Cruces state senator: Interim panels are vital

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

For state Sen. Bill Soules and many of his colleagues, “lots of the real work” on legislation gets done during the long gaps between sessions of the New Mexico Legislature.

Soules, a Las Cruces Democrat, was re-elected to his third consecutive four-year term in 2020. He is chair of the Senate Education Committee and a member of the Senate Conservation Committee.

Soules also serves on four interim committees, and spends an average of three days a week between sessions attending committee hearings across the state.

He is chair of the Legislative Education Study Committee (LESC), which has met in Hobbs, Socorro and Santa Fe since the 2021 legislative session ended; vice chair of the Public Schools Capital Outlay Oversight Task Force, which has met three times since the session included, including two meetings in Santa Fe and one held virtually; a member of the Science, Technology and Telecommunications Committee (TSSC), which was created in May and has held meetings in Las Cruces and Los Alamos and one virtual meeting; and an advisory member of the Indian Affairs Committee (meetings in Gallup, Shiprock and Farmington since the session ended, plus one virtual meeting).

BILL SOULES

LESC meeting agendas have included changing high-school graduation requirements, the role of middle school in setting students up to succeed and a review of the more than $1.5 billion in federal Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Relief Fund money the state has received in response to Covid-19.

Among many other items on its work list, TSSC will focus on efforts to increase broadband development statewide and energy system modernization, including a look at the ability of the state's current grid to meet anticipated demand.

The hearings are very important to legislators, Soules said, because they don't have time to fully understand the hundreds

Changes loom for state education

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

They may not come up during the 2022 New Mexico Legislature because it's a short session restricted to budget matters and the governor's call, but some important structural changes to education in New Mexico are on their way, said state Sen. Bill Soules, D-Doña Ana, who is chair of the Senate Education Committee and the interim Legislative Education Study Committee (LESC).

A top priority is redesigning high-school graduation requirements, which currently look like “a Jenga tower,” Soules said.

“It's time to start over,” he said. “What do we want high-school graduate courses to look like? How do we do that?”

The Aug. 31-Sept. 1 LESC meeting in Socorro included “High School Graduation Requirements: An Analysis of State Options.” Drafted

by LESC staff, the report compared high-school graduation requirements among the top 15 state education systems in the county to requirements in New Mexico, which is ranked 51st among education systems in all states and the District of Columbia. States were ranked by the personal finance website WalletHub using 32 metrics. New Mexico was listed as “high spend, weak school system,” the

School bus contractor faces shortage of drivers in Las Cruces district

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

STS of New Mexico General Manager Van Wamel is not only interviewing bus-driver applicants and training new drivers, he's also driving a bus himself.

STS, which has had the bus contract with Las Cruces Public Schools since 2011, runs 126 routes for the school district, and is about 20 drivers short of the number needed to cover all the routes and provide a relief pool of about 10 percent of that total, Wamel said.

Wamel said the base pay for STS New Mexico bus drivers has increased to $14 an hour. It includes part-time (bus drivers are part-time employees) health, dental and vision benefits and 401K eligibility after a probationary period.

STS provides 30 to 36 hours of training for drivers to get them fully licensed, Wamel said, and no previous experience is required, nor is any license endorsement. A road test is conducted by an STS examiner who is licensed by the state, he said.

Wamel said the job is ideal for a wide range of people, including college students, early retirees and parents with school-age children.

Wamel said the shortage of bus drivers is the result of attrition and the pandemic, with a number of drivers deciding to retire when the pandemic shut down schools in 2020.

EDUCATION

LESC report said.

In their analysis, LESL staff said New Mexico requires students to complete more units than many other states, and two of the top-performing states (Massachusetts and Vermont) allow graduation requirements to be fully determined by local school boards.

The report said high-performing education systems worldwide have these commonalities: effective teachers and principals; a rigorous and adaptive learning system; equitable foundation of supports; and coherent and aligned governance. High-performing U.S.

states have robust economies; high kindergarten-12th grade test scores and graduation rates; relatively high spending on schools; strong foundations in early childhood; and widespread postsecondary participation.

Soules said the National Conference of State Legislatures' No Time to Lose report, "How to Build a World-Class Education System State by State," can help guide New Mexico as it considers other educational reforms, including making sure teachers "are highly prepared," increasing vocational and technical education opportunities for high-school students and looking at education more holistically instead of as separate pieces.

of bills that are introduced during the Legislature's 30-day (even years, like the one coming up in 2022) and 60-day (odd years) sessions.

Since he began serving in the Legislature in January 2013, Soules said he has put an average of about 15,000 miles a year on his car traveling to interim committee hearings.

The travel is "a good time to catch up on phone calls," he said (Soules has a handsfree phone system in his car), and "driving this state is incredibly beautiful," he said. Legislators receive per diem during the travels, but are not paid.

If he's frugal, the per diem covers mileage, lodging and meals, said Soules, a retired teacher and principal and former member of the Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education.

Soules also travels frequently to meetings of national organizations he belongs to as part of his legislative service, including the Council of State Governments, National Conference of State Legislators, National Caucus of Environmental Legislators, national Energy Council and the Border Legislative Conference.

Council update: GO Bond projects are ahead of schedule

FROM A CITY OF LAS CRUCES NEWS RELEASE

The present and possible future of General Obligation (GO) Bond projects were discussed by the Las Cruces City Council at its Sept. 27 work session.

The council received an update on the $35.6 million in GO bonds approved by voters in an all-mail election in August 2018, and council members also got an update on the city's proposed 2022 GO bond program.

The city's project to replace Fire Station No. 3 is about 63 percent completed, according to city officials.

Hadley Recreation Complex have been completed 46 days ahead of their projected completion dates, including improvements at Ralph Maag Park, Jim Harty Field, Raymond Paz Park and Ron Gall T-ball

Field. Improvements for city parks and sports courts, which include repairs to Hillrise Court, 2619 Hillrise Drive; Lions Park tennis courts, 701 E. Picacho Ave.; the outdoor basketball court at Frank O'Brien Papen Center, 304 W. Bell Ave.; and tennis court at Young Park, 1905 Nevada Ave.; are now 79 percent complete. A large shade structure at Young Park was expected to be completed by Sept. 30.

Repairs have also been completed to outdoor basketball courts at Henry Benavidez Community Center, 1045 McClure Road; Metro Verde Park, 7125 Metro Verde Drive; Cardon Park, 1050 N. Mesquite St.; and Klein Park, 155 N. Mesquite St.

A public ribbon-cutting ceremony to mark the opening of pickleball courts at Apodaca Park, 801 E. Madrid Ave., was held Friday, Oct. 1.

Contract negotiations for improvements at Unidad Park, 1500 E. Hadley Ave., are nearing completion, as are negotiations for construction of the East Mesa Public Recreation Complex. Construction is underway for two dog parks, with earthwork 70 percent complete at a new dog park on Rinconada Boulevard, adjacent to the Animal Services of the Mesilla Valley. Also, site clearing began Sept. 6 for a new dog park at Burn Lake.

Construction of a new Animal Services Center, 3551 Bataan Memorial West, is about 15 percent complete, while replacement of the city's Fire Station No. 3, at 390 N. Valley Drive, is approximately 63 percent finished.

Construction and improvements to walking, jogging and biking trails are now 55 percent complete.

All projects will be finished by December 2022.

City administration and staff told the council there will be numerous public opportunities for residents to provide input on projects that could be included in a new cycle of GO bond projects for a scheduled November 2022 bond election.

The council was also presented with several options to consider in making a final determination of how much to seek in bond funding in the election.

To continue GO bond projects without increasing city property taxes – which was the consensus of council members at the Sept. 27 meeting – the council could request $23 million in GO bond funding.

Sometimes biggest dreams are the simplest

Where will you sleep tonight? Chances are, you'll sleep in the same comfortable bed you slept in last night?

We know there are far too many homeless people in our community that won't get a comfortable night's sleep in a bed tonight. We know this, because we drive by them every day on the streets, and see them huddled in a cardboard box or crouched in a grocery cart.

However, there's another group of people without a decent bed, a group not as visible. They are children.

I'm not talking homeless children, but children who have to share a bed with one or two siblings. Children who have a bed, but it's broken down and smelly. Children who have no bed and sleep on a couch or love seat.

RICHARD COLTHARP

Wanda Bowman of Ashley Homestore points to about 20 youth beds the store gave this week to children in the community.

We know the importance of a good diet and a good night's sleep for children, and the importance those things have on their ability to learn and grow.

While all of us can donate food and some money to the less fortunate, not all of us can donate a bed.

Wanda Bowman can.

As the owner/operator of Ashley Homestore, Bowman has learned of the plight of many children in our community.

So, a dozen years or so ago, Bowman modified her annual "All I Want for Christmas" project, which supplied rooms of furniture to a handful of needy families in December. She grew to realize the dire need for beds for children in the Las Cruces area. Bowman adopted Ashley's "Hope to Dream" program, where she can purchase youth beds for children and, in turn, donate them throughout the year.

Last week, Bowman donated more than 20 beds to children under 12 in our community. That puts the total over 100 for the year.

Every year, Bowman reads the letters from families request-

Local elections for city council, other boards worth the challenge

Every four years, Americans flock to the polls in droves to elect a new president. Last year, more than 155 million people cast their ballots, most of them just happy that the campaign was finally over, at least for a minute.

Two year later, we have the mid-term elections, where we elect a new governor, and all members of both the state and U.S. House are up for re-election.

Next year, voters will get to weigh in for the first time on the governor's aggressive public health order to combat Covid-19.

In odd-numbered years

WALT RUBEL
The View

like this one, we get the ugly stepchild of the electoral system — municipal and school board elections.

Unlike the big, national campaigns that make themselves impossible to ignore, local elections can sneak up on you. Early voting started Oct. 5 for this year's election, which will be held on Nov. 2.

A few years ago, the Legislature did voters a huge favor by requiring that all local elections be held on the same day.

This year, seats on the Las Cruces City Council, Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education and the Doña Ana Soil and Water Conservation Board will be at stake, as well as similar boards in smaller towns throughout the county.

This will be a transitional election for the city council, with two members stepping down to seek other positions.

Gill Sorg will be running for a spot on the soil and water board, while Gabe Vasquez will be looking ahead to the 2022 election, where he plans to challenge U.S. Rep. Yvette Herrell for her seat in Congress.

Local elections can be a lot more challenging for voters.

Because the elections are nonpartisan, voters don't have the crutch of simply casting their ballots for the R or D.

And, there won't be a lot of TV ads helping the candidates introduce themselves to voters. There are a lot of candidates this year running for the first time. That can make it tough for voters to make an informed decision.

Fortunately, the Covid vaccines will allow for more normal campaigns this year, with candidates able to host meet-and-greets, go door-to-door and engage in the other traditional campaign events to get their message to the voters.

Both KTAL-LP 101.5 FM community radio and KRWG TV are hosting candidate forums that will be available online. Local newspapers will also help provide information.

And, one of the best resources for voters is the candidates' own websites, where the message is always unfiltered.

Local elections may be more challenging for voters, but they're worth the effort.

Decisions made by the local city council and school board have a more immediate and direct impact on our daily lives than edicts flowing down from Washington, D.C.

The Las Cruces City Council increased the minimum wage for local workers before the state did. We're still waiting on Congress.

They were also ahead of the state and feds in banning plastic bags. And, they are currently working on the thorny issue of determining when your noisy neighbor crosses the line and is too loud for the law to allow.

The Las Cruces school board drew protests this year when it changed its curriculum in an attempt to make it more inclusive for students of all cultures and nationalities. Several parents expressed concerns that the change would lead to an indoctrination of the students, and to a belittlement of the dominant culture.

We have the power to shape those critical decisions moving forward by voting this year.

ing help for a bed. And every year, Bowman is struck anew at the dire situations right here in Las Cruces.

“Your heart just goes out,” Bowman said. “The requests are overwhelming.”

One family was able to use Covid stimulus money to buy a bed for their daughter, but couldn't afford a new bed for their son.

Another family wrote of two small boys forced to sleep together in a small twin bed, which the younger one regularly wets. The family hoped for a bed for the older one, so he could stay dry.

“We had a family who lost their home and all their furniture in the La Union flood,” Bowman said.

If you can think of a situation causing a family to need a bed for a child, Bowman's probably seen it.

She's also seen plenty of situations you couldn't imagine.

“These children, less than 12 years old, they didn't choose to be without a bed,” Bowman said.

We know how excited children can get over a new toy, a new bicycle or a favorite meal. For most children, though, a new bed is a humdrum thing. For these children, a new bed almost means a new life.

Until you've slept on a broken bed, a lumpy couch, or shared a bed with a couple of siblings, you can't realize the importance of having your own bed. Your own place to sleep and, just maybe, the chance to actually get a good night's sleep, peaceful enough to foster a happy dream.

Retired teacher Cort seeks full four-year term on LCPS board

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Pamela Cort was appointed to fill a vacancy on the Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education in July and is seeking a full four-year term in the Nov. 2 local election.

Cort grew up in Santa Fe and has lived in Las Cruces for the past 31 years. After beginning her career with Albuquerque Public Schools, she taught French at Las Cruces High School for 26 years, retiring in May 2019.

