Doña Ana County wins Audit Award

The New Mexico Counties, NMC and the Office of the State Auditor recognized Doña Ana County with a Fiscal Year 2019 Audit & Accountability Award, for dedication to ethical financial practices that safeguard public assets.

"This recognition speaks to the high financial standards Doña Ana County and the Finance Department adhere to, throughout the year," said Doña Ana County Finance Director Asma Dawood. "We are very proud of the work the team performs and this recognition is a validation of the responsibility we hold as fiscal agents of the public trust."

Criteria for the award included outstanding work on audits, submitting audits in a timely manner, and having sustained excellence, with high audit opinions.

Doña Ana County has held the high standard of "no findings" in audits conducted by an external, independent agency for nine consecutive years. In addition, in Fiscal Years 2011, 2016 and 2017, the New Mexico Office of the State Auditor, along with the NMC bestowed its Accountability Award for Large County Audit Achievement award to Doña Ana County. The County also garnered the Continued Excellence Award in Fiscal Years 2018 and 2019.

State in better fiscal shape than many residents

LAS CRUCES — It will likely take the state of New Mexico three years to recover economically from the COVID-19 pandemic, members of the state House Appropriations and Finance Committee were told last week.

“It will take three years to recover to pre-pandemic, and pre-pandemic wasn’t exactly a stellar, robust economy,” Chairwoman Patricia Lundstrom, D-Gallup, said.

New Mexico tends to bounce back from economic downturns at a slower rate than the national average, said Dawn Iglesias, chief economist for the Legislative Finance Committee.

The state itself has weathered the economic impacts of the pandemic fairly well, and, with a big assist from the federal CARES Act, will actually be able to increase spending by more than $160 million for the next fiscal year, reported Stephanie Schardin-Clarke, secretary of the New Mexico Taxation and Revenue Department.

Schardin-Clarke said the total amount of wages paid in New Mexico is recovering at a much faster rate than the total number of jobs, demonstrating a “K shaped” recovery in which those at the top end are going up and those at the bottom are going down. That is especially true for those in the tourism and hospitality industries, she said.

From November 2019 to November 2020, the state lost more than 61,000 jobs, Schardin-Clarke said. Traditional unemployment benefits have expired for many laid-off workers, who must now find other forms of assistance.

“We face the reality that low-income-wage-earning New Mexicans are going to be the last to get their jobs back,” said Rep. Phelps Anderson, R-Roswell. “I hope in this legislative session we pass some initiatives to take care of that.”

Revenue was down

by nearly 70 percent in the leisure and hospitality sector, Iglesias said. Small businesses in general suffered the most losses, but overall retail spending had actually increased by 8 percent.

The state government saw a big drop in revenue at the start of the pandemic, caused mainly by a drop in oil prices, Schardin-Clarke said. The Legislature held a special session in June to make spending cuts needed to ensure that the budget remained in balance.

Oil was selling at $38 a barrel in June when the budget fixes were made, Iglesias said. It is now over $50. That means the state itself will be in a much better position financially than many of its residents.

“We could see a sizable General Fund revenue increase without a general recovery if (oil) prices stay high,” Schardin-Clarke said.

Iglesias noted, however, that without assistance from the federal government, the state would have been forced to take $1.1 billion from its reserves fund last year. Part of the challenge in drafting the budget this year will be trying to predict what, if any, additional assistance may be coming from Congress.

Debbie Romero, acting secretary for the state Department of Finance and Administration, said that along with increased spending for the General Fund, there will also be more than $400 million in capital outlay money for infrastructure projects throughout the state.

But she warned that, while projections are now better than they were in June, they still trail those from this time last year. And, decreased travel will continue to be a drag on oil prices as long as the pandemic continues, Romero said.

“The bottom line is, New Mexico is really sensitive to an energy downturn and a national recession, and it highlights the need for us to maintain healthy reserve levels,” she said.

Rep. Dayan Hochman-Vigil, D-Albuquerque, asked about the impact of a new Biden administration moratorium halting new oil and gas production on federal lands. When Iglesias said it had not been considered in current estimates, Lundstrom requested additional analysis be done.

House Appropriations and Finance Committee Vice Chairman Nathan Small, D-Las Cruces, said the state needs a more stable and reliable revenue stream.

“This time it was the pandemic. The last time it was OPEC in December. The next time, who knows,” he said.

Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) knows that eliminating or minimizing sewage smells are a crucial component of proper infrastructure maintenance. LCU sends its crew out to different locations throughout town to check the odor levels and ensure that chemicals are neutralizing the sulfate ions properly. However, when the smells are coming from a residential home, the answer can be much simpler – a dry pipe can become a smelly pipe.

"When we answer odor complaints, one of the first things we do is check the P-traps," John Mrozek, LCU deputy director Wastewater, said. "We'll shine a light down the drains to see if water reflects back and if

Sewer Smell? It Could Be an Unused Pipe

By Cassie McClure

LCU Water Maintenance Workers Eric Medrano and Steve Cristo head out to check the tool to measure odor on a local sewer maintenance hole. LCU measures the odor in the streets, but sometimes dry plumbing allows sewer gases back into homes. If you smell sewage, try running water for 10 minutes down a drain to see if it helps. not, we pour water down the drain."

Pipes traditionally come with their own method to trap sewage gas - a P-trap, which is a bend in the pipe. The bend allows water to seal in the sewer gases and stops them from coming into the home.

"When a pipe goes unused, say a guest bathroom or utility closet, the trap can dry up and the gases will then come back into the home," Mrozek said. He explained that LCU crews will examine vent stacks on roofs as well. Those vents help move air displaced by water flowing in the pipe. Faulty construction can send sewage smells into the home as well, but more rarely, said Mrozek.

"LCU uses quite a bit of resources to control sewer odor, from our plant and within the city, by applying odor control chemicals," Mrozek said. "It's a concerted effort so that the public doesn't notice odors or keeps them at a reasonable minimum amount, but we're always willing to come to visit a residence and double-check their sewer lines if they notice a smell they can't get to go away."

Businesses gone but not forgotten

I don't believe any of these five businesses closed in 2020 due solely to the coronavirus, but it certainly had an impact.

Unfortunately, a year from now — or less, there will be several more Las Cruces businesses closed directly due to the pandemic. Many are struggling mightily right now.

These five businesses, however, were a good composite of Las Cruces retail business, and they played important roles in our community.

MOUNTAIN VIEW MARKET CO-OP – Part of Las Cruces for 45 years, the Co-op offered many things unavailable elsewhere in town, and was member-owned. I loved their little kitchen. It was the first, and so far, only, place I ever found a sunflower butter and jelly sandwich.

RICHARD COLTHARP
From the Publisher

CARRILLO'S – Shortly after he was first elected to the Las Cruces City Council in 2007, I scheduled an interview with Nathan Small. He suggested we meet for lunch at Carrillo's on a Thursday, chicken-taco special day. I went back many times with friends. Always a great meal and a great time. The closest runner-up I've found for the best chicken tacos in town is Saenz Gorditas.

BURGER TIME – The breakfast burritos and the flautas were some of the best in town, but Burger Time was known more for the community projects of its owner, Kevin McGrath, than it was for the food. McGrath started the annual Burger Time Golf Tournament in 1994 as a fundraiser for high school football in Las Cruces. The money generated and donated to the athletic programs propelled Las Cruces teams to a higher level. During the 23-year stretch of the tournament, a Las Cruces team made the state football championship 21 times and won 14 times. Burger Time also served as a great meeting place for friends and groups.

