife conservation in New Mexico is entirely funded by hunters and anglers.

Criticism and potential ill-advised changes of the EPLUS system threaten a process that heavily benefits natural resource conservation efforts. It also benefits the annual budget of a self-funding state agency, in-state hunters, our crippled tourism industry and our damaged state economy — specifically economies of our vulnerable rural communities.

Furthermore, it highlights the disconnect between urban-minded lawmakers and the reality of what is taking place in rural areas of the state.

Allow me to narrow that divide by extending a bit of good advice and cowboy logic from those of us in rural and remote

New Mexico: If it ain’t broke, don’t fix it.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Taxing benefits

To the editor:

Occasionally, people write to complain of Social Security benefits being taxed by the state of New Mexico. I am curious as to the motives of these writers as I pay no taxes on my benefits and am quite sure that the majority of New Mexicans don't either.

The federal government does not tax SS benefits until they exceed $25,000 for a single person and $32,000 for a couple. Then the amount of tax paid is further reduced by the standard deduction, which is $14,000 for a single person over 65 and $27,000 for a couple over 65.

A couple would need to have SS benefits plus income of more than $32,000 plus $27,000 = $57,000 before they would pay any state income tax. And less we forget, there also is a low-income tax credit of $5,000 for New Mexicans. So that's $62,000 in taxable income needed before any taxes would be owed.

I question writers claiming to help poor people whose only source of income is SS with an average benefit of $13,900. These people don't pay any taxes, period, and do not have to file tax returns as their income is so low.

The people affected by this tax on Social Security benefits, it seems to me, are those with pension benefits or additional income who make over $57K per year.

New Mexico actually needs additional revenue to make up for declining revenue from oil and gas. Whether this is the best way to raise additional revenue is a different discussion, but these writers are, I believe, trying to give themselves a tax break by falsely disguising it as a way to help poor New Mexicans.

A better solution would be expansion of the Working Families Tax Credit, which may be advanced in the upcoming 2021 legislative session.

They arrived in a town late one night. The man went in a house. The woman waited. Momentarily, the man returned and led the burro around back to the stable. The burro was glad to get the saddle off. He was watered, tied in a far corner and fed some grass hay.

The burro watched as the man put a blanket in one of the stalls and laid the woman down. Time passed. Later in the night, the woman walked out carrying a man-child and laid him in a hay manger.

The burro slept, as old men do, with one ear cocked. He saw the sheepmen come, he heard the singing. He'd heard it before. The burro had worked the sheep camps.

Next morning, the man fed and watered the burro and left. While he was gone, the woman picked up the man-child and brought him to the burro. She raised one of his tiny hands and stroked the burro's soft nose. She, herself, patted the burro's neck.

On the trip back home, the woman and man-child rode on the burro's back.

As the years went by, the woman would bring the growing man-child out to the corral and hold him up or set him on the burro's back. She would talk man-talk to the child. And when the burro got too old to work, the man-child would come and stroke his nose and give him a handful of grain.

One day the burro could no longer get up. He became frightened. The woman and the grown young man came to the corral and held his head in their laps. They patted his rough coat and stroked his soft nose. Eventually the burro closed his eyes. He felt a teardrop on his face. It was the last thing he ever felt.

Local teen applauds new tobacco law

By JESS WILLIAMS

Las Cruces Bulletin

With participation by students from around the state – including Emilia Coombs of Las Cruces – the New Mexico Department of Health hosted a virtual event Dec. 17 to celebrate the implementation of the Tobacco Products Act, which goes into effect Jan. 1, increasing the minimum legal sales age for all tobacco products in New Mexico to 21 years. The act also creates new licensing requirements for tobacco retailers.

"The Tobacco Products Act is a huge step forward in New Mexico,"

Coombs said. "It's super important to have strong policies like this because it enforces important laws and guidelines to protect people. This policy, specifically, protects minors from the dangers of tobacco products, including e-cigarettes. I want to make a difference in my community by helping the youth of my generation decide to live tobacco-free."

Coombs is a junior at Arrowhead Park Early College High School and a member of Evolve-ment Youth.

According to a news release from the state, prior to the Tobacco Products Act, New Mexico was one of only 12 states without statewide tobacco retail-licensing requirements, despite evidence that such policies are effective in reducing the illegal sale of tobacco products to minors.

According to the New Mexico Youth Risk and Resiliency Survey, one in three New Mexico high school students reported current e-cigarette use in 2019.

"The need for a tobacco preventive policy has been exacerbated by the e-cigarette epidemic among youth," said Alcoholic Beverage Control Division Director Andrew Vallejos. "We're hopeful this new law will reverse that trend, keeping our young people away from tobacco products."

The Act requires all distributors, manufacturers and sellers to be licensed to sell tobacco products with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Division of the Regulation and Licensing Department, the news release said.

In conjunction with the New Mexico Department of Health, the No Minor Sale campaign was created in 2017 to educate New Mexicans about illegal tobacco sales and the need for tobacco retail licensing.

Beautiful Space Available

For office, retail or a combination, find yourself in this unique setting at 1740 Calle de Mercado at the edge of Mesilla.

The space is divided into a 1,600-square-foot area and a 1,000-square-foot area. Each is self-sufficient, with its own distinct entrance. They could be separate, or opened to create a 2,600-square-foot area. Any combination could work well as office space, retail, or both. Plenty of windows and light, with hardwood floors throughout.

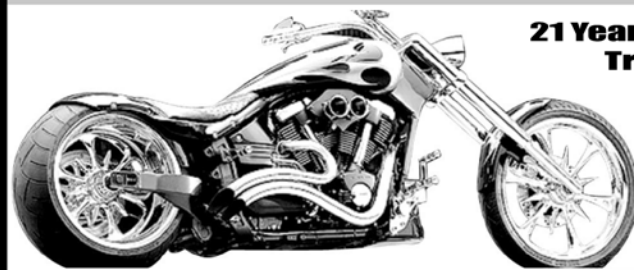

The space is located in the Bulletin plaza, with other active offices and a restaurant.

Elected officials, community leaders offer holiday messages

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Bulletin asked community leaders for holiday messages for our readers, and we're delighted to share the responses of those who got back to us.

Las Cruces Mayor Ken Miyagishima: "Thank you for your courage and strength during 2020. A special thank you to our health-care workers and first responders for keeping our city safe; you are all heroes! Wishing everyone a happy holiday season and a happy New Year!"

City Councilor Yvonne Flores: "My message is 'Peace on Earth, Good will towards all.' We have learned many lessons in 2020."

City Councilor Johana Bencomo: "There's no denying this year and this holiday season feel very different, what this pandemic has not taken away from us though, is our ability to hope, to be kind, and to support one another. Together we will get through this. I am wishing you all a joyous and safe holiday season."

Doña Ana County Commissioner Shannon Reynolds (He's Irish): "May love and laughter light your days and warm your heart and home. May good and faithful friends be yours wherever you may roam. May peace and plenty bless your world with joy that long endures. May all life's passing seasons bring you the best to you and yours."

Doña Ana County Clerk Amanda Lopez Askin: "This year, more than ever, I am grateful to live in such a caring and supportive community. My family wishes a peaceful, healthy and happy holiday season to each of you, with hope for a better year for us all in 2021!"

Las Cruces Green Chamber of Commerce CEO and President and state Senator-elect Car- rie Hamblen: "To adapt, to be flexible, to check in on our neighbors, and to care about our community. I hope, as we all anticipate a different landscape and life with 2021, we continue to apply these lessons to our lives and navigate our personal and professional circles with compassion, patience and understanding."