"I have been an educator my entire life," said Cort, who is making her first bid for public office. She was appointed to the school board after Terrie Dallman resigned.

Cort said she decided to seek a full term because of "some very specific things I want to do as far as taking care of our children," including having an "equitable outcome for all of our students," regardless of their ethnicity or what language they speak.

She would also like to see activity buses used at LCPS high schools so those students who want to can stay after regular school hours to participate in clubs and organizations or whatever after-school activities they are interested in.

"When students have a sense of belonging, they are more active and more successful in school," Cort said.

Cort said she would like to see less emphasis on standardized tests to determine student success. Alternatives like student portfolios ensure that student needs are met and include each student's "rich cultural history and linguistic history" rather than the "one and done" of a standardized test, she said.

Cort said she is very supportive of community schools. She attended the ribbon cutting for LCPS' fifth community school, Alameda Elementary.

"What I love about community schools is they go in first and assess the needs of the community and then work with community partners to make sure those needs are met," she said. "It's amazing. It's wonderful what we can do as a community when we all come together to make sure everyone in the community is thriving."

There are 12 schools in LCPS District 2, which Cort represents on the board, and she has visited all of them, Cort said.

"We just have such amazing schools in Las Cruces," she said. "I am so proud of our district. We do such cool things for kids. I just want to continue that work."

Cort said she appreciates "the adaptability of LCPS" since the onset of the pandemic and the need to incorporate remote learning and deal with "the social and emotional problems for the entire community that came with that — not just the kids, but everyone."

"We constantly have to reinvent the idea of schools," Cort said, to make the changes necessary to help LCPS meet "our number one priority, to be successful as a kid."

"The biggest challenge for teachers right now ... is making sure everyone feels safe so they can learn," Cort said. "Students need somebody who will advocate for them, make them feel safe, make them feel valued."

Cort said she knew and worked with the late Karen Trujillo, who was LCPS superintendent until she was killed in an automobile accident in February.

Trujillo "did such a wonderful job and had so many great things in place," Cort said.

Now working with new Superintendent Ralph Ramos, "I am so impressed," Cort said. "He works so hard to make sure we are doing what's best for kids. He is always looking ahead."

Cort was named LCPS teacher of the year in 2012 and New Mexico teacher of the year in 2013.

Cort has a BA in French from Washington State University, an MA in curriculum and instruction from New Mexico State University and an Ed.S. (education specialist) in curriculum, instruction and assessment from Walden University.

Nearly 3K attend EAA's Wings n Wheels 'Fest at Cruces airport

"I can't get the smile off my face," said pilot and state Sen. Bill Soules of Las Cruces during his attendance at Wings n Wheels 'Fest, Saturday, Sept. 25, at Las Cruces International Airport (LCIA).

"This is absolutely wonderful," said City Councilor Yvonne Flores, who is the council's liaison to the airport.

Nearly 3,000 people attended Wings n Wheels, said event coordinator Brett Hahn of the Experimental Aircraft Association Chapter 555 of Las Cruces (EAA), which sponsored Wings n Wheels 'Fest. It raised about $5,000 for the EAA's

All four vendors at the event sold out by early afternoon, Hahn said, offering his thanks to Jim Leon at Jim Bob's Barbecue, Vince Vaccaro at

The show had 34 planes, 59 cars and four motorcycles on display, he said. A

Hahn said the oldest car in the show was a 1930 Ford Model A that was driven to the airport. The newest entry was a

Hahn said 14 hand-crafted trophies were awarded "to best-of-show cars and airplanes, along with several people that were acknowledged with awards for their lifetime of contribution, achievement and mentoring efforts for the next generation in aviation and aerospace industry."

Hahn also thanked the event's 70 volunteers, including cadets from the Civil Air Patrol, Las Cruces Aviators Flying Club and co-owner Tania Privette, EAA pilots, Hustle Hard Enterprises, Lasen International and

Food program exceeds Hunger Strike goal of raising $50,000

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

With a $2,000 check presented by The Shed owner Gabe Mendoza to Casa de Peregrinos (CdP) emergency food program Executive Director Lorenzo Alba, CdP surpassed its $50,000 goal for its third annual Hunger Strike fundraiser.

"It's been a really incredible 24 hours," Alba said Sept. 24, as the fundraiser drew to a close with a breakfast for this year's participants at The Shed.

The hunger strike began Thursday morning, Sept. 23, with breakfast at Josephina's Old Gate restaurant

Between the two meals, this year's 54 participants fasted as they used social media and other personal contact to solicit donations from friends, family and co-workers.

Alba and six others began the fundraiser in 2019, raising $38,000. The event raised $42,000 last year, Alba said. His goal for 2022 is 100 participants.

Alba has been CdP executive director since June 2011. CdP was founded in April 1979 by four La Mesa residents: Manuela Moreno, Rosario Rodriguez, Alphonso de los Santos and Lucy Martinez.

They set up in Moreno's home and launched Casa de Peregrinos ("House of Pilgrims") with $3,000 in the bank.

In 2020, CdP distributed more than 4.7 million pounds of food, compared to 3.8 million pounds in 2019 and 3.5 million in 2018.

In 2020, CdP served more than 35,000 individual clients, an increase of more than 5,000 (16 percent) as compared to the three previous years.

Hahn also expressed his thanks to Las Cruces International Airport staff.

"We couldn't have done this without the incredible support of (airport Administrator) Andy Hume and the City of Las Cruces. The airport staff worked very hard for months and did a great job preparing the airport for the event," Hahn said.

"Our heartfelt thanks go out to all families in the Mesilla Valley and across the Southwest who, despite inclement weather in the morning, came out to support our Wings n Wheels 'Fest and make it a stunning success," Hahn said.

A nonprofit chapter of the national EAA, the Triple Nickel (as EAA 555 is called) was established in 1976 and got its own hangar at LCIA thanks in part to former NASA astronaut and one-time Las Cruces resident Frank Borman, who donated part of a hangar he owned to EAA 555 in 2006.

EAA 555 promotes aviation "by supporting aircraft building, flight training and aviation safety." It sponsors the local Young Eagles, an EAA program that has given flying opportunities to about 2 million youth across the country and thousands locally.

SCSWA Wins Award for Resiliency and Safety

Submitted by South Central Solid Waste Authority

South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) received the new 2021 Resiliency/Safety Entity of the Year award at the 2021 New Mexico Recycling & Solid Waste Conference in Albuquerque on September 22. The conference was hosted by the New Mexico Recycling Coalition (NMRC) and the Roadrunner Chapter of the New Mexico Solid Waste Association of North America (SWANA).

“SCSWA responded to the COVID-19 pandemic in a transparent and innovative manner and immediately recognized the importance of keeping solid waste and recycling professionals safe and on the job,” said Sarah Pierpont, NMRC executive director. “This category of essential workers was often overlooked, but how can we have safe and healthy communities if our solid waste isn’t disposed of properly?”

Pierpont explained that the new award highlights the unprecedented challenges faced alongside a community’s need to keep services going as they are essential workers during shutdowns.

South Central Solid Waste Authority manages solid waste and recyclables for residents and businesses throughout Doña Ana County. Contact SCSWA at (575) 528-3800 or visit www.SCSWA.net.

SCSWA Director Patrick Peck accepts the Resiliency/Safety Entity of the Year award from NMRC Executive Director Sarah Pierpont.

“This is a new award category that will be given to the person and/or the program that designed and implemented appropriate safety protocols in an ever-changing public health landscape,” she said. “To ensure consistent service, SCSWA limited interactions between people, developed new cleaning protocols, updated policies and procedures, and most importantly worked together as a team to keep each other safe and healthy.”

In response to the pandemic, like so many other essential entities, SCSWA had to develop and implement new safety protocols quickly. These included finding creative solutions, such as repurposing pool chemicals as sanitizers when cleaning supplies were limited.

“Our staff was the boots on the ground that kept the doors open and the trucks on the road; they made this recognition possible,” said Patrick Peck, SCSWA director.

Notice:

SCSWA will be switching to Daylights Savings time on Friday, October 1, for all 8 County Collections sites. The new hours will be 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last load will be 15 minutes before closing. ## NATURAL GAS PRICES ARE RISING AND SO MAY YOUR WINTER UTILITY BILLS!

by G.H. Scott

Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) Deputy Director Business Services Jose Provencio who works with the team that is responsible for acquisition of short-term, intermediate, and long-term supplies of natural gas for the city-owned utility, sometimes they could use a crystal ball. But since a crystal ball is not available, the LCU team relies on more traditional forms of forecasting demand for natural gas every month. “The team looks at a variety of data points, from what LCU ordered in past months, to transmission pipeline conditions to spot any issues, daily gas prices, including long-range weather forecasts, and even after a purchase decision is made, the team continues to make adjustments throughout the month,” said Provencio.

Lately, Gas Business Analyst Mario Puentes has kept a close eye on the commodity market as natural gas prices are doing something they haven't done in over seven years, dramatically increase. “Prices normally go up in the winter, but, of course, it's not winter yet. And prices in the U.S. have already gone up two or three times higher than where they were last year,” said Puentes. Experts point to several factors for the price rise in natural gas. Supplies have been depleted by a series of 2021 weather events. The historic February freeze in Texas lifted demand while clogging wells with ice. Just recently, Hurricane Ida forced nearly all the Gulf of Mexico's gas output offline, and the recovery is slow.

It's not just cold winters that boost demand for natural gas. Hot summers do it, too, because air conditioners use electricity.

LCU Associate working high-pressure natural gas line—Courtesy LCU

And as coal plants get retired because of environmental concerns, when they get shut down, you still need electricity from other generating resources such as gas fueled combustion turbines. That boosts demand for natural gas. And as we head into winter, supplies are tight and the market analysts who monitor natural gas prices don't see that changing anytime soon. One of the reasons goes back to recent years when oil and gas got incredibly cheap, prices were so low that producers had no financial incentive to drill.

What does this mean for LCU customers? There is a strong possibility that monthly utility bills will rise this winter because of the price increase of the fuel. Remember LCU supplies gas to its customers as a pass-through cost without a mark-up or profit. “However, our (LCU) business analysts closely monitor market prices daily and do their best to get the lowest price available to help our customers manage their monthly budgets,” said Provencio.

LCU customers do have a tool to help them manage their monthly utility bills this winter, by monitoring their natural gas usage. LCU unveiled UtilityHawk earlier this year, the service is free service for customers, and works on smart phones, laptops, and tablets, take the time to register at LCUUtilityHawk.com.

Howard Oliver Ness, 82

Well, it had to happen. That wonderful young man, who waited impatiently at the Chicago railroad station with fishing rod, shotgun and rifle for the train that would take him to the University of Nevada to begin his studies in wildlife and fisheries has left us. And what Howard Oliver Ness left behind in terms of personal and professional accomplishments is monumental. While he died peacefully at home the morning of Sept. 26, many of the dynamic achievements he obtained remain.

Born to Leota Jane Ness and Oliver Sanford Ness on March 14, 1939 in Reno, Nevada, Howard never stopped. He inherited the insatiable curiosity and intelligence of his parents and was deeply proud of both his Western and Norwegian heritage.

He was a man who experienced his dream and more. Those original recreational tools and his passion for the outdoors and all it entailed -- history, geography, archeology, wildlife and more -- led him to a career of innovation and service. He was a fishery biologist on the shores of Lake Tahoe, Nevada, and a professional diver and even sold fish before his return to school at New Mexico State University where he earned a master's degree in agricultural economics. But economics didn't take him away from his passion, it only added to it. He was one of the first resource economists in the United States when he landed on the shores of Alaska as the daring Limited Entry Plan for fisheries was being introduced and then implemented. He worked with those independent crab fishermen, who learned to respect his integrity and professionalism. But his contributions as a resource economist didn't end there.

The tuna fishery fleet in California strongly supported him as a candidate for the position of fishery attaché for Mexico and South America. With an eye for protecting our fishermen and promoting international cooperation, he forged strong relations with those in Mexico and the United States. Those international relationship building skills did not escape the notice of the National Park Service, which was looking into opening a Division of US/Mexico Affairs, since so much NPS land bordered Mexico. So following his State Department Service, Howard returned to Las Cruces and built, from scratch, that international office with the support of New Mexico State University. Both Sens. Bingaman and Domenici were behind the project, as was Rep. Skeen. Howard worked closely with Mexico in developing several national parks in Mexico. Biologists from both countries were often brought together in the realization that wildlife really didn't care about boundaries. A series of seminars on getting to know Mexico, helped to build respect and cooperation between our countries.

But beyond all of this, he was a storyteller with an incredible and durable sense of humor. He entertained us all with stories drawn from his own experiences. One particular story relives a diving experience in Florida. He and his diving partner were collecting lobster when Howard heard an unusual sound, sort of gurgly.

