The Sacramento Mountains Museum & Pioneer Village has been haunted just in time for Halloween and the trees are putting on a golden firecracker show this year. A visit to Cloudcroft could be just the perfect weekend picnic getaway for the end of October. The Haunted Village will be open from 7-10 p.m. Oct. 29-31. You can find out what is going on for Halloween closer to home on page 26.

DAC IN THE KNOW

Halloween is a fun and spooky time of year for kids. Be safe with these tips from the Doña Ana County Fire & Emergency Services Department:

- Use a battery-operated candle or glow stick in jack-o-lanterns.
- When choosing costumes, stay away from long trailing fabric.
- Keep all decorations away from open flames and other heat sources like lightbulbs and heaters.
- Teach children to stay away from open flames including jack-o-lanterns with candles in them.
- Keep exits clear of decorations.
- Make sure all smoke alarms in the home are working.
- Stop, drop, and roll if your clothing catches fire!

Don't forget to vote: Nov. 2 election features city, school, other races

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Tuesday, Nov. 2, is Election Day, as Las Cruces voters cast ballots for city council, Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education — plus yes-no questions on a $50 million school bond issue and a 2-mill levy — and the Doña Ana Soil and Water Conservation District (DASWCD) Board of Supervisors.

Early voting continues at nine locations around the county through Saturday, Oct. 30.

“Public education is very dependent upon public support of bond issues,” said former New Mexico Governor and NMSU Chancellor Garrey Carruthers of Las Cruces. “This is true for both our public schools and institutions of higher education. Voting for educational bond issues is your best way to signal you support the efforts of the educational system, the work they are doing and you understand the need for continuous updating of facilities. I have voted for this year’s General Obligation bond issue and ask you to do the same.

There are 40 voting locations that will be open across the county — a qualified voter can vote at any location — 7 a.m.-7 p.m. on Election Day.

tions” to find a complete list of early voting and Election Day voting locations.

Las Cruces City Council districts 3, 5 and 6 are on the ballot. There are three candidates, including one write-in candidate, in District 3 and four candidates in District 5, so both races will be decided by ranked-choice voting.

There are only two candidates in District 6, so ranked-choice voting will not be used in that election.

The district 1, 2 and 3 seats on the LCPS Board of Education are on this year’s ballot. Each race has two candidates.

Voters may cast ballots for two DASWCD supervisors from among the four candidates on the ballot.

There are also races for mayor in Anthony (New Mexico) and Hatch; for town council in Mesilla, village council in Hatch and city council in Sunland Park and Anthony; and for municipal judge in Mesilla, Sunland Park and Anthony.

There are also races for seats on the Gadsden Independent School District and Hatch Valley Public Schools boards of education and the Caballo Soil and Water Conservation District board.

Both Gadsden and Hatch have bond issues on their ballots as well.

Absentee ballots must be received in the Doña Ana County Clerk’s office by 7 p.m. on Election Day to be counted.

Ranked-choice voting is part of a 'robust democracy,' expert says

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

In the Nov. 2 local election, two Las Cruces City Council races — districts 3 and 5 — will be decided by ranked-choice voting (RCV), which gives voters a number of advantages, said Maria Perez, a ranked-choice advocate who helped set up RCV in both Las Cruces and Santa Fe.

"We rank things every day," said Perez, co-founder and co-director of Democracy Rising, a national political organization founded in 2020 with offices in Santa Fe and Washington, D.C.

RCV is like "picking an apartment," Perez said. "No apartment is perfect." Some are bigger, she said. Some have better parking, some have carpeting, some come with utilities paid or have other advantages or disadvantages, she said.

"You rank your options," she said. "It's the same sort of thinking, comparing candidates: What's great about them, what's not so good about them."

And, if you rank them in order of your preference on your ballot, "your vote stays in play even if your favorite candidate does not win," Perez said.

"My hope is that voters prioritize participation in important local elections that often can affect their daily lives more than they realize," said Doña Ana County Clerk Amanda Lopez Askin. "Additionally, RCV's goal is to engage more voters and candidates as well as have a majority of voters that put some level of support behind a winning candidate."

The county clerk's office is administering the Nov. 2 election county-wide.

In city council district 3 and 5, if one candidate gets 50 percent plus one vote in the first round of voting, the race is over. If no candidate gets a majority in the first round and there are more than two candidates in the race, it proceeds to RCV and a Doña Ana County computer program eliminates the candidate with the fewest votes and then allocates his or her second-, third- and possibly fourth-ranked votes to the other candidates in that race. The process continues until one candidate has a majority of votes in each race.

RCV also encourages voters to learn about all candidates in the race or races they are voting in, Perez said, so they can give each one the appropriate ranking on their ballots.

RCV also eliminates any disincentive a prospective candidate might feel about running for office, Perez said. With voters ranking candidates, "you're not going to be spoiling it for anyone," she said, or help to elect another candidate you don't support. Instead, RCV encourages candidates to talk about their platforms and "what is important to your constituency."

RCV also encourages candidates to "make sure all the voters know about them," she said, "even those that prefer different candidates." That way, a candidate can appeal to voters who have a different first choice but might rank him or her second.

At the same time, Perez said, a voter should only rank those candidates he or she supports.

"No voter needs to put someone you don't like on the ballot," she said.

And, Perez said, it's perfectly acceptable to vote for only one candidate in a RCV race.

With RCV, "elections become more competitive," Perez said, "and that's a good thing."

It's "good to have diverse voices ... different ideas, (people) thinking of their community in different ways," she said. That is part of a "robust democracy."

RCV can also save municipalities money because they eliminate the need for a runoff election, Perez said. A recent runoff in Albuquerque, which does not have RCV, cost the city $1.5 million, she said.

The three candidates in the District 3 race are Becki Graham, Bev Courtney and write-in candidate Gregory Shervanick; incumbent Gabriel Vasquez is not running for a second term. The four candidates in District 5

LCHS Band finishes in top 10 despite equipment being stolen

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"You overcome and the show goes on," Las Cruces High School Band Director Ty Frederick said about the band's top-10 finish in the Zia Marching Band Fiesta in Albuquerque last Saturday despite the theft of thousands of dollars in band instruments and equipment the night before.

As they were preparing to leave LCHS for Albuquerque early Saturday morning, Oct. 22, Frederick got a call that the band's equipment truck had been stolen from an Albuquerque motel parking lot, along with about $200,000 in musical instruments and sound equipment.

Las Cruces High School Marching Band, under the direction of Ty Frederick. The band finished in the top 10 during an Albuquerque competition despite having their equipment stolen.

When Frederick told band members about the theft, "It didn't feel real at first," said Luke Bugbee, a freshman who plays bass drum.

LUKE BUGBEE

When Frederick said he "had some bad news," Luke said he thought there might be a problem with lunch that day, or something like that.

"It was hard to believe for a second," he said. "The more you thought about it, the more you thought about how many important things were on the truck."

Frederick immediately began making calls — to NMSU and Las Cruces area and Albuquerque high schools — to borrow drums, sousaphones, a complete sound system and color-guard flags so the band could perform that afternoon.

One of Frederick's first calls was to NMSU Music Department Head Fred Bugbee (Luke's father), who loaned drums and color guard equipment to LCHS.

El Dorado High School (Albuquerque) Band Director Brad Dubbs promised the loan of percussion equipment and

Bond tackles infrastructure

Las Cruces Public Schools has a $50 million bond issue on the Nov. 2 ballot.

If passed by local voters, it will not increase property taxes. The money will pay for a wide range of LCPS projects, including $5 million for kitchen remodeling at Highland Elementary School and Lynn Middle School; about $2 million for Zia Middle School for a bus loop and to rebuild an interior wall; $4.1 million for roof replacements at César Chávez and Hermosa Heights elementary schools; almost $1.4 million for security fencing, intercoms and safety doors at a dozen schools; and $5.65 million for land are Becky Corran, Ronnie Sisneros, Robert Paquette and David Telford; incumbent Gill Sorg is not running for a fourth term.

Incumbent Yvonne Flores and challenger William Beerman are the only two candidates in city council District 6, so ranked-choice voting will not be used in that race.

Districts three, five and six are the only Las Cruces City Council races on this year's ballot.

The mayor and council seats in districts 1, 2 and 4, along with municipal judge, are not up until 2023.

RCV is not used in any other local races in Las Cruces, and Las Cruces and Santa Fe are the only two New Mexico municipipalities that use RCV.

RCV will not be used in races for 1) mayor, city or town council or municipal judge in Mesilla, Hatch, Anthony, New Mexico or Sunland Park; 2) Las Cruces Public Schools, Gadsden Independent School District or Hatch Valley Public Schools board of education races; 3) Doña Ana or Caballo soil and water conservation district board of supervisors races; or 4) any other race in Doña Ana County that is on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Together or individually, Perez and Democracy Rising co-founder Grace Ramsey have worked on campaigns to adopt or implement RCV in nearly a dozen municipalities across the country, including Las Cruces, Santa Fe and New York City.

If you want to know if it's a Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) crew working on your street, or in your area, get the information before it happens by making sure that your contact information is up to date.

"Alerts are related to emergency service outages, planned service outages, fire hydrant system flushing, and also for utility account statuses — like an overdue bill or the day before service cut-off," said LCU Business System Analyst Jeff Dillard.

LCU provides utility alert messages to customers by email, and as a text to your phone — all specifically about your utilities services or outages that could affect your area.

What's this? Praise for a construction project?

A few years ago, I wrote in the space — more than once — about the horrors of the Valley Drive construction project, which dragged on forever, and cost more than a couple of people their businesses.

The state did the phases out of order, essentially trapping a mile-long stretch of the road, and creating troublesome traffic jams.

One of the end results is a confusing southbound lane at the stoplight on Avenida de Mesilla that makes drivers feel like they're heading into the opposite left-turn lane.

Perhaps stinging from the loud, unanimous criticism from that job and its delays and problems, the New Mexico Department of Transportation worked diligently to ensure another huge project would be better received and more amenable to drivers and adjacent businesses.

A little less than two years after its groundbreaking, the massive Interstate 25/University Avenue/Triviz Drive interchange project is complete.

"When I first heard what was happening, I was scared to death," said Vince Vaccaro, owner of Lorenzo's Italian Restaurant, whose 1753 E. University Ave. address in the Pan Am Plaza would be right in the thick of the construction chaos. Vaccaro even had Day-Glo orange T-shirts printed, with the

The vegetable defamation trial with all its twists, turns

It was a severe case of vegetable defamation, the makin's of a landmark case of harassment and abuse.

The plaintiff, a Miss Parsley, was demanding compensation of one Paul Pierre Potato and, to-be-specified produce.

laid next to a lecherous cutlet whose gravy kept touching my cheese.

It was all I could do to keep silent. Then I felt the promiscuous peas.

Nudging their firm little bodies, assuming themselves in my space,

It was clear they had eyes for the cutlet and longed for his gravy em-

And there I lay lumpy and fighting my pain, ignored as the fork stirred their lust.

The shame that I felt in their amorous twine sorely tempted, but cry out I must,

"Decorum," I prompted, "Remember you're food! Presentation is half of the meal!"

Take pride in your placement and dress up your ranks, we're the chef's culinary ideal.

A painting in fiber, a sculpture in glaze, a feast for a gourmet's eye view!

You're acting like leftovers, reheated lumps. The diners will think that we're stew.

Alas, twas no use, they continued to mix till we looked like a discarded cud.

Bereft of all pride, depraved by the scene, I peered up out of the mud.

And there on the edge, immune to the drama in which I was hopelessly scrounged,

A vision of verdant vegetaciousness . . . Miss Parsley, provocative, lounged.

"At last," said the judge, "you have got to the point." "Your honor, I meant no offense.

Will state leave room for teachers to maneuver with new standards?

A great nation is able to teach its history honestly, celebrating its triumphs and correcting its mistakes.

That's what the New Mexico Public Education Department is trying to accomplish with its proposed revision to the social studies standards. The 122-page plan lays out in fine detail what would be taught to students in social studies classes from kindergarten through high school.

And that's one of my concerns. Dictating every detail from Santa Fe wouldn't seem to leave much room for teachers.

The revision comes at a time when school districts throughout the nation are going through

WALT RUBEL

The View
From Here

the wrenching process of re-evaluating how we look at our past and its impact on who we are today.

In the 1970s, several legal scholars began writing about the role white supremacy has played in advancing the interests of white people in the U.S. over those of minorities. It was called Critical Race Theory. Today, CRT has become shorthand on the political right for any discussion about race that might make white people uncomfortable.

The state's proposed revision is not CRT. But it does place a strong emphasis on our cultural and racial differences at every level in the process.

Kindergartners would be taught to, "describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities and people who do not." Seventh-grade students would be asked to "brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices."

There is also a heavy emphasis on the natural migration of people that has taken place over the centuries, and on the root causes of scarcity and poverty.

I don't quibble with the historical accuracy of the proposed curriculum, but I worry that if not presented correctly it could focus too much on our differences and not enough on our commonalities.

The success of this new curriculum will depend on having teachers who understand their students and are able to explain complex and controversial subjects in a way that is nuanced and respectful of differing positions. I hope the PED will give teachers that freedom.

I'm always suspicious of any grand new edicts that flow from the state Capitol to the schoolhouse. We saw the dangers of that recently in neighboring Texas, when school librarians were told that a new state law required them to present opposing views to any books they may have on historical events — even the Holocaust. So, "Mein Kampf?"

