9-1-1 CENTER IMPLEMENTS LOCATION TECHNOLOGY TO IMPROVE EMERGENCY RESPONSE TIMES

The Mesilla Valley Regional Dispatch Authority (MVRDA) announces the roll-out of “what3words” location technology.

Using what3words addresses gives callers a simple way to describe precisely where help is needed, enabling responders to find and get resources to the scene faster. What3words has divided the world into 10-foot squares and given each square a unique combination of three words: a what3words address, ///.duvet.persons.icon, for example, is a precise 10-foot square location in the parking lot of the Doña Ana County Government Center.

What3words is free to use via the app for iOS and Android or the online map at what3words.com. The system works offline, making it ideal for use in areas with an unreliable data connection. What3words addresses cover the entire world and can be used in over 40 languages.

In an emergency, identifying precisely where help is needed is critical. This can be near impossible if you are in an area without an address or if that address is not clear enough to describe exactly where you are. In rural areas it is even more difficult to communicate location accurately, for example if you are hiking in the Organ Mountains or off roading in the desert. Callers who do not know where they are often use their phones to try and find themselves via a pin on a map – but it is difficult to describe that pin to someone over a 911 call.

Now when you dial 911 from a mobile phone in Doña Ana County, the caller’s what3words location will be transmitted to the 911 dispatcher and the location will appear on their dispatch map. Callers using a landline or VOIP phone can verbally give their what3words address when dialing 911.

If they already have the app, callers can use it to find the three words that identify their location. The three words can then be used by the 911 dispatcher to identify the precise location and direct first responders to exactly where they are required. First responders can also use the what3words app to guide them to the three-word location that is reported to them by the dispatcher.

The Mesilla Valley Regional Dispatch Authority encourages all residents in Dona Ana County to download and install the what3words app in their mobile devices. It will help us help you.

Virgin Galactic's latest launch signals new era for New Mexico

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

From the beginning, 17 years ago when then New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson and Virgin Galactic's Sir Richard Branson shook hands over a piece of desert in southern New Mexico, everything has led to the historic day of Sunday, July 11, 2021.

The Unity 22 flight, from Spaceport America, kicked off the future of space travel.

"It's a beautiful day for New Mexico," said former economic development secretary and one of the original conceptualists of the spaceport, Rick Homans, who served in the Richardson administration. "This is the day we have all been working for since 2005 when Governor Richardson announced this great partnership."

Homans said the Unity 22 flight is a milestone for the commercial space-flight industry and space tourism but it is just the beginning.

"The goal is to live, work and play in space," he said. "We have seen the industrial revolution and what we are experiencing now is really the beginning of the space revolution. It's a pretty hot market right now, and New Mexico is in the right time at the right place."

The facility, Homans said, cost $250 million with a lot of expense going into the 12,000-foot-long runway and the iconic Gateway to Space building and it couldn't have been done without the taxpayers of New Mexico, specifically Doña Ana and Sierra counties.

"The thing I would say to the taxpayers is thank you," he said. "Thank you for the confidence. Passing the tax was the key to moving it forward. They benefitted with money going into education programs through the years, but the big thing now is the money going into the jobs and the spaceflight industry. That's really when the payoff will come."

The 700 to 800 people gathered at Spaceport America last Sunday included not only press from across the world but also many of the "future astronauts," holders of the $250,000 tickets to space purchased from Virgin Galactic. And on the VIP side of the event, Branson's family awaited his return from space along with family members of the others flying on the spaceship Unity.

Elon Musk, who is Branson's friend and owner of another commercial space flight company, SpaceX, was also present at the historic event. SpaceX launches from Florida, while a third company, Blue Origin, launches from west Texas near Van Horn, about two hours east of El Paso. Blue Origin is owned by Amazon founder Jeff Bezos.

A group of Las Cruces Public Schools students from Monte Vista Elementary School also attended the event, adding a youthful example of those childhood dreams of going to space.

Russian born Lina Boroczina was one of the first to sign up for a ticket to space. She's an example of Branson's dream of making space accessible to everyone. Sixteen and a half years ago, she mortgaged her house to buy her ticket and has no regrets.

"I am a future astronaut, one of the founders," she said. "In 17 years of waiting, I am actually here to witness Sir Richard go up. It's a dream of a lifetime.

"When I was 5 years old, my dad used to tuck me in bed and tell me stories about being stowed away in a spaceship with my cousin," Boroczina added. "Stories that we used to go in space and come out in zero gravity and have space adventures with all kinds of space aliens and then we would land and grandma would be standing on the landing with her rolling pin and we would get grounded for like sneaking out on the space adventure. Every night, it was a different story."

Boroczina identified herself as a huge sci-fi nerd and a scientist.

"You cannot imagine how happy I am to be here," she said. "I cannot find words for it. The future is now. It is worth every penny -- every single penny."

Russian born Lina Boroczina mortgaged her home nearly 17 years ago to buy a ticket to one day go into space.

Spaceport Director Scott McLaughlin said the event is important for the region, a milestone for New Mexico.

He called himself a "boomerang," a third-generation New Mexican who left because there was little work in his industry of engineering and aerospace and then returned 25 years later.

"New Mexico invests in college grads and then they leave," he said. "Space involves virtually every technology we work on. I would like to grow the economy where people don't just decide to leave after they graduate."

New Mexico Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham was there too, of course. She was touting the value of the event, and space tourism in general, to the state's economy.

"Ten million people are going to see this incredible site," she said. "They are going to get to know New Mexico. They are going to know the history of our technology footprint and of our space footprint."

Another future astronaut, New Mexico State University's Pat Hynes, also talked of New Mexico's long association with the space industry.

"Our world has evolved in the space industry over time," she said. "This is a continuation of work we have been doing for many years."

Hynes is the curator of the International Symposium for Personal and Commercial Spaceflight held every year in Las Cruces. She is a strong proponent of the research component of taking humans to space and has been the developer of many experiments that have already taken place out of Spaceport America.

"There are many things we are learning by studying things in zero gravity," she said.

Because government changes in administration and funding is not an issue in the private space industry, she hopes that experimentation in space will have a continuity it has never seen before.

"Now you see it: We have research capacity," she said. "Commercial is so important because it is not dependent on government. Private industry has to do this."

It was at the press conference as the entire event was wrapping up that Branson said directly to the school children, "If we can do this, just imagine what you can do."

"It's impossible to describe," he said, clearly still high from the experience. "The views as you go into space -- we are so lucky to have this planet that we all live on. At Virgin Galactic, we must all be doing everything we can to help this incredible planet we live on. I will devote the rest of my life to doing that."

Police Department looking for 'good people' in recruitment effort

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

"We need good people," Las Cruces Police Lt. Jeremy Story said earlier this month, as the Las Cruces Police Department (LCPD) continues to recruit new officers for its academy.

The department has almost 200 total positions, and currently has about 150 officers, which is "the lowest in a very long time," Story said.

LCPD's current recruitment drive ends July 30.

The "sentiment across the U.S. ... the negativity that's out there," has "affected recruiting and morale" in Las Cruces to some degree, he said, even though LCPD has strong support from the community, city management, Mayor Ken Miyagishima and some members of the city council, Story said.

The pandemic has also made recruiting more difficult for police departments and "across the spectrum," said Police Academy Coordinator David Rodriguez.

Understaffing has meant more overtime for current officers, who are coming in early and staying late so the department can continue to answer calls for service, said Story, a former U.S. Marine, who has been with LCPD for 15 years.

"I feel like I'm making a difference," he said. "Every day, you wake up and you know it's going to be different."

"It's a different environment from any kind of 9 to 5," said Rodriguez, a native of El Paso who is beginning his eighth year with LCPD.

"It's a good career," he said. "You can make an impact on the community you live in."

Sometimes, even "the smallest changes" a police officer makes can "impact somebody's quality of life," Rodriguez said.

Rodriguez said he gets some questions from recruits and the public about qualified immunity for police officers.

He says LCPD officers receive "more positive feedback than negative, even on their worst day."

While they don't always get thanked for the service they provide, Las Cruces police officers have "overwhelming community support," he said.

"We appreciate the women and men of law enforcement, and we recognize that those who choose this career do so because of their calling, which is to help protect our community while making a difference in the lives of their neighbors and our residents," Mayor Ken Miyagishima said.

"We appreciate the families who give so much through their sacrifice and sometimes when their family gives the ultimate sacrifice," the mayor added. "The city owes a tremendous debt of gratitude that we can never repay. I ask all of our residents when they see a police officer to say: 'Officer, thank you for your service; I appreciate you very much!'"

LCPD is "more professional now than ever" in terms of its training, standards and accountability, Story said.

"Las Cruces has a very well trained, professional department," he said, but it "can always be better." LCPD continues to focus on improved training and increased professionalism to "deliver better service," Story said.

"I always wanted to be a police officer," said Sgt. Erik Hechler, a native of Truth or Consequences. Hechler joined LCPD a decade ago at age 30, after a 10-year career in construction, and said he felt "a calling to do it."

Being a part of LCPD's Community Outreach Unit is "right where I fit in," he said. "It's been rewarding for me. You do something that makes a difference."

The six-member Community Outreach Unit is focused on creating partnerships within the community, Hechler said, and interacting with people.

Members of the unit participated in drive-by parades for a Las Cruces retirement community during the pandemic lockdown, Hechler said.

They also partnered with staff from Buena Vida Apartments, 1505 La Fonda Drive, to repair and replace basketball goals on that property in June, according to a City of Las Cruces news release.

Officers support New Mexico Special Olympics, including participating in Law Enforcement Torch Runs.

They also have been involved in local Keep Las Cruces Beautiful cleanup efforts and they helped with last month's repainting and refurbishing of the Police Athletic League (PAL) building, 700 N. Solano Drive.

The A in PAL will soon change from Athletic to Activities, Hechler said, as police officers and other volunteers coach and mentor local youth in sports and other activities.

School resource officers – police officers assigned to local schools – "are a great asset," Hechler said.

They participate in a wide range of activities at schools throughout Las Cruces, reaching out to "kids who need a little extra attention," he said. Officers recently helped organize kickball teams at two Las Cruces elementary schools, he said.

"We're your friends," Hechler said. "Come and see us. Talk to us."

He also encouraged community members to "get involved" with LCPD and its outreach programs and efforts to serve and protect the community.

"Be involved," Hechler said. "Stay vigilant. Never hesitate to call us. We'll respond."

"If you want to see a change in the community," apply to the Las Cruces Police Academy, Rodriguez said.

"It's my career plan," Rodriguez said about LCPD. "I'm actually training police officers of the future."

Another giant leap for New Mexico and space

Seventy-six years ago today, scientists based in New Mexico, detonated the world's first atomic bomb. It happened in a place a little over two hours' drive from Las Cruces.

In other words, drive to San Antonio, New Mexico, for a green chile cheeseburger at the Owl and/or the Buckhorn, then drive a half hour or so east, and you're at Ground Zero.

Five days ago today, another significant scientific achievement took place in New Mexico. Unless you've been hiding under a giant moon rock, or the world's biggest piece of Trinitite, you know Sunday, July 11, Virgin Galactic launched an aircraft from Spaceport America in Sierra County, about 45 minutes from Las Cruces.

Its six-person group, including Virgin founder Richard Branson, flew to the edge of space, achieved weightlessness, free from the bonds of gravity and safely returned on, essentially, a glider ride to the Spaceport America runway.

