Doña Ana County Crisis Triage Center

RIBBON CUTTING CEREMONY SIGNALS NEW DIRECTION IN MENTAL & SUBSTANCE ABUSE CARE

A ribbon-cutting ceremony at the new Doña Ana County Crisis Triage Center today signals the beginning of a new direction for mental and substance abuse crisis care, in the community.

The center will be fully operational soon and currently houses 13 staff members, who are onboarding and receiving training.

The Center will provide services to people, referred to as guests experiencing a mental health or substance use crisis and will ensure engagement in recovery. Staff will provide a comprehensive discharge plan to connect guests to local healthcare providers, resources or other agencies in the community, as needed. Services are designed to meet the best-practice standards set by the U.S. Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration and align with the Nationally-recognized Crisis Now Model.

Dist. 5 Commissioner and Board of County Commissioners Chair Manuel Sanchez thanked community representatives who supported the center, over the past few years. He said the center also prepares Doña Ana County for the upcoming 9-8-8 prevention hotline designation, a number that will be dedicated to National Suicide Prevention Lifeline, effective July 16, 2022. People in crisis in the proximity could be immediately referred to the center.

RI International's Deputy CEO Paul Galdys introduced Karina P. Diaz, LPAT, ATR, IFS, the new Site Director for the center, and Jess Spohn, MPH, LCSW, LSAA, CHES, the new Clinical Director, who will oversee licensed behavioral health clinicians and peer support specialists.

Starting in March, Diaz has been hiring and training staff, ramping up the Center to begin operating in June.

"It is important to me that we provide compassionate, professional, trauma-informed, and culturally-affirming care to our guests, based on their individual needs, especially in their time of crisis," Spohn said. "I am looking forward to expanding much-needed mental health services in our community, while building relationships with community partners and fostering a healthy workplace culture." Spohn holds a Master's Degree in Public Health from NMSU and a Master's Degree in Social Work from the University of Texas at El Paso, UTEP, is a Licensed Clinical Social Worker, Licensed Substance Abuse Associate and is a Certified Health Education Specialist.

Licensed by the State of New Mexico, the Center will operate 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

"This center will receive anyone in crisis who needs help," Macias said. "Every guest who comes in through these doors will be welcome, receive the proper immediate help they need and walk out with a care plan and referrals for their recovery."

Crisis Triage Center to be 'game changer' in dealing with mental health issues

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"It's going to be a game changer for Doña Ana County and the City of Las Cruces," Las Cruces Mayor Pro Tempore Kasandra Gandara said about the county Crisis Triage Center (CTC).

Gandara and County Commission Chair Manuel Sanchez cut the ribbon on the facility during a May 26 event hosted by the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce. The CTC will open as soon as a pharmaceutical license has been approved, which could happen any day, county Health and Human Services Department Director Jamie Michael said.

The CTC will be a place for people who are dealing with a mental health crisis -- providing on-site services, peer support and referrals to other community services.

It will also be a drop-off point for law-enforcement officials dealing with individuals in crisis. Previously, the only options for police officers and deputy sheriffs had been to transport them to either a hospital emergency room or jail.

"It's a fundamental shift for people who are in crisis," said Recovery Innovations International (RI) Deputy CEO Paul Galdys, who attended the ribbon-cutting.

The county hired RI last August to license and operate the CTC, which has been vacant since construction was completed in 2013. RI operates 12 similar facilities in five other states.

Galdys said RI's Recovery Crisis Respite Program in Peoria, Arizona (a major Phoenix suburb) averages 400 drop-offs a month, with law-enforcement officials back out in the field in less than three minutes on average. He said similar drop-offs at the Las Cruces CTC should average five minutes or less.

No one who comes to the CTC will be turned away, Galdys said.

"There are far fewer issues when you take away the barriers," he said.

Attending the CTC's grand opening more than eight years ago was Micah Pearson's first official act representing the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI), Pearson said at the ribbon cutting. "I'm glad to see that it's finally actually happening," said Pearson, who is a national NAMI board member and executive director of NAMI Southern New

Strong Recycling Could Create New Jobs

Submitted by South Central Solid Waste Authority

A majority of our trash is still sent to landfills. While it may seem like our vast desert is endless, it's a resource that we cannot take for granted. A way to divert the waste we create is to reduce our consumption, reuse what we have, and recycle what we can. Recycling takes people at all ends – from what you throw in your blue bin, to the people who sort it out at the end to be shipped, to those making new things from recycled material. The more recycling, the more jobs, even right here at home.

"Recycling is more labor-intensive than landfilling, with sorting recycling, and managing the materials, so the recycling industry creates more jobs," Patrick Peck, SCSWA director, said. "The stronger our recycling program, the more jobs could be created to support it here in Las Cruces."

According to Workers sort recycled material at a processing facility. More recycling could mean more jobs that process and remanufacture recycled material.

the US Recycling Economic Information 2020 Study (REI), there are 1.17 jobs and $9,420 tax revenues attributable for every 1,000 (US) tons of recyclables collected and recycled.

It's a growing industry. According to the National Resources Defense Council, in 1980, recycling and composting kept 14.5 million tons of trash from landfills and incinerators in the United States. By 2013, that number had reached 87.2 million tons.

"The jobs won't be just with the processing of material, but we could also create new businesses that take the recycled material and create new items or find a new use for it," Peck said. REI's study states there are as many as 26 different kinds of recycling businesses, including manufacturing recycling equipment, reuse stores, and remanufacturing factories that make the material into things like outdoor furniture or recycled paper.

"The less the material has to travel – if those businesses grew with the growth of the recycling that is automatic with the growth of our population – the more we can capture the economic benefit here," Peck said.

South Central Solid Waste Authority manages solid waste and recyclables for residents and businesses throughout Doña Ana County. Contact SCSWA at (575) 528-3800 or visit www.SCSWA.net.

Gallup state rep visits Las Cruces to give budget briefing

Las Cruces Bulletin

State Rep. Patricia Lundstrom, D-McKinley and San Juan, returned to her old stomping grounds, as she chaired the Legislative Finance Committee (LFC) meeting held May 19-20 in Las Cruces.

"It's very important that we get out in the field," said Lundstrom, who graduated from New Mexico State University with a master's degree in public administration and undergraduate degrees in political science and history.

The LFC's May road trip began in Truth or Consequences before coming to Las Cruces. A number of state senators and representatives who represent Doña Ana County are part of the joint committee, including Rep. Nathan Small, who is vice chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

The LFC's two days of hearings in Las Cruces included testimony from NMSU Chancellor Dan Arvizu and College of Arts and Sciences Dean Enrico Pontelli and Doña Ana Community College President Monica Torres on preparing college students "to be competitive in rapidly changing industries."

Others testifying included: Las Cruces Public Schools Interim Superintendent Ralph Ramos and LCPS Board of Education President Ray Jaramillo; Gadsden Independent School District Superintendent Travis Dempsey and GISD Board President Laura Salazar Flores; and Hatch Valley Public Schools Superintendent Michael Chavez. They discussed local school districts' performance and finances.

NMSU economics professor emeritus Jim Peach moderated a May 19 discussion on borderland economic development that included LFC members, and the committee also heard about restoration of the Mesilla Plaza State Monument, the CARES Act and federal funding for childcare assistance.

New Mexico has received $19 billion in federal support since the onset of Covid-19, Lundstrom said during a May 20 news conference she hosted at NMSU's Stan Fulton Center, with funds coming in the form of direct payments to individuals, expanded unemployment benefits, business loans, expanded federal entitlement programs and state government relief payments.

Federal stimulus payments have also included more than $1.5 billion to K-12 schools and $346 million to higher education institutions in the state.

"Federal funds pouring in ... helped us come back," said LFC Director David Abbey, who was also in Las Cruces for the committee meeting.

The LFC is tasked with "ensuring these large sums of money are budgeted both swiftly and effectively," an LFC background paper prepared for the news conference said.

Abbey said the recovery of oil prices and production also helped boost the state's economy. The price of a barrel of oil, which had fallen below $20 in early 2020, was $66 May 20, Abbey said.

Lundstrom said the General Appropriations Act passed by the 2021 New Mexico Legislature includes $7.44 billion for recurring operations in FY2022, which is a $378 million (5.4 percent) increase over the current fiscal year. The budget includes $1.7 billion (24 percent) in reserves.

Lundstrom said the Legislature also passed a number of pandemic relief measures during the 2021 session, including a four-month gross receipts tax holiday for food services, a $600 income tax credit for low-income New Mexicans and a $500 million small business loan program.

Legislators also approved $500 million for capital projects around the state, including $300 million for state and local road projects, said Lundstrom, who has been a member of the New Mexico House of Representatives since 2001.

"I want you to know who I am as your LFC chair," Lundstrom said at the news conference. "The public here needs to understand what we're working on. We're on it. We know how to build a budget. We're not asleep at County Commission Chair Sanchez called the CTC “a refuge for people in our community experiencing mental health crisis.”

“This facility is going to be much needed,” Mayor Ken Miyagishima said.

“You are going to make a difference in so many ways,” Greater Las Cruces Chamber President and CEO Debbi Moore told RI officials and the facility’s 13 staff members at the ribbon-cutting. “Know this community supports you.”

County Manager Fernando Macias said the B in the CTC’s address — 1850-B Copper Loop — stands for behavioral health and for the bravery of those who “come and accept services” and the county commissioners and other community leaders “that made this happen.”

In particular, Macias singled out County Commissioner Lynn Ellins, who was chair when the commission voted to hire

RI to open the facility. Ellins had “the bravery and strength of character to say we’re going to follow a certain path,” Macias said. “He kept the faith. He took us over the finish line.”

Macias said the B in the address also stands for “break,” which is what many of those who come to the CTC are looking for, to reduce their anxiety and find a tranquil space.

“This is a place where everyone is accepted,” Macias said. “We’re not going to say no to anyone who is in this need.”

Macias also acknowledged Michael’s work in getting the CTC open. And, he recognized Michael’s predecessor, Sylvia Sierra.

“Fernando gets things done like no one I have seen,” Galdys said. “We are so very appreciative of the opportunity to serve you all.”

Karina P. Diaz will serve as CTC site director and Jess Spohn as clinical director, overseeing licensed behavioral health clinicians and peer support specialists, the county said in a news release.

