The giant American flag over Las Cruces, at the corner of Main Street and East Boutz, reminds passers-by of the lives lost on Sept. 11, 2001, now known as Patriot Day, during the 20-year war that followed and those who died at the close of that war. DOÑA ANA COUNTY IS WRAPPING UP SUCCESSFUL INTERNSHIP PROGRAM FOR SUMMER 2021

COMMISSION CHAMBERS

Doña Ana County Seal

Disclaimer: Photos were taken prior to the County's return to mask-wearing on August 4.

For the summer months, the community has been buzzing with high school students working in paid, real-life job experience internships, thanks to a grant funded by the New Mexico Public Education Department's College and Career Readiness Bureau, for a Summer Enrichment Internship Program. As a part of the federal government's pandemic relief efforts, the $1,307,061 grant provided 520 high school students and recent graduates the opportunity to join the workforce for six weeks. The announcement of the internship program was well-received in the community, with Doña Ana County posting the largest number of student placements among counties in the state with 539. The internship provided gainful employment with pay up to $1260.00 for the summer, at $10.50 per hour for 120 hours of work.

Las Cruces Public Schools (LCPS), Gadsden Independent School District (GISD), Hatch Valley Public School District, and area charter schools partnered in the endeavor to recruit students, and to ensure that registration went smoothly for the students who qualified for the internship. The internship was made up of a cross-section of the County with 364 students from LCPS, 127 from GISD, 11 from Hatch, 33 from charter schools and four students who are homeschooled.

The student turnout was exceptional. They were supported by 31 coordinators, who were mainly teachers and other school personnel from around the County, who served as a liaison between the employer, the intern, and the County and mentored the students. These caring professionals were a big part of the success of the first-year program because they monitored and managed all internship placements, kept track of hours, feedback, site-visits, and collected employer evaluation reports which provided valuable feedback on ways to improve this experience for the students and the employers.

"Offering young people an internship gave them valuable job experience, insights into different career options, and extra income to help fund the next step in their plans for the future," said County Manager Fernando Macias. "I am thankful for the response we received from the community in the form of the student interest, the coordinators who were willing to supervise, and the businesses that welcomed the students as interns," shared Board of County Commissioners Chair Manuel Sanchez.

High school is that place where people stop being children and form into adults, thinkers, movers and shakers. How do those growing children know the events of Sept. 11, 2001? What have they learned? What sticks in their minds?

Freshmen in an area high school social studies class said they have learned about the events of that day every year in school but have a hard time defining why it happened. While they know many people died, two towers were hit by airplanes and collapsed and even that many first responders sacrificed their lives, it's unclear to them who was responsible and what happened after the event.

These 13- to 15-year-olds are left with the viscera l— the images of burning buildings, people searching through the rubble. Some have relatives who were close to the experience.

"It's like two twin towers fell down and they had thousands of people in it," one student said. "They saw people die and there were fires. A bunch of people died."

One girl has an uncle she said who was near one of the buildings at the time.

"He still has flashbacks," she said. "He talks about it but gives out in mid-sentence. I have noticed when people talk about it, it goes on for a short time, then they all just get quiet about it."

Some other students, like 17-year-old Diego (not in the same class), said all he learned in school was that a plane just crashed into a tall building and some people died.

"Some people died on the twin towers and then it started to collapse," he said. "Both start to collapse and almost everyone just pretty much dies. My main question was 'How did that happen?'"

In a senior social studies class, students LJ and Ken spoke up and clearly had gathered more knowledge and had thought about that day and its aftermath.

"I know it was an organized terrorist attack and it was Osama bin Laden and our purpose for invading Afghanistan was to kill him," LJ said. "The Pentagon was attacked, and the towers were attacked, and I think over 3,000 people died. And it put America on pause for a really, really long time."

The students realize airport security was significantly less before 9/11. "It was like the first terrorist attack that America really had," LJ said.

Both students had watched a documentary about the reasons people go to war earlier in the year, "Why We Fight."

American Airlines flight No. 11, which had taken off from Boston Logan International Airport, crashed into the north tower of the World Trade Center (WTC) at 6:46 a.m. MDT. Tuesday, Sept. 11, 2001. United Airlines flight No. 175, which also took off from Logan, crashed into WTC's south tower at 7:03 a.m. MDT. American Airlines flight No. 77, which had taken off from Washington Dulles International Airport, crashed into the west wall of the Pentagon at 7:37 a.m. MDT. United Airlines flight No. 93, which had taken off from Newark International Airport, crashed in a field near Shanksville, Pennsylvania, at 8:03 a.m. MDT.

A total of 2,996 fatalities resulted from the crashes, including 33 crew members, 213 flight passengers, 2,731 ground fatalities (including emergency workers) and 19 hijackers.

As we near the 20th anniversary of 9/11, here are thoughts and memories of that day from some prominent local residents:

Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education member Maria Flores: "I was getting ready for school, as I taught fifth grade at Tombaugh (Elementary School), and I heard the announcer say, 'A plane has hit the World Trade Center.' I told my husband, 'Turn on the TV. Something is wrong.' When he did so, the second plane struck the other tower. We were deeply shaken as we went to work, and all the teachers had the news on in the classroom, but were told to turn them off for the students. The students knew something was wrong, but we kept the information brief, without getting them scared. No one knew what to say and the feeling of unease continued to grow by the minute. The weight of the moment made it a day like no other, and in the evening, we went to Mass at the Cathedral, and cried. My brother lived in New York City at the time, and he saw the towers before they fell, from his roof. Being a doctor, he ran with supplies but there was no one to help."

Former New Mexico Governor and NMSU Chancellor Garrey Carruthers: "I was just going into a meeting at our company (Cimarron HMO) when someone called and said to turn on the television because a plane had just crashed into a building in New York. We turned it on in time to see live the second plane hit the tower. I remember the entire country came to a standstill. Shock would probably be the best way to describe the national mood. As unfortunate and tragic as 9/11 was, it was one of the few times in my life that all of America came together with a single focus and commitment. We are still living with the consequences of that day with regard to security issues, international relations and trust."

Las Cruces City Councilor Gabriel Vasquez: "September 11 forever changed the world and changed this nation. This year's remembrance should bring us an opportunity to remember how this tragedy once galvanized our nation, how it brought us together from every corner of the country to grieve for the fallen and to stand together as Americans. Today, we also commemorate the courage of those who gave their lives to save others, from the first responders to everyday citizens. Their selfless actions reflect our values and how we should strive to be together in community today."

State Rep. Doreen Gallegos, D-Doña Ana: "There are events in history that impact us for generations to come. I remember my parents being able to tell me where they were when President Kennedy was assassinated. For me, it was 9/11. I have so many emotions tied to that day. The world stopped as we collectively watched in disbelief death and destruction as the

Twin Towers came down; being in awe of courage by the passengers on Flight 93 and of all the those who responded in New York and at the Pentagon; being uplifted by the bipartisan unity of members of Congress on the steps of the Capitol and the feeling of one nation of Americans standing together. This is the America I strive for; this is why I wanted to become involved in government to work to help my community. Now more than ever, it is so important that we come together and work through our differences in memory of those that gave the ultimate sacrifice."

Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education member Pamela Cort: "I walked into an eerily quiet Las Cruces High School that morning and was summoned into a colleague's classroom just in time to see the second tower fall. Right after that, my husband called me and said they were sending all NASA employees

How to Apply for Jobs at Las Cruces Utilities

By Cassie McClure

Sometimes a job hunt can make you dizzy, especially if you're not exactly sure what you'd like to do or even know for what you might be qualified. Thanks to the New Mexico Workforce Connection job fair on August 13, 2021, at the Las Cruces Convention Center, Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) got a chance to talk to the job seekers to learn about all the opportunities that LCU has to offer and how to apply.

"The City of Las Cruces does not take any paper applications, it's all done through an online system," said LCU Business Systems Analyst Jeff Dillard. LCU may offer more than job seekers may think. Some positions keep natural gas service safe, make sure that water comes from our taps, pick up solid waste from our streets, and make sure our sewage lines flow and are processed as clean water for return back to the Rio Grande.

But, there are other positions, such as maintaining the computerized systems that monitor wells or lift stations, answering the call from residents when they smell gas or even engineering positions that design projects that enhance the quality of life in the city.

LCU also offers college assistance to new incoming or current, full-time students pursuing an Associate Degree in Water Technology at Doña Ana Community College. The Las Cruces Utilities Internship Program is a competitive program that pays for tuition and other reasonable education-related expenses, including a monthly stipend and paid on-the-job training to assist with educational and living expenses. "We want to grow our already diverse and multi-cultural workforce at LCU and want to seek out those who may bring new and innovative solutions to serving our customers," said LCU Staffing Specialist Diamond D. Medina. "The City has great benefits like group health insurance, group life insurance, supplemental life insurance, flexible spending accounts, and 457 Deferred Compensation." Interested? home as a precaution. That call brought home the realization that even Las Cruces was vulnerable. It was a frightening time, filled with disbelief and many tears."

Las Cruces City Councilor Johana Bencomo: "I was in middle school when the 9/11 tragedy occurred and no, I will never forget what that day was like. Many of the feelings I felt then remain today: fear, anger, and heartache. I hope we never forget the stories of those whose lives were taken, of those brave people who enlisted and have served, and the thousands of Muslim Americans who were hatefully targeted in the aftermath. This 9/11 feels especially heavy with the continued tragedies in Afghanistan. Let's continue to hold those most directly impacted in our hearts and minds."

"I join our state and our nation in honoring the lives lost on 9/11 and the lives of our military servicemen lost during the 20 years since," said state Sen. Crystal Diamond, R-Sierra, Luna, Hidalgo and Doña Ana. "These brave men and women represent the spirit of America and remind us that from ash we can emerge even stronger if we unite as one.

We honor the memory of our American heroes by holding strong to our constitutional freedoms and standing united as a nation under God."

Las Cruces Police Chief Miguel Dominguez: "I remember 9/11 as one of the worst days that America has experienced; our enemies tried to destroy us and spread fear. The exact opposite occurred, Americans put aside their differences and stood together and more united than ever. I will never forget the bravery displayed by the first responders. We should always honor the heroes of 9/11 and never forget their sacrifice."

County, city officials remember 'tragic horror' of 9/11 attacks

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Here are additional comments from Doña Ana County and the City of Las Cruces 20 years after 9/11.

Third Judicial District Attorney Gerald Byers: "As a Beirut veteran, September 11th reminds me of tragic horror that's transformed by the heroism of ordinary people who dare to care for others. The courage of the passengers and crew of Flight 93 and the limitless dedication of first responders at ground zero and the Pentagon speak to the blessed character of who we are as Americans. We should never forget that character, especially in current times. Americans always stand united in the face of evil."