He turned and there was their boat joining them on the sea floor. His partner had inadvertently pulled the plug. And then there was the time.....so many stories. Told. Retold and told again. Often over a campfire at deer camp. He was an avid hunter, who respected the game he sought. He relished in the beauty of it all. His respect for the game he harvested was reflected in the game dinner he hosted for years with friends and family. He was an amazing shot, even more so if you knew he only had the sight of one eye. In those lean years so many of us have, he kept food on the table with a singular box of shells. He was best friends with one of New Mexico's leading naturalists and hunter, Alton Ford, who often referred to Howard as his fourth son, as they explored the richness of the Redrock, New Mexico area together. Howard was tall and Alton wasn't – quite a pair they made.

He had a gift for poetry and music and often wrote his own songs. Following his introduction to the violin, he taught himself how to play the guitar and piano. His tenor voice was often a surprise coming from that 6-5 frame of his. He was delighted that several of his five grandchildren were showing promise, if not in talent at least in appreciation.

He was a passionate man. A man of high morals and integrity and of kindness. In so many ways he was a visionary.

We just received a call from Mexico, from an apprentice of sorts from his days in the State Department. She's now involved in the reintroduction of wolves in the Sierra Madre. Her tribute was from the heart, "Everything I do now, is what I learned from him."

He never forgot who he was and what it was all about, with the many achievements he had, he always felt that it was family.

His sons, Erik and Jon and in time their children were at the core of his universe. For Erik, it is Garrett and Bennett and for Jon, Eleanor, Caroline and Charlotte. And then there the women in his life. He and his wife, Virginia, were married for 52 years. "He was the most interesting man I've ever met," she still says. And there are the wives, Toni for Erik and Cate for Jon – really more like daughters.

His was a life of richness, friendship, loyalty and passion. He knew and savored the value of family and friends. Still though we wish we had him longer, he lives on in the lives of his sons, of whom he was extremely proud and his grandchildren.

Love of the land, our history and archeology continues. He instilled that.

There will be no formal funeral services. He has asked to be cremated and maybe to have a small gathering of friends at his historical home.

He was one of those few souls who was friends to the gardener, workman, farmer, banker, rancher, preacher, ambassadors and senator.

He looked for decency and goodness and we ask you to remember him for that.

Donald Francis Dresp, 85

Donald Francis Dresp, 85, passed away on Sept. 30, 2021 in Las Cruces, NM.

He was born and raised in Omaha, Nebraska. He attended the University of Nebraska at Omaha, Creighton University and received his MA from the University of Denver. He worked as a high school teacher and librarian in Nebraska and Colorado, then as education librarian at Arizona State University in Tempe, Arizona.

Don next became the assistant director of Scottsdale Public Library. In 1971, he accepted the position of director of Thomas Branigan Memorial Library in Las Cruces, NM where he served until his retirement in 1996. Don's work ethic was centered on public service and his motto was: "Formal education is expensive, but knowledge is free at your public library."

In 1971, the library was housed in the present Branigan Cultural Center. Two bookmobiles were added in 1975.

The Friends of TBML was founded in 1976. The present library opened in December 1979, and the second floor addition in 1990. In 1991, he opened a public computer room and initiated a computerized circulation system. Professionally, Don was named Librarian of the Year by the Border Regional Library Association and Librarian of the Year by the New Mexico Library Association.

He was one of two New Mexico public librarians to attend the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services in 1991. He served both as president of New Mexico Municipal Librarians and the New Mexico Library Association. Don was a member of Las Cruces Rotary Club for over 50 years with perfect attendance for 35 years. In 1992 the club named him a Paul Harris Fellow. Don served on many boards and committees: Community Action Agency; American Red Cross; Doña Ana Arts Council; Doña Ana County Historical Society; United Way; Memorial Medical Center Foundation; Citizens Drug Committee; KRWG TV Board; White Sands Federal Credit Union, Supervisory Board; International Cruise Victims Association.

Don was an apostle of the written word. He enjoyed promoting libraries to every group who asked. He accepted everyone he met as his friend, and many felt he was their best friend. He loved his cats and all animals, Native American arts, world travel, gin and tonics and blackjack. But most of all he was devoted to his family. He is survived by his wife of 51 years, Winifred, son, David of Albuquerque, daughter Jeanne Knappmiller (Brian) and granddaughters Fiona and Jessalyn of Burbank, California. He was preceded in death by his parents, Helen Babbit and John Dresp, and his only sibling, John "Bud" Dresp.

A Celebration of Life will be held at Thomas Branigan Memorial Library Nov. 6 from 2-4 p.m.. Memorials should go to organizations like Casa de Peregrinos and Animal Services Center of Mesilla Valley that aid the homeless and hungry people and animals of Dona Ana County.

Pili begins 2nd year as city manager excited about future

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

"I'm really excited about where we're heading," Ifo Pili said, as he begins his second year as Las Cruces city manager. His first day with the city was Sept. 8, 2020.

Pili, a native of American Samoa, and his family came to Las Cruces from the City of Eagle Mountain, Utah, where he began work as a management analyst in 2006 and became city administrator in 2012.

Before that, Pili played professional football for the NFL's Houston Texans, Philadelphia Eagles and New England Patriots.

Before moving here with family (wife Jenny Patterson Pili and eight children), Pili said he had heard that "the people are what make Las Cruces what it is."

"It's proving true," he said. "It's been amazing."

Las Cruces has "a small-town feel, but in a good way," Pili said.

Las Cruces is about twice the size of Eagle Mountain, which is part of the Provo-Orem, Utah Metropolitan Statistical Area. Its home, Utah County, and Salt Lake County to the north have an unbroken line of cities and towns totaling about 2 million people, he said.

Having started his job in Las Cruces during the peak of the pandemic, Pili said he is still exploring the city.

Last month's Aggies in Paradise fundraiser for NMSU athletics at Aggie

IFO PILI

Memorial Stadium was the first major public event Pili has attended since coming to Las Cruces, he said.

He and his family have also been to other local events, including the city's Music in the Park and the Farmers and Crafts Market of Las Cruces. He's also dined at many local restaurants.

"Seeing the city open up is just awesome," Pili said. "I'm looking forward to a lot of things."

Pili said he is enjoying working with Mayor Ken Miyagishima and the Las Cruces City Council.

"They've got heart and conviction for what they do," Pili said. "I appreciate that."

The same is true, he said, for city staff.

"People care about their jobs," Pili said. "They care about their city. It's nice to come to work every day knowing you're surrounded by people like that."

Possibly his biggest surprise since becoming city manager is that, despite Covid-19, "we haven't taken a hit on gross receipts tax," Pili said.

"In fact, it's gone up. People are spending more," he said, and the city is now getting revenue from Internet sales. Funding from the state and federal governments also has "helped us to continue as usual," Pili said.

And, while the future remains uncertain because of Covid, Las Cruces is doing well, he said. Businesses are looking to come to Las Cruces, there are opportunities to grow the film industry here and the future of Las Cruces International Airport is "one we can be excited about," Pili said.

"Andy's done an amazing job," he said about Airport Administrator Andy Hume.

With an investment of $60 to $70 million, the city is "building a real airport that can compete," Pili said. "That's huge."

The city is also investing more in infrastructure, Pili said, as the city council recently voted to boost this year's budget for road maintenance from $4 to $6 million.

"Roads are your biggest asset," Pili said, adding that he has been particularly impressed by the city's pavement management system.

With support from the state, Pili said roads will continue to be an important focus for the city, including the possibility of constructing a road connecting the Las Cruces industrial park with Santa Teresa.

"The Legislature is really accessible here," Pili said.

Pili said his wife and their eight children "really enjoy Las Cruces."

Despite his hopes that she would attend New Mexico State University, Pili said his oldest daughter, Lia, is now a student at Brigham Young University. BYU is both her parents' alma mater, and "her dream school," he said.

The other Pili children, ranging in age from 5 to 18, are "doing really well," he said. They have "great schools and great teachers" and are participating in Las Cruces Public Schools sports programs and other activities in elementary, middle and high schools, Pili said.

"I'm really impressed with our school district," he said.

Nearly 60,000 coats have been distributed since the program began in 1995, including 3,000 coats given out last year, said Coats for Kids Chair CAA CEO Dawn Hommer and Campaign Coordinator

D2 Designs owner Alycia Jameson.

For 2021, the Las Cruces Coats for Kids program has received a $15,000 challenge grant from the Carl C. Anderson Sr. and Marie Jo Anderson Foundation.

That means any donation to Coats for Kids will be doubled. As of Sept. 29, donations received for this year's program totaled $9,500, said CAA Development Officer Mark A. Hohnstreiter.

"As we move into the cold winter months, we know you would agree no child in our community should be without a warm winter coat," Hommer and Jameson said, adding that no child who needs a coat is every turned away by the program.

Coats for Kids works with social workers and counselors at Las Cruces Public Schools, the Gadsden Independent School District and Hatch Valley Public Schools to identify children, birth through the 5th grade, who need a coat.

"Check your closets for coats to donate or mail your cash donation to Coats for Kids at US Bank, 277 East Amador, Las Cruces, N.M. 88001," Hommer and Jameson said.

8 p.m. on AMC Eli Roth’s History of Horror

Among its other impacts, the COVID-19 pandemic also divided people into two camps: those who watched movies about deadly infectious diseases and those who avoided those films like, well, the plague. ## Kevin McHale

7 p.m. on KVIA2
Whose Line Is It Anyway?

The CW expands its primetime series programming to Saturday this season, moving this long-running game show into a new time period, starting tonight with two back-to-back episodes. In the first, host Aisha Tyler welcomes guest comic Heather Anne Campbell, who joins cast regulars Ryan Stiles, Wayne Brady and Colin Mochrie for a series of improv games. Kevin McHale ("Glee") also makes a guest appearance. Immediately following, a second new episode features a guest appearance by boxing champ Laila Ali, with guest comic Jeff Davis getting his improv on with the guys.

8 p.m. on KVIA2
World's Funniest Animals

Host Elizabeth Stanton launches her sophomore season of critter cuteness on a new night with two new back-to-back episodes, the first one featuring some spoiled and/or jealous pets, a few unlikely animal friendships and animals who just can't get into the latest fitness craze. Stanton welcomes time-slot neighbor Colin Mochrie from "Whose Line Is It Anyway?" as her special guest, with commentary from Brian Cooper, Mikalah Gordon, Carmen Hodgson and Noah Matthews. Molly McCook ("Last Man Standing") guest stars in the new episode that immediately follows.

9 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Voyagers

Neil Burger wrote and directed this 2021 sci-fi film, which some critics compared to a futuristic take on "Lord of the Flies." Set in the near future, on an Earth devastated by runaway climate change, the movie follows a group of teenage astronauts who are dispatched to colonize a habitable exoplanet. The journey is threatened, though, when the young crew falls into paranoia and social conflict after discovering their personalities and emotions previously were being artificially suppressed. Tye Sheridan, Lily-Rose Depp (Johnny's daughter), Fionn Whitehead and Colin Farrell star.

10 p.m. on SHOW
Movie: Come Play

Solid performances by Gillian Jacobs ("Community") and John Gallagher Jr. ("The Newsroom") help anchor this 2020 horror thriller from writer-director Jacob Chase, who casts the pair as Sarah and Marty, the stressed-out parents of a young non-verbal autistic boy, Oliver (Azhy Robertson). After his parents' marriage starts to crack, Oliver is playing with the smartphone he uses to communicate and notices a previously unnoticed app called "Misunderstood Monsters." In activating the app, however, Oliver inadvertently unleashes a dangerous entity. Winslow Fegley, Jayden Marine and Eboni Booth are featured.

Chris O'Donnell

6 p.m. on LIFE
Movie: List of a Lifetime

Airing as part of Lifetime's annual "Stop Breast Cancer for Life" campaign, this new drama stars Kelly Hu as Brenda, whose recent breast cancer diagnosis moves her to look for Talia (Sylvia Kwan), the daughter she gave up for adoption decades ago. After Brenda finds Talia and shares her devastating news, the younger woman urges Brenda to make a bucket list of things she wants to do, promising to help her mother complete them. Shannen Doherty, Patricia Velasquez and Jane Sibbett also star.

7 p.m. on KDBC
The Equalizer

As Season 2 of this crime drama reboot opens, Robyn McCall (Queen Latifah) ponders abandoning her work as The Equalizer in a premiere called "Aftermath." She's pulled right back in, however, when she takes on an unexpected new client — Detective Marcus Dante (Tory Kittles) — who needs her to help him find a virtually untraceable band of bank robbers. Adam Goldberg, Liza Lapira, Lorraine Toussaint and Chris Noth also return to their roles; Frank Pando, Erica Camarano and Marc Kudish guest star.

7 p.m. on KVIA2
Legends of the Hidden Temple

Actress and comic Cristela Alonso hosts this reimagined new adult version of the beloved '90s Nickelodeon competition series. Happily, this makeover preserves many elements from the original, including Olmec, the giant talking Mayan head. This time around, the entire show is taken out of the studio and scaled up, with tougher challenges and much bigger prizes on the line. Every episode is a hero's journey through a mysterious jungle, where five teams begin the journey, but only one is skilled enough to enter the ominous temple and retrieve a lost treasure.