BARNETT'S HARLEY DAVIDSON – Even though the Las Cruces shop was an extension of the bigger Barnett's down the road in El Paso, it was an important part of the community. Motorcycle training and safety lessons were taught at the Las Cruces store, and it was frequently a starting and gathering spot for motorcycle events, parades and runs. Its absence leaves a big vacuum.

RAD RETROCADE – By far the newest of this group, Rad Retrocade had barely been open a year when COVID-19 hit and closed their doors. I've heard conflicting reports about whether it will ever be back, but it added a great place for fun, food and beverages in Downtown Las Cruces. Playing their vintage video games and pinball machines was like time traveling to my college days, and it was the perfect spot to meet friends, as well as to hang out with your family. It was a key cog in Downtown's revitalization.

An empty start to 2021 legislative session

Today I can report that the state of our state is ... to be determined.

Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham broke with tradition last week and skipped the state of the state address, which has always been given by the governor a couple hours after the start of each legislative session. And I'm not sure why.

If you go to the governor's website and look at the recent press releases, as of Monday, there was one on the inauguration of Joe Biden, but nothing on the start of the session, her decision to skip the traditional speech or what she would have said if she had delivered it. Editor's note: The speech was delivered virtually Jan. 26.

WALT RUBEL

The View
From Here

The governor was reportedly concerned about both the threat of civil unrest and the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. One of those threats turned out to be overblown, but you can't blame the state, or the federal government, for being over-prepared after such a woeful lack of preparation at the U.S. Capitol building Jan. 6.

We don't need a speech to know what the governor's top priorities are for this session. She laid out her agenda in a press release weeks before the session started. Those bills have been introduced, and we can follow their progress throughout the 60-day session.

And, obviously, a traditional state of the state address — where both senators and representatives squeeze into the House chambers, along with family members, friends, dignitaries, former dignitaries and working staff members — wouldn't be possible this year.

In last week's column, I wrote about how much I disliked all the ceremonial hoopla that takes place in a typical legislative session. In past years, I treated the state of the state address with mild disdain. The self-congratulatory oratory and insincere pledges of bipartisan cooperation can be a bit much.

And so, I'm not sure why I was disappointed this year when it didn't happen. It's just one more thing that we can't do in a year full of things we can't do.

Opening a legislative session without a state of the state speech is a little like opening a baseball game without singing the National Anthem, followed by the umpire shouting "Play ball!" You can do it, but it just feels wrong.

The state of the state is more than a speech; it's a big, noisy, happy, exciting event, where people reunite with old friends they only see at this time each year. It's filled with hugs and kisses and handshakes and all the other physical gestures of human affection that we can't express anymore.

The House of Representatives has set its rules for this year's session. And, as expected, it will conduct all its business on Zoom. The Senate sets its own rules, but it also will rely heavily on communications over the Internet.

Nobody can say for sure what impact that will have on the process. It is certain that both constituents and lobbyists will have to find new ways to make their voices heard. My fear is the pros who already have well-established connections will find it easier to get through.

But I don't know what I would do differently, given the current conditions. The safety of both lawmakers and paid staff has to be the top concern this session.

And, I'm looking forward to this year's State of the Union address more than any of the past years. Not because I expect Biden to give a dazzling speech, but just because it will be a little bit of normalcy.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Testing gratitude

To the editor:

La Casa, Inc. is proud to announce that we were excited to present awards to John E. Kutinac, MPH, health promotion manager for New Mexico Department of Health, and Fatima McElveen, medical director and Maria Anchondo, medical assistant, both from Amador Health Center, for their dedication and partnership to La Casa, Inc. and providing an unwavering commitment to providing COVID-19 testing for clients, staff and volunteers.

Pamela Cisneros, event and volunteer manager for La Casa, Inc., spoke to Mr. Kutinac when the awards were presented, in a small, socially distanced, presentation. Mr. Kutinac said “The partnership came about out of a need for testing in a congregate care facility as the pandemic carried on. My involvement — a team involvement with CYFD, Amador Health, NMDOH — could not have been successful without a team effort.”

Every Wednesday for months, DOH and Amador Health have traveled to La Casa, Inc. to test clients, staff, and volunteers. All of us at La Casa, Inc. are grateful for each visit, each test and each person involved in this to ensure the safety and health of everyone involved in the largest domestic violence agency in New Mexico.

During this time, in this unprecedented pandemic, we are fortunate to have community partners ensuring the safety and health of everyone involved with La Casa, Inc.

Defeat SB 10

To the editor:

We write to express our great concern regarding Senate Bill 10. A repeat of the 2020 House Bill, this bill should also be defeated for the same reasons. For the sake of brevity, we will point to only two:

1. While disguised as an effort to overturn an “outdated” law, we all know the real rational behind this effort — abortion at the time of birth. Research demonstrates that 70 percent of even pro-abortion supporters oppose such radical bills. Our largest city, Albuquerque, is now known as the “abortion capital of America.” This is not the legacy we want to leave to our children or a reputation we wish to carry as a state.

2. All mainstream Protestant and Catholic churches in Dona Ana County oppose this bill, as they did in 2020. Since this bill is so far out of touch with our local values, why would any local representative want to support it?

Simply put, the precious lives of many unborn children hinge on SB10. I encourage our legislative delegation to stand with the community and its values by voting no on this terrible bill. A vote against this bill, in its best sense, is truly a voice for the voiceless.

The governor has stated she wishes to unite our state and serve all New Mexicans. This would be an excellent opportunity for her to do so.

Church garden: A place of peace, worship, service, joy

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

One of the first things you notice about the University United Methodist Church (UUMC) garden is the lack of walls.

The open-design, block-long space behind the church at 2000 S. Locust St. is a community garden.

It's a quiet space, a green space, a safe place, a memory garden, a prayer labyrinth, a play area, a meeting place, an outdoor church/Sunday school and a community space to be shared and enjoyed by everyone.

"It belongs to the neighborhood," said church garden volunteer Tammy

Sprague. "We built it for everybody."

That's particularly important in a neighborhood where about the residents are living in poverty.

The garden is part of UUMC's "In the Neighborhood Initiative," which allows the church "to compassionately be there for our neighbors during times of crisis and hardship, as well as in times of joy and celebration," said church member and volunteer Laura Sollars, who chairs the UUMC Trustees Committee.

The Initiative is designed to work on the four focus areas of the United Methodist Church: Overcoming poverty together, seeking health and wholeness for all, growing leaders and creating new places for new people, said UUMC Senior Pastor Rev. Dr. Heike Miller.

"We know that loving God means to embrace the whole diverse body of the UMC worldwide and with our connection partners in the neighborhood," Miller said.

The garden "brings us all together," said volunteer Melly Locke, who set up an extensive garden at Sierra Middle School during her long tenure with Las Cruces Public Schools.

Even in winter, volunteers come to the garden every Friday to clean and maintain it. More volunteers are welcome. No experience necessary; just show up any Friday, 9 a.m.-noon and join in.