State Senator-elect Crystal Diamond of Elephant Butte (District 35): "Friends, family and neighbors: One of my joys this holiday season is the opportunity to say thank you and to wish you and those you love the very best. From my home to yours, Merry Christmas."

Las Cruces Public

Schools Board of Education President Terrie Dallman: "Year 2021

When we do get the green light, and we will, let's promise to reconnect with family, friends, appreciate your teachers/schools, thank our co-workers and finally, celebrate life — past, present and future."

LCPS Board of Education Vice President Maria Flores: "As 2020 winds down, we stand with those who have lost loved ones, gird ourselves for a quiet Christmas at home, and welcome 2021 with an open, hopeful heart. To LCPS teachers, staff and students, I am grateful for the patience, grace and sacrifice of this year. ¡Y para todo Las Cruces, Feliz Año Nuevo!"

NMSU Chancellor

Dan Arvizu: "I always draw inspiration from our students, and this year has been no different. Even with all the hardships 2020 has brought, our students continue to demonstrate strength, perseverance and determination to overcome anything life may throw their way. I genuinely hope that everyone in our community finds an opportunity during the coming days to pause and reflect on the events of the past year, and how far we've come as individuals and as a society. We've come a long way in a very short amount of time. Brighter days are on the horizon, and I'm very much looking forward to enjoying them."

NMSU President John Floros: "While this year has been incredibly challenging, we've seen many bright spots. The pandemic may have forced us apart, but it also brought us closer together, and we'll get through it. For our students and for our community, the need to stay vigilant and support each other is greater than ever. As we look ahead to better days in the new year, I wish everyone in our community peace and joy this holiday season."

Las Cruces Economic Development Department Director Griselda Martinez: "[Our department] extends a heartfelt thank you to our community. You are the lifeline to Las Cruces, and we wish you a new year full of opportunities! Happy Holidays!"

Las Cruces Quality of Life Department Director K. Lynn Gallagher: "Wishing that the magic of the holiday season brings us good health, peace, love and a return to the quality of life we come to expect in our world."

Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Debbi Moore: "My sincere wish for all is that the magic of the season surround all of us with love, joy, peace and happiness, even though our celebrations will be much different this year."

Doña Ana Arts Council Executive Director Greg Smith: "We wish for the arts to touch lives in ways that uplift and inspire creatively this holiday season. Additionally, we are pleased to join with several local governments in celebrating '2021 – The Year of the Artist,' starting in January. Our wish for the coming year is that this attention on the artists and the works that they create will be healing for our community, both through the power of the creative economy and through the pride we can take in the wide array of art created here. We do this with an eye toward more victories over the pandemic and greater confidence that, in 2021, time with friends and family can eventually occur safely in our region."

The Bridge of Southern New Mexico President and CEO Tracey Bryan: "I love this community, and we've been through a lot this year. As we end 2020, I'm very grateful for the countless thousands whose hard work, selflessness, and overwhelming generosity met more needs than we'll ever know. May they know how much we admire them and how grateful we are to them as a community. They are all heroes!"

The site of replacement well LRG-5063 POD5 is located northeast of La Mesa, NM and may be found approximately 0.7-mile northwest of the intersection of Highway 478 and Holguin Road. Old well LRG-5063-S will be plugged.

The applicant has requested emergency authorization to drill the proposed well under NMSA, 1978, Section 72-12-23. Dona Ana is the County affected by the diversion and in which the water has been or will be put to beneficial use. This notice is ordered to be published in the Las Cruces Bulletin. To view the application and supporting documentation contact the State Engineer District Office to arrange a date and time for an appointment located at 1680 Hickory Loop, Suite J, Las Cruces, NM 88005. Any person, firm or corporation or other entity having standing to file objections or protests shall do so in writing (objection must be legible, signed, and include the writer's complete name, phone number, email address, and mailing address). The objection to the approval of the application must be based on: (1) Impairment; if impairment, you must specifically identify your water rights; and/or (2) Public Welfare/Conservation of Water; if public welfare or conservation of water within the state of New Mexico, you must show how you will be substantially and specifically affected. The written protest must be filed, in triplicate, with the State Engineer, 1680 Hickory Loop, Suite J, Las Cruces, NM 88005 on or before January 29, 2021. Facsimiles (faxes) will be accepted as a valid protest if the hard copy is hand-delivered or mailed and postmarked within 24-hours of the facsimile. Mailing postmark will be used to validate the 24hour period. Protests can be faxed to the Office of the State Engineer, at 575-524-6160. If no valid protest or objection is filed, the State Engineer will evaluate the application in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 72 NMSA 1978.

"Movie: You Cannot Kill David Arquette"

David Darg and Price James directed this 2020 documentary that follows Arquette (the "Scream" movies) as he attempts a return to the wrestling ring after his acting career stalls. Wrestlers Ric Flair, Jack Perry and Dallas Page are among those appearing, as is Arquette's ex-wife Courteney Cox. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: The Secret Garden"

From the United Kingdom and director Marc Munden ("The Mark of Cain," "Miranda") comes this 2020 family drama about an orphaned girl who discovers a magical garden hidden at her strict uncle's estate. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: American Animals"

Bart Leyton wrote and directed this 2018 British-American crime drama about a real-life 2004 library heist that took place at Transylvania College in Kentucky. The notion of that theft occurs to art student Spencer (Barry Keoghan), who feels his life sorely lacks any real meaning, after he tours the rare book collection and then hatches a scheme with friend Warren (Evan Peters) to steal a few precious volumes.

7 p.m. on HGTV Surprising Santa Claus

Regular "Good Morning America" contributor Lara Spencer ("Flea Market Flip") teams up with inspired designers, contractors and volunteers to give the town of Santa Claus, Ind., the biggest Christmas present ever. The yuletide bonanza must be completed under formidable time constraints, however, since it involves two surprise home renovations and a bonus facelift for the town square intended to spread holiday cheer for the entire community.

8 p.m. on KRWG Call the Midwife

The 2020 yuletide episode of this beloved historical drama opens in December 1965, as everyone at Nonnatus House is looking forward to joyous and traditional holiday celebrations. As usual, however, many things don't go as planned, including a trip to the hospital for elderly Sister Monica Joan (Judy Parfitt). Elsewhere, Trixie (Helen George) is huffy about getting a subscription to a Marriage Bureau as a Christmas present, while a surprise reunion for Shelagh (Laura Main) draws her into a deeply moving birth experience.

tonight's picks

Jesse Marcel

10 a.m. on ESPN2
College Basketball

One of college basketball's most passionate rivalries gets another chapter today at KFC Yum! Center, where the Louisville Cardinals will defend home court from the Kentucky Wildcats. Though dominated by freshmen, the No. 20 Wildcats have a talented starting five led by a backcourt of Brandon Boston Jr. and Devin Askew, as well as a deep roster. As for the Cardinals, their fortunes lie with two talented players in guards David Johnson and Carlik Jones.

4 p.m. on IFC
Movie: A Christmas Story 2

Some people may well question why this sequel is needed almost 30 years later, but here it is. Braeden Lemasters inherits the pivotal role of Ralphie, now a teen whose obsession with a BB gun has given way to his desire for a convertible car. If you thought Mom (Stacey Travis) was worried before, imagine her level of concern here. The gruff family patriarch also is present again, with Daniel Stern assuming the shoes and sharp tongue of Darren McGavin.