7 p.m. on CNN
Diana

The new six-part docuseries "Diana" examines the life of a British icon by reframing it in a way that reveals the real woman behind the "People's Princess." Drawing on a new generation of voices, the series incorporates interviews with those who knew Princess Diana best, resulting in a multifaceted portrait of a woman more complex than history previously has acknowledged. Tonight's series premiere, "The Girl From Norfolk," explores Diana Spencer's childhood, examining how a mutual desire for love and affection drew her and Prince Charles together.

8 p.m. on KDBC
NCIS: Los Angeles

Callen (Chris O'Donnell) strongly suspects Hetty (Linda Hunt) is withholding some secrets about his past as this hit crime drama opens Season 13 with "Subject 17." Meanwhile, the NCIS team must track down an informant whose life may be in danger, and Joelle (guest star Elizabeth Bogush) continues her quest to capture Katya.

8 p.m. on KFOX
Bob's Burgers

Linda (voice of John Roberts) receives a mysterious note on Halloween in the new episode "The Pumpkinening." Specifically, she and kid sister Gayle (voice of recurring guest star Megan Mullally) must travel back to their hometown and face the consequences of a transgression they committed 27 years earlier. Other guest voices include Kate Micucci, Joel Kim Booster, Joe Lo Truglio and Tim Meadows; H. Jon Benjamin, Kristen Schaal, Eugene Mirman and Dan Mintz also are heard.

8 p.m. on KVIA2
Killer Camp

"A Smashing Sequel" opens Season 2 of this reality competition/horror movie parody, as 13 new campers — some American, some British — make their way to the spectacularly misnamed Camp Pleasant, where Camp Counselor Bobby (host Bobby Mair) is quick to advise them that some of them will not survive their stay.

Laura Dern

6 p.m. on EPIX
Movie: Black Bear

Writer-director Lawrence Levine's character-driven 2021 drama is a weird yet also weirdly compelling work that examines the relationship of its three main characters from different perspectives that keep shifting as the story unfolds. Aubrey Plaza ("Parks and Recreation") stars as Allison, a writer-director who is working on her latest script in a house in the woods, where the owners (Christopher Abbott, Sarah Gadon) fancy themselves to patrons who offer a haven to artists. Alex Koch, Grantham

Coleman and Lindsay Burdge co-star.

6 p.m. on MAX
Movie: Endings, Beginnings

Filmmaker Drake Doremus' character-driven 2019 drama stars Shailene Woodley ("Big Little Lies") as Daphne, a self-obsessed young woman in her early 30s who is currently living in the pool house of her married half-sister (Lindsay Sloane). For reasons that are not entirely clear, Daphne recently left both her job and a longtime romantic partner to search for ... something. She's also avowedly celibate, at least until she meets Frank (Sebastian Stan, "Avengers: Endgame"), a brooding hot mess, and soulful Irish writer Jack (Jamie Dornan), an Irish writer. Emotional sloppiness ensues.

7 p.m. on TLC
My Big Fat Fabulous Life

An anxious Whitney finally gets the results from her painful egg retrieval procedure in a new episode called "Fat Lips." Elsewhere, Hunter accuses Whitney of moving too fast with her long-distance guy in France, and later a disturbing voice message leaves Whitney questioning just about everything.

7 p.m. on MTV
Teen Mom: Young and Pregnant

Kayla's dream of a future that's free of any unnecessary drama is crushed when an ex-boyfriend pops up and says that he may actually be Iziah's dad in the new episode "Ups and Downs." Elsewhere, Rachel's endless fighting with her mom goes from bad to worse, with Kiaya attempting to act as the peacemaker.

8 p.m. on KVIA2
Supergirl

Supergirl (Melissa Benoist) continues to fight Nyxly (Peta Sergeant) for the remaining totems, but after the latter kidnaps William (Staz Nair), Supergirl realizes keeping National City safe will require her to be much more proactive in the new episode "Hope for Tomorrow." Meanwhile, Alex (Chyler Leigh) faces what just may be the biggest challenge of her life.

8 p.m. on SYFY, USA
Chucky

Brad Dourif reprises his longtime voice performance in the title role of a freckle-faced doll possessed by the soul of a serial killer in this new series adaptation of a wildly successful horror movie franchise. As the story opens, a vintage Chucky doll inexplicably turns up at a suburban yard sale, almost immediately throwing an idyllic community into chaos as a series of local murders exposes some of the town's hypocrisies and secrets. Fiona Dourif, Brad's daughter, co-stars, along with Zackary Arthur, Teo Briones, Alex Vincent and Jennifer Tilly.

9:01 p.m. on KVIA
A Night in the Academy Museum

Hosts Laura Dern and Tom Hanks take viewers at home inside the new Academy Museum of Motion Pictures in Los Angeles in this new one-hour special. ## RANKED CHOICE VOTING

Las Cruces City Council Districts 3 and 5 have more than two candidates each and so there will be ranked choice voting in those districts.

What is ranked-choice voting?

Ranked-choice voting is an electoral system that allows people to vote for multiple candidates, in order of preference. Instead of just choosing who you want to win, you fill out the ballot saying who is your first choice, second choice, or third choice (or more as needed) for each position.

The candidate with the majority (more than 50%) of first-choice votes wins outright. If no candidate gets a majority of first-choice votes, then it triggers a new counting process. The candidate who did the worst is eliminated, and that candidate's voters' ballots are redistributed to their second-choice pick. In other words, if you ranked a losing candidate as your first choice, and the candidate is eliminated, then your vote still counts: it just moves to your second-choice candidate. That process continues until there is a candidate who has the majority of votes.

ELECTION DEADLINES

- October 5: Voter registration (by mail or online) was closed EXCEPT at early voting locations prior to voting.
- October 5: First day that absentee ballots could be mailed to voters (who have submitted an absentee application) AND first day voters could cast their votes in person at their local county clerk's office.
- October 16: Additional early voting locations open.
- October 28: Last day to request an absentee ballot at your local county clerk's office.
- October 30: Last day of early voting.
- November 2: Election Day

LAS CRUCES CITY COUNCIL

QUESTIONS FOR THE CANDIDATES FOR LAS CRUCES CITY COUNCILLOR

(500 characters each)

NOTE: ALL MUNICIPAL OFFICES ARE NONPARTISAN

1. How should the City address the need for low and moderate income housing?
2. What could the City do to better address crime in Las Cruces?
3. How will you evaluate the impact of the plastic bag restrictions going into effect on January 1, 2022?
4. If you are elected, what priorities and/or changes would you focus on and why?

Bev Courtney, Las Cruces City Council candidate District 3

1. Owning a home is the American Dream. I had a friend who lived in a $400 apartment that was worth $150. It was the size of a very small hotel room and was dumpy; she rented it out of desperation to shelter her daughter and brand new baby. While our current city council is concerned about plastic bags, we have low income families waiting up to a year to get approved for help. We should focus on the real issues Las Cruces faces and make sure our families come first.

2. Offer competitive wages to our police department; conduct more academies until the force is restored. We should implement a hiring freeze on other city positions until it's done. Our crime has steadily increased without a voice of reason to ask, "What's causing the crime spree?" Murder has skyrocketed in recent months. The police department could bring back a drug interdiction team. Neighborhood drug dealers - gone. Let's open the door for mental health counselors to help those most in need.

3. Mandates affect business in a negative way creating extra cost, more regulations to manage. The cost is passed on to the taxpayers without our consent. The bureaucratic bullying needs to stop. Conducting community campaigns to encourage sustainability is a far better solution. I believe most people do want a clean environment. Plastic bag restrictions won't gain value for the city. Policies compete and impede businesses with regulations and taxes. Totally unfair advantage, transparency is key.

4. For years I have listened to peoples desire to be safe. That is my profession. Safe streets are possible. I will restore integrity to our council and advance the interest of citizens. No buying off whistleblowers. Thriving economies drive opportunity. Let's do it. Finally, our officials have gutted election laws. The result is a one party platform that only represents progressives. Everyone should use their voice to restore authentic elections. We owe it to our children and for liberty.

Becki A. Graham, Las Cruces City Council candidate District 3

1. The City should coordinate existing programs and non-profits engaged in affordable/attainable housing efforts to keep up to date with needs and resources and to ensure that educational materials about such resources are readily available to those who may benefit from them. Existing affordable housing units need to be assessed and upgraded, as needed, to make them as secure, comfortable, and pleasant as possible. These and future units need to be situated for easy access to supportive services.

2. The City can expand availability and accessibility of services demonstrated to prevent crime, such as affordable housing and mental and behavioral health support. Design improvements such as lighting of public spaces and maintenance of unused properties is also effective. When possible, expanding or introducing community policing and outreach practices can help improve relationships between law enforcement entities and the community.

3. A review process included in the ordinance tied to this initiative will include use of paper grocery bags and environmental service fees. Additionally, surveys should be administered to retail establishments to determine number of reusable bags sold or given to customers; and to residents to gauge their feelings on the program's efficacy, benefits, and challenges. Anecdotally, residents and City employees can provide information about decreases in plastic bag litter in public spaces.

4. Economic Development: All areas must have equal opportunities for growth. Investing in existing corridors and local businesses to refurbish abandoned retail spaces, rather than only investing in new construction, will help ensure that we best use our resources.

Public Safety Challenges: Enhanced support for programs offering practical solutions to public safety issues, such as the Mobile Integrated Health initiative and its expansion into opioid overdose response and behavioral health crises.

Gregory J Shervanick, Las Cruces City Council (write-in) candidate District 3 (Picture not available)

1. Real estate is a business along with market capitalism which supports the general fund and Las Cruces is not an urban cityscape needs to be recognized first. So to tackle this issue: tight controls must be made on subdivision already platted, reduction of Elevate LC strategies, transportation choices and penalties on financial institutions and building material providers must be made. This type of planning must be done with full knowledge that equity for some is inequity for others.

2. Crime exist everywhere. I believe that the pandemic, mental health awareness and an increase of a new population have exacerbated an upward trend. The city needs to work with LCPD by listening to the concerns on staffing, retention and recruitment. Council must clearly communicate, what is good policing and what is not. Respecting those we have entrusted these ideals to and backing up these shared visions of public safety is the start to addressing this complex question.

3. I already have. Single use bag restriction was created as a revenue enhancement. A TAX. Since misleading, unethical and bias scientific information was used in its creation. The council should to repealing the resolution. Placating others beliefs because they are ecologically trendy is a poor way to protect the environment. Is it right that one city department has now become both judge and jury?

4. If I were to be honored by the citizens, I would attempt to focus my constituents on being able to use the resources made available by the city website Las-Cruces.org. This would enable them to participate and stay current with activities, projects that effect changes. Having this knowledge creates a better and transparent democracy. This would be a way to enhance change and priorities, rather have citizens ask, "we never heard about" when issues arise. Contrary is the city listening?

David A Telford, Las Cruces City Council candidate District 5

1. We could enter into a public/private partnership with builders/developers to seek funding from local and national resources such as grants and foundations

CITY COUNCIL

for such projects. We could further incentivize more building of moderate and low-income housing by simplifying the permitting process and working with Realtors and lenders to find down payment assistant programs to help qualify moderate income households wanting to purchase a home.

2. We can increase the Police Service Aide program to have more of an officer presence in our neighborhoods. We can enhance the Las Cruces Police Department Citizens Academy and increase the number of neighborhood watch programs just as an example. We can more aggressively prosecute crimes especially violent crimes to decrease recidivism.

3. I guess the best way to evaluate the impact would be reading the quarterly reports that stores are required to file with the city on how many bags are given away and how many $0.10 fees were collected. Other than that I believe it just comes down to seeing if there's a lesser prevalence of plastic bags flying around the city.

4. If elected I would seek input from the police department to see what I could possibly do to help develop practices to lower our crime rate. I would also work to make the city an easier place for local businesses to open and flourish. Small businesses are the backbone of our community and the nation in general and I would work to help streamline regulations and permitting to make it easier for these businesses to open in Las Cruces.

Normand Robert Paquette, Las Cruces City Council candidate District 5

1. When we say "The City" I would like it to mean "The Public and City Hall" working together to find a win-win for us all. I have several years of experience working with people in Seattle low income and block housing projects as a social worker and underprivileged minorities ombudsman. I believe low and moderate-income housing should be 1. A priority 2. Generous but accountable 3. Paired with education and opportunities to increase income levels.

2. 1. Hire more officers 2. Put a system in place to prevent a shortage from happening again. (whatever the reasons are) 3. Promote a better police-friendly atmosphere in Las Cruces to attract good officers. 4. Use Media and communications to honor the good in our LCPD publicly 5. Use technology and community involvement to augment manual police efforts to keep crime at a dull roar. Work smarter, not harder. 6. Make LC LCPD Proud to be officers.

3. I will need more information to make an informed, accurate and coherent evaluation before I can comment on this at all. I am aware of the issue, but do not have enough information to comment.