The idea for the garden, which stretches from Myrtle Avenue to Panlener Avenue along Garrison Street, began as a "mission challenge" to explore how UUMC "could take the church beyond the walls of the building," Sollars said. Garden construction began on Change the World Sunday, May 18, 2014.

“The community helped put it together,” long-time church volunteer Mary Lacy said, using a basic design by Sprague’s son, Parker Sprague, who is an architect in Albuquerque.

Community donations helped pay for benches, picnic tables and other amenities, and volunteer labor created all three of the garden’s distinct spaces, set up pathways, laid down a labyrinth, set up a dog station, did the planting and even installed a low-water-use irrigation system.

Locke credited Sprague and her husband, Guy, along with Amelia Hunt, “for the energy and countless hours they spent in the actual labor of getting the garden constructed and up and running.”

The garden’s winter crops include turnips, spinach, lettuce and kale, which are available to everyone.

There are also raised beds, keyhole planters, a bucket-grow system and containers for summer crops and many kinds of colorful flowers in spring and summer.

The garden has a fruit-tree (apple, pear, peach, plum) orchard among the established New Mexico olive, oak and mulberry trees, along with desert willow, juniper, mesquite and others. It also has many shrubs and vines, Locke said, including grapes, apache plume, red sage, lady fingers, Mexican sage, vitex, pomegranate, desert bird of paradise, red bird of paradise, agave, ocotillo, crepe myrtle, Texas laurel, Texas sage, cassia, tar bush, pink mallow, paper cup cactus, claret cup cactus and a blackberry bush.

There is open space in the garden for other trees, shrubs, flowers and plants donated by community members, Locke said.

The landscaping also features winter rye grass as part of its groundcover. There is even a resident roadrunner.

The City of Las Cruces recently completed a sidewalk along the west side of the garden.

Through Lacy’s efforts, one of the garden’s highlights is a mural painted last year by Las Cruces artist Tony Pennock. Its leaves represent outstretched hands, Pennock said, to welcome visitors to the garden.

With guidance from Lacy and other volunteers, the garden has become a learning space for University Hills Elementary School students – the school is across the street from the church — as part of an after-school gardening club and summer program.

The garden is “so important for the community,” Miller said. “It’s one place for all. It is our outdoor sanctuary, where we meet, serve and study. We’re all ministers out here.”

UUMC, which celebrated its 65th anniversary Jan. 31, has three outdoor worship services, including a drive-in option, every Sunday morning.

“Yes, we do have church outside when it’s 37 degrees,” Miller said. She also celebrates short communion services every Wednesday morning in the garden.

“Our principles are John Wesley’s: ‘Do no harm, do good, stay in love with God,’” Miller said.

Who are we? Manfred Schreyer sets off to find out

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Writer-photographer Manfred Schreyer left his home in east Las Cruces on Inauguration Day to begin a year-long journey to listen to the stories of people in every part of the continental United States.

“We all have something we want to talk about,” he said. “I want to see what’s out there.”

Schreyer will search for the truth about America

Manfred Schreyer’s van is outfitted for his tour of the United States and sports a wrap featuring the Organ Mountains.

in 2021, as he travels the length and breadth of the country. He will blog throughout his travels and, at journey’s end, plans to write a book and produce a documentary film of “who we are as a nation” that he can sell to Netflix or Showtime.

It’s not by chance that Schreyer is traveling at one of the most difficult periods in American history.

“It’s sad to see it disintegrate into an abyss,” he said. “I just love this country. You can only really appreciate it if you’ve been somewhere else.”

Schreyer, a native of Germany, was a high school exchange student to the United States in 1975-76, and immigrated here in 1984. After visiting the area on motorcycle trips, he moved to Las Cruces from Ohio more than three years ago.

Schreyer said he plans to present a nonpartisan view of the opinions he hears about where America is and where it is going. He’ll be asking about education, religion, poverty, health care and politics, among other topics. And when he has heard someone’s thoughts on these wide-ranging topics, a constant follow-up question will be, “How do you come to that conclusion?”

“I want to understand,” Schreyer said. “I think that’s what is missing on all issues. We don’t talk. We don’t have common ground.”

A freelance photojournalist and web designer — he’s the owner of Mirage Art Photography — Schreyer has been to 46 countries and worked in many major cities.

“We all want the same thing. We want to live in peace,” he said. “In the end, we are good people.”

Schreyer outfitted a 15-passenger van for his travels, complete with a bed, computer workspace, electricity (including a 110-volt outlet), refrigerator-freezer and even a portable flush toilet. The exterior of the van sports a 2019 photo that Schreyer took of the Organ Mountains. Attaching the photo to the van was the work of Elite Car Wrap of Las Cruces, one of Schreyer’s trip sponsors.

Other sponsors include Las Cruces Horse Motel and Boarding, Enchanted Sun Realty, Di Mora Farmers Insurance Agency, Kasual Urban Wear, Blues artist Bob Dellaposta and artist Natalie Abbott, along with many private sponsors from across the U.S.

Schreyer will begin his travels with a trip through southwest New Mexico, Arizona and California, and then back through Las Vegas, Nevada, to Las Cruces. He plans to travel for three weeks and return to Las Cruces for a week throughout the year, except during far-distant travels to the East Coast and the Deep South.

Visit www.mirageart-photography.com. You can buy an Experience America 2021 tee shirt on the website, and, if you wish, donate to Schreyer’s travel fund. You can follow his blog from the website and subscribe to his weekly newsletter.

County NAACP sponsors Black History Month panel discussions

By BOBBIE GREEN, PH.D., PRESIDENT
Doña Ana County NAACP

Black History Month is the shortest month of the year, but its significance has never loomed larger than in 2021. Repeated attempts to undermine the will of the people, frivolous lawsuits aimed at overturning the election results and an insurgence at our U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6 could not impede progress. The determination of the American people who are fed up with the status quo was prominently displayed, in living color during the inauguration.

President Joe Biden and Vice President Kamala Harris now have the opportunity to change the direction of this country, much to the relief of many, but to the dismay of others. Our new president's cabinet reflects a diversity consistent with the demographics of this country. Those who find these cabinet appointments problematic have ignored the inevitable and the handwriting which has been on the wall for decades.

During Black History Month 2021, the Doña Ana County NAACP chapter is partnering with KRWG to broadcast a series of panel discussions on some pressing issues, such as civil rights, health disparities and 21st-century policing.

Our first panel discussion on civil rights will air at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 4. Panelists will include newly elected Doña Ana

JOHANA BENCOMO

GERALD BYERS

BOBBIE GREEN

PAMELYA HERNDON

County District Attorney Gerald Byers and Sheriff Kim Stewart, both of whom have been appointed to the New Mexico Civil Rights Commission. The program will be repeated at 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 6, and at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 7.

The second panel discussion, which will be broadcast at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 11, will address health and wellness issues, including the COVID-19 pandemic, which has disproportionately affected people of color, and the equitable distribution of the vaccine. Award-winning attorney and chair of the New Mexico Black Democratic Caucus, Pamela Herndon of Albuquerque, who is also president and CEO of the KWH Law Center for Social Justice and Change, will be our panelist. The program will be repeated at 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, and at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 14.

The third panel discussion, which will be broadcast at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 18, will focus on police reform. Newly appointed chief of the Las Cruces Police Department, Miguel Dominguez, has accepted the invitation to be our panelist. The program will be repeated at 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 20, and at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 21.