The history of space flight, and all kinds of important scientific discovery, has deep roots in southern New Mexico. Many New Mexicans, including myself, may underestimate the accomplishments.

RICHARD COLTHARP

From the Publisher

Southern New Mexico's space bona fides:

- Twelve men have walked on the moon. Two of them claim southern New Mexico as their home. Edgar Mitchell, the sixth man to make the walk, 50 years ago with Apollo 14, grew up in Artesia. Harrison Schmitt, the last person to walk on the moon, with Apollo 17 in 1972, is from Silver City

- American rocket pioneer Robert Goddard took up residence in Roswell in 1930, and accomplished some of his most important work there.

- After World War II, the U.S. military brought German scientist Werner Von Braun to White Sands Proving Grounds (now White Sands Missile Range) to perfect the V2 rocket.

- Clyde Tombaugh, the discoverer of Pluto, taught astronomy at New Mexico State from 1955-73, and retired in Las Cruces until his death in 1997.

- The International Space Hall of Fame was established in Alamogordo in 1976.

- Several aircraft and pilot innovations later used by astronauts were tested at Holloman Air Force Base.

- NASA opened its White Sands Test Facility to test propulsion in 1963, the same year President John F. Kennedy came to visit WSMR and inspect the latest missile expertise. In 1961, Kennedy had told Congress, America should put a man on the moon before the end of the decade. His vision became reality in July 1969, just a few months before the end of the decade.

- In 1982, the Space Shuttle Columbia landed at WSMR.

- If that's not enough for you, how about this? David Bowie filmed part of the 1975 sci-fi film "The Man Who Fell to Earth" at WSMR.

- I won't even mention the 1947 Roswell UFO incident.

- In 2011, New Mexico opened Spaceport America, which contrary to popular belief, has housed many tenants in the past decade, not just Virgin Galactic, and has been the site of multiple launches and tests, by a number of companies and organizations.

- And, of course, the latest, the July 2021 launching of commercial passengers into space and returning safely.

I watched the Virgin launch from the Rio Grande Theatre in Downtown Las Cruces.

I'm grateful to the city for making the opportunity available, but now I regret not being at the spaceport to see it with my own eyes.

The first time I saw the unimposing obelisk at White Sands Missile Range, marking the spot where the atomic bomb was first detonated, I got emotional.

I certainly hadn't anticipated that. But what happened on that spot changed the course of human history.

One day we'll look back on the July 11 spaceflight as another event that changed history.

The Cowboy Way

A good cowboy will go beyond the call of duty and even put himself in harm's way to help a suffering beast.

Doug and Patty run a ranch in that big wide country in eastern New Mexico. They'd received several loads of cow/calf pairs. The weather was against 'em and the calves went to scourin'.

The cows were turned out in a big pasture. Treating the

BAXTER BLACK

of Common Sense

calves wasn't easy. The morning of the incident, their neighbor, Caleb, came to help. He was ridin' a big mule. They trailed through the cows and spotted a good sized calf lookin' humped up. They watched for a minute and confirmed he was, in fact, afflicted.

Doug eased up and dropped a lazy loop around his neck.

It is a strange but almost predictable occurrence that a calf, who appears to be on the edge of his last breath, can suddenly become a dynamo of jackrabbit speed and mad dog energy when suddenly caught with a rope.

Doug pulled the horn knot tight on his saddle as the calf slashed back and forth like a 200-pound marlin on the end of his line. Caleb was haulin' back on his mule to git outta the way. Not in time. The calf went around the outside of the mule and dang near toppled him before they jumped clear. The mule took off in high gear! Caleb was mashin' on the brakes. You could smell 'em burnin' as he disappeared over a swell.

Doug kept his pony facin' the calf till it tangled the rope in some brush.

"Quick, Patty," Doug instructed. "Flank him and give him a Sudafed and some L.A.

Money for nothing and the checks for free

There are no free lunches. If you don't work, you don't eat. Everybody has to pitch in and carry their weight.

These aphorisms from my youth, passed on by my parents and others from their generation who survived the Great Depression during their childhood, pop into my mind each time I hear about a new government plan to give people free money.

Democratic presidential candidate Andrew Yang proposed a plan in which all citizens of working age, regardless of their income, would get $1,000 checks each month from the federal government.

WALT RUBEL
The View
From Here

Las Cruces City Council member Johana Bencomo has now proposed a new city program in which low-income residents would receive a "guaranteed basic income," through direct payments from the city government. She wants to start with a small group of residents in a pilot program first.

Details are still being worked out, but Bencomo said she would like to see those selected for the pilot program get at least $500 a month, which they could spend any way they wanted. She said similar programs elsewhere have led to improved health outcomes and employment opportunities for participants. And, I don't doubt a pilot program here would have the same result, assuming we picked the right people for the program.

Bencomo's plan is to take the money from existing funds. That will work for now, but the program would need a recurring funding source to be sustainable.

But beyond the question of if we can, is the much larger question of if we should. More specifically, if we give people money for not working, will that reduce their incentive to work? And if that happens, what will it mean for our nation's productivity?

The $600-a-month boost to unemployment benefits made available through the federal CARES Act has led to millions of workers opting to delay their return to the workplace, while employers desperate to get up and running again after the pandemic are scrambling to find help.

I understand the argument for a guaranteed basic income. The federal minimum wage has been frozen at $7.25 an hour since 2009. Union membership has been decimated by right-to-work laws, with barely 10 percent of the workforce now enjoying representation. As a result, the wealth gap in the United States has increased to indefensible levels.

According to the Pew

Research Institute, in the years 2001 to 2016, upper-income families saw their wealth increase by 33 percent. Middle-income families saw their wealth shrink by 20 percent, while those at the bottom experienced a 45 percent loss.

Since 2016, the Trump tax cut and the pandemic have both combined to make the wealth gap even wider. I understand that millions of people need help. And, I'm sparing my tears for employers who have steadfastly opposed any increase to the minimum wage and are now having a hard time finding workers.

I fully support increased spending on child-care services, job training, rental assistance, affordable housing and emergency food programs. I agree that wages need to be higher and employees need stronger workplace protections.

The playing field has been tilted in favor of the rich and the wealthy for too long. It's shameful that a nation as wealthy as ours has so many people living on the streets, without the security of shelter or the comfort of knowing where their next meal will come from.

We absolutely need to do better. But money for nothing? Free checks in the mail each month just for being? I'm still having a hard time with that one.

Patty, who's a good cowboy herself, dismounted, went down the rope and flanked the calf just as the calf's mamma arrived, registering her disapproval. She was blowin' snot as Patty maneuvered around tryin' to keep the calf between herself and mama.

Doug saw Caleb out of his peripheral vision, racing back to the scene. "Great," he thought. "Help's on the way."

The mule was still out of control, on autopilot, so to speak.

He never slowed but jumped the stretched rope like a steeple chaser. Caleb never shifted in his seat and disappeared out the other direction.

Patty had managed to give the shot and peel off the rope but the cow gave her a good roll anyway before chasing off after her darlin' baby.

I was lookin' at Patty while Doug was tellin' me this story.

She nodded with that resigned look I often see in ranch women's eyes.

I said, "By gosh, Doug. Yer a heck'uva cowboy. You did all that and never got off yer horse."

"Yup," he said, "I was trainin' him."

Using public education to spur a strong, healthy democracy

By KATHY BROOK AND EILEEN VANWIE

Co-presidents, League of Women Voters of Southern New Mexico

The League of Women Voters of New Mexico (LWVNM) believes that education is the foundation for a strong and viable democracy and that the public education system should impart to students an understanding of the nature of democracy, the ability to think critically and the skills to function successfully in a complex society.

One approach to this goal involves democratic learning communities — groups of people — students, families, educators and the public -- working together to provide relevant learning.

In the May 23, 2021 Las Cruces Sun News, Mesilla

Elementary kindergarten teacher Aimee Parra described it skillfully.

The young learners/leaders in her class shared responsibility for a well-functioning community, working together to achieve learning goals.

Their experiences included planning and resolving issues, engaging them in meaningful communication, empathy, teamwork and self-reflection.

With attention to social and emotional learning, students practiced skills of self-confidence, friendships, problem solving, curiosity and responsibility.

KATHY BROOK

EILEEN VANWIE

Policy (JBC), that the Las Cruces Public School Board recently adopted.

The JBC Policy commits the school district to fairness, equity and inclusion as principles of the system and to modification of “negative stereotypes of historically under-represented, underserved and marginalized student populations, cultures and languages.”

High expectations for all students and everyone involved will advance leadership skills. With the violence, abuse and suicidal patterns found in our society, developing social and emotional skills is also essential. In other words, the policy can be seen as a response to the court findings in the Yazzie/Martinez lawsuit. In the court decision, the judge ruled that New Mexico was violating the constitutional right of students to “a sufficient education” for all students, especially those living in poverty.

According to the court’s judgments, schools must: 1) expand multicultural curricula, 2) provide learning experiences involving family and community, 3) supply equitable enriched resources, 4) use multiple, relevant assessments, and 5) provide relevant, ongoing professional development for educators. Multicul-tural education is identified first because it is so significant.

Multicultural education is basic education that includes curriculum, learning strategies and interactions among teachers, students, families and the community.

It is evident everywhere, from bulletin boards to lunchrooms, sports events and assemblies.

The curricula and learning are based on affirming social justice, critical thinking about historical records, cultural and language diversity and a broad range of knowledge.

In the JBC Policy, the word “equity” means using fair learning processes to meet the strengths, interests, and needs of all students. A fair education system uses learning resources where students see people who look like them.

We can all benefit from having a broader, more inclusive view of history, learning about how people are similar and different and how different individuals and groups overcome challenges they face.

Providing relevant, real-world learning experiences in democratic learning communities gives students more choices and greater responsibility for and engagement with their own learning.

The League of Women Voters of Southern New Mexico supports the JBC Policy Equity and Excellence for All Students for the Las Cruces Public Schools.

Avanza program helping low-income students

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Avanza is the Spanish word for “advance,” and that’s what Doña Ana Community College’s Avanza program is all about – helping low-income students move up and move ahead.

Avanza is an integrated services support program that began in southern Doña Ana County to assist current and incoming DACC students realize their educational goals and achieve the quality of life they want for themselves, their families and their community. Unique services also include: mentoring, career exploration and employment readiness; help connecting students to community resources and social service organizations; food pantries in Anthony and Sunland Park; and child-care resources.

“Our goal is to ensure that citizens of Doña Ana County can access and benefit from programs and resources at DACC,” said DACC President Mónica F. Torres, Ph.D. “We do know that in order to do that well, people need to have their basic needs met. The wrap-around services provided by Avanza do exactly that – provide access to resources that allow students to concentrate on their studies.”

“We realized there was a great need for students in our southern county,” said DACC Avanza Program Specialist Alma Olacio. “Many of them are first-generation college students who need extra support and guidance to make their studies successful and help them graduate. Our intent is to assist students overcome barriers they may experience in completing their programs.”

“I want to improve reading, writing, listening and speaking my English in DACC,” said a 36-year-old student participating in DACC’s Avanza program. The female student, who wished not to be identified, has studied English at DACC since 2018. The student has a degree in administration from the Institute Technology of Ciudad Juarez in Juarez, Mexico. The Juarez native, who now lives in Anthony, New Mexico, also has the equivalent of a bachelor of science in business administration from the International Education Research Foundation, Inc. She worked as a teacher for eight years in Juarez.