Despite my misgivings, it's clear the new curriculum would provide a comprehensive study of who we are and how we got here. Much of it would be specific to our state, heritage and culture. And, all of it is designed to encourage students to think critically about issues and be able to rationally make and support their own decisions. And then get involved.

The plan is still just a draft at this time, and the public comment period is still open. A public hearing will be held via Zoom, from 1 to 5 p.m. on Nov. 12. Public comment will also be taken by email at rule.feedback@state.nm.us;

Later in the pandemic, she said, production interruptions, supply-chain break-

downs and the lack of available employees
slowed the project significantly.

NMDOT project
manager Ryan Tafoya
and La Calerita Construction of Las Cruces worked hard to keep things on track.

“One of our requirements was that we not impede traffic for any real length of time,” Evans said. “We tried hard to keep two lanes
of traffic open on University at all times.”

The Oct. 22 celebration was a token of appreciation for that work.

“The pizza and this recognition is a thank you to everyone, speaking on behalf of all the businesses on University,” Vaccaro said.

In addition to using a local construction firm,
NMDOT also commissioned Las Cruces artist Collette Marie to create the art images of chiles, cotton and other designs on the bridges and concrete.

The finishing touches
will be added by NMSU, including a monument
in the bigger roundabout, and decorative gateway pillars.

Evans said there will be a public ribbon cutting 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 1, under the bridge, and it will televised on the Las Cruces Channel.

New America teacher named state's best

BULLETIN REPORT

Lorynn Guerrero, who teaches English language arts at New America School-Las Cruces (NASLC), has been named 2022 New Mexico Teacher Of The Year (TOTY).

The announcement was made Oct. 22 by New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED) Sec. Kurt Steinhaus.

"Ms. Guerrero's efforts on behalf of her teenage students in Las Cruces have been nothing short of extraordinary," Steinhaus said. "New Mexico is fortunate to have her as our 2022 spokesperson for the teaching profession and our representative in the national TOTY competition. Her dedication and high standards will serve as a model to all of us in the coming year."

Steinhaus presented the award during an Oct. 22 ceremony at NASLC, a state-chartered high school with 257 enrolled students, 98 percent of whom are economically disadvantaged, NMPED said in a news release.

"It's kind of unbelievable to see that I'm the recipient of the New Mexico 2022 TOTY because I think all the teachers in New Mexico do an excellent job, so I'm very honored to be chosen," Guerrero said after learning of her selection.

The New Mexico Oil and Gas Association is the title sponsor for the state

LORYNN GUERRERO

TOTY program for the fourth year and will contribute up to $25,000 worth in support and professional development opportunities to the winner.

Guerrero, who grew up in Las Cruces, began her teaching career in 2006 in Hatch, where she taught both middle- and high-school students. She joined Las Cruces Public Schools in 2012, first teaching at Organ Mountain High School, before moving to NASLC.

Guerrero's father was an educator, and Guerrero always intended to follow him into the profession but worried that her dream would be derailed when she became a mother at age 17, the NMPED news release said. The Graduation Reality And Dual Skills (GRADS) program at her high school kept her on course and motivated her to bring the GRADS program to NASLC in 2020. The associated child-care center opened in August.

"Ms. Guerrero is an outstanding teacher," NASLC Superintendent and Principal Margarita Leza Porter said in her letter nominating Guerrero for the award. "Her increased level of rigor, the setting of high expectations and continual reflection on her teaching sets her apart from other educators," the letter said.

In addition to teaching, Guerrero is working on a master's degree in educational administration, which she expects to complete in May 2022, NMPED said. Her bachelor's degree in secondary educa-

Gadsden ISD principal honored

BULLETIN REPORT

Mesquite Elementary School (Gadsden Independent School District) Principal Angela Marie Silvaggio is one of eight school leaders nationally to receive the Terrel H. Bell Award for Outstanding School Leadership award for 2021 from the U.S. Department of Education.

The award honors principals of national blue ribbon schools for their outstanding work and the vital role they play in guiding their students and schools to excellence, frequently under challenging circumstances, the New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED) said.

"All I could do was cry happy tears. It's a very humbling experience, but I'm very grateful," Silvaggio said was her reaction when she got the phone call from Washington, D.C. about the award.

Silvaggio is in her eighth year as Mesquite Elementary principal.

A native of Providence, Rhode Island, Silvaggio began her teaching career in El Paso before moving to the Gadsden district, NMPED said.

Silvaggio and the other awardees will be honored, along with all 325 national blue ribbon schools, at an awards ceremony Nov. 4 in Oxon Hill, Maryland.

La Casa remembers victims of domestic violence with vigil

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"I want you to know you are not alone and together we can make a difference," Anthony, New Mexico Chief of Police Vanessa Orduñez said at La Casa, Inc.'s 24th annual Candlelight Vigil honoring the victims of domestic violence in Doña Ana County.

The ceremony was held Thursday night, Oct. 21, at Plaza de Las Cruces, with purple lights aglow at the plaza stage (and at Las Cruces City Hall) in honor of victims and survivors of domestic violence.

"We have to be empathetic to one another because we are all in this together," Doña Ana County Sheriff Kim Stewart said, adding that the sheriff's office receives more domestic disturbance calls than any other type of call.

Other speakers included: Third Judicial District Attorney Gerald Byers; Las Cruces Mayor Pro Tempore Kasandra Gandara; and City Councilor Johana Bencomo; a male graduate of La

Casa's Batterer's Intervention Program; and domestic violence survivor Josetta Leyva, who was the evening's keynote speaker.

Orlando Jimenez sang as candles were lighted by La Casa employees and volunteers handed out to those in attendance.

La Casa was founded in 1981. Its emergency shelter, open 24/7, houses up to 90 people.

Pregnancy help center gets new home, thanks to Rawson family

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Turning Point of Las Cruces, a nonprofit that provides information and assistance with planned and unplanned pregnancies, is getting a new home.

At a fundraiser held Sept. 30, at New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum, Turning Point Director Debbie Taylor announced that the Rawson family of Las Cruces has donated a building to the organization at 705 N. Main St. that will double Turning Point's size.

Lee and George Rawson were on hand at the event to give Taylor the key to the new building.

Taylor and Turning

Point Board of Directors Vice President Jeremy Sullivan said the nonprofit is hoping to raise $75,000 to renovate and furnish the new location.

Turning Point also celebrated its 11th anniversary during the Sept. 30 event, which was billed as Punchlines with a Purpose and featured live entertainment by comedian Robert G. Lee of California (www.robertglee.com). It was a delayed 10th anniversary celebration, Sullivan said, as Turning Point was unable to have a public gathering in honor of its decade of service because of the pandemic.

With virtual classes and continuing to provide diapers and other pregnancy-related needs and supplies, Taylor said Turning Point continued to have "major contact, major impact" during the Covid-19 shutdown —

"connecting with mamas and making an impact on dads," she said. "This year was really exciting in terms of growth."

tion is from New Mexico State University. Guerrero also has a teacher of English as a second language endorsement from Eastern New Mexico and an advanced placement certification in literature and composition from New Mexico Highlands University.

Guerrero uses her 12th-grade English classes to help students prepare for college or career.

"I reiterate that as their teacher, I'm going to help them be prepared for anything they choose," Guerrero said. "I tell them it's their choice if they want to attend college after high school, but I have them fill out applications to our local community college and to access a scholarship portal. My main goal for them is to be able to support themselves and their future families with a career they love. It doesn't have to be college-gear, but any job takes additional education and training."

The New Mexico TOTY award was established in 1963. Each year, all New Mexico school districts and charter schools are invited to nominate teachers for the award.

Each year's winner represents New Mexico in the national TOTY competition and acts as a spokesperson for the state's teaching profession, NMPED said.

Guerrero was one of two finalists for 2022 New Mexico TOTY from Las Cruces. The other was Monte Vista Elementary School fifth-grade teacher Robbi Berry. A third finalist was Stephanie Noll, an English language arts teacher at Peñasco High School in Peñasco.

NM facing teacher shortage, but LCPS super says district is doing OK

FROM NMSU AND BULLETIN SOURCES

The number of teacher vacancies in New Mexico has nearly doubled in the last year, according to a report by New Mexico State University's Southwest Outreach Academic Research Evaluation & Policy Center (SOAR).

The report found that the number of teacher vacancies rose from 571 in 2020 to just more than 1,000 in 2021.

SOAR Director Rachel Boren described the number as "staggering."

"This increase in teacher vacancies is nearly twice what we found last year, and an increase of 477 open positions is the largest change across one year's time since the vacancy report was first published," Boren said. "The numbers suggest that addressing teacher vacancies continues to be a challenge across the state."

Last year, there were 889 educator vacancies, with 571 total teacher vacancies. This year, the report found 1,727 educator vacancies, with 1,048 of those for teachers. The areas with the highest number of teacher vacancies are special education and elementary education, which were also the top areas in the prior two reports.

The subjects with the largest needs include math, science and English language arts, which were also in high demand last year.

Teacher shortages are a problem nationwide due to factors such as lower compensation and fewer benefits when compared to other careers, said Rick Marlatt, interim director of the NMSU School of Teacher Preparation, Administration and Leadership, In New Mexico, shortages have been worsened due to challenges brought on by Covid-19, he said.

"Locally, our statewide teacher shortage has been worsened by the pandemic and its socioeconomic fallout, which has disproportionately impacted students and communities of color and seems to have simultaneously triggered an exodus of teachers choosing to leave the classroom while also creating new barriers of uncertainty for those potentially considering careers in education," Marlatt said.

The report states that across all four-year and two-year higher education institutions and programs in New Mexico, 1,596 students were admitted to an educator preparation program during the 2020-21 academic year, while 979 students completed an educator preparation program. This is an increase of 169 admissions and a decrease of 51 program completions compared to last year.

Las Cruces Public Schools Superintendent Ralph Ramos said LCPS is "in pretty good shape" with regard to teacher employment, although it is dealing with a small teacher shortage issue.

"People are wanting to be in Las Cruces," Ramos told the Las Cruces Bulletin.

To offset local shortages, Ramos said LCPS is paying middle- and high school teachers to give up their planning periods to fill in where needed, and the school district has increased the pay for its substitute teachers.

"We are launching new recruitment and retention initiatives to allow students to re-imagine the work of the profession," said Henrietta Pichon, interim dean of the NMSU College of Health, Education and Social Transformation, which houses the SOAR center.

also called the UNM band program for help. LCHS borrowed a sound system from Organ Mountain High School.

Once the calls were made, Frederick met with his staff, the band and band parents.

"I looked at the kids and asked, 'Do we go?' They all said 'yes!' So we loaded up the bus and we left," he said.

Frederick, his students and staff put together a plan during the bus ride, while band parents were picking up instruments and equipment and driving them to Albuquerque.

With percussionists and sousaphone players performing with borrowed instruments, the band finished fourth in the fiesta's preliminary round of 24 bands.

"It just felt very weird," Luke said about playing on a bass drum borrowed from NMSU instead of the one he'd been playing at LCHS. But he was able to put that aside and "focus on the music and the movement and give my all for that performance," Luke said. "We all had to make do with what we had. I thought we all gave it our best shot. That we were able to play at all was just so great. I'm extremely grateful for how supportive everyone has been despite the incredibly unfortunate circumstances."

"The big thing is they just got to play," Fred Bugbee said. "It's all about the kids. It's all about getting them to perform. Everybody just wanted to pitch in."

Frederick said the Albuquerque police located the stolen truck while the band was at dinner Saturday night, before the fiesta's final round. The thieves had taken "anything electronic," Frederick said, including a sound board, synthesizer, speakers, microphones, cables and cords — but left instruments and other equipment undamaged, including color-guard silks created especially for the band.

"We were very lucky," Frederick said. "They only took what they could sell."

With instruments restored, the LCHS Marching Band finished seventh in the fiesta finals — meeting their goal of a top-10 finish.

"The kids more than rose to the occasion," Frederick said, "with lots of help. The support's been immense."

Frederick is putting together a list of the stolen items, which he valued at about $30,000, for an insurance claim. He also has bought and borrowed equipment so the band can play at a football game this weekend and compete in an upcoming band tournament.

NMSU Aircraft Helps to Secure the Mesilla Valley's Water Future

By Cassie McClure and Marcella Shelby

With water as one of the most valuable resources in the Mesilla Valley, knowing what influences and impacts its retention in the soil, and what evaporates during crop growth, can help improve crop management and production. The New Mexico Water Resources Research Institute (NM WRRI) is working with NMSU's Physical Science Laboratory (PSL) in the Las Cruces Innovation & Industrial Park (LCIIP) to fly a crewed aircraft out of the Las Cruces International Airport to investigate emerging remote sensing technologies.

Part of a larger NM WRRI research effort with the Texas Water Research Institute and Texas A&M, the PSL team is flying a light-sport aircraft outfitted with multispectral and thermal sensors to measure evapotranspiration. Evapotranspiration is the sum of the water that evaporates from the soil surface and transpires through the surface area of a plant's

If you have questions about LCIIP, please contact the City of Las Cruces Economic Development Department at (575) 541-2286.

PSL aircraft flying over the Mesilla Valley.

leaves and stems to the atmosphere. Through data analysis, water usage can be calculated and lead to potentially better and more efficient watering.

"The data gathering concept is straightforward," said Henry Cathey, PSL's Aerospace division director. "The aircraft flies in set tracks over the ground on specific dates and at specific times to capture images in different frequency ranges." The flight dates are generally set to coincide with a satellite passing overhead.

PSL flights capture thousands of spectral and thermal images. Each camera captures millions of pixels that cover an entire region of interest. Each pixel is essentially a measurement of reflected energy at specific wavelengths.