4. 1. Put Las Cruces public/businesses & needs first / others next It only makes sense to focus on home and get it in order first before we start conquering castles right? 2. We should as a City know about upcoming huge expenditures in advance with detailed information about them as well as the opportunity to weigh in with our opinions as to the public without going to city hall to the podium. 3. All this can only be done with more aggressive transparency and proactive measures. 4. Create win-wins

Ronnie M Sisneros, Las Cruces City Council candidate District 5

1. The need for the people of Las Cruces to live in safe appropriate housing is very important. A vision and goal with needed infrastructure such as roads, street lights, signs, schools, parks, as well as improve job opportunities with better pay are just as important to a viable safe populace. The specific means of how to develop strategies to meet the needs of the people is an all encompassing effort that would require input from various groups, investors, community leaders, and church leaders.

2. This question has been relayed to me on many occasions. I can easily say there is no reason to reinvent the wheel. Local city police have been an establishment and historical bedrock of modern civilized societies for hundreds of years. The police must know they have the support of the communities that they live and serve irregardless of societal shifts. A sense of consistency and commonsense approach to law-enforcement is needed, although I do not believe in being an armchair quarterback.

3. The only way to evaluate progress or decline in any effort is through consistent unbiased data collection. After data in several established and agreed-upon areas this data can then be reviewed by panel of experts, community leaders, sanitation, and all other relevant groups and agencies. The goal will be to review the efficacy of and make needed adjustments to get a clear picture of this ordinance. I do support this ordinance with certain reservations.

4. My priority would be to bring a conservative minded common sense approach to everything that comes before me. I would pursue every avenue to have the name of Onate High School to be reinstated. The citizens of District 5 and Las Cruces have spoken loudly on this issue but were ignored. improve roads, sidewalks, drainage, especially on Mesa Grande and Highway 70 and other areas all over District 5. Develop youth recreational center in District 5.

Becky Ann Corran, Las Cruces City Council candidate District 5

1. As a City, we can do several things to address affordable housing: 1. utilize zoning guidelines for new developments to promote affordable housing and promote infill in older parts of town; 2. support the rental community by strengthening landlord-tenant codes; and 3. consider creating an affordable housing trust. It is critical that Las Cruces have the opportunity for safe housing, and through partnerships with community agencies and innovative policies we can ensure that residents thrive.

2. The city can invest in short- and long-term violence reduction initiatives that focus on the many dynamic factors that lead to crime, and in many areas, it already is. Some opportunities to better address crime include: 1. partnerships with community agencies that focus on prevention of child abuse, domestic violence and addiction; 2. utilize community-based data to develop a data-driven strategy; 3. advocacy for full funding of state and local courts.

3. The existing ordinance will be reviewed after two years, but there are opportunities to evaluate the impact in the shorter term. This calls for evaluating both the commercial/individual impacts and the environmental impact. Specifically, the City can: 1. track paper bag fees that are already planned to identify patterns; 2. outreach to retailers to identify impacts; 3. focus groups with residents and community organizations that pick up litter to see impacts on the local environment.

4. My priorities would be: 1. inclusive city planning through residents' voices to build walkable neighborhoods, affordable houses, green spaces and clean air; 2. economic recovery grounded in small businesses and nonprofit support that creates opportunity; 3. incentivizing employers that provide living wages, pathways to education and health; 4. reduced impact on climate change through the Climate Action Plan and advocacy for shifting utility use and distribution to reduce fossil fuels.

Yvonne Flores, Las Cruces City Council candidate District 6

1. Change ordinances to allow infill incentives; buy public land for community housing.
2. Expand an industrially based economy; promote community policing; support education and job training.
3. The impact will be data driven.

4. Roads, infrastructure, preservation of historic buildings, education, housing, behavioral health, sustainability, economic development, art, animals; follow the Comprehensive Plan to assure a healthy community.

William John Beerman, Las Cruces City Council candidate District 6

1. The City should address this using a sound decision-making methodology, such as systems design and analysis, which I studied at the university level.

I also reviewed thousands of audit findings about government operations and each audit finding identified the root cause of a problem and addressed it with appropriate recommendations. We need to identify the root cause(s) of the housing problems and address them. We also need to consult experts, such as those at Mesilla Valley Community of Hope.

2. The City has plenty of money for other things and should fund a first-class Police Department, which is the one department we would keep if we could keep only one. City Council's efforts to defund the police during a crime spree have been exposed. They let the department fall to 75 percent of capacity. Now during an election they are publicizing one-time bonuses and other gimmicks, instead of providing respectable, competitive long-term salaries commensurate with the respect our police deserve.

3. I would take an objective approach even though I am skeptical. Of course, I would have to prioritize my workload as a City Councilor and I might have more important work that would take precedence. That said, I would consider the input of the bag-restriction advocates, and pay close attention to the experiences of businesses who have to cope with enforcing the restrictions and complying with the reporting requirements. I see more discarded facemasks littering the town than I do plastic bags.

4. I would focus on two problem areas: corruption and socialism. Regarding corruption, the 767-page McHard investigative report said violations of laws, regulations, and policies were "rampant" within city management. The City also paid $1.4 million to settle whistleblower lawsuits. City Council's Socialist ambitions are too numerous to mention here. I will press hard for the City to establish a world-class internal audit function to provide oversight and consulting services for city managers.

LAS CRUCES PUBLIC SCHOOLS (LCPS) SCHOOL BOARD

QUESTIONS FOR THE CANDIDATES FOR LAS CRUCES PUBLIC SCHOOL (LCPS) SCHOOL BOARD

(500 characters each)

1. What do you think are the strengths and weaknesses of the Las Cruces Public Schools?
2. Do you think funding should be expanded for multicultural education in public schools? Explain.
3. How would you change the priorities of the school district as reflected in the district's budget?
4. What changes, if any, would you propose to support online learning?

Raymond M Jaramillo, LCPS School Board candidate District 1

1. As a parent and board member, I have witnessed our educators' dedication to creating an inclusive, healthy, safe educational environment for students. Wrap-around services, culturally relevant curriculum, extended learning opportunities through Community schools are other areas of strength. Also, the district Student Advisory Council provides a unique perspective to the board. Historically, the lack of consistency at the superintendency position could be considered a district weakness.

2. Yes! Students feel included and benefit when education incorporates the histories, culture, beliefs, and multiple perspectives that represent the cultural diversity we see in our classrooms and schools. I would support the expansion of multicultural education to include family diversity, gender, sexual orientation, and students with disabilities. Education should include the written and verbal perspectives of people living these experiences.

3. One of my favorite quotes is, "Don't tell me what you value, show me your budget, and I'll tell you what you value."-J. Biden. Anytime you develop a budget, it must reflect the overall goals and mission of the district. Any changes to the district budget must reflect the voices of the multiple stakeholders within our community. Providing the platform & avenue for all stakeholders to provide input is vital to establishing priorities that lead to achieving the district's vision, mission, & goals.

4. The district has done an exceptional job and has set the bar across the state in reimagining education that includes 21st-century technology in support of online student learning. Through the expansion of the Virtual Learning Academy, Canvas, and professional development, the district has created opportunities for all students who choose to attend virtually.

The League of Women Voters of Southern
New Mexico
<https://www.lwvsnm.org/>

Abelardo Balcazar, LCPS School Board candidate District 1

1. Teachers, support staff, administrators, parents, students, and the support of the community are the strengths of LCPS. A lack of strong leadership among past and current school board members is its great weakness, particularly the board's dismissive approach to involving parents and the community at large.

2. Curriculum and programs that have clear and measurable goals and that directly benefit the entire student body's academic growth and achievement must be expanded and funded appropriately. If proposed multicultural education plans are proven to meet these basic standards, then I am in favor of expanding them.

3. Middle school is the critical point in a student's future success. Yet, educational opportunities for middle school students is ranked near the bottom. Parental involvement is ranked even lower, at less than 1 percent. Parents are the corner stone of a child's education. How can we blame parents for not being involved when we don't prioritize their involvement? I would make these top priorities as well as adding after school programs, STEM, and career education programs for high school students.

4. While we need to utilize all available tools at the disposal of our teachers, we must not let these tools render our teachers disposable. The human element in the relationship between teacher and pupil cannot be replaced by technology. Instead we must integrate technology to enhance the human learning experience to its fullest.

Henry A Young, LCPS School Board candidate District 2

1. In general, the facilities range from fair to excellent and are distributed around the districts well. We should look at the districts in the near future to have more equal numbers of schools in each district. The teaching methods can be more beneficial by incorporating systematic use of multiple subjects which allow the students to see how everything can be used in their future professions. The determination of success in education is reported on state level.

2. More money is not the answer for producing better results for any type of education. The way that available funds are used is the key to having excellence in education. Use of history and language arts, taught properly, is the key to having the most well rounded presentation of multicultural education.

3. The main priority of budgeting monies should always be to get the money to area(s) that best fit the goals of the system. This means that most of the money should go to the classrooms. This is the opportune time to offer early retirement to a top heavy school system, and get that money back to the classroom level. This is now happening at the higher education level and in many corporate level industries. The monies should be used in the best interest of our students and teachers.

4. Online learning has been used in NM before COVID. The current system for online learning is a charter school system which is funded through a school system within New Mexico but the teachers are paid by the state. Hopefully the charter will be taken out of that school system, held by the state so that all the funding can go directly to the students in online learning. This is beneficial because it allows students with special needs to work from home and have teachers available to help.

Pamela M Cort, LCPS School Board candidate District 2

1. LCPS works hard to make sure all its students are successful. Everyone works for the benefit of the children and does the best they can with the resources they have. I think we should prioritize people over resources. Students learn best when community is established before curriculum. I visited an elementary school where there are 30 students in one kindergarten class! This is difficult for the students and the teachers. Students learn best when they feel a connection to their learning.

2. Yes. This goes back to the Yazzie-Martinez lawsuit and student connection. Culturally and linguistically responsive teaching allows for ALL student voices to be heard and validated. Multiple perspectives permit students to make connections, comparisons, and associations but, above all, they learn from each other's life experiences. This creates better empathy and promotes a broader world view, which in turn produces global citizens that understand and appreciate other languages and cultures.

3. As mentioned earlier, I would prioritize people over resources. I understand that the digital divide widened during the pandemic, but living in a technological void does not serve our students or our world very well. People need to interact with each other. This is how our society survives. We need more well-qualified educators who can give our students the attention, love and support they need. I believe in community first, curriculum second. People are our most important resource.

4. LCPS is doing a great job with our virtual academy. The district is reaching out to other, smaller districts and sharing our infrastructure so that all students, no matter where they live, have access to a computer and the internet. Again, I would increase the staffing. I found out that an elementary teacher had a virtual class of 64 students! Teachers cannot give the students the instruction they need with overflowing classrooms. Research shows that smaller class sizes promotes better learning.

Robert C Wofford, LCPS School Board candidate District 3

1. Strengths: The perseverance of educators, families, and volunteers dedicated to providing students with opportunities to succeed by inspiring curiosity, nurturing imaginations, and instilling a love of learning. Weaknesses: Our schools need to be adequately staffed and resourced. They must address the whole student—their social, mental and physical health and nutrition requirements and their academic needs. Our students need access to engaging materials, up-to-date technology and approaches.

2. Absolutely. We have a proud heritage in New Mexico, emerging from the indigenous people here for countless generations, to those who came to settle this land. We need to embrace our linguistic and cultural differences and recognize that our shared values are strengthened by our diverse backgrounds. We need to talk honestly about our histories and fully fund practices and programs designed to deepen our understanding. I welcome the opportunity to address this as a school board member.

3. We must direct American Rescue Plan money to where our students need it most, including additional staffing, safe facilities, and up-to-date technology; invest in community schools which integrate health and social needs into the schools involve parents, students, and educators; work to address educator shortages through effective mentoring, manageable class sizes, and wage increases to improve recruitment and retention; and review the budget focused on our goal: student success and well being.

4. We need to continue to improve access to technology and high speed wi-fi for students, families, and staff. LCPS has an excellent Virtual Learning Academy, but we need to add staffing, training, and planning time to appropriately design and support online learning for all classes. We need to reduce class sizes and add tutoring to increase individualized attention and keep students fully engaged, integrating safe face to face and online learning.

Eloy Francisco Macha Camborda, LCPS School Board candidate District 3

1. Strengths of Las Cruces Public Schools lie in our community leaders, our parents and our educators as they have stepped up over the years to help, assist and provide ideas to organically improve our School District. Weaknesses in the Las Cruces Public Schools is the diversion of limited resources from the Academic Success of our Students, which is felt in our classrooms. In addition, our PTO/PTAs, Parent/Educator partnerships and Community involvement have greatly diminished over the years.

2. Our Las Cruces community is, has been, and will continue to be a multi-ethnic community. In part of this great heritage, our community welcomes all born here and abroad with open arms. Our School District's focus is to provide equal opportunities of education to all of our community's Students. Prioritization and focus of our limited resources needs to be for the Academic Success of our students. Our Arts and History program electives in cultural education would be a subsequent priority.

3. A primary goal of our School District is to ensure our Students are provided the adequate resources for their Academic Success. This translates to ensuring existing Academic programs and those that enhance our Student's Academic Success, such as Gifted Programs, Magnet Programs, Trade/Vocational Programs and similar, are properly funded. Our classrooms are our educational frontline - the majority of our School District's budget needs to be represented and felt in our classrooms.