5 p.m. on TOON
Movie: Smallfoot

Based on an unpublished children's book by Sergio Pablos, this charming 2018 computer-animated musical comedy from director Karey Kirkpatrick follows a band of Yeti whose peaceful life in the Himalayas is disrupted when they encounter a human airplane pilot (voice by Jack Quaid) whose plane has crashed. They're stunned because, of course, up until now they thought humans were mythical creatures. The large voice cast also includes Channing Tatum, James Corden, Zendaya, Common, LeBron James and Gina Rodriguez.

6 p.m. on TCM
Movie: Casablanca

"Play it once, Sam. For old times' sake." An exiled and bitter American (Humphrey Bogart) running a popular nightclub in Casablanca can't help but fall in love again with his one-time sweetheart (Ingrid Bergman) in this 1942 film that is one of the true Hollywood classics. He decides to use stolen documents to escape Nazi-occupied Morocco with her, but things don't go as planned. Horror-film icon Peter Lorre gives a fine supporting performance.

7 p.m. on HISTORY
History's Greatest Mysteries

The new episode "Roswell: The First Witness — The Writer" takes investigator Ben Smith to the hometown of the late U.S. Army Major Jesse Marcel, who was the first officer on the scene after a "flying disk" crash landed in New Mexico in July 1947. Marcel died in 1986, but Smith seeks to talk with surviving family members who have information that supports Marcel's story of a subsequent government cover-up. Laurence Fishburne is the narrator.

7 p.m. on TRAV
Most Terrifying With Jason Hawes

In a new episode called "Blackbeard's Vengeance,"

a monstrous headmistress who tortures innocent

tonight's picks

Mayim Bialik

11 a.m. on CNBC
Empires of New York

This limited documentary series event wraps up with a finale called "Legacy of the '80s: Greed Is Still Good," which sees the same titans who gave New York a dramatic makeover now being devoured by their own creation. As the decade of the 1990s begins, some are either in jail or awaiting sentencing, while others are left licking their fiscal wounds in the wake of humiliating defeats. Even as their former admirers cheer their downfall, however, the American Dream now reflects an aversion to modesty and an appreciation of shamelessness.

6 p.m. on KFOX
The Masked Dancer

This companion series to "The Masked Singer" started out on Ellen DeGeneres' daytime talk show as a recurring spoof of "Masked Singer." Evidently the programming executives at Fox didn't get the joke, though, because the concept — in which mystery celebrities wearing head-to-toe dance costumes and facial masks perform dances with a partner — is now a full-blown new one-hour program in its own right. Craig Robinson is host; Ken Jeong, Paula Abdul, Brian Austin Green and Ashley Tisdale are the panelists. The show moves to Wednesdays on Jan. 6.

6 p.m. on LIFEMOV
Movie: Cheer Squad Secrets

Kelly (Margaret Anne Florence) succeeds in helping her daughter, Amelie (Karis Cameron), win the coveted position of cheerleading squad captain in this 2020 thriller, but she's far less thrilled to discover someone is giving Amelie some mysterious performance-enhancing supplements — and that person is prepared to do anything, up to and including murder, to cover up that arrangement. Anita Brown and Matthew Anderson also star.

6:20 p.m. on KTSM
NFL Football

A clash of division leaders is in the offing tonight at Lambeau Field, where Aaron Rodgers and the Green Bay Packers hope to lock up the NFC North with a victory over Ryan Tannehill and the AFC South-leading Tennessee Titans. The 37-year-old Rodgers has found the fountain of youth this season and he recently added another laurel in his storied career, throwing his 400th touchdown pass, thus becoming the fastest quarterback in NFL history to do so.

7 p.m. on KFOX
2021 Fox Winter Preview

Mayim Bialik, who stars in the new Fox sitcom "Call Me Kat," joins "The Masked Dancer" host Craig Robinson and Curt Menefee from the Fox Sports team to anchor this half-hour preview special, which provides a sneak peak at the new and returning shows to the network's lineup. Fan favorites ready to start a new season include "The Resident"; "911" and its spinoff, "911: Lone Star"; "Prodigal Son"; "Hell's Kitchen"; and the Sunday night animated lineup including "The Simpsons," "Bob's Burgers" and "Family Guy."

7 p.m. on FOOD
Restaurant Hustle 2020: All on the Line

Food Network personality Guy Fieri is executive producer of this fascinating new two-hour special, in which superstar chefs and restaurateurs Maneet Chauhan, Antonia Lofaso, Christian Petroni and Marcus Samuelsson take up cameras and, abetted by friends, family and colleagues, give viewers a candid first-hand look at the challenges their restaurants have faced during the coronavirus pandemic. Owing to its very nature, the restaurant industry has suffered staggering losses due to restrictions against crowds in close spaces, threatening what chef Tom Colicchio has called "an extinction-level event."

8 p.m. on TRAV
Bigfoot is Real

The GCBRO team rushes in to help a desperate young woman and her husband who say they're being terrorized by Bigfoot repeatedly pounding on the walls of their residence in the new episode "Knock, Knock, It's Bigfoot." While they are investigating the property, the team finds a huge hand print that is at least two times larger than a human hand.

6:15 p.m. on KVIA NFL Football
The Buffalo Bills could possibly lock up their first AFC East title in a quarter century today in the unfriendly confines of Gillette Stadium, where Josh Allen and company hope to emerge victorious against Cam Newton and the New England Patriots. Allen didn't have his best game against the Pats in Week 8, but it was defensive end Justin Zimmer and safety Dean Marlowe who combined on the game's decisive play, a Newton fumble and recovery with 31 seconds to go to seal a 24-21 Bills victory.

7 p.m. on HISTORY Pawn Stars
A thrilled Corey calls for backup when a seller comes into the shop with a truly iconic piece of Sammy Hagar memorabilia in the new episode "The Need for Speed." Elsewhere, Rick ponders whether to buy a vintage whiskey strap, while Chumlee eyes a Nintendo demo system that inspires him to create a video game about the pawn shop. Later, Rick checks out one of the Harry Potter books that is signed by its author, J.K. Rowling.
7 p.m. on ID Atlanta Justice
This new weekly true-crime series chronicles the formidable teamwork demonstrated by members of the elite Atlanta Homicide Unit, which has one of the highest clearance rates in the country. Among the standouts are Detectives Nicole Redlinger and JD Stephens, and prosecutors Leif Howard and Tanya Miller. In the series premiere, the team investigates the death of Bobby Jackson, whose corpse, fully wrapped in silver tape, is discovered dumped in a church playground. Two different women claim to be Bobby's fiancée, and each accuses the other of being the killer.

8 p.m. on TRAV Paranormal Declassified
In the new episode "Chasing Skinwalkers," investigative journalist and host Paul Beban digs into Navajo folklore to learn more about evil shape-shifters known as skinwalkers in that Native American culture. During his investigation, Paul tracks the mythical beasts from the heart of Navajo Nation to the infamous Skinwalker Ranch in Utah to Wisconsin, where he captures something unexplainable.
10 p.m. on HBO His Dark Materials
As all paths converge on Cit-tàgazze, the mission to find Will's (Amir Wilson) father (Andrew Scott) becomes more pressing in the Season 2 finale. Having narrowly survived the balloon crash, Jopari and Lee (Scott, Lin-Manuel Miranda) try to locate the knife bearer, but the agents of the Magisterium are in close pursuit. Elsewhere, Ruta (Jade Anouka) updates Serafina (Ruta Gedmintas) on Asriel's plans, but Serafina insists her duty is to Lyra (Dafne Keen).

tonight's picks

"Laura Ingalls Wilder: Prairie to Page"

6 p.m. on TCM
Movie: The Graduate
Mike Nichols received an Oscar for directing this 1967 comedy about a young man who is seduced by his mother's friend, then falls in love with the woman's daughter. Dustin Hoffman's performance in the title role, backed by the haunting Simon & Garfunkel musical score, captured the spirit of a generation. The film airs here as part of TCM's marathon memorial tribute to artists who died in 2020, such as Oscar-nominated "Graduate" screenwriter Buck Henry. The marathon also includes "Sweet Bird of Youth" (Shirley Knight), "This Is Spinal Tap" (Fred Willard), "The Front"

(Jerry Stiller) and "Evil Under the Sun" (Diana Rigg).