"Ground measurements can be very accurate, but their use is limited because they take a long time to acquire and often do not represent the spatial variability observed in nature," said Robert Sabie,

NM WRRI research scientist. "Although not always as accurate as ground measurements, remote sensing measurements provide a much larger view and show the spatial and temporal trends of what is happening on the ground. This information can be used for future water management decisions."

Miss New Mexico USA winner, 1st runner-up are from Las Cruces

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Christa Schafer was the winner and Ayana Pai, the runner-up in the Miss New Mexico USA competition held this summer at Hotel Encanto. Both are from Las Cruces.

Schafer, Miss Las Cruces 2021, is the daughter of Howard and Trina Schafer. Pai, Miss Doña Ana 2021, is the daughter of Prasanna and Dr. Sangeeth Shanbhag Pai.

The winner of the Miss New Mexico Teen USA, held the same evening, was Emily Lehr, who also holds the title of Miss Alamogordo Teen USA. The runner-up was Miss Albuquerque Teen USA Jade Vargas.

"I was so happy," said the pageant's director, Laura Rayborn of Laura's Productions LLC El Paso, which independently directed and produced the pageants.

"Every year, the pageant gets better and better," she said. Both are preliminaries of the Miss USA and Miss Teen USA pageants.

"I've never seen a team of girls work so well together," Rayborn said, remembering that one girl even loaned a dress to another contestant, although it had to be safety-pinned to fit because the dress owner was considerably taller than the girl who borrowed it, she said.

"I've never seen a group of girls helping out a competitor," she said. "That says a lot. I was so impressed. They all had a very, very positive experience."

Rayborn said the two competitions were much more than beauty pageants. The girls who participated also learned

City OKs $3.75 million for new food rescue program warehouse

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces City Council unanimously approved an allocation of $3.75 million from the city's Telshor Facility Fund (TFF) to pay for renovations to a new Casa de Peregrinos (CdP) food rescue warehouse just north of the Mesilla Valley Community of Hope (MVCH) campus, 999 W. Amador Ave.

Overcrowding at CdP's food pantry at MVCH has placed a strain on facilities, staff, volunteers, clients and the rest of the MVCH campus, the city said in a news release.

As a result, on March 2, 2020, the council approved a $1.3 million purchase of the former Horse N Hound building at 991 W. Amador Ave., adjacent to MVCH.

Plans are to convert that building into a new warehouse and food distribution facility.

Total construction costs for the expansion are estimated at $7.04 million, the city said.

The city has received four grants for the project through the state legislative capital outlay process during the last four legislative sessions, including $85,500 in 2018, $664,000 in 2019, $1.4 million in 2020 and $1.8 million in 2021. CdP also was awarded a $350,000 community development block grant this year.

The council's Oct. 4 vote will cover an estimated $3.3 million deficit in the total construction cost, the city said.

CdP is the largest and most successful food pantry in southern New Mexico, the city said. It now operates a 4,000 square-foot facility that was built in 2003.

CdP was designed to distribute 500,000 pounds of food per year, but currently exceeds that capacity.

In 2020, it distributed more than 4.7 million pounds of food. The food pantry no longer fits its space, and there is no capacity for expansion at its current location.

"This is in fact a community project," CdP Executive Director Lorenzo Alba said at the Oct. 4 meeting. The council's vote, he said, is "doing something about the poverty that's going on in our community. This is a great opportunity for all of us."

The city council created TFF in October 2004 from proceeds of the pre-paid lease of Memorial Medical Center to Province Healthcare Company. TFF is designated to support health and human services projects and programs for low-income city residents.

encing his love are John, Katie, and Michael Fitzpatrick, McKenzie and Riley Michaud, and Jake and Avery Michaud. He will also be missed by numerous nieces and nephews, friends and his cherished dog, Hershey. He was predeceased by his parents, Francis and Pearl Burnham, his in-laws, Ralph and Alice, and his brothers, Ron and Wentworth Burnham.

Rich proudly served in the U.S. Air Force, acquiring computer skills, making life-long friends, and developing an appreciation of desert living. He went on to work for many years as a payroll services executive, making many more lasting friendships along the way. Upon retirement, Rich and Judy moved to Las Cruces, NM.

For many years, Rich enjoyed dancing with Judy, family camping trips, fishing, hunting, and metal detecting.

In retirement, he spent many days with friends on the golf course and exploring the desert.

A memorial service will be planned at the convenience of the family.

Progress Club of Las Cruces continues a century of helping

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

GFWC Progress Club of Las Cruces has been in existence for more than a century and remains one of the community's hidden gems.

In 2020-21, the club's 50 members completed 53 projects, contributing more than 18,400 volunteer hours, raising and donating nearly $15,000 to local groups and organizations and generating another nearly $59,000 in in-kind donations from its membership. The club also hosted a very successful golf tournament (see sidebar).

"The Progress Club of Las Cruces is a 501(c)(3) chapter of the General Federation of Women's Clubs," said club member Debbie Campbell. "We are a women's organization committed to improving our community by living the volunteer spirit. We sponsor fundraisers annually to accomplish our volunteer initiative of donating to worthy local causes. Our fundraisers benefit veterans moving from assisted living into their own apartments and scholarships for local college women. We currently give two (scholarships) to NMSU women and one to a Doña Ana Community College student."

Campbell said the club also makes donations to benefit arts and culture in the community, as well as civic engagement and outreach, education and libraries, the environment and health and wellness.

Here are some of the ways the Progress Club has supported its community in the past two years:

It supported the Doña Ana Arts Council's Mis-soula Children's Theatre, Doña Ana Kid Camp, UNICEF, the United Nations Foundation's Shot@Life vaccination program and Doctors Without Borders; provided a display of its members' art during For the Love of Art Month; hosted a short-story writing contest for local high-school students; donated hearing devices to the Las Cruces Museum Foundation; provided funding for NMSU scholarships; planted a tree at Pioneer Women's Park in support of national Plant a Tree Day (the last Friday in April); created science kits for local students; donated cleaning supplies for local veterans; supported Mesilla Valley Community of Hope with monetary donations and supplies; and sponsored five veterans struggling with homelessness by paying their first month's rent and security deposit and buying a new bed for each one; and donated supplies to support

Club's golf tourney raises $19K

BULLETIN REPORT

The Progress Club of Las Cruces' seventh annual golf tournament, held Sept. 25 at Picacho Hills Country Club, raised $19,000 that "will increase the amount we give to our scholarships and help more veterans as well as continue to support many worthwhile causes in Las Cruces," said Susan C. Smith, who was joined on the club's golf committee by Mary Underwood, Debbie Campbell, Mary Wilke and Mary Dohm.

A total of 24 teams competed in the tournament, which had multiple sponsors, including gold sponsors Cavill & Company (owner Ron Cavill was also the tournament's hole-in-one sponsor and paid for drinks for the golfers), Farmers Insurance agent Darin Manes and Mark Woolf of KidsKare P.C.; silver sponsors Metal Craft Co. and Prosper Real Estate; dinner sponsors Zach Adams of Shiloh Produce, Jerean Hutchinson of La Posta de Mesilla and Hacienda de Mesilla and Jacob Slavec of NAI 1st Valley Realty; and cart sponsors Kymberly Pierce-Hapke of The Critter Nanny, Veba Abalos of Colour Bar and Hair Studio and David Hill Financial.

The club had 43 hole sponsors for the tournament.

VFW offers free services for homeless veterans during Stand Down

BULLETIN REPORT

J.M. Carriere VFW Post 10124, 709 S. Valley Drive in Las Cruces, will host Stand Down, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 10, to provide assistance to military veterans who are homeless or at risk of being homeless, Len Hampton, the VFW National Council member for New Mexico, said in a news release.

The event will connect veterans with free services and resources that include contact with military service officers and information about Veterans Administration benefits, housing, VA disability services, Social Security, dental care and legal aid. It will also include comfort kits, a hot breakfast (serving begins at 7:30 a.m.), lunch, haircuts and more.

The original Stand Down for Veterans was modeled after the stand-down concept used during the Vietnam War to provide a safe retreat for units returning from combat, the VFW news release said. Today, Stand Down refers to a community-based intervention program to assist veterans who are homeless or at risk of being homeless with information and services.

The "hand up not a handout" philosophy of the Stand Down is carried out through the work of volunteers and organizations in Las Cruces.

Free van transportation to the event is available by making reservations at 575-339-3526 by no later than Sunday, Nov. 7.

For more information or to volunteer for the event, contact Hampton at 575-405-9001 and mixed company2@hotmail.com.

The VFW is the nation's oldest and largest major war veterans organization.

Local men working to restore reputation of Army scout, privateer

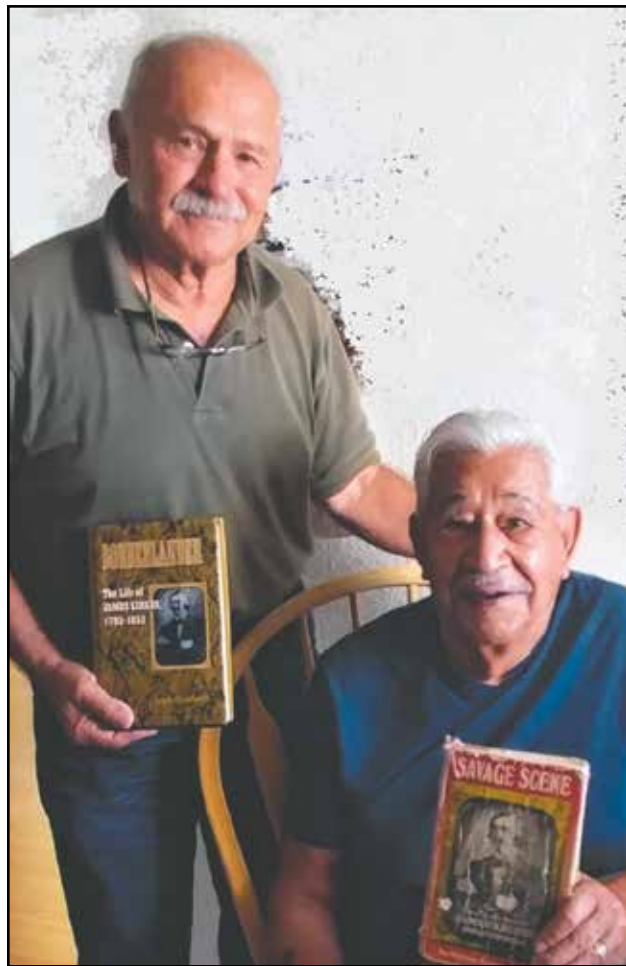

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Robert Kirker of Las Cruces is planning a trip with his two daughters to Ireland some time in 2022 to visit the home of his great-grandfather, who was born near Belfast, emigrated to the United States in the early 19th century and lived and traveled throughout the U.S. and northern Mexico, working as a privateer during the War of 1812 and as a scout in the U.S. Army during the Mexican War and the Indian Wars of the American West.

James Kirker (1793-1853) married into the family of Judge Roy Bean and gave frontiersman Kit Carson his first job, Robert Kirker said. He was a grocer in St. Louis, a fur trapper along the Missouri River and probably was a copper mine owner in what is now Grant County, New Mexico, Robert Kirker said.

James Kirker is the subject of two books: "Savage Scene: The Life and Times of James Kirker, Frontier King," by William C. McGraw,

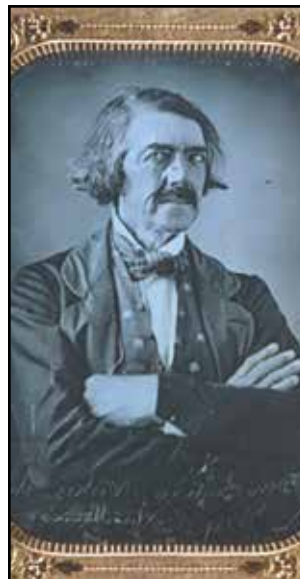

COURTESY PHOTO

and "The Life of James Kirker, 1793-1852," by Ralph Adam Smith.

Robert Kirker met and spoke with McGraw a number of times during the 15 or so years he worked on his book, Kirker said. McGraw was the one-time owner and resident of the ghost town Mowry City, New Mexico (located about 25 miles north of Deming) and organized the Pancho Villa Museum north of Columbus, according to the book jacket of "Savage Scene."

The younger Kirker, who turns 89 in February, is pictured in one of the photographs in McGraw's book, which shows Kirker with a drill he invented during the 47 years he worked for Kennecott Copper Corp. near Silver City. Kirker was born in Santa Rita, New Mexico. His father, Juan Kirker, James' grandson, was born in Pinos Altos.

Robert Kirker and his distant relative, Daniel Aranda, a Las Cruces historian, would like to restore the reputation that James Kirker earned when he served as a scout with the U.S. Army during the Indian Wars.

Although he was initially friendly with Apaches in the Southwest and traded with them, Kirker is largely remembered for fighting against them, both men said.

"He is best known as a scalp hunter," Aranda said, "but was much more than that. The guy was in a bad place at a bad time. You had to be a hard person. He did what he had to do."

"He's never been given his true identity or the history he deserves," Robert Kirker said of his ancestor.

"James Kirker likely came to New York from Ireland about 1810. He was a privateer aboard the Black Joke, a ship which was captured by the British and rescued by the USS Constitution," Aranda said.

Kirker probably came to the Southwest about 1817, his great-grandson said, and was later hired as an Army scout by Col. Alexander William Doniphan during the Mexican War and figured prominently in several battles, Robert Kirker said.