4. LCPS needs to adopt proven technologies in support of both distance and online learning, which include modernizing our school facilities to enhance a hybrid education delivery model, and that of training our educators in both distance and online learning teaching methodologies. LCPS needs to provide to our students pre-recorded class sessions, smaller online classes, and enhanced online interactions, including gamification of education.

I feel as long as the town continues to look at the budget every month, we will be putting the town in a good standing in regards to our budget.

4. I plan to continue to listen to our constituents of Mesilla. I Will continue to go door to door and ask if the constituents have any questions or concerns regarding The Town of Mesilla.

Adrianna Cecilia Merrick, Candidate for Mesilla Board of Trustees

Did not respond in time for publication

Biviana M Cadena, Candidate for Mesilla Board of Trustees

1. Priorities are focused on meeting the needs of the citizens of the town of Mesilla. These include preserving our way of life. Listening to people especially those that have been in Mesilla for generations. Establishing a well rounded approach to solving issues faced by the people in our community. At the same time considering climate change, technology advances, job opportunities, planning and zoning rules, and partnering with nearby communities to maintain safety.

2. Infrastructure is critical to Mesilla. Mesilla is a beautiful place not only because of it's physical character, but because of our citizens. It is important to support every aspect of infrastructure so that the people of Mesilla can continue to live in Mesilla. We must take a wholistic approach in solving issues that best meet the needs of all our citizens. We have a wonderful community of the old, young and everyone in between and we need insure that it is affordable for all.

3. Budgets are always the biggest most important aspect of any community. I would focus on making sure that the priorities of our citizens are reflected in the budget. There is always places where changes are needed to better serve the community. Budgets must be reviewed regularly and adjusted with integrity and transparency. Accountability in government is non negotiable.

4. Keeping those that want to stay and live in Mesilla is paramount. Involvement in the community will keep the young and future generations in Mesilla, enriching their lives and the lives around us. My plan is to ask them what they see as the future of Mesilla and what they would like to see in their government. Most important is to really listen then plan and implement.

TOWN OF MESILLA MUNICIPAL JUDGE

QUESTIONS FOR THE CANDIDATE FOR THE TOWN OF MESILLA MUNICIPAL JUDGE

(500 characters)

1. What prepares you for the position?
2. What would your priorities be as a municipal judge?
3. What court procedures, if any, would you change?
4. Do you think municipal judges should be attorneys? Explain.

Donald E. Toomey, Candidate for the Town of Mesilla Municipal Judge

1. I was an attorney for 20 years prior to retirement. I also served as a panelist on child custody, visitation and support cases. I was a partner and later the senior partner of a law firm having more than five offices. I had served as an alternate Municipal Judge in Mesilla for over 5 years before being appointed as Municipal Judge in Mesilla more than 1 1/2 years ago. I have efficiently and professionally handled cases and been thanked by over 90% of litigants. I appreciate serving!!

2. My ultimate priority is to treat all who come before me fairly, refrain from punishing but rather encourage obedience to rules. I am proud to have the huge majority of people who have appeared before me leave with a good feeling that the Court has treated them properly.

3. I have already chanced a few by adding a bailiff and new Court Administrator. We have dealt with the logjam of over 11 years of uncollected fines efficiently and humanely. I believe that any defendant needs to be treated a human being and given ample opportunity to present their case and explain their position.

4. I do. I think a background in the law is imperative to prepare for the job of Municipal Judge, to understand the law and the law's intent.

movie review

BY JAY BOBBIN

Tom Cruise faces danger by joining 'The Firm'

Novelist John Grisham's law thrillers have been rich resources for moviemakers for almost 30 years, and "The Firm" is one of the most entertaining results.

Now streaming on Netflix, the 1993 drama runs a bit shy of three hours, but it's to the credit of veteran director Sydney Pollack and his team that its pace rarely if ever flags and it remains thoroughly watchable throughout. While Tom Cruise is the nominal star, he gets strong support from a top-notch cast, with some members getting roles that rank among their best.

Cruise plays earnest Mitch McDeere, the newest recruit of a Memphis firm that entices him with all sorts of perks, including a salary that stuns his schoolteacher wife Abby (Jeanne Tripplehorn). Soon after they relocate from Boston, the firm is hit with a tragedy involving two of its lawyers, launching McDeere's suspicions that all is not right.

That hunch is advanced by an insistent FBI agent (Ed Harris) who intends to use McDeere as an informant though the firm's security chief (Wilford Brimley) is just as determined not to let the Feds get any such information. A private detective (Gary Busey) and his secretary (Holly Hunter, who was an Oscar nominee for best supporting actress here, but won best actress for "The Piano" the same year) also become involved in the situation.

Sons of the American Revolution honors Las Cruces police officer

BULLETIN REPORT

The Gadsden Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution (SAR) in Las Cruces presented Las Cruces Police Officer Adrian De La Garza the Sons of the American Revolution heroism medal in September.

On February 4, 2021, De La Garza “was placed into a critical incident on I-10 with an armed and dangerous subject who, sadly and tragically, had just taken the life of New Mexico State Police Officer Darian Jarrott,” SAR said in a news release. “Officer De La Garza completed a successful pursuit intervention technique (PIT) maneuver on the fleeing suspect and nearly immediately was taking fire, at close range, from the suspect. Adrian was shot and wounded, and still had the intestinal fortitude to bring a successful resolution to the situation.

“The fact is Adrian never gave up on himself, or on the safety and welfare of other officers involved in this incident,” SAR said. “The training Adrian received in the (Las Cruces Police) Academy and throughout his 17 years with LCPD was successfully put to use on several levels to bring an end to a volatile encounter.”

SAR is the largest male lineage organization in the United States, according to www.sar.org. SAR consists of 50 societies with more than 500 local chapters and several international societies, with more than 38,000 members.

County honors La Casa, recognizes Domestic Violence Awareness Month

BULLETIN REPORT

The Doña Ana County Commission joined the nationwide recognition of October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month and honored La Casa Inc. domestic violence program for its efforts in domestic violence prevention, awareness and support, the county said in a news release. Commissioners’ vote to recognize La Casa came at their Sept. 28 regular meeting.

La Casa, Inc., a nonprofit established in 1981, is now the largest provider of domestic violence services in the state.

Seeing the dire need for a shelter, La Casa founders Diane Benson, Emily Colon, Charlene Conlee, Carmen Garza, Judy Floyd, Joseph Holmes, former state Sen. Mary Kay Papen, Heather Pollard, Billy Taylor and Phala White garnered funds and community support to convert an old armory building in Las Cruces into a shelter. To this day, it houses domestic violence survivors and their children.

White, Pollard and Papen were at the meeting to receive the county’s proclamation declaring October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

La Casa Inc. served 299 victims and survivors in 2020.

La Casa will host its 24th Annual Candlelight Vigil at Plaza de Las Cruces, 700 N. Main St., at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 21. The event commemorates victims of domestic violence and celebrates survivors.

'My dad loved this community'

Arts Council honors Todd, Hubbard, Albers for lifetime of support

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"My dad loved this community," Chris Todd said Sept. 23, as he accepted the Doña Ana Arts Council's (DAAC) Papan Family Award on behalf of longtime community activist and arts supporter Norman Todd, who died Aug. 25.

DAAC Executive Director Greg Smith said Todd and his wife, Georgette Malooly, have been DAAC supporters for more than two decades. In 2020, Todd and Malooly leased a building to DAAC as its new arts and cultural center "by making the lease one that was manageable for the Arts Council," Smith said. Smith said Todd also personally oversaw the conversion of the property, located at 250 W. Amador Ave., from a bank to a gallery.

Before his death, Smith said, Todd thanked DAAC for the award, calling it "truly the honor of a lifetime."

The award is sponsored by former state Sen. Mary Kay Papan and was presented by Smith and Papan.

Other 2021 DAAC award winners were:

- Newcomer Award, sponsored by La Posada Assisted Living: fiber artist Svea Peterson, who joined the Mesilla Valley Weaver's Guild in 2020.

The award was presented by Marlene Atwood. Peterson regularly volunteers at Cruces Creatives makerspace, teaching weaving and felting and at New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum, where she demonstrates spinning yarn. Peterson won the 2020 New Mexico

"Make It with Wool" contest with a felted churro wool bag.

- Public Service to the Arts Award, sponsored by Dr. Andrew and Shalini Bruner: Las Cruces Space Festival. The award was accepted by the festival's executive director Alice Carruth, who is also public relations coordinator for Spaceport America. The award was presented by Las Cruces Public Schools Content Specialist Joseph Flores.

- Arts in Education Award, sponsored by Dan and Mary Lere: Patricia Brown Gill, who has been a Las Cruces storyteller for 61 years, and was mentored by Jenny George Curry, who founded Storytellers of Las Cruces in 1927. "Stories are a wonderful way to get a point across," Gill said. The award was presented by Louise O'Donnell, who said Gill "has become the face of storytelling in Las Cruces."

- Community Arts Award, sponsored by Barbara Reasoner: Former DAAC Executive Director

Kathleen Albers. Presenter Kathleen Key, who is Albers' business partner in ARTE For Lifelong Learning, said Albers is "the epitome of a person passionate about the arts." "It's been a wonderful creative ride," Albers said. "I've seen the power of the arts in education."

- Arts in Public Places Award, sponsored by Michael and Barbara Mandel: Artist Kathy Morrow. "Kathy's art is for all of us," said presenter Rebecca Courtney. Morrow began creating small animals from rocks she found along the top of Tortugas Dam north of New Mexico State University and soon had created a "trail of wildlife." She has been a professional artist since 1975.

- Cultural Heritage and Development Award, sponsored by Kathleen Squires: David Chavez, who has participated in many preservation projects in Las Cruces, including renovation of Phillips Chapel and walking tours of his native Mesquite Historic District. Chavez has been a part of Las Cruces' Arts and Cultural District Coordinating Council since it began in 2014 and is its current vice chair. "I will continue to fight for historic preservation," Chavez said. "The past is important because without a past you don't have a future." The award was presented by Faith Hutson.

- John Glowacki Lifetime Achievement Award, sponsored by Scott Breckner, who also presented the award: Barbara Hubbard. Hubbard began her local career as a teacher at Las Cruces High School. She was director of special events at NMSU from 1977 until her retirement in 1996, bringing more than 100 major concerts and performances to NMSU. "Nobody's had the life that I've been blessed to live," said Hubbard, who earned her nickname, "Mother Hubbard," from Bob Hope.

The DAAC awards were held outdoors at The Hood.

Las Cruces' 2nd Big Read event features poet laureate Joy Harjo

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Thanks to a $17,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) and Arts Midwest (a nonprofit arts organization), the City of Las Cruces' Thomas Branigan Memorial Library (TBML) and Branigan Cultural Center (BCC) will host its second Big Read event of 2021 in October and November.

The second Big Read kicks off Monday, Oct. 11, and continues through Saturday, Nov. 13. It will include both live and Zoom presentations.

The month-long event will include Joy Harjo, the United States' first indigenous national poet laureate.

Harjo, who lives in Tulsa, Oklahoma, is the author of nine books of poetry, including "American Sunrise," along with plays, children's books and two memoirs.

"The Big Read is a unique opportunity for the Las Cruces community to come together and encounter Harjo's words and work as a community," said city Library Public Programs Manager Brita Sauer. "It also gives us an opportunity to reflect on indigenous history and celebrate contemporary indigenous culture. The library will offer a range of programs and learning opportunities for Las Cruces of all ages."

"We chose to feature Joy Harjo and this book especially for its resounding relevance to the community of Las Cruces, New Mexico," said City of Las Cruces Museum System Curator of Education Kayla Myers.

"Today, Las Cruces is situated on the ancestral and current homelands of the Warm Springs Apache of the Chiricahua Apache Nation, the Mes-calero Apache, the Piro, Manso, Tigua, Tortugas Pueblo, Suma, Jumano, Tapaxkolmeh and numerous indigenous nations through time. Ysleta del Sur Pueblo lies 50 miles to the east in El Paso. At New Mexico State University, there is representation from the 23 recognized tribes in New Mexico. Las Cruces is also home to a large migrant population which includes many indigenous peoples in Mexico, Central and South America such as the Maya, Tarahumara and Chichimeca," Myers continued.

Others participating in Big Read include indigenous poet Gris Muñoz and Brandon Hobson, author of "The Removed," "Where the Dead Sit Talking" and other novels. Muñoz and Hobson will conduct writing workshops, talks and readings during the month.

Harjo will do a live reading at 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 13 at Rio Grande Theatre, 211 N. Main St.

Downtown.

Harjo is "very excited" to be coming to Las Cruces for the event, Myers said.

Harjo has received the Ruth Lily Prize for Lifetime Achievement from the Poetry Foundation, the Academy of American Poets Wallace Stevens Award, two NEA fellowships and a Guggenheim Fellowship.

Harjo is also a musician and has produced seven award-winning music albums, including "I Pray for My Enemies."

She is executive editor of the "Native Nations Poetry" anthology and editor of "Living Nations, Living Words: An Anthology of First Peoples Poetry."