6 p.m. on TLC 7 Little Johnstons

Trent and Amber Johnston return for a new season of adventures with their family, who have gone through multiple changes since last season. All the adult kids are back under one roof, although Jonah has a long-distance girlfriend, a relationship that is serious enough for him to consider moving to a different state to be closer to her. Anna was loving her college experience, until the COVID-19 pandemic shuttered in-person classes, forcing her to return home to her family. Meanwhile, Trent and Amber try to keep their marriage fresh.

7 p.m. on KRWG American Masters

Emmy-winning filmmaker Mary McDonagh Murphy takes a clear-eyed look at American author Laura Ingalls Wilder, a Midwestern farm woman who published her first novel at age 65 and turned her frontier childhood into the bestselling "Little House" books. Drawing on previously unpublished letters, photographs and family artifacts, the documentary explores the context in which Wilder lived and wrote, as well as the true nature of her personality. Victor Garber narrates; interviewees include Melissa Gilbert and other cast members of the hit TV series adaptation, "Little House on the Prairie."

7 p.m. on KVIA2 Popstar's Best of 2020

Elizabeth Stanton ("World's Funniest Animals") serves as host for this new one-hour special, wherein she counts down what polls from Popstar Magazine indicates were the greatest and most memorable moments and trends of 2020, which many viewers no doubt will consider a year that will live in infamy.

8 p.m. on KVIA The Year: 2020

Robin Roberts hosts the 10th anniversary edition of this two-hour special that looks back at events that defined the past 12 months, including the COVID-19 pandemic and the contentious presidential race. George Stephanopoulos, Michael Strahan and David Muir are among the multiple co-hosts joining Roberts, along with such guests as actors Eugene Levy ("Schitt's Creek") and Kal Penn, political commentator Michael Eric Dyson, fashion designer Christian Siriano, comics Joel McHale and Nikki Glaser, "Queer Eye" streaming star Karamo Brown and country musician Brad Paisley.

8 p.m. on KVIA2 Tell Me a Story

In the Season 2 finale, "Ever After," Tucker and Maddie (Paul Wesley, Odette Annable) are forced to resort to desperate measures as they frantically try to escape Olivia's (Danielle Campbell) clutches. Elsewhere, Simone (Ashley Madekwe) grows ever more suspicious of her step-brother, and a vindictive Taylor (Audrey Corsa) sets her final plan in motion.

8 p.m. on FOOD Supermarket Stakeout

Alex Guarnaschelli returns as host for a new season of this free-wheeling culinary competition in which four chefs vie in a pop-up kitchen outside a grocery store. They're given an assigned theme for each round, but to get the ingredients they can use, each chef must size up actual shoppers leaving the store and negotiate to get their groceries. The least successful chef is eliminated at the end of each round, and the last chef standing wins a year's worth of groceries.

8 p.m. on CNBC Streets of Dreams With Marcus Lemonis

"The Profit" host Marcus Lemonis takes viewers on a tour of some of the U.S. business world's most iconic streets in this new five-episode series, which highlights stories of the entrepreneurs and unique business cultures that help define those thoroughfares. From the country music scene on Music Row in Nashville, Tenn., to the fast-growing marijuana industry of Denver's Green Mile, Lemonis shares personal stories of bold personalities determined to make their mark. First up: New York's Diamond District, the $24-billion block on 47th Street.

tonight's picks

7 p.m. on KVIA2
Heroes on the Front Line

Dean Cain ("Masters of Illusion") serves as host for this new one-hour special that, like several other such tributes, takes a moment to honor those on the ground heroes and front line emergency workers who selflessly risked their own welfare to keep other Americans safe and cared for during the topsy-turvy reality of a global pandemic.

8 p.m. on FOOD
Beat Bobby Flay

There's more facial hair in the kitchen than usual in the new

Dean Cain

episode "Mustache Takeover" as mustachioed chefs Saransh Oberoi and Tom Cuomo face off for a shot at taking down clean shaven master Bobby Flay. Actor and chef David Burtka joins restaurateur Donatella Arpaia to cheer on all the culinary action.

8:08 p.m. on USA
Movie: Fast & Furious

The central cast of the original movie in the "Fast and the Furious" franchise — Vin Diesel, Paul Walker, Michelle Rodriguez and Jordana Brewster — is reunited in this fourth chapter, successful because it adds solid character development to the expectedly frantic automotive action. A personal tragedy reunites the former enemies played by Diesel and Walker to bring down a smug-gling kingpin.

What's Available NOW On

"Movie: Hope Gap"

Bill Nighy and four-time Oscar nominee Annette Bening give memorable performances in this drama in which they star as Edward and Grace, who have been married for nearly three decades, but Grace's world tilts sharply on its axis when her husband announces he is leaving her for another woman. The film charts the turbulent emotional journey Grace is forced to take in the aftermath of that announcement.

"Yearly Departed"

Emmy winner Rachel Brosnahan ("The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel") is among the executive producers of this comedy special hosted by comedian Phoebe Robinson ("2 Dope Queens") that puts the coda to 2020. Among those delivering eulogies for the year that will soon be history are Sarah Silverman, Tiffany Haddish, Natasha Leggero, Natasha Rothwell, Ziwe, Patti Harrison and Brosnahan. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: Supervized"

From across the pond comes this 2019 comedy from director Steve Barron ("Mike Bassett: Interim Manager," "Coneheads") about four aging international superheroes in an Ireland retirement home who come together for one last hurrah. The talented cast includes Tom Berenger, Beau Bridges, Louis Gossett Jr., Fionnula Flanagan and Elya Baskin.

"Movie: Tenet"

Oscar nominee Christopher Nolan ("Inception," "Dunkirk") directed this 2020 sci-fi actioner that casts John David Washington ("BlacKkKlansman") as a secret agent who embarks on a dangerous and time-bending mission to prevent the start of World War III. The talented cast for the joint U.S./U.K. production also includes Robert Pattinson, Elizabeth Debicki, Kenneth Branagh and Michael Caine.

In Focus

"The Ultimate Playlist of Noise" (Hulu — movie premiere, Jan. 15, 2021)

Learning he must undergo brain surgery that will render him deaf, an audio-obsessed high-school senior (Kean Johnson, "Nashville") sets off on a mission to record a playlist of all his favorite sounds. His adventures bring him into the life of a struggling musician (Madeline Brewer, "The Handmaid's Tale"), with whom he sets off on a cross-country trek. Rya Kihlstedt and Ian Gomez also star in this movie from first-time filmmaker Bennett Lasseter.

WandaVision: Season 1 (Disney+ — series premiere, Jan. 15, 2021)

Marvel Cinematic Universe's Wanda Maximoff and The Vision are at the center of this original action series, which catches up with the characters (played by Elizabeth Olsen and Paul Bettany) as they're living in idealized lives in suburbia but suspecting all may not be what it seems. Kat Dennings, Kathryn Hahn, Randall Park and Teyonah Parris are also in the solid cast.