During the fourth week in February, we will continue the discussion on police reform. Our guest panelists will be Las Cruces Mayor Ken Miyagishima and District 4 City Councilor Johana Bencomo. The fourth panel discussion will be broadcast at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25. The program will be repeated at 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 27, and at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 28.

The Doña Ana County NAACP looks forward to keeping the lines of communication open. A collaboration with KRWG is a wonderful opportunity for us to reach our community in a meaningful way. We hope to do more of this in 2021.

The panel discussions will also be posted on the KRWG website, www.krwg.org, and the DAC NAACP website, www.naacpdac.org.

If you would like to submit questions on the topics of civil rights, health and wellness, or police reform, email your questions to info@naacpdac.org.

The issues we face as a state are more complicated than ever, and it's inside this building they'll be addressed. With literally thousands of bills expected to be introduced in the 2021 legislative session, it will be difficult for anyone to keep up.

That's why the New Mexico Foundation for Open Government is here. We're a non-partisan, not-for-profit organization that works hand-in-hand with legislators to promote transparency in government. So you not only know what's happening, but why. And by whom.

Be an Active Healthcare Consumer

Think about the last time you made a big purchase, say $1,000 or more. Did you go out and buy the first thing you saw? Or did you research it, compare it to other options, and select what was right for you? Most people tend to be educated and research large purchases. So why do we so often fail to do this with healthcare?

By becoming more educated, we can go from being passive patients to active consumers who weigh options and make choices. Here are some questions to ask the next time a healthcare decision comes up.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OR EXPECTED RESULTS?

When a treatment or procedure is recommended, we often assume that it will make us "better." But what we expect and what the healthcare provider expects are often two different things. For example, a patient having back surgery expects to be pain free after surgery. The surgeon probably doesn't expect that to happen. Outcomes from back surgeries are terrible. A large study of 1450 patients in the Ohio worker's comp system showed that after 2 years 26% of patients who had surgery returned to work. Compare that to 67% of patients who didn't have surgery. There was also a 41% increase in the use of painkillers in the surgical group.

WHAT ARE THE RISKS AND DOWNSIDES?

To be an educated consumer, you need to ask about the risks. In the back surgery study from before, the researchers found a 1 in 4 chance of repeat surgery and a 1 in 3 chance of a major complication. With surgery you risk infection, blood clots, complications with anesthesia, and several other things. In the case of back pain, physical therapy is a valid alternative with a much lower risk profile.

You might have some soreness with physical therapy and be challenged with exercise, but the risk of PT compared to surgery is minimal.

WHAT ARE THE ALTERNATIVES?

If you were looking at a certain car you wouldn't go out and just buy it. You'd at least consider the competitors and even test drive them. You should look at the other options in healthcare too. Maybe the first recommendation that your practitioner makes is the right one for you, but if you don't consider the alternatives you'll never really know. Ask for the rationale for the recommended treatment and carefully weigh the options, and you can avoid being one of the people who gets an ineffective treatment.

WHAT DOES IT COST?

By being financially responsible today, you'll probably see smaller price increases in your premiums down the road. That back surgery that we've been talking about? It'll likely cost between $60,000 and $80,000. So, a patient who takes the first recommendation for surgery will have a $60,000 procedure that leads to a higher risk of disability, and a higher risk of long term painkiller use, while risking infection, and blood clots. Don't forget the 25% chance that you'll get to do it all again in a repeat surgery. An educated consumer would learn that physical therapy is a viable alternative to surgery with comparable outcomes, much less risk and lower cost. In fact, a large study of 122,723 subjects showed that people with back pain who got physical therapy in the first 14 days lowered their healthcare costs by 60%.

As an active healthcare consumer, you may be able to decrease your costs, reduce your risk, and see more benefit from your healthcare dollar!

“Movie: Escape From Alcatraz”

Shot on Alcatraz Island, this 1979 film is based on the true story of the only escape from the maximum security prison built on an island surrounded by shark-infested waters. Clint Eastwood stars as an inmate with an extensive track record of prison breaks, belying the self-important warden's (Patrick McGoochan) claims that Alcatraz is escape-proof. Danny Glover plays an inmate in his first screen appearance.

“Gordon Ramsay's American Road Trip”

This Fox special follows chef Ramsay as he embarks on a road trip with two of his best friends, chef Gino D'Acampo and restaurant staff manager Fred Sirieix. The trio takes in the sights of the western United States from their RV, exploring hidden culinary gems in Arizona, California, Nevada and other locales. It's a bromantic side of the famously grumpy Ramsay most fans have never seen.

“Movie: Mighty Oak”

From director Sean McNamara (“The Miracle Season,” “Bratz”) comes this 2020 comedy/drama that stars Janel Parrish (“Pretty Little Liars”) as a young woman who meets a guitar prodigy and begins to think he's the reincarnation of her brother, who was killed years earlier in a car crash. Carlos and Alexa PenaVega, Tommy Ragen and Raven-Symoné are also in the cast.

George Clooney

6 p.m. on AMC

Movie: O Brother, Where Art Thou?

Made by siblings Joel and Ethan Coen (“ Fargo”), this 2000 comedy loosely was inspired by Homer's classic “The Odyssey.” It puts three escaped convicts (George Clooney, John Turturro, Tim Blake Nelson) on the run from pursuers and toward considerable wealth. They seek a hidden treasure, but many complications arise. The bluegrass soundtrack, honored by the Country Music Association Awards, spawned a concert tour.

Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives

A new episode called “Savory Meat and a Little Sweet” finds host Guy Fieri on the prowl for a combination of meats and sweets, making his first stop in Sioux Falls, S.D., where a market-butcher eatery serves up a surprisingly full culinary extravaganza. Hundreds of miles away, an Indian spot in Fairbanks, Alaska, raises some temperatures on the tundra with the hearty specialties on their menu. Finally, in Fargo, N.D., a cafe and bakery combo makes sticky pecan rolls from scratch, as well as a savory French pastry dish.

Movie: Burden

Mike Burden (Garrett Hedlund), a young man raised in a culture of racist hate in a small South Carolina town, finds a path to redemption thanks to a compassionate Black preacher (Forest Whitaker) and a young woman (Andrea Riseborough) who senses hidden, untapped sensitivity in Mike. Similarly, even critics who found the film itself a mite trope-heavy praised Hedlund for his richly nuanced performance. Director Andrew Heckler's film won the Audience Award at the 2018 Sundance Film Festival.

Moonshiners

A lack of sufficient Mason jars puts a lid on Mark and Digger's distribution plans in the new episode "Mason Jar Shortage." Meanwhile, Mike and Jerry are forced to venture back onto land where they've been forbidden to trespass. Elsewhere, Tim's scheme to transform a massive tank into an oversized pot still pushes his steam boiler to the breaking point, flirting with disaster.

7 p.m. on KRWG
Finding Your Roots With Henry Louis Gates, Jr.

The phrase "the luck of the Irish" often carries a bitterly ironic edge, since their experience in the great American experiment hasn't lacked hardships. In the new episode "No Irish Need Apply," host Henry Louis Gates Jr. explores that Irish American story through the family roots of actress Jane Lynch and comic Jim Gaffigan.