She is a chancellor of the Academy of American Poets, chair of the board of directors of the Native Arts and Cultures Foundation and holds a Tulsa Artist Fellowship.

Big Read will also include reading groups for children, and there will be readings presented by local book clubs and conducted by New Mexico State University faculty members.

TBML, 200 E. Picacho Ave., will have books available for community pickup to follow along with Big Read, Sauer said.

NEA has funded more than 1,700 NEA Big Read programs nationwide since 2006, providing more than $23 million to organizations nationwide.

The Renaissance ArtsFaire will celebrate its 50th anniversary Nov. 6-7 at Young Park.

RenFaire celebrates its birthday with theme of 'Bridging Cultures'

By GREG SMITH

Executive Director
Doña Ana County Arts Council

For the 50th year of the Renaissance ArtsFaire, the Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) is honoring local diversity and our region's rich cultural heritage with a theme of "Bridging Cultures."

As historic authenticity is so important and even small mistakes can be considered profoundly disrespectful, the Arts Council has chosen to steer clear of representing precisely any historic figure from our area or any historic figure from Europe.

Instead, there is a man whose appearance alludes to Pre-Columbian Mesoamerica and a woman whose appearance alludes to the Italian Renaissance. The woman represents the tradition of the RenFaire across the last 50 years, but she also represents new connections, possibly a new Renaissance. The man represents an aspect of the RenFaire that has only occasionally honored traditions on this side of the Atlantic, traditions that the Arts Council wishes to be included more permanently and more prominently in future RenFaires.

We here in the Mesilla Valley live, work and play on land where a culture the Spanish referred to as "Manso" once lived. While we have no record now of what the Manso People called themselves, we know they were genuinely, historically of this place. Descendants of the Manso, as well as of the Piro and the Tiwa, live here even now, and some have long dedicated their efforts to the pursuit of important federal recognition as a tribe. DAAC believes this is a part of our shared legacy that must be recognized and honored.

In and near our valley are pit-houses believed to have been temporarily occupied during hunts thousands of years ago by the people we now call "Mogollon." There is, additionally, more recent history of the Chiricahua Apaches claiming lands to the west of the Rio Grande and the Mescalero Apaches claiming lands to the east of that ancient river running through our valley.

There are artifacts, traditions and stories predating the arrival of the Spanish; later, people from Mexico; and ultimately, people from the United States. Among the artifacts, more than a few speak to trade existing between Mesoamerica and what is now northern New Mexico, as well as points in between; others

Blank Conversations hosts 'Rocky Horror' with live cast

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Blank Conversations Theatre Company of Las Cruces is sponsoring two presentations of the classic 1975 motion picture "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," featuring a live cast of local performers.

Performances are at 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 15-16 at Rio Grande Theatre, 211 N. Main St. Downtown.

Tickets are $10 and can be purchased at www.RioGrandeTheatre.org.

The cult classic film stars Tim Curry, Susan Sarandon, Barry Bostwick and Richard O'Brien, who also wrote the screenplay and the musical the film is based on. The movie was directed by Australian Jim Sharman.

The local shadow cast is comprised of Chad Gonzales (Frank-n-Furter), Alkhari Shirsat (Rocky), Elia Vasquez (Brad), Reagan Szulc (Janet), Cassandra Galban (Columbia), Shelly Valdovinos (Magenta), Yocelin Torres (Riff Raff), Debbie Owen (Eddie), Morgan Sullivan (Dr. Scott), JoAnna Hubbard (criminologist) and Ethiene Dali (Transylvanian).

The shadow cast performance is directed by Carrissa Galban and hosted by Ivonna Bump.

A shadow cast performance features live actors pantomiming (in "a very campy manor," according to Blank Conversations Theatre Company) as the movie is being shown.

The price of admission includes a prop bag that contains items that can be used throughout the film.

In the movie, a newly engaged couple has a breakdown in an isolated area and must seek shelter at the bizarre residence of Dr. Frank-n-Furter.

ALR tackles immigration in October

BULLETIN REPORT

New Mexico State University's Academy for Learning in Retirement (ALR) will host four Zoom presentations in October about immigration and the United States.

The programs will be presented by NMSU Department of History emeritus associate professor Jeffrey Brown, Ph.D., Department of Government professor Neil Harvey, Ph.D., Department of Finance emeritus professor Nancy Oretskin and Department of Government emeritus professor Christa Slaton, Ph.D. All four presenters have teaching or research experience that include the impacts of immigration, ALR said in a news release.

Brown earned a Ph.D. at the University of Illinois in Urbana-Champaign in 1979 and came to NMSU in 1984. His research has covered the pre-Civil War United States.

Harvey earned a Ph.D. in 1990 at the University of Essex in the United Kingdom, has carried out extensive research on rural social movements in Chiapas, Mexico and is author of many articles on the Zapatistas as well as the book "The Chiapas Rebellion: The Struggle for Land and Democracy."

Oretskin established the U.S.-Mexico Conflict Resolution Center (CRC) with congressional funding sponsored by former U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and has practiced immigration law since 2010. Slaton earned a Ph.D. at the University of Hawaii-Manoa in 1990, has published three books and has specialized in teaching American national political intuitions, political parties, public opinion, women and politics and political participation.

"The United States is a nation inhabited to a great degree by immigrants and their descendants, but immigration is often controversial and has generated significant debates," the news release said. "This series will review immigration history, laws and policies; explore the causes generating emigration from southern Mexico and Central America; assess current asylum policies and case histories; and discuss immigration and the politics of white nationalism."

Programs begin at 10:30 a.m. on these dates with these presenters and topics:

- Monday, Oct. 11: Brown, "Historic Overview: Immigration and Immigration Laws in the United States."

- Wednesday, Oct. 13: Harvey, "Root Causes of Migration from Central America and Southern Mexico: Addressing the Political Nature of Poverty, Crime and Ecological Crisis."

- Monday, Oct. 18:

Oretskin, "Asylum: What it is and Who Can Win an Asylum Claim."

- Wednesday, Oct. 20: Slaton, "21st Century Immigration and the Rise of White Nationalism in the United States."

Audience members may register at dacc.nmsu.edu/ALR. ALR will e-mail registrants a Zoom link the evening before each presentation. Programs begin at 10:30 a.m.; audience members may log in after 10 a.m. Registrants may also receive recorded broadcasts.

The fee is $5 for an individual presentation.

ALR is a nonprofit started in 1992 by former NMSU President Gerald Thomas and retired deans Thomas Gale, Virginia Higbie, Flavia McCormick and others, including former professor and teacher Clarence Fielder.

Dogged determination: Pet owner lobbies for animal hospital

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

If Las Cruces gets a new after-hours emergency animal hospital, some of the credit will go to Barney and Fergus.

After Barney, a Basenji and redbone hound mix, was attacked by two other dogs and suffered serious injuries in June 2020, owner Dawn Duncan was able to take him to after-hours emergency care in Las Cruces. But, when Fergus, a schnauzer/beagle cross, started bleeding on a Saturday several days after surgery earlier this year, Duncan discovered that around-the-clock emergency animal care was no longer available in the city and had to rush him to an animal hospital in El Paso.

"I was shocked to learn that the second largest city in New Mexico does not have a seven-day-a-week, 24-hour emergency animal hospital," Duncan said in a letter to the editor.

"My dogs are my family," she said. "I have a responsibility to care for them."

Both dogs are now

healthy, and Duncan is on a mission to bring full-time emergency veterinary services to Las Cruces and southern New Mexico. She has organized a "civic action group" called Animal Companions of Las Cruces, which already has 65 local members who meet regularly and its own website.

"I will not stop until something changes," said Duncan, who moved to Las Cruces with her husband, Dennis, and their dogs Barney and Fergus in August 2019.

They came from Moorhead, Minnesota, which is adjacent to Fargo, North Dakota. With a population and median income comparable to Las Cruces, Fargo was able to open its own emergency animal hospital in 2005, Duncan said.

All the veterinarians in Fargo "came together," she said, put up $50,000 and borrowed another $150,000 to open an emergency hospital. Each vet took one shift a month at the hospital, which was paid off and making a profit within five years, Duncan said.

That same model could be applied in Las Cruces, she said, and that's why Duncan is trying to organize a consortium of local veterinarians. Animal Companions is also contacting local realtors and the City of Las Cruces to find a suitable space for an animal hospital, she said, and is reaching out to students studying veterinary medicine to encourage them to set up practices in Las Cruces.

The annual Kitty Glitter jewelry sale will be Oct. 8-10 at the Griggs & Raymond Event House, 504 W. Griggs Ave.

SW, cat-specific programs at other nonprofit animal welfare groups in Doña

Ana County and individuals who are working with a nonprofit to help cats.

Kitty Glitter is a fundraiser to benefit nonprofits dedicated to helping cats and kittens.

The 2021 event begins with a pre-sale (first shot at buying the jewelry) from 5 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 8. A $10 donation is requested at the door. Refreshments are provided by Better Life Pet Foods. Artist Paula Voris donates the venue.

The regular sale is 7 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 9. No donation is requested to attend, but donations are accepted.

From 10 to 11 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 10, is an event Kitty Glitter organizers are calling a "beader's delight." Less-than-perfect jewelry pieces will be discounted so that creatives can purchase them to rip apart and make new and beautiful items.

Kitty Glitter features thousands of gently used pieces of jewelry for sale at great prices — quirky and artistic creations, fun costume finds, "good stuff" and everything in between, Kitty Glitter said in a news release. Most prices run from $1 to $30, and although the "good stuff" is more than that, it's still priced to sell, the news release said.

Face coverings will be required during the event and the number of visitors at the event will be monitored to ensure social distancing. Hand sanitizer will be available throughout the event.

Spay, neuter program lands national grant

BULLETIN REPORT

Spay Neuter Action Program (SNAP) of Doña Ana County announced that it has received a $1,000 grant from Petco Love to support SNAP's lifesaving work for animals in the county.

Petco Love, formerly known as Petco Foundation, is a nonprofit working for closer, stronger, healthier pets, families and communities.

The organization was founded in 1999 and has invested $300 million to date in pet adoptions and other lifesaving efforts, a news release said.

Petco Love has helped find homes for more than 6.5 million animals in partnership with Petco and with 4,000 organizations across the nation.

"Today, Petco Love invests in SNAP and hundreds of other organizations across the nation working to improve animal health and welfare as part of our commitment to creating a future in which no pet is unnecessarily euthanized," Petco Love President Susanne Kogut said.

"This has been a challenging year for all of us," SNAP Board President Julie Miller said. "With the help of Petco Love, SNAP will be able continue with our mission of helping under-resourced communities in Doña Ana County spay and neuter their pets despite this pandemic. As of August 2021, we are proud to report over 24,000 animals have been spayed or neutered since its inception in 1998."

The nonprofit SNAP issues vouchers to qualifying pet owners in the county to have their dogs and cats spay or neutered at a reduced cost.

SNAP is the only low-cost resource available in Doña Ana County for low-income families to spay and neuter their pets.

Connections to Hispanic culture are all over — just look around

Living right in the Borderland, we enjoy Mexican food any time of any day. We listen to Latinx music on the radio and watch Spanish language programming on TV. New Mexico is an officially designated bilingual state. We celebrate our multicultural heritage even as we grapple with economic indicators, and health outcomes, low rankings in education and childhood wellbeing.

Doña Ana County is one of the poorest counties in the nation and Spanish speakers are often the poorest and least upwardly mobile segment of our population. What is there to celebrate? Quite a bit, according to John Leguizamo, creator of the 2017 Broadway show “Latin History for Morons.”

Leguizamo, a Columbian-Puerto Rican American actor and comic, has combed American history to see where connections from the past impact current challenges faced by 20 percent of the nation’s population.

The impetus for Leguizamo’s research and subsequent creation of his one-man show was his son’s distress about being called racist names as bullying escalated at his “fancy private school.” Hoping to fortify his boy’s self-esteem with his rich heritage, Leguizamo began searching textbooks to find a Latin hero for his son’s history project.

RORIE MEASURE
Reading Solution

“I always wanted my kids to be proud of their heritage. There was nothing about Latin history,” he said. “Nothing. Zero. I felt nonexistent. I felt invisible. I felt history-less.

And the messaging that comes from that is that you’re worthless.”

Leguizamo connects current social inequities to his thoroughly researched history lesson and sprinkles in recommendations to the audience for further reading. His top three picks for getting started are Eduardo Galeano’s “Open Veins of Latin America,” Howard Zinn’s “A People’s History of the United States,” and Charles C. Mann’s “1491” and “1493.” The show, now available on Netflix, is intended for “mature audiences” as it is peppered with expletives in two languages.

Hispanic Heritage Month conversations are vital to Hispanic and Latino children who now comprise 26 percent of the U.S. child population, according to analysis from the National Research Center on Hispanic Children & Families. When families talk about and respect all cultures at home, we strengthen core values of inclusion, empathy, cultural responsiveness, and perspective-taking that a child carries into the world.