City of Las Cruces Quality of Life Department Director Lynn Gallagher: "The events of 9/11/01 are so profound and impactful on people in very personal ways. It should be a time to reflect and remember those lives lost, families directly affected and those people who continue to battle internal demons for which the rest of us can never imagine. I hope that we do not see another atrocity of this magnitude but know we are resilient and at our best when our freedoms are tested. My heart continues to ache for the things we lost that day but I am hopeful for a future that seeks not to repeat our past but acknowledge and celebrate our potential."

County Manager Fernando Macias: "At the time that 9/11 occurred, I was working as general manager for Border Environment Cooperation Commission, one of two international organizations created under NAFTA. We were scheduled to fly out that morning for a board of directors meeting that day in Mexico City, with high-level officials from both the U.S. and Mexico planning to be in attendance. As I was preparing for the meeting, my wife called me in to view something on the television. That is when I saw the videos of the planes crashing into the towers. Our meeting had to be canceled of course, as the whole world was fixated on these shocking occurrences.

"9/11 had a personal element for me because while at Georgetown Law School, I had roommates from New York City. I frequently traveled there and had been in the towers many times. Because of my knowledge of the number of people I knew to be working in those towers, I could already imagine the enormity of the loss of lives.

"An aftereffect of 9/11 was that it impacted our ability to travel to work. My office was in Juarez. For a year and a half, it became a greater challenge to cross into Mexico."

Doña Ana County Sheriff Kim Stewart: "At the time, I was a federal contractor and spent three weeks in New York City in the first few weeks following 9/11 conducting mental health surveys. I saw people so damaged I was concerned there would be no coming back for that city. Twenty years later, their collective resilience and recovery should be an inspiration to us all."

9/11 made America look at foundations

It's strange, sometimes, the details you remember.

For me, whenever I think of it, the first image that funnels into my brain is my right shoe. A black, Stacy Adams Madison cap toe oxford.

I was staring at that shoe, tying its laces while sitting in front of the television, when the first plane hit.

My oldest daughter, Jessica, then a sixth-grader, was getting ready for school. I was getting ready for my job as publisher of the Alamogordo Daily News.

When I arrived at work, our whole staff was kicking into high gear. We had a lot of work to do.

Though it was a bright clear morning on the East Coast, it was dark and rainy in Alamogordo.

In the Daily News office, we watched events unfold on an old, black-and-white television with — I kid you not — aluminum foil on the rabbit ears to improve reception.

When the first tower fell, someone shouted, and we looked, incredulous, "What do you mean, the tower fell?" Then, we gathered around the TV, watching the replays.

When the second tower fell, we gasped, then stared. Most of us had tears in our eyes. We were all trying to sort out everything — our personal feelings, our work, our national shock.

Then, it got personal. We learned one of Alamogordo's own, retired police officer Al Marchand, was on one of the planes that hit New York City's World Trade Center. That information turned our coverage from a huge national and international news event into a local news story.

As an afternoon newspaper whose deadline was around 11 a.m., we had to do a great deal of work in a short time. As soon as we got the afternoon edition off to the press, we turned around and created a special morning "EXTRA" edition for the next day.

In old movies, you sometimes see newsboys out on the street, yelling "Extra, extra! Read all about it!"

Sept. 11 was the first and, so far, only time I've ever been involved in an extra edition as a journalist.

The events created roller-coaster emotions, by turns horror, anger, sadness, frustration, helplessness, curiosity, uncertainty, worry.

I had known Marchand in his capacity as an Alamogordo policeman and respected him greatly. His loss was a big one to the Alamogordo community. At 44, he should have had a whole lot of life ahead of him.

As if the sky were mourning our local and national losses, the weather in Alamogordo stayed dark and rainy the whole week.

The combination of emotions and images of the week were disturbing, confusing, frustrating and upsetting.

That's probably why my memory takes me back first to the mundane image of tying my shoe. The shoe is something normal, something routine, something my brain can readily process.

Even today, 20 years later, the events of 9/11, and all the subsequent events related directly or indirectly to that day, are difficult to process.

For several months after 9/11, we saw flags, patriotism and lots of togetherness.

Americans, for a sustained period, put a premium on unity and people.

Unfortunately, when those feelings began to fade, our national discourse seems to have devolved and declined ever since.

These days, it feels as if there

20 years later, world changed but heartache stays

Twenty years ago, on a Tuesday, I was getting my boys ready for school, shaking them out of their sleep and gently encouraging their eyes to open when from the other room I heard, "Elva, get in here quick!"

Center in New York City. Two thousand, nine hundred ninety-six people died because of that attack, one of them I knew, though not well. I did know and visit several first-responders and heard their heart-wrenching stories.

It remains the deadliest terrorist attack in human history and the single deadliest incident for firefighters and law enforcement officers in the history of the United States, with 340 and 72 killed, respectively.

Two months earlier, in July 2001, I had my third and youngest son. He will not personally remember those surreal days following 9/11 — the anguish, the numbers coming in, the plumes of smoke or the images of people leaping to their death from 110 stories. No matter what the history books tell him, he will never fully understand what we mean when we say the world changed that day.

In August, with hope, pride, trepidation and a renewed sense of adventure, I sent that son into his future by accompanying him to Colorado to start college and then flying back alone. The world changed again for me as everything will be different and my nest is empty. My son and I have new worlds to discover.

Now, in September, 20 years later, I will remember all those sons and daughters who did not come home, a moment of silence for those mothers and fathers whose children were lost that day.

My heart to yours — there is nothing I can say that words can express. There is only heart-break still.

Confusion, fear, anger and finally understanding 20 years later

As I think back to the morning of Sept. 11, 2001, my primary memory is one of confusion.

I was the editor of an afternoon newspaper in Kansas and was almost finished with the front page.

I'll be forever grateful to the publisher who convinced me to tear it up and start over.

Like most Americans, I didn't know anything about Osama bin Laden or al-Qaida and couldn't imagine how or why anyone would do such a thing.

During an address to a joint session of Congress on Sept. 20, President George W. Bush told us who had committed the attack. And, he attempted to explain why.

"They hate our freedoms: our freedom of religion, our freedom of speech, our freedom to vote and assemble and disagree with each other," Bush offered.

So, young men were convinced to end their own lives in fiery airplane crashes because they despised town hall meetings in New Hampshire or caucus votes in Iowa?

But, I understand his reluctance. It's a fraught question.

Whatever actions our nation may have taken in the past to provoke those in the Middle East, they did not involve the nearly 3,000 innocent men and women who showed up for work that morning and lost their lives.

Looking at the speech now, it all seems incredibly empty and sad.

"Our grief has turned to anger, and anger to resolution," Bush warned.

"Whether we bring our enemies to justice or justice to our enemies, justice will be done."

We did kill bin Laden 10 years later.

But I'm not sure how we could ever bring justice to suicide bombers. Whatever justice they receive will come from a higher power.

In the speech, Bush laid out a series of demands that he knew the Taliban could not meet as a pretext to going to war in Afghanistan; just as he would later deliver a list of demands that Saddam Hussein could not meet as a pretext to going to war in Iraq.

And, the president established an impossible definition for victory, ensuring the two-decade slog that was to follow: "It will not end until every terrorist group of global reach has been found, stopped and defeated."

The speech was filled with all the Texas swagger that made our 43rd president endearing. We would win the wars to come, Bush assured us, not only because of our superior military force. We also had God on our side.

"The course of this conflict is not known, yet its outcome is certain," Bush crowed. "Freedom and fear, justice and cruelty, have always been at war, and we know that God was not neutral between them."

Twenty years later, I'm less confused. Now, I understand not only who did it, but who will try to do it again, and why. They are equally convinced that God is on their side.

And, they are determined that all of us must be on God's side and must follow his dictates as they interpret them.

The wars are over, but the threat has not been eliminated.

We have hardened our defenses against hijackers and bombers, but remain vulnerable in other areas.

We need to learn from past mistakes and move forward with both vigilance and a dose of humility. The scars of 9/11 remain.

My confusion from that morning later gave way to anger and sadness, in that order.

That part hasn't gone away in the last 20 years. I suspect it never will.

Red flags for the hired hand to heed before taking on a new gig

1. If the new boss's hat isn't sweat stained, you can figger whose will be.

2. Phrases like, "My dad never paid me a dime till I was 25," or "I haven't had a day off since dad's funeral in 2017," should put you on guard.

3. Expensive equipment

doesn't guarantee you'll be paid well. That might be where the money's all gone.

4. This should send up a warning flag, "My son is all-state in every sport in school, president of the senior class, engaged to the banker's daughter, building a hot rod and learning to fly an airplane. He'll be helping you with the chores."

5. If the words "day off" or "insurance" bring a quizzical look to the boss's face, you better think.

6. You may want to reconsider when the new boss says, "I never had any use for new fangled gadgets like milking machines, PTO post hole diggers or a round baler. They just breed sloth."

7. It should be a tip-off if the prospective employer complains that he can't keep a hired man on the place.

8. Be suspicious if the boss's own dogs run for cover at his voice.

9. If the boss himself lives in a 1999 New Moon single-wide, don't expect much from his offer of "housing furnished."

10. And if the term

"retirement plan" is mentioned, you can rest assured it's not your's he's talking about.

But the best hired man learns that critical skill for getting' along with a good boss — when to listen to him and when not to.

are five or six different Americas, and none of them can agree with any of the others about anything. Social media provide the gasoline and oxygen to fuel the flames of discord.

While we never want to re-live the horrors of Sept. 11, 2001, it's worth looking back to the weeks and months following that tragedy, when we, as Americans, showed we could unite.

Today, 20 years later, we need to remember those days. We need to look down, past today's chaos, disillusion and politicized anger, to our common foundations.

Maybe we need, as a way to re-set, to look at something normal and familiar, the many things we Americans still have in common, basic things we can readily process.

Maybe we need to stare at our shoes.

Memorial Medical Center CEO John Harris speaks at the hospital chapel's dedication in honor of the Rev. Dr. Margaret Short in August.

Providing 'quality, safe care' is Memorial Medical's top priority

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"It's all about the people of southern New Mexico," Memorial Medical Center (MMC) Chief Executive Officer John Harris said in a recent interview.

"We need to be our best," said Harris, who has been Memorial's top executive for almost eight years.

Harris' message to everyone who works at the hospital is "to manage this place like the next person that comes in is a member of your family or a friend."

"Quality, safe care is our No. 1 priority," he said.

MMC was named the top-performing hospital in the 88-hospital LifePoint Health system that Memorial is part of. It was also rated the best hospital and best place to work in the 2021 Bulletin's Best of the Mesilla Valley contest.

Harris, who has been a hospital administrator for nearly 45 years, became MMC CEO Nov. 1, 2013.