Diaz moved to Las Cruces from Brooklyn, New York, where she was clinic director at Bonding Links-Enlazos Familiares Behavioral Health Services for Children and Families. She has a master’s degree in psychotherapy and is a licensed art psychotherapist and nationally registered as an infant/parent attachment specialist, the county said.

Spohn most recently worked as a therapist at Zia Recovery Center in Las Cruces. Prior to that, she was clinical supervisor and therapist at Mesilla Valley Hospital and worked with La Clínica de Familia as team lead and therapist. At New Mexico State University, Spohn was a professor in the Social Work Department and coordinator of LGBT+ programs.

Valuing life: A thin line between claimed, unclaimed

What will happen to you when you die?

I don't mean, Will you go to heaven? Or, Will you be reincarnated?

I mean, What will be done with your physical body?

Every year, Doña Ana County winds up as caretaker of a number of bodies of the deceased. These are people who died alone, often homeless. County officials work to locate someone who will claim the bodies. As a practical matter, the bodies are cremated. Sometimes relatives are quickly found and the bodies claimed. Other times, not.

If no one has claimed the bodies in two years, they are interred.

When he served as the county's public information officer, Jess Williams (also a recently retired Las Cruces Bulletin editor) presided over a formal ceremony for these unclaimed bodies.

On May 26, at St. Joseph's

Cemetery, Williams again led a ceremony, the first one since 2019.

RICHARD COLTHARP
From the Publisher

I attended the proceedings, as I did once a few years ago. The service lends dignity and honor to these lost souls.

It also made me wonder, for the 31 who were interred, What happened along their life's journey that led them to being unclaimed?

These are not John Does or Jane Does. They have names, Social Security numbers, birthdays and death days. The most recent group ranged in age from 39 to 82.

Many of them had friends, but those friends did not have the resources to claim the bodies, which requires a $600 payment to the county. If the deceased were homeless, their friends were likely also homeless, and had no steady job or another way to come up with $600.

Not long ago, I read an article in which a scientist calculated the value of the elements that make up the raw materials of the human body. We're mostly oxygen, carbon and hydrogen, with some calcium, nitrogen and phosphorous, then a bunch of trace elements. This scientist calculated the value of those for a 175-pound human to be $576, interestingly close to the $600 charge by the county.

Most of us are blessed to have family – spouses, siblings, children, parents, cousins, close friends, others – who would step in upon our passing and not only claim our body, but arrange for memorial services, burial and all the logistical and financial settlements. Most of us have people who will mourn our loss.

Not so for these 31.

One of the deceased, Timmy Jiro Johnson Jr., was 55 when he passed. Had Timmy Jiro Johnson Sr. also passed? Was, or is, there a Timmy Jiro Johnson III? For each of those 31 people, questions are all we really have.

Without Williams, though, and the county allowing for this service, we wouldn't even have these questions. The small boxes into which their cremains are placed would have been quietly laid in the dirt, likely by a lone grave attendant, with no one mourning or even marking their loss.

Williams is an ordained minister and has delivered many local eulogies, performed wedding ceremonies and provided other support services. I've heard him speak at several of these, including my oldest daughter's wedding. He always does a wonderful job, well-suited to each occasion.

His remarks May 26 were among his best. Perhaps the most poignant part of his eulogy was the simplest.

Near the end, he pronounced each name of the deceased, and asked the 30 or so people in attendance to repeat the name. That happened 31 times. Williams saying the name, the audi-

Fund the Amador: A bridge to cultures and generations

By JO RUPRECHT
Guest columnist

The Las Cruces City Council will hold a work session later this year on the Amador Project, the ongoing renovation of the historic Amador Hotel for adaptive re-use.

(Editor's note: The work session was originally scheduled for this summer, but has been rescheduled for September.)

Dating from the 1880s and located at 180 W. Amador (north-east corner of Amador and Water), this city-owned property is in the Downtown Tax Increment Development District (TIDD), making infrastructure enhancements to the two-story adobe building eligible for TIDD funding.

TIDD monies don't come from the City's general fund; TIDD dollars are generated by taxing district businesses and can only be used for district projects.

The City's Economic Development Department recently identified improvements to the Amador's electrical, plumbing, communication and security systems for possible TIDD funding of up to $1.5 million dollars in 2022.

The Amador Hotel Foundation (AHF) is a private nonprofit created in 2007 to partner with the City in renovating the hotel. For several years AHF hosted fundraising events in the building and the space was used by diverse groups – from the Doña Ana County Historical Society to a ghost tour company.

The trappings of the building's life as a bank in the 1970s and later as county offices have literally been swept away, revealing elements of the hotel's glory years. Since portions of the lobby floor were removed to access utilities and reinforce the columns supporting the second floor, public access has been restricted.

But each time that the building has been open to the community, its history has been recovered through stories told and memories shared. The Amador's power as a touchstone for native Las Crucens and newcomers alike is tangible, bridging cultures and generations.

The project's main financial support has come from donations, grants and appropriations from the state Legislature. In 2016, then-City Manager Robert Garza identified the Amador as a priority and set aside $1 million dollars for it. Some of that money has paid professionals with extensive experience in adaptive re-use to develop a comprehensive working plan.

With their expertise and our community's commitment, this landmark can be brought to life as a true gateway to Downtown -- present and past.

The two-story lobby and other spaces would be available for public and private events. Smaller rooms would house interactive exhibits on the Valley's cultural history, its place as a crossroads of the Southwest and its traditions in adobe construction.

A synergistic part of the plan converts second-floor rooms to offices for new businesses and small nonprofit organizations, becoming a "business incubator" with Wi-Fi and modern amenities. Accomplishing this would enhance the City's efforts to become more business friendly while contributing to a revenue stream supporting the building.

It's paradoxical that a city that has been home to so much history has so thoroughly neglected its own past. With the Amador Project, the City of Las Cruces has an opportunity to capitalize on its history as other great cities have done. The future of this city has room and need for the past embodied by the Amador Hotel. Successful adaptive re-use projects produce revenue for their cities and revitalization for urban environments.

Hundreds of people have already contributed their time, talents and dollars to renewal of this unique surviving edifice from the heyday of hostelry in Las Cruces. We need to let Mayor Miyagishima know that his leadership toward completion of the Amador Project would add to his legacy as the longest-serving mayor of Las Cruces.

A brief call or email can make a difference. Please phone the Las Cruces City Manager's Office at 575-541-2100 or email the mayor and city councilors at citycouncil@las-cruces.org to support the Amador Project. Thank you.

Clones from history

If it were possible to clone human beings from history, what would they be doing today?

For instance, if we were somehow able to find a strand of DNA from Robin Hood, clone him and raise him in our modern environment, what do you reckon he'd be doing?

His genes would give him the predilection to master disguises, slink around in back rooms and rob from the rich. Obviously, he'd be in politics.

The sheriff of Nottingham, on the other hand, would rob from the rich and poor alike and have no conscience. The perfect packin' house buyer.

How 'bout Noah. Fair to middlin' navigator, knew how to make repairs en route and kept a lot of air freshener in the pilot house. He'd make a good livestock hauler.

If we cloned an Egyptian pharaoh, where would he fit in the 20th century? Well, they spent their lifetime leaving their mark on the land for people centuries later to ponder. I believe he'd be selling ear tags.

of Common Sense

Buffalo Bill. A showman, took advantage of cowboys and stayed one jump ahead of the creditors. He could easily slip into the boots of a rodeo producer. Edgar Allan Poe. Thought up depressing stories that scared the wits out of people. He'd be an economist.

Pancho Villa. Inspired great loyalty in his people, came from Texas and knew all the good songs. Freddy Fender.

Attila the Hun. Pillaged and plundered the land and built monuments to his own scorched earth policy. A real estate developer.

A Roman slave. He could own his own dairy today.

The first person who crossed the Bearing Strait and introduced mastodons to the Eskimos would probably be in the llama or ostrich business now.

Lewis and Clark. Managed to make it across the country by trading trinkets to keep from getting shot. Animal health salesmen.

Chris Columbus. Had to beg for financing, made risky investments and wound up 14,000 miles off course. He'd be feeding cattle today.

Fred Flintstone. Lived in a cave, rode a dinosaur and didn't do well with strangers. Probably be herding sheep in Wyoming.

Nero. Played his fiddle while Rome burned. He'd probably have a BBQ joint in Branson, Missouri.

And finally Moses. He brought a plague on his neighbors, took orders from higher up and was good with large quantities of liquid. His clone might make a good hog confinement operator. 'Course, Moses was also lost for 40 years wandering the wilderness with no apparent means of support, so he could easily be a professional team roper.

ence repeating it.

Simple but powerful. As a group, we acknowledged who these people were and that they shared time with us on this Earth. You were here, we were saying. You mattered.

Without this service, this simple message would not have been heard.

Does it matter in the whole scheme of things? Maybe, maybe not.

But our recognizing these people made everyone in attendance a little more human, and maybe a little more compassionate. Would things have been different for the deceased if they had received a little more recognition in life? A little more compassion?

Those of us fortunate enough to have someone to claim us, to mourn us, should be grateful. All it takes are a few different choices, a few different twists of fate, for a human's life to go from one who is claimed to one who is unclaimed.

It's a striking reminder that we have, as Williams said, "reasons to cherish every sunrise and drink in every sunset."

City receives millions in state funding for capital improvements

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The 2021 New Mexico Legislature approved more than $4 million in capital outlay funding for projects in the City of Las Cruces, city legislative lobbyist Larry Horan said at the May 24 city council work session.

Horan said $2.3 million was approved from the city's $8.55 million capital outlay request. In addition, Mesilla Valley Community of Hope (MVCH) received more than $1.84 million.

City projects funded included $100,000 for improvements at Branigan Cultural Center, $414,000 for East Mesa road construction, $400,000 for a new passenger terminal at Las Cruces International Airport, $464,000 for law enforcement equipment, $527,000 for septic-tank replacement and $400,000 to extend east Madrid Avenue from Martha Drive to Triviz Drive.

The capital outlay to MVCH will help pay for Casa de Peregrinos emergency food program's expansion into the former Hose 'N Hound building in front of MVCH on West Amador Avenue.