The student hopes to get a job in education, she said, and will be helped by the Avanza program.

“I like to teach and help children,” she said. “I would like to work in a daycare or school.”

“A major part of Avanza is to build trusting relationships with our students and with our community,” Olacio said. “We are creating a culture of empathy and awareness at DACC by making sure our students are doing well personally, not only academically. We continue adding services to meet our students’ needs at the time. Collaborating with community service providers has played an important role.

“During fall 2020, due to all classes switching to online, a common hardship was access to technology,” Olacio said. “With the assistance of a grant from Union Pacific (Foundation), we purchased 31 iPads for south DACC students and coordinated the distributions following all safety guidelines. Some of the recipients of the iPads shared with us that they had been using their cell phones to complete their assignments prior to receiving an iPad. Others mentioned sharing laptops with their siblings or their children and how difficult it was for them to all attend Zoom meetings

Emergency relief funds now available for DACC students

BULLETIN REPORT

Emergency relief funds are now being made available to Doña Ana Community College students, the college announced.

The funds are Higher Education Emergency Relief Funds (HEERF III) that students can now apply for. Eligibility requirements include that students must: have been enrolled for one credit hour for spring or summer 2021; have direct deposit set up through their MyNMSU account; and verify they were affected by Covid after March 13, 2020.

Students can apply for these funds through <https://fa.nmsu.edu/heerf/>.

In addition, DACC is currently accepting applications for its fall semester, scheduled to begin in August.

DACC encourages applicants to apply early in order to better assist them with obtaining financial aid and/or scholarships. Applying early also allows students more time to attend orientation, meet with their advisers and register for classes.

Helpful information about degree programs, tuition costs, financial aid and more can be found on the DACC website. Applicants can apply online at dacc.nmsu.edu.

Retired teacher Cort picked to fill vacancy on LCPS board

BULLETIN REPORT

Pamela Cort, a retired Las Cruces Public Schools teacher was appointed July 6 to serve as the District 2 member on the Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education.

Cort was one of five candidates who qualified during the selection process, held July 6 at Las Cruces High School, LCPS said in a news release. The others participating in individual interviews conducted by board members were Charlene Bencomo, Carissa Brealey, Scott Ochs and Henry Young.

PAMELA CORT

Candidates were given an opportunity to give an opening statement, followed by questions from each board member and a question submitted by students, LCPS said. At the end of the interview, candidates had an opportunity to give a closing statement. Questions ranged from thoughts and opinions on equity in education to what ideas candidates had for improving engagement and communication among students, parents and teachers.

The final selection process, voted on by the board just prior to the first interview, was to conduct a ranked-choice vote of the candidates. Board members assigned scores to each candidate from one to five, with one being the best score. The ranking was tallied and the candidate with the lowest combined score could be nominated, which required a motion and second. Although Bencomo received first-place votes by two members, Cort received the overall lowest score, or first place in a ranked choice.

Cort's career as an educator spans a total of 31 years, 26 of which were spent with LCPS. She was the New Mexico teacher of the year in 2013.

Since her retirement in 2019, Cort has stayed involved with state teacher organizations to create professional development opportunities for educators, LCPS said. The next step, Cort said, was to serve her community as a member of the LCPS Board of Education.

During her interview, Cort spoke extensively on her experience as a high school French teacher, promoting cultural and linguistic diversity in the classroom.

She also spoke about the need to create an open-door policy to make parents feel comfortable and welcome on school campuses.

"The welcome centers at our high schools are a great resource, but they aren't widely advertised," said Cort, who taught at Las Cruces High School.

Cort will finish the four-year term of Terrie Dallman, who resigned from the board last month. The term ends Dec. 31.

Board seats in districts 1, 2 and 3 are up for election in November.

Cort was sworn in July 7.

Las Cruces Utilities Customers Have a Voice in Their Rates

By G.H. Scott

As a Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) customer, your opinion counts. In fact, if you have opinions about gas rates, the Utility Customer Advisory Group (UCAG) wants to hear from you. The UCAG is an ad hoc committee created by resolution in 2016. The five volunteer members are tasked with reviewing LCU rates for all four services (gas, water, wastewater, and solid waste). A panel of customers, the UCAG is uniquely qualified to gather customer input because they themselves are customers. Now the UCAG wants your input on the gas rate review and its recommendations. The committee will gather customer feedback and inform the LCU Board of Commissioners, which will submit their recommendation to the City Council.

In May, the UCAG conducted virtual meetings with customers regarding the LCU gas rate review. This summer, UCAG is holding two in person public meetings due to the relaxed COVID-19 restrictions. The deadline to provide feedback on the gas rate review options is July 31, 2021. During the meetings, UCAG will present information provided by Stantec Consulting, the firm responsible for evaluating current gas rates, revenue requirements, and the cost of providing services. To review all documents associated with the rate review process, visit <https://www.las-cruces.org/2065/Utility-Customer-Advisory-Group-UCAG>.

Public Meetings:

- Tuesday, July 20, 2021, 5:30 p.m., Las Cruces Utilities Board Room, 680 N. Motel Boulevard
- Wednesday, July 28, 2021, 5:30 p.m., City Hall

Council Chambers, 700 N. Main Street

According to Paul Royalty, UCAG Chair, "LCU customers have an opportunity to provide input to the Utility Board and the City Council concerning the proposed rate increases. The Utility Customer Advisory Group is here to help customers voice their opinions and concerns." The last time LCU reviewed natural gas rates was 10 years ago. The current gas rate review reflects cost increases in every aspect of running a public utility from employee wages and benefits to equipment maintenance and replacement.

The three rate options under consideration are:

1. A full cost implementation of new rates in one year;
2. A limited phased-in cost increase for the two most impacted customer classes (small and large commercial) over three years;

Ray Lucero, LCU Gas services technician is inspecting a gas meter for atmospheric corrosion and gas leaks. Yellow apparatus in his right hand is a Combustible Gas Indicator (CGI) used to identify Lower Explosive Limit (LEL) of natural gas-Courtesy LCU

3. A full phased-in cost increase for all customer classes over three years.

The facts about gas rate review:

- LCU must increase overall revenue by $2.4 million annually. The last gas rate increase was in 2011.
 - The average residential monthly gas bill today is $26.87, including the access charge. A full-cost increase would raise the average residential bill to $29.33.
 - The average small commercial monthly gas bill today is $75.15, including the access charge. A full-cost increase would raise the average small commercial bill to $107.24.
- "I urge the public to take advantage of the opportunity to voice their opinion in person, city utilities affect everyone," said Royalty.

“Currently, we are focusing on two major things: mental health awareness and services for the undocumented/DACA community,” she said. “We hosted an (April) event, Undocu-Student Support, where we had a panel of service providers to include an immigration attorney providing information to students, staff and families. Our goal with these events is to raise awareness to the added barriers our undocumented/DACA students face and to create a community of supporters. We had a total of 84 attendees, which shows the amount of interest in the topic. We also have put together a list of scholarships that are open to DACA and undocumented students.”

DACC held a June 30 virtual event in Spanish titled “Depression How to Prevent and Overcome It,” Olacio said.

Rosalva Blanco, a licensed master social worker from La Clinica de Familia, was the guest speaker.

“Avanza cares about the well-being of students,” Olacio said. “Mental health is a fundamental part of our health in general and is directly related to our well-being. We will continue hosting events like these for students.”

Avanza is funded by a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Michigan, and will continue after the grant period is over.

If you would benefit from Avanza services or if you know a DACC student who would benefit, contact Olacio at aolacio@dacc.nmsu.edu.

“Avanza staff is ready to assist any DACC students with the application process to the scholarships,” Olacio said.

Coming Full Circle: Recycling Can Be Reused for Local Business Opportunities

Submitted by South Central Solid Waste Authority

Recycling in Las Cruces has a transportation problem: How does what gets put in the blue bin get to a place where it can be reused or remade?

“The best bet would be if our recycling could get a second life in Las Cruces or Doña Ana County,” explained Patrick Peck, director of South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA). “If local businesses stepped up to create a new industry from material previously used, it could strengthen our circular economy.”

A circular economy is when recyclables that originate in our region can be reused or remade into products to be sold and purchased again, a regenerative approach instead of the traditional linear economy where the mindset is single-use. For every load of clean recycling that could be kept local, the cost of transportation is saved, particularly since Las Cruces is far away from processing plants.

Currently, local recycled materials are transferred into 18-wheel trucks and hauled 40 miles to Friedman Recycling in El Paso — the only recycling processor within 250 miles of

A circular economy of glass: local business owner Gabriel Lopez uses the free recycled glass in his pressure washing machine. If local businesses can use recycled cardboard, aluminum, or plastic, Las Cruces could keep the value of its recycling at home. Top to bottom: Lopez takes the glass from the Recycling Center and grinds it up to both medium and fine grit.

Las Cruces. The gas, the drivers, all parts of the open-loop that eats up the recycling value that could stay in the city.

However, there are efforts to make use of the recycled material. Local business owner Gabriel Lopez is an example of a member of the circular economy. Lopez takes the recycled glass that is given away free at SCSWA to grind up for his pressure washer. The glass becomes like sand and a way to clean things like graffiti and calcified tiles that are 100 percent green by using no chemicals.

“These are the business initiatives that will increase the value of our own recycled material,” Peck said. “If other entrepreneurs can solve a need with things like clean corrugated cardboard, aluminum or plastic, we can have our own circle that promotes not only a green lifestyle but green businesses.”

South Central Solid Waste Authority manages solid waste and recyclables for residents and businesses throughout Doña Ana County. Contact SCSWA at (575) 528-3800 or visit www.SCSWA.net.

Say Yes to the Dress
The approach of wedding season sends legions of altar-bound young women and their families to the nuptial mecca of Kleinfeld Bridal for help in realizing their vision of a perfect wedding. Series host Randy Fenoli can't be personally present for every salon consultation, but he's ushering in a new virtual era of the distinctive Kleinfeld experience. Among this year's clients are a blind bride-to-be who hopes to find her perfect silhouette and a throuple with two brides sharing a single budget.

Cold Justice
In the new episode "Deadly Premonition," veteran prosecutor Kelly Siegler and detective Steve Spingola travel to smalltown Rosenberg, Texas, to search for answers in the unsolved murder of a father who apparently doted on his family, yet was savagely beaten and fatally shot in his home. His 6-year-old daughter was asleep in the home at the time. Siegler and Spingola hope that some secret audio recordings found in the attic of the home may point them to the killer's identity.

Movie: Zorba the Greek
Three Academy Awards, including one for black-and-white cinematography, went to this stunning 1964 film adaptation of Nikos Kazantzakis' novel about an earthy Greek laborer (Anthony Quinn) who teaches a staid British heir (Alan Bates) to loosen up and enjoy life. Quinn lost the best actor Oscar to Rex Harrison ("My Fair Lady") but won the role of his life. The drama also stars Irene Papas and Lila Kedrova, who earned the best supporting actress Oscar.

8 p.m. on OWN
Family or Fiancé
Relationship coach Tracy McMillan returns to work with engaged couples who desperately seek the blessing of their resistant loved ones as this reality series opens its second round. In the season premiere, "Shae and Will: Drama With the In-Laws," tempers flare when an engaged man tries to force his parents into accepting his much younger fiancée, even though they strongly suspect she may be the reason that his last marriage ended in divorce. As a consequence, his mom makes it clear that she has no interest in a new daughter-in-law.