James Kirker died in California, probably of cancer, Robert Kirker said, in 1853.

"I'd like to go see the birthplace of my great-grandfather," Kirker said. The house that James Kirker was born in still stands near Kilcross, about 10 miles north of Belfast.

Asked if she was looking forward to accompanying her father on the trip, Kirker's younger daughter, Susan Kirker, said, "Oh, yes, definitely."

She retired two years ago as assistant deputy chief of the federal probation office in Las Cruces.

DACC receives $4.9 million grant to assist Hispanic and low-income students

BULLETIN REPORT

Doña Ana Community College (DACC) will receive $4.9 million over the next five years in grant funds for its Éxito project to assist Hispanic and low-income students, DACC said in a news release.

The grant will assist DACC Hispanic and low-income students in the areas of academic achievement, graduation, transfer and career success. The funding comes from a U.S. Department of Education Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI) STEM grant.

The funds will be used to assist students in the development of an online STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) orientation, proactive and intrusive academic advising, STEM courses, peer mentoring, job placement, curriculum, expanding online STEM courses and enhancing agreements with local educational partners.

The Éxito project includes funding for updating existing computer labs and classrooms as well as purchasing additional technology resources and supports for STEM students.

"This funding from the Department of Education will help DACC recruit, retain and launch more Hispanic and low-income students into good-paying STEM-related careers in southern New Mexico to the benefit of the entire community," said DACC Dean of Science, Engineering and Mathematics (SEM) Joe Butler.

Programs offered in DACC's SEM and Advanced Technologies divisions include aerospace technologies, architecture and construction technologies, astronomy, biology, computer and information technologies, developmental math, drafting and design technologies, chemistry, electronic technology, environmental and energy technologies, general engineering, geography, geology, nutrition, manufacturing and automation technologies, mathematics, physics and water technologies.

What's Available NOW On

"Fauci" (Available now)

From National Geographic comes this feature-length documentary that profiles the infectious disease specialist and lifelong public servant who has served under seven presidents who became the face of the war on the COVID-19 pandemic as well as a cultural icon and a target for attacks from political adversaries.

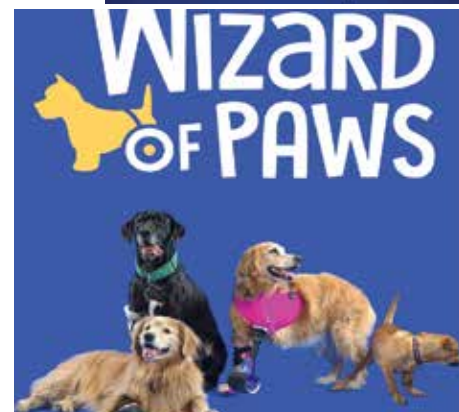

"The Scariest Story Ever: A Mickey Mouse Halloween Spooktacular" (Available now)

The special from 2017 picks up on Halloween when after a night of trick-or-treating, Mickey, Donald and Goofy take their nephews back to Mickey's house to tell them the story of Dr. Goofenstein, who builds a Frankenstein monster that comes to life and sings and dances to a Broadway disco song.

"Alvin and the Chipmunks: The Road Chip" (Available now)

The fourth entry in the family-friendly movie series finds Alvin, Simon and Theodore (voices of Justin Long, Matthew Gray Gubler, Jesse McCartney) on a panicky road trip to stop Dave (Jason Lee) from marrying Samantha (Kimberly Williams-Paisley), a woman he's been dating. They like her, but her son bullies the boys horribly. Christina Applegate, Anna Faris and Kaley Cuoco also are heard in the 2015 release.

"The Wizard of Paws: Season 1" (Available now)

From BYU TV comes the 10-episode first season of this unscripted series that follows animal orthotist Dr. Derrick Campana as he creates prosthetic limbs for pets and sanctuary animals including a goat, a pig, a horse, a French Bulldog and a Golden Retriever.

Anthony Ramos

6 p.m. on LIFE

Movie: Torn From Her Arms

Based on a harrowing true story that played out against the backdrop of the crisis at the U.S.-Mexican border, this taut 2021 docudrama stars Judy Reyes ("Scrubs") as Thelma Garcia, a Texas immigration lawyer fighting desperately to reunite loved ones separated in the midst of politically-motivated chaos. Fátima Molina plays Cindy Madrid, who fled violence in El Salvador with her six-year-old daughter, only to be forced apart by U.S. immigration officers. Gloria Reuben stars as the journalist who broke the story.

6 p.m. on TCM

Movie: Frankenstein

Flowers are pretty but should never be given to fake men. Determined to prove he can create a synthetic man out of others' body parts, Dr. Henry Frankenstein (Colin Clive) comes to regret his experimentation in this 1931 horror classic, based on Mary Shelley's novel and directed by James Whale. The lab work yields a monster (Boris Karloff) that escapes and goes on a rampage, halted only momentarily by an encounter with a flower-offering child (Marilyn Harris).

8 p.m. on TRAV

The Dead Files

A new episode called "The Thing" finds Amy and Steve in Oxnard, Calif., where a terrified mother is facing an onslaught of paranormal activity in the home where she grew up with her family. Exhausted and losing hope, this woman believes whatever malevolent entity is in the house killed both her husband and her father. Now she's convinced that unless Steve and Amy can find a way to stop this thing, it will kill again.

8:10 p.m. on FREEFRM
Movie: The Nightmare Before Christmas

And you thought it was disconcerting to see Christmas decorations in the stores at Halloween! This surreal 1993 animated fantasy from Tim Burton ("Edward Scissorhands") takes the overlapping holiday scenario to the extreme. The Pumpkin King, ruler of Halloween Town, hatches a plan to kidnap Santa Claus and put his own ghostly spin on the yuletide season.

9 p.m. on HBO

Movie: In the Heights

It underperformed at the box office, but filmmaker Jon M. Chu's 2021 feature film adaptation of the Tony Award-winning Broadway musical co-created by Lin-Manuel Miranda was one of the most critically acclaimed movies of its release year. An explosion of infectious melodies and high-energy performances, the film follows the daily life of Usnavi (Anthony Ramos), a bodega owner in New York's predominantly Dominican neighborhood of Washington Heights. The huge cast also includes Jimmy Smits, Olga Merediz, Stephanie Beatriz, Daphne Rubin-Vega and Melissa Barrera.

6 p.m. on KVIA
America's Funniest Home Videos

Host Alfonso Ribeiro helps his studio audience and viewers at home get into the haunted holiday mood with a lineup of spooktacular home videos on a Halloween theme. Featured subjects include people getting the dickens scared out of them when they are caught unaware by a frightening holiday porch display, and Halloween revelers suffering from unfortunate costume malfunctions. Also, hidden camera footage shows several kids scoring an epic fail in the Toddler Temptation Challenge as they consume forbidden candy when left alone in a room.

6 p.m. on HALL
Movie: Christmas Sail

Liz Darling (Katee Sackhoff) returns to her coastal hometown for her first Christmas there in years after learning that her estranged father, Dennis (Terry O'Quinn, "Lost"), has been injured in a minor accident. Liz is a single mother now, and she can't wait to show her daughter Hannah (Emma Oliver) the kind of magical Christmas Liz once shared with her own mother, which always included the annual Christmas Eve Sailboat Parade of Lights. Patrick Sabongui also stars in this holiday romance.

6:20 p.m. on KTSM
NFL Football

The Dallas Cowboys have looked every bit like one of the NFL's best teams this season, and they'll get what they hope is an easy opponent tonight at U.S. Bank Stadium, where they'll drop in on Kirk Cousins and the Minnesota Vikings. While Dak Prescott and the 'boys have jumped out ahead of the pack in the NFC East, the Vikes have struggled, done in by an inability to put opponents away when they've got a lead.

7 p.m. on KVIA
Celebrity Wheel of Fortune

There are no tricks, only treats, for some worthy charities as hosts Pat Sajak and Vanna White welcome a trio of new stars who are playing to raise money for their chosen causes. Tonight's guests include Anthony Michael Hall, playing for Save the Children; Mario Cantone, who hopes to raise cash for The Actors Fund; and actress-comic Loni Love, playing for Project Angel Food, a service that delivers free meals to sick people.

7 p.m. on FOOD
Halloween Wars

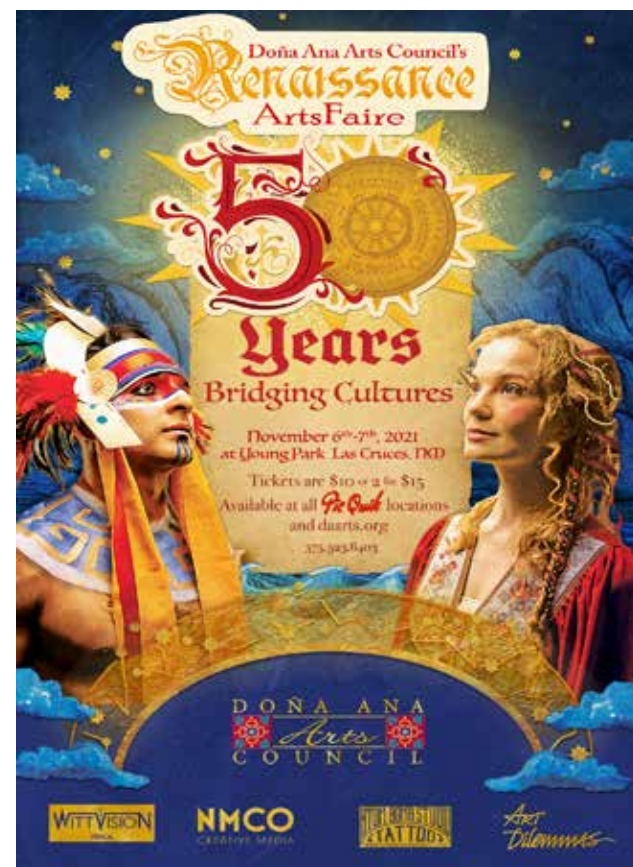

"Dueling Monsters," the spine-tingling Season 11 finale, finds the last two teams facing off in a deciding challenge that tasks them with crafting cakes that vividly show what happens when two formidable monsters engage in a fight to the finish. Host Zak Bagans shares his paranormal expertise, then judges Eddie Jackson, Shinmin Li and Aarti Sequeira crown the winners of the $25,000 prize.

8 p.m. on KDBC
NCIS: Los Angeles

As Callen (Chris O'Donnell) continues his pursuit of Katya, Kilbride (Gerald McRaney) comes to NCIS seeking help with finding a truckload of stolen guns. That assignment gets a lot more complicated, though, when their prime suspect, the son of a mob boss they believe was about to sell the weapons, is found dead in the new episode "Sorry for Your Loss." Isabella Hofmann, Yssa Mei Panganiban, Tyler Poelle and Chad Addison guest star; LL Cool J, Linda Hunt and Daniela Ruah also star.

9 p.m. on KVIA
The Rookie

A deadly new designer drug hits the streets of Los Angeles, turning users into "zombies," in the new episode "A.C.H." As the drug-fueled misbehavior spreads, Office Nolan (Nathan Fillion) and his team find themselves in the middle of a Halloween they are not likely to forget. Back on the homefront, Lucy (Melissa O'Neil) begins to suspect that her apartment building might actually be haunted. Pete Davidson, Enver Gjokaj and Dylan Conrique guest star; Alyssa Diaz and Eric Winter also star.

8 p.m. on KDBC NCIS

McGee (Sean Murray) and the rest of the NCIS team investigate the death of a widely beloved Navy commander whose legacy includes training some of the top athletes in the United States in the new episode "False Start." Joshua Brockington, Randy J. Goodwin and Kelly Stables guest star, and David McCallum appears in his recurring role as Dr. "Ducky" Mallard; Wilmer Valderrama, Brian Dietzen and Diona Reasonover also star.

9 p.m. on KRWG POV

Making its broadcast debut after an acclaimed run at international film festivals, the documentary "North By Current" from filmmaker and artist Angelo Madsen Minax is a deeply personal work that traces the contours of his life as a trans man, with his story juxtaposed against that of his parents' Michigan childhoods. As Minax wrestles with his role inside his family, he weaves a restless but creative testament to kinship and explores the physical and spiritual questions that arise following a devastating loss.

10 p.m. on SHOW Wakefield

Confusion and pressure mount for Nik (Rudi Dharmalingam) as he finds himself under investigation for the accidental injury of a patient in the new "Episode 3." On top of that, Renuka (Monica Kumar), his soon-to-be-married sister, asks him to find a precious family heirloom for her nuptials.

Zeeko Zaki

FBI

After a suburban woman is kidnapped from her own home, Maggie (Missy Peregrin) and her FBI teammates investigate the multiple trysts that apparently were taking place on both sides of the victim's seemingly idyllic marriage in the new episode "Charlotte's Web." Elsewhere, OA (Zeeko Zaki) feels pressured by Mona (recurring guest star Yasmine Aker) to make some changes in the career path he has chosen at the Bureau. David T. Patterson and Anni Krueger guest star; Jeremy Sisto, John Boyd and Alana De La Garza also star.

7 p.m. on KVIA2
DC's Stargirl

Courtney, Pat (Brec Bassinger, Luke Wilson) and the JSA unite their forces to take down Eclipso (Nick Tarabay) once and for all as the villain unleashes the final part of his master plan in "Summer School: Chapter Thirteen," the Season 2 finale. Cameron Gellman, Yvette Monreal, Anjelika Washington, Amy Smart, Trae Romano and Hunter Sansone also star. Season 3 already has been greenlit by the network.

