Memorial Medical Center delivers 20,000th dose of COVID-19 vaccine

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Memorial Medical Center (MMC) delivered its first dose of COVID-19 vaccine last Dec. 16, and surpassed the 20,000-delivery mark Thursday morning, April 8.

“We’ve become a well-oiled machine,” MMC Director of Marketing and Communications Ryan Perkins said in an April 9 telephone interview. “We really have vaccination clinics down to a science.”

All told, MCC had administered 20,406 doses of vaccine as of April 8, averaging about 1,275 doses per week over the past 16 weeks.

Perkins said MMC has delivered the Pfizer vaccine almost exclusively, but also administered 800 doses of the Johnson & Johnson vaccine in one single day earlier this year — its busiest so far as a vaccine provider.

Perkins said MMC's core vaccine delivery team comprises 36 staff, providing appointment-only vaccines three days a week to begin with and now increased to four days a week.

Perkins said the lines of people waiting to receive the vaccine are moving quickly at the hospital. If an individual already has his or her paperwork complete, the time spent from walking in the door until a Band-Aid is placed over the injection site could be as little as three to four minutes, plus the 15-minute observation period, he said.

Throughout the vaccination process and, in fact, throughout the pandemic, Perkins said MMC has been “really impressed with the level of cooperation” it has received from the New Mexico Department of Health (NMDOH), the city of Las Cruces, Doña Ana County, other healthcare providers, local businesses and nonprofits, other groups and individuals.

“The community has come out and supported us,” he said.

And NMDOH has even assisted local providers with data entry to help keep the state current with the number of local residents receiving the vaccine, Perkins said.

Some of the programs MMC has developed during the pandemic will continue “after COVID goes away,” Perkins said. The COVID to Home program the hospital has jointly administered with the city, the county Electronic Caregiver, and other private companies, for example, has become “a model that transformed how we deliver care,” he said.

Perkins encouraged the community to go to vaccinenm.org to sign up to get vaccinated.

'Woo Woo Doc' goes home with award

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Receiving a New Mexico EMS award, Las Cruces's Dr. Ben Diven has been recognized for his amazing contribution to the state's emergency medical services. The state Tim Fleming Medical Director of the Year Award is one of 10 yearly awards given out by the EMS Statewide Advisory Council.

Presenting the award Friday, April 9, statewide committee chair Pete Bellows' voice cracked a few times as he read about and remembered his experiences with Diven.

Diven is a representative and leader within the state EMS community, Bellows said. Diven is a teacher and medical director and has served on the state Medical Director Committee advising on the scope of the EMS profession.

"Above all, Dr. Diven has provided an example of just how much an individual can change a community for the better,"

Bellows said.

Doña Ana Community College (DACC) EMS program director Ann Bellows wrote the nominating letter for the award.

She calls Diven a "home-grown delight," and said he is always available to support and help the students he has worked with.

"He started out as a paramedic working with an ambulance service before most knew what a paramedic was," Ann Bellows said in the nomination. "When I met him, he called himself the 'Woo Woo Doc,' because he teased he would have to stick his head out the window and shout 'woo woo' to clear traffic as he responded to calls since the service would not provide him with a siren."

The nomination letter outlines that Diven moved from being a paramedic to medical school and then moved back to Las Cruces to work in the emergency room at Memorial General Hospital and to be the medical director for local ambulance services. He served as medical director through many ownerships and provided medical direction to New Mexico State University and fire departments.

"He educated students with his quiet sense of humor and art (cartoons and photography)," Ann Bellows said in the letter. "I recall many hand-drawn cartoons that could make a difficult concept become clear, and still have a few in my treasured lectures."

Diven was instrumental in nurturing DACC through its growing periods and still is, she said.

Currently, Diven serves as the medical director for the Las Cruces Fire Department, Doña Ana County Fire and Rescue Department, NMSU Fire Department, NMSU Police Department, Mesilla Valley Dispatch and the DACC EMS Program.

"I have a lot of services, but they don't keep me as busy as you might think," Diven said.

He has written the EMS treatment guidelines and protocols for each agency, he said.

Las Cruces Fire Department EMS Medical Director Dr. Ben Diven receives the statewide Tim Fleming Medical Director of the Year Award from EMS state advisory committee chair Pete Bellows.

"Las Cruces Fire is 107 pages long," he said. "I wrote, started from scratch, and you have to keep them updated all the time because there is always new information."

Diven does quality assurance, review and dealing with problem cases that come up, he said. The side effects and patient complaints come through him. At DACC, he helps with student reviews, writes protocols and lectures.

"I assume all of the legal liability for the behavior of the EMTs. That's just part of the package," he said. "I have to be insured for medical liability."

There are about 350

EMTs in the area and luckily for Diven, they "don't screw up very often."

"The citizens of the city and county have no idea how good they have got it," Diven said. "My job, in terms of stamping out fires and trouble, is very easy. They are well trained and know what they are doing."

The best part of his job, Diven said, is interacting with the EMTs, which he doesn't get to do nearly as often as he would like.

"It is crucial to know that he is always there and that he cares, and that the system would not be what it is in Doña Ana County without him," Pete Bellows said.

Breaking ground on Casa for a Cause

You may know it as the Las Cruces Home Builders Association Anniversary House.

Its new name is Casa for a Cause.

But whatever you call it, this community construction project is one of the best fundraisers in Las Cruces. That's saying a lot, because we have many great fundraising events in this relentlessly generous community.

If you're not familiar, here's how it works.

A local builder volunteers to build a home. This year it's Adam Juarez of A New Beginning Custom Homes. The builder then works to find subcontractors and suppliers who will provide their services and materials at or below costs, to reduce expenses as much as possible. This year's project will get a jump start to one of LCHBA's founding members, Eddie Binns, who donated a portion of the land for the home.

When the house is completed, it goes on the market at or above the going prices. Because the expenses have been charita-bly reduced, the profit is much higher. The LCHBA then takes those profits and puts them back in the community to help charity groups and nonprofit organizations.

The previous four houses have raised funds ranging from $64,000 to $125,000, and supported dozens of nonprofit

Prejudice

AUTHOR'S NOTE: I grew up in a county that was 65 percent Spanish-speaking. The biggest distinction between races was not color, it was Catholics and Baptists. My first experience with prejudice was the summer I spent on a job in Kansas City in 1978, the year after the city burned itself down.

BAXTER BLACK
On the Edge of Common Sense

Years ago in Kansas City, I set out one night to find one of them 'down home' guitar blues pickers I had read about in the Sunday paper. I was drivin' around Saturday night lookin' for Walter's Crescendo Lounge. I had some ribs at Money's on Prospect, and asked directions. The feller told me not to go over there after dark. Then, after thinkin' about it, he scribbled his name and phone number on a piece of paper and said, "When you get in trouble, have'm call me." Nice of him, I thought.

Somehow I never found Walter's, but at the corner of 39th and Jackson I spied Willie's Total Experience Lounge. I recognized the name from the newspaper so I went in.

I was dressed normal: hat, Wranglers and boots. The bartender was a lady named Bertha. She served me a scotch and cream soda. I sat at a table in front of the band. As the clientele came in they all sat around by the walls. Kind of like they were circlin' me. Nobody said much and they weren't friendly. Finally, the band leader, Freddy, came over to my table and asked me, "Hey man, what are you doin' here?"

I told him I heard this was the best music in Kansas City and I came to find out!

Well, he must have thought the same thing 'cause it sure tickled him! He couldn't do enough to make me feel at home. His sister was the waitress and he told her to make sure my grape Nehi never went dry.