9 p.m. on HBO
Movie: The Empty Man
Originally filmed in 2017, this supernatural horror film directed and adapted from a graphic novel by David Prior, sat on the shelf for a couple of years before getting a limited 2020 theatrical release without being screened for critics, lowering expectations for the movie. Upon its subsequent home video release, however, this surreal chiller immediately began to earn points as a minor cult classic. James Badge Dale stars as a cop on the trail of a missing girl when he stumbles upon a cult trying a raise a malevolent entity.

tonight's picks

Zoëy Deschanel
6 p.m. on TLC Darcey & Stacey
The tumultuous first season of this reality series ended with Darcey getting engaged and her twin Stacey getting married. As the series returns for its sophomore season, Stacey wants more than anything else to make her younger husband, Florian, a father, but at her age (46) natural conception is a challenge — and the devoutly religious Florian is opposed to in vitro fertilization. Meanwhile, Darcey starts to have doubts about her fiancé, Georgi, after a deeply unpleasant encounter with his ex-wife.

7:01 p.m. on DSC Getaway Driver
Michelle Rodriguez from the "Fast and the Furious" movie franchise hosts this eight-episode competition series, joined by rally champion Wyatt Knoch. The series features 24 elite drivers ranging from drift champions to street racers to hotshot YouTube personalities who compete to prove they've got the skill behind the wheel and the mental toughness to outrun and out-drive the competition. The rivalry unfolds in a massive (nearly 60 acres) compound filled with obstacles. In the premiere, "Crash and Burn," three competitors vie to be the wheelman in a real-life high-speed chase.
8 p.m. on AMC The Beast Must Die
Tracking down the man that she is almost convinced was responsible for the death of her son, the increasingly obsessed Frances (Cush Jumbo) embarks on a complicated scheme to insinuate herself into his home as she plots her revenge in the new "Episode 2."

9 p.m. on KVIA The Celebrity Dating Game
Supermodel Tyson Beckford has spent a lot of time on fashion runways, so he asks the women what kind of outfit they would wear to make them feel most confident in this new episode. He's looking to find a date with an adventurous spirit and a lively sense of humor. In another segment, former "Baywatch" star Carmen Electra puts a lot of stock in a potential partner's "vibes," so she asks her prospective suitors to describe their vibe in a single sentence. Zoëy Deschanel and Michael Bolton host.
10 p.m. on HBO Catch and Kill: The Podcast Tapes
This six-part series derived from journalist Ronan Farrow's hit podcast continues with a new half-hour episode called "The Assistants," in which Rowena Chiu, a former staff member at Harvey Weinstein's company, speaks out candidly about her experiences with her predatory former ex-boss. Cheu says the day-to-day realities of her job compelled her and fellow assistant Zelda Perkins to make difficult decisions, and explains why she kept silent for decades.

4 ways to build community in your business

BY ALEX BELSEY

After a year of lockdowns, distancing, and separation, many are craving connection.

By helping to foster these connections, you could place your business at the heart of your local community. Being seen by others as local leaders can benefit your business, your peers, and your neighborhood!

Now is the time to connect. Whether you have been separated from friends and family over the past year, have struggled to get your business out there, or have been otherwise unable to do the things you want to do, now is a great time to get creative and reconnect with the community around you. The same is true in business.

Being part of a community is powerful. It is not only essential for our mental health and wellbeing, but it's also a vital element of a thriving business. A sense of community is important between businesses and customers, and also between employers and employees.

With the tips below, you can start to build a business that is not only a positive part of the wider community, but one that also fosters a positive community within the business itself.

1. Start From Within

Building a community is not only about looking outward at your wider surroundings. It is also about looking inward and reflecting on the community that you are building within your own business — however large or small.

It can be helpful to consider the values and mission of your business overall, and how you can reflect them within your business culture.

For example, your values might include originality, innovation, and self-expression. Think about the ways you could encourage these values among your workforce — such as by scheduling regular creative activities or field trips for your team members, perhaps.

Another great way to build additional community within your business can be to attend events or training courses together. You could perhaps begin by researching the certifications or qualifications that are most valued or relevant to your industry, and then get started.

You and your workforce will not only build great team values and stronger connections, but will be more qualified too.

2. Get Involved Locally

Even if you are a global or international business, or operate entirely online, you can still contribute to your local area. You are providing value and growth to the local population - even if indirectly - so why not make an effort to connect with your community and get involved?

This might include donating to local causes, getting engaged with fundraisers, offering internships or work experience for local students, giving encouraging talks or speeches in schools, and more.

There may also be some complimentary local businesses with whom you could collaborate. You could run joint offers with them, for example, or joint advertisements. And if you have similar or crossover skillsets, perhaps you could join forces on particular projects.

Whether you are building a community online or in person, reaching out to potential collaborators can reap real rewards.

3. Host Events

Community is of course about bringing people together, and what better way to do that than by hosting events? You could perhaps hold conferences, conventions, or networking events and set them up online, if needs be.

For example, during national lockdowns, many businesses or educational institutions around the world took their programmes and services entirely online.

Live-streamed conferences, Q&As, and tutorials are especially popular and can be hosted via websites or social media platforms. This can be a great way to connect with potential clients and customers who may be all over the world, as well as those who are more local but might have limited mobility.

Attending a wide variety of events both online and in-person — or even organizing them yourself — is an excellent way to build a strong and supportive com-

A Green Idea!

JEFFREY SILVA

For the most part of the years 2020 and 2021, many of us were able to work from home and experienced many changes in our daily lives. During this time, I started asking myself how I could make a positive contribution to our community and our planet.

On a morning walk on a trail on the city dam off Telshor Blvd, my 13-year-old son asked me if we could start a recycling program at home. As we walked, we noticed many recyclable items caught in the bushes along the trail and we made a commitment to go out a few times each week to pick up those recyclable items. As we continued doing this, additional people joined us, and it felt good knowing that there are other people who also want to make a difference in our community.

Now that our recycling program is in full swing, we are looking at other ways to help our planet and community. Some of the ideas that we are working on are quite simple and they are efficient ways to conserve electricity, water, and other natural resources. I ordered an additional recycling bin from the City of Las Cruces, and now we fill up both recycling bins with recyclables for the city to pick up every other week. Also, I drive less now which means that in addition to saving on fuel, my vehicles do not add as much carbon monoxide emissions and other harmful gases into our city air. We are using less water bottles or other drinks in plastic bottles and have switched to a water purifier container and reusable drinking glasses instead. I am now using less paper for printing documents and I am sending files electronically via email when working with customers. We are switching to LED lights bulbs which are more energy efficient and do not generate ultraviolet light or heat. These simple changes have made me realize that it is possible to reach our goal and that there are many ways to accomplish it.

When the outdoor temperature gets cooler, I will be looking for members of the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce and other community members to join us in a "Community Clean Up Challenge". The plan is to go out to pick up trash, bottles, and other recyclable items at different designated areas around the community. Another idea that we are working on for the near future is to have a ride your bike, take the bus, or carpool to work day.

Our challenge started with a simple idea at home and it continues to grow as we identify more ways to make a difference in our community and our planet. I encourage everyone to consider starting a program at home or place of employment and see what difference you can make. Working on a simple Green Idea today will make our planet a better and cleaner place to live for our future generations.

If anyone have more ideas or suggestions that would like to share or would like to join us, feel free to contact me at Jeffrey.silva@bbva.com.

munity for your business. Not only will you be giving genuine value and knowledge to others, but you will receive the same in return.

4. Outsource To Experts

Building a community starts within your business, branches out to your customers, and can also include those who you outsource to! Outsourcing important aspects of your business to experts is a great way to save time, make use of others' skills, and grow your business organically.

Outsourcing to an expert might mean entrusting your blog to a professional writer with knowledge of search engine optimization, for example, of maximizing your opportunities in tendering by hiring a bid writing professional, or by seeking guidance on technical subjects such as GDPR regulations, perhaps.

These are all examples of outsourcing crucial business facets to experts who might have years of valuable experience.

Through outsourcing in this way you can help the community by providing work and building a collective with knowledge and expertise, while giving your business the best chance of success!

Spaceport America hosts Sir Richard Branson's spaceflight

July 11, 2021, Sierra County, NM- Spaceport America, the world's first purpose-built commercial spaceport, hosted Virgin Galactic's first commercial passenger spaceflight from Southern New Mexico with Virgin founder Sir Richard Branson on board. This is the first of many commercial human spaceflight operations from the New Mexico spaceport as Virgin Galactic looks to begin regular passenger flights in 2022.

"This flight is the culmination of decades of work by many hundreds of people focused on the creation and operation of Spaceport America," Executive Director Scott McLaughlin said. "As the owners of the site, I hope the citizens of New Mexico see the benefits of the investments made and we all see the aerospace marketplace continue to grow in economic impact. Thank you to Spaceport America employees and partners for your dedication over years to get to this point."

New Mexico has been at the forefront of advancements in aerospace since Robert Goddard arrived in the state in the 1930s. Spaceport America's partner White Sands Missile Range (WSMR), is known as the birthplace of America's missile and space programs. WSMR has launched more suborbital flights than any other range in the U.S. WSMR controls 6,000 square miles of restricted airspace from the ground to infinity and has an agreement with Spaceport America to share access to that airspace.

Spaceport America has been used as a research and development launch complex since 2006. It is the only FAA-licensed launch facility with both horizontal and vertical launch areas. Spaceport America has hosted flights from student rocket launches at the annual Spaceport America Cup, to Boeing Starliner capsule tests, and now human spaceflight since May 2021.

Spaceport America was designed, built, and is owned and operated by the State of New Mexico. The New Mexico Spaceport Authority (NMSA) manages Spaceport America. NMSA coordinates all the airspace, manages all facilities across the 18,000 acres, and provides security, fire, and EMT support. All facilities at Spaceport America are paid for by New Mexico taxpayers.

"Spaceport America is currently in talks with several customers and tenants that encompass vertical and horizontal launches, engine building and testing, and UAS/UAV training and testing" said Business Development Lead Susan Raith. "We are in a good position to attract more aerospace businesses to New Mexico and grow our employment numbers in the coming years."

Virgin Galactic is the largest employer at Spaceport America with around 180 employees and holds a 20-year lease agreement for the use of the Gateway to Space and the horizontal launch area. Other tenants with long-term leases at Spaceport America include AeroVironment/HAPSMobile, UP Aerospace and SpinLaunch. Boeing, Swift Engineering, Stratodynamics, C6 Launch Systems and White Sands Research and Developers are among the many short-term customers at Spaceport America.

Virgin Galactic a Magnet for Tourism and Economic Growth

BY PHIL SAN FILIPPO

On July 11, years of planning, hard work and determination paid off for Virgin Galactic, and, potentially, for Las Cruces. On a beautiful Sunday morning, Sir Richard Branson and his amazing crew opened the doors to commercial space tourism. It was a flawless flight and the most awesome experience I ever witnessed.