"This is very special to me," Harris said. "There's a lot of great work being done here."

He currently serves as chairman of the New Mexico Hospital Association board of directors and is also chair of the Burrell College of Osteopathic Medicine's board of trustees. Harris is also a member of the boards of the Mesilla Valley

Economic Development Alliance (MVEDA), the Borderplex Alliance and the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce.

Harris noted that MMC Chief Nursing Officer Caryn Iverson is president of the New Mexico Nurses Association.

"We are developing MMC into a major regional health care center," Harris said, serving all of southern New Mexico.

The hospital uses cutting-edge equipment, he said, and "the highest level of science."

A $2.1 million surgical robot is one of MMC's recent purchases, Harris said. It was used for the first time ever in March 2021 by Dr. Victor Barnica, who is "an expert at removing polyps and can-

Change is in the Air with SCSWA

Submitted by South Central Solid Waste Authority

In the next few months, South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) will be exchanging all existing Friedman Recycling containers with the new SCSWA and City of Las Cruces logo. The change will bring clarity for customers who will have a simple reminder for the one-stop-shop customer service number: 541-2111.

Residents may have already seen SCSWA trucks picking up their recycling instead of Friedman, whose collection contract is nearing an end.

"There will be no disruption to service or use when we exchange containers," said Miguel Fernandez, SCSWA program administrator.

"New containers will be exchanged on the day of service so that we have more participation out on the curb. Our teams will be following the service trucks, so recycling bins should be empty and, for the most part, should create a clean exchange without placing materials in a new container."

New recycling containers will match new trash containers. In the next few months, SCSWA will be replacing bins throughout Las Cruces.

He explained that the process might take a while when they receive the new bins by the end of the year. "Our current customer base is 35,416," he said and warned customers not to hang on to the old bins. "While it may be tempting to try and keep the old container, our drivers will no longer be serving the old carts once we've rolled out with the new."

SCSWA Director Patrick Peck said that the new bins would be only the beginning of changes in the coming months.

"We have lots of things in the works and are just now beginning to see things take shape," said Peck. "We have new operation employees are being added so that we can ramp up recycling in Las Cruces, plus we're taking steps to maintain our existing infrastructure."

Peck continued, "There are repairs almost complete at the Chaparral Transfer Station, and we are submitting requests to grow our recycling projects out on Holman Road as a part of the Infrastructure Capital Improvement Plan as well. We're looking forward to sharing our expansion with our customers and enhance how we recycle in Las Cruces."

South Central Solid Waste Authority manages solid waste and recyclables for residents and businesses throughout Dona Ana County. Contact SCSWA at (575) 528-3800 or visit www.SCSWA.net.

Hospital, experienced staff serve as 'safe' hub during Covid

BULLETIN REPORT

"Getting vaccinated is a good thing," Memorial Medical Center (MMC) CEO John Harris said. "Vaccines are safe."

Like other hospitals, Harris said MMC has seen a recent resurgence in Covid-19 patients, with 10 to 15 being seen daily at the hospital, Harris said. As of late August, 100 percent of current Covid patients are unvaccinated, the hospital said.

"Please get vaccinated," Harris said in a message to the community.

Harris said 90 percent of MMC's 1,400 employees have been vaccinated against Covid and the hospital continues to mandate mask wearing and other safety protocols to keep the public safe and to keep the hospital's employees and their families safe as well, he said.

Harris also said it is "absolutely safe" to be treated at MMC for any health issue.

It can "be more dangerous putting off care," Harris said.

Hospital staff have the necessary personal protective equipment to deal with Covid, Harris said, and have "much more control over exposure in the hospital."

MMC staff are "extremely well educated in what to do and what not to do" in dealing with the virus, he said.

"Don't put off your health care," Harris said. "Wear a mask, get vaccinated, see your doctor."

MMC has "operated as a hub" in providing vaccines, he said, and has administered more than 26,000 doses and conducted more than 20,000 Covid tests.

Twyla Anderson, registered nurse, is MMC's director of Infection Control and Prevention and has been with the hospital for 37 years. In dealing with Covid, Anderson is "at the helm, guiding all our actions," Harris said.

"She is the most experienced in the state," he said.

Harris said he has met with Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham to discuss the pandemic.

"She knows if she needs us, we are here for her and New Mexico," Harris said.

cerous masses," the MMC website said. The robot can also assist medical staff with a wide range of other surgeries, the website said, offering 10 times magnification in 3D.

Harris said MMC's Dr. Ferman Fontan is the only surgeon in New Mexico "doing bariatric surgery robotically." MMC's bariatric services can be "life changing" for patients and their families, and the results are often "just breathtaking," Harris said.

As an extension of bariatric services, he said MMC has set up a heartburn clinic and uses a tiny, minimally invasive magnetic "bracelet" to treat gastroesophageal reflux disease.

MMC performs more than 25,000 cardiac procedures annually and has "a total, integrated cardiovascular program,"

Memorial Medical Center

Harris said.

Memorial Cancer Center is the only comprehensive cancer program in southern New Mexico affiliated with research experts at the University of New Mexico Comprehensive Cancer Center, the hospital website said.

Harris said he is "very, very proud of that program and those people."

The hospital also has an "outstanding group" of anesthesia providers, he said, working with Somnia, a national health care provider.

TeamHealth, another national health care provider, serves as MMC's Emergency Department providers.

"We choose our partners really, really carefully," Harris said.

He said the hospital also offers a wide range of other services, including advanced treatment for type 1 and type 2 diabetes, with a focus on limb salvage. MMC had the first pediatric care unit in southern New Mexico, and its services go "beyond general pediatrics" to include a pediatric interventionist, intensive care and pediatric specialties. The hospital has a stroke center, offers joint replacement and all forms of general and orthopedic surgery. Its urology services are "dramatically improved," Harris said. MMC conducts many patient transfers a month and has its own dedicated ambulance. MMC's emergency services were voted Best Local Hero in Bulletin's Best.

MMC has "very, very high caliber" surgeons and physicians, Harris said.

Harris said he regularly talks to MMC employees, from housekeeping staff to surgeons, about all aspects of the hospital and the services it provides and is "very lucky to have the people that are around me."

"That's the kind of culture that you should have," Harris said.

"That's what's really, really special about Memorial. We choose to be exceptional. That's the religion of this institution," Harris added.

Arizona brewery gives out school supplies to 200 local teachers

BULLETIN REPORT

Four Peaks Brewing Co.'s nonprofit, Four Peaks For Teachers, distributed 200 free school-supply kits to Las Cruces teachers during a mid-August event at the Pic Quik store on Don Roser Drive in Las Cruces.

The company also awarded a $1,000 grant to Centennial High School ninth-grade English teacher Maria Perez-Luna to pay for supplies for her classroom.

Perez-Luna was one of 11 teachers from across the nation chosen from thousands of nominations to receive the grant. She was chosen, Four Peaks Brewing Company said in an email, "because she gives 110 percent every day, she is able to make a connection with every student she meets, she helps students that have special education needs, she has a meaningful curriculum that engages students who aren't interested in English, or school, for that matter, she makes everyone feel welcome and comfortable and has a passion and love for teaching."

The 200 school-supply kits contained paper reams, pencils, pens, staples and other essential school supplies, Four Peaks said.

The event was part of Four Peaks' 11th Annual For Peaks For Teachers initiative that kicked off in May, raising funds to distribute 10,000 free school-supply kits to

Animal Services Center offering limited, low cost spay/neutering

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Animal Services of the Mesilla Valley (ASCMV) will provide limited, low-cost spay and neuter surgery for people who provide care to feral cat colonies inside the Las Cruces city limits.

The authority to provide the services came in August when the Las Cruces City Council passed a trap, neuter, release (TNR) ordinance.

Currently, ASCMV will only be able to offer

one day per week for TNR surgery, due to the limited availability of veterinarians who can do high volume spay-neuter, ASCMV Executive Director Clint Thacker said.

“A search is underway for another staff veterinarian, but right now we rely on only one veterinarian on staff and contract veterinarians that are sometimes available (and also care for more than 500 animals at the center),” Thacker said. The days TNR surgeries are conducted could expand, he said, depending on veterinarian availability.

The cost for spay/neuter is $40 per cat and includes vaccination, microchip and an ear tip that identifies a cat as vaccinated and sterilized, Thacker said.

If you tend to a feral colony, here's what you need to know:

Call ASCMV at 575-382-0018 to find out the designated day for the next public appointments for TNR surgery and/or for more information.

You will be referred to the spay-neuter coordinator if you want to schedule an appointment. If you can't speak with someone right away, leave a message and please be patient, Thacker said.

“We anticipate a high volume of calls,” he said. “It may take a little time for someone to get back to you.”

Trap the cat the night before the appointment; be sure to throw a towel over the trap to decrease the trauma for the cat.

The morning of the surgery, bring the cat to ASCMV, 3551 Bataan Memorial Highway, between 7:30 and 8 a.m. The cat will be ready to be picked up later that afternoon to be returned to the colony.

Upgrades to women vet monument done

BULLETIN REPORT

Lighting renovations for the Women Veterans Monument at the Veterans Memorial Park are complete, the City of Las Cruces announced.

The lighting enhancements highlight six sculptures which represent women service members who honored their country in each of the major conflicts from World War I through Desert Storm in 1991.

Up-lights shine on each of the sculptures, showcasing the traditional uniforms for women in each of the branches of the U.S. military, the city said.

The lighting also highlights the monument plaque which recognizes the dedication of the United Military Women

ROTC vigil for Kabul attacks

BULLETIN PHOTO BY ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH

New Mexico State University ROTC cadets held a 24-hour vigil to remember the 13 service members killed in the Kabul, Afghanistan, airport attacks on Aug. 26. Cadets began their vigil at midnight on Thursday, Sept 2 and finished at midnight on Sept. 3. They fired their cannon 13 times to honor the service members during the memorial event.

terror attack on the twin towers and the Pentagon led to the 20-year war in Afghanistan. They believe the attack fueled an operation that was already being planned by the United States.

"We are not going to war because of terrorism. We are going to war to take advantage of oil and other stuff and the resources available in that other country," Ken said. "The terrorist attack was the justifying reason for it."

The event also fueled propaganda, LJ said.

"I suppose we needed to go there to get justice for all those who had died," she said. "I think that there is a lot of misconceptions about why we were there and why we needed to fight there.

"We are sending the message that we are going there to help people who are suffering, and we do need to do that. I think that those in power have a responsibility to protect those who have no power. But we can't market one thing and then have leaders who are doing things for a corrupt purpose."

Sophia graduated from the same school in May and is now attending college. She remembers learning much the same as the other students.

Teachers would show a video, talk about remembering everything that happened but also would never get very specific about facts.