7 p.m. on HGTV
Home Again With the Fords

Pittsburgh natives and siblings Leanne and Steve Ford, who built a significant fan base with their earlier TV show "Restored by the Fords," return in this new series that similarly spotlights the duo's creativity when it comes to updating old homes for clients who, in many cases, are returning to their "Steel City" roots. Their imaginative touches include everything from adding customized steel details that honor one family's personal history to restoring special mementos from childhood homes. Seven episodes are being produced for Season 1.

7 p.m. on TLC
My Big Fat Fabulous Life

During a weekend trip to Asheville, all eyes are turned on Ryan for any signals of possible sabotage on his part, but no one is expecting

Whitney and Buddy to lash out at each other, which is what transpires in the new "Episode 13." Later, when Whitney decides to test her physical stamina on a treacherous waterfall hike, she runs the risk of pushing her body past its capacity.

8 p.m. on KVIA
black-ish

Over Bow's (Tracee Ellis Ross) strong misgivings, Dre (Anthony Anderson) tries to educate her white cousin Gary (guest star Rob Huebel) in how to be an ally in the new episode "What About Gary?" Meanwhile, Olivia (Katlyn Nichol) tries to impress Junior's (Marcus Scribner) family by psychoanalyzing everyone and their relationships to one another. Miles Brown and Marsai Martin also star. It does not go well.

8 p.m. on KVIA2
Trickster

Already reeling from the devastating discovery about his parents, a stunned Jared (Joel Oulette) finds his world shaken even further as Wade (Kalani Queypo) warns him that he's in grave danger from Georgina (Gail Maurice), because Jared himself may also be a Trickster. Crystle Lightning, Anna Lambe, Nathan Alexis and Craig Lauzon also star.

8:02 p.m. on TLC
Unpolished

While Lexi works hard on a unique set of amusement park nails, Bria remains distracted by the chaos in her personal life in the new episode "Bad Business." As a result, when the salon has trouble making rent, Jen has no other choice but to ask Lexi to step it up even further, which leads to a major mother-daughter blow up.

9:01 p.m. on KTSM
Nurses

Keon (Jordan Johnson-Hinds) struggles with Molly's (Molly Atkinson) efforts to sideline him, while Caro and Ashley (Alexandra Ordolis, Natasha Calis) explore past relationships in the new episode "Lifeboat." Naz (Sandy Sidhu), meanwhile, takes care to balance a patient's medical needs with her emotional attachment to him. Elsewhere, Wolf (Donald MacLean Jr.) is forced to step outside his comfort zone and care for a newborn baby.

Chicago Fire

The title of the new episode "My Lucky Day" is bitterly ironic, especially for Herrmann and Cruz (David Eigenberg, Joe Minoso), as Firehouse 51 is called to the scene of a dangerous blaze inside a 10-story storage unit. All the firefighters recognize the dangers that abound in such an inferno, but even these two veterans face disaster as they abruptly find themselves trapped inside a freight elevator with all communications cut off.

9 p.m. on KRWG
Europe's New Wild

This visually stunning new nature docuseries examines the work being done by scientists and other experts to re-flourish green areas of Europe by reintroducing many of the same wild animals that until recently were being pushed to the brink of extinction. The premiere, "The Missing Lynx," takes viewers on a journey to a great valley in Portugal where unique species are starting to thrive once again in diverse landscapes ranging from oak forests to scattered fields, rocky heath lands and plunging river gorges.

Returnees include Kyle Cooke, Amanda Batula, Lindsay Hubbard, Carl Radke, Hannah Berner, Paige DeSorbo, Luke Gulbranson and Danielle Olivera, who must adjust to their bizarre new pandemic-affected "normal" as they juggle busy work schedules, throw raucous parties and navigate turbulent relationships.

As the Federation seeks to end the Klingon war once and for all, it does so by assigning Philippa Georgiou (Michelle Yeoh) to implement a very dark plan, but the crew of the USS Discovery has a difficult time understanding and tolerating the cruelty of her tactics in the season finale "Will You Take My Hand?" Meanwhile, Burnham (Sonequa Martin-Green) reflects on past hardships. Doug Jones and Shazad Latif also star.

In Focus

"I Survived a Crime" (A&E Network — series premiere, Feb. 17)

It's probably safe to say no one would choose to be the victim of a harrowing crime simply to have that experience, but for those who have a curiosity about what that trauma is like, this new docuseries takes viewers inside that ordeal, starting with that initial adrenaline-fueled moment when a victim first becomes aware of his or her danger. As this program premieres with two back-to-back episodes, host Gio Benitez of ABC News uses surveillance and cellphone footage to capture victims thrust into a life-of-death crisis.

"For All Mankind: Season 2" (Apple TV+ — season premiere, Feb. 19)

Season 2 of the Ronald D. Moore-created alt-history of the space program jumps the storyline ahead 10 years to 1983, when the Cold War is in full swing, Ronald Reagan is in his second term as president and the U.S. and Soviets are vying for the moon's valuable resources at their respective (and greatly expanded) bases at Shackleton Crater. Joel Kinnaman, Sarah Jones, Shantel VanSanten and Wrenn Schmidt are among cast returnees.

Arts Council will host ArtForms member show in February

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) will host the ArtForms Annual Members' Show at the DAAC Arts & Cultural Center Gallery, 250 W. Amador Ave., Feb. 1-25, as part of 2021 For the Love of Art Month.

February is a special time for the arts in Las Cruces, DAAC said in a news release. February is annually recognized by the City of Las Cruces as For the Love of Art Month for the many visual and performing arts activities organized by ArtForms.

For 2021, ArtForms organizers have built activities around the safety of their artist members and the viewing public, DAAC said. The art show at DAAC will be Artforms' only in-person event during For the Love of Art Month. Livestreams and digital galleries will take place on the ArtForms website (www.artformsnm.org) throughout the month.

"For the Love of Art Month is here again for the 23rd time, and we at DAAC are excited about the range of art that will be available for viewing at our gallery during the month of February, said DAAC Executive Director Greg Smith. "It seems a perfect highlight for a month that includes Valentine's Day in the year we are celebrating as 2021 — The Year of the Artist."

"As we have entered such a challenging time with COVID-19, we have had to curtail our annual studio tours for 2021, [so we] decided it was best to only support our members' show," Artforms President Noël Sandino said. "This was decided by a survey from our members and, understandably, many didn't want exposure in their studios and home spaces, where they previously have exhibited. We are all hopeful that the studio tours can take place again soon."

For the juried members' show at DAAC, Sandino said ArtForms expects "a vibrant show that includes sculpture, paintings, print making, photography and more."

The show's awards presentation, along with the presentation of the ArtForms 2021 artist of the year, will take place online at 5 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 13.

"Under the Sea," by Marj Leininger

Artforms is a nonprofit founded in 1998 by local artists, including Miriam Lozada-Jarvis, Kelly Hestir, Roy van der Aa and Flo Dougherty, Sandino said. The artist collective represents a wide range of visual arts, with a mission of ensuring that the local creative community is regarded as a revenue-generating industry and Las Cruces is recognized as an arts and culture destination.

ArtForms membership also includes local business owners, hobbyists, students and teachers.

"It is a diverse group, with members who are highly skilled artists," Sandino said. "We also welcome new and aspiring artists for the support they often need."