7 p.m. on HISTORY
The Curse of Oak Island

After last year's discovery of scientific evidence of huge quantities of silver in the Money Pit area, Rick and Marty Langina, along with their crew, have faced complicated delays from the coronavirus pandemic as well as heightened scrutiny by government bureaucrats in light of multiple archaeologically significant finds that have turned up across the island. Now, however, as Season 9 opens with "Going for the Gold," the team returns to Oak Island, closer than ever to solving the centuries old mystery.

7 p.m. on TLC
My Big Fat Fabulous Life

Over the concerned protests of friends and family, the new episode "Bon Voyage, Whitney" finds Whitney with a one-way ticket to Paris. Having decided to put a higher priority on love than business, she's finally ready to meet her French man. Understandably, she frets that this decision may cause friction between her and Jessica. As her departure date nears, she starts to wonder whether her loved ones support her or expect the worst.

7 p.m. on STARZ
Movie: The Birthday Cake

Former music video helmer Jimmy Giannopoulos made his feature directorial debut with this 2021 crime thriller, which he also co-wrote. The film opens on the 10th anniversary of a New York crime lord's death. His son, Gio, is tasked with carrying on a family tradition by delivering a cake to the home of his Uncle Angelo, the last Mafia boss in Brooklyn. During that night, however, Gio witnesses life-altering violence and learns the truth about his father's death. Ewan McGregor, Shiloh Fernandez, Val Kilmer, Lorraine Bracco and Vincent Pastore star.

8 p.m. on KRWG
American Veteran

The new episode "The Mission" examines how military life shapes service members in unexpected, often even profound ways. Among the personal stories are those of a young Coast Guard recruit charged with ferrying soldiers to fight — and in many cases, die — on D-Day; a Nevada-based pilot who remotely guided armed bomber drones over Afghanistan; and a young Marine who rose to become the first Latina general.

8 p.m. on KDBC
FBI: International

Scott (Luke Kleintank) and his team investigate the fatal poisoning of an American journalist after the victim tried to meet with an anonymous source in Poland in the new episode "The Soul of Chess." During that mission, Kellett (Heida Reed) gives Scott a piece of her mind over his recurring tendency to be overprotective with her. Magdalena Korpas, Aaron Serotsky and Toni Belafonte guest star; Carter Redwood, Vinessa Vidotto and Christiane Paul also star.

9 p.m. on KDBC
FBI: Most Wanted

In the aftermath of a deadly fire that sweeps through a busy arcade, Jess (Julian McMahon) and his team discovers that this devastating blaze was just the first step in a diabolically intricate revenge scheme against one of the victims in the new episode "Unhinged." Meanwhile, Hana (Keisha Castle-Hughes) rejoins the team, but finds new adjustments needed in virtually all aspects of her life. Tim Dekay, Clarke Thorell and Gregory Perri guest star; Alexa Davalos, Roxy Sternberg and recurring cast member Jen Landon also are featured.

Caring Decisions

A GUIDE FOR CAREGIVERS AND THEIR FAMILIES

Financial concerns for life's last chapter

By RON CAVILL

For the Bulletin

Since we are not promised advanced notification when life's last chapter arrives, I have found this is always a good topic to address sooner rather than later. Hopefully, we will tackle these issues prior to the need for custodial care, making the job of our caretakers and survivors much easier.

In any case, here is a brief list of some of those time sensitive issues we have seen over many years of serving our clients.

Take Inventory:

I am always surprised to hear someone has "discovered" an investment, life insurance policy, or other asset they forgot they owned. Seems strange, but it happens all too often.

Sometimes it can be an employee 401(k) or IRA owned a long time ago that someone lost track of, and no longer receives statements for. Other times it is simply a matter of consolidation. I once had a client who we helped settle the estate of his late grandfather. He had accounts with 17 different banks in the region. At least those were the accounts we were able to discover. "Simplify" should be more than a slogan painted on a sign.

Take Control:

When taking inventory, it is a good idea to dig deeper. For example, review beneficiaries and ownership names on accounts. Consolidate accounts whenever you can. There is no reason to have more than one IRA account or multiple 401(k) accounts.

Take Action:

Review your original intentions. Plans we made when we were in our 40s and 50s may no longer be appropriate as we continue aging. We often learn of personal representatives, executors or even guardian appointments who may no longer be alive. The same can be said about beneficiaries.

The bottom line is life is constantly changing, and so should our assets. As we age, accounting and review needs to be done more frequently and changes should always be communicated with those who need to know in a timely fashion.

Engage professionals to help with these matters. It will be time well spent.

Navigating your future, your health

Aging has its brilliant benefits – wisdom, grandchildren, life accomplishments.

Aging still has its hopes – a pleasant retirement, good friends and good times.

Aging also has its downsides – health issues, financial concerns and uncertainties.

No magic pill prevents the many problems that can come with aging, whether they are health-, financial- or legal-related.

In this publication, we offer a few ideas, suggestions and opportunities to help you or your loved ones navigate this often tricky process. We've heard the phrase, "I'm not getting older, I'm getting better!"

Our hope is you'll be able to live that phrase outloud.

Lower the risk for falls

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

At Electronic Caregiver, a national company based in Las Cruces, Timothy Washburn is the chief clinical officer. He said the most common problem that happens at home to the elderly is falls.

"Maybe hearing, eyesight, tactile sensation isn't quite as good as it once was," Washburn said. "You want to make sure to do a safety assessment on the home."

Washburn also recommends removing tripping hazards, like area rugs without backing.

"If you have a lot of things in the way, clear pathways," he said. "And a lot of tile floors are fairly smooth; that shiny smooth surface can be a fall risk."

In the bathroom, make sure there are non-skid surfaces both inside the bathtub and outside of it.

"Lighting is important too," Washburn said. "The fact of the matter is you want good lighting in the shadows. You may not see the corner of the rug or the pet. Handrails and night-lights can be a real advantage."

Often people don't mention when they lose capacity, he said. Interaction is important for friends and family members, asking questions and noticing if the individual is having trouble hearing and seeing could make a lot of difference.

"This is often overlooked but making sure they have the right eyewear can be really important," Washburn said. "Vision and hearing are important."

At Home Instead Senior Care, a Las Cruces home care company, owner Buffy Johnson said safety checks are important. Having a home care company, or other provider, go through and look at a home can save someone wasted time and money on an emergency room visit.

"The other day I was at a potential client's home and he is a tall man and has been falling," Johnson said. "He was not injuring himself because he's falling on carpet. The first thing I notice is he has little tennis balls underneath his walker."

Tennis balls are great for tile and wood floors because they help slide the walker, she said. But tennis balls don't slide on carpet, so the man was tripping on his walker. Johnson suggested replacing the tennis balls with little glides, which slide like little skis across the carpet, allowing the client to walk freely.

Another common problem Johnson said she often encounters is some people will drag their oxygen all over their house, and the tubes get wound up and twisted into the furniture causing a major trip hazard.

"What I recommend for people who have a big house is maybe get two machines and put them across the house from each other, or you can get the little portables that hook on the back of a wheelchair or walker," Johnson said. "Those long cords are just really dangerous."

Both Washburn and Johnson said little pets are one of the largest hazards in the home.

"Little pets under their feet are the number one reason for falls lately," Johnson said.

Solutions to home safety don't have to be expensive, Johnson said. You don't have to renovate your bathroom with a walk-in tub and wider doorways, you can buy a special chair you can use to slide from the outside of the tub into it.

Grab bars can be strategically placed, not only horizontally but vertically and at angles. She suggested talking with experts at medical equipment stores to get ideas and optimize safety at home.

Planning ahead helps with peace of mind

BULLETIN REPORT

Estate planning is an important part of arranging for your future, ensuring things are handled the way you want and that your loved ones are taken care of after you die.

And while most people know they should have a will, there are other important documents that also need to be considered.

"The really essential documents that everybody should have are a will, power of attorney and a health care proxy," said Estates Law Attorney Michele Ungvarsky of Estrada Law PC, in Las Cruces.

Power of attorney is a document that allows you to give a person or organization the legal authority to manage your finances and other affairs while you're alive but disabled or no longer able to do so. A health care proxy gives someone the legal authority to make health care decisions for you when you are incapable of making and executing those decisions yourself.

Without a will, families are left at the mercy of the state of New Mexico, and the outcome may not be what the deceased had in mind.

However, Lisa Wynn, an attorney practicing estate planning at Morris Hall, PLLC, cautions that just because you have a will won't mean you avoid probate, the legal process in which a will is "proved" in court and your assets are distributed accordingly.

"...A will is just instructions to a judge," Wynn said.

While probate often goes smoothly (if all your heirs agree and your assets are centralized), many people choose to avoid it because it can be slow, costly and public.

"One of the reasons someone may plan with a trust as opposed to a will is to avoid probate," Wynn said.

"A trust is a document that is administered privately by your trustee according to your wishes, whereas a will is a document, or instructions, to a probate judge for the judge to oversee the administration," she said.

Ungvarsky said one of the biggest mistakes people make is turning to the internet to plan their estate.

"...You've got to realize that the stuff that comes off the internet is one size fits all, so it doesn't matter whether you have one dollar or a million dollars; it doesn't matter whether you have no kids or 10 kids," she said.

Not only does estate planning give you peace of mind, but it also makes things less stressful for your family after your death. And it might sound strange, but planning your own funeral in advance, even while you are perfectly healthy, is another smart thing to do to ensure your family isn't left with the burden of making costly decisions after your death.

According to AARP, there are three main things to consider when planning a funeral: preparing the corpse, holding the ceremony and handling the burial or the ashes of the deceased.

One of the first steps in the process is finding a funeral home to work with. Since funerals can, in some cases, cost thousands of dollars, AARP recommends shopping around to find the best deal.

While many people still prefer a traditional funeral, there are more options than ever when it comes services, caskets and urns.

A recent trend is for families to plan green, or eco-friendly funerals, which may include embalming with formaldehyde-free products, using sustainable biodegradable clothing or burying a loved in in an environmentally friendly urn or casket.

Cremation is also on the rise. According to the National Funeral Directors Association, the rate of cremation exceeded that of burial in 2015 and has gained popularity among people of various religious faiths.

The role of a funeral home is to provide clients with information on all options available to them, allowing them to make informed decisions. Typically, a funeral home or cemetery will help individuals and families set up a trust when they enter into a contract with them.

One of the advantages of a prearranged funeral is individuals are able pay it off ahead of time. It also freezes the cost of the services provided by the funeral home, ensuring a family does not get hit with an unexpected expense due to escalating funeral costs.

Making prearrangements provides individuals with the ability to plan their funeral the way they want it, taking their time in making detailed and cost-efficient choices. Otherwise, the family is forced to make quick decisions during a difficult and emotional time.

Leaving a will can prevent myriad problems

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Doña Ana County Probate Judge Diana Bustamante has processed more than 1,500 probate cases since she was sworn into office in January 2015. In 2018 alone, the judge handled 353 cases, had almost 600 face-to-face meetings and returned nearly 400 telephone calls dealing with probate issues.

Bustamante said just over half the cases she's handled have been for people who died without a will.

"People make assumptions," the judge said, often believing they don't have anything of value to leave to others or that the inheritance process is automatic, so they don't need a will. That can cause problems and expenses for surviving family members and other potential heirs, she said.

Bustamante's office charges a $35 docketing fee for each probate case, which includes a $30 processing fee and $5 for a detailed packet of forms and instructions – one set for those with a will and a slightly different set for those without a will. The docketing fee is the same for all probate courts in the state at the county level, Bustamante said. The docketing fee is the same for probate with a will or without.

The nearly 60-page packet includes four forms to fill out and a self-help guide which defines probate as "the legal process through which a court grants a person the legal authority to handle the legal affairs of a person who has died" (the decedent) and explains that probate is necessary if the decedent dies leaving property titled in his or her name, including real estate, bank accounts, vehicles and stocks and bonds; and probate is not necessary if a total estate is worth less than $50,000 and does not include any real property like a house or other real estate.

"Probate at the county level is pro se," Bustamante said, which means applicants represent themselves as if they were their own lawyers. "This doesn't mean they can't be represented by a lawyer at the county probate court."

The packet also includes a flow chart detailing all the steps in opening and closing a probate-court case if the decedent has a will (testate) or does not have a will (intestate). If there is a will, a decedent's survivors must file an application to probate the will and appoint a personal representative (PR). If there is no will, only the application to appoint a PR is filed.

"The appointment of a PR is based on who has priority," Bustamante said. "A will nominates a personal representative and thus that person has priority. If there is no will, then the rules of intestacy kick in."

The PR is "someone with priority according to state law," Bustamante said, like a surviving spouse, child, parent or sibling.

Probate is "pretty straight forward," Bustamante said, and usually "a smooth process." About 90 percent of the cases in New Mexico are uncontested from start to finish, the judge said.

New law authorizes medical aid in dying in New Mexico

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Elizabeth M. Whitefield End of Life Options Act will “assist people in getting medical aid in dying if that’s their choice,” said MaryKay Brady of Las Cruces, a board member of the newly formed End of Life Options New Mexico (ELONM) nonprofit, and a long-time advocate.

The act was passed by the New Mexico Legislature during the 2021 session and took effect in June.

Brady said New Mexico is the 11th jurisdiction (nine other states and the District of Columbia) to enact a medical-aid-in-dying law, which she said makes access to end-of-life options easier for terminally ill patients while maintaining safeguards.