"I remember them explaining that it was men from Afghanistan, that they were from outside of the country and that they did this and that they were cruel," she said. "They were very discriminative towards the people.

"I do think the hate grew more with that action (the attack)," she said. "That was a very bad time. People are so eager for power and for dominance that they just sacrifice lives just to prove a point. They are risking and killing, all for what?"

5:30 p.m. on KFOX
MLB Baseball

The so-called Subway Series takes on added importance tonight at Citi Field, where Anthony Rizzo and the New York Yankees will try to continue their ascent in the AL East standings with a win over Pete Alonso and the crosstown Mets. While the Yankees have come alive in the season's second half, spurred by the trade deadline acquisitions of Rizzo and Joey Gallo, the Mets have done a nosedive in the NL East, done in by injuries and a lack of hitting.

6 p.m. on HISTORY
9/11: Four Flights

The passengers on four airline flights — American 11, United 175, American 77 and United 93 — boarded their planes and departed for their destinations with no inkling of the fateful events that awaited them. This new two-hour documentary presents a powerful and personal take on some of those innocents on board, recounted by heartfelt narratives by their surviving family members and friends. The film airs tonight as a tribute to those lives lost 20 years ago.

6 p.m. on TCM
Movie: To Kill a Mockingbird

An adaptation of Harper Lee's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, this 1962 drama is one of those rare films that perfectly captures the morality of its time, yet transcends it with the beauty of its writing and the power of its actors. Gregory Peck won an Oscar for his portrayal of Atticus Finch, an Alabama lawyer with quiet but unshakable integrity defending an African-American man accused of rape. Mary Badham also is excellent as Atticus' daughter, Scout.

7 p.m. on HALL
Movie: Roadhouse Romance

Returning home following a tour of duty, Lt. Callie Jackson (Lauren Alaina) assumes she'll pick up her civilian life right where she left it, but when she gets back to her hometown, she's dismayed to discover that her grandfather's barbecue restaurant is struggling and her high school sweetheart has moved on to greener pastures. She's really not in the mood, then, for a run-in she has with Luke (Tyler Hynes), a handsome TV director passing through town. Sarah Edmondson and Michael Teigen co-star in the 2021 romance.

10:40 p.m. on FREEFRM
Movie: Up

The Disney-Pixar teaming scores yet again with this delightful, sometimes emotional fantasy about a cranky senior citizen (voice of Edward Asner, who's perfect for the part) who decides to fulfill a goal he had with his late wife. To reach South America, he attaches numerous balloons to his house and heads aloft — with a young scout (voice of Jordan Nagai), who was on the traveler's porch at the wrong moment, as an unexpected companion.

Oscar Isaac

6 p.m. on LIFE
Movie: Psycho Intern

Shortly after a young male intern starts working at a small start-up, he has a one-night stand with the new female project manager while they're working together on a late assignment. Mortified by the incident in the cold light of day, the manager apologizes and tries to break things off, but the smitten young staffer starts relentlessly stalking her. Things take an even more serious turn when the woman begins seeing a new boyfriend. Emmanuelle Vaugier, Madison

Smith, Eva Day and Jason Tremblay star in this 2021 thriller.

7 p.m. on BRAVO
The Real Housewives of Salt Lake City

New housewife Jennie Nguyen, a successful businesswoman and mother of three, joins the mix as this "Real Housewives" edition opens its sophomore season. Among the returning cast members, working mom Lisa Barlow is startled to find herself at the center of some drama when some of her friends suspect she may have some hidden motives. Elsewhere, the pandemic has forced Mary Cosby to close the doors of her church and start a faith-based podcast. Heather Gay, Meredith Marks, Whitney Rose and Jen Shah also return.

9 p.m. on KVIA
To Tell the Truth

Host Anthony Anderson welcomes actors J.B. Smoove ("Curb Your Enthusiasm"), Brad Garrett ("Everybody Loves Raymond") and D'Arcy Carden ("The Good Place") as the celebrity panelists who are tasked with picking out which guests are telling the truth about having some unique profession or identity. This week, the strangers are variously claiming to be the Hollywood Sign caretaker, a NASCAR tire-changer, the winner of a prettiest-pie competition, a master pinata maker and a manure specialist.

10 p.m. on HBO
Scenes From a Marriage

Oscar Isaac ("Star Wars: Episode IX — The Rise of Skywalker") and Jessica Chastain ("Zero Dark Thirty") star in this new character-driven five-part limited series, a modern adaptation of Ingmar Bergman's classic Swedish drama series. Chastain stars as Mira, an ambitious tech executive feeling unfulfilled by her marriage to Jonathan (Isaac), a cerebral philosophy professor desperate to save their marriage. In the premiere, "Innocence and Panic," an already tense day takes on additional urgency because of an unexpected event.

10 p.m. on HMM
Movie: Redemption in Cherry Springs

Rochelle Aytes ("S.W.A.T.") stars in this new mystery as Melanie Abrams, a celebrated investigative journalist from Boston who returns to her quaint hometown for a much-needed break after one of her recent scoops results in some fallout. Her Uncle Joe (Frankie Faison, "Grey's Anatomy") is pleased to have Melanie home, not least because she is his last remaining family member, but the tranquility of her visit is shattered when a childhood friend (Rajiv Sharma) suddenly goes missing. Local detective Jake Collins (Keith Robinson) isn't thrilled when Melanie crashes his investigation.

11 p.m. on SHOW
American Rust

Emmy winner Jeff Daniels ("The Newsroom") stars in this new series adaptation of an acclaimed novel by Philipp Meyer, which is set in the forlorn Rust Belt town of Buell, Pa., just outside Pittsburgh. Iraq War veteran Del Harris (Daniels) tries to keep order in his community as the chief of police, relying on a cocktail of opioids to keep his own PTSD in check. The story opens with Del investigating a dead body found in an abandoned steel mill. Maura Tierney and Bill Camp also star.

Movie: The Paper Chase

John Houseman found his signature role — and won an Oscar — in this 1973 drama as Charles Kingsfield, a merciless Ivy League law-school professor who strikes fear in the hearts of his first-year students. One of them is country boy James T. Hart (Timothy Bottoms), whose brains and determination won't let Kingsfield get the best of him, but whose looks and charm attract the professor's daughter (Lindsay Wagner). The hit film airs as part of a "Back on Campus" theme night of movies with a college setting.

5 Simple Ways To Help Your Business Thrive

BY ALEX BELSEY

It's tough out there for most businesses right now, so anything that might help will be appreciated. In this article, we've put together 5 simple and actionable ways to help you thrive - not just survive.

Recent times have been full of uncertainty and upheaval across all industries. Many businesses have struggled to survive, while others have had to completely change their outlook and approach to continue serving their customers.

Whatever your experience, there are several simple but effective ways that you can help your business to thrive — whatever the circumstances.

1. Maintain An Online Presence

Many businesses have found that one of the most effective ways to survive and thrive in a competitive marketplace is to maintain an online presence.

This can be as simple or elaborate as your budget and time constraints allow. A simple online presence might include a website with up-to-date contact details, a contact form, and a clear and concise message about the products or services you provide.

A more elaborate online presence might also include social media feeds with original content, offers, video tutorials, testimonials and more. Many businesses now also use a dedicated blog to drive online traffic towards their paid services, or to go into more detail about the benefits of their products, for example.

The internet is now one of the most powerful tools in business. It remains one of the most common ways that potential clients and customers first discover businesses. But it is also competitive and even oversaturated, so it is important to make an effort to stand out and be visible.

Above all else, strive to be clear, concise, and easy to contact.

2. Invest In Your Team

Whether you have a large international team or a small selection of personnel, the people you work with matter. Investing in their education, wellbeing, and creating a positive company culture can be a vital — but often overlooked — aspect of a thriving business.

Investing in your team might involve regular training, updating credentials, and progress reviews to check that they are happy and thriving. It could also be as simple as checking in online, ensuring they take adequate breaks and feel comfortable enough to raise concerns.

Mental health in the workplace has become an important topic, especially as conditions such as stress and burnout are becoming more prevalent. It is perhaps especially important to ensure that remote-working employees still feel they have an adequate work-life boundary, but others can benefit from a more balanced approach too.

And if you are a sole trader or work alone, don't overlook your own wellbeing and education. Invest in yourself, caring as you would about an employee, and you will reap the benefits in the success and longevity of your business.

3. Regularly Review Your Budget

An effective budget can be the lifeblood of your business. It can help to ensure that expenses are met and cashflow remains healthy — but it is too often only a consideration once a year or during tax season.

Thriving businesses regularly review their budgets and try to allow for as much flexibility as possible. Ways to help support your budget are to continually check that expenses are necessary and accounted for, as well as to optimize spending so that your business is cost-effective.

For some businesses, this might include reducing travel expenses, or looking at ways to cut other spending. For larger businesses, it could be ensuring that office costs are all accounted for, or switching to smaller premises if employees are now working remotely.

Whatever your business and industry, an effective budget that you check regularly will leave you and your team free to focus on important, creative aspects of the business.

4. Clarify Your Message

Whether in person, in writing, or online, a clear message is essential. It is the clarity of your message that affects how well your customer understands your product or service. It can make the difference between a sale and no sale at all.

Many businesses hire professional copywriters or SEO experts to help ensure that the message of their business is clear, effective, and reaching the targeted customer.

Although this may seem the simplest tip for a thriving business, it can also be the most impactful.

5. Know Your Customer

The best businesses know their customers well. This means that they know exactly what problem their product or service solves, who is most likely to buy it, and where they are most likely to find them.

Consider your ideal or most likely customer and also where you are most likely to find them. Would it be tradeshows or social media, for example? Or even in a particular setting such as a university or leisure centre? Target your advertising in strategic ways. Also, consider using surveys and asking for feedback after purchases to get to know your customer.

By targeting customers who your products and services will appeal to, you should achieve more growth and success as a result.

LCHCC welcomes new Board Directors

Amanda Morales

About yourself:

I am a native of Artesia, New Mexico where I graduated from Artesia High School in 2008. I moved to Las Cruces in 2008 to attend New Mexico State University.

I started working at United Way of Southwest New Mexico right after graduation and have been there almost nine years in December. I was first hired as the Office Manager and was then promoted to the Community Impact Director to oversee all our programs/events and develop all marketing materials.

In my spare time, I really enjoy binge watching shows on Netflix, Hulu, and many other streaming apps. It's a great way for me to turn off my brain after a long day and/or week.

Profession:

I am currently the Chief Executive Officer for the United Way of Southwest New Mexico. I officially took the position in January 2020.

Education:

I graduated in 2012 with a bachelor's degree in Social Work and a Minor in Counseling.