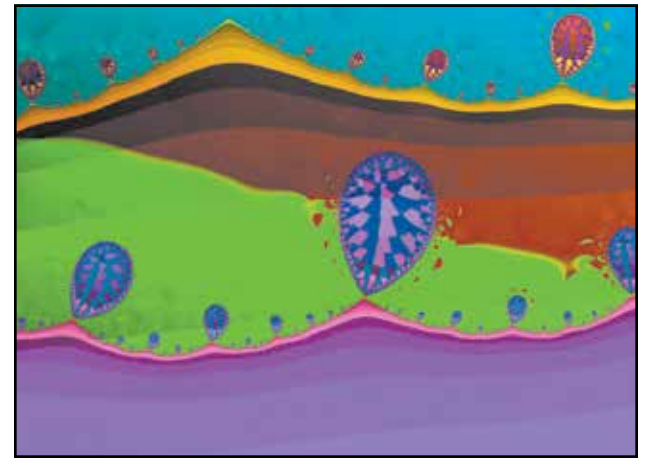

Artists featured in the February show include Lisa Carlson, Linda Chocate, Karen Conley, Vicki Conley, Rebecca Court-

'Thank You for Your Lessons' is Eakman's latest book

By JESS WILLIAMS
Las Cruces Bulletin

Former Las Cruces City Councilor Jack Eakman has published his second book.

"Thank You for Your Lessons" focuses on leadership and mentorship informed by his service on the council, as well as many years as a management executive.

Eakman said he was inspired to write his first book, "Thank You for Leadership: A Tribute to Mentor/Leaders," by his strong belief that leadership is a calling, and "Thank You for Your Lessons" is a continuation of that theme.

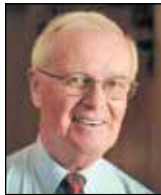

The new book, he said, was two decades in the making.

"I tell in the book about retiring from hospital administration and relocating to become a phenomenal skier and golfer," he said. "After unpacking in the new community, I needed to debrief myself of all the wonderful lessons persons of great talent provided me."

Although he said he's proud of the finished product, Eakman said the writing process was a bit challenging.

"My writing process would probably seem chaotic to a more professional author," he said. "I start with an outline and then assess how to get where I want to go. I have found that my original journey plan migrates as more information becomes available. I rewrite and self-edit consistently. It works for me."

The meat of the new book, he said, are lessons he's learned throughout his life that he wants to share with others.

"Amazing lessons make all the difference in degrees of success and happiness," Eakman said. "Being a truly fortunate student my entire life, some amazingly talented people have been generous in sharing their wisdom with me. Those lessons of leadership and mentorship boosted greatly my ability to form teams, lead openly and have lifelong friends while doing so. All the great lessons have meant so much, and I've been willing to share those otherwise trade secrets of gaining willing team members. Working together, enjoying the quests and facing the challenges forthrightly brings so many emotional rewards."

Eakman said a third book is in the works.

"My third book is already being planned and staged and will be a tremendous challenge," he said. "I see very few leaders who seem to 'have it all.' It was through the inspiration of a great visual artist that I found the key. Dick Termes thinks in six directions at the same time, not just one or two, which is the usual management practice."

A common thread running through the first two books will, Eakman said, continue through the third. It is a philosophy of leadership not taught in schools but acquired through experience.

"The MBA programs of the 1970s until the present teach students that making a profit at the expense of quality, people and service is all that matters," he said. "Enrich yourself first.' That's exactly opposite of my belief system. In my view, happiness comes through helping others first. Being wealthy is not about money. It's about loving friends, family, associates, customers, potential customers and the less fortunate among us," Eakman said.

Both books are available at Moonbow Books, 225 E Idaho Ave., No. 32, and on Amazon.

All girl mariachi group keeps plugging along

By ELVA K. ÖSTERRREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

A popular local mariachi group, Las Muñecas, often pitches in to support nonprofit endeavors.

The five teens played curbside serenata as folks picked up their Angel Tree gifts before Christmas.

“Every year, the girls do volunteer activities,” said group organizer Elena Hinderlich.

The group, comprised of high school seniors, started four years ago. Daniela Robinson started mariachi in middle school and fell in love with it. She and her mother, Henderlich, came up with the idea to start their own all-girl group. “I think that is so beautiful,” Hinderlich said. “Mariachi is not typically a female-only thing.”

Las Muñecas members are Paola Hernandez on violin, Khalila Gilbert on trumpet; Samara Nuñez on trumpet, Daniela Robinson on the guitarrón and Jasmin Saucedo on vihuela.

Since its formation, Las Muñecas has had four to nine members. Right now, it’s five. In addition to Robinson, who plays guitarrón, there are Paola Hernandez on violin, Khalila Gilbert on trumpet, Samara Nuñez on trumpet and Jasmin Saucedo on vihuela.

“We have five girls who are very good students,” Hinderlich said. “They have goals.”

The group has played at the governor’s mansion, the Latino Farmers National Association convention, weddings in Roswell and other small backyard weddings in the area. On Valentine’s Day, they provided serenades in 2020 and will do so again in the future.

“Mariachi music is so versatile, its really for everyone,” she said. “These girls have a talent and gift for entertaining. The old music tells a story that brings back memories. It’s very flexible and can work for many occasions.”

Although the girls are graduating, they intend to keep the group together. Prior to the pandemic, they were active attending conferences, playing, competing and meeting other young people.

The group has a large selection of many types of songs. Hinderlich said they are lucky to have two music instructors and rehearsal space at Downtown Desert Yoga, where there is plenty of space to maintain social distance.

Hinderlich said the group is open to more members, and they are happy to audition potential players.

“The way the world is divided, we feel the music unites,” she said. “It has blossomed into something magical – the happiness it brings people. We are hoping by spring things clear up a little. We are hoping for Valentine’s Day serenades. We surprise people, and they start laughing and crying. It’s sneaky but fun.”

Film Festival 2021 virtual, expects higher attendance than ever

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

With everything going virtual starting off 2021, the Las Cruces International Film Festival can brag that going virtual will be good for it this year.

“Doing it virtual this year, we feel like we can reach a bigger audience,” said executive director Ross Marks. “We are going with the Film Festival

Flix, and they’re estimating we may get 50-60,000 viewers.”

While the festival has been growing yearly, it can’t match the attendance this screening platform provides, he said. The festival is in its sixth year and historically has been a regional event. The 2020 festival was attended by about 20,000 people.

“Now, because of this virtual platform, we have 38 countries participating, and the friends and families associated with all those films can watch,” Marks said.

One of the biggest complaints from past festivals is people can’t watch all the films they want to, he said. They have to make decisions and choices. The films get grouped in blocks, and the audience members must choose what they want to see. This year, those blocks will be broken separately and be “a lot more user friendly.”

While audiences will indeed be losing the communal experience and in person theater experience, there will be no viewing conflicts, he said.

“Last year we had half the films with cast and director Q and A,” Marks said. “This year, filmmakers will be active on social media and checking for communication. You don’t get direct interaction, but every filmmaker is going to be doing a Q and A this year.”

Awards, workshops and panels remain part of the event. This year, the Outstanding Entertainment Award will go to Peter Bogdonovich, who Marks said is one of the pioneers of independent filmmaking in America. Marks will be hosting a Q and A session with Bogdonovich.

Judge Reinhold is receiving the Mark Medoff Legacy Award. He will be asked about his career, his films and much more.