By then I was smarter'n a tree full of owls, 10 foot tall and bullet proof, as Tink would say. But I couldn't get nobody to dance with me! Eventually this lady

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

GOP Congress not meeting needs

To the editor:

The hypocrisy of Congressional Republicans is ongoing. In 2017, they passed nearly $2 trillion in tax cuts for corporations that largely ended up in the wallets of billionaires — but would not vote for the $1.9 trillion COVID-19 economic-relief bill that primarily benefits lower income folks, who suffered the most from the pandemic.

They argue it will increase the debt, isn't focused, will create inflation and isn't needed. Where were those arguments in 2017? Can it be they don't give a darn about minimum-wage earners or educators who teach on-line and have kids at home because of the pandemic; restaurant and hotel workers who lost their jobs; small business owners who went bankrupt; or anyone who is not privileged.

There are still about 10 million unemployed because of the pandemic. There is labor available for the economy to expand to prevent serious wage hikes that causes inflation.

There may be short-term supply shortages like computer chips or containers for shipping, but not enough to create serious price hikes.

More than 50 percent of the work force has not benefited from the stock market, because wages have not kept up with the cost of living for 40 years, and they can't afford to set aside money for their children's education or retirement. Many don't have enough money for an emergency. Effective unions have all but disappeared, service jobs like Uber drivers or Walmart clerks have taken over factory jobs and rural America has become a job desert. National minimum wage has been at $7.25 for 12 years — well below the poverty wage.

Congressional Republicans are not meeting the needs of American workers who will benefit from the COVID-19 Economic Relief bill. They focus on emotional issues like religious beliefs, white grievances, voter suppression and removing Dr. Seuss books.

I remember that little lesson when I see a kid wearin' a headband and sandals in a cowboy bar. I always try to give'm the benefit of the doubt. After all, he might be friskin' customers at the door next time I make it to Willie's Total Experience Lounge.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Insurance lesson

To the editor:

A recent letter by multiple authors proposes a universal health coverage system as a solution. Presumably, this would replace the private insurance companies with a single, state-run payer. Let us not have any illusions that a single payer would be any more compassionate or empathetic toward patients or providers than for-profit companies.

Physicians would still have to obtain prior authorization for non-emergency procedures, would be limited to drugs on the state drug formulary and would have to use the state-sanctioned electronic medical records.

Private practice, in the traditional sense of the term, is essentially dead. Physicians have been driven into the arms of for-profit hospital corporations by declining revenues and increasing costs. Their control of healthcare delivery gives corporations leverage against insurance companies the private physicians have never enjoyed. This would not change under a single payer.

Instead of being under multiple thumbs, they would be under one. In principle, I have no quarrel with the government or any insurance company controlling fees, as long as it controls the overhead costs of practice, which will never happen.

Any health-insurance policy, whether state-run or private, must address the question of health care obtained outside the state. At times, this will be because of an emergency, but more often because optimal care is not available within our borders. The cost of this cannot be anticipated, and thus not budgeted, but is clearly going to increase.

Having practiced in

New Mexico for nearly 40 years, 39 of them in private practice, I have experienced all the headaches the authors mention, and others as well. But experience has taught me that, while problems are obvious, solutions rarely are.

groups in the Mesilla Valley. By extension, thousands of people have benefited from that infusion of support.

The Las Cruces Bulletin is proud to be one of the co-sponsors for this year's Casa for a Cause. Tuesday, April 13, ground was broken on the project, which could see a finished house by September.

Mayor Ken Miyagishima was at the groundbreaking, and talked about a passing of the torch. Miyagishima nodded to Binns and praised him for all the good works he's done for the community the past 50-plus years. Then the mayor nodded to Juarez and several other young builders in attendance, and encouraged them to carry on those good works.

Even if you don't know which end of a hammer to grip, or you don't sell plumbing materials, you can still help with the project. If you want to volunteer, make a donation, or if you're part of a nonprofit interested in applying for funds, contact LCHBA executive officer Nicole Black at 575-993-9288 or stop by the offices at 2825 N. Main St.

Boys and Girls Club going strong as it deals with COVID-19, moves closer to capacity

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Boys and Girls Club of Las Cruces (BGCLC), served more than 1,500 young people in 2020, amassing some impressive statistics despite the pandemic, and CEO Ashley Echavarría wants to do even more going forward.

Serving meals, helping with homework and providing a wide range of activities for all ages, the club had a total membership of 209 in 2020, but also served an additional 1,308 clients through other programs and services both on and off site. That was despite being closed for four months during the year because of COVID-19.

BGCLC served almost 14,000 suppers and nearly 10,000 snacks in 2020, and has distributed nearly 2,000 of its very popular BGCLC Club on-the-go kits, created during the pandemic to help keep kids busy at home, with another 552 kits distributed through Cruces Creatives.

The club, located at 330 W. Las Cruces Ave., re-opened Sept. 1 and has been open 10 hours a day, 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday, ever since, Echavarría said. The major expansion from the previous four-hours-a-day after-school programming was necessary to help families deal with the pandemic when schools were closed, she said.

Since re-opening, deep cleaning and following public health orders has been a priority for staff and clients at the club.

To date, only one child served by the club has come down with COVID-19, she said, along with a handful of staff members. The club's front gate is kept locked and entry is allowed only after a temperature check, she said. Masks and social distancing are required and the club has a daily cleaning regimen and "hand sanitizers are everywhere," Echavarría said.

"I think our protocols have been proven to work," said. "It's what we have to do. We take it very seriously."

The four months without any kids on site were difficult for Echavarría and her staff, she said. And, it's been hard since then because the numbers have been kept low by state public health orders. The club welcomed 100 or more kids a day during the school year before the pandemic and is temporarily serving 20-30 a day, Echavarría said. It will continue to expand safely, she said, providing transportation to the club from more schools throughout the Las Cruces Public Schools district. It also works closely with Lynn Middle School as part of the community schools program.

“Our mission is to serve the kids. They need us,” she said. “It’s a struggle on my conscience not to be doing more for the community.”

The club didn’t waste any time during the shutdown, however. In addition to a lot of staff training time and providing virtual programming for children on social media, BGCLC began curbside evening meal distribution in April. That’s when staff came up with the Club on-the-go kits, which are handed out with meals and include seven different activities, recipes, snacks and more. (One activity gives instructions on how to make a cool fishtail bracelet with 35 rubber bands and

C clip. That same kit also had a recipe for “Valentine’s Day slime.”

The kits have become so popular that people who had been coming by for meals are now stopping in just to pick up the kits, Echavarria said.

“I’m proud of my team,” she said. “They put their heads together and made things happen. We had to find a way to continue to serve our clients.”

The club has total staff of 20, including many college students, Echavarria said, and had no layoffs because of COVID-19.

“It’s so refreshing to hear laughter in the building again,” Echavarria said, as the staff transitions to serving about 50 clients a day. “It’s incredible to get phone calls from kids we haven’t seen in a year, telling us they’re coming back when school starts.”

“The community really stepped up ... to ensure we were able to continue serving,” she said. Comcast, for example, helped with the installation of Wi-Fi at the club.

“That has been so huge for us,” Echavarria said.

Lowe’s Home Improvement has helped with renovations, and the Paseo del Norte Foundation helped expand programming for teens. There have been many other partnerships as well, she said, including with LCPS, the City of Las Cruces and Doña Ana County.

“Our support grows every year,” Echavarria said.

Echavarria joined BGCLC in August 2013. A club kid herself, she has worked for Boys and Girls Clubs in Carlsbad (where she grew up), Sedona, Arizona, and Brazos Valley, Texas.

“I knew from a young age this is what I wanted to do as a career,” she said.