The bill was named for the late state District Court Judge Elizabeth M. Whitefield of Albuquerque, who died in August 2018 after an 11-year battle with cancer.

Whitefield testified in support of the End of Life Options Act when it came before the state legislature in 2017.

“Cancer has stolen everything from me; my ability to work, my ability to eat, my ability to drink,” she testified. “Don’t let me die without dignity. I implore you to give me the choice that is right for me.” The bill did not reach the floor of either house for a vote that year, or when it was reintroduced in 2019.

State Sen. Carrie Hamblen, D-Doña Ana, voted in favor of the bill this year exactly one year to the day after the death of her friend, Cheryl Swannack, a Las Cruces artist, producer and community activist who suffered from Parkinson’s Disease.

“I cast my vote in honor of Cheryl,” Hamblen said.

“Cheryl loved New Mexico. It was her home,” Hamblen said in a Facebook post. “Although she shared a wonderful life with her partner, Nancy, in Washington D.C. ... Cheryl would have loved to have taken her last breath in her New Mexico home.

But, because we didn’t have any Death with Dignity provisions/laws in the state, she couldn’t.” Swannack, 73, died March 15, 2020, in Washington, D.C.

The most important reason for passing the act was terminally ill patients’ “decreased ability to enjoy life,” Brady said, including their loss of control over bodily functions. For these patients, she said, “life as you and I enjoy it isn’t possible.”

Under provisions of the act, death results when a patient takes “a specific, compounded drug,” Brady said. He or she is usually asleep within five minutes and dies within an hour.

“No one wants to talk about death and dying, but it’s going to happen,” said Brady, a retired banker who moved to Las Cruces from Deming five years ago. Her mother suffered from Alzheimer’s disease and died in 1992. Her husband, who had “multiple health issues,” died in 2008.

End of Life Options New Mexico provides information and helps people plan and take action related to end-of-life options and care, according to their website <https://endoflifeoptionsnm.org/>.

“We will help with end-of-life planning,” said Brady, who has already made all those decisions, including putting her medical plan on video and wearing a DNR (do not resuscitate) medical-alert bracelet.

“I looked at it as a gift to my son,” Brady said. “He knows exactly what my values are,” she said.

“I am passionate about this,” she said. “Anything I can do or say so people don’t have to struggle.”

Provisions of the Elizabeth M. Whitefield End of Life Options Act

The New Mexico House of Representatives passed the Elizabeth M. Whitefield End of Life Options Act 39-27 in February. The state Senate passed it 24-17 in March. Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham signed it into law in April. The act became effective June 18, 2021.

The act defines medical aid in dying as “the medical practice wherein a health care provider prescribes medication to a qualified individual who may self-administer that medication to end that individual’s life in accordance with the provisions of the act.”

Under the act, a healthcare provider “may provide a prescription for medical aid in dying medication” to someone who has the capacity to make a decision about ending his or her life, has a terminal illness, has voluntarily made the request for medical aid in dying and has the ability to self-administer the medication.

The patient’s request form must be signed by two witnesses, at least one of whom is not a family member of the patient or associated with a healthcare facility connected to the patient’s care. Neither witness can be the patient’s healthcare provider.

The law provides for a 48-hour waiting period after the prescription for medical aid in dying medication has been written before it can be filled.

Language in the act states that it “shall not be construed ... to constitute suicide, assisted suicide, euthanasia, mercy killing, homicide or adult abuse.”

Find the act at <https://nmlegis.gov/>. Search for HB 47 or by title.

Technology provides patients and doctors with information connection

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Anthony Dohrmann, founder and CEO of Electronic Caregiver, Inc., said there is a big retirement population here in Doña Ana County. While the company provides its services across the country, they are headquartered right here in Las Cruces.

"We have older adults living with multiple chronic conditions including declining vision and hearing," he said. "We don't metabolize our medications the same way. It's important to stay on track with treatment and to have support in case you have an incident where you need services and support and medical attention."

This is a service Electronic Caregiver provides. It can range from doctors' connections to their patients, sending out regular information about how medications are being taken to monitoring blood pressure, glucose and other systems of concern to an individual.

"People want to maintain dignity and independency and they want to live at home," Dohrmann said. "We have a lot of solutions for that."

He said people don't always want to admit they have an injury and are embarrassed. Some are bad at following through on treatment plan. Usually, people past a certain age have at least one or two chronic conditions.

"The latest statistic I have seen is that 133 million Americans have at least one chronic condition and the majority have two or more," he said. "The number one cause of treatment failure is not following through at home. People forget to take meds, don't monitor trends of vitals, weight blood pressure, lung capacity, blood sugar. They will be irregular and Founder and CEO of Electronic Caregiver, Inc., Anthony Dohrmann, talks about AddisonCare, a virtual caregiver who will be able to walk people through things they need including medication reminders to connecting them to a provider as needed.

inconstant and if they don't know, the doctor doesn't know."

The company has solutions, Dohrmann said. Electronic Caregiver has resources that remind people about their medications and take vitals regularly.

"We get into communication with them and get them on track," he said. "We are monitoring constantly and getting early indications to the doctor leading to lower mortalities, less hospitalization, more interdependence and much better quality of life."

The Electronic Caregiver Premier System includes emergency response and care tabs, he said. They have a physician on demand service where customers can get a prescription called in from home.

"Sometimes the idea of driving to an urgent care and sitting in a waiting room for two hours for a prescription seems impossible," Dohrmann said. "We get people in touch with a doc who does an assessment, its super convenient. We also have an interactive smart health hub, which also connects to wireless devices. It might be a heart patient, might be looking at pulse rate, blood oxygen levels etc."

While Electronic Caregiver systems are available by private pay, there are also more and more doctors able to prescribe the system and that allows it to be paid for by Medicare.

"We are not there to replace primary care physicians" he said. "When a doctor prescribes the Pro-health, we integrate. Our team monitors and if something is amiss, our care team calls up the patient, updates the health record, sends an alert to the patient's doctor."

Sometimes Medicare has services they can pay for that are underutilized because doctors don't realize they are available and Electronic Caregiver systems can help show the doctor what is available. Dohrmann said doctors' offices are not staffed to be watch over data coming in from their patients. They don't always have resources to keep up with alerts coming from equipment.

Electronic Caregiver will be able to provide the service that can keep that data together and at the doctor's fingertips as needed.

"A lot of times it becomes one size fits all and it is hard to do it right," he said. "There are thousands of profiles and care plans, workflows, languages, cultures and you have to be able to accommodate all of that. It has taken us 80 million dollars and 10 years and hundreds of pilots and providers to get this right."

Up until now, there has not been a way to resolve all the incoming information with an efficient way to get it into a format easily accessible for the doctor.

"With so many people with chronic conditions, they suffer symptoms, and they don't know how to report them – they figure it's just part of life," Dohrmann said. "It's a really amazing time for health care. We are able to give continuous care."

Caregiver survival and thriving tips

COURTESY VISTA LIVING

This is a small list for anyone caring for someone facing dementia. It comes from our collective Vista Living Care experience of 23 years caring for elders, supporting families through the process of dementia and the creation of New Mexico's only Eden Alternative homes. Vista has a deep commitment to embracing life for elders and providing comfort, education, and hope for families. This list is meant to be a starting point for caregivers to not just survive but thrive during the dementia journey.

1. Breathe. Find time, even if it is just five minutes everyday to breathe deeply and connect to your body, mind, and spirit.

2. Forgive Yourself. All of us get tired, cranky, everyone will make mistakes.

3. Be honest with yourself. Often the toughest part of being a caregiver is being honest about what they cannot do. Help is a good thing. None of us can do this alone; it is simply not possible. Many issues faced during the dementia journey are relentlessly hard on the person caring for them. Patterns such as disturbed sleep cycles, repetitive questions or hoarding, care needs from bathing to incontinence care, and behavioral changes such as wandering, can all be both exhausting and physically un-safe.

4. Do not wait for a crisis to make decisions. Start looking for help before you think it is needed. Nobody makes their best choices in the emergency room or police station.

5. Knowledge is power. The more you know about dementia and the systems you are working with, the easier everyone's life will be. This includes assisted living, home health care and funding sources such as VA, Long Term Care Insurances and Medicaid. Ask questions. When looking at home health and assisted living, it is a bad sign when staff are not willing to take the time to talk with you or listen to you.

6. Have balance. There will be times when you need to fight for the person you are caring for. Know when to stop fighting and allow things to work. Gratitude is as important as being a fighter.

7. Make life better. We do not have a way to make progressive dementia go away, but we can make life better during the process. Good food, loving caregivers, music, animals, creativity in all forms all make life better for elders. You can have a life even with dementia. It may not be the life we wanted for the person we love, but life can still be good.

8. Laugh. Sometimes caregiving really is funny. Laughter also relieves stress and can redirect someone with dementia from a negative behavior to a positive one.

9. Keep part of your life that is yours. Caregiving can become everything you do. This is not safe for anyone. You will need this.

Sean Connery's James Bond spies ‘From Russia With Love’

BY JAY BOBBIN

Just as most people have their favorite screen James Bond, most have their favorite James Bond movie.

For many purists, “From Russia With Love” ranks extremely high on the list. Currently streaming on Hulu, the 1963 caper came close on the heels of Sean Connery’s debut as Agent 007 in “Dr. No” ... and much of the appeal of the second round rests in the actor’s cool confidence in a role he grew into very quickly. There’s also satisfaction for Bond devotees in the film being one of the most literal adaptations of a novel by Ian Fleming, since gadgetry began to compete heavily with story with the follow-up, “Goldfinger.”

Though Bond — or someone we think is him — appears in the pre-credits sequence that became a standard Bond element with “From Russia With Love,” it actually takes a while for him to enter the picture in full. Early scenes are devoted to introducing various villains such as Rosa Klebb (Lotte Lenya), she of the poison-tipped knife concealed in her shoe, and impressively strong henchman Red Grant (Robert Shaw, 12 years before his “Jaws” turn as Quint).

They’re in on a plot to discredit Bond by luring him with a much-coveted decoding machine, then filming him while being seduced by one of their allies played by Daniela Bianchi. A problem is that she genuinely falls hard for our hero (of course), leaving her loyalty in doubt until the moment when it counts the most.

While “From Russia With Love” has many highlights, the culmination of a tense trip aboard the Orient Express surely is among the best. Returning from “Dr. No,” director Terence Young stages a train-compartment fight that’s as brutal as it could be, and it’s held up very well over nearly 60 (!) years. The helicopter and boat chases that follow also continue to stand nicely.

Another cast member hugely deserving of mention is Pedro Armendariz, who was terminally ill when he filmed the part of Bond’s jovial Turkish contact Kerim Bey. The performer makes every moment he’s on the screen count; this entry also marked the first appearance of Desmond Llewelyn as weapons expert Q (the briefcase he gives Bond for the mission is legendary), and Bernard Lee and Lois Maxwell are back as boss M and secretary Miss Moneypenny.

The James Bond series got (and pretty much stayed) a lot flashier after “From Russia With Love,” but this espionage saga handles its intrigue quite honorably, a huge reason it remains so cherished by so many 007 aficionados.

Octavio Pisano
7 p.m. on KVIA
The Queen Family Singalong
Emmy-winning actor and singer-songwriter Darren Criss (“Glee”) hosts this new one-hour special, the fourth installment in ABC’s popular “Sing-along” franchise, which invites viewers to gather friends and family and sing along to musical hits by the rock group Queen. The on-screen talent for the show includes Adam Lambert, who in recent years has toured with Queen’s remaining members, covering the lead vocals once sung by legendary Queen frontman Freddie Mercury. Other performers include Pentatonix, OneRepublic, Fall Out Boy, JoJo Siwa and Orianthi and Derek Hough.

8 p.m. on KTSM
Law & Order:
Special Victims Unit
After a sex worker inexplicably vanishes without a trace, the subsequent investigation by Rollins (Kelli Giddish) and Velasco (Octavio Pisano), her new partner, turns up a vital clue hidden inside a pile of missing-persons reports in a new episode called “They’d Already Disappeared.”

8:30 p.m. on KDBC
B Positive
Gina (Annaleigh Ashford) hatches a clever scheme to help Meredith (recurring cast member Priscilla Lopez), one of her residents, get some space from her hovering, overprotective husband in the new episode “Baseball, Walkers and Wine.” Back on the home front, Drew (Thomas Middleditch) screws up his courage to admit his true feelings to Gina. Sara Rue, Jane Seymour, Ben Vereen, Jim Beaver and Anna Maria Horsford also are featured.

What's Available NOW On

"Movie: American Traitor: The Trial of Axis Sally"

From director Michael Polish ("Twin Falls Idaho") comes this 2021 drama that recalls the case of Mildred Gillars (played here by Meadow Williams, "Boss Level"), who stood trial for treason for broadcasting Nazi propaganda to U.S. troops during World War II. Al Pacino plays James Laughlin, the lawyer who defended her. Thomas Kretschmann and Mitch Pileggi also star.