In addition to the film screenings, there will be a virtual screenwriting panel, film promotion and marketing workshop, and a panel focusing on raising funds for films with leading experts from IndiGoGo and Kickstarter.

Also, as usual, local restaurant sponsors are participating, Marks said. Every evening, a local restaurant is going to host a screening and highlight a special dish, which will be available at a discount for those in town for the events.

“We are lining up more [restaurants] every day,”

Marks said. “This is a great way to showcase our local restaurants and showcase Las Cruces. The restaurants will have signature cocktails, including Salud, Amador, Anede’s, the Game, Lorenzo’s and La Posta. It’s a great way to make it interactive.”

As usual, the folks at the New Mexico State University Creative Media Institute (CMI), are organizing the festival.

“We had a class in the fall,” said Marks, a CMI assistant professor. “In film festival prep, students reviewed, selected and curated the films. In the spring, students and staff will put it all together.”

Jen Garcia serves as artistic director for the fourth year, Alfonso Moya is technical director and Matteo Isquierdo is operations manager.

“So, we have a small staff,” Marks said. “And to my knowledge, this is the biggest film festival put out by a university.”

While there is no specifically designed poster for the festival this year, Marks said they are setting up an online film festival store. Partnering with the Sports Festival Store, the 2021 logo design will be available on several different items, ranging from shirts to mugs.

“The nice thing about being online is people can watch the movies and browse a film-festival store,” he said.

As usual, there will be an opening feature for the event. This year it is “The Devil Has a Name” with Edward James Olmos, who also will do a Q and A with Marks following the movie.

The festival takes place March 3-7. Ticket prices are $8 for one film, $25 for one whole day and $75 for all days. So far, Marks said, there are 102 films on the list.

The next Tombaugh Gallery virtual exhibit "Anything Goes," is from the Las Cruces Art Association (LCAA).

LCAA began in 1960 and is the oldest art association in the Las Cruces area. Members create art in a wide variety of media, including oils, acrylics, watercolor, encaustics, fiber arts, sculpture, gourds, jewelry, woodworking, photography and more.

LCAA has a history of sponsoring exhibits for young people, and last year it made a substantial donation to Cruces Creatives makerspace to help with activity kits for youth.

Some pieces in the show may be for sale.

Beginning in February, the exhibit will be on the Tombaugh Gallery Facebook page and Instagram, at www.instagram.com/tombaugh-gallery/.

Action Programs for Animals settling into new home

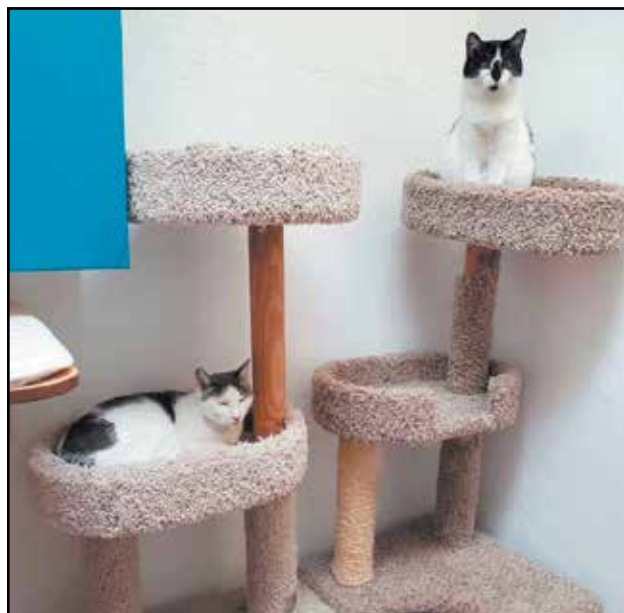

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Dogs, cats, puppies, kittens, staff and volunteers are settling into Action Programs for Animals (APA) of Las Cruces' new home.

Staff and volunteers completed the adoption center's move from the old location on Picacho Avenue to a building APA owns at 537 N. Solano Drive in mid-November, said ACA Executive Director Michel Meunier.

"The building purchase was made possible from a very generous estate left to us by a former dog adopter, but being an old building, we had a lot of work to do getting it ready," Meunier said. "We had to redo the entire large dog room's flooring and dog kennels. We had to update the plumbing and electricity and HVAC systems, etc."

There is still more work to do, Meunier said, and community support is welcome.

"Now we are still needing sponsors for some of the other larger areas of need," she said, including replacing cages in APA's cat rooms. Sponsors are honored with their names on the enclosures.

Meunier said community members also are invited to come to APA and assist with projects like building more climbing walls in APA's two outdoor "catios."

"Having a building also means needing staff to care for the animals 24/7," Meunier said. "Most of our staff are animal caregivers, besides myself and our location manager."

APA does "open" adoptions at its new center, Meunier said, with post-adoption follow ups and support for new pet owners. This "helps us place animals faster," she said, so APA can continue to rescue at-risk animals pulled from the Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley. It also ensures that APA animals are in good homes.

"When adopters have any issues, our dog trainer or cat behavior expert calls and works with adopters to resolve issues," Meunier said.

"If that fails, or if anyone can't take care of our animals any longer, we take all our animals back — even years later."

APA also runs the local prison dog training program, the pet-food bank and low-cost vaccination/microchip clinics, and conducts dog-training classes, she said. Some of these services are on temporary hold because of state public health orders.

The nonprofit APA "is a progressive animal welfare organization seeking to improve the quality of life for companion animals in Doña Ana County and greatly reduce the number of unwanted animals impounded and euthanized at the municipal shelter," according to the APA website.

APA hours are 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, and by appointment. The APA food bank is open 2-4 p.m. Sunday.

APA's Second Chance Thrift Store (voted Mesilla Valley's best thrift store in the 2021 Bulletin's Best) is located at 2475 N. Main St. and is open 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday-Saturday. Call 575-888-4882.

La Clinica de Familia opens new 10,000 square-foot facility

BULLETIN REPORT

La Clinica de Familia (LCdF) has announced the opening of a new, 10,000 square foot behavioral-health complex at 535 S. Miranda St. in Las Cruces.

The complex is within walking distance of LCdF's central medical center at 575 S. Alameda Blvd.

"This allows a holistic-care approach to new and existing patients by continuing to provide medical, dental and quality mental health services they deserve," said Jose Valdiviezo, LCdF's senior clinical director for behavioral health services.

"For patients with limited transportation, our facility is approximately 300 feet away from the City of Las Cruces RoadRunner transit station, allowing great access."

Valdiviezo said the new facility opened Monday,

Jan. 25, with operational hours Monday-Saturday 8 a.m.- 5 p.m.

"Preparation has been made with our existing patients to transition all their needs to our new facility and continue to provide individuals in our community and state with mental health treatment," he said.

Core services to be provided at the new complex include adult outpatient therapy, crisis-intervention services, comprehensive medication management, comprehensive community support and supportive housing, he said.

In October 2017, the Patent and Trademark Resource Center (PTRC) at New Mexico State University's Zuhl Library hosted a United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) training event. Members of the campus and community attended to learn more about the patent process so they could help local inventors and entrepreneurs.

Established at NMSU in October 2016, the PTRC is the only such office in New Mexico and the surrounding region, and is officially affiliated with the USPTO in Alexandria, Virginia.