Donations welcome
BGCLC is unable to hold any of its major annual fundraisers, including the Lou and Mary Henson Community Breakfast, for the second year in a row because of COVID-19. With expanded hours since Sept. 1, its biggest expense continues to be operations.

Echavarria said BGCLC welcomes donations of office supplies, school supplies, arts and crafts materials and sports equipment. Cash donations are also welcome, she said. The club will need to raise $7,000-$10,000 to replace one of its refrigerated air conditioner units this summer, she said.

Assistance with other building maintenance would also be welcome, Echavarria said. BGCLC is housed in a building that is likely more than 100 years old, she said. It paid off the property in 2013 but continues with renovations and repairs.

“We’ve been able to do so much,” she said. “We want to do more.”

THERE'S A WEB SITE FOR THAT! LCU Customers Able to Track Bill and Usage

By G.H. Scott

If you're looking to track your water usage or you're wondering if your bill is within budget, there's now a website for that! As a Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) customer, you now have access to a new tool to manage your monthly bill while conserving water and natural gas. Appropriately named UtilityHawk, the recently launched web portal can be used on any device (smartphone, laptop, tablet, and desktop computer, etc.) to access information 24-hours-a-day, seven days a week. "The user-friendly web portal provides immediate access for our customers," said Jose Provencio, LCU deputy Director Business Services, "allowing them to have more control over their monthly water and natural gas consumption and in turn their pocketbook." The UtilityHawk application turns "Big Data" into information customers understand and use to their benefit. You can also set your language preference to English or Spanish.

Register your account

Getting started is easy. Existing LCU customers can easily register to use UtilityHawk. Just enter an email address, name, contact information, and create a password at this link www.lascnm.utilityhawk.us/login today.

How to use UtilityHawk

The UtilityHawk web portal contains a host of information and options to keep you informed about your natural gas and water usage. Get current and projected bill amounts, set thresholds and alerts, and view your usage history. If you have multiple natural gas and water accounts, you can access the information for all accounts.

Once you sign in, you'll see information for the current billing period with both estimated and projected bill amounts as well as the amount of water and natural gas used.

Set Alerts

From the home page, you can access thresholds and alerts, see history of alerts, and change account settings. The Threshold page allows you to set an amount for the month and set alerts to inform you when you're getting close to the threshold amount and when you've exceeded it. This feature helps you track and take measures to adjust your usage in real time, giving you control over your monthly bill. UtilityHawk also provides Advanced Thresholds, which allows you to set limits based on amount of water and natural gas used.

"Setting alerts through the thresholds and/or advanced thresholds will let you know of any unusual changes to your utility usage and your account status. This will allow you to react and start correcting any problems," said Jeff Dillard, LCU business systems analyst. This is important because a problem can raise your bill significantly or can potentially cause damage to your pipes and residence/business.

UtilityHawk also provides natural gas and water consumption information in easy to understand graphs. See your usage with hourly, daily, 48-hour, 72-hour, monthly, or yearly views to help with budgeting or conservation efforts. See how you're doing against your estimated budget and check usage on any date and time; including minimum, average, and maximum usage.

If you're looking for an easy to use way to track and budget your natural gas and water usage, get signed up on LCU's UtilityHawk web portal. The best part is it's free to all LCU customers.

Native plants for your garden

By JOAN WOODWARD

Las Cruces Chapter, New Mexico
Native Plant Society

Doña Ana County is home to some of the greatest plant diversity in New Mexico and renowned for its beautiful Chihuahuan Desert context. Many of us want to bring that beauty into our own gardens instead of importing plants from other climate types. We want gardens that can survive the admittedly challenging context of high summer and low winter temperatures, gusting spring winds, brilliant light and low shade, along with low-nutrient and alkaline soils.

It makes sense to look for plants native to our region, since they are adapted to our context and have evolved over time with bird and insect partners, as well as local soil fungi and other microorganisms. "Near-natives"—those adapted, non-invasive plants from similar climate types that have been selected and bred by the nursery trade for certain desirable attributes — can also be good additions to a native plant garden, since not all native plants can survive urban garden conditions, such as when soils become compacted during residential construction or are too nitrogen-laden from pollution or excess fertilization.

Highlighted here are a few native Chihuahuan Desert plants that win the gardeners' trifecta: first, they adapt to and are well behaved in garden settings; second, they provide habitat, food, protection and/or beauty; and third, you can find these plants for purchase in local nurseries.

Please keep in mind that your soil and site will affect their success, so be sure to investigate these recommendations more deeply before investing. There are many terrific plant books, and the Native Plant Society of New Mexico website (npsnm.org) is a good place to start to learn about native plants.

In addition, Mountain States Wholesale Nursery website (mswn.com) provides comprehensive plant information sheets for commercially available native and adapted plants for landscape use in our region.

The following native and “near-native” plants, when combined, can provide color, scent, food and cover, year-round interest, and use considerably less water than plants imported from other climate types. These plants work well in well-drained gravelly and sandy soils, but some can also tolerate clays. Even native plants will need a bit of additional irrigation in the first two growing seasons, however; this helps them develop extensive root systems as part of their drought-and-heat-tolerance. Once a plant is established, occasional irrigation will help the plant look at its best.

For the trees, aka the “bones” of your garden, consider both the reliably blooming low-water tree desert willow and the shade-and-food-producing honey mesquite, whose long pods can be processed into a nutritious flour.

For shrubs, look for tough yet airy apache plume with its feathery whorls of seed heads and the flowering evergreen beauty turpentine bush (one variety is named for our own Aguirre Springs). Texas ranger is an attractive shrub, with rain-triggered summer blossoms, that pairs well with autumn sage, with lipstick-bright, pollinator-attracting flowers in spring and fall. Do not forget the hummingbird-magnet desert honeysuckle, which is aflame each summer with orange blossoms.

Beargrass is a grass-like evergreen succulent that can tolerate clays and some shade and is pollinated by native bees and wasps. The many varieties of succulent Red Yuccas are also tough, with waving stalks of nectar-laden flowers. For groundcovers, the soft, spreading cool-season Mexican feathergrass is widely available, as are summer-blooming Muhly grasses, which provide structure to the ground layer. Perennial flowers such as penstemons and golden columbine (with a little extra water and shade) provide sharp, clear color to the desert garden. Angelita Daisies are a long-blooming, slow-spreading evergreen groundcover. Scented chocolate flower provides yellow discs of color and delicious aromas on summer mornings.

Tufted evening primroses are saucer-sized, four-petaled wonders that bloom in the evening. Collect seeds, spread them during monsoon rains, and next year enjoy the bounty. Adding agaves and claret cup cactus will attract additional pollinators and provide year-round interest. The unusual, finery succulent Candelilla also adds a cultural link — the plant was once widely harvested to support a flourishing wax industry in the Chihuahuan Desert.

You can see many of these plants, with labels to help you identify them, in the following gardens: City of Las Cruces Utilities Water Conservation Garden, (680 N. Motel Blvd), Dripping Springs Visitor Center gardens at Organ Mountains-Desert Peaks National Monument, Chihuahuan Desert Nature Park (check for hours and directions at asombro.org), and Mesilla Valley Bosque State Park. For two additional, glorious Chihuahuan Desert gardens nearby, visit University of Texas at El Paso’s Centennial Museum and Chihuahuan Gardens (utep.edu) and the recent campus landscape transformation by the landscape architecture firm TenEyck and Associates (teneyckla.com). You will not be disappointed.

The plants listed here are available as of early April in the following local nurseries: Guzman’s Garden Centers (guzmansgreenhouse.com) (GGC), Robledo Vista Nursery (robledovista.com) (RVN), Sierra Vista Growers (sierravistagrowers.net) (SVG) and big box retail stores (BB).