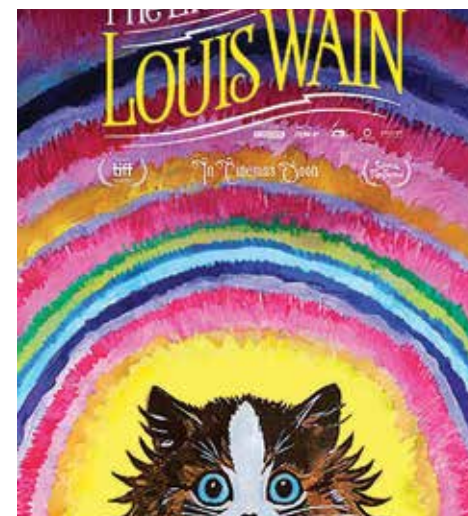

"Movie: Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid"

Paul Newman and Robert Redford star in this classic, Oscar-winning 1969 Western as turn-of-the-century outlaws who become the targets of a posse after committing one too many train robberies. Refusing to change their ways, they head for South America. Directed by George Roy Hill, the film also stars Katharine Ross, Jeff Corey and Cloris Leachman.

"Judy Justice"

All rise! After concluding the syndicated "Judge Judy" earlier this year, Judge Judy Sheindlin is back in this arbitration-based program doing what she did previously, hearing and ruling on various cases. In this iteration, she'll be joined by three new personalities: bailiff Kevin Rasco, court stenographer Whitney Kumar and law clerk Sarah Rose, who is also Sheindlin's granddaughter. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: The Electrical Life of Louis Wain"

Based on a story by Simon Stephenson, director Will Sharpe's ("Black Pond," "The Darkest Universe") biographical drama stars Benedict Cumberbatch in the title role of the turn-of-the-20th-century inventor and entrepreneur who adopted a stray kitten that inspired him to paint amazing images of cats for which he became famous. Get your guide to the 2021 NM Legislative Session

The Las Cruces Bulletin's annual Southwest New Mexico Legislative Guide will be available Jan. 21, 2021. The guide features profiles of state senators and representatives in our region, and gives their expectations of this year's legislative session. You'll find information about the nine counties in our southwest region and rosters for all 70 representatives and 42 senators. There are many new faces and names this year. Our award-winning publication is a great way to get to know who they are.

Reserve your copy for free home delivery in the Las Cruces area by contacting Bulletin Distribution Manager Teresa Tolonen at teresa@lascrucesbulletin.com. Or call 575-524-8061. You can also come by our offices at 1740-A Calle de Mercado to pick one up. If you're not in the area, mail copies are available for $4.

Witch way to all the Halloween fun stuff?

BULLETIN REPORT

For some people, Halloween weekend is something they look forward to starting in November each year and await with devilish anticipation for 11-plus months.

And there are plenty of fiendishly fun events slated for Halloween in the Las Cruces. Here is a look at some of them.

Halloweekend: Poetry readings in Las Cruces

Just in time for Halloween, local poets will participate in poetry shows Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 28-30, in Las Cruces.

All events will be held 6 to 8 p.m. All are free and open to the public.

• Thursday, Oct. 28: Woody's Gift Gallery, 309 E. Organ Ave. Participating poets will be Lizard

Taking a look back at history, traditions of Halloween, Dia de los Muertos

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Halloween likely comes to us from ancient Celtic tribes that lived in western Europe and the North Atlantic as many as 2,500 years ago. The first day of their new year was on or about Nov. 1, when they celebrated the end of summer and the beginning of the long, dark, cold winter with a festival honoring Samhain, Lord of the Dead.

The Celts believed the souls of the dead returned at that time to mingle with the living, so they wore masks and lit bonfires to frighten them away. When the Romans conquered the Celts about 55 years before the birth of Christ, they adopted Samhain, and added their own touches. Those included baking ossa dei morti ("bones of the dead") cookies shaped like finger bones to purify their homes.

The word Halloween and its older spelling of Hallowe'en are shortened from All-hallow-even, the eve of All Hallows Day, also known as All Saints Day, which was a pagan (Celtic and Roman) celebration until Pope Gregory III (papacy: Feb. 11, 731-Nov. 28, 741), moved the old Christian feast of All Saints Day to Nov. 1 to adapt Samhain to the Christian faith.

Trick or treating started in Ireland centuries ago when groups of farmers would go door-to-door collecting food and materials

Art museum opens visiting Near East show

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

A new exhibition, “Allure of the Near East: Treasures of the Huntington Museum of Art” will open Oct. 29 and continue through Jan. 22, 2022 at the Las Cruces Museum of Art (MOA).

The exhibition “features 45 decorative arts and crafts from the Near East (roughly India to the Mediterranean) which range from ceramics and glass to metalwork and prayer rugs,” said city Museum Curator (Exhibits) Jennifer McClung. “It also includes books/caligraphy and scientific instruments. The collection comes from a husband and wife who are Syrian emigres who donated their collection to the

Jim Shearer, jazz trio have premiere concerts at NMSU, UTEP

BULLETIN REPORT

NMSU Regents Professor and tubist Jim Shearer will present the world premiere performance of a new work for tuba and jazz trio titled "Cloud Bowling," written by UTEP composer and pianist Chris Reyman. The show will also feature Shearer performing (on the tuba) the "Suite for Flute and Jazz Piano Trio" by noted classical/jazz crossover composer Claude Bolling.

Free concert performances will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 5, in the Atkinson Recital Hall inside the NMSU Music Center, 1075 N. Horseshoe St. on the NMSU campus; and at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 9, at the Fox Fine Arts Recital Hall, 500 W.

Jim Shearer (tuba) and a jazz trio will present a world premiere of "Cloud Bowling" Nov. 5 at NMSU and Nov. 9 at UTEP.

University Ave., on the UTEP campus.

Joining Reyman in the jazz trio accompanying Shearer will be UTEP faculty members Erik Unsworth, bass, and Andy Smith, percussion.

Bolling wrote his famous suite for Jean-Pierre Rampal in 1973, and their subsequent recording of that work spent more than 10 years on the Billboard top 40 classical chart, Shearer said. Bolling followed that work with a series of other successful jazz/classical collaborations, but never an original composition for the tuba.

Shearer began learning the flute work on tuba during his college days in the mid-1980s, and this performance will mark the culmination of a life-long dream to perform and record the entire work on his instrument of choice, he said.

Taking inspiration from Bolling's suite, Reyman's composition of "Cloud Bowling" is comprised of seven movements that blend jazz and classical styles and performance practices, Shearer said.

Following this series of live performances, the musicians will record both works for release on Summit Records for a CD project they are calling "Cloud Bowling with Claude Bolling."

Singer/songwriter to give free show

BULLETIN REPORT

Singer/songwriter Eliza Gilkyson will perform a free concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 3, in the NMSU Music Building's Atkinson Recital Hall, 1075 N. Horseshoe St. Gilkyson will be joined in performance by multi-instrumentalist and fellow singer/songwriter Don Richmond.

The performance is part of NMSU's annual Research and Creativity Week, an extensive week of lectures, poster sessions, workshops, concerts and other events. No tickets or reservations for the concert are required. Doors will open at 7:00 p.m.

Gilkyson is a two-time Grammy nominee and in 2003 she was inducted into the Texas Music Hall of Fame. She has collaborated with well-known artists like Bonnie Raitt and Mary Chapin Carpenter. Her work has also been featured in movies, PBS specials and on primetime TV.

Gilkyson will also lead a master class and perform at 3:30 p.m. Nov. 3, during the standard weekly recital class for all NMSU music majors, also in the Atkinson Recital Hall.

Information: Jim Shearer at 575-646-2601 and jshearer@nmsu.edu.

for a village feast and bonfire. Those who donated were promised prosperity, while those who didn't were threatened with bad luck.

When Irish immigrants came to the United States in the 1800s, the custom of trick-or-treating came with them.

Pumpkin carving got its start when the Irish began hollowing out turnips to hold lighted candles to frighten off evil spirits. Pumpkins were substituted for turnips when the Irish came to America.

"Jack-o'-lantern has been used in American English to describe a lantern made from a hollowed-out pumpkin since the 19th century, but the term originated in 17th-century Britain, where it was used to refer to a man with a lantern or to a night watchman," according to www.merriam-webster.com.

"At that time, the British often called men whose names they didn't know by a common name like Jack. Thus, an unknown man carrying a lantern was sometimes called 'Jack with the lantern' or 'Jack of the lantern.' At the same time, jack-o'-lantern was applied to another kind of light: the flame-like phosphorescence caused by gases from decaying plants in marshy areas, also known as ignis fatuus — a Medieval Latin term that means literally 'foolish fire' — or will-o'-the-wisp."

The name jack-o'-lantern is also tied to the Irish legend of Stingy Jack, a drunkard who bargained with Satan and was doomed to wander through an eternal night with only a burning coal inside a pumpkin to light his way.

According to ancient Aztec tradition, the souls of the departed are allowed to return to Earth one day each year: children on Nov. 1 (All Saints Day) and adults on Nov. 2 (All Souls Day).

Celebrations of these days — Dia de los Muertos ("Day of the Dead") — have continued for centuries in many Latin American countries and have been adopted in parts of the U.S., especially the Southwest. The families of the departed often build altars to honor their lost loved ones, and they make special treats for the celebration.

Tombaugh Gallery features 'unique' take on watercolors

BULLETIN REPORT

The Tombaugh Gallery will host "YUPO Watercolor Abstracts," by artist Cheryl Lynn Nelson. The exhibit opens with a reception 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 7, at the gallery, 2000 S. Solano Drive. The show continues through Nov. 28.

Tombaugh Gallery, which is part of Unitarian Universalist Church, is open 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday.

abstracts, "a compelling and unique alternative to traditional art papers," the gallery said in a news release.

Yupo is a waterproof synthetic. Due to the extra smooth surface, a fair amount of water is applied, followed by the watercolors, which then float freely across the surface and mix in a random fashion. The artist then moves the paper itself, and unique designs begin to emerge.

Microchipping creates happy endings for missing pets, families

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

It's saving cats and dogs!

Microchipping, that is.

Just ask the staff at Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley (ASCMV).

During one week in October, ASCMV staff got to make phone calls to a cat owner in Las Cruces, telling her that her cat, Djinn, had been found, and to dog owner Gloria Brown of El Paso, telling her that her beloved Yorkie, Aniken, had been found.

Both pets were identified and returned to their owners because they had been microchipped.

"There's nothing we love more than a happy ending for pets and their people, and an up-to-date microchip is the best shot a lost animal has at a happy ending," said ASCMV Executive Director Clint Thacker.

Thacker said he was "so proud of ASCMV staff member Laura Hennessee, who, with the help of a Good Samaritan, rescued a cat off the median on Interstate 70. She had to keep her wits about her, keep herself safe and make sure not to scare the cat into traffic," he said.

Hennessee's "courage and caring meant that not only did that cat get rescued, because it was chipped it got back to its person who had been looking for the cat for days," Thacker said.

The story of Brown and Aniken is equally remarkable and heartwarming.

Brown said the small dog disappeared from the fenced yard of her El Paso home more than three years ago. She thinks he was stolen. Brown, family members and friends searched everywhere for Aniken, including an online data search for missing pets and missing and found pets sites on social media.

Then on Oct. 2, ASCMV was "closing up shop at about 6 p.m. when someone came with two strays," ASCMV grant writer Elaine Stachera Simon said.

Aniken shortly after his recovery in October 2021.

"Staff member Alaska Smith was already working on an intake, so instead of asking him to hold the dogs, she helped this person too. One of the dogs (Aniken) was microchipped," Simon said.

ASCMV Office Manager Michelle Williams called Brown to report that her Yorkie was found.

Brown "was ecstatic," Simon said. In talking to Brown, Williams realized that the dog had been missing since Sept. 2, 2018, Simon said.

When she received the happy news from ASCMV, "I couldn't contain my emotions," Brown said. "I just couldn't believe it."

The person who had rescued Aniken agreed to meet Brown halfway between El Paso and Las Cruces to return the dog. Brown was so overcome, she had to get a friend to drive her to the rendezvous.

Brown said Aniken was very dehydrated and "not in the best condition" when she saw him for the first time in more than three years.

"When I saw him, it didn't look like him," she said. "I never would have recognized him. When I ... saw his little eyes, I knew it was him; I knew it was my baby. He heard his name, he jumped for joy. He was just so excited; he couldn't contain himself."

Aniken was recognized by his brothers and sisters (Brown has 11 dogs, all microchipped) as soon as he got home. He is eating, drinking a lot of water, his fur is growing back and he is "getting back to normal," she said.

"The people in Las Cruces were so kind," Brown said. "Microchipping is the best thing I ever could have done. Everybody needs to microchip their dogs."

Brown said Aniken was with a female dog when he was found, and Brown thinks that dog helped Aniken survive. He's almost 12 years old and doesn't have good eyesight or hearing, she said.

The other dog, now named Oreo, wasn't microchipped, and is now in a foster home waiting to be adopted.

"All of our staff members love animals, and it's hard to see animals that you know belong to someone go unclaimed," Thacker said. "The animal is scared and confused, and you know someone out there is missing their furry best friend. Microchips make happy endings possible."

ASCMV, 3551 Bataan Memorial West, is open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. To adopt an animal, check out available animals on the ASCMV website and make an appointment for a "social" during adoption hours: noon to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Lost and found animals are also posted on the website.

City council approves art design for new animal services center

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces City Council voted unanimously at its Oct. 18 regular meeting to approve the art design concept of Italian artist Vito DiBari for “an outdoor, site-specific, public art sculpture” called “Sun Shelter” to be installed at the new Animal Services Center of the Mesilla Valley (ASCMV) that is now under construction.

With the council’s approval, the city will draft a contract with the artist to create the sculpture.

“The recommended design concept proposes a 9-foot, die-cut steel sculpture depicting a representation of a cat and dog, the primary animals cared for by the ASCMV, embellished with a silhouette of the sun and a flying bird cutout,” the City of Las Cruces said. “The (selection) committee thought the design captured the spirit of the ASCMV, giving it high scores for meeting criteria as a focal point for the new site, reflecting the City of Las Cruces, its appropriateness to the site and use, and its fit with the landscape of the location.”