Community involvement:

I am part of the Event Committee for Southwest New Mexico's Giving Day. This collaboration provides matching funds for nonprofit organizations in our community during a one-day virtual event.

I recently completed the CONNECT-New Mexico Program with Leadership New Mexico.

I serve as the Board Chair for the Emergency Food and Shelter Program which provides funds to nonprofit agencies in Doña Ana County who provide food and shelter services.

What do you think about living in Las Cruces?

This city can sometimes feel big, but it really is a small, close-knit community. This community always amazes me with how giving individuals and businesses can be, both monetarily and with their time/talents. Working for a nonprofit, I have peace of mind knowing that the community will support our efforts.

I enjoy living in Las Cruces. I always tell anyone who will listen this city is a great place to live. There is always something to do on the weekends with all the community events that are planned. The community comes together to put on events and provide services to those who need assistance. I feel a sense of community everywhere I go and with everyone that I meet.

Why did you get involved with the chamber?

I am proud to serve on the Board of Directors for the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber. I joined the Chamber because I wanted to get more involved with the business sector of the community. Working for a nonprofit, I tend to stick to my lane of working with other nonprofit partners. Becoming a Board Member will allow me to expand my network and will also provide the opportunity for me to provide any support, time, and talent to move the Hispanic Chamber forward towards a brighter future.

What is your opinion of the local business climate?

I am pleased with the local business climate in Las Cruces. Our city has grown economically, and it seems to get better every day.

Sylvy Galvan de Lucero

About yourself:

I was born and raised in Las Cruces but have also been very blessed with the opportunity to travel the world and find inspiration to bring back to share with my community.

Profession:

I am currently the Head Principal at La Academia Dolores Huerta Charter Middle School in Las Cruces.

Education:

Bachelor's in Journalism and Mass Communications with a Minor in Performing Arts and a Master's in Curriculum and Instruction

Community involvement:

Currently a board member for NM Advocates for the Arts and also Chair the Folklorico Workshop Committee for the Las Cruces International Mariachi Conference.

What do you think about living in Las Cruces?

Las Cruces is HOME. The Mesilla Valley is and always will be home with its beautiful shimmering Rio Grande, lush pecan orchards and agricultural crops. The culture of our community is unique, warm and inviting unlike any other. Just like Dorothy from the Wizard of Oz said, "There's no place like home."

Why did you get involved with the chamber?

I am proud to serve on the Board of Directors for the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber. I joined the Chamber because I believe that being involved in programs that support our community is incredibly important. If we don't get involved and try to find ways to help grow and improve our community then we have no right to complain about what is happening around us. As an educator I hope to find ways to grow the HCC involvement in the education of our youth and to support education within our community as a whole.

What is your opinion of the local business climate?

I am pleased with the local business climate in Las Cruces. Our city has grown economically, and it seems to get better every day. Being a lifelong resident of Las Cruces and a graduate of Las Cruces High School I have watched our local economy go through many ups and downs but I can finally say the growth I see in the Downtown area, the East Mesa and in general all over is exciting however we need to always remember to buy and support local business first and foremost.

LCHCC partners with NMSU for Hispanic Heritage Day

On August 28, NMSU kicked off its first football game of the year. It was the battle on the border with the NM State - Los Aggies challenging UTEP - Los Miners. It was also the day the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce celebrated Hispanic Heritage Day at the Free Fan Fiesta. This was the second year the LCHCC partnered with NMSU to bring the community together for a celebration of Hispanic heritage. At the Free Fan Fiesta, attendees were entertained with Mariachi performances, traditional Folklorico dancing, Los Lu-chas (wrestling) by Xtreme Cruces Wrestling, great tailgating and a lot more. And if you happened to stroll by the LCHCC tent, you were treated to some delicious street tacos.

LCHCC would like to sincerely appreciate Mike Pirolo and his phenomenal team at NMSU Sports Properties~Learfield, Robert Palacios, Sylvy Galvan de Lucero and the NM Advocates for the Arts, the sponsors and all the members, supporters of the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce in making this year's event a great success.

FROM OUR U.S. SENATOR

Las Cruces is leading the way on electrification

BY U.S. SENATOR
MARTIN HEINRICH

The energy landscape is undergoing a massive transformation. New Mexico needs to be ready, and I'm working to make that happen. Our state is uniquely poised to benefit from advances in technologies, the growth of the clean energy economy, and widespread electrification of our homes and businesses.

Widespread electrification is one of the surest actions that we can and should take right now to address the climate crisis. It will also improve our health, create thousands of new, good-paying jobs, and spur major savings on all of our utility bills. That's why I'm proud to be leading the effort in the Senate to call for big and bold climate action and widespread electrification as part of President Biden's Build Back Better agenda.

Earlier this year, I introduced the Electrifying America's Future Resolution to lay out a clear policy roadmap for widespread electrification and the decarbonizing of our entire power generation sector. In July, I introduced the Zero-Emission Homes Act to establish rebates that will make clean, electrified appliances affordable and accessible to all American households.

The fact is that many of the devices and appliances that we use every day in our homes and businesses currently burn fossil fuels, from furnaces to water heaters to cars. As we transition our power sector toward 100 percent clean generation, we should also replace each of these appliances in our homes and businesses with new electrified machines that can be powered by all the new clean and carbon pollution-free electricity generated right here in New Mexico.

Electrifying these appliances would also address the 42 percent increased risk of children experiencing asthma symptoms associated with indoor air pollution from gas stove use. Such indoor pollution disproportionately affects low-income households with smaller homes. Furthermore, outdoor air pollution from residential buildings currently accounts for 44 premature deaths in New Mexico per year.

We need to accelerate the electrification of our homes and businesses, and we need to avoid locking in decades of unnecessary and proven way for us to meet our carbon emission requirements quickly enough to prevent the worst effects of a warming planet. And it can create incredible health and economic benefits along the way.

I'm enormously proud of all the leadership that the City of Las Cruces is demonstrating on this front.

Las Cruces is transitioning its vehicle fleet to electric vehicles and building more electric vehicle charging infrastructure. And city councilors are calling for a phase out the use of natural gas by the city-owned utility.

I'm encouraging local leaders all across New Mexico to follow Las Cruces' example and take bold steps to electrify new and existing city buildings and adopt new codes and initiatives that will incentivize electrification of residential and commercial buildings in the community. This will save tax payers and business owners money because electric infrastructure has significantly lower annual operating costs.

As New Mexicans advance local solutions to the central challenge of our time, I will keep fighting for climate action at the federal and global levels. We need to pass all of the bold economic and climate investments in President Biden's Build Back Better Plan. If we can do that, we will make once-in-a-generation investments in the American people, lower costs, cut taxes, create climate careers, and make the wealthy and corporations pay their fair share.

We don't have any time to waste on climate. The extreme weather events, floods, heat waves, droughts, and wildfires will only continue to worsen unless we take significant action right now. Our actions can create a cleaner, healthier environment and good paying careers in the building trades all across New Mexico.

This is our moment to act. Let's not waste it.

Spaceport America and Global Spaceport Alliance to bring ISS data into local classrooms

The Global Spaceport Alliance (GSA) Academic Partnership Working Group led by Spaceport America Aerospace Engineer Dr. Charles Miller, is working together to make space science more accessible in their communities. Academic Partnership Group members representing New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, the UK, Ecuador, and

VANAPALLI

Japan are working with the non-profit education group

Orion's Quest to provide access to real-time space science conducted on the International Space Station.

"This is a great opportunity for schools in New Mexico who will not only be working with the team from Spaceport America on this project but will also have the opportunity to collaborate with groups in the US, the UK, and Ecuador," says Miller, chair of the GSA Academic Working Partnership. "We want to engage with our local students to explain the importance of space science and relate it to some of the research conducted right here in our state."

The GSA Academic Partnership Working Group selected the study of "worms in space" which looks at the loss of muscle mass and strength in zero gravity. The research is being led by scientists from Texas Tech University to measure the strength of the millimeter-long roundworm, C. elegans, in space. Muscle loss and strength is currently a major challenge for astronauts on extended spaceflight. With a short lifecycle of a week and 60 percent genetic similarity with humans, the worms have been sent to space many times before for various experiments. The experiment is scheduled to run for seven weeks, amounting to seven worm generations. Findings from this study are expected to help develop therapeutic interventions for muscle disorders and to improve strength in older people back on Earth.

United Way, HanesBrands donate masks to schools

As part of America's Mask Challenge, United Way of Southwest New Mexico is coordinating with HanesBrands Inc. to deliver 140,000 reusable cloth masks for Las Cruces Public Schools to help slow the spread of COVID-19.

The Challenge is a new initiative from United Way, the Business Roundtable, a group of 182 CEOs from large American companies, and the CDC Foundation. The challenge aims to deliver 200 million washable face masks to 40 million students, teachers and staff in America's most under-resourced schools, averaging about five washable masks per person.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), cloth masks in schools can help slow the spread of the coronavirus, along with other mitigation strategies like hand-washing, social distancing and regular cleansing and disinfecting of frequently-touched surfaces, in schools and buses.

As America continues to grapple with COVID-19 and the Delta-Variant- the resulting health, economic and education fallout, United Way's focus has been on the disproportionate impact on the most vulnerable. One place to make a difference is protecting students, teachers and school staff as schools pursue in person instruction.

In the Las Cruces Public Schools District, masks are going to 28 under-resourced schools, which serve high populations of students from low-income families. "Getting our students back to the classroom has been the focus of our district for a year now," said Kelly Jameson, Public Information Officer for Las Cruces Public School. "We cannot do that safely unless all necessary PPE is in place. Donations like the generous one from the United Way of Southwest New Mexico ensures we have adequate supplies to meet those needs."

Amanda Morales, Chief Executive Officer, United Way of Southwest New Mexico said, "This support from HanesBrands will help ensure our most vulnerable residents and students have masks to help keep them safe and slow the spread. We urge other companies to join in this effort and take part in America's Mask Challenge."

HanesBrands, a leading global marketer of branded everyday basic apparel, is the first company to join the Challenge. Hanes has donated 25 million masks to the Challenge, which are now being distributed. As the Challenge gains traction, Hanes will produce the masks and coordinate with United Way on delivery.

Chris Fox, Vice President Corporate Social Responsibility at HanesBrands Inc. notes, "United Way has led the way in helping our neighbors through the pandemic. We're pleased to support United Way's effort to help keep school children safe and healthy as they return to classrooms."

United Way of Southwest New Mexico has been part of the effort to help communities cope with the health, economic and education fallout from the COVID-19 pandemic.

In 2020, United Way of Southwest New Mexico invested over $550,000 to support community partners and initiatives in response to the pandemic.

"Orion's Quest was founded in 2004 with a mission to bring working science from the International Space Station into classrooms" says Dan Loewen, Program Coordinator for Orion's Quest. "We purposely choose research with real world science applications on Earth so students can relate to the subjects of the study."