Horan said the Legislative Finance Committee is already working on the budget that will be presented at the 30-day legislative session that begins Jan. 18, 2022, and other interim committees are also meeting. He recommended that the city begin to develop its 2022 capital outlay and policy priorities, including a regional behavioral health hospital.

SAR recognizes community members for their service

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Gadsden Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution (SAR) presented community service awards and a military service medal.

The community service awards were presented to retired U.S. Air Force Master Sgt. Robert M. "Bobby" Jakcsy and Rev. Dr. Norm Story. The military service medal was presented to retired U.S. Navy Cmdr. Roger A. Dombrowski.

After retiring from the Air Force, Jakcsy worked for several defense contractors and also has worked as a Doña Ana County deputy sheriff, SAR Gadsden Chapter President Don Williams said in a news release.

"Jakcsy has served his church and is a firm believer and supporter of the Constitution of the United States," Williams said. "He has been recognized for proudly flying the American flag at his home. Bobby's continued service to his nation, state and Las Cruces has resulted in him being a ride captain in the Patriot Guard. He always ensures that the deceased veterans and their families are given the respect and thanks that they have earned with their lives of service to the United States of America. Jakcsy has led by example and forever touched lives as only a veteran with a shared life of service can understand."

Story has been the pastor of several churches in the eastern U.S. before arriving in Las Cruces in 2003 to serve the First Presbyterian Church, Williams said. Story also serves on the board of directors of Mesilla Valley Hospice.

"(Story) is a firm believer in the Constitution and in America," Williams said. "Story has a heart for veterans and served many in the local hospitals. His compassion and empathy has touched so many lives and made a difference for generations of families."

Dombrowski was inducted into the SAR Gadsden Chapter during a ceremony at Veterans Memorial Park in Las Cruces, Williams said. Following the induction, he was presented with SAR military service medal to honor his service in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

Head of state African-American office: Progress being made, more to do

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

For Black people in New Mexico, the term tricultural “is so hard to hear,” said Amy Whitfield, director of the New Mexico Office of African American Affairs (OAAA).

Blacks make up less than 3 percent of the state’s population, Whitfield said, but “our contributions to New Mexico culture have been so great. When you say it is a tricultural (Anglo, Hispanic and Native American) state, what you’re saying is, ‘We don’t recognize the contributions you’ve made to creating New Mexico culture.’”

That is “not just harmful to Black communities or Asian communities, it is also harmful to Hispanic or indigenous communities,” Whitfield said, because “people more in power ... take credit for someone else’s contributions.”

OAAA was created in 1999 through a bill introduced by state Rep. Sheryl Williams Stapleton, D-Bernalillo. Stapleton, a New Mexico State University graduate, was elected to the New Mexico House of Representatives in 1995 and has risen to the rank of majority floor leader.

Harold Pope Jr., elected in 2020 and also an Albuquerque Democrat, is New Mexico’s first-ever Black state senator.

Pope’s election “matters on so many different levels,” Whitfield said. “Once there is a first, it opens the mind to so many others. Now, little boys and girls of color will see him and say, ‘I can do that.’”

Adults Whitfield’s age and older can say, “I never really thought it could be me, but it could. It really could. I could do it,” she said.

Pope’s election “is the start to more Black voices and more Black communities being represented,” Whitfield said. “It is an amazing accomplishment for him and I’m so glad that he’s there. It is access. It opens up the doors for Black people to engage in politics.”

But, Whitfield said, Pope “can only speak for those experiences that he has had. Then there are Black people who are having a totally different experience.”

Black women in New Mexico, for example, “need someone speaking with that voice,” she said, and “all these multiple voices. One Black person cannot carry all the different Black community voices.”

While the 2021 legislative session “wasn’t 100 percent successful,” Whitfield said, “it was a really great year for racial justice.”

Legislation passed during the session and signed into law by Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham included the Hair Discrimination Act and the Black Education Act, both co-sponsored by Pope and Stapleton.

“One of the greatest things” Lujan Grisham has done, Whitfield said, is to create the Governor’s Advisory Council for Racial Justice, which began meeting last August. The council is tasked with monitoring state institutions to end institutional racism and ensure “fair and equal treatment and opportunities” for everyone,” according to the council’s website.

Council members include NMSU Black Programs Interim Director Kimberly York and Las Cruces City Councilor Johana Bencomo.

Whitfield said OAAA has a “strong connection with NMSU Black Programs, with whom the office jointly participates in a variety of programs.”

Education is part of OAAA’s work, Whitfield said, and the office works to “connect with college students as much as possible.”

Whitfield was named permanent executive director of OAAA in January after serving as interim director.

“I think what (OAAA) wants to get across to anybody who doesn’t know who we are, we won’t be the only voice of African-Americans in New Mexico,” Whitfield said. “There are so many communities that have agendas and issues.”

“The heart of OAAA lies with the many New Mexico residents statewide who felt that there was a need to address issues specific to the African-American community,” according to the OAAA website, including “the need to improve and promote the economic development, education, health and political well-being of the African-American community throughout New Mexico.”

the wheel.”

During the LFC’s visit, which included Spaceport America and Burrell College of Osteopathic Medicine on the NMSU campus, Lundstrom said she also wanted to learn more about the issues that are important in Las Cruces.

While Covid-19 caused “major disruption” and the loss of lives and businesses, it also led to important innovations, Lundstrom said. A good example is the Legislature’s focus on broadband availability to improve remote learning, she said. In Gallup, where Lindstrom works as executive director of the Greater Gallup Economic Development Corporation, she said students without Internet connections at home often would sit by a school bus to connect to a hot spot.

“That’s not the best way to deliver education,” she said, asking at the same time if it would have come to state leaders’ attention “without the need to innovate” that was created by the pandemic.

NOTICE OF SALE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on Wednesday, June 30, 2021, at 9:00 am at the Doña Ana County District Courthouse at 201 W. Picacho Avenue in Las Cruces, New Mexico, the undersigned Special Master will sell and convey to the highest bidder for cash all the right, title, and interest of the above-named Defendants in and to the following-described real property: Lots 4 and 5 of the La Lomita Subdivision in the City of Las Cruces, Doña Ana County, State of New Mexico, as those lots are shown and designated on plat of that subdivision that was recorded on March 16, 1951, as Plat No. 388, in the records of Doña Ana County. The real property to be sold is located at 595 Melendres Street in Las Cruces, New Mexico. The sale will be made pursuant to a Default Judgment entered on May 13, 2021, in the above-entitled and numbered cause, which is a suit to foreclose a note and mortgage held by Plaintiff. Plaintiff was granted judgment in the amount of $224,113.02 plus interest thereon at the rate of 10% per annum from April 26, 2021, to the date of sale; plus all costs of preserving the property; plus the costs of sale, including the Special Master's fee and the gross receipts tax thereon; and additional amounts, if any, for which recovery may be had. Plaintiff has the right to bid at the sale and to submit its bid orally or in writing. Plaintiff may apply all or any part of its judgment to the purchase price in lieu of cash. The sale may be postponed and rescheduled at the discretion of the Special Master. Notice is further given that the real property will be sold subject to any and all patent reservations, easements, all recorded and unrecorded liens not foreclosed herein, and all recorded and unrecorded special assessments and taxes that may be due. Plaintiff disclaims any responsibility for the valuation of the real property and improvements thereon by the County Assessor; for any environmental contamination, if any; and for any zoning violations, if any. Notice is further given that the purchaser at the sale will take title to the real property subject to a one-month right of redemption.

"Movie: The World to Come"

From Swedish filmmaker Mona Fastvold ("The Sleepwalker," "The Childhood of a Leader") comes this 2020 drama set in the mid-19th century America, where two farmers' wives (Katherine Waterston, Vanessa Kirby) find themselves drawn to each other amid the hardship and isolation of the coastal frontier. Casey Affleck and Christopher Abbott are also in the cast.

"Movie: The Mountain Between Us"

Director Hany Abu-Assad's 2017 survival drama stars Idris Elba and Kate Winslet as a neurosurgeon and a journalist who board a small private plane to Salt Lake City after their original flights are grounded by a storm. Unfortunately, their fragile aircraft crashes in the vast expanse of Utah's High Uintas Wilderness. Beau Bridges and Dermot Mulroney are also in the cast.

"Madagascar: A Little Wild"

Season 2 of this animated series continues to follow the early years of the Madagascar heroes Alex the Lion, Marty the Zebra, Melman the Giraffe and Gloria the Hippo, as they grow up in a rescue habitat at the Central Park Zoo. Tucker Chandler, Amir O'Neil, Luke Lowe and Shaylin Becton head the voice cast. (ORIGINAL)

"Love, Victor"

The coming-of-age drama returns for its sophomore round with a resolution to the Season 1 cliffhanger that left off with Victor Salazar (Michael Cimino) finally coming out to his conservative parents. He must deal with not only their reactions but also that of his heart-broken ex-girlfriend Mia (Rachel Naomi Hilson) while also experiencing the joy of his relationship with Benji (George Sear). "The Trocks"

8 p.m. on KRWG
American Masters

Airing in connection with Pride Month, the new episode "Ballerina Boys" celebrates the 45-year history of Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo, the all-male troupe of "ballerinas" who have built a huge and diverse fan base with their ballet parodies. The film travels with "the Trocks" on a bus tour into the Carolinas, currently an epicenter of efforts to walk back gay rights. During the trip, the dancers share personal stories of how they made their own serendipitous way into the company.

8 p.m. on SYFY
Van Helsing

A new episode called "Deep Trouble" finds Axel and Ivory (Jonathan Scarfe, Jennifer Cheon Garcia) making their way to Washington, D.C., in the company of Violet and Jack (Keeya King, Nicole Munoz). It's a dangerous mission, venturing more deeply into the center of Dracula's den in the nation's capital, but the quartet is caught off guard by an attack from the military. With few options, they take cover in an abandoned mine, which they soon discover may not be quite as abandoned as they thought.

tonight's picks

6 p.m. on TLC
7 Little Johnstons

In the new episode "A New Year, a New Us?," the Johnstons set aside their laundry list of family tensions and come together to celebrate the Lunar New Year. Meanwhile, in a determined attempt to prove to his skeptical parents that he does, in fact, have the motivation to succeed in life, Jonah launches a sports podcast that gets off to a promising start.

Tyler Labine

6 p.m. on MAX Movie: EMMA.