New art gallery features artist's unique photogravures

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Gallery 925 has opened its doors at 925 N. Mesquite St., just a five-minute walk east from Main Street downtown.

Owner Diane Alire bought the property in January, completed renovations and decided to open 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays by appointment only until public health orders are eased or lifted.

"I wanted to share the work," said Alire, a native of Alabama who moved to Las Cruces six years ago after living and working in Albuquerque.

Alire's work consists of photographs and photogravures, a process which "involves transferring a photograph to a photosensitive plate, developing the plate and then inking it and printing it on an etching press," she said. "This produces limited-edition prints."

Photogravures give Alire and other artists "an opportunity for more creativity," she said, because they allow for "all sorts of changes," like adding different colors and changing or even eliminating elements in the original photograph.

"I may be one of the few galleries in town that shows photogravures," she said.

Alire is exhibiting her own work in her 900-square-foot gallery right now, including photographs, photogravures and mixed-media pieces.

"My subject matter is very eclectic," she said. "My favorite thing to photograph is architecture."

Alire plans to show the work of other artists and offer photogravure workshops, perhaps as early as next summer. She taught photography classes at a private college in Albuquerque and at Doña Ana Community College in Las Cruces.

To make an appointment to visit Gallery 925, email Alire at artserf@fastmail.com.

A Tale of Two Trees

By MEL STONE

Las Cruces photographer

This is a story about two photogenic giants that inspired my photographic journey. And both were situated to show off one of Las Cruces' best features, the Organ Mountains.

This is about two tall, dead trees.

One tree seemed to exist in obscurity, but it and I had a long relationship. I first photographed this tree (I dubbed it "Organ Sentinel") in January 2010 while I was in Las Cruces looking for property to open an art gallery.

The tree is located in a field on the east edge of Mesilla behind what was then the Preston Contemporary Art Center.

After I moved to Las Cruces in April 2010, when conditions looked favorable (fairly clear in the west and a few nice clouds hovering around the Organs), I would head over to visit my friend.

The image I call "Organ Sunset" was made in late July of 2010.

After that, I didn't visit the tree very much. I did go back in November 2015. Of course, a few twigs and branches had disappeared. When I showed up, there was another photographer on site.

When the sun went down, he left. I stayed. The sky and mountains turned purple and produced the shot I call "Dusky."

On a Friday in the spring of 2020, before COVID, I decided to pay my old friend a visit.

It was gone!

I posted the sad news on Facebook and got a few responses. The next day, a Saturday, at the Farmers and Crafts Market of Las Cruces (yes, I do have a gallery but also sell at the market), I told my sad tale to a customer.

"Well, never mind," she said. "There's another dead tree waiting for you out on Fairacres Road."

If Organ Sentinel, the tree on the east edge of Mesilla, lived in obscurity, this old, dead tree located on a busy road on the west edge of Las Cruces was famous — I just had never heard of it.

Finally, in July I found my new tree and made the shot titled "Fairacres Tree B&W" — not the best conditions (I like to photograph early in the day or around sunset), but I captured an image of a new tree.

After Daylight Saving Time ended, I was more likely to visit my new friend under better conditions. On Nov. 2, 2020, I was photographing the Fairacres tree with fairly decent light. Then, I left. But not too far down the road I saw the sky starting to turn purple. A quick U-turn and I was back in position to capture “Fairacres Tree Purple.”

In all, I visited the Fairacres tree nine times. Several times, I saw people just pull off the road for a quick cellphone shot of this old, dead cottonwood. Another couple stopped to tell how much they loved this thing and showed me a photo they had taken.

On Nov. 27, 2020, once more I headed out to the Fairacres tree and captured Fairacres Panorama.

On Saturday, Dec. 5, 2020, Facebook exploded

when someone posted a photo of the Fairacres tree lying on its side (“Fairacres Last”) — it had been cut down.

That Sunday, I drove out to verify that the deed had been done. Hundreds of posts have hit Facebook; here’s a sample: “Loved that old snag... I even made it my wall picture.” “So much character in that tree, sad to see it go.” “That was my favorite tree in the whole Las Cruces.” “So sad.” “It had spirit.” “Loved going down the road just to see that old tree.” “Oh no! Glad I got some snaps.”

My sentiments exactly — the end of a decade and two great trees.

THERE IS A CURE.
TELL OUR LAWMAKERS TO LOWER Rx PRICES.

We're paying twice as much for prescription drugs than other countries. Many New Mexicans are struggling to afford the prescriptions they need—having to choose between buying groceries or their medications. And now with COVID-19, things have only gotten worse as more people lose their jobs. Unfair drug pricing is a life and death issue. That's why AARP New Mexico is fighting for affordable prescription drugs. It's time for New Mexico lawmakers to enact the Prescription Drug Affordability Board to evaluate high drug costs and set reasonable rates for consumers. Because the prices we're paying are just too high.

Black Box Theatre streams many holiday favorites in 'Light in Winter's Darkness'

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"T" was the night before Christmas and all through the house, the stage was alive — from your very own couch."

That's how Black Box Theatre of Las Cruces is touting No Strings Theatre Company's "Light in Winter's Darkness," directed by veteran Las Cruces actor/director Nikka Ziemer.

The two-hour show is streaming 7 p.m.-midnight every night through Sunday, Dec. 31.

It features local actors performing classic readings and songs, including "T'was the Night Before Christmas" and "Silent Night," with some unexpected twists and turns, like Genno Tafoya's reading of a Mexican version of the famous holiday poem:

"It was the night before Christmas and all through the casa..." with Santa "in a big, red sombrero," with a sleigh and eight little burros (with names like Pancho and Pepe).

Also included is Nancy Clein Tafoya's Hawaiian version of "The 12 Days of Christmas," including five big fat pig, four flower lei, three dried squid, two coconut and one mynah bird in a papaya tree."

The cast also includes Ziemer, Doug Abbott, Erin Wendorf, Karen Buerdsel, Debbie Jo Felix, Stuart Kelter, Amalia Kelter Zeitlin, Jacob Zeitlin Kelter, Leora Zeitlin, Autumn Gieb and Bobby Senecal.

Music for the production is by Ziemer, Gieb and Senecal.

You will also hear "How the Fir Tree Became the Christmas Tree" (Abbott's reading); "The Gift of Magi" (Wendorf's reading); "The Christmas Present" (Buerdsel's read-

Las Cruces author writes espionage, adventure novel

BULLETIN REPORT

Las Cruces author Joe Foster has used his background in surveillance and reconnaissance technologies for the military to write a new espionage and adventure novel.

Foster had been working as a rocket scientist for the U.S. military when planes struck the Twin Towers of the World Trade Center, he said in a news release.

Soon after 9/11, Foster transitioned his expertise into the highly specialized field of hostile-force tagging, tracking and locating, he said. Working with the U.S. Special Operations Command, the FBI and the intelligence community, Foster said he worked side-by-side with U.S. Army Rangers, Navy SEALs and Air Force Combat Controllers to transition his technologies from the laboratory to the rugged environments of the Middle East.

Along the way, he became an FAA-certified pilot, a U.S. Coast-Guard-licensed boat captain and a divemaster.

His latest book, "The BiniSphere," begins on the eve of World War II, as Ettore Majorana — one of the most intelligent nuclear physicists in the world — discovers a new sub-atomic particle. But before his secret can get out, he mysteriously disappears. The repercussions of the young physicist's actions leave waves that, 80 years later, reach the rocky shores of Ocean Point, Maine.