In our area there are opportunities to share cultural traditions with the whole family. Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead), is a celebration of life and death and signs of the observance are cropping up in homes and public spaces now. Not to be confused with Halloween, Día de los Muertos has its roots in ancient Meso American culture and is observed on Nov. 1-2. Notice the bright paper decorations, colorfully decorated skulls and fanciful skeletons in bakeries, shops and public places. At home, families are reverently preparing altars in honor of lost loved ones for more personal observances. This holiday easily crosses cultures so everyone can participate.

The Children’s Reading Alliance will present the bilingual story, “The Festival of the Bones/El Festival de las Calaveras,” written and illustrated by Mexican artist Luis San Vicente on Oct. 15. The story is suitable for children and will be performed in English and Spanish by actor and musician Jonathan Contreras with audience participation on Zoom.

Each participating family receives a copy of the book with suggestions for creating their own traditions, instructions for building and decorating an altar and recipes for baking Pan de Muerto and constructing sugar skulls.

Two companies with international operations expand to Santa Teresa

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Two companies with operations outside of the United States have selected New Mexico as the place for their newest manufacturing operations.

Ergomotion, Inc., the world's largest manufacturer of bedding bases, and The Tecma Group of Companies, which provides shelter services for manufacturers, have announced new facilities in Santa Teresa, adding at least 10 new jobs to the state, the Garrity Group, an Albuquerque-based public relations firm, said in a news release.

Both Ergomotion and Tecma share a bi-national approach and have operations in Juárez, Mexico and now Santa Teresa. The Santa Teresa international border region will provide the two companies with advantages such as quick access to national and international markets and competitive training programs that complement their already established production facilities in Mexico, Garrity said.

The New Mexico Economic Development Department (NMEDD) will provide Tecma with a $100,000 grant from the state's Local Economic Development Act (LEDA) job-creation fund to assist in the transition to open their facility in New Mexico.

"New Mexico has become key for many companies looking for ease of access to distribute products within the United States and to the rest of the world," NMEDD Sec. Alicia Keyes said. "This area, and New Mexico in general, offers unique logistical advantages for those looking to simplify their global supply chain."

"Not only has Blue Road Investments been excellent to deal with as a landlord, but the location of this facility near the Santa Teresa port of entry complements Tecma's trucking and logistics facilities and will prove strategic to our cross-border clients," said Tecma Chairman and CEO Alan Russell.

"To fill up a huge 315,000 square-foot speculative building so quickly after it was finished, with world-class tenants such as Ergomotion and Tecma shows how much momentum Santa Teresa has generated in recruiting new industry," said New Mexico Partnership (NMP) Senior Business Consultant Jerry Pacheco of Santa Teresa. "This is why 60 percent of New Mexico's exports to the world originate in Santa Teresa."

Pacheco is president and CEO of the Border Industrial Association, a nonprofit industrial advocacy group of industrial members that account for 6,000 employees and billions of value-added production (and 6 million square feet of industrial space) and more than $1 billion in investment in the Santa Teresa-Las Cruces Corridor. # Martial arts dojo opens at Mesilla Valley Mall with free classes for women

FROM A MESILLA VALLEY MALL NEWS RELEASE

Under the leadership of general manager Loretta Pina, Mesilla Valley Mall (MVM) is embarking on a new initiative to expand the types of enterprises offered at the mall, including more locally based ones.

“We want to be more inclusive of the community,” Pina said. “So, we welcome Guzman Martial Arts as one of the newest members of our mall family.”

Pina said while a martial arts dojo might at first appear to be an unlikely tenant for a shopping mall, it serves as a catalyst for a host of benefits such as increased confidence, self-defense skills, physical fitness and improved mental stamina and social skills.

“One of my primary goals as mall general manager is to help bring people together to provide a welcoming environment in which to shop, socialize and grow,” Pina said. “A martial arts dojo is a great way to help our residents of all ages to grow physically and mentally.”

Pina said she researches prospective tenants that appeal to the needs and desires of the community, and she determined that a martial arts studio would be a great addition. So, she approached Eli Guzman, the president and CEO of Guzman Sport Karate and Kickboxing, Inc.

“Master Sensei Guzman accepted my invitation to meet and explore the mall with me,” Pina said. “We discussed all the positive aspects of him locating here and he agreed to sign on.”

This is the first martial arts studio in the mall since it opened 40 years ago, Pina said, and she and Guzman are working to bring the mall’s first-ever martial arts tournament in the coming weeks.

Guzman’s 4,000 square-foot MVM location is called Guzman Martial Arts. His Guzman Sport Karate and Kickboxing, Inc. will continue to operate at 1203 N. Main St.

“Establishing a second location at MVM appealed to me because of its centralized location and popularity as a gathering space,” Guzman said. “The mall location will make it more appealing to join a class or continue an existing program.”

He currently has approximately 65 students at the mall location and the number is growing.

Guzman’s programs include youth martial arts, Maui Thai kickboxing, takedown sparring, self-defense and birthday parties. He said he also offers free self-defense classes for women at 7 p.m. Thursdays at MVM and is considering including Zumba and yoga classes.

During his Aug. 28 grand opening at MVM, Guzman held a belt ceremony at which time he received his eighth-degree black belt and nearly 100 students were promoted to their new belt level.

Guzman said he has taught thousands of students during the past 20 years. He operated his first location on Mesquite Street 2001-08 before relocating to north Main Street.

Guzman Martial Arts is across from the food court at the mall.

Mesilla Valley Mall is at 700 S. Telshor Blvd. Hours of operation are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. Visit www.mesillavalleymall.com.

NMP, based in Albuquerque, is an organization designated by the state to serve as the single-point-of-contact to help business locate to New Mexico.

“These announcements are possible because New Mexico is competitive,” NMP CEO Melinda Allen said.

“Our training programs coupled with our location and affordable, experienced workforce provides a high value for manufacturing and distribution operations,” Allen said. “Those are a few of the reasons why companies like Ergomotion, Tecma, Rio Blue and Sierra Madre (announced earlier this year) are all establishing a presence in Santa Teresa.”

Ergomotion draws on its heritage by infusing smart tech into a curated collection of ergonomically designed, customized wellness solutions, Garrity said.

With more than 7 million adjustable bases sold in more than 30 countries around the world, Ergomotion has grown to become the world’s largest supplier of adjustable bedding bases.

Tecma provides comprehensive information on the services to maintain low-cost and low-risk manufacturing operations in Mexico. It has been a provider of bundled services, commonly referred to as “shelter services,”

NMSU great Trevelin Queen makes Laker training camp squad

FROM NMSU ATHLETICS

Trevelin Queen's dream to play in the NBA is still alive.

In an announcement made by his agent, the former New Mexico State University men's basketball great made it known that he will be occupying a spot on the Los Angeles Lakers' training camp roster.

The partially guaranteed training camp deal makes the Glen Burnie, Maryland, product one of 19 players who currently comprise the Lakers' training camp roster.

While in training camp with one of the NBA's most storied franchises, Queen will be competing alongside the likes of LeBron James, Anthony Davis, Russell Westbrook, Carmelo Anthony, Rajon Rondo and others.

Former NMSU standout Trevelin Queen played in the NBA's Summer League with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Lakers' training camp roster likely came after the guard turned heads within the organization during his NBA Summer League stint with the club. Through five games with the Lakers' Summer League squad, Queen averaged 13.2 points, 2.6 rebounds, 2.0 steals and 0.6 assists in 19.0 minutes per game. The athletic guard put up impressive shooting splits of .480/.538/.846 throughout his time in the Purple and Gold.

In the Lakers' final NBA Summer League game on Aug. 17, Queen powered the team back from a 17-point deficit against the Golden State Warriors by finishing with 21 points, five rebounds and four steals.

One of the most exciting players to ever suit up for the Aggies, Queen helped NM State go 55-11 (.833) during his two-year stint in Las Cruces. That record included an incredible 31-1 (.969) mark in Western Athletic Conference (WAC) regular season games and as a result the Aggies picked up a pair of WAC regular season titles and the only available WAC Tournament crown during that stretch.

Individually, Queen topped the Aggies' charts in scoring (13.2 ppg) and minutes per game (27.5) during the 2019-20 campaign. In addition to that, the guard submitted averages of 5.2 rebounds, 2.4 assists and 1.7 steals per game while putting up shooting splits of .471/.387/.814. That allowed Queen to earn All-

WAC Second Team, NABC District Six Second Team and USBWA All-District VIII Team laurels at the conclusion of the campaign.

Beginning his career as a spark plug off of the bench for the Aggies in 2018-19, Queen's path toward NM State stardom began in the 2019 WAC Tournament title bout with third-seeded Grand Canyon with a trip to the NCAA Tournament on the line.

Queen caught fire, erupting for an NM State career-best 27 points to help the Aggies rip the Lopes. As a result, he was named the WAC Tournament's Most Valuable Player.

With Queen on their side in 2019-20, NM State put up the first 16-0 run through WAC play in the history of the league which was a large part of the 19-game winning streak the Aggies embarked on to wrap up the season.

Queen and the rest of the Lakers opened training camp for the 2021-22 NBA season on Sept. 29. Numerous options are on the table for Queen who could make the Lakers' roster for the 2021-22 season, earn a spot on the South Bay Lakers (the Los Angeles Lakers' G League affiliate) or collect a two-way contract with the club.

For complete coverage of NM State men's basketball as the Aggies prepare for their 2021-22 season, visit NMStateSports.com — the official home of Aggie athletics — and follow the Aggies on Facebook (NM State Men's Basketball), Twitter (@NMStateMBB) and Instagram (@NMStateMBB).

10 tips inspired by Arnold Palmer to get where you need to be going

Aspire to Excellence. Nobody ever became great by settling for average, middle-of-the-pack, "gentleman's C." Always strive to be the best you can be. Sounds like Arnie and his Army. If someone is not continually working to improve, he can't expect to be competitive.

Have a Vision. As the saying goes, "If you don't know where you're going,

CHARLIE BLANCHARD

any road will take you there." If you are one of those golfers who plays regularly, but can't seem to take your game to a higher level, then set some specific goals, write them down and make a logical plan.

Choose Wisely. Golf is all about decisions. Choices. From picking the right club for the right shot, to choosing the line and speed of your putt. Golfers falter since they haven't learned the details of decision-making; sometimes, they are too impulsive, leading to bad consequences.

Play to Win. That's Arnie all the way — and I agree, with a certain measure of caution. I'm not a riverboat gambler or hustler when it comes to golf. I have a lot of pride, so I'd rather play masterfully and bravely, and lose, than play like a chop with fake strokes and win money. It's probably from my experience in the '80's as a retail entrepreneur, refusing to fail — and I didn't.

Avoid Hazards. In a manner similar to the avoid-losing strategy, staying away from hazards (now "penalty areas") seems to be a key success in all sports, not just on the golf course. In sports, there are penalties, fouls, obstacles, misfortunes, accidents and rules infractions of all sorts. Just as in life. On the golf course, bunkers, boundaries, streams and lakes are often positioned in spots that attract over-zealous folks, the unprepared, unthinking and unaware.

Play by the Rules. It's an unfortunate reality but most golfers don't know a lot about the rules of golf. Serious golfers usually do, but most golfers aren't serious or studious players. One thing I like about golf is that the rules have very little bend (but some) in them. And the rules can sometimes work in your favor, just as in life. Go online for rules or get a USGA Rule Book.

Become Mentally Tough.

There is no other characteristic of successful people that is more shared between business leaders and sports winners than mental toughness. That's because the challenges are so similar in terms of emotions.

Being tough mentally isn't simply a matter of never choking or never getting nervous or never losing your cool. No. You become stronger from within as you learn to become emotionally resilient.

On the golf course and in organizations and on sales calls, bad breaks happen, things turn sour and it seems like the cards (and world) are stacked against you. How we respond to setbacks and adversity defines how genuinely strong we are.

Attend Closely to Details. The one thing I have noticed about people who are expert in what they do is that they pay attention to myriad details. I don't care if we're talking about musicians, architects, surgeons or golfers. Brilliant leaders in their fields sharpen their understanding of their work every hour of every day. Tiger Woods is a great example, not just as he was winning 82 tournaments and 15 majors, but also as a youth winning all those amateurs.

Maintain a Positive Attitude. One of the all-time, most popular and most powerful books ever written is Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's "The Power of Positive Thinking," which posited that what we reap in reality is proportionate to what we sow mentally. Do you like working with negative whiners? Do you like playing golf with angry, grouchy folks who trudge around all 18 holes with bad vibes? If you want to play good golf, think positive; think possibilities.

Get Professional Help. No one in this world can go it alone. If you want to get ahead, whether in sports or in business, you need a team — you need a number of reliable people supporting and assisting you. That's what an executive coach does.

For us golfers, it's about recognizing that we need feedback and coaching with our golf swing, knowledge and our game.

People all over New Mexico support the PNM/AVANGRID merger.
Because there are so many benefits for New Mexico.

The merger will bring hundreds of millions of dollars into the state for economic development. That investment will expand renewable energy, helping us reach our goal of zero emissions. The merger will also help upgrade infrastructure to provide reliable energy at affordable rates. It will create new jobs and spur economic growth across the state.

Just as important, PNM will have access to global resources but still be managed by New Mexicans.