Participating students will be able to do classroom experiments as well as have access to data being collected on the ISS. Orion's Quest links the principal investigators to classrooms and provides software for the study without any cost to the schools participating. The Spaceports will provide further academic support ahead of and during the study and relate it to work being conducted at the launch facilities. The entire project commitment is for 1-2 weeks and is designed around current science standards so as not to add additional work for teachers to fit it into lesson plans.

The Global Spaceport Alliance was formed in 2015 to provide a forum for commercial spaceport operators at all stages of their development to come together and privately discuss their progress, obstacles, and challenges. The GSA provides members with information, data, research, and networking needed for the successful planning, funding, and operation of spaceports around the world. This has led to the formation of sub-groups such as the academic partnership working group which has representatives from Spaceports representing four different continents.

The monthly Spaceport America podcast covers this subject in the September episode which can be heard at SpaceportAmerica.com. Teachers in New Mexico wanting to learn more about this opportunity can email media@spaceportamerica.com. More information about Orion's Quest can be found by visiting <https://www.orionsquest.org/>.

Remembering Roberto Estrada

The Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce gratefully honors our local legend and icon Roberto Estrada for his leadership, mentorship and support for over the past 28 years.

Roberto Estrada was there in the early days of establishing the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, although back then it was known as the Hispano Chamber de Las Cruces. He was there from the beginning offering the chamber his ideas and suggestions on how to build a strong chamber for small businesses. In 1996 the chamber made Roberto a lifetime member of the chamber for his contributions not only to the chamber but to the business community of Las Cruces.

Since the early 1990s Roberto Estrada was a longtime supporter of the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce and to many of us in this community. Past board directors said nearly every fund-raiser they held, Roberto insisted on providing the food for the events that took place. Roberto still continued to support the Chamber and its members through the years.

As a long supporter of Las Cruces business and local charities, he had many passions. Among them was his dedication to youth related causes including sports. He always was there with a helping hand for many charities and individual families in need.

Roberto, a Mesilla native and Las Cruces High School graduate, started out making tortillas in a local factory. In 1968, he had an opportunity to buy his own business, La Bonita Tortilla Factory. In 1977, he founded Roberto's New Mexico Foods, whose products include frozen enchiladas, tortillas and other treats, available in regional supermarkets.

In 1987, Roberto's Mexican Restaurant opened its doors at 908 E. Amador Ave., and rapidly became a local icon, serving up everything from nachos, sopapillas, gorditas and carne asada tacos to several kinds of tamales, enchiladas, burritos and homemade red and green chile sauces. The restaurant was also a source for products like masa and hojas for those who want to make tamales, at home but don't want to start from scratch.

Roberto was among the founders of The Whole Enchilada Fiesta and is known for his giant enchilada. His feats of culinary derring-do have been chronicled on national networks and local TV news, feature and cooking shows, the Food Channel and newspapers and magazines around the world. He's been featured in documentaries and even movies, he said.

His restaurant walls have some intriguing displays documenting his Guinness World Record honors, magazine and newspaper articles, a high school textbook with pictures of Roberto's feat, and a large machete used to carve the enchilada. Roberto was the Whole Enchilada and a whole lot more to us. He was a role model, mentor and a highly respected businessman not only to fellow business owners, but to all us got to know him.

Throughout the years Roberto has received many awards from numerous local and national organizations. Of all the awards that he received from this chamber; it was our greatest honor to present Roberto Estrada with the Las Cruces Hispanic Chamber of Commerce Hall of Fame award in 2013.

Roberto loved his community and the community truly loved him. His contributions and legacy will live on forever with this chamber and in this community.

movie review

BY JAY BOBBIN

'The Meg' tries to put teeth back in shark movies

For a number of years, the "Sharknado" cable movies kept shark thrillers alive ... but after the last of those was televised, the theatrical-movie industry apparently felt it was time to sharpen itself up on that genre.

Thus we got "The Meg," an old-fashioned scare show that has nothing on "Jaws," though it tries to lift a few elements from that classic tale. In the film — which TNT shows Thursday, Sept. 16, and Friday, Sept. 17 — a prehistoric shark the size of a small island targets an undersea research lab and its crew. You also might think of the film "Deep Blue Sea," and that's how shameless "The Meg" is about ripping off other waterlogged fright fests. "Flipper" may be the only fish tale that hasn't been cribbed from in this case.

Action star Jason Statham plays the chiseled leader of the undersea team, and he's haunted by a tragedy from his seafaring past. (Hello, Quint!) Though he gets top billing, he's not the most interesting person on board, thanks to a cast that also includes such familiar faces as Rainn Wilson of "The Office," Robert Taylor of "Longmire" and Masi Oka of "Heroes" and "Hawaii Five-0."

And then, there is that massive shark, called a Megalodon ... or "The Meg" for short. In a way, this film got stolen from itself, since Syfy premiered a thriller called "Megalodon" within days of "The Meg's" release. With that striking a similarity, we'd say what's good for the goose is good for the gander. But, of course, we'd never say that.

tonight's picks

Kevin Heffernan

6 p.m. on MTV
Floribama Shore

With their vacation in Lake Havasu, Ariz., cut short, the family — including the very pregnant Nilsa — returns to Athens, Ga., to get their party re-started by reconnecting to their southern roots. The group's party headquarters is an animal house in more than one respect, too, with a dog, a pig and two goats. Throw in a revolving door of friends dropping by for a visit, and things get pretty wild, especially during parents' weekend at the Shore House.

8 p.m. on TRU TV
Tacoma FD

The Station 24 squad is kicking ash and taking flames as this hit workplace sitcom returns for Season 3, which includes 13 new episodes in which the Tacoma firefighters deal with a new set of challenges, including quarantine stress, prank wars, frustrating upgrades to their beloved stationhouse and, yes, the Annual Pickleball Tournament. All of that is on top of the bizarre incoming emergency calls, with Chief Terry McConky (Kevin Heffernan) and Captain Eddie Penisi (Steve Lemme) running things. Eugene Cordero, Marcus Henderson, Gabriel Hogan and Hassie Harrison also return.

8 p.m. on WE
Notorious Queens

The epic blowup between Stormey and Meghan inevitably is followed by some equally major fallout in a new episode called "Guess Who's Not Coming to Dinner?" Trying to take her mind off that unpleasantness, Meghan begins her quest in search of the perfect man. Elsewhere, La'Britney struggles to balance work and life demands, while Toni and Stormey finally sit down to discuss their past beef.

“LuLaRich”

This four-part docuseries from executive producers/directors Jenner Furst and Julia Willoughby Nason (“Fyre Fraud”) chronicles the unraveling of LuLaRoe, an infamous multi-level-marketing company run by eccentric founders that enticed young mothers with work-from-home opportunities while recruiting independent retailers to peddle their increasingly bizarre and defective clothing products. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: The Voyeurs”

From writer/director Mike Mohan (“Two Weeks With a Love”) comes this erotic thriller about a young Montreal couple (Sydney Sweeney, “In the Vault,” and Justice Smith, “Paper Towns”) whose interest in the sex life of the couple across the street morphs from curiosity to obsession. Ben Hardy (“Bohemian Rhapsody”) and Natasha Liu Bordizzo (“Crazy About You”) also star. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: The Mad Women's Ball”

Mélanie Laurent (“Inglourious Basterds”) pulls double duty as director and co-star of this French thriller movie about Eugénie (Lou de Laage, “The Innocents”), a young woman in the late 19th century who can hear the dead and is subsequently misdiagnosed with “hysteria” and committed to a Paris neurology clinic where she has a life-changing encounter with nurse Genevieve (Laurent). (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: Everybody's Talking About Jamie”

Choreographer Jonathan Butterell made his feature directorial debut with this adaptation of the musical about Jamie (newcomer Max Harwood), a teen from Sheffield, England, who realizes he doesn't fit in and decides to pursue his life's ambition of becoming a drag queen. Lauren Patel, Richard E. Grant, Sharon Horgan and Sarah Lancashire star in this joint U.S./U.K. production. (ORIGINAL)

Beloved Community is teaming up with the New Mexico State University Theatre Department to host a series of workshops designed to build bridges between disabled and nondisabled communities.

Beloved Community teaming up with NMSU Theatre for workshops

BULLETIN REPORT

The New Mexico State University Theatre Department is again partnering with Beloved Community to provide low stakes, fun and creative workshops exploring human expression through theater games and exercises, said NMSU Theatre Arts assistant professor Nichole Hamilton, who is coordinating the workshops with NMSU Theatre Arts associate professor Larissa Lury.

Fall 2021 semester workshops will be held 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Mondays, Sept. 13, Oct. 11 and Nov. 8 in the rehearsal hall on the second floor of the ASNMSU Center for the Arts, 1000 E. University Ave. The workshops also will be available via Zoom through the link us02web.zoom.us/j/3858834521.

Beloved Community was created in 2013 after state Sen. Bill Soules, D-Doña Ana, introduced state Senate Memorial 20, which created a task force and generated state funding for a demonstration project to serve community residents with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

“Beloved Community was founded to build bridges between those with intellectual and developmental disabilities and those who are neurotypical,” according to the organization’s mission statement.

“Using collaborative art projects, volunteer efforts and civic actions, we encourage people from all walks of life to join together. Because Beloved Community believes each one of us is enriched by friendship and association with those both like and unlike us. A rich, fully functional society not only has room for every individual, it requires the participation of each one of us,” the statement continued.

The term “beloved community” was coined by the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Processing grief through art

Agave Gallery, potters sponsoring 'Healing Wings' to deal with Covid

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Agave Artists' Gallery and the Potters' Guild of Las Cruces are partnering on Healing Wings, a project designed to help people "process through art their grieving and their sorrow brought on by Covid," said artist Paul Maxwell.

Maxwell welcomed artists, potters and guests to the project's dedication ceremony Aug. 27 in the courtyard next door to the Agave Gallery, 2250 Calle de San Albino in Mesilla.

Through Healing Wings, the gallery and the guild are sponsoring community workshops where participants can create a personal ceramic "wing" to commemorate a lost loved one or other difficult experiences related to the pandemic.

program given out at the dedication ceremony. The memorial tree is located on the north wall of the courtyard behind Josephi-na's Old Gate restaurant. "The traditions we rely on to heal aren't available," artist Kathy Baker said. Healing Wings will help the community "acknowledge what we've lost so we can move forward."

The Potters' Guild is turning 40 this year and Healing Wings is "a wonderful way to celebrate," said guild president and charter member Jan Archey.

Archey said community members can create their own ceramic wings at Agave.