Be sure to mention your interest in native and Chihuahuan Desert-adapted plants when you visit and encourage growers and retailers to meet the rising demand. And please note that FloraFest, an annual native plant sale to support the UTEP Centennial Museum and Chihuahuan Desert Gardens, will be held at the gardens 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, April 17-18. Go early, as they often sell out quickly. Visit florafest.org.

Enter your name in a drawing sponsored by the Las Cruces Chapter of the Native Plant Society of New Mexico and Mesilla Valley Audubon Society to win Jack Carter’s excellent book “Trees and Shrubs of New Mexico” or “Chihuahuan Desert Gardens: A Native Plant Selection Guide” by Greg Magee and Tim McKimmie. Stop by the Dripping Springs Visitor Center at Organ Mountains-Desert Peaks National Monument and Mesilla Valley Bosque State Park during Native Plant Week to enter.

Casa for a Cause: builder with a heart

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

“We’re always trying to give back to those that are helping our youth,” said Las Cruces homebuilder Adam Juarez.

That’s why he is happy to take the lead in the Las Cruces Home Builders Association’s (LCHBA) 2021 Casa for a Cause fundraiser.

With assistance from LCHBA, subcontractors and other donors, Juarez and A New Beginning Custom Homes, which he founded in 2017, will build a four-bedroom, 2.5-bath, 2,146 square-foot heated house, with a three-car garage at 3029 Little Creek Court for the project. Construction began with an April 13 groundbreaking and is expected to be completed in mid-September so the new home can be part of LCHBA’s 2021 Showcase of Homes.

Proceeds from the sale of the home will be divided among local nonprofits chosen by LCHBA.

“I wanted to give back and help everybody,” Juarez said.

His goal for the profit from the sale of the house is at least $1 more than the $125,000 earned by Desert View Homes with the last Casa for a Cause house (formerly Anniversary House) in 2018. Juarez is hopeful that subcontractors will donate time and materials to the project “so we can give back to these nonprofits.” He is also looking for Casa for a Cause sponsors, with sponsorships ranging from $500-$5,000. Smaller donations are also welcome.

Hakes Brothers built the first Casa for a Cause/Anniversary House in 2014 — LCHBA’s 55th anniversary — which generated $64,000 in profit. Veloz Homes build the house in 2015, generating $82,000 in profit, and Arista Development was the builder in 2017, raising $74,000.

Juarez is a native of Las Cruces. He graduated from Mayfield High School and attended Doña Ana Community College. Before starting his own company, Juarez served as a foreman, draftsman, truss designer, lumber estimator and salesman.

“I’ve been very fortunate,” Juarez said. “We haven’t skipped a beat” despite the challenges of COVID-19, he said. “I’m just grateful that I have the opportunity to give back to the community that has helped us grow and believed in us. We want to help those that are less fortunate right now. I just want to do my part.”

Even before Casa for a Cause, Juarez has been giving back to the community. Through the Helping Hands Project he started at A New Beginning Custom Homes, $500 from the sale of each of his homes is donated to the charity of the buyer’s choice.

Juarez said he has a unique approach as a builder because his customers “get to design their home within their budget.” Most builders, he said, offer a small number of home designs from which customers can choose based on how much they are spending.

“We do everything,” Juarez said, including custom, farm, Southwest and modern designs.

“We go green with all our homes. We’re very proud of that,” he said. Spray-in foam insulation is an important feature of all his homes, Juarez said.

“We’re changing the way homebuilding has been done here in Las Cruces,” he said.

Yannick Nézet-Séguin

8 p.m. on KRWG Great Performances

The new episode “Beethoven in Beijing” examines how mainstream classical music enjoyed a resurgence in 1973 China, when the Philadelphia Orchestra became the first such musical group to perform in that country. Marking an end to China’s Cultural Revolution, during which Western music was banned in favor of politically themed works, the Philadelphia Classical pianist Lang Lang and Metropolitan Opera music director Yannick Nézet-Séguin are among the musicians who share how Beethoven’s music shaped their own careers.

8 p.m. on SYFY Van Helsing

The ancient dark prince known to the ages as Dracula (Tricia Helfer) holds the Oval Office as this long-running horror action series returns for its fifth and final season. As the action resumes, Vanessa (Kelly Overton) and her two artificially developed heirs, Violet and Jack (Keeya King, Nicole Munoz), throw any last remaining caution to the winds as they seek ways to avoid obstacles that stand in the way of their destiny, an epic showdown between the “Old One” and the Van Helsing.

tonight's picks

Serayah

7:45 a.m. on STARZ
Movie: The Last Shift

Writer-director Andrew Cohn's character-driven 2019 dramedy received a warm reception from critics, as did lead actors Richard Jenkins ("Six Feet Under") as Stanley, a fast-food worker preparing to retire after 38 years working the graveyard shift at Oscar's Chicken and Fish eatery. On his last weekend, he finds himself forming an unlikely bond with his young replacement, Jevon (Shane Paul McGhie), a struggling writer who definitely doesn't share Stanley's touching pride in this humble labor. Da'Vine Joy Randolph, Birgundi Baker, Allison Tolman and Ed O'Neill also are featured.

6 p.m. on LIFE
Movie: Envy: A Seven Deadly Sins Story

The second movie in this anthology series based on books by Victoria Christopher Murray stars Rose Rollins as Gabrielle Flores, a successful public relations executive who also is happily married with a beautiful daughter. When Gabrielle's father drops the bombshell that she has a half-sister she never knew existed, Gabrielle naively and graciously invites this lost sibling, Keisha (Serayah), into her life. Unfortunately, Keisha, who grew up poor, is determined to take away everything her luckier half-sister has enjoyed until now.

6 p.m. on TCM
Movie: The Miracle Worker

"The room's a wreck, but her napkin is folded." Dedicated Anne Sullivan (Anne Bancroft) helps young Helen Keller (Patty Duke) emerge from her silent prison in this Oscar-winning 1962 adaptation of William Gibson's award-winning Broadway play. By turns poignant, funny, suspenseful and uplifting, the drama scored Academy Awards for both Bancroft and Duke, reprising their stage performances. Inga Swenson co-stars.

6 p.m. on BBCA
One Wild Day

This new three-part natural history series takes viewers on a 24-hour roller coaster ride through the animal world, to see how the position of the sun during the day can affect the behavior of living things across the planet. The premiere chronicles 24 hours in the South American desert, where animals await those prime moments during the day when the sun's position in the sky creates enhanced advantages to their survival in treacherous terrain.

6:30 p.m. on OXYGEN
Accident, Suicide, or Murder

This true-crime docuseries, which investigates the facts behind some deaths that are considered just a little bit too "mysterious," returns for Season 3, which centers around a young mother who was fatally shot at an Alaskan lodge during a weekend trip with her boyfriend. Investigators ruled the shooting accidental until a later, eerily similar case in Montana compelled detectives to reopen the case.

7 p.m. on HALL
Movie: Right in Front of Me

In high demand for her skills as a wedding stylist, Carly Mason (Janel Parrish) finds herself at a resort where several old college acquaintances are spending the weekend for a wedding. Among them is Matt (Anthony Konechny), Carly's all-consuming campus crush from years back. Meanwhile, Nick (Marco Grazzini), a junior chef at the resort, is trying to advance his career, so Carly agrees to connect him with her high-end clients if he'll help her catch the attention of Matt. Hilary Jardine and Clayton James co-star.

7 p.m. on OWN
Iyanla, Fix My Life

In the new episode "My Marriage Is None of Our Business," a couple who co-own a business and share 11 children between them reach a crisis point in their marriage. The husband has one foot out of the door already, but the wife turns to Iyanla for some advice on how their union — and their joint livelihood — may be saved, not just cast aside.