Autumn de Wilde, who made her feature film directorial debut with this 2020 adaptation of Jane Austen's 1815 novel, explains there's a period at the end of the film's title to reflect that it is, after all, "a period piece." So yes, it's that kind of irreverent comedy. Anya Taylor-Joy

("The Queen's Gambit") earned glowing reviews for her spirited performance in the title role of Emma Woodhouse, a headstrong young woman in Regency-era England who can't stop meddling in the lives of those around her. Bill Nighy, Johnny Flynn and Miranda Hart co-star.

7 p.m. on KFOX
LEGO Masters

Everything is brick-tacular in the new episode "Hero Shot!," as the teams put a stunt "minifigure" to the test in an explosive stunt action scene. Each duo is forced to think strategically and with immense care to craft a fully immersive build that is filled with slime, water, glitter and colored dust, all contributing to a jaw-dropping action movie moment. Will Arnett is the host.

7 p.m. on OWN
The Legacy of Black Wall Street

This two-part documentary on the tragic history and vibrant rebirth of a thriving Black community in the Tulsa, Okla., suburb of Greenwood concludes with more commentary from such financial and historical experts as Dr. Angela Davis and Dr.

Ellora Derenoncourt, as well as Oklahoma State Rep. Regina Goodwin and journalist and historian J. Kavin Ross, both of whom are direct descendants of the infamous Tulsa Massacre of 100 years ago.

8:03 p.m. on HISTORY
America's Book of Secrets

In 1962, civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King criticized the FBI for declining to prosecute white supremacists who had burned down Black churches in Georgia, a complaint Bureau director J. Edgar Hoover took as a personal affront. Blasting King as "the most notorious liar in the country," Hoover then embarked on a vendetta, tasking his agents to investigate King. That probe turned up evidence suggesting that King might have ties to communism, in the new episode "FBI vs. MLK."

9 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Killerman

Malik Bader's ("Cash Only") gritty 2019 crime thriller stars a cast-against-type Liam Hemsworth as Moe Diamond, a Manhattan jeweler whose services at money laundering are much in demand. When his partner (Emory Cohen) suggests using a multi-million-dollar stash currently being held for a ruthless gangster to bankroll a quick-and-dirty drug transaction, Moe very reluctantly accedes. The gambit goes completely off the rails, however, leaving Moe with partial amnesia. Diane Guerrero also stars.

Dr. Martin Luther King

9:01 p.m. on KTSM
New Amsterdam

A desperate Max (Ryan Eggold) is ready to turn the hospital upside down after he misplaces his wedding ring in the Season 3 finale, "Death Begins in Radiology." Elsewhere, Reynolds (Jocko Sims) receives a dramatic offer, while Iggy (Tyler Labine) ponders a major life change. Meanwhile, Bloom (Janet Montgomery) learns some potentially game-changing information about Leyla (guest star Shiva Kalaiselvan). Freema Agyeman also stars.

Longer Days & Mid-Year Gratitude

As we move into June, I look forward to longer days (including summer solstice) and Father's Day. I'm reminded how fortunate I am to have had an amazing father and to be a father myself. Although my Dad has been gone for 13 years, his influence and impact on my life continues to serve and support me. So many of the life lessons I learned from my Dad fall into the category that I call fundamentals, those basic rules of the road that survive the test of time. They also survive periods like a pandemic, and they in fact help us through tough times. The list is long, but I'll share a couple that I learned from my father that are timeless and hold up especially during challenging periods.

1. Treat people with respect and dignity. I watched my Dad model this lesson in both the way talked to oth-

JED FANNING
Chairman of the Board
Greater Las Cruces
Chamber of Commerce

ers and the way he treated others. He understood and acknowledged that none of us are perfect, and that we should look for the good in other people. This showed up in my Dad through simple but powerful things like courtesy, manners, smiles, and honesty.

2. Hard work and reliability will serve you well regardless of the type of work you choose. My Dad spent his life working in agriculture. Part of his working career was in farming and production agriculture, and part was in owning and operating an irrigation business supporting farmers. Whether it was crops in the field, or his customers that needed their irrigation systems repaired, Dad's work ethic made all the difference in achieving strong crops yields and loyal customers.

My Dad and my Mom have been such good role models for me, and although we may not have realized it in our youth, my brother and sister and I were given a strong foundation by our parents. My wife Susan and I have done our best to instill in our son and daughter those core values that we learned from our parents. I have to admit that in this era of information and opinion overload, parenting has some extra challenges. The most obvious of those challenges is to minimize the wrong kinds of influences, and maximize the good ones. As we have watched our son and daughter become parents in recent years, Susan and I are pleased to see that the values we learned from our parents have made their way into the next generation for our family, and are already taking root in yet another generation.

I expect that most everyone reading this article has heard or read about the value in having an attitude of gratitude. On the heels of Mother's Day and as we approach Father's Day, I can't think of any group that deserves gratitude more than our parents.

Dancing with my Father

By DEBBI MOORE
GLCCC CEO/President

Debbi Moore

June means Father's Day. We celebrate men who not only influence their own children, but make a difference in our business community. Please take a few moments to read their stories in this Bottom Line. From owning a business together to managing the pandemic, from a Dad's perspective to reminis-ing a Father's advice, these men have touched many lives. We trust you enjoy their heartfelt stories.

Father's Day is bitter-sweet for me since my Dad has passed and many celebrations have passed, but his words of wisdom that follow me to this day. My father was a minister and above all else he taught me compassion and love. Not only did he teach me, he showed me in his everyday life. My Dad truly led by example. "Walk Your Talk," he always told me, and he did so eloquently.

While there are many leadership tidbits he gave me, perhaps the most impactful was, "You are only as strong as a leader as you are a follower." My dad wasn't highly educated but, boy, did he have common sense. Being a follower is tough; being a leader is tough. I watched my dad navigate this loop throughout his life and at the end of the day it's a "leadership dance." Daddy, you danced it so well. Thank you!

Parenting and Covid-19

By COURAGE IDEMUDIA

Parenting has always come with its rewards and challenges. At times I wish there was an individual reference guide that came with each child to ensure successful parenting. Each child is perfect and unique requiring parents to assume a situational approach with each child. Parenting in Covid-19 environment brought a new set of challenges to already complex situation.

Parents have the hard job of influencing their children to care about things that are not important or interesting to them in any way. We worry about our kid's education, the need to learn the basic skills of reading and writing and mathematics. When everything moved to remote learning due to Covid-19, I found it personally difficult to teach my kids and the normal worry increased. I was worrying about the kids being behind academically, socially, and mentally, while my kids were thinking virtual learning would be a 12 month vacation! Although we all enjoyed being together, that togetherness eventually turned into boredom and individual isolation with everyone spending more time on social media than actually being productive; which led to yelling and screaming and more isolation.

I knew it would be hard to change my kid's perspective so I focused on my own. I realized my worry was causing me to look for what wasn't working. I changed to focus on what was working. I was pleasantly surprised that my kids were actually adapting in many areas. My daughter was great at navigating through the nuances needed to effectively complete the daily assignments. I noticed how resilient the kids were and how they can adopt to circumstances better than parents, at times. I also learned that silence at times is good. Silence helps open your mind to possibilities you might not have thought of in the midst of yelling and screaming. During the isolation, I paid closer attention to each of the kids and what each of their strengths were. By celebrating their strengths I had more clarity on how I could support them instead of worry.

Although some of the challenges continue with Covid-19- and parenting there is a mutual understanding and respect for unique skills and talents both the parents and children bring to the table. I learned that sometimes you need to take few steps back to understand the best way to communicate with your kids. Kids need to listen to their parents as well as parents need to listen to their kids. It's a two way street... when we do just that - we find that both the parents and children are learning and growing in the journey-together.

Lessons from my father

I live a very blessed life. I am blessed with wonderful friends and family. I work for a great company and live in a beautiful community. One of the most significant blessings in my life was having an incredible father.

My dad, Arnold Zamora, passed away in October of 2012. I was in my last year of graduate school, but I remember the days leading up to his sudden death. I had gotten a flat tire on my way home from class and put in some fix-a-flat to make it home. When I got home, I walked in and told my dad that I had a flat, and he said, "Okay. Are you going to put the spare on?" I told him, "Yeah, I've got it."

I tell this brief story because there are some great lessons. My dad was such a 'Girl Dad' before being a girl dad was a thing. He taught my sister and me how to throw a ball, how to use a drill, how to defend ourselves, how to change a tire, and more. These sound like small lessons. They're not. These are lessons in self-reliance, how to be competitive and humble, how to know and own your self-worth. And quite frankly, lessons on dating, because if he doesn't know how to change a tire - it's probably not going to work out.

I take a lot of comfort in this tire-changing story.

My dad was very ill. A lifetime of chronic illness (diabetes) had taken a toll on his body. When I went to change the tire, I didn't ask for his help because coming outside to help me change a tire would be too exhausting for him. But that was okay because he had already taught me. I take comfort in knowing my dad passed away, understanding his girls and wife would be just fine.

He taught us to be ready for the hard times, never rely on others, but always look out for and help one another. He taught us how to live life. To smile and have fun. He taught us never to complain. My dad had a hard life - multiple amputations, blood infections, vision loss, and kidney failure, and I never heard him complain. Not once did I hear my dad complain.

So here are some of the lessons.

- 1) Know how to change a tire...but really know how to rely on yourself.
- 2) Always be kind to others. Help when you can.
- 3) Don't complain. It doesn't help you or anyone around you, and it could always be worse.

4) Smile. Even on the worst days. Call a friend, tell a joke, be content, and just smile.

So on this father's day, my wish for all fathers and father figures is for you to take time to spend with your loved ones. Reflect on the lessons and examples you are giving. My wish for children is to thank your father for what he may have taught you, even if he didn't know he was teaching you. Reflect on the lessons, the examples, and the life you all are sharing.

June is also my mom's birthday month. So Happy

CAROLINE ZAMORA

Chair of the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors

Birthday, mom (Rose Zamora); thank you for being awesome! Maybe that's another lesson dad taught me. Even when you have the spotlight, be sure to thank those who helped get you there (lesson #5).

Sisbarro Dealerships is a family affair

By LOU SISBARRO

As a family owned and operated auto dealership group, The Sisbarro Dealerships have been serving the automotive sales and service needs of customers from eastern Arizona, across southern New Mexico and into west Texas since 1981.