Perry Franklin, a U.S. government researcher, is pulled from forced retirement to investigate a strange phenomenon that shut down one of the CIA's most sophisticated spy satellites. Odd clues soon lead him to an isolated village on the northern coast of Sicily, where he finds much more than he was looking for.

To avoid disturbing the delicate balance of nuclear powers, Franklin must put his career and his life in the hands of a woman, a family and a culture unlike any he'd experienced before.

ing); "The Little Match Girl" (Felix's reading); "In the Bleak Midwinter" (Zimmer's reading, sung by Gieb); Gieb performing "Silent Night" on the flute and singing "Suo Gan" (Welch for "Lullaby"); "Celebrating Chanukah" with the Zeitlins and Kelters and "End of Year Bells" with Senecal on the piano.

The performances are wonderful — joyous and heartfelt. The sound quality is outstanding, and so are the graphics. You will enjoy this show very much. Five stars (of Bethlehem?) to director Ziemer, producer Ceil Herman, technical director Peter Herman and the entire cast.

"Light in Winter's Darkness," the final production of Black Box Theatre's interrupted 2019-20 season, has professional closed captioning, if needed.

If you currently have Black Box Theatre PPP season tickets, pre-pur-

Hope and Beauty

Las Cruces artist Joey Avalos has produced a new painting called "Spirit of the Dancing Skies," a 24-inch by 30-inch work in colored pencil and ink. It includes the Basilica of San Albino on the historic Mesilla Plaza, the silhouette of a spirit dancer and lighting strikes in the sky, which Avalos said are "ushering in the monsoon rains for the thirsty fields of the Mesilla Valley." The painting brings a message of hope during a difficult time. "We are a spiritual people. We rely on our faith to get us through," Avalos said. He said prints of the artwork should be available for sale by mid-December. You can see his artwork at ABC Printing Company, 406 N. Main St. downtown. He shows his work in front of ABC Printing during the Farmers and Crafts Market of Las Cruces. Find him on Facebook at www.facebook.com/joey.avalos.7.

Lorenzo's: 25 and still going strong

By RICHARD COLTHARP
Las Cruces Bulletin

Vince Vaccaro was cooking before he was tall enough to see the top of the stove.

He spent time living with each of his grandmothers, one of whom was barely taller than the 7-year-old Vince.

"My Grandma Vaccaro was 4-foot-11, and she'd stand on a box to work in the kitchen," Vince Vaccaro said in November, which was also the 25th anniversary month for his restaurant in Las Cruces, Lorenzo's Italian, now located at the Pan Am Plaza on University Avenue.

"I would hang out and help her and taste everything," Vince said.

To this day, the meatballs at Lorenzo's are sweetened with currants similar to those he would pick from the vine to help his grandmother cook her sauces, which would simmer 12 hours on the stove.

His other grandmother, Mama Gina, was a specialist in baking, and he recalls the pasta hanging in her kitchen.

In 1995, Vaccaro left his home in California's Bay Area and headed east. He opened his store in Las Cruces in November of that year, in the space where Andelé restaurant is today.

A couple of years later, in 1997, the restaurant moved to its current location at Pan Am Plaza, in a building that once was a Rex Roast Beef restaurant. At that point he was joined in the operation by his sister, Mary Ostland, who now serves as general manager. Her sons Adam and Anthony, Vince's nephews, also work as managers at the restaurant, making it truly a family affair.

Over the years, Vince and his business have become intertwined with the city, the university, the people and the businesses.

"I would not want to be anywhere else but Las Cruces," Vince said. "It's been not only my livelihood, but my community, too. Being here 25 years has just been a joy."

If you're dining in the restaurant, there's a good chance Vince will greet you personally. Customers have become friends, and he's watched countless families grow and change through the years.

He has always been a supporter of New Mexico State University athletics, and when basketball players, football players and other athletes return to Las Cruces years after their athletic careers, they often stop in and visit the place where they had so much pizza, pasta and fun during their college days. Vaccaro recalls the challenge of setting up a table for former Aggie basketballers, and brothers, Sim and Tanveer Bhullar, 7-foot-6 and 7-foot-3, respectively.

Vaccaro traces his heritage to Sicily, the island that's the "football" to Italy's boot. So, the flavors of the restaurant lean Sicilian, which are different because of the island climate and being separated from the mainland.

One of the most popular items at Lorenzo's is the tasty, soft and highly addictive bread. Vaccaro credits the influence of the bread to another family member, his father, who had restaurants in Arizona. The same dough is used for the pizzas.

He strives to cook with the highest quality and freshest possible ingredients available, and he said he's grateful one of the largest cheese producers in the Southwest is right in Las Cruces' backyard: Saputo Cheese (formerly F&A Dairy) in the West Mesa industrial area.

In recent years, Lorenzo's has added menu variations for those on gluten-free and low-carb diets, including alternative pizza crusts made from almond flour and cauliflower.

He's also added some New Mexico flair, with green chile versions of his con sugo sauce, lasagna and other items.

"We find a way to put green chile in everything," he said. "My grandmother would kill me!"

As much energy and attention as Vaccaro pays to the recipes and the food, he says it's not the top priority for most customers.

"The three most important things for a restaurant, in this order, are service, ambiance and food," Vaccaro said. He trains his staff to provide the same friendly, attentive service he himself provides. The ambiance in the restaurant includes murals on the walls depicting Sicilian scenes, including one fisherman who bears an uncanny resemblance to Vaccaro.

"The restaurant business is extremely difficult," Vaccaro said. "It's really like nine different businesses in one. We really strive to be consistent in our quality, both in the food and the service."

When Lorenzo's first opened in 1995, the Internet was in its infancy.

Now it's everywhere.

"It also makes everybody a food critic," he said, alluding to the minefield that is Yelp reviews and other user forums.

One such review troubled Vaccaro until he dug a little deeper. Vaccaro uses only Black Angus ribeyes, so was disappointed when a diner termed the steak as being too tough. He eventually learned the critic wore false teeth, but hadn't put them in for the meal at

Next in the history of money: The Coffee Standard

I want to argue for a coffee standard in money! A standard that would be enforced not by national governments but by Starbucks. Let me explain.

The ultimate social network is money. Just like Facebook and Twitter, the value arises from its use by others. And where there is a social media, there are tech companies ready to monetize the information that can be gleaned from it.

Thus, it's not surprising many tech companies have created their own payment apps. Here in the United States, leaders in this area are Google Pay and Apple Pay, but neither has much market share.

CHRIS ERICKSON
State of the Economy

If you look around the world, the economy where payment apps have gained the most traction is not the United States, but Africa. And the issuers of these apps are not tech companies, but traditional telephone companies.

How did telephone companies come to dominate the payment system in Africa? First it's the lack of competitors. Many people in Africa were unbanked, meaning that they did not have easy access to the payment system, like check-writing privileges.

Second, cell phone technology is much cheaper to deploy than a traditional landline system. It's much less expensive to erect a cell tower every 20 miles or so than it is to run miles and miles of landlines between relatively isolated homes.

The development of cell-phone technology has allowed for the roll out of telephone services in even very remote regions in recent years. The widespread availability of cell phones puts cheap computers into the hands of large numbers of people who previously never had access to traditional banks.

Third was the establishment of a network of physical stores necessary to put those cell phones into the hands of consumers — stores that can serve double duty as impromptu bank offices.