7:55 p.m. on STARZ
Movie: Once Upon a Time... In Hollywood

In addition to multiple other accolades, Brad Pitt won an Academy Award as best supporting actor for writer-director Quentin Tarantino's lavishly praised 2019 comedy-drama, which cast Pitt as the stunt double of a Hollywood superstar (Leonardo DiCaprio), both of whom are nostalgic for the rapidly vanishing golden age of Hollywood. The huge ensemble cast also includes Margot Robbie, Emile Hirsch, Margaret Qualley, Timothy Olyphant, Dakota Fanning, Bruce Dern and Damian Lewis, many of them playing familiar Tinseltown figures. This was Luke Perry's final film.

6 p.m. on DSC
Deadliest Catch

The global COVID-19 pandemic may be showing signs of waning, but the fishermen still face an existential threat to their livelihoods as this hit reality series returns for its landmark 17th season. With half the crab boats tied up and the entire fishery in Dutch Harbor, Alaska, facing possible closure, it becomes clear the fleet will have to put aside old rivalries and pull together. Sig Hansen devises a two-pronged plan to save the fishery, while Bering Sea legend Johnathan Hillstrand returns with the Time Bandit to help.

7 p.m. on KFOX
The Resident

Mina and The Raptor (Shaunette Renée Wilson, Malcolm-Jamal Warner) find themselves at a crossroads as an unexpected complication throws a wrench into their future plans in the new episode "Into the Unknown." Elsewhere, Cain (Morris Chestnut) confronts a harsh reality as Kit (Jane Leeves) gives him a chance to prove he's ready to resume surgery. Devon (Manish Dayal) presents Rose (guest star Cara Ricketts) with a groundbreaking clinical trial that offers hope in her battle with Sickle Cell Anemia.

7 p.m. on TLC
The Blended Bunch

The big adoption day is finally here, but Emma is still adamantly opposed to changing her last name in the season finale "Baby One More Time?" Elsewhere, Erica and Spencer enlist the help of a therapist to ease family tensions. When Erica's brother Quinn finds out about a possible 12th baby, he doesn't hide his feelings.

7 p.m. on OWN
Delilah

After enjoying a rapturous night with Jamal (Michel Curiel), Delilah (Maahra Hill) is jolted back into reality when Mace (Joe Holt) shows up for an early-morning visit, and he's bearing some bad news, in the new episode "Purple Empress." Elsewhere, Demetria and Harper (Susan Hayward, Zizioma Akagha) manage to find common ground.

8 p.m. on KRWG
Philly D.A.

This new docuseries takes viewers inside the offices of Philadelphia District Attorney Larry Krasner as he and his team devote three years to transform the criminal justice system from the inside. That's obviously a herculean task, and this production presents an unflinching look at the inner workings of this process as it unfolds through a nearly endless string of daily tasks. The docuseries draws from several interviews with current inmates, crime victims, Krasner's political opponents and concerned constituents.

8 p.m. on KDBC

After a man is killed by a package that exploded after being delivered to his home, Maggie, OA (Missy Peregrym, Zeeko Zaki) and their team race to find the shadowy sender and intercept the latest deadly parcel before it reaches its intended victim in the new episode "Brother's Keeper." Meanwhile, Maggie also is struggling to believe her headstrong kid sister Erin (guest star Adrienne Rose Bengtsson) is really staying out of trouble as a new college student in New York.

8 p.m. on KVIA
black-ish

Bow and Dre (Tracee Ellis Ross, Anthony Anderson) are excited when Junior and Olivia (Marcus Scribner, Katlyn Nichol) invite them over to dinner at the younger couple's new apartment, but the parental pleasure fades once they get a look at the living conditions in the place, in the new episode "My Dinner With Andre Junior." Elsewhere, Diane (Marsai Martin) enjoys some bonding time with Pops (Laurence Fishburne) when she asks him for some dating advice.

8:01 p.m. on KFOX
Prodigal Son

Gil's (Lou Diamond Phillips) fatherly concerns are triggered when Bright (Tom Payne) throws himself into a new case involving a serial killer who is stepping up his murders in the new episode "The Killabustas." Elsewhere, Jessica (Bellamy Young) realizes she'll have to dive deep into past traumas as she writes her book, a challenge that might require assistance from Gil. Meanwhile, Martin's (Michael Sheen) strange relationship with Dr. Capshaw (guest star Catherine Zeta-Jones) continues to intensify. Keiko Agena also stars.

8:01 p.m. on A&E
Hustle & Tow

Each episode of this new unscripted series follows a different but still very necessary type of "first responder": tow truck drivers from around the country. These workers respond quickly to distress calls from families whose car has broken down, drivers who have been in an accident due to extreme weather conditions or putting their own welfare at risk to tow away an illegally parked vehicle. These gigs often lead to rescues, confrontations and other potentially dangerous situations, all captured and presented here in authentic context.

8:30 p.m. on KVIA
mixed-ish

Tamika (guest star Trin-i-tee), Rainbow's (Arca Himmel)

best friend, asks her for help planning her 14th birthday party, so Bow pulls out all the stops to ensure the occasion will be the best birthday bash ever in the new episode "You Dropped a Bomb on Me." Elsewhere, Alicia and Paul (Tika Sumpter, Mark-Paul Gosselaar) vie to prove which of them is the cooler parent, while Harrison (Gary Cole) takes Santi and Johan (Mykal-Michelle Harris, Ethan William Childress) on a trip to Mexico.

10 p.m. on FREEFRM
Cruel Summer

Jessica Biel is an executive producer on this new limited series, a thriller that unfolds over three years in the 1990s and revolves around two young women: Kate Wallis (Olivia Holt), a local golden girl who suddenly goes missing, and Jeanette Turner (Chiara Aurelia), a nerdy misfit who becomes a suspect in Kate's disappearance. As the story unfolds from shifting points of view, however, the series challenges perceptions and asks whether Kate is who she is thought to be. Michael Landes and Harley Quinn Smith co-star; another episode follows.

Downtown Blues Coffee: Live music, local history, great coffee on south Main Street

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Downtown Blues Coffee, 130 S. Main St. downtown, has “coffee, records, atmosphere” and a whole lot more.

In addition to hot Cafe Du Monde from New Orleans, the Downtown Blues menu includes iced Community Coffee from Baton Rouge, fresh empanadas from Lujan’s Bakery, chocolate and vanilla Moon Pies, a variety of hot teas, hot cocoa, chips, Mazapan and canned sodas, water and other drinks.

In store and on the sidewalk out front, you will also find a vast collection of LP records from every genre for sale, along with T-shirts, vintage jackets and jeans, coffee mugs and other dishes, knickknacks, artwork and even musical instruments.

And there are regularly scheduled live music performances by talented local artists.

There’s even a large map of the world with pins locating visitors to Downtown Blues from across the country and around the world. Owner Frankie Jaurequi said his clients included recent visitors from Columbia, and have come from six continents.

“We just need somebody from Antarctica,” said Jaurequi, who opened Downtown Blues Coffee Dec. 21, 2019.

Jaurequi is a Silver City native who first came to Las Cruces in 1983. His life-long love of music has included work as a recording engineer and producer, and he is even a “closet” bass guitar player, Jaurequi said.

Downtown Blues is also home to Fred Nevarez’s huge record collection, 75,000-80,000 records in all, which he bills as the “largest vinyl collection in New Mexico.” It also includes metal and even bone records, he said. There are more than 500 Elvis Presley records in the collection, and nearly that many by the Beatles, Nevarez said.

The collection includes all kinds of music: rock and roll, jazz, blues, country, big band, Tex-Mex, religious, comedy and even children’s records, Nevarez said.