For years, we watched

Virgin Galactic blossom from an idea to a viable entity. Many in our community felt, and some still feel, that we will never see our return on the investment made in Spaceport America and its main tenant, Virgin Galactic. Virgin has already invested millions of dollars in New Mexico. Its staff has gone from 10 or 11 to close to 200 now based in its offices in Las Cruces and Spaceport America. These employees own or rent homes, shop in our stores, patronize our restaurants, pay taxes, and have grown to call New Mexico home.

Virgin Galactic makes a strong effort to purchase goods and services from New Mexican companies, and they have supported educational and other programs that have helped our children. They are an integral part of the Las Cruces community.

Of course, many are already asking what comes next? Will we finally derive benefit of this amazing effort? Besides growing the size of the company tenfold in New Mexico and actively hiring staff from within our community; Virgin Galactic's presence in the Las Cruces area is a tremendous asset for bringing additional businesses.

During the weekend of Sir Richard's flight, every hotel in the area was completely full. Many restaurrants experienced a huge surge in business. Those in attendance included press and future astronauts from around the world who are planning their journey into space. Estimates from Visit Las Cruces claim that there was a $400,000 benefit during the weekend. Some critics complain that right now space tourism is only for the very rich. Community involvement:

Involvements with the LCHCC Amigos the two years prior to the pandemic were numerous. Money Smart Week, Junior Achievement, Alzheimer's Association, Habitat for Humanity, LCHCC Backpack Drive, NMSU Hispanic Heritage Game Day, and many more. Any charity or event that I am able to get involved with, I am willing to support them.

What do you think about living in Las Cruces?

Las Cruces is a unique mixture of culture and business, one simultaneously feeding into the other. The ability for locals and newcomers alike to thrive here is an abundant, unbiased opportunity. Additionally, the dynamic of Las Cruces is one that provides ease of living unlike many other areas, with recreation and big city experiences just a stone's throw away.

Why did you get involved with the chamber?

I initially joined the LCHCC, simply, because of the individuals involved. The character, purpose, and values that go into serving this community are those which I fully support. I am proud to serve on the Board of Directors for the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber.

What is your opinion of the local business climate?

The pandemic caused great strain and loss for many across the globe... Las Cruces was no exception. I am pleased with the local business climate as we move in the direction of recovery and re-growth. Opportunities are becoming abundant, doors are opening, and business will once again flourish. Inevitably, great things are ahead, and the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce directors are eager to play our part.

Why did you get involved with the chamber?

I am proud to serve on the Board of Directors for the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber. I joined the Chamber because I want to help the Hispanic Community in Las Cruces, I noticed that a lot of people don't speak English, and they don't use all the tools they have available to grow their business. I want to contribute with my experience and knowledge, and assist them to do so.

What is your opinion of the local business climate?

I'm happy because the business owners are working hard and the economy is getting better. Consumers are more positive to go out and shop.

took place in 1914. The flight traveled from St. Petersburg to Tampa, Florida. The flight lasted 23 minutes for an 18.6 mile flight. The cost of the flight at the time was $400 (which would be valued to over $10,000 in today's market.) No one can argue the economic impact and mass appeal of the airline industry today. The point is innovation and technological advances are expensive, but these innovations will yield big dividends for our children and our children's children.

Bringing wealthy people into our area is a tremendous opportunity. If they like what they see, some may choose to expand their businesses or invest in our area. This can result into more jobs and a better economy for Las Cruces. Last weekend both Richard Branson and Elon Musk were in Southern New Mexico. Hopefully both left with a positive impression. Soon all those who have already signed up for future flights will be heading to Las Cruces for their flights. It is critical that they experience a community that is welcoming and business friendly.

Virgin Galactic delivered on their promise. Yes, it took longer than expected, but they delivered. The challenge now is how can we ensure Las Cruces receives continued benefit. How we move forward is not Virgin Galactic's job. It is up to community leaders to maximize the impact of having such a recognizable partner in our own backyard.

Virgin Galactic can be a magnet for tourism and economic growth if we chose to capitalize on this major asset.

I am confident more tourists will come to the area to see the location where Virgin Galactic made history. Space-related businesses will also be looking a little closer to Southern New Mexico as a good place to do business. Students will look to NMSU as an opportunity to be close to the cutting edge of the commercial space industry. I hope we seize the moment.

Are we ready for these visitors? Do we have enough hotels up to the standards required by most of these guests? Hotel Encanto and Hilton Garden Inn were primary hosts of the Virgin invitees and Belia Alvarez and her team did a remarkable job getting the properties ready after a long hiatus due to Covid. Short-staffed and short notice didn't stop her group from working tirelessly to meet the expectations of their visitors. I am certain many other hotels had to scramble to be ready and adequate staffing remains a problem.

As Virgin continues to flourish, there will be a need for all types of workers and products required to fill the supply chain. These are all opportunities for the Las Cruces area. Albuquerque is far ahead of us. A core of business people are collaborating and looking at creative ways to attract these businesses. Las Cruces needs to be proactive. We need to have the best business minds come together and develop a competitive and superior plan lest we lose this opportunity to our neighbors to the north.

No doubt, some of this planning may already be happening. I hope so. It's not up to Virgin Galactic to ensure how we benefit. They did their job and will continue to deliver. How we capitalize on their success is not up to Virgin Galactic. The ball is clearly in our court and the countdown has begun. How we manage these opportunities will tell the story of our future success.

United Way supports TRIO Upward Bound

United Way of Southwest New Mexico's mission is to improve lives by mobilizing the caring power of communities in Southwest New Mexico to advance the common good and we achieve this by providing support to our three focus areas- Basic Needs, Education, and Financial Stability.

Our Financial Stability goal is to increase the number of opportunities for low-income individuals and families to become economically self-sufficient. So many families in Southwest New Mexico are struggling economically, so children cannot thrive when they face stressors and adverse experiences that negatively affect their brain development, long-term health, and socio-emotional well-being. Research shows that a child's well-being is strongly tied to his or her family's stability and resources. United Way of SWNM strongly believes in providing financial education to not only, individuals and families, but also children, teens, and young adults.

That's why it was a no-brainer when our organization was approached to assist with providing financial literacy classes to New Mexico State University's TRIO Upward Bound program during their Crimson Summer Institute.

One of the summer virtual programs provided by TRIO Upward Bound GISD/LCPS' 2021 Crimson Summer Institute is the Aggie Academy. The Aggie Academy provides a six-week academic curriculum including math, English, reading, science, career prep and college knowledge, a foreign language and educational and cultural workshops. Additionally, this summer the programming will include a study abroad theme along with a new component, Wellness Wednesdays, featuring health and financial wellness.

Our organization coordinated six financial sessions during the summer program. Presenters were requested from the local Money Smart Week coalition which includes bankers, government entities, businesses, and nonprofit organizations. The curriculum used was the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) – Money Smart for Young Adults. Session topics included - Working Hard for the Money, Designing Dreams, The Almighty Dollar, Can You Pay Your Bills, Protect Yourself, Convertible or Clunker, to name a few.

Other collaborations for Aggie Academy included: Strategic Doing training also known as "NMSU's Aggie Think!" as part of college readiness with Lauren Goldstein, organizational development specialist with the NMSU's chancellor's office; Wellness Wednesdays will include nutrition and etiquette with Andrea Arriagucci, program coordinator from NMSU's Marriott Hospitality Futures Center, and virtual cooking with NMSU's Chef Pete Mitchell;

mental wellness headed by Marie Zubieta and team of counselors with the Aggie Health and Wellness Center; Tai Chi for Mind, Body, and Soul with Shigang Liu, TRIO Upward Bound instructor; and education opportunities with Phame Camarena, dean of the NMSU's Honors College. Upward Bound is a federally funded TRIO program that helps low-income and first generation students attend and graduate from college. Each year, the TRIO Upward Bound Gadsden Independent School District/Las Cruces Public Schools program serves 90 students from five target high schools: Gadsden, Santa Teresa, Las Cruces, Mayfield and Organ Mountain.

FROM OUR U.S. SENATOR

Rescue Plan helping New Mexicans

BY U.S. SENATOR
BEN RAY LUJAN

Dear Friends,

Since being sworn into the United States Senate, I have been hard at work to deliver COVID-19 relief for New Mexico workers and small businesses. This past year has been a difficult one, but New Mexicans are strong and resilient, and we will recover and rebuild stronger than before.

I want to recognize the members of the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce for assisting

New Mexicans throughout this pandemic. Like many New Mexicans, you all stepped up to do your part. I'm grateful for your service and partnership.

Earlier this year, I was proud to work with my Senate colleagues to pass the American Rescue Plan to deliver much-needed relief to New Mexicans and the business community.

LUJAN

Signed into law by President Joe Biden, this new law is reaching every corner of our state.

From the direct payments to small business support, the American Rescue Plan is making a real difference in the lives of New Mexicans. Recently, I traveled across New Mexico meeting with local leaders – from Las Cruces to Los Alamos – to learn how the American Rescue Plan is helping our communities, and what priorities should be included in the upcoming American Jobs Plan.

With new partners in the White House, I am working to invest and modernize our infrastructure and create new, good-paying jobs and opportunities for New Mexicans here at home. Communities across America need investments in clean drinking water, wastewater infrastructure, road and bridge improvements, and getting residents to 100% internet connectivity.

I am working with local leaders to make sure Las Cruces and Doña Ana County can take full advantage of this federal funding. The American Jobs Plan will empower New Mexicans to Build Back Better and get the economy back on track. There is no greater investment than when we invest in our people – and that's what the American Jobs Plan will do.

I look forward to working with the Las Cruces

Hispanic Chamber of Commerce to identify and advance priorities that will help New Mexicans and the business community.

As always, thank you for your partnership and leadership. As we continue to make incredible progress in getting shots into arms, I hope that we can reconnect in person soon.

You can learn more about my first 100 days in office at www.lujan.senate.gov.

Sincerely,
Ben Ray Luján

FROM OUR U.S. SENATOR

Investing in New Mexico's Recovery

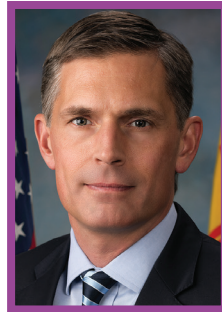

BY U.S. SENATOR
MARTIN HEINRICH

I am more confident than I have ever been that New Mexico is heading in the right direction. After weathering everything that the pandemic threw at us, New Mexicans have stepped up to do our part and get vaccinated. Although there is still plenty of work ahead of us, there's no doubt that we are finally on the rebound.

I am squarely focused on delivering the resources that New Mexicans need to rebuild a strong economy. The emergency funding that Democrats in Congress and President Biden passed into law earlier this year is helping New Mexico put an end to the pandemic and providing important economic relief to families, local small businesses, and our public schools. But if we want to set the foundation for sustainable, long-term success, Democrats and Republicans in Congress need to find a productive path forward on passing President Biden's American Jobs Plan.

This is our once-in-a-generation opportunity to make big and bold investments in our infrastructure, in our people, and in our planet. We can't afford to let it pass us by. We can put millions of Americans back to work rebuilding our infrastructure so that every family in our country can have access to clean drinking water, broadband internet connectivity, safe transportation, a high-quality education, and affordable housing.

Modernizing our infrastructure for the 21st century also means preparing and adapting to the new climate reality. We need to restore the health of our forests, soil, and watersheds. I recently introduced major agriculture resilience legislation to empower farmers and ranchers to make their land and soil more resilient. Their operations are already being impacted by extreme weather events and long-term drought and aridification. They need to play a leading role in implementing climate solutions.