Now celebrating their 40th year in business, Sisbarro include six dealership locations in Las Cruces and Deming and employs a workforce of more than 160 people.

"This has been a family affair since my wife Pat and I opened Sisbarro Buick-GMC in 1981," said Dealer Lou Sisbarro. We've grown tremendously over the years and today my son Dan runs our day-to-day new and used car sales operations and my daughter Nicole manages our business office. It's still very much a family affair."

With more than 150,000 vehicles sold and countless awards for sales and service excellence, both Lou and Dan remain grounded in customer-focused philosophy.

"Since Dad opened the doors 40 years ago, we have supported the communities that support our business," said Dan Sisbarro. "And that's the way we'll continue as we roll into our next 40 years in business."

Guiding young leaders at Select Realty Group

By RAUL TELLEZ

Hello, my name is Raul Tellez owner of Select Realty Group. It has been a blessing to serve the real estate needs of so many in Las Cruces. I have had the amazing experience of introducing my son Isaiah Tellez, who is 21 years of age, into the business of real estate for the past year. Working with Isaiah is the best feeling in the world. I have the chance to mentor him in something I am so passionate about. Isaiah is in his 3rd year at New Mexico State University studying criminal justice and political science. Watching Isaiah interact as an adult in the business world is an experience of itself. As parents we tend to continue to look at our young adults as children and don't allow them to flourish in the business world as adults. I love to sit back and watch him conduct business. It gives me a sense of pride to watch such a young leader be successful in real estate. Isaiah is so determined to succeed that I see his generation wants instant gratification. This is very understandable in this day and age with social media but I am always reminding him that it is a process and it could take time. Don't get me wrong, when working with the young generation it takes some getting used to. Every generation is different and has a different point of view. Some are good and some not so good. It is our job to guide these young leaders so that every generation improves from the other and prospers.

“Sweet Tooth”

Set in a post-apocalyptic world, this New Zealand-filmed action adventure series follows the adventures of Gus

(Christian Convery, “Pup Academy”), a half-human, half-deer boy who embarks on a quest for a new beginning accompanied by Jepperd (Nonso Anozie, “Conan the Barbarian”), a wandering loner. Stefania LaVie Owen, Aliza Vellani and James Brolin also star. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: Carnaval”

A digital influencer trying to get over an online humiliation at the hands of her ex heads to Salvador for Carnaval with her three best friends in this comedy movie from Brazil and filmmaker Leandro Neri (“Socorro, Virei uma Garota!”). Giovana Cordeiro, Gkay, Bruna Inocencio, Samya Pascotto and Flávia Pavanelli head the cast. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: Dancing Queens”

From Sweden comes this comedy movie tells the story of Dylan (Molly Nutley, “Beck”), a 23-year-old dancer from a small island who sees a big opportunity when she takes a job cleaning at a popular drag club. Marie Goranzon, Claes Malmberg, Christopher Wollter and Raket Warmlander are also in the cast for writer/director Helena Bergstrom (“Holy Mess”). (ORIGINAL)

“Lupin”

Season 2 of this French crime series finds gentleman thief Assane Diop (Omar Sy) with his family torn apart and his back to the wall as he must now think of a new plan — even if it means putting himself in harm’s way. Ludivine Sagnier, Clotilde Hesme and Nicole Garcia also star. (ORIGINAL)

A Million Little Things

Sophie (Lizzy Greene) is determined to win justice for the trauma she suffered, while Maggie (Allison Miller) forces Gary (James Roday Rodriguez) to take an unsparing look at himself and the kind of relationships into which he keeps getting drawn, in "Justice: Part 1"/"Justice: Part 2," the two-hour Season 3 finale. Elsewhere, Rome and Regina (Romany Malco, Christina Moses) implement big changes for their future, while Eddie (David Giuntoli) resorts to extreme measures as he fights for his family. Paul Rodriguez, Andrew Leeds and Kari Matchett guest star.

“Movie: Brewmance”

The world of craft beer is front and center of this documentary from director Christo Brock (“Touch the Wall”), which follows the efforts of two groups of home brewers from Long Beach, Calif., to open their breweries and bring their product to the world. Legendary brewers Ken Grossman (Sierra Nevada), Fritz Maytag (Anchor Brewing) and Jim Koch (Boston Brewing) offer commentary.

“Movie: Battle of the Sexes”

Emma Stone and Steve Carell both received Golden Globe Award nominations for their performances as tennis icons Billie Jean King and Bobby Riggs in this 2017 British-American biographical sports film that takes a lightly comedic approach in its chronicle of events leading up to the highly publicized 1973 match between them. Despite mostly very good reviews and additional accolades, the film double-faulted at the box office.

“Movie: Indignation”

James Schamus’ 2016 drama chronicles the coming of age experiences of a young Jewish man (Logan Lerman) who leaves Newark to attend a small college in 1951 Ohio. There he falls in love with Olivia (Sarah Gadon), a patrician beauty, and clashes with the dean (Tracy Letts) of the school. Linda Emond and Danny Burstein also star in the film.

“Movie: Skyfall”

Arguably the best-reviewed James Bond film since “Goldfinger,” this 2012 entry offers Daniel Craig’s third round as Agent 007, who struggles to reclaim his place in MI6 after an assignment goes awry. He tries to protect boss M (Judi Dench) and the agency from an enemy (a superbly showy Javier Bardem). Adele performs the title song.

"Space Jam: A New Legacy" (HBO Max — movie premiere, July 16)

"Everybody get up, it's time to slam now. We got a real jam goin' down. Welcome to the Space Jam!" This follow-up to the original 1996 film combines live-action with traditional hand-drawn 2D animation and 3D CGI effects to tell the story of a basketball icon (LeBron James) and his son (Cedric Joe) who end up trapped in a virtual world ruled by a rogue A.I. (Don Cheadle). Also expect to see Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck and Porky Pig.

"McCartney 3, 2, 1" (Hulu — series premiere, July 16)

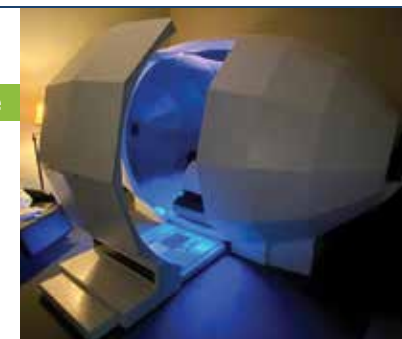

This new six-episode music series debuting on the streaming service features Paul McCartney as he reflects back on his career with super producer Rick Rubin. The duo will also discuss the influences and relationships that inspired their songwriting as McCartney gives intimate details on his life's work, which includes the his time with the Beatles, as well as his more than five decade run as a solo artist.

For 50 years, the Las Cruces Bulletin has been your hometown community newspaper.

During this current time of uncertainty, we are working diligently to keep you informed, as well as inspired and, we hope, entertained.

We will continue delivering our full, printed edition each Friday, and also check our website, www.lascrucesbulletin.com. We're updating the site frequently with the ever-changing news regarding the pandemic.

We're also providing snapshots of the news with our eBulletin, which we deliver each Tuesday to our email list, with an increased, almost daily, frequency during the pandemic. If you're not on our eBulletin mailing list, send a request to richard@lascrucesbulletin.com. We're right at home with you.

Arts Council showcases 'Visions of Southwest'

By GREG SMITH
Executive Director
Doña Ana Arts Council

The Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) is excited to be exhibiting photography by Wayne Suggs in June and July in a show titled "Visions of the Southwest."

A Las Cruces native, Suggs was introduced to the wonders of nature at an early age by parents who knew the importance of having a relationship with the Great Outdoors. He has spent most of his life exploring and capturing majestic landscapes and night skies through his photography.

Suggs is currently a

The Doña Ana Arts Council will feature the work of Las Cruces native Wayne Suggs in June and July. Here is his photograph titled "Poppy Afternoon."

Muench Workshop Pro for Muench Workshops, a company that operates on the principles of responsible and ethical photography all around the globe.

He has won numerous awards for his photography, including the 14th annual New Mexico Magazine photographer of the year, the Oliver Award for his work on night photography with petroglyphs and numerous others.

His work has been featured in New Mexico Magazine, Patagonia, The Reflector Astronomy Magazine, Wilderness Alliance Publication and The Wilderness Society. In addition, his images are often used on New Mexico marketing materials to include the Organ Mountain Desert Peaks Photobook, The Las Cruces Magazine, The New Mexico Treasures

Calendar, New Mexico Travelers Guide and the Cloudcroft Visitors Guide. His photographs have been included in the top 101 International Landscape Photographers of the Year for two years running, 2019 and 2020.

Recently, he has published his latest and most meaningful images in a new book titled "The Color of Dreams." This tabletop book, a collection of his photos, values and stories, brings the reader to the realization that photography is more than just taking a photograph. There are 100 high-definition color images in the photo, accompanied by a narrative of how and why

Suggs captured the specific location and time.

In addition to capturing the beauty of the Southwest, Suggs has integrated photography into his custom homebuilding business, Classic New Mexico Homes, that he and his wife Kiki own. His images of New Mexico architecture are routinely featured on Southwest magazine covers to include Su Casa and La Ventana magazines and the Housing Journal.

DAAC's Suggs exhibit will be available for viewing through June 29 in the main gallery and July 2-30 in the Staszewski

The Potteries reopens after being closed during pandemic for a year

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"We're glad to have our customers back," The Potteries co-owner Janice Cook said. She and her husband, Bill Cook, re-opened The Potteries gallery and studio in early May after keeping it closed for 13 months because of the pandemic.

Located at 2260 Calle de Santiago in Mesilla, The Potteries features porcelain, functional dinnerware and sculpted artwork created by Janice Cook; wall sconces and other lighting fixtures made from clay, along with planters and dinnerware made by Bill Cook; and pop-up paintings by Jeanne Rundell, a one-time potter who also creates other "whimsical motifs."

It also includes pottery by artist Andy Iventosch of Tucson, Arizona, with whom Bill attended Northern Arizona University and at one time shared a studio, and Lisa Marshall, formerly of Las Cruces, who still has a large following locally and now lives in Montana.

Both Cooks and Rundell have their studios at The Potteries, which the Cooks bought and restored in 1986. Janice and Jeanne go back further than that and have been studio mates for 37 years now.