Nevarez, a native of El Paso, has collected the records while working in construction all over the United States, he said.

“Music has been in my blood since I was a youngster,” he said.

Nevarez also has quite a collection of musical memorabilia, including a guitar pick personally autographed for him by Nancy Wilson and drumsticks signed “To Fred” from the band War. There are about 1,200 books in his rock and roll history library, said Nevarez, who remembers playing in a band with his brothers while growing up.

“We always wanted to be Alice Cooper,” Nevarez said.

You can buy records for $5-$20, and there are even record players for sale in the store.

There is so much to browse and buy in Downtown Blues, Jaurequi said, his customers often tell him on second or third visits, “I didn’t see that the last time.”

Downtown Blues was the home of the Deluxe Café decades ago, a famous Las Cruces location because Ovida “Cricket” Coogler disappeared after leaving the Las Cruces café March 31, 1949.

Coogler’s body was found in the desert 17 days after she disappeared. Her murder has never been solved.

You can buy copies of the book “Cricket on the Web” by Paula Moore in Downtown Blues.

Downtown Blues Coffee is open 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, closed Sunday and Monday.

'Animal Tales' highlights Las Cruces' glorious return to live theatre; additional performances added

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

An existential cat, an angry parrot, a lonely platypus, a smart but hungry mouse, a confused bat, a spiritual cow, a not deeply reflective groundhog, a philosophical chipmunk with a shovel, an outraged baboon in a monkey suit and a turkey with a musical dream.

Those are just some of the characters in Black Box Theatre's outdoor production of "Animal Tales" by Don Nigro that marks the return of live theatre to Las Cruces.

I loved everything about this show. All of the scripts for these 10 short plays are well written, with some pretty deep-thinking critters that make you laugh as they offer some thoughtful insights into life's unanswered questions, like, Why DO cats chase string?

I also loved that each play featured its own piece of art (from the theatre gallery lobby gallery inside the theatre), brought onstage by the actors. Each also had unique costumes that sometimes included T-shirts with their character animals on them or, in the case of Autumn Gieb's performance as a bat, goggles that added the perfect touch to her fabulous performance.

I was also extremely taken with the live piano performance of Barbara Toth. It was so lovely to come in the back gate of the Black Box Theatre courtyard, 430 N. Main St., and be greeted with her wonderful playing. She also provided the entry and exit music for each short play that was perfect.

Kudos also to Peter Herman for a sound system that allowed the audience to hear every word from the actors, despite the distance between the actors and the audience mandated by state public health orders, the occasional breeze and the ambient noise from busy Main Street. (In her curtain speech before the show, director Ceil Herman said the block will be closed off for next week's performances, so the outside noise won't be an issue. Frankly, once I got into the show, it wasn't much of a distraction anyway.)

Mostly, the success of this show is due to the actors. One and all, they were terrific. Gold stars all around to Nancy Cline Tafoya, Genno Tafoya, Autumn Gieb, Debbie Jo Felix, Joshua Taulbee, Bekah Taulbee and Ed Montes.

I would give an extra gold star to Bekah Taulbee. As far as I know, "Animal Tales" marks her onstage debut as an actor, after working backstage and in the booth for countless shows at Black Box Theatre and Las Cruces Community Theatre. She brings the same talent and skill in front of the curtain she has had behind it for so long. She was a wonderful chipmunk and an especially terrific turkey named Penny, who dreams of finding the saxophone tree and playing a saxophone with her feet.

Somehow, you believe she just might pull it off.

"Animal Tales" runs about 70 minutes without an intermission. Make your reservations and go see it.

I would have a hard time picking my favorite of the 10 short plays; I genuinely enjoyed them all and appreciated their wide range of subjects.

Sold out show adds two performances

And, because the four performances of "Animal Tales" that were originally scheduled have already sold out, Black Box Theatre has added two additional shows. Seating is limited to 25 patrons at each performance.

Here is the schedule of remaining performances:

- 8 p.m. Saturday, April 17
- 2:30 p.m. Sunday, April 18
- 7 p.m. Thursday, April 22
- 7 p.m. Sunday, April 25.

Tickets are $15 regular admission and $12 students and seniors over age 65.

The Ghetto Blaster headlines at Amador Dayz with a celebration of Rocking Las Cruces

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Ghetto Blaster is a four-man dance-rock-funk-disco-soul band that has been part of the area's music scene dating back into the 1990s.

The band will be featured as part of Amador Dayz, performing Saturday, May 1, on the main-stage stage at Amador Live Eatery and Entertainment District, 302 S. Main St. The music will begin at 7:30 p.m. as The Ghetto Blaster performs a show called "Celebrating Six Years of Rocking Las Cruces."

It was 2014 when Scott Guthrie, Oliver Charity, Dru Hubbard and Jason Reed decided to form The Ghetto Blaster. All four had been part of a band called The Liars that had been around for about 20 years. Charity had done some acoustic shows with the name The Ghetto Blaster, and the foursome decided to use it for their new band, Guthrie said.

Charity on vocals,

Guthrie on guitar, Hubbard on drums and Reed on bass are all either Las Cruces natives or long-time residents, Guthrie said.

They have a repertoire of well more than 100 songs that features the band's unique thumbprint in a wide range of genres with an emphasis on dance music, he said.

"We even squeeze in some country," Guthrie said.

The band plays covers, but "We definitely don't try to sound exactly like the record," he said. "We want people to hear songs they're familiar with," Guthrie said, but with The Ghetto Blaster's unique take on the classic tunes.

"The vibe we try to go for is a real party environment, very danceable, pretty groovy stuff built around crowd engagements and participation," he said. "It really is a mixed bag of stuff. We try to make it where there's a little something for everybody."

The Amador Dayz gig is also part of The Ghetto Blaster's return to live performance, Guthrie said. The band had taken a break because of COVID-19 since last October, returning to the stage for the first time in early April.

Band members continued to rehearse throughout the pandemic, he said.

They have "been really fortunate" to be able to get together to work on their music and "to keep everything sharp," Guthrie said.

"The whole Ghetto Blaster thing is in reference to the boom box," he said. "The way we present the set, it goes from song to song to song to song without a break, with very limited breaks throughout the set, eight to 10 songs that flow all in a row. It's almost the same kind of presentation as if there were a DJ mixing songs. The average set list is around 50 songs," Guthrie said.

There is no cover charge for the show, but reservations are required. Call 575-541-7417. Visit Amador Dayz will begin Friday, April 30, and continue through Saturday, May 8, with seven major events in seven days on the main stage and event lawn at the Amador Live.

Founders of new Las Cruces nonprofit: Wellness is a necessity for everyone

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

“Build curiosity, then trust.”

That’s the goal for Downtown Desert Yoga (DDY) owner Colleen Boyd (it’s also her quote) as she and two others launch a new Las Cruces nonprofit to help all segments of the community understand the importance of wellness and have access to it.

Personal wellness is “a necessary benefit to quality of life,” said Desert Community Wellness (DCW) nonprofit President Kasey Peña.

Peña, Boyd and Debra Knapp, Ph.D., who retired in 2019 as New Mexico University’s director of dance, formed the nonprofit last year. It’s based at DDY, 303 S. Alameda Blvd. and focused on yoga and related practices.

Part of DCW’s mission in creating sustainable partnerships “to share accessible wellness practices” in the community is helping people understand what personal wellness means. DCW’s definition has five pillars: physical, social-emotional, creative, financial and environmental, which interweave to support “living with passion and purpose” in harmony with the environment, community, career, belief systems, physical activities, selfcare, eating, self-esteem, creative activities and more.