We also need to build a nationwide network of charging stations for the growing number of electric vehicles on our roads, make it easier and more affordable for homeowners and businesses to electrify their appliances, and site new transmission lines like SunZia to make room for new, utility-scale wind and solar energy projects in New Mexico that will power our economy for years to come. Finally, we urgently need to prepare all of our infrastructure to handle more extreme weather events, extended drought conditions, and more destructive wildfire seasons.

As the new Chairman of the Military Construction and Veterans Affairs Appropriations Subcommittee, I am also overseeing all of the Department of Defense's construction funding and the entire budget for the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA). I am committed to building the modern facilities our military needs to keep all of us safe and keeping America's promise to our service members and their families to provide them the benefits that they earned when they return home as veterans.

I will be especially focused during my chairmanship on restoring the funding for military construction projects at Holloman and at White Sands Missile Range that the Trump administration wrongly raided to pay for the misguided border wall. I will also make sure the VA has all the funding it needs to improve telehealth services for rural veterans, support a strong Covid-19 vaccination campaign for veterans, and provide better health care and housing assistance for veterans experiencing homelessness.

I am committed to helping New Mexico families and small business owners find all the support they need to get back on their feet after all we have been through over this past year. My office is here to help you navigate the challenges you face or identify new opportunities. You can find my Las Cruces Office by calling (575) 535-6561 or by visiting my website at Heinrich.Senate.Gov. Please don't hesitate to contact us if we can be of any assistance to you and your family.

In the wake of the events of the "Tales of Arcadia" trilogy, this animated feature follows the heroes of that series as they team up to fight the Arcane Order for control over the magic that binds them all. The impressive voice cast is headed by Tatiana Maslany, Steven Yeun, Alfred Molina, Nick Offerman and Kelsey Grammer. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: The Last Letter From Your Lover"

A pair of interwoven stories set in the past and present follows Ellie Haworth (Felicity Jones, "The Theory of Everything"), an ambitious journalist who discovers a trove of secret love letters from 1965 and becomes determined to solve the mystery of the forbidden affair at their center. 7 p.m. on KTSM Olympic Dreams Featuring Jonas Brothers

The Jonas Brothers pursue their Olympic fantasy in this new one-hour special. Growing up in Wyckoff, N.J., Joe, Kevin and Nick Jonas were avid fans of the Olympic Games and, even as young boys, started fantasizing about competing at that lofty level with other world athletes. Their music careers forced those dreams off the front burner, but now, after more than a decade as pop superstars, the brothers get a chance to prove their mettle,

"Olympic Dreams Featuring Jonas Brothers"

as they are trained by some of Team USA's best athletes.

7:09 p.m. on DSC Hunting Atlantis

Author and historian Stel Pavlou and volcanologist Jess Phoenix investigate a new trail of evidence, unearthing sunken cities, ancient artifacts and geological catastrophes, in a quest to locate the site of the fabled lost city of Atlantis in this new docuseries. The premiere, "Mystery of the Golden King," sends Pavlou and Phoenix on a trek to the Black Sea, where they investigate a 7,000-year-old skeleton buried in gold treasure. They also uncover evidence of an ancient catastrophe that could be the basis for Noah's flood and the destruction of Atlantis.

Good Girls

This female-driven crime dramedy ends its run after four seasons with a series finale that airs as two back-to-back episodes. First, in

"We're Even," the Secret Service forces the girls into a heist, while Ruby (Retta) tries to mend things between Beth and Stan (Christina Hendricks, Reno Wilson). Then, in "Nevada," Beth and Rio (Manny Montana) form a surprise alliance without anticipating the shocking consequences of that partnership.

Dark Side of the 90s

The new episode "The Viper Room: Hollywood's Sanctuary" focuses on a Sunset Strip

nightspot in West Hollywood that was partially owned by actor Johnny Depp when it opened in 1993. While it was known as a hangout for elite members of the young Tinseltown crowd, the club soon accumulated a dark history. Most famously, on Halloween night of 1993, it was the site of golden-boy actor River Phoenix's fatal drug overdose. In early 1995, Australian singer-actor Jason Donovan narrowly escaped the same fate, surviving a drug-induced seizure.

"The Yogi Bear Show"

Hey, Boo Boo! Viewers of a certain age will certainly remember this animated series that premiered in 1961 and follows the adventures of the smooth-talking bruin who was always looking to raid the picnic baskets of park-goers at Jellystone Park while Ranger Smith tries to stop him. Mel Blanc, Don Messick and Bea Benaderet are among the voice cast in this Hanna Barbera Production.

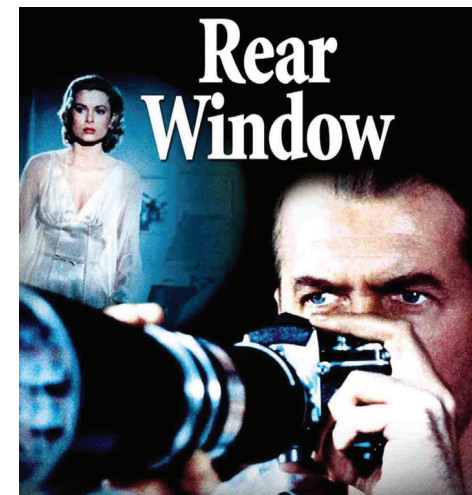

"How the States Got Their Shapes"

You don't have to be a geography geek to enjoy this series that premiered a decade ago on History. Brian Unger, a former correspondent for "The Daily Show," serves up fascinating facts about how our state lines were drawn, with each episode focusing on one theme. The first episode, "A River Runs Through It," is about the role of water in shaping the states.

"Cold Case Files"

Former CBS newsman Bill Kurtis is the host and executive producer for the first season of this unscripted A&E Network series that shows how timing, persistence and high-tech police work can combine to apprehend perpetrators who have managed to evade detection and capture for decades.

"Movie: Rear Window"

One of director Alfred Hitchcock's most memorable films, this 1954 classic manipulates the feelings of isolation and helplessness into ideal suspense. James Stewart stars as a photographer restricted to a wheelchair from a broken leg, who keeps an eye on his neighbors from his apartment. He comes to believe that one of them (Raymond Burr) is a murderer. Grace Kelly and Thelma Ritter also appear.

In Focus

"Money Court" (CNBC — series premiere, Aug. 11)
Entrepreneur Kevin O'Leary presides over a diverse docket of financial disputes ranging from estranged business partners at odds over a deal gone sour to siblings falling out over a family business venture in this new financial series. Working with veteran trial attorney Katie Phang and former judge Ada Pozo, O'Leary can be relied upon to consider all sides of any case and examine all relevant evidence before rendering financial judgment in the matter at hand.

"Chesapeake Shores" (Hallmark Channel — season premiere, Aug. 15)
After an extended hiatus, the hit romantic drama returns for Season 5 with a new showrunner at the reins: TV veteran Phoebe Sutton, an Emmy winner for his work on "Cheers." Robert Buckley ("iZombie") joins the cast as Evan McKenzie, a successful young entrepreneur who brings a new development project into the community. That may put him at odds with Abby O'Brien (Meghan Ory), now a business partner of her father, Mick (Treat Williams). Original cast member Jesse Metcalfe (Trace) is leaving the show early this season.

McMaster and Evelyn McMaster Trust, to continue to be exercised from the aforementioned wells, in combination with surface water from Elephant Butte Irrigation District. The transfer of the 35.676 acre-feet per annum surface and groundwater combined diversion is contingent upon proof from the Elephant Butte Irrigation District of the transfer of the surface water right appurtenant to the move-from 7.928 acres, owned by various landowners, to instead be moved to 7.928 acres owned by the Elliott G. and Evelyn McMaster Trust. The move-from and move-to places of use and wells can be found within the La Mancha Estates Subdivision, east of South Fairacres Road and South of Interstate 10, west of Las Cruces, NM.

Strike up the band: Youth group ready to relaunch

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

The Las Cruces Youth Orchestra (LCYO) is coming back stronger than ever after a pandemic-enforced break, LCYO director and founder Simon Gollo said.

"We are ready to come back," he said. "This is really exciting."

The orchestra formed in September 2019 and continued with lessons, rehearsals and a concert performance until Covid-19 forced it to shut down in early 2020.

With more than 40 middle- and high-school students participating, "We had a very successful first semester," said Gollo, who is a violin professor in the New Mexico State University Department of Music.

Gollo also is conductor of the NMSU Philharmonic Orchestra, a member of La Catrina String Quartet and a guest concertmaster of the Chamber Orchestra of San Antonio. He is a recording artist for the international recording label IBS Classical.

Gollo spent that downtime improving his conducting skills and working with others at NMSU and in the community to improve the youth orchestra, he said.

Gollo said LCYO rehearsals and lessons will resume Sept. 4, after Las Cruces Public Schools has begun its fall 2021 semester and parents and students are confident of participants' health and safety.

"The experience is to be together," said Gollo, a native of Venezuela who came to Las Cruces and NMSU five years ago. The youth orchestra, he said, is "a new concept in musical education."

'Playful Boundaries' features seven artists, nonprofit at arts council

BULLETIN REPORT

"Playful Boundaries" will remain on view at the Doña Ana Arts Council through July.

The exhibit is described as "an explosion of mixed media" created by seven artists and Beloved Community, a nonprofit organization that builds community by engaging the gifts of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

Viewers will see sculpture, fiber art, cloth mache, encaustic paintings and small works fashioned from kitchen items and household hardware.

"Our intent is to provide a fun summer show that families and the community will be drawn to," said

Karen Conley, program and gallery manager at the Arts Council.

Karen Zibert and Carrie Greer, both encaustic artists, are showing work in the exhibition. Encaustic art is a beeswax art form over a thousand years old.

Greta Burger, Jan French and Lisa Riley create art that is considered assemblage, often made from found objects or using mechanical parts in a new way.

Heather Murphy and Jan Thune both work with fiber and cloth.

Beloved Community is sharing its final project titled "Whimsical Way," based on the children's book "The Big Orange Splot" by Daniel Manis Pinkwater.

The Doña Ana Arts & Cultural Center and DAAC administrative office are located at 250 W. Amador, and are open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and on the second Saturday of every month from noon to 5 p.m.. For more information, please go to www.daarts.org or call the DAAC office at 575-523-6403.

'History of America' is a fabulous time at Rio Grande Theatre

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

REVIEW

Blank Conversations Theatre Company is celebrating the return of live theater to Las Cruces with a second outstanding production at Rio Grande Theatre (RGT).

Following last weekend's opening of its brilliant "The Mad Ones," Blank Conversations premiered "The Complete History of America (Abridged)," by Adam Long, Reed Martin and Austin Tichenor, to a large and appreciative audience Wednesday night, July 7. The show will continue for two more Wednesday night performances — live and in person — through July 28 at RGT.

The props and special effects — including confetti, squirt guns, an Abraham Lincoln balloon-head and a beachball — are hilarious, and the costumes — Lucille Ball and Andrews Sisters (sort of) wigs, a coonskin cap, a giant Uncle Sam hat, tutus and sunglasses, to name a few — are excellent.

But, like their "The Mad Ones" counterparts, "History of America" co-directors Gus David Sanchez and Eva Cullen recognized that what really makes this show rock is its extraordinary cast.