This last aspect of African payment systems is that telephone branch offices serve as the equivalent of bank branches. This is key. It seems that having physical locations one can go to for service is critical for a useful payment system.

Developed countries have built out banking systems that dominate the payment system. This built-out branch system give banks a competitive advantage that tech companies' payment apps have not been able to overcome.

So, does there exist a company that both has a widely available app download onto many consumers' cells that also has an extensive branch system to compete with banks? The answer is yes, and it is Starbucks!

The Starbucks app has 25 million users, which includes about 40 percent of all mobile payment users, and there are 15,000 Starbucks in the United States, more than 30,000 globally. That is three times as many domestic locations as Wells Fargo, the bank with the most extensive branch network.

And let's face it, coffee is much more addictive than ATM usage.

LORENZO'S

Lorenzo's.

A year ago, Vaccaro was looking forward to having lots of celebrations recognizing the restaurant's 25th anniversary. COVID, however, has changed that. Instead, Vaccaro has spent much of the year coming up with creative responses to the limitations imposed by the virus and the state-mandated restaurant restrictions.

Curbside pickup, delivery, an outdoor tent and $15 pizzas are just some of the new additions 2020 has seen. And if you want to cook your own spaghetti, you can still top it with Lorenzo's Con Sugo sauces, regular or with green chile, now available in jars at the restaurant and at other outlets in town, including Toucan Market.

"I'm just humbled," Vaccaro said of the restaurant's anniversary. "I still can't believe these people keep coming back, eating the food I grew up on."

HOW HAVE YOUR PLANS CHANGED?

Help local businesses...

COVID-19 is impacting our community and local business in many ways. The business uncertainty over the next few months is one of many challenges. The economy and how we shop has changed, yet we do not know by how much or how long.

To help with some of the uncertainty, please take the time to start a survey about your current shopping needs.

This information will help local business and this newspaper get a better understanding of your needs and plans.

La Clinica de Familia is there for you

BULLETIN REPORT

The holiday season is normally a time of joy and happiness. However, because of the change in weather and shorter days with less sunlight, for some, this season is accompanied by something known as Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD) or “winter depression,” according to a news release from La Clinica de Familia (LCDF).

SAD is a form of depression that happens in late fall and may last through the winter months and into early spring. Marked by low energy and feeling moody, this type of depression is not uncommon as the reduced levels of sunlight interfere with the body's internal clock, LCDF said.

This reduction in sunlight may also cause a drop in serotonin and melatonin in our body. According to the National Alliance on Mental Health website, some symptoms of SAD may include: social withdrawal, over sleeping, over eating (especially carbohydrates) and subsequent weight gain.

This year, LCDF said, COVID-19 is an added component to the issue of depression and behavioral health and has increased high-risk behaviors.

Jose Valdiviezo, behavioral health services clinical director at LCDF, said the Behavioral Health Division of the New Mexico Human Services Department anticipates a 20 percent increase in behavioral health needs in New Mexico related to COVID-19, in addition to what individuals may already be experiencing.

The Centers for Disease

Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that during the pandemic, there has been an increase in mental health issues among adults. The CDC reports that from June 24-30, 13.3 percent of adults started or increased substance use to cope with the pandemic, 11 percent seriously considered suicide, 30.9 percent experienced anxiety/depression symptoms and 26.3 percent had symptoms of trauma or stressor-related disorder related to the pandemic.

LCDF said Doña Ana County can count on an array of behavioral health specialty services to help manage mental health concerns or needs.

Not only can patients access services at LCDF at their locations between Las Cruces and Sunland Park, there is also a 24-hour crisis service hotline patients can call: 1-844-622-7099. Services are available in person and via telemedicine based on the needs and preferences of individuals and families.

LCDF's regular business office number, 575-647-2800, also is available to those in need of behavioral health services.

Other services provided by LCDF include adult outpatient therapy, children outpatient therapy, assertive community treatment, crisis-intervention services, comprehensive medication management, comprehensive community support, behavior-management services, multi-systemic therapy and sexual-behavior adaptation, psychosocial rehabilitation, treatment foster care, family-based emergency shelter and supportive housing, the release said.

City says to volunteers: ‘Mask up to clean up’

FROM A CITY OF LAS CRUCES NEWS RELEASE

“Mask Up to Clean Up”, the COVID-safe variation of the Keep Las Cruces Beautiful (KLCB) “Team Up to Clean Up” district events, will be held 8 a.m.-noon, Saturday, Dec. 19, in City Council District 2, represented by Councilor Tessa Abeyta-Stuve.

With COVID-19 safety guidelines still in place, community members can do clean-ups in neighborhoods or litter-prone areas of the city individually or with immediate family or in groups of five or fewer.

KLCB has arranged for two roll-off containers, provided by Las Cruces

Utilities Solid Waste, to be available during the event through Sunday, Dec. 20, for use by community members to dispose of trash and large waste. The containers will be located at Frenger Park, 800 Parkview Drive, and at Gomez Park, 2283 S. Espina St.

KLCB staff will have a supply station at the Frenger Park location during the event with trash bags, gloves and trash pick-up tools. Participants should wear masks, practice social distancing and wash their hands regularly or use hand sanitizer.

“Team Up to Clean Up!” is a beautification program initiated in 2019 to help reverse the process of neighborhood deterioration and enhance the quality of life in the city.

“Mask Up to Clean Up!” is a call to enlist the community during the pandemic to voluntarily pitch in to do clean-ups safely where they live to create a cleaner, safer and healthier environment.

Upcoming cleanups by city council district (all events are 8 a.m.-noon on Saturdays, with roll-off containers available) are as follows:

- District 1 (represented Mayor Pro Tempore Kasandra A. Gandara): to be scheduled;

- District 3 (Gabriel Vasquez): Jan. 23, 2021;
- District 4 (Johana Bencomo): Feb. 20;
- District 5 (Gill Sorg): March 20;
- District 6 (Yvonne Flores): April 17

Time for a Refresher on Proper Lifting

From digging out boxes of holiday decor and hauling packages to and from home, to hiding gifts away on higher shelves at the back of the closet, the holiday season requires its fair share of bending, lifting and reaching. This is an ideal time for a refresher on proper lifting methods. Back pain and injury can put a real damper on the holiday season, yet it's one of the most common conditions Physical Therapists treat. Fortunately, it's also a condition that's preventable. One of the ways to keep the spine healthy is learning and practicing proper lifting techniques."

Needless to say, preventing back pain is a key concern when someone does a lot of bending and lifting. After all, approximately 80% of all Americans will experience back pain at some point in their lives, making it one of the top causes of disability in the U.S.

The back, however, should not be one's only area of concern when lifting. When we talk about proper lifting techniques, we're talking about protecting the back. But, we're also looking to minimize strain on the entire body. The goal is to put yourself in a position that allows the body's musculoskeletal system to work as one cohesive unit, without putting too much strain on one area, such as the lower back, hips or shoulders.

Dennis Prickett
Physical Therapist
Co-owner of Atrium
Physical Therapy

Taking this all into consideration, I suggest that you follow these tips for proper lifting:

Warm Up: Don't ever assume your body is ready to lift heavy objects without first being thoroughly warmed up. Take the time to stretch your lower back, legs and hips. Also, do a few jumping jacks, high knees or lunges to get your blood flowing.

Get Close: Avoid reaching for heavy or moderately sized objects. Get nice and close to the box or object to minimize the force (in the arms, shoulders and back) necessary to lift the item.