“Applying wellness in our everyday life” is part of the DCW mission, and that means helping people deal with the stress and trauma that are a part of living for people of all ages, ethnicities, body images.

“We believe in a well-rounded (and bilingual) offering and being creative in what we offer,” Peña said.

An important part of DCW’s work is overcoming barriers to wellness, she said. Growing up in a poor family, Peña said one of her personal barriers was poverty.

“It seemed like a luxury then, and it’s not,” she said. Wellness is a fundamental necessity for everyone.

Through community partnerships, donations and grant writing, DCW plans to offer classes and programming free or at reduced prices whenever possible so people with limited incomes, including people struggling with poverty and homelessness, can still embrace wellness. Scholarships, bartering and work study are also in their plans.

DCW already includes a yoga apprentice program to help people of all ages, races and body types to connect with selfcare and wellness and guide others to do the same.

Another barrier, all three said, is the perception that yoga is a practice for a specific demographic, i.e., wealthy, white women.

“My passion is to make yoga much more accessible to the community,” Boyd said.

That’s why the nonprofit was formed — to expand community wellness to “a much more diverse community,” she said.

Knapp, a dance professor, professional dancer and choreographer, said she only recent came to appreciate the value of yoga.

“I hated yoga,” Knapp said.

But because one of her dance students was teaching at DDY, she took her first yoga class there just as she was retiring from NMSU.

“I just wept,” Knapp said. Yoga wasn’t about professional development, a performance or a grade, she said. “I was doing it for selfcare,” Knapp said, “just for the purpose of wellness.”

Helping others to value selfcare and wellness is “why I want to be part of

Cruces Cool Cats nonprofit helps with feral cat population

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Cruces Cool Cats (CCC) nonprofit officially opened Feb. 4 “to assist with the homeless and feral (cat) population,” said CCC founder Selina Cardoza.

As of early April, CCC has acquired nearly 60 cats, found homes for two and assisted with trap-neuter-release (TNR) for two others, Cardoza said.

Cardoza said she and CCC Board Vice President Nadine Armijo “talked for many years of doing something like this, starting an animal sanctuary. I told Nadine one day, ‘Why don’t we just do it? We are passionate enough.’”

Cardoza bought a house in central Las Cruces “specifically to start this nonprofit and fund it,” Cardoza said.

The nonprofit accepts cash donations through its website, CrucesCoolCats.org, and Facebook page: Cruces Cool Cats. It also accepts donations of cat food, kitty litter and other supplies, she said.

“Our adoption process is simple,” Cardoza said. “We have an adoption form, a simple interview and home check. We are looking for good and for-primary goal of ours,” she said.

Cardoza’s son, Joseph Lucero, is CCC’s caretaker.

Cardoza is an educational assistant at Zia Middle School. Joseph, 19, is a graduate of Centennial High School and a

Animal Control restarts live trap program

Las Cruces Animal Control is restarting its Live Trap program that was temporarily paused in 2020 due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

The Live Trap program allows Las Cruces residents to request use of a trap, free of charge, for the purpose of capturing nuisance stray dogs and cats. An Animal Control officer will deliver and set up the trap upon request, and then remove nuisance animals that are captured.

Animal Control has a limited number of live traps and currently, because the program just restarted, has a standing waiting list for usage of the traps.

Live traps issued by Las Cruces Animal Control are to be used only for the live capture of nuisance dogs and cats. Skunks, squirrels, raccoons, coyotes, bats and other potentially nuisance wildlife are handled by the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Wildlife Services. Protected wildlife such as bobcats, cougars, javelina, deer, oryx and birds of prey are handled by the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish.

Who to call:

- Las Cruces Animal Control: stray and nuisance dogs and cats. Animal Control officers will also respond to complaints of snakes at properties within city limits. 575-528-4100 or 575-526-0795.
- USDA Wildlife Services: nuisance skunks, raccoons, squirrels, coyotes, bats, etc. 575-527-6980.

- NM Game and Fish: protected wildlife such as bobcats, cougars, javelinas, deer, oryx, birds of prey, etc. 575-532-2100.

Animal Control issues live traps for stray dogs and cats each Monday and the traps can be used, free of charge for Las Cruces city residents, for one week at a time.

It is against the law to cause harm or purposely injure stray dogs or cats other than having them live-trapped and safely turned over to Animal

Anonymous donor starts endowment for Safe Haven Animal Sanctuary

Bulletin REPORT

An endowment to benefit Safe Haven Animal Sanctuary (SHAS) has been set up in partnership with the Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico (CFSNM), the foundation said in a news release.

“SHAS celebrates our 25th anniversary this year and we are overjoyed to receive news of this endowment,” SHAS Executive Director Laura O’Connor said. “Funds from the endowment will help us to provide care to the homeless cats and dogs that reside at our no-kill sanctuary as they await adoption. Our thrift store is our main source of revenue and has been operating at a limited capacity for the last year due to the pandemic. While our revenues have been down, our veterinary bills have been steadily increasing, so this endowment is greatly appreciated.”

SHAS is the largest no-kill sanctuary in Doña Ana County, the news release said. With three acres, it can house up to 45 dogs and 35 cats as it seeks permanent homes for these abandoned animals.

Founded in 1996, SHAS is a nonprofit that depends on the generosity of the community, CFSNM said.

“Working with donors to connect their passions with giving is the joy of working with CFSNM,” said CFSNM President and CEO Terra V. Winter. The SHAS donor family is “passionate about no-kill animal shelters and supporting women and children out of domestic violence situations. An additional endowment has been set up for the Roswell Humane Society in Chaves County and several grants have been awarded to domestic violence shelters throughout Doña Ana, Lincoln and Chaves counties,” Winter said.

There are many options to donate to SHAS, CFSNM said, including the SHAS thrift store, 840-D El Paseo Road in Las Cruces, a wish list on the SHAS website and dry or canned pet food that can be delivered to the thrift store.

To donate to the SHAS endowment, visit <http://bit.ly/safehaven25>. Also visit <https://shaspets.com/> and www.communityfoundationofsouthernnewmexico.com.

Hidden orchard welcomes visitors

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Butterflies, bees, families, teachers and artists are all welcome at U-Pick Mesilla Valley Apples off Shalem Colony Trail, where the apple trees are currently in full bloom.

Orchard manager LuAnne Burke wants people to visit and enjoy the orchard in its full glory. If they have a little extra time to paint blooms with pollen or pick up some of the sticks fallen between trees, she would be grateful too, but mostly she would like to share the wonder of nature and life.

Burke owns Apple of Joy and leases the apple orchard from the Burke family trust. The orchard is called U-Pick Mesilla Valley Apples and the home-bakery that supports the orchard is called Apple of Joy Home-Bakery, also known as Pom de Joie.

“I called the orchard on Facebook ‘U-Pick Mesilla Valley Apples’ because most people did not know we existed,” Burke said. “They only thought of apples growing in the mountains of New Mexico.”

She said the core function of the business is to provide a green place where families and individuals can experience the healing joys of being in nature and creating lasting memories and having fun. It is also to provide health to the community by offering an affordable way to be together in nature and do an activity together that is free from commercialism. It is a way to build experiences and enjoy “tasty, yummy apples that are healthy and free of artificial fungicides usually seen on store apples,” Burke said.

The area we live in, especially for people from El Paso, does not offer many opportunities to be outside in a lush, green environment, Burke said.

“Many people live in apartments or do not have a lot of green grass around them,” she said. “During the growing season, the orchard is lush and green. It is an oasis for the eyes and soul.”

Burke said from a young child gleefully exclaiming, “Apple... tree... apple” and reaching out to touch an apple to older children learning about pollination, the apple orchard offers children a real way to learn.