Stars Brianna Horvath, Alyssa Gose and Collin Duffey are each so talented and so appealing. Individually, they are charming and fearless, each with amazing comedy timing that belies their youth.

Collectively, they are a ball of fire.

They sing (the brief bits of harmony were outstanding), they dance, they do great improv during an unrehearsed Q and A with the audience, they frolic and, collectively, they create a truly fun evening poking fun at everyone from Sacagawea to Spiro Agnew.

Each actor has many truly memorable moments in this show. I loved what Brianna did in an all-too-brief appearance as FDR; Collin was a great George W. Bush and a freakishly on-the-nose Joe Biden, and Alyssa was so cool in a trench coat and slouch hat as the film noir private eye Spade Diamond. And that's only a tiny taste of the dozens of historical figures that each one portrayed on their journey from 1492 to 2021.

The 90-minute, two-act play is a little racy in places and completely irreverent.

One of my favorite bits was the unique blending of two presidential assassinations, featuring a giant bullet that kept finding its way into scenes throughout the evening.

Go see this show. You may or may not learn anything about American history; you most certainly will have a great time and laugh a lot.

Kudos also go to stage manager Steven Cousler

(he starred in Toad Hall's excellent 2018 one-man show "Van Gogh" in 2018), assistant stage manager Kaylin Berglund, lighting designer Frankie Gomez, sound operator Carissa Galban, crew member Brianna Miranda and technical director and producer Topher Lininger.

Gold stars all around for these wonderful actors and this outstanding crew.

Performances of "The Complete History of America (Abridged)" continue at 7 p.m. Wednesdays, July 21 and 28, at Rio Grande Theatre, 211 N. Main St. downtown. Tickets are $10.

Tickets and information can be found at www.riograndetheatre.com and www.blankconversations.org.

Meet Las Cruces writers at in-person book signing

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Five local authors will have a joint, in-person book-signing event from 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 21, at Courtyard by Marriott Las Cruces, 456 E. University Ave.

The authors are George Pintar, Mary Armstrong, Rachel Glickler, David Osterhout and Gerald D. Otis.

All five are members of the Las Cruces Writers Group, with Pintar serving as moderator.

Pintar is the author of 10 Chile Charlie books. He's also working on a book with his son, Alan King, about tombstones of famous people. Pintar is also working on a mystery novel set in Gallup, New Mexico.

Pintar, 89, is a native of Springfield, Illinois. He has lived in Las Cruces for 15 years. His house is on Chile Court, which is also the home of Chile Charlie.

"I love Las Cruces," Pintar said. "I've decided to make this my home forever. I call it paradise."

Pintar, 89, said he has "a five-year plan" to get him to 95 and another one to get him to 100.

"Then I'll be ready," he said, "if God is ready for me."

Pintar said his fictional Chile Charlie was previously known as Prairie Grass Pete, but changed his name after coming west from Illinois on a tractor and getting into trouble with the law for the illegal sale of Illinois chile. In Pintar's 10-book series, Charlie visits communities throughout southwest New Mexico and tells their tales.

Visit georgepintarbooks.com.

Armstrong has published "The Mesilla - The Two Valleys Saga: Book One," which is available at www.amazon.com and at COAS bookstores.

The book and others to follow explore the 10 years leading up to the disappearance and murder of Col. Albert J. Fountain and his 8-year-old son, Henry. The story is told by Jesus, a fictional nephew of Fountain.

Contact Armstrong at mary@maryarmstrongauthor.com.

"The Gleaning," published in September 2020, is the sequel to Glickler's "The Cull."

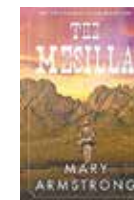

"It's been less than a month since the most catastrophic pandemic in recorded history decimated the world's population," Amazon.com said about "The Gleaning." "Survivors are beginning to pick up the pieces of their lives while navigating their horrific new world. The infected are still roaming the streets, ripping apart those unlucky enough to cross their paths, but something has changed. They are not dying as quickly as they had when the virus was first released. Tess and Henry have picked up a passenger with a dangerous secret while, less than a mile away, Bunmi resolves to do all she can to create a vaccine."

behind a music stand," he said. "We have something to build together in Las Cruces."

And, if even one young person who participates in the orchestra has his or her mind changed about society, education and music, "I will feel I've done something very good in my life," Gollo said.

Gollo is hopeful the community will support the orchestra by attending upcoming concerts and also by donating musical instruments for its students and providing financial support for scholarships and additional programming to benefit LCYO students.

"I want to live in a city where we have great musical events and I want to be a part of that development," Gollo said. "If we want to be a great city, we need to have great ideas and support those ideas."

Gollo said a youth choir is also part of his vision for the future, along with a guitar orchestra.

"I am asking people in our community to support us," Gollo said. "It is a good thing for our kids."

Gollo, 41, has performed and conducted in 27 countries around the world and was at one time the youngest orchestra director in Latin America. He left Venezuela for the first time at age 11 and studied in Europe for 15 years.

"I have a European brain, a Hispanic heart and an American life," Gollo said.

Osterhout was born in Ranger, Texas. He served in the U.S.

Army as an intelligence officer based in Alaska and later in the demilitarized zone in South Korea.

Osterhout wrote the manuscript for his book "Oink! Only in Korea!" during his eight-month stay in Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas, following an injury while on patrol in the DMZ.

After his discharge from the military, Osterhout worked as an accountant in several Texas hospitals. He was promoted to assistant superintendent at the El Paso Psychiatric Center in 2003. Osterhout also became a colonel in the Texas State Guard.

The Las Cruces Writers Group is open to anyone who wants to join; you don't have to be a published author. The group meets monthly in person and by Zoom "to just talk books," Pintar said.

"We help each other to be better writers, to just support each other," he said.

Young at Heart senior chorus needs pianist

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces' Young at Heart senior chorus wants you — if you can play the piano!

Young at Heart plans to return to rehearsing and performing later this year, said chorus chair Ray Scroggins. But they need a second pianist to accompany their singers.

"If you can play, we'd love to have you join us," Scroggins said in a news release.

Young at Heart is a volunteer chorus that rehearses two Monday afternoons a month and performs four Thursday afternoons a month at local senior homes.

"Our music is easy and fun, with familiar songs that have 'real melodies,' the kind we enjoy singing and our audiences love," Scroggins said. "We don't do complex music with multiple voice parts, and we change our program and theme every month.

"Our hope is to find someone who can work together with our current pianist to share the work and keep our programs going without anyone getting overloaded," he said.

Museum's Science Café explores how liquids boil on surfaces

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces Museum of Nature & Science (MONAS) and Sigma Xi Scientific Research Honor Society present "Science Café – Changing the Way Liquids Boil on Surfaces" at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 20, via Zoom.

The guest speaker will be Krishna Kota, Ph.D., joining from New Mexico State University.

For a link to the program, contact Stephanie Hawkins at shawkins@las-cruces.org.

The NMSU Department of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering (MAE) is pursuing a new type of surface called the Binary Surface, or BiS, that changes the way liquids boil. When liquids boil over a surface, substantial amounts of heat can be transferred from the surface to the liquid without causing the surface to heat up more.

area and has been in continuous operation since 1972, with the name of the group, the director, piano accompanist and venues changing through the years, Scroggins said.

Planting flowers can benefit us all way more than we ever think

I love flowers and have always appreciated people who took the time to plant and cultivate them.

I have lived in many different houses and communities in my lifetime, and the people who lived there before me left much evidence of their lives by the flowers and trees that they planted.

Some yards have been relatively barren of flowers while others have abounded with tulips, peonies, roses, fruit trees and flowering shrubs.

I believe that flowers are one of the signs of God's extravagant love.

We can exist without roses, lilies and daffodils. Our bodies will not die because the flowers are missing or the birds do not sing.

But if we want truly to live life to the full, we need to take in the beauty of our world which we may find in unexpected places as well as in ordinary things, when we have eyes to see and ears to hear.

When our children were small, I never seemed to

RUTH MOORER

Adventures of a Senior Citizen have time to plant flowers, with the exception of a few zinnias which are so hardy that tossing a few seeds in even unpromising ground could still produce some bright spots in a flower bed.

I did manage to find time for a small vegetable garden, as eating seemed to be more of a necessity than flowers.

Now that our children are gone from home, I still find that the time for growing flowers is never quite enough. However, I have discovered that something deep within me needs to plant flowers! I am missing out on something important if I do not. Why should I postpone the enjoyment of sweet peas, lilacs, roses and honey-suckle?

I believe that we all need the experience of living with beauty and things beyond ourselves. We need to look at the stars, to sense the vastness of the universe and the greatness of our Creator, to appreciate all living things.

My spirit needs to take time for those things which lift and bless and get my focus off of myself. I mustn't be always doing those things which are solely for keeping the body going. Re-creation will come also to my body as I allow my soul to be ministered to. Working with and enjoying flowers is just one way of being re-created.

I must plant flowers also because there are others in the world who need to look at flowers, to smell the roses and have their spirits fed.

Perhaps they do not have the time, or energy, or money for planting flowers. It is a legacy which I can leave for others, most of whom will always remain unknown to me — a legacy which will provide renewal for tired and troubled spirits.

Johnny Appleseed made his mark by planting apple trees across the country. He inspired others to do the same so that this land of ours is dotted with trees started a long time ago by this generous, farsighted man.

Since trees take much longer to grow to maturity, many times we do not live in a place long enough to enjoy the trees or their fruit ourselves, but we are planting for others to enjoy.

This is true of seeds of kindness sown in the hearts of others. The most valuable planting that all of us do is in terms of loving human relationships.

Yet how much time do we take to plant those seeds which will some day bear fruit in the lives of others?

As you can see, there are more than a few ways to "plant flowers." If we are to live life to the full, we should be "planting flowers" everywhere we are. In the process, we will move nearer to Paradise — the heavenly garden which God desires for each of us.

Ruth Justice Moorer, a resident of Las Cruces since 1996, is a former public-school science teacher and United Methodist pastor.

I-25/University project likely to be finished in August

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Construction on the Interstate 25/University Avenue Project is expected to be completed in late summer, officials from the New Mexico Department of Transportation said in a project summary.

The project started in January 2020 and will cost about $33.3 million in state and federal funds. It was designed by Molzen Corbin Associates. La Calerita Construction is the general contractor. Both are Las Cruces companies.

NMDOT said project benefits include: a renovated University Avenue bridge and a new Pan American bridge, both spanning Interstate 25 to accommodate growth; a Triviz Drive underpass under University Avenue connecting North Triviz to South Triviz; a continuation of the multi-use Triviz Trail to the New Mexico State University trail system; a new exit Avenue from Triviz to Las Alturas to accommodate pedestrians and bicycles.

NMDOT said the project also “promotes sustainability.”

NMDOT is recycling demolition materials for use in backfill and construction of MSE (mechanically stabilized earth) retaining walls; using high-efficiency LED lighting and structures that reduce light scatter; extending local trail systems and making both the Roadrunner Transit stop at University across from the Pan Am Center and the Aggie Transit Stop at the Pan Am Center “more inter-

Continuing through July, Interstate 25 is reduced to one lane in both directions near University Avenue for construction of concrete wall barriers and bridge piers in the median and additional construction activities. The I-25 northbound loop ramp is closed for reconstruction. Both eastbound and westbound traffic on University Avenue can access northbound I-25 from the on-ramp at the traffic signal.