"At the NMSU PTRC we really only help folks with their initial patent or trademark search," said David Irvin, NMSU business and government documents librarian and PTRC representative. "It's the logical first step: You have to find out if your invention was already invented. I receive training at the USPTO every year to make sure I can help inventors do their own deep dive into the patent databases, so they come away with a really good sense of whether they should proceed. This kind of work performed by a patent attorney would potentially cost thousands of dollars. Our program is free."

At the 2017 event, Santa Teresa resident Charlie Thompson approached Irvin, and three years later Thompson has received three patents. His patents for a mountable elevator, assistance tilt vehicle lift and continuing application on the assistance vehicle tilt lift, stemmed from a travel experience and are designed to help his wife.

While visiting Nacogdoches, Texas, the Thompsons met a man at an RV park who shared details of an experience when his wife slipped, fell and severely injured her shin on manual RV steps. She received temporary help but never recovered.

"That story haunted me," Thompson said. "We had those same manually operated steps. Further, my wife has a very dysfunctional back. I wanted to find a lift to get her up and down into and from the trailer. Everything I discovered wouldn't work if she was alone. I decided to design a platform that would go up and down from the ground to the RV and when needed would convert to steps all controlled by a remote control."

Thompson knew he wanted to patent the innovation but thought it was too expensive until his wife saw the event at NMSU's PTRC. He said he learned about new options and discounts available since he was older than 65. Irvin introduced Thompson to the ProBoPat program, which connects individuals to pro bono intellectual property attorneys.

For Robin Benson, an electrical and computer engineering student at NMSU, inspiration struck while volunteering and working as a licensed emergency medical technician.

"It was during that time when I was caring for patients who complained of their pain not due to their injury but due to the spinal immobilization techniques and protocols required," she said. "I thought, there must be a better way, especially since my first responsibility was to do no harm. Plus, the device we used was invented back in the 1950s and doesn't immobilize the spine, simply immobilizes the entire patient, and was intended as an extrication device."

Benson's invention, a spinal immobilization device called TrueSpine, will not cause harm or pain while immobilizing a patient's spine. Benson received a patented for TrueSpine after a nearly two-year process, which started with a prior art search at the PTRC. Irvin also helped Benson with ProBoPat.

Benson, who owns RB Designs LLC, said the events hosted at PTRC saved her time and money and she encourages other students to use local programs.

"I would take advantage of all the resources available on campus, or throughout the community," she said. "If you're an undergrad student, look into the opportunities available through the PTRC, Studio G and Arrowhead Center on campus. I estimate that because of the PTRC, if my invention would have come up on that initial search, I would have known and pivoted or stopped right away. Because of the PTRC and having access to ProBoPat I have saved approximately $15,000 in legal fees."

During winter weather make sure to clean off your meter with a broom or your hands. Do not use a shovel to clear away ice or snow, and please refrain from kicking or striking your meter to remove ice as this can pose a safety hazard. Artist collaborative opens studio/gallery on Compress Road

Starlight Projects Foundation has launched “The PARA//EL Axis,” a global collaboration of local artists engaging in community activism through art, the foundation said in a news release.

“The idea is to be a container, and the pith, or the center of the spiral, the axis, for local artists to be able to bring forth their starlight and shine, then reverberate that across all platforms, to the far reaches of the earth and beyond, and cause a tidal wave of change that unites us all under the same mission,” said foundation Executive Director Krystaline Sakwanomtewa.

The PARA//EL Axis has opened a donation-based art studio/gallery at 400 S. Compress Road, suite K, “where all member artists get to place, promote, showcase, trade and find a new home for their art,” the news release said. All proceeds generated from the store go to the artists.

“The PARA//EL Axis is a new program that will enable the foundation to grow the project from an idea of the donation-based store to the vision of a full-blown, concrete, local community center to showcase the power of community activism through art,” Sakwanomtewa said.

Bobby “B’LvD” Azure

will lead the project through his ‘Azure Art D’sign’ program, and he has invited local artist-activists to participate.

“I want to inspire people to be ‘The Artist,’” Azure said. “I believe we can all help one another

The more I practice, the better my luck

Ever wonder about luck? I mean the role that luck, good and bad, plays in sports, politics, careers, wars and even life.

Winning a big lottery is very good luck; going down in an airplane crash is very bad luck. We have no control over luck, or so it seems. As years go by, I realize that we actually have control over precious few things while we're on this earth.

We're born into life. Then stuff happens. We try our best — or may even give up. Parents, genetics relatives, status, color, ethnicity, money — all have critical roles in our life, which is not actually “well-planned” at all, to use an ill-conceived term a big investment firm used.

How one senses the role luck plays in our life seems similar to how we view happiness in general. No one can define happiness or come up with a prescription for how to be happy. Robin Williams had it all; he wasn't at all happy.

Luck. Fate. Stars. God. Chance. Cultural views about luck vary from considering it a matter of chance to being a matter of superstition. The American Revolution luck? Paul Revere may have spread the word that the British were coming to a small few, but luckily enough people heeded the message, or our Revolution would now be a footnote in English history texts.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

I contend that, just as in life, luck has a prominent factor in sports. I'm not arguing or implying that our destiny is written in the heavens, or even in our genes, for that matter. But birth heritage and upbringing count bigtime.

Tiger Woods was raised, taught and tutored by his dad and mom to be a champion golfer from the time he was a toddler. Most of today's marquee golf tour professionals start out young and are groomed for the part, like Jordan Spieth and Michelle Wie. As juniors they go to golf camps and even academies.

Even Arnold Palmer, the son of a greens superintendent, and Jack Nicklaus, with private club access, started at early ages and became accustomed to competing and winning in the spotlight while young.

The late author Ayn Rand once said, “Any success requires both talent and luck. And luck has to be helped along and provided by someone.”

After sifting through a lot of research concerning luck in sports, and especially golf, I find that luck is a tricky and fickle thing to analyze.

If you are a Chicago Cubs or a Buffalo Bills fan, all you have to do is think back over the years to understand how luck figured into so many heartbreaks. And we won't go into the agony of many of the U.S.A. Ryder Cup matches.

Researchers have tried to measure and quantify the role luck plays in tour wins, to no avail. Many golfers attribute it to “good luck” when a rival holes a lot of “improbable” putts. But that's like saying blackjack dealers in Las Vegas are very lucky.

And golfers often blame “bad luck” for their failures. Or is it lack of (enough) talent? It's hard to detect luck when it's good; it looks so much like something you've earned and prepared for. Luck?

Until recently Tiger Woods had so many lucky shots they would fill volumes. One of the really lucky moments was when he made the 12-footer on the 72nd hole in the 2008 U.S. Open at Torrey Pines to tie Rocco Mediate. Woods went on to win in the playoff. But the most unlucky thing was his drive into a fire hydrant a year later, which cost him dearly.

A lot of people think putting comes down to a matter of luck. Known as one of the best putters in his day, the late Jerry Barber said, [In putting], “somewhere skill stops and luck takes over. The scoring range is probably from 15 feet in. Anything outside that is plenty of luck.”

Many tour players, as they get older, including Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, view putting not as a matter of luck but as a game apart from actual golf.

If you want a fun read concerning the luck factor, try “How to Make Luck: 7 Secrets Lucky People Use to Succeed,” by Marc Myers, who says, “Lucky people take very specific steps to improve their odds of good things happening to them.”