“I want to educate kids and people about pollination, and I want to invite teachers to do a Zoom class out there,” Burke said. “That way the kids can see the way we pollinate apples and see the teachers even paint pollen on an apple and we can follow that blossom and see if it creates an apple or not.”

Because most of the trees in the orchard are red delicious, they must be pollinated from a different variety. Red delicious are a sterile variety, Burke said, while some other varieties are self-pollinating. And at her orchard, there are a few other varieties that can contribute the pollen needed for bees to spread, but she supplements by purchasing more and paints it on the blooms.

“Unfortunately, if you have cross pollinators that don’t have blossoms, there is only a pretty short window of time to get it done,” she said. “Red delicious require pollination from another variety, or the blossoms blow away and there won’t be any apples.”

So, Burke is out in the orchard painting with pollen. She said she sees the blossom as a catcher’s mitt, she aims for the center of the flower and hopes the bees will catch the pollen and spread it to even more flowers by the wind.

“I learned in social work that you can either spend time trying to jump in and save people drowning in the river or you can build a bridge and prevent people from falling in the river,” she said. “Although it is simple and small, I have seen that this apple orchard can build a bridge. It can help families that are struggling to communicate. I have seen teenagers and parents walk into the orchard where it was so tense between them, the air could be cut with a knife. And then, walking out they were joking and laughing together. It can be a place where people of all ages can build experiences together.”

The farm is located off Shalem Colony Trail, where Burke bakes in her permitted home-based kitchen and delivers or sells at Mesilla’s farmer’s and craft market.

Orchard visits are available by appointment.

“We want to provide a place for people to enjoy the orchard and beautiful open space we have but also do it in a safe manner,” she said. “People can sponsor a tree to help us pay for expensive pruning so we can remove diseased branches in the winter and plant new trees in the spring. By appointment, they can visit the orchard and see the seasons changing. They can take photos and bring a picnic.”

Because the red delicious apple blossoms must be pollinated by other varieties, LuAnne Burke paints pollen into the blossoms so the apples can set.

Can you come out of COVID stronger than you went in? YES!

The next five months are going to be critical for our New Mexico True Talent who've become displaced from their previous jobs due to COVID. In early September, the federal unemployment benefits for displaced workers will end, and the state will reinstate the work-search requirement for those on unemployment assistance.

As of this writing, there are 9,300 of our neighbors receiving unemployment benefits, but only 7,800 are registered as job seekers. As we look to the summer months and schools (hopefully) being fully reopened in the fall, we should have a flood of available workers looking to go back to work...many in jobs or industries they weren't in before.

TRACEY BRYAN

The Bridge of Southern New Mexico

The key to coming out of COVID in an economically stronger place than you went in lies in taking advantage of this unique moment to use the funds available to learn new skills or build on the skills you have to secure jobs that pay the same or more than previous jobs.

For example, of the 3,253 jobs advertised in Doña Ana County right now, the top skill being asked for is customer service (1,144 of those jobs). Other most requested skills include problem solving, interpersonal skills, conflict management, flexibility, organizational skills, time management, attention to detail, mathematics skills and decision making. All of these are skills that most of our displaced workers already have and can build on.

So, what new skills may be needed? Here's just a few: pretty much all things computer, including Microsoft Office; Python, UNIX, Linux, and C++ computer coding languages; point-of-sale systems; forklift operations; alarm systems; vehicle global positioning systems; and more.

Those who live in Doña Ana County are fortunate to be able to quickly gain a host of computer and other technical career skills here in our community — and in many cases, have the costs of those courses covered. Both Doña Ana Community College and New Mexico State University offer credentials inside and outside of degree paths.

Federal and state funding to support COVID-impacted workers is available in greater amounts than before. The Workforce Connections system provides individual training accounts to those who qualify, along with a host of other supports to help its customers achieve their career goals. The Opportunity Scholarship specifically targets youth and adults who are seeking to secure career-specific credentials and two-year degrees. And of course, there are also Pell Grants and other resources depending upon the unique financial situation of the career-seeker.

Make no mistake...

education and training beyond high school are inextricably tied to employment post-COVID. And the time to secure those credentials and degrees is NOW.

Thanks to the work of The Bridge of Southern New Mexico and the Workforce Talent Collaborative, we know definitively what credentials and degrees are in highest demand in our county's top industries.

Here's just a few examples. Want to skill up for well-paying aerospace and defense jobs? Get your credentials like welding, electrician, water systems, web development, computer information or engineering technology.

How about value-added agriculture? Employers need those with a commercial drivers license, accounting and finance, and forklift and warehouse operations.

Thinking about healthcare? Of course, you can write your ticket as a nurse, but they also need bookkeepers, insurance billing people, radiology technicians, respiratory therapists and phlebotomists.

There is a lot more information for all eight of our key industries, including digital media, advanced manufacturing, transportation and logistics and energy. You can find them listed specifically at NewMexicoTrueTalent.org. Click on Career Pathways and then choose the industry you're interested in to see a full list.

Our goal is the goal of New Mexico — to come out of COVID better than we went in!

Got a half a minute? Check out Dr. Golf's 30-second success tips

Ever wonder how quickly you could take your golf game to the next level? How about 30 seconds.

Let's take a look at some of the ways you can use to improve your results, just by doing certain things that take less than a minute.

• Starting with your approach shots to the green, be sure to size up the actual and effective yardage properly. This only takes a half-minute. Use your GPS device or your laser rangefinder or both. In the absence of technology check nearby

CHARLIE BLANCHARD

Golf Doctor

sprinkler heads for numbers and look at the yardage plates or poles in the middle of the fairway. Most golf courses have trees or bushes that indicate the 150-yard point. Use your senses to note the wind, elevation and hole location to feel the effective distance you have to hit the ball to land it in the proper spot. Don't be in such a hurry to get up and hit your shot before knowing exactly what you need to do.

• Another 30-second strategy is a deliberate and efficient pre-shot routine.

Think of your pre-shot routine as a very brief bit of combined ritual and rehearsal for the swing or putt to follow. It's your choice whether to take an actual full practice swing or not. Once you have sized up your shot and selected your club, stand behind your ball and instantly visualize your swing and shot. Now approach your ball, brush the grass with the sole of your club in a relaxing motion, like the pros do, step up to the shot, aim at the target, take a deliberate breath, and swing.

• For your short game, 30 seconds of thoughtfulness could make all the difference in your score. When they get close to the green many high-handicap golfers will simply get to their ball and just aim more-or-less in the direction of the hole, without taking the trouble to survey the preferred distance and landing area. For chips and short pitches, of say 40 yards or less, take a few seconds and walk to the green and pinpoint the exact spot where you think your ball should land in order for it to roll out for and easy, or at least makeable putt. Picking an exact spot is crucial to a good shot, and as you get more skilled at your short game, you'll be able to acquire the feel and savvy for where the ball should land, as well as the touch it takes to execute the proper shot.

• When you're on the putting green take 30 seconds to read the green in a fully engaged and meaningful manner. Most high handicappers just give a cursory look at a putt before they go up and hit it; and then they wonder why it came up six feet short or six to the right. It doesn't take any more time to walk around the line of your putt before or while others are walking to the green or putting. Survey your putt by looking at the slope (or can't) of the green, watching other balls roll toward the hole, and checking the grain of the grass. Be aware that grass always has a "grain," which really is the predominant direction or slant that the blades of grass are growing. Naturally if you are hitting your ball into the grain — blades slightly slanted towards you — the ball will roll slower.

• Lastly, take a half-minute, or even more, to thank your pro, as well as the staff and employees for the pleasure of being able to play golf on a beautiful day on a nice golf course.