“The sculpture will be large enough to be an iconic focal point visible from multiple angles, as it is meant to be a beacon to the public,” DiBari said. “The symbolic elements — such as the sun, which is an emblem of protection that shines bright upon the animals — embody values of humane animal care and promote responsible pet ownership.”

The city said three designs were considered in the final phase of selecting a design, after a call for artists was initiated in March 2021 that was open to artists nationwide.

The art selection committee, a subcommittee appointed by the City Art Board, evaluated 139 submissions, choosing three finalists from among the responses, the city said. Finalists were asked to create a design art concept, including fabrication plan, budget and maintenance recommendations.

Get your mammogram: It's an hour that could save your life

By MELINDA BROOKS
Guest Column

According to the American Cancer Society (ACS), breast cancer is the most common cancer in women in the U.S., behind only skin cancers. In fact, the ACS puts the average risk as a one in eight chance that a woman will develop breast cancer in her lifetime. And according to the World Health Organization, breast cancer is now the most common cancer globally, claiming 12 percent of new cancer cases. Breast cancer is also the second leading cause of cancer death in women, superseded only by lung cancer.

So, that's some not-so-good news. How about some good news? Those death rates have been steadily dropping. Statistics show that the overall death rate from breast cancer decreased by 1 percent each year from 2013 to 2018. Now, the question is "why?" Well, the decreases have been associated with several factors, including better treatments and earlier detection through screenings.

Here's some more good news. You can get screened by scheduling a simple, routine mammogram. A mammogram takes only about one hour, once a year, but its benefits can last much longer. Mammograms help detect breast cancer earlier than waiting for symptoms to appear. That's an incredibly important weapon in the fight against breast cancer because that early detection can result in an easier and more effective treatment if cancer is discovered.

While there are certain risk factors for breast cancer—including lifestyle-related risks, as well as some risk factors you cannot change, like your family medical history—some breast cancer patients have no risk factors or even any symptoms. And 85 percent of breast cancer cases are in women with no family history of the disease. That's why early detection is so vital to finding and treating breast cancer.

If you are a woman 40 and older, you should be including an annual mammogram in your yearly health journey. If you are at higher risk, you may need to begin annual screenings sooner. Some of those risk factors include genetic mutations, having dense breasts, certain reproductive histories, being overweight after menopause, a family history of breast and ovarian cancer, a personal history of radiation therapy or hormone replacement therapy, a history with the drug diethylstilbestrol (DES) and a lack of physical activity.

As with other health issues, it's important to have a discussion with your trusted provider about your lifestyle and risks and to determine the right time for you to begin annual breast cancer screening.

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month, so if you haven't already scheduled your mammogram for the year, now is a great time to get it on your calendar and get the peace of mind that comes from taking charge of your health. It's one hour a year that could save your life.

If you would like to schedule a mammogram or talk with a provider about your breast health, call 1-800-424-DOCS or visit mmclc.org. For more information on breast cancer and mammograms, visit breastcancer.org and cdc.gov/cancer/breast.

Chamberino project to create 315 new jobs at former dog food plant

BULLETIN REPORT

The state of New Mexico and a local economic development fund have pledged more than $2 million in economic assistance to Wind Turbine & Energy Cables Corp. (WTEC) to redevelop an empty facility in Chamberino, about 25 miles south of Las Cruces, and create 315 manufacturing jobs in New Mexico, the Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance (MVEDA) announced Oct. 15.

The New Jersey-based WTEC manufactures wire cable that powers both solar and wind energy units, MVEDA said in a news release.

The Chamberino property, located at 1311 San Francisco De Asis, is WTEC's first expansion in New Mexico. The site will be used for steel-wire manufacturing and eventually expand to produce wind towers, the spine of the wind-energy turbine, MVEDA said. The

This former Alpo pet food processing plant in Chamberino, New Mexico will be refurbished and converted into a wind and solar supply manufacturing facility.

68,000-square-foot location is the former home to an Alpo pet food processing plant that closed in 2014.

The company chose New Mexico over Texas for a new manufacturing site because of the collaborative business climate, incentives and the proximity to the fast-growing wind and solar installations in the western United States, the news release said.

"WTEC Corp's expansion into the Chamberino community might just become one of the most impactful job creation projects to ever take place in rural New Mexico," MVEDA President and CEO Davin Lopez said. "We are pleased that we could partner El Paso Electric's (EPE) New Mexico Economic Development Fund, with the state of New Mexico and Doña Ana County to land this investment."

The state is pledging $2 million from its Local

Economic Development Act (LEDA) job-creation fund to assist WTEC with land, building and infrastructure at the Chamberino site. An additional $100,000 has been pledged from the EPE fund, which is administered by MVEDA and the Community Foundation of Southern New Mexico.

WTEC expects to begin hiring in early 2022 with a ramp-up to 315 full-time employees by the end of 2027, MVEDA said. The average annual salary is expected to be more than $37,000 and the project will have a statewide economic impact of $409 million over 10 years.

"When WTEC started looking for a new location, we wanted to be in the West, closer to our customers and key raw material vendors," said WTEC CEO Brian Singh, who founded the company. "When evaluating the pros and cons of Texas vs. New Mexico, the incentives offered by New Mexico and our close relationship with the New Mexico Economic Development Department and MVEDA tipped the scale. At this property, we have an existing building with room to expand. We see a lot of growth in the wind and solar sectors and this positions us well to grow our manufacturing capacity and improve our competitive position in the market," Singh said.

"WTEC Corp's expansion into Doña Ana County supports our efforts to grow new employment opportunities and promote economic development," Doña Ana County Commission Chair Manuel Sanchez said. "We are excited about the prospect of creating over 300 jobs and a large $20 plus million-dollar investment in a colonia that will benefit the community and diversify the base of employment in Chamberino. Their use of the former Alpo building is a way to repurpose an old facility and provides a location that will serve as a base for their operations. This project presents an opportunity for investment and economic development in a more rural part of the county," Sanchez said.

MVEDA VP to join EP Electric

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Eric Montgomery, who has been vice president of business development for the Las Cruces-based nonprofit Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance (MVEDA) since January 2012, will be leaving MVEDA soon to accept a newly created position at El Paso Electric.

Montgomery will become regional director for governmental affairs at EPE.

"I have said many times to people that over the past 10 years, Eric has grown into becoming one of the leading economic developers in the State of New Mexico," MVEDA President and CEO Davin Lopez said. "His impact on job creation opportunities in Doña Ana County cannot be overstated. He was project lead and key to attracting Stampede meats to Sunland Park, a project that took nearly four years to come to fruition, creating nearly 1,000 new jobs. His work with WTEC Energy was key to establishing their confidence to invest in Chamberino and as announced last week, is expected to create over 300 jobs. And the list goes on."

"It has been an incredible experience and honor to work with the team, board and community partners of MVEDA," Montgomery said. "I have been fortunate to have so many people who are leaders in their industries mentor and guide me through my career. This transition will allow me to bring a wealth of experience and connections to El Paso Electric as they continue to grow their services for the betterment of the Borderplex region. I look forward to the new opportunities brought forth by this change and to continued interactions with all."

Earlier this year, Montgomery was a recipient of the 2021 Economic Development 40 Under 40 Award, the biennial award recognizing rising stars under 40 years old in the economic development industry nationwide.

Montgomery and his wife, Brooke Higginbotham (director of Studio G at NMSU's Arrowhead Center), have four children, ages 7, 9, 12 and almost 13.

Montgomery grew up in the suburbs of South Bend, Indiana. His mother was recruited to medical offices in Hobbs, New Mexico, so his family moved from St. Joseph's County, Indiana to Lea County, New Mexico. Montgomery graduated from Hobbs High School and came to Las Cruces to attend New Mexico State University.

At NMSU, he earned a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's degree in public administration. Montgomery worked for the City of Las Cruces and LaserShield (the forerunner of Electronic Caregiver) before joining MVEDA.

of Telecom Energy Cables Corp./Taihan, USA.

WTEC has locations in New Jersey, Texas, Arizona, Florida and Monterrey, Mexico.

MVEDA is a nonprofit public/private economic development partnership that provides local businesses and new industries considering relocating

Golf cheats getting more clever all the time with new ways to chisel

As I was browsing the Web a few days ago, I ran across a YouTube replay of the classic James Bond scene where Agent 007 catches Auric Goldfinger cheating in their impromptu golf match. Goldfinger tried to get away with the ole' sneaky pocket ball drop after his ball was lost. Then last week a golfer at my club, who sounded a little like Ross Perot, blurted out, "Heck, if ya ain't cheatin' ya ain't tryin'." He was talking about golf, not football. This is karma, I thought, since several golfing pals have suggested that I do a column on cheating.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

Well, I figured I'd do some research. To my surprise and dismay, I found that the first three items on my Google search ("cheating in golf") were sites giving tips on how to cheat: "Cheating 101," "How to improve your golf score by cheating," that advised "cheating at golf is a delicate art and science." Then there was a Website called "BadGolfer.com" that has the tagline "for the golfer who really sucks."

One of the articles on BadGolfer read, "(To) win easily on the golf course — cheat! Tips to help golfers win more bets." To me, this is the sports equivalent on the Internet of instructions on how to build a suicide bomb. What has the world come to, I thought.

When it comes to cheating on the golf course there are dozens, if not hundreds, of ways to do it. You have the obvious, in-your-face variety, like claiming a lower score than actually made. Arnold Palmer once jokingly told a buddy his best tip for taking five strokes off his game was called an eraser. I have heard about the gimmick of magnetically picking up a marker coin with the sole of the putter and sneaking it forward several feet, but a new version popped up on "Cheating 101" which involves rubbing the putter sole on wet grass to make a "water vacuum" that will also make the coin stick, so it can be moved forward. Then there are the more surreptitious, subtle, slick variety like greasing the face of your driver. Vaseline is preferred by the compulsive cheater, but chapstick works well for no-spin, longer, straighter drives. There's one guy I used to play a lot of golf with years ago until I realized what was going on. It was the age-old, hole-in-the-pocket-drop-the-ball-down-the-pantleg trick. One day, after he miraculously "found" his special logo ball next to a mesquite clump, and actually had a shot, I told him, "You know I've found more of your balls than you've lost." That was our last game.

As a psychologist I have mused about why folks cheat. I have always contended that you learn volumes about a person's character just by playing some golf with him. But temptation is maybe universal. I found it interesting that immediately adjacent on the screen to my Google golf search was a website inviting married folks to cheat by having a “guaranteed affair,” under the slogan “life is short, cheat a little.” Wow! Maybe golf mirrors life more than we think. The golfer (or husband or wife) with a really fragile ego is possibly at risk for cheating at anything.

Truthfully, I’m not bothered much by cheaters. These guys are boorish and boring. Usually, they’re so pathetically insecure that they garner pity rather than anger. It’s the guys (and gals) who don’t actually know the rules of golf but think you’re pulling off a fast one when you invoke the rules to your advantage, like dropping from casual water, that I dislike. The rules are like tax deductions — if you know the facts they’re often to your benefit; like taking a drop from a burrowing animal hole. If you happen to gain an advantage because you have a thorough grasp of the rules, some guys go ballistic. Try to calmly explain it to them and you get, “I don’t care, that’s bull----.” Some wise man had it right when he remarked, “Golf is the only game in which a precise knowledge of the rules can earn one a reputation for bad sportsmanship.”

Where there’s a game of chance folks will bet and cheat. Sandbaggers at the club will be collecting shop credit long after we’re gone. So play with folks you trust, or play at your own risk.

there is a little bit more of a bounce in their step because we haven’t played in the Pan American in so long.”

The Aggies had earned three straight NCAA tournament bids under Jans, before the Covid pandemic threw a monkey wrench into that momentum.

NMSU finished 7-6 in the WAC last season and 12-8 overall in an abbreviated season, falling to Grand Canyon University in the conference tournament championship game.

Jans said his team is “über motivated” after last season.

“We have a chip that is firmly attached to our shoulder about how the season unfolded last year,” Jans said. “We weren’t happy about it. We have a lot to prove.

“I think you’ll find a team that will play really, really hard and they will play a brand of basketball that the community will be proud of,” Jans added.

Jans said after all the obstacles the program faced last season, they have regrouped this offseason and have had “close to a normal summer.”

“And our fall has been great thus far,” he said.

“There is a lot of competition in fall camp,” Jans added. “A lot of coaches and programs recruit seven or eight guys and everyone is comfortable in their roles and everyone knows what is going to happen each and every night.”

Jans said he likes competition at “each and every spot.”

“I think it makes everybody better over the course of the season,” he said. “You are prepared for nickel-and-dime injury situations. You are prepared for foul situations. I like to have as much depth as possible.”

While his players are certainly pumped up about the upcoming season, so are the fans.

“There are so many people who care so deeply about this program,” Jans said. “There is a special relationship between the Aggies and the Aggie fan base. It has nothing to do with me or my staff. This has been here long before we got on campus.

“I have talked to so many people and they all share the same sentiment — about how excited they are to get back into their seats and how excited they are to walk back into the Pan American Center and cheer for the Aggies again.”

And the fans might just have a lot to cheer about besides the return of home basketball games.

In a preseason poll of WAC basketball coaches, NMSU received eight of 13 possible first-place votes and were named the conference favorites heading into the season.

Sounds like there will be some fun times ahead in the old Pan Am.