Once painted, the wings will be fired in an oven and returned to the studio so their makers can attach a hook and hang them on the memorial tree. The tree also holds memory boxes in which Healing Wings participants can place personal messages to honor those lost during Covid-19.

Members of Tortugas Pueblo conducted a blessing of the tree, the courtyard and the gallery during the dedication.

"This is appropriate," said Tortugas Pueblo Cacique Patrick Narvaez, noting that "Covid has hit the pueblo hard."

Chaplain Linda Pribble also conducted a blessing ceremony during the dedication.

Those attending the ceremony included: Doña Ana County Manager Fernando Macias; county Health and Human Services (HHS) Director Jamie Michael; and county HHS Program Administrator Anabel Canchola.

Healing Wings workshops will be held in September 2021. The project is expected to last a year.

Participants must register at agaveartists.com/healing-wings-project.

You can donate to the project at that website or at www.pottersguildlc.org/donate.

Arts Council features Maria Dolores paintings in September

BULLETIN REPORT

The Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) will exhibit work by local artist Maria Dolores in its Staszewski Gallery during September.

Originally from New York City, Dolores has been a resident of Las Cruces for 37 years.

She has been a part of the local art community since 1995, exploring watercolor, acrylic and oil.

Dolores "is truly a lifelong learner of the arts attending classes in high school and studying with some of the best art teachers in the Mesilla Valley, including Sally Quillin, Fred Chilton, Joe Ireland and Jan Archey," DAAC Executive Director Greg Smith said.

"My passion lies in the continuous pursuit of subjects that excite my inner creativity," Dolores said.

Her work has been exhibited at the Thomas Branigan Memorial Library and the Cutter Gallery and can be found in private collections across the country

DAAC, 250 W. Amador Ave., is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon to 5 p.m. the second Saturday of every month.

'Celebrate Authors' introduces more authors for Sept. 19 event

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

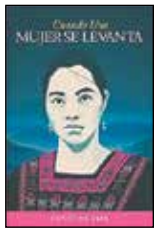

A total of 40 local writers will participate in "Celebrate Authors," which will be held 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 19, in the boardroom and Roadrunner Room on the second floor of Thomas Branigan Memorial Library, 200 E. Picacho Ave. The event is free and open to the public.

Moonbow Alterations and Moonbow's Book Nook are the event sponsors.

Celebrate Authors 2021 will feature authors from Las Cruces and surrounding area with books published in 2019, 2020 and 2021. The event began in 2014.

Here are three additions to the list of participating authors.

Christine Eber is the author of "When a Woman Rises" ("Mujer se Levanta" in Spanish), which was published in 2018.

"On my path as an anthropologist, I have found fiction to be a powerful way to build bridges between languages, cultures and nationalities," Eber said. "My first novel, 'When a Woman Rises,' was inspired by my work with Maya women in Chiapas, Mexico.

"The book is the story of a friendship between two Tsotsil Maya women, Lucia and Magdalena," Eber said. "Lucia is a single woman who heals through prayer and herbs while Magdalena is a weaver, wife and mother.

LISA

MYLES CULBERTSON

"After writing the book, I felt that it was something that Mayas could relate to," Eber said. "Unfortunately, due to poverty and racism, most Mayas haven't had money to buy books or to go on in school past sixth grade. To challenge in a small way this unfair legacy of colonialism, I wanted to get a Spanish translation into the hands of Mayas for free. In 2020, with the help of over 100 generous GoFundMe donors, 2,000 copies of 'Cuando una mujer se levanta' were printed in Chiapas. The pandemic has slowed down distribution, but little by little people are reading it. One response from a group of Maya health promoters was music to my ears: 'If Lucia can tell the story of her life, why can't we?' After that, people who had never put pencil to paper began to write their stories."

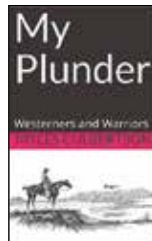

"After 20 years in the Army and another 20 working for a living, I finally found time to do what I have always wanted to do — write," said Lisa Archer. "I have done three editions of 'A Life's Sampler,' each a compilation of whatever I felt like writing that year. In conjunction with the students of Bliss Elementary, I published 'Tony Goes to School,' about my therapy dog. My latest is 'A Coloring Book of Dogs, Cats and other Critters,' an educational bilingual coloring book done at the request of a rescue organization.

"If I am qualified to give advice to anybody, I would say, 'Write what inspires you, what you feel you need to do,'" Archer said. "If you write to meet others' goals you won't enjoy it."

Myles Culbertson grew up on Park Springs Ranch in northeastern New Mexico and was in the cattle business for many years, ranching in New Mexico and Colorado.

In his varied career, Culbertson has engaged in ranching, banking, international trade, border economic and technological devel-

“My only book came from the need to get a few true stories down on paper before they were lost to time,” Culbertson said. “I had not considered the idea of an actual book until a friend suggested I compile them for people to enjoy. I did, and ‘My Plunder’ is the result. It was a rewarding experience, and I am currently working on an historical novel, which is giving me a whole new admiration and respect for those who author such work.

“The only advice I would have for anyone who thinks he or she would like to write is, (1) what you have is important, so do it, and (2) sit your tail down in the chair and start,” he said.

Award-winning Trinity film to be shown at the Fountain Theatre

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Starting with a personal journey into the mysterious occupation of his grandfather, Larry Sheffield discovered some intriguing bits that led him to a much bigger discovery. Once realizing his grandfather's involvement in the Manhattan Project, Sheffield developed a great interest in researching the Trinity Test event and its relationship to his family in Alamogordo and New Mexico.

Now he has released a film, "Alamogordo, Center of the World, Trinity 1945," which will be shown in Las Cruces at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 14 at the Fountain Theatre in Mesilla.

"What started as a personal journey turned into

John Emde, Larry Sheffield's grandfather, and mother, Jane, in the middle. Larry Sheffield has created a film on the Trinity Test and its relationship with Alamogordo.

the creation of a film that tells the story about the Manhattan Project and Trinity Site and reveals rarely discussed facts that I discovered through my research as to why Alamogordo was specifically chosen for the location of the first nuclear test site," Sheffield said.

Sheffield makes great use of rarely seen photos and film clips from the time and adds in some technology and color enhancement to draw the viewer into the events surrounding the exploding of the first atomic bomb and bringing the city of Alamogordo into the lime-light of the world for a little while.

His history of the event and of the city intertwine, bringing sense to the reason behind the choice of the location for the test and making connections with the players in the event. From the son of one of Alamogordo's founders Charles Hawkins, David, who met Robert Oppenheimer, the science leader behind the Manhattan

Project, at Princeton, the film provides plenty of interesting fodder for the mind.

He also throws in some tidbits he learned along the way, like the incorporation of a women's brigade into the activities at Los Alamos leading up to the Trinity Test. Four hundred twenty-two enlisted women were brought together to provide essential tasks behind the scenes.

Due to the volume of classified information in the project, the Manhattan District Women's Army Auxiliary Corps Detachment was established to utilize women in uniform in dealing with all the classified information passing through the project.

The film, while addressing the test itself and what led up to it, primarily looks at Alamogordo as a "turning point" from a railroad stop and lumber town to the site of a base that saw the world change.

"Seventy-five years later, we're still dealing with the effects of that moment," Sheffield said. "It's good for the topic to remain at the forefront, because so much happened. I wanted to give a different perspective with this film."

The film was entered into a dozen film festivals during Covid-19 and reviewed in national and international competition by film judges. The film unexpectedly took home four film festival awards.

Tickets are a $5 donation and will benefit the Mesilla Valley Film Society. For information or tickets email Sheffield at larry@larrysheffield.com.

Can texting create a love for reading later in life?

Camilla, a first-grader is amusing herself with her mother's phone while Mom tries on clothes at the store. She recognizes a message from Dad and answers it. Soon Camilla is shouting into the dressing room, "Mom, how do you spell 'shopping'?" Camilla is a reluctant reader with little confidence. Now, she is happily texting with Dad and asking for help in deciphering his messages. Another win for social media. Now what? Will an early introduction to the seductions of text messages interfere with future learning? According to a Neilson survey, the average American teen texts 3,339 messages per month.

David Crystal, linguist and author of "Texts and Tweets: Myths and Realities," believes that language is evolving as it always has. "Teenagers say that they text because 'It's cool.' You can't be cool unless you know the rules," Crystal said. Current research reveals that the best texters are the best readers and spellers because they are getting lots of practice. Studies published in the British Journal of Computer Assisted Learning and the Australian Journal of Educational Development and Psychology found a positive correlation between texting and literacy, concluding that texting is "actually driving the development of phonological awareness and reading skill in children."

To abbreviate message as "msg" or tonight as "2nite," you must understand how sounds and letters work, and how words are constructed. Texting encourages students to think about these relationships, helping them to understand how words are built. Creating a textism, just like writing a poem, isn't easy. To create a readable textism one must break the word into something short and catchy without losing meaning.

Turns out that abbreviating words has a very long history. Abbreviations are a natural part of the evolution of language. "OK," the most popular American word in the world, was invented during the age of the telegraph, because it was concise. Teachers were not impressed! Every new technology — from the printing press to the telegraph, radio, telephone, TV (oh, there's another one) to the cell phone — inevitably inspired new spelling, new abbreviations and new words. We do it all the time ... BBQ ... RIP. The most popular textisms are becoming official; OMG entered the Oxford English Dictionary last year.

Try decoding these rebus puzzles of the Victorian age. Lewis Carroll and Queen Victoria were big fans.

Up to this point in the column, the topic has been the mechanics of reading, which is certainly foundational to all reading and writing to come. At Children's Reading Alliance, we are concerned with building on that firm foundation to develop the love of reading, the wings that take readers all over the universe, from the past and into the future and to places only imagined. Today's reality is that many of our children have lost precious time in skill building and the application of those skills to provide a well-informed life rich in opportunities in literature and every kind of reading, the fun part, the important stuff.

Children's Reading Alliance is committed to reaching all of our children with quality reading opportunities. Whether you are sheltering at home or eager to get out your participation is needed. Join us by mentoring a young reader, reading to a group of children, performing back-office duties or donating much needed funds.

The Sun Bus is making stops in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona in September and October, with local dermatologists donating their time to conduct the screenings, said Julie Sainz, who is Epiphany Dermatology's director of regional operations for Las Cruces, El Paso and the state of Montana.

Epiphany bought dermatologist Dr. James Kerner's Las Cruces practice four years ago and manages that office (where Kerner continues to work as a dermatologist), along with offices in Albuquerque and several other New Mexico locations.

"We follow the lead and culture of the doctor we're partnering with," Sainz said. "That's what made the physician successful to begin with."

Other staff in the Las Cruces office include certified nurse practitioner Anne Woodling, physician's assistant Ryan Holcomb, aesthetician Andrea Hollosi and dermatologist Dr. Jennifer Herrmann.