Bend and Lift with the Knees: We've all heard this before, and that's because it's true. Keep your back straight and body upright as you lower yourself to the object in question. Then, use your legs to rise into a standing position.

Get a Grip: If you can't get a strong, comfortable grip on an object – even if you know you can carry the weight – don't push your luck. Find someone to help or an alternative way of moving the object from point A to B, such as a handcart or dolly.

Reverse the Steps: When you get to where you're going, set the item down just as you picked it up, but in reverse. Keep it close to your body, and lower with your legs. Move slowly and deliberately. You can just as easily injure yourself while setting objects down as by picking them up.

As you're lifting something, also try to keep from twisting or reaching while carrying the weight. Don't rush through the process of lifting, and if you're tired, save the task for later. Finally, if you feel pain during or after lifting, or you have an injury or condition you believe is keeping you from moving properly, visit a physical therapist for a full assessment.

Daisy the Elf cheers up our household

For most parents, it's that time of year again when that pesky, mischievous, Elf on a Shelf makes its appearance.

In our home, this has always been one of my favorite things to do.

My kids named her Daisy, and she's been a part of the holiday cheer for years. The kids anxiously await her arrival and wake up each morning to see where she's hiding.

I have that bad-parent habit of saying, "Daisy is watching. You better clean your room," or, "Daisy is watching. You better listen."

Last year was my first year not heading the Elf project. My sons decided it would be fun to send Daisy rappelling and let her make messes all over the house.

It was neat to see all the things they came up with. At 18 years old, they were getting the biggest kick out of it, and I think they had more fun than their sisters.

This year, Daisy made her appearance Dec. 1. It was a surprise, since neither my husband nor I did it, and our boys no longer live in our home. For a moment, I felt like a little kid again running to see where she was and wondering where she came from.

This is the part where the mama realizes her daughters are growing up!

My 13- and 14-year-old daughters dressed Daisy up, made her a tiny little mask and even wrote a letter addressing their sisters, as well as themselves. They made sure to include something each of them should work on.

I thought this was such an amazingly sweet gesture. On the other hand, it was bittersweet. I blinked, and my babies aren't babies anymore. It's like the past year they decided to really grow up.

We're all so busy trying to make sure life stays normal, and we do as many normal things as we can. I can't even begin to imagine what the kids are going through.

I can't help but smile when I come out of the room in the morning and see all the clever things they've come up with to help Daisy brighten the household mood.

It's nice to see a tradition being kept, since 2020 has been filled with so many having to be broken.

Opening social media and seeing so many silly little Elves on Shelves doing crazy things is so enlightening and fun in a time when smiles are few and far between and mostly hidden under a mask.

I hope all the little ones will behave and the Elves will all have something good to report to Santa.

Remember, they can all use a little break, just as we parents can. Happy Holidays!

Yogi Berra's weird wisdom helps explain golf

Through the years I have responded to questions readers have emailed or asked. Nearly all are reasonable, and some are funny. But most fall into the category of "frequently asked questions," or FAQ's. To spice up my easy-to-grasp answers I have relied on the wisdom of the late Yogi Berra (1925-2015).

FAQ: Is golf mostly mental? Yogi-isms: "[Golf] is 90 percent mental, and the other half is physical." Dr. Golf thinks golf is mostly mental up to a point. If you can't get a golf ball airborne, even hypnosis won't help.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

There is a mindset that is open to learning the golf swing, and that's critical. According to Yogi, "You can observe a lot by watching." Look at the pros; mimic their swings and behavior, then take lessons. Performing your best, regardless of your talent or ability level, requires disciplined mental skill.

FAQ: As a golfer, can I think too much? Yes and no. Tournament golf and winning golf demand agile thinking, which will internally command winning decisions. The key is thinking quickly, efficiently and accurately. Over-thinking and playing brain-dead are two sides of a losing coin. Again, Yogi said it best: "Think? How the heck are you gonna think and hit the ball at the same time?"

FAQ: It's easy for the pros to be confident, but how can I be more confident? Exuding confidence, it seems to me, is a bit like enthusiasm. We like people who are enthusiastic, and they seem to be more successful. It's important to understand your basic golfing ability level and do everything you can to play at or above that level, realizing that you will play very few "perfect" holes and make only a rare "perfect" golf swing. Confidence is more than swagger. Let your game do your talking and your self-assurance will soar. As Yogi said: "So I'm ugly. So what? I never saw anyone hit with his face."

FAQ: I'm so down in the dumps after messing up on the golf course, and I know I'm too hard on myself, but is there some way to deal with that?

The first thing is to take a look at what other parts of your life get you down. What about performance at work? Money? Time? Friends? Notice a pattern with things that create discouragement within you? Nobody likes making mistakes, and when you mess up it's easy to feel foolish. We must understand, no matter how skilled we are, that every time we play a round of golf, we will make mistakes. Guaranteed. We just try to minimize them.

There are a lot of variables that cause mistakes on the golf course. We can't condemn ourselves for things often beyond our control. When the great Yogi had a hitting slump, he blamed the bat, and then he changed bats.

"After all," Yogi said, "if I know it isn't my fault that I'm not hitting, how can I get mad at myself?" Good point.

When Yogi played golf, he, too, messed up. He used to say, wisely, "I made too many wrong mistakes."

Mamas, please let your babies grow up to love pool

By JESS WILLIAMS
Las Cruces Bulletin

We had a really great story planned to go into this space this week, but it didn't pan out. We'll try to get it next week. In the meantime, you're stuck with me, and I'm a pool player.

When I was a kid – maybe eight or nine years old – my dad brought home a pool table, probably from Sears. It was a truly remarkable shoddy piece of furniture, but I didn't know that at the time. I thought it was glorious.

I also noticed my popularity soaring among my friends. Everyone wanted to play, and I was king of the hill as soon as school let out.

My mom, who originally was pretty put out with dad about the whole thing, came around when it became clear it was a whole lot easier to keep an eye on me when I was home playing pool with my friends rather than galivanting out and about God-knows-where until time for dinner.

At age 14 or so, I remember playing pool with Gilbert Guzman one afternoon when Mom came in the room crying and hugged us both and told us she loved us. She had just learned the Vietnam War was ending, and she'd been worried about us getting drafted.

At some point, I made myself a promise that by the time I was 30, I'd always live in a house with a pool table in it. I was living in Raton when I turned 30, and my promise was left unfulfilled for a few months until I was transferred by Boone Newspapers from Raton to Stephenville, Texas.

Upon arrival, I began looking for a big enough place to accommodate an eight-foot pool table. I found a house on Paddock Street and signed the lease, then drove to Fort Worth in a borrowed truck to make my purchase, from Sears.

That was five houses, four pool tables and four jobs ago. The table I have now is a Kyther Original made right here in Las Cruces by Kerry Rhodes. The wood is bubinga, and the diamonds are made of mother of pearl. Up until the pandemic, friends frequently came over to play. I still play daily and wait for the day when I can open the door again to friends.

I was never a bad player, but I got much better between 1995 and 1997, when I was bartending at My Brother's Place full time, and I got to meet some of the best players in the region (and a whole lot of the worst, too).

Charlie Snedacker taught me a fundamental lesson: The table is only eight feet long. You really don't have to shoot so hard.

Lawrence Vaughan taught me this: When a ball is in the jaws of a pocket, don't aim at the ball. Aim at one of the points of the pocket (depending on which way you want the ball to roll after contact). The ball will go in, and you eliminate the risk of a follow-in scratch.

More lessons for you will come another day. For now, I'm out of space.