Parts of the building date to about 1841, the Cooks said, making it one of the oldest properties in Mesilla. When they opened the doors in the 1980s, it was evident from magazines and other items found inside that the building had been closed since about 1950, Bill said.

Bill Cook designed and built two flattop kilns behind The Potteries. The larger one can hold 50 to 60 pieces at a time and the smaller one can hold up to 40, he said. Janice's work usually heats to 2,400 degrees, she said, and Bill's to about 2,000 degrees. The Cooks even make their own clay.

The Potteries is open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday and by appointment. And, if you wander by and Bill and Janice are working inside, they'll be happy to let you in.

Call 575-524-0538 and email thepotteriesmesilla@gmail.com. Visit thepotteriesmesilla.com.

Library book club Zooms for June include World War II, hummingbirds

BULLETIN REPORT

The Readers of the Purple Sage Book Club of Thomas Branigan Memorial Library has announced its lineup of speakers for June, all to be presented live on Zoom.

Here are the programs:

- Thursday, June 10, 12:55-1:30 p.m.: Best-selling author Kristin Harmel will discuss her latest publication, “The Book of Lost Names,” which was published in July 2020. Inspired by a true story from World War II, a young woman with a talent for forgery helps hundreds of Jewish children flee the Nazis.

Eva Traube Abrams, a semiretired librarian in Florida, is shelving books one morning when her eyes lock on an article picturing a book she recognizes as The Book of Lost Names.

The book shown in the photograph on the cover of Harmel’s book is, in her story, an 18th-century religious text thought to have been taken from France as the war was ending. Now housed in a Berlin library, it appears to contain some sort of code, but researchers don’t know where it came from or what the code means. Eva holds the answer.

Contact sagelibrary@las-cruces.org for a Zoom invitation, using “Book” in the subject line.

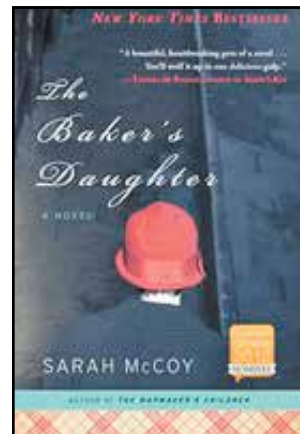

- Thursday, June 17, 12:30-1:30 p.m.: Award-winning author Sarah McCoy will discuss her work, including “The Baker’s Daughter,” which was published in 2012.

“The Baker’s Daughter” is the story of the intertwined lives of two women. In 1945, Elsie Schmidt is a naive teenager protected from the worst of the terror and desperation overtaking her country by a high-ranking Nazi who wishes to marry her. So, when an escaped Jewish boy arrives on Elsie’s doorstep on Christmas Eve, Elsie understands that opening the door would put all she loves in danger.

Sixty years later, in El Paso, Texas, Reba Adams is trying to file a feel-good Christmas piece for the local magazine, and she sits down with the owner of Elsie’s German Bakery for what she expects will be an easy interview. But Reba finds herself returning to the bakery again and again, anxious to find the heart of the story — a story that resonates with her own turbulent past. For Elsie, Reba’s questions are a stinging reminder of that last bleak year of World War II.

McCoy is also the author of “Marilla of Green Gables,” “The Mapmaker’s Children,” the novella “The Branch of Hazel,” “Grand Central,” “The Time It Snowed in Puerto Rico” and “Le soufflé des feuilles et des promesses” (“Pride and Providence”). Her novel “Mustique” is slated for publication in 2022.

Contact sagelibrary@las-cruces.org for a Zoom invitation, with “McCoy” in the subject line.

SARAH MCCOY

- Thursday, June 24, 12:30-1:30 p.m.: Award-winning naturalist-author Sy Montgomery will discuss her latest book, “The Hummingbird’s Gift: Wonder, Beauty and Renewal On Wings,” published in May 2021.

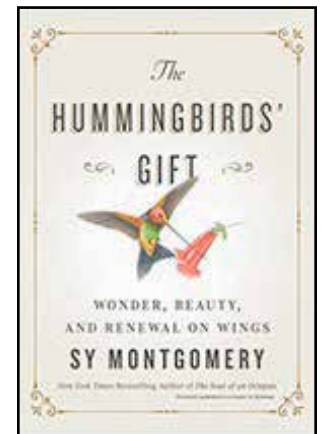

Montgomery’s book is about Brenda Sherburn, who rescues abandoned hummingbirds and nurses them back to health until they can fly away and live in the wild. It also tells the story of two of her rescues.

Live, indoor theater returns to the Black Box

'Every Brilliant Thing' opens June 11

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Live, indoor theater returns June 11 to Black Box Theatre, 430 N. Main St. Downtown, with its production of "Every Brilliant Thing," written by Duncan Macmillan and Jonny Donahoe, directed by Ceil Herman and starring Autumn Gieb.

All state public health orders will be complied with, including 33 percent theater capacity. All audience members will be required to wear masks throughout the performance. "We know the new health order allows completely vaccinated people to not wear masks or socially distance," Herman said, "but short of requiring vaccine cards, we don't know how to separate non-vaccinated from fully."

The play is about a 6-year girl whose mother

Autumn Gieb stars in "Every Brilliant Thing."

is in the hospital because, according to Dad, "she's done something stupid." Mum (it's a British play) is also finding it hard to be happy. So, the little girl makes a list of "everything that's brilliant about the world" and worth living for. She leaves the list on her mother's pillow and knows it has been read because it comes back with spelling corrections. Soon, the list takes on a life of its own.

Gieb stars as the little girl/the play's narrator and is the only on-stage actor in the show. Audience members "will be invited to play the other roles, from their seats or at a 10-foot distance from Gieb," in keeping with state public health orders, said Ceil Herman, who directed the play and is the co-owner of Black Box Theatre along with her husband, Peter. She said audience members will also help Gieb's character put together her list of brilliant things.

Gieb has starred and co-starred in outstanding theater productions for many years in Las Cruces. Most recently, she was in the cast of "Animal Tales," which Black Box Theatre presented in its outdoor courtyard in April.

"Every Brilliant Thing" was first performed at the Ludlow Fringe Festival in Ludlow, England, in June 2013. It premiered in New York City in December

Black Box Theatre announces 2021-22 season

Black Box Theatre's 2021-22 season opens with "Every Brilliant Thing."

Here are the additional shows in the season:

- Aug. 6-22: "A Coupla White Chicks Sitting Around Talking," written by John Ford Noonan, directed by Robert "Bobcat" Young. The play was produced in 1979 and ran for more than 800 performances off-Broadway in a production starring Susan Sarandon and Eileen Brennan.

- Sept. 24-Oct. 10: "Laughing Wild," by Christopher Durang, directed by Ceil Herman. Durang starred in the original off-Broadway production of the play in 1987.

- Nov. 19-Dec. 5: "Daddy Long Legs," book by John Caird, music and lyrics by Paul Gordon, directed by Nikka Ziemer. This musical was inspired by a novel, which also spawned the 1955 movie starring Fred Astaire.

- Jan. 28-Feb. 13, 2022: "Radium Girls," written by D.W. Gregory, directed by Autumn Gieb. The play tells the story of the girls who painted luminous watches with radium only to fall ill in the 1920s.

- March 18-April 3: "Mother Courage and Her Children," written by Bertolt Brecht, directed by Joshua Taulbee. The 1939 play is considered one of the greatest plays of the 20th century and possibly the greatest anti-war play of all time.

- May 6-22: "The Standby Lear," written by John W. Lowell, directed by Ceil Herman. The actor playing King Lear has fallen ill and is understudy steps forward.

Performances will be at 8 p.m. Fridays, June 11, 18 and 25, and Saturdays, June 12, 19 and 26; 2:30 p.m. Sundays June 20 and 27; and 7 p.m. Thursday, June 17.

Tickets are: $15 for general admission; $12 for seniors and students; and $10 for the Thursday night performance only.

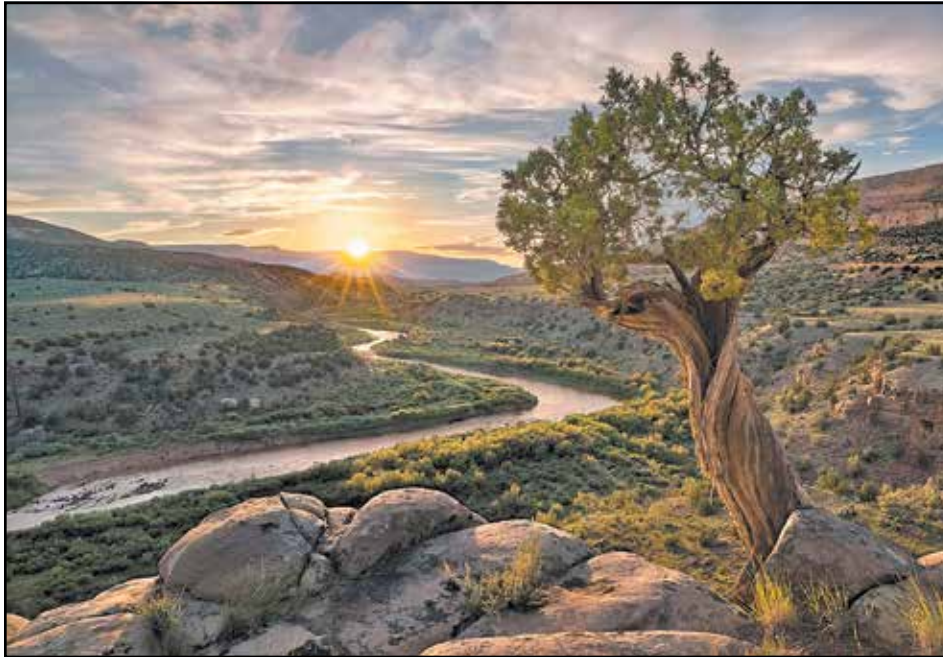

The production also includes an art show, "The Turquoise Invitational," in Black Box Theatre's gallery.

Local artists have contributed a wide variety of eclectic artwork to the show, celebrating the fact that Doña Ana County is at the turquoise, or least restrictive, level of the New Mexico Public Health Department's statewide Covid-19 county-by-county risk assessment framework.