Kerner is well known to the Las Cruces community, working as a dermatologist locally for the past 14 years.

Annual Showcase of Homes to feature about a dozen houses

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Las Cruces Home Builders Association's (LCHBA) 48th annual Showcase of Homes will be held Friday through Sunday, Sept. 17-19 and 24-26. Hours are Fridays, 4 to 7 p.m.; Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sundays, noon to 5 p.m. A twilight tour is 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24.

A total of 11 homes will be on this year's tour, LCHBA Executive Officer Nicole Black said. That's about half the usual number because homes are selling so quickly, she said. Currently, about 95 percent of the homes built by LCHBA-member contractors are pre-sold, Black said.

And even though the industry is booming, Black said, shortages of labor and supplies, especially lumber, also have contributed to fewer homes being built.

This year's showcase celebrity judges are: Las Cruces Association of Realtors CEO Erica Mosher; KFOX 14/CBS 4 reporter Salina Madrid; Hot 103 Radio on-air personal-ity Joseph Hernandez; City of Las Cruces Economic Development specialist Donald Bustos; and Adams Radio Group Program Director Jackie Marquez-Wilkinson.

The 2021 showcase is dedicated to the memory of LCHBA Vice President Tyson Brown, who died suddenly Aug. 3, Black said. Brown joined LCHBA's board of directors in 2019 and became vice president earlier this year. The Tyson Brown Memorial Fund has been set up at First New Mexico Bank to benefit Brown's wife and two children, she said.

Casa for a Cause

A labor and supply shortage has delayed construction of LCHBA's 2021 Casa for a Cause fundraiser, Black said. The association broke ground on the home April 13 and expected to complete it in mid-September. That's been pushed back to late November, Black said.

Adam Juarez's A New Beginning Custom Homes is the project's lead contractor.

With assistance from LCHBA, subcontractors and other donors, Juarez is building a three-bedroom, two-bath house at 3029 Little Creek Court for the 2021 project. Proceeds from the sale of the home will be divided among local nonprofits chosen by LCHBA.

Black said LCHBA is still accepting applications from nonprofits to receive a share of the proceeds.

LCHBA's four Casa with a Cause houses built since 2014 have raised nearly $350,000 for local nonprofits.

Tyson Brown Memorial Build My Future program

LCHBA is partnering with Las Cruces Public Schools on its second annual Build My Future program, renamed in honor of Brown.

The program gives local high-school students a chance to spend a day working in the local construction industry.

This year's event will be held 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 6 at 2345-2355 E. Nevada Ave., where learning labs will allow students to try their hands at various construction-industry practices.

KT Homes, owned by Las Cruces contractor Kent Thurston, is building homes at those sites while providing training and hands-on experience to students.

Rawson Builders Supply and Doña Ana Community College are sponsoring the program, along with LCHBA.

Green Goods cannabis dispensary expands, adds Cruces store to NM footprint

BULLETIN REPORT

A cannabis dispensary has opened in Las Cruces at 1405 S. Valley Drive. It's in the same shopping center with Village Inn restaurant, near the intersection of Valley and Avenida de Mesilla.

Green Goods opened Aug. 18. The company is a subsidiary of Goodness Growth Holdings, Inc., which calls itself "a physician-led, science-focused cannabis company and IP (intellectual property) incubator."

The Las Cruces location is a 2,490-square-foot storefront, Green Goods said in a news release, making it Goodness Growth's largest retail space in New Mexico. Green Goods also opened a new 1,995-square-foot dispensary in Albuquerque. The two businesses could generate a combined 30 jobs.

The new dispensaries will offer a wide variety of Vireo Health products and items from other cannabis growers in New Mexico, including cannabis flower, concentrates, pre-rolls, edibles, tinctures and topicals.

The City of Las Cruces does not yet have a specific designation for cannabis businesses, but this likely is the first or among the first to be licensed in Las Cruces.

The Las Cruces dispensary is opened 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Aggies play better in loss to San Diego State, face UNM next

For nearly three quarters, the New Mexico State University football team played like it wanted to shock the world.

DAVE BURGE
Beyond the pressbox

The Aggies led heavily favored San Diego State 10-0 at halftime and 10-7 late in the third quarter before falling 28-10 on Sept. 4 in Carson, Calif. The host Aztecs were 31-point favorites coming into the game.

NMSU is now a somewhat disappointing 0-2 after the high hopes of summer workouts and fall camp. But the season can quickly turn around this weekend.

The Aggies take on the University of New Mexico

COURTESY PHOTO FROM NMSU

The New Mexico State University football team is sure to be fired up when it faces in-state rival University of New Mexico on Saturday, Sept. 11. Here, the Aggies take the field against UTEP in their season opener on Aug. 28.

Lobos at 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 11 in Albuquerque. The Lobos are coming off a 27-17 win over Houston Baptist in their season opener on Sept. 2.

But like any good rivalry, you can throw the records out the window when it comes to this annual grudge match.

NMSU coach Doug Martin says the Aggies are in the unique position of having two natural rivals — UTEP about 40 miles down the road in El Paso and UNM, about 200 miles to the north.

The Aggies played much better at times against San Diego State after losing 30-3 to UTEP on Aug. 28. The Aggies dug themselves a 17-0 hole and were never really in the game against their Battle of I-10 rivals.

Now, the Aggies can turn their attention up north to their in-state rivals. The Aggies and Lobos first started playing back in 1894, when Grover Cleveland was president. That's 18 years before New Mexico even became a state.

The Lobos lead the all-time series 72-33-5 and have won the last two meetings.

The Aggies last beat UNM 30-28 in 2017 en route to the school's first bowl berth and bowl victory since 1960.

The win over UNM helped to propel NMSU to a magical season, culminating with a 26-20 overtime win over Utah State in the Arizona Bowl.

Last year's game was canceled because of the pandemic. It was the first time since 1945 that the in-state rivals did not meet on the football field. Think about that — 75 years.

So a win this weekend would go a long way to helping to turn around the Aggies' 2021 campaign.

One of the great things about the NMSU-UNM rivalry is it's just a quick three-hour drive between the schools. That means fans from both schools have a history of hitting I-25 and cheering on their team when they are on the road facing their in-state rival.

It's not too late to make some last-minute plans and go and visit Albuquerque for the weekend and cheer on the Aggies. And of course, there are plenty of NMSU graduates living in Albuquerque, the metro area around the Duke City and in northern New Mexico.

After the first two weeks of the season, it would be nice to see a strong contingent of Aggie fans show up at the UNM game. They could sure use the support.

Some hot takes from the Golf Doctor on the game he loves so much Sometimes I respond to readers' questions with, I trust, straightforward and useful answers from my research and understanding. In this edition of Dr. Golf at large, I'm simply offering my personal views on several current topics.

First on my list is what has become deplorable fan behavior. It's great to see a golf course full of patrons lining tournament fairways, but it deeply concerns me regarding the growing bad behavior of golf fans heckling players at PGA Tour events.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

And it's far worse than an idiot yelling "Get in the hole" at the top of his lungs as a player hits a 320-yard drive. At the BMW Championship a couple of weeks ago, fans taunted Bryson DeChambeau by screaming "Brooksie" and "Baba Boeey."

Of course, boorish, loudmouth and unsportsmanlike fans have been around for a long time. In the 1800s, fellows who had wagered on one player were known to pick up a competitor's feathery ball and toss it into the gorse.

In the modern day, they hounded and badgered young Jack Nicklaus who started beating their beloved Arnie Palmer, and they were relentless in picking on Colin Montgomerie. It is apparent that the Tour tolerates (maybe encourages) rowdy fans at the 16th hole at TPC Scottsdale (Waste Management Phoenix Open) as well as the Ryder Cup matches.

In early August, Tim Gavrich wrote a great article for golfpass.com with the tag line "Has golf fandom lost its moral high ground for good?" He noted that fan treatment of DeChambeau runs directly against the game's tradition and civility. To me, it is quite evident that Camp Ponte Vedra, along with tournament directors, are afraid to do what Augusta National does at the Masters: remove uncivilized, possibly overserved and unruly, fans for life.

Just a week ago, PGA Tour Commissioner Jay Monahan announced that yelling "Brooksie" or other as-yet-to-be-named insults could get a fan ejected from an event. "Comments that undermine the inclusive and welcoming nature of the game will not be tolerated, nor will any harassment of players (and others)," he said. Well, at least it's a start, even if somewhat flimsy.

I haven't read through the PGA Tour's dress code for tournaments but I do know that shorts are not permitted, except sometimes for practice rounds.

Which brings me to Erik van Rooyen who wears what amounts to be clown pants or gym-type sweatpants, cinched at the ankle. All other players are wearing slacks so snug below the knee that they must be stretchy to get their feet into them. Why can't they wear dress slacks that fall loosely over the shoe tops?

As the saying in football goes, defense wins championships. In golf putting wins championships. That was no more evident on Sunday evening, Aug. 29, when stoic Patrick Cantlay made a basket-full of putts, first just to stay in the 6-hole playoff against Bryson DeCham-beau at the BMW FedEx tournament, and then win it on his final putt.

Cantlay was out-driven all day by De Chambeau by over 30 yards.

That didn't matter to the player they now call "Patty Ice" for his steady, plodding, seemingly expressionless demeanor. For the week Cantlay holed a total of 537.5 feet of putts, not including the playoff holes – 134 feet per round.

He picked up a mind-boggling 14.577 strokes (gained) on the greens on his competitors. His number of three-putts? Zero. I guess the old cliché "drive for show, putt for dough," may be valid after all; Cantlay made a cool $1.7-plus million at BMW.

It's been three years since the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that all 50 states have the right to legalize sports betting. By the end of 2021, online or in-person betting will be sanctioned in more than half the country. The PGA Tour has embraced betting and shows ads for FanDuel and DraftKings, along with betting lines on their TV broadcasts. I had always thought golf was above the realm of bookies. They don't call Vegas "Lost Wages" for nothing.

Lacrosse club seeks players

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces Lacrosse program is seeking players age 8 to 14 for its fall season.

Practice began on Sept. 9 and will be held on Thursdays from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at Frenger Park.

Lacrosse is traditionally a spring sport, but a fall season is designed to get players familiar with the sport and excited about the spring season, head coach and club co-founder Janae Kraus said.

The cost to sign up for the fall season is $20, but you need to be a member of USA Lacrosse to participate. A youth USA Lacrosse membership includes insurance, lasts a year and is $30, Kraus said.

You can get a membership by going to USALacrosse.com/membership.

The club has equipment that can be borrowed. "I don't think people realize we are here and we want to get the word out," Kraus said.

The fall season will culminate with a tournament Oct. 9-10 in Santa Fe.