The project also features custom artwork by local artist Collette Marie “that uses an Earth and

Former Sitel director returns to Cruces with WNM Communications

BULLETIN REPORT

WNM Communications has named John P. Muñoz as sales and engagement director for New Mexico.

It is a return home to Las Cruces for Muñoz, who was director of Sitel call centers in Las Cruces and Albuquerque before becoming recreation director for the City of Santa Fe in 2018.

“Muñoz led and organized the start-ups of three different facilities and was in charge of more than 2,200 employees in three different states, providing technical, sales and customer support,” WNM said in a news release. In Santa Fe, “he implemented innovative enterprises such as the Park Ranger, Recreation on Wheels and Community Tutor programs.”

Muñoz served as president of the Hispanic

Chamber of Commerce in Las Cruces and board chair and founder of New America School. He has volunteered with Tough Enough to Wear Pink – Cowboys for Cancer Research, March of Dimes, Jardin de los Niños and Big Brother/Big Sisters.

“We are excited to have John on board,” said

WNM Communications General Manager Daniel Maszler. “He brings a great deal of industry knowledge and has a great reputation around the Southwest as a strong and savvy business leader. Beyond that, he was very heavily involved in community work.”

WNM Communications

was founded in New Mexico as Western New Mexico Telephone Company in 1974. It acquired Mogollon Mountain Telephone Company and has expanded its communication and technology services to more than 5,000 customer locations in more than a dozen New Mexico communities, including Las Cruces.

Recovery from pandemic depends on jobs, jobs and more jobs

New Mexico's economic recovery from the pandemic is wholly dependent on how well we can build an "ecosystem of opportunity" between New Mexicans looking for work and our businesses and employers who desperately need them.

The Workforce Connections system plays a pivotal role in the ecosystem, receiving upwards of $20 million in federal funds each year to help job seekers access education, training and employment, and help employers get the skilled-and-ready workforce they need now and for the future.

Long before Covid hit, our state had lagged the country in outcomes for these investments, ranking in the bottom third of states and last in our region for workforce, according to a publication for site selectors. In 2019, the currently configured system served only one in 10 New Mexico employers and 4,500 job seekers. Going into this year, the best-case scenario is 5,600 job seekers for the 2021-2022 program year, if the boards met all of their metrics, which historically they don't. To put this in perspective, there are more than 68,500 New Mexicans currently receiving unemployment benefits.

As currently configured, three of the state's four workforce boards were consistently failing to achieve many, if not most, of their goals. In fact, the Southwestern Area Workforce Development

TRACEY BRYAN

The Bridge of Southern New Mexico

Board (which covers Doña Ana County) is the lowest performing region in the state, despite receiving the second largest amount of money. Going into this new program year, its best-case participant scenario is to serve 7 percent of the current 9,700 people unemployed in the region.

To create the conditions for optimizing the workforce system and achieve two to three times the outcomes for these investments (like other states do), the New Mexico State Workforce Board approved and submitted a formal recommendation to Gov. Michelle Lujan-Grisham to move from the existing four-region system, established two decades ago, to a two-region system devoted to meeting the unique needs of our diverse state.

There's two ways to approach this. The top recommendation is to focus specifically on the unique needs of the Rio Grande Corridor (Santa Fe to Las Cruces) with one region and the more rural/frontier parts of the state with a second.

These larger metropolitan areas and their surrounding counties have commonality in industry sectors and delivery and access to services, setting the stage for increasing alignment of these dollars toward economic development targets – rendering the best return on investment for the job seeker, the business and the taxpayer. The second region would be solely focused on workforce investments aligned to building the regional economies of rural communities – including expanding entrepreneurship to build back businesses and create new jobs that may have been lost in the pandemic.

Or ... a second scenario that's been explored cuts the state in half and structures those two regions to serve the needs of communities with intentional investments based on characteristics like key industry sectors, commuting patterns, location of higher education institutions, etc. With the needs of the urban and rural communities being so different, the leadership of these regions would need to become far more innovative in developing and deploying new and more effective approaches to meeting the needs of their diverse communities.

Over the next three to four months, the Department of Workforce Solutions and the State Workforce Board will be hosting eight community meetings across the state to gather input from key stakeholders in building a robust workforce system: businesses; chambers of commerce; economic developers; those who've been or are now job seekers; elected officials; and current workforce board members. A meeting is being planned for Las Cruces in September.

For the local region, the workforce system working hand-in-hand with economic development is a game-changer.

Centennial throwers come up big at state track meet

By DAVE BURGE
Las Cruces Bulletin

For the Centennial High School girls track and field team, the wait was worth it.

After seeing their 2020 season canceled because of the Covid-19 pandemic, the Hawks had a season to remember this spring and summer.

Centennial High had never had an individual state champion in track and field before in its history, but this year ended up with two girls taking home three gold medals from the state 5A meet on June 26 in Albuquerque.

Ku'upualiiapihameke-aloha "Lia" Pili took first in the girls discus with a throw of 134 feet, 1 inch and in the shot at 44 feet-even.

Teammate Lauren Ocampo took first in the girls javelin 121-even and was fifth in the discus (110-3).

Pili, a senior, was also named the Gatorade girls track and field athlete of the year in New Mexico.

Centennial High School throwers had a huge day at the state 5A track and field championships. Lia Pili, left, and Lauren Ocampo, combined to take home three individual gold medals.

It was Pili's first and only year at Centennial. Her father, Ifo Pili, is a former college and professional football player who is new city manager for Las Cruces.

She had spent her three previous years going to high school in Utah, where she grew up.

"I was there my whole life so it was like culture shock coming here," Pili said. "It's been good, though. I grew up knowing one thing and I came here and it was a whole different thing. It's been good to get out of my comfort zone."

When she arrived at Centennial last fall, she started working out with her new teammate, Ocampo. Two younger sisters are also throwers.

Lelei Pili, a junior, was sixth in the girls discus at state (101-10) and seventh in the shot put (32-11 ½). Ave Pili, a sophomore, was third in the shot (33-11) and sixth in the javelin (105-2).

A fifth Centennial girl, Ayanna Leal, a senior, made finals at state, taking seventh in the discus (100-3).

It all made for a group of real and adopted sisters who worked out together and pushed each other, Lia Pili and Ocampo said.

"We were each other's energy," Lia Pili said. "We really drew from each other."

Ocampo said she had a hard time during the early stages of the pandemic staying motivated, with no end in sight and no meets on the horizon.

But she said when Pili and her sisters arrived this fall, it turned the whole dynamic around.

"I kind of lost my motivation, because I didn't see an end to this," said Ocampo, the daughter of Aaron Ocampo, the Centennial throwing coach and head football coach.

"Once the Pilis moved here, we would hold each other accountable and go out and throw and have our own little competitions."

Pili said it was almost like living a real-life version of the movie

"Groundhog Day," where you keep experiencing the same day over and over again.

"It is hard to see how that is going to help you immediately because you weren't competing," she said.

"You just need to put your head down and trust in the process."

Ocampo said she is thrilled to have won a state championship and is looking forward to the next two track seasons.

"Obviously, it would be cool to be a three-time state champion," she said. "But I'm just focusing on the next meet and the next PR (personal record)."

Pili said she is weighing scholarship offers from Brigham Young University and Weber State, in her home state of Utah, and from New Mexico State University.

In boys 5A, Centennial's Jayden Gunn was second in the discus (145-1), and Paul Whitelock was fifth in the pole vault (11-6).

Oñate earns 11 state track medals

BULLETIN REPORT

Oñate High School's Alex Contreras had a huge day at the state 5A track and field championships June 26 in Albuquerque.

Contreras took second in the boys triple jump with a mark of 44 feet and a quarter inch. He also took fifth in the high jump at 6-2 and was part of two relay teams that medaled.

Contreras was a member of the fourth-place boys 800-meter relay that clocked in at 1 minute, 31.2 seconds, and was on the sixth-place 400 relay (44.12).

In all, Oñate, now Organ Mountain High School, earned 11 total medals.

Sydney Hobbs took third in the girls triple jump with a 35-5. Hobbs had set the school record in the event the week before at the district meet with a 37-4.

Jonathan Torres was third in the boys pole vault (13-6). Emiliano Carranza

A balanced approach a key to success on the golf course

Balance is a critical element if you are to play your best golf. Of course, a balanced golf swing includes a balanced stance, weight shift, tempo and finishing position. However, let's talk about other types of balance: mental, emotional, behavior and attitude.

I view the challenge of balance in athletic performance as a continuum, with extremes on either end. For some folks, the balancing act is between indifference and perfectionism. Over my years of doing golf schools, I have seen lots and lots of average, recreational golfers who show an "I don't care" attitude, playing "hit-and-giggle" golf, as opposed to golfers who demand that every shot be perfect, or at least much better than it turned out. I have seen perfectionist attitudes in many young golfers who are just learning the game. The vast majority are simply not good enough yet to get that mad and down on themselves and to get so upset when they mess up.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD

In between apathy and trying to make everything perfect lies a positive approach of striving for excellence and accepting the results at any given moment. Still, I must admit that I do favor a mindset that sets high standards of performance, as opposed to an attitude of settling for just average or "whatever."

Golf is not a game of "perfect." As Mr. Hogan said, golf is mostly a game of misses; we just want our misses to be such that we can work with them.

One of the really important balancing acts we must be aware of concerns our level of arousal; call it stimulation or excitement, even. On the one end, we have the lethargic golfer, who doesn't seem too motivated by much at all, or at least not induced to perform at his or her very best. No effort, no intensity, no forethought, no real exertion. On the other hand, there is the somewhat manic golfer who is just stoked. It's like he has just consumed three bold grande coffees or three Monster drinks. If you're a defensive tackle whose job it is to sack the quarterback, it's hard to be over-aroused. But if you're over-aroused as a golfer, with a high adrenaline flow, you could be in trouble.

Fine motor skills, like those used in putting (and playing the piano), don't respond well when we're overly aroused. We need to be more calm. We should be motivated, enthusiastic, optimistic – but not over-zealous, or over-nervous and not over-eager.

That balance is what I call "passionate detachment." It's where you badly want the desired result, but you are not so attached to the outcome that it gets in the way of your present play.

Now, let's talk about the continuum of insecure on the one end and cocky on the other. If you want to see insecure, take a look at the golfer who seems to be constantly in fear. Playing with a continual subconscious state of fear, even in its hidden, subtle form, can be performance-sapping.

Whether it's the fear of failing, fear of losing, fear of looking bad or just fear in general, it's going to sink us eventually. Being afraid of poor results and awful play is a recipe for failure. My experience with cocky golfers is that they seem to be narcissists. They're usually self-centered, ego-driven, boorish know-it-all characters, who are not welcoming to suggestions or advice, and are not much fun to play with.

However, there is a middle ground typified by the confident, self-assured player who knows himself and who knows that things will be OK regardless of the outcome of this particular match. Confidence, in reality, is the quiet conviction in how you have prepared and that you are doing things properly. It's believing in yourself and your method. That amazing attitude will get us through almost anything. It is starkly evident when we think how the brave men who struggled up the beaches of Normandy on D-Day, and fought on Iwo Jima, won the War for us. My friends know that I mark my golf ball on the green with pieces called "challenge" coins honoring and remembering World War II heroes. I do that partly to keep the game of golf properly in perspective. Golf is simply a game. Life is not a game.