Participating artists are Diana Ayres, Margaret Bernstein, Christina Campbell, Sandra L. Clifford, Kris Karstedt, Beth LeBlanc, Coy Lowther, Jan Minnow, Mel Stone, Gabriele Teich, Kris Karstedt and Carol Witham.

"The Juniper's Domain" is another one of Wayne Suggs' photographs on display at the Doña Ana Arts Council in June and July.

A peek inside the cirque

Paranormal
Cirque coming to Las Cruces June
10-13

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Whether a child of a circus family in Mexico

City or as a little boy in Washington, D.C. who was inspired by “the most flexible man in the world,” the best part of the show is the same — making people happy.
“Even when there is only one person in the audience, when I see the great reaction, that person just made my day,” said Wheel of Death performer Luis Soto with the Paranormal Cirque.

“What I enjoy most is being able to give some people something to look forward to,” said show manager Ben Holland.
“Now that we can come back and do something again, it gives people the opportunity to get excited again. You can see that on their faces when they come in smiling, laughing and screaming. It’s really a rewarding thing. You feel like you are giving back something.”

The Cirque Italia company is coming back to Las Cruces with a horror-themed twist, Paranormal Cirque, June 10-13, setting up in the parking area of Mesilla Valley Mall, 700 S. Telshor Blvd.

“You will fall into a parallel world and end up surrounded by monstrous creatures with hidden talents that will amaze you with the circus arts,” said public relations coordinator Sarah Kessler in a press release. “This show is not for the faint of heart. You may have to catch your breath or try to stop your heart from racing during this adrenaline-filled performance.”

Argentina Portugal

Soto is from Mexico,
the son of a circus family and the father of a 16-year-old daughter who is also a cirque performer, currently perfecting her Washington trapeze act.

“I love the circus life,” he said. “It is a unique way to live your life.
You get to a meet lot of people, countries, places, cultures, languages, food, roads. That’s pretty much very exciting for me.”

Soto feels like he has one of the best jobs in the world. He is on stage seven minutes, then done with the day. But then he admits that behind those seven minutes, there is a lot of physical effort, training and sometimes you get hurt. But then, the show must go on, and you get up again.

“Sometimes, I get questions about what we eat

BENJAMIN SANCHEZ PHOTOGRAPHY

Ben Holland, Cirque Italia contortionist and how we live,” he said.

“I say we are just normal people, human beings. We do like any other kind of job — if you are good, you get hired. We wake up like any other people — drink coffee, have a little cookie, maybe go to the mall and watch a movie.”

He said the show is so good, he can’t pick a favorite act out of it, because they are all great.
Although he does admit the scariest piece is probably the contortionist who does things that you think must hurt with his body.

Holland is not only the general manager of the show, he does the sound and lights, and he is the contortionist, starting to practice when he was 8.

“From Washington D.C., I went to high school, thought ‘I don’t have money for college so I’m going to go away and join a circus,’” he said. “I got a little motorhome, went and found a circus and said, ‘Hey can I have a job please?’ and they said ‘yes.’”

Holland said while there may be a bit of a stigma about people who work for a circus, there are no hooligans and rascals there.

“Honestly being here and living here and being a part of a separate world for so long, I don’t think there are harder working people anywhere,” Holland said. “Right now there are 44 people, everybody multitasks.”

While the pandemic
did shut the show down

Time in Las Cruces was about learning, coming together

As Rhonda and I prepare for our move to the Midwest, we are remembering that it was a decade ago, at this time of year, when we were preparing for our transition from the New Hampshire seacoast to the high desert of New Mexico.

Our fascination with “real water” up there (with Atlantic beaches 20 minutes from our home) easily pivoted to becoming mesmerized with amazing mountain vistas and captivating sunsets.

While living in New Mexico, we became parents-in-law and, then, grandparents of two wonderful and inquisitive human beings who live in another state and city that begins with “New.”

RABBI KAROL

Seeking Harmony

Closer to our current home for the next few days, I have been thinking about how our time in Las Cruces has impacted my rabbinat.

The diversity of identity, heritage and faith in Las Cruces offered opportunities for learning and engagement.

Annual gatherings at Temple Beth-El, held from 2015 to 2019 on the Sunday before Thanksgiving, sparked lively discussions on the themes of gratitude, hospitality, humility, standards for human decency and principles that can form a foundation for unifying and just leadership.

There were two “by the border” programs of the Jewish Federation of Greater El Paso that illustrated where we really are, beyond our geographic location.

In 2015, members of the Jewish communities of El Paso, Las Cruces and Juarez gathered together for the “Shofar (Ram’s horn) Across Borders” event at Border Monument One just before Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year.

That was an event marked by trust and celebration. The same event in 2019 was held at the border wall. We reached through the slats to shake hands with our neighbors to the south, and united our voices in song and sounded our shofars together. We felt a strong sense of reunion and connection. It was a moment of hope that others in our region would ultimately recognize their common humanity.

In Las Cruces, I have been part of an ever-growing circle of relationships with people of different generations inside and outside Temple Beth-El. There were workers at coffee shops and our local pharmacy of choice who would call me by name and, sometimes, by my title. I had in-depth discussions about the nature of community with the person whom I put in charge of necessary clothing alterations. And, yes, I would see congregants and clergy colleagues at local stores quite often!

In my presentations at schools, houses of worship, and for local organizations, I found people here willing to learn about my tradition as I was open to become more enlightened about their personal stories and values.

While speaking at the Southern New Mexico Islamic Center Iftar meal this past May 6, I noted that one of the common teachings that Judaism and Islam share is that when we preserve, sustain and support even one soul, one person, it is as if we have saved the entire world. Other philosophies and faiths would likely agree with that maxim.

“Seeking harmony” has been the title/theme for my monthly column over these last several years. I am grateful to the Las Cruces Bulletin for granting me this space to share my reflections, and I thank Temple Beth-El and Las Cruces for giving Rhonda and me the chance to be active participants in community life.

May your future be bright (beyond the frequent sunshine) and may all of you go from strength to strength!

Rabbi Larry Karol served as spiritual leader of Temple Beth-El in Las Cruces from July 2011 to July 2020. His writings are available at rabbilarrykarol.blogspot.com.

Accepting your neighbors with open hearts, minds

We have new next-door neighbors. Thanks to the current housing shortage, our former neighbors capitalized on the $70,000 property value increase, per Zillow, and moved to a neighborhood about a mile away. The new neighbors, from out-of-state, moved in last week.

I wonder if these new neighbors have ever had African-American next-door neighbors. My guess is they have not. So my next question is whether they were nervous or had regrets once they found out the people next door are people of color.

REV. XOLANI KACELA

Guest Columnist

A recent New York Times op-ed argued when neighborhoods have 10 percent or more African-Americans, the white people move out. The author argued whites refuse to live in communities with an equitable share of African-Americans.

We call that white flight. Las Cruces’ majority population is Latino (at 60 percent), or white (at 85 percent), depending on whose statistics you trust. The African-American population here is only 3 percent. So it is unlikely my neighborhood will ever achieve a 10 percent African-American population based on census data.

What do whites expect will happen if more than 10 percent of the neighborhood is African-American? Historical research shows that white people believe that having higher than 10 percent of African-American property owners results in lower property values, borne out after the white flight. That is, when the majority of homeowners leave, the neighborhood suffers lower property values due to the exodus.

We call that a self-fulfilling prophecy.

Our former neighbors were a mixed-race couple. That makes me wonder how did they fit into the 10 percent equation. Would they be one-half as bad for property values, or would there be more depreciation due to Americans’ traditional attitudes towards mixed-race marriage?

We used to call that mis-cegenation.

However, the property tax rolls suggest race was a non-factor when you consider the property appreciated 30 percent in 18 months - even with an African-American property owner.

How do we break through such narrow-minded ideas about who we are as neighbors? What does it take for people to know each other as human beings striving to take care of their families, earn an honest living working at jobs they (hopefully) love and enjoy, allow them to fulfill their life’s purpose, and make the world a better place than they found it?

Per the Times article, most people don’t imagine along these lines. Instead, they believe to live among white neighbors guarantees better education and health care, grocery stores within a few blocks reach and reliable property upkeep.

We used to call that “looking out for number one.”

The zoning laws that ensure majority-white or whites-only neighbor-

Catholics urged to return to attending Mass in person on June 6

By DAVID BURGE
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Catholic bishop of Las Cruces is asking the faithful to resume attending Mass in person starting on Sunday, June 6.

The new order from Bishop Peter Baldacchino and Chancellor Rev. Kevin Waymel was issued on May 25.

“At this time, due to the observance of public safety protocols, the increase in the availability of vaccines and the fact that 55 percent of those 16 and older in New Mexico have been fully vaccinated, our parishes and society at large have begun to return to some sense of normalcy,” they wrote in their order.

This comes after in-person Mass had been shut down or severely limited for more than a year and most Las Cruces Catholics had to rely on livestreams on their computers or phones to attend Mass.

Chris Velasquez, spokesman for the Las Cruces Diocese, said the decision to have the faithful return to in-person celebrations of Mass was a “prudent one done with a lot of thought.”

But Velasquez noted that there are exceptions to the general requirement that Catholics attend Mass regularly.

Anyone with a “serious reason” or “grave cause” is excused from the obligation. That includes: anyone who is sick, symptomatic or has been recently exposed to the coronavirus; anyone with a significant health risk that “requires them to avoid public spaces” or if they care for someone with significant health risks; and anyone who is hospitalized or otherwise can’t attend services through no fault of their own.

During the pandemic, the Diocese “strived to strike a balance” between public health and safety and ministering to the spiritual needs of Catholics, according to the bishop’s latest order.

Velasquez also said that the Diocese will continue to do livestreams of Mass and make those available to people who can’t attend service in person.

Anyone who has a question or is unsure about their personal situation is urged to talk to their parish pastor.

St. James Episcopal Church honored for 120 years of history

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

A simple but elegant adobe building has housed Las Cruces’ first version of St. James Episcopal Church since 1901. The fancier brick building everybody thinks of was built later across the street, but this little white hall housed the start of the congregation.

Beginning in the Wild West of southern New Mexico, the oldest non-Roman Catholic church in southern New Mexico, the first episcopal services in Doña Ana County were held in 1871, probably at someone’s home. It was 1901 when the funds had been raised, bringing in the $800 needed to build the permanent church in what is now Mesilla Park.

The first service there was held by the Rev. McConnell on Sept. 22, that same year.

On May 8, 2021, Jane Madrid, president of the Colonial Dames of the XVII Century, El Camino Real Chapter, and past president Blanch Goldsmith presented the chapel with a bronze plaque recognizing its historical presence.

The Colonial Dames are descendants of an ancestor who lived and served prior to 1701 in one of the original colonies in the geographical area of the present-day United States of America, Madrid said.

“Our work is dedicated to the preservation of historic sites and records, promotion of heraldry and coats of arms and the support of charitable projects and education,” she said.

The chapter, with 15 members still serving, is the last one left in New Mexico.

The building, originally a simple rectangle, has received several additions over the years. Now much modified, the original church is currently used as a parish hall and underwent a major renovation in 2017-2018.

Madrid and Goldsmith presented the plaque to the current priest, the Rev. John Tober, on Sunday, May 8, with other members of the church present.

hoods are still called redlining.

On my street of about 30 houses, I’ve only seen one other African-American family. For now, I’m not worried about white flight. I am concerned our property values are blowing up disproportionately, which creates another type of disparity. Our former neighbors encouraged us to sell. We’re staying put.

In Cruces, we’d call that “keeping up with the Jimenezes.”

WHO doctor visits Las Cruces to tout benefits of telemedicine

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Always reaching to make the lives of those dealing with medical problems more comfortable, various professionals from Las Cruces and El Paso involved in telemedicine gathered at Electronic Caregiver in Las Cruces on May 25.

Joining the local professionals was Professor Dr. Juergen Osterbrink, director of the World Health Organization (WHO) Collaborating Centre for Nursing Research & Education at Paracelsus Medical University (PMU) in Salzburg Austria.

Osterbrink talked about processes happening in Europe as they explore the possibilities of telemedicine uses across the western world.

“Science has shown us

Professor Dr. Juergen Osterbrink, director of the World Health Organization (WHO) Collaborating Centre for Nursing Research & Education at Paracelsus Medical University (PMU) in Salzburg, Austria, talks about efforts to make lives better through telemedicine on May 25 at Electronic Caregiver in Las Cruces.

that people die at home alone,” he said. “People died alone in nursing homes, died alone in hospitals and I think this is fundamentally unfair.”

That’s why Osterbrink created a palliative care research app with the collaboration of physicians, nurses and spiritual care professionals.

“These are the three groups who are responsible so that people in the last days of their lives are feeling competent and have the time to say goodbye,” he said.

Research Osterbrink and his team have been doing has the goal of bringing palliative care to the next level. The next level, he explained, means caregivers in hospitals, nursing homes and outpatient facilities have the possibility, via telecare, to make quality of life better in the days before death.

He used an example of a patient at home with a nurse. The nurse was able to use telecare, in contact with a doctor, to administer an injection in the right place to alleviate pain in the night. It is a huge advantage to be able to provide appropriate care when the doctor is 50 miles away.

“We have to work more and more, in my opinion, in telemedical care,” Osterbrink said.

Other projects his team has been working on across Europe include studying a recovery concept for patients facing hip and knee surgery using video interactive support before, immediately after and six months out after surgery. They are also looking at how patients with dementia are acting and reacting and examining the burden of caregivers and whether they are suffering from depression, high blood pressure or from diabetes based on their daily care-giving activities.

den, a social burden, behavioral burden and the scientific evidence gives us the possibility to create models like Addison Care (Electronic Caregiver’s virtual assistant), that will give providers a more active role,” Osterbrink said.

The take-home message, Osterbrink said, is research development and education is key.

“(We need) intersectional, interprofessional care provision through telecare and everyday care support as well as diversification,” he said. “This will optimize health-care provision not only in rural areas but also in our cities.”

Aggie baseball leads league in politeness, tidy buses

Sometimes, your win-loss record doesn't come close to telling the true story of your season.

That's definitely the case for the New Mexico State University baseball team, which finished with a 20-34 record after being eliminated from the WAC tournament over Memorial Day weekend.

"Loser" is not a word that comes to mind when you think of this team and how it had to deal with some of the most restrictive

Covid rules in the nation, just to play the game it loves.

"It's definitely been difficult, especially early, not really having a fall practice," said head coach Mike Kirby, now in his second year with the program. "That's when you put your sign system in, your first and thirds, your bunt defense, you work on your alignment. We didn't get any of that."

Let's go through some of the challenges and obstacles the Aggies had to overcome in the past 15 months.

The Aggies had their 2020 season abruptly canceled because of the pandemic. This year, they had to deal with frequent testing, wearing masks everywhere they went, different limitations on how they could practice and, of course, limits on spectators both at home and on the road.

The Aggies were forced to play their first seven games of the season on the road and only had two nonconference games at home.

It was a tough way to start the season, but the Aggies fought back and showed plenty of spirit and grit.

In the WAC tournament in Mesa, Arizona, last week, they beat Seattle University 7-5 in the opening round on May 26. In the quarterfinals the next day, the Aggies actually led top-seeded and eventual WAC tournament champion Grand Canyon University 4-1 after three but couldn't hold on and lost 5-4.

The wheels then fell off with a season-ending 10-0 loss to Seattle U in an elimination game on May 28.

Still, Kirby said perhaps the most gratifying part about the season was how his team hung together like brothers, through all the ups and downs.

"My team is the best," Kirby said. "I love these dudes. These guys show up every day, work hard, have fun. They are great teammates. You wouldn't know we had lost six in a row" headed into the WAC tournament.

Of course, NMSU wasn't alone in having to deal with the vagaries of the pandemic, but they handled it all with a degree of grace, dignity and politeness that impressed almost everyone they came across.

"I can't tell you how many compliments I've gotten throughout the season and last season, stuff like, 'They're the best team we've ever had at our hotel,'" Kirby said. "A bus driver told us, 'I've never been on a cleaner bus after a team. Thank you.'"

Outfielder Zerek Saenz, a Las Cruces native, said it was a difficult year at times, but he never lost his love for the game or his appreciation for being able to play for his hometown Aggies.

"It is really special to me," said Saenz, a Mayfield High product. "Not a lot of kids get this opportunity."

Left-handed pitcher Sammy Natera also is playing for his "hometown" team but in a more roundabout way. Natera is from Juarez and attended Lydia Patterson Institute in downtown El Paso, where he starred in both baseball and basketball.

"It was a weird season for us," Natera said. "Getting tested every other day and wearing masks. It was hard at the beginning but we got used to it. It was like the new normal."

Natera said despite the weirdness of the season, he is also thrilled to be a member of the Aggie baseball program.

"It's pretty special," Natera said. "I feel like it is home. It's an hour away from home. I can go back anytime I want. I love it here."

Now, the Aggies can look forward to next season and getting a chance to flip their win-loss record toward the positive side.

Phil thrills with win for the ages and for the aged

In the most amazing sports story of the year, a nearly 51-year-old Phil Mickelson won the 103rd PGA Championship on a truly brutal Kiawah Island golf course on Sunday, May 23.

Almost nobody saw that coming, except maybe Phil. At 115 in the World Golf Rankings the betting line had him at 300-1 odds on Draft Kings; and one guy who bet $1,000 on Phil made $300,000.

That's why they play the game! The win was Phil's sixth major, having previously won three Masters, one British Open and one PGA (in 2005). It was his 45th PGA Tour win overall. His first PGA Tour win was the Northern Telecom Open in Tucson, as a 20-year-old amateur student golfer at Arizona State, some 30 years ago.

At 50 Mickelson ranks as the oldest player ever to win a major, having beaten the strongest tournament field in years, with 99 of the top 100 in the world playing.

For those who missed watching the final round, with Phil leading at 6-under par paired with Brooks Koepka at 5-under in the final group, it was spellbinding.

The 7,800-plus-yard Kiawah course runs east and west along the Atlantic shore with tight fairways, waste area and bunker sand everywhere, expansive salt marsh and lagoon water everywhere, and strong winds. The course played tough enough that many top players missed the cut, including Justin Thomas and world No. 1 Dusty Johnson.

It seemed like every single shot on Sunday had tournament-deciding implications. Phil led by as many as 5 strokes on Saturday and again on Sunday, but leads evaporate quickly on a course that difficult and windy, with hazards and odd bounces lurking. Phil, like Tiger, is wildly popular though not universally beloved. Why? After making a $1 million profit from a stock trade deemed illegal in 2011, he was ordered to return that profit but not charged with a crime. He is viewed by some as gambling in excess, once repaying a gambling debt for nearly $2 million to the same man who gave him the stock tip.

And then the Ryder Cup dustup with USA captain Tom Watson in 2014 at Gleneagles in Scotland, which has since been patched up. And after he slapped a moving ball on the 13th green during the third round of the 2018 U.S. Open at Shinnecock Hills, he was handed a two-stroke penalty, when he probably should have been summarily disqualified. This important major tournament win may go far in countering some of those controversies that have marred Mickelson's image in recent years.

That having been said, Mickelson with his youthful personality, his fierce love of professional golf competition and abundant physical skills, is easy to root for.

Most of the 10,000 fans lining the fairways at Kiawah were cheering for Phil. So how did Phil do it? Partly like Bryson, Phil is an equipment freak. He played with a custom driver and a 2 wood. A 2 wood? Sunday on the range, he cracked the face of his 3 iron and was forced to hit a 4 iron to the long par-3 5th hole that went short into a bunker. On air, Sir Nick Faldo voiced that he might hole that shot, which he did for a birdie. Overcoming years of psoriatic arthritis, for some time Phil has been explaining about his fasting-based diet (he lost 15 pounds in 10 days), his gym workouts, his muscular calves and his habit of meditation.

"I just worked harder," Phil said. Truth is it was Phil's mental toughness that won the day. Behind those trooper sunglasses, Phil displayed the discipline and moxie on shots that his competitors failed at. With his brother Tim on the bag, after he fell one stroke behind Koepka early, Phil was urged on Sunday to "commit" to every shot. He did.

Phil won big with his golf legacy. He also pocketed $2.16 million and five-year exemptions to the three other majors.

"I hope that others find that inspiration. It might take a little extra work, a little harder effort," said Phil.

I'm wondering is 50 the new 40?
