During the May 10 County Commission meeting, the month of May was designated as Community Action Month. The County Commission raised awareness of the impactful work being done by our local community action agency, Community Action Agency of Southern New Mexico (CAASNM).

Community Action is a robust state and local force connecting people to life changing services and creating pathways to prosperity in 99% of all American counties. Community Action builds and promotes economic stability as an essential aspect of enabling and enhancing stronger communities and stable homes. They do this while organizing their programs under four service pillars, "Family Wellness, Family Empowerment, Bridging Resources and Community Connections".

Through programs like "Empowerment Congress", leadership is cultivated; "Thriving Families" offers support to families through skills, experiences, trainings, education, and employment opportunities. Other programs like, "Kids Can: Youth Entrepreneur Program", teaches business concepts, leadership training, public speaking, confidence-building, self-reliance, and personal empowerment.

We are proud to tout the programs and impact of the Community Action Agency of Southern New Mexico. We encourage our residents to support their efforts to create positive change in people's lives.

Libertarians, Republicans vying to challenge incumbent governor

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

Five Republicans and two Libertarians are running for governor in the June 7 primary and are vying to challenge incumbent Democrat Michelle Lujan Grisham.

The Republicans are Greg Zanetti, Ethel Maharg, Jay Block, Mark Ronchetti and Rebecca Dow. The Libertarians are Karen Bedonie and Ginger Grider.

“I think everybody is deeply concerned about things in the world and things in the nation,” New Mexico Republican Party Chair Steve Pearce said. “The involvement of new generations of voters gives me all the hope in the world.

“Democrats are getting a lot of blame right now,” Pearce continued. “We have to keep our message simple — we can make lives better and restore the value of the dollar—that’s what’s at stake in this election.”

All these candidates, Republican and Libertarian, say they are “pro-life” and “pro-business.”

Greg Zanetti (R) grew up in Albuquerque and graduated from Valley High School in 1976. He graduated from West Point in 1980 and was promoted to brigadier general in 2005. He was then deployed to Guantanamo Bay in 2008 where he served as deputy commander, Joint Task Force Guantanamo. He has served as chairman of the

New Mexico Right to Life movement as well chairman of the effort to outlaw forcing any employee to join a union against their will.

Ethel Maharg (R) was born in Cuba, New Mexico. She says she is running for governor to “breathe life into New Mexico.” She is the first woman to be elected mayor of Cuba, is pro-life and said respect for the rule of law means the southern border must be secured immediately.

Jay Block (R) was born in Manchester, New Hampshire and served in the U.S. Air Force from 1989 to 2016, reaching the rank of lieutenant colonel. Block’s career experience includes working as a nuclear weapons consultant. Currently severing his second term as Sandoval County commissioner, he supports bringing bail back, looking closely at mental health issues and securing the border.

Mark Ronchetti (R) lives in Albuquerque, where he and his wife, Krysty, are raising two young daughters.

He says he has seen the flawed education system and the non-existent mental health support and how it’s failing kids in New Mexico. He wants to ensure a “justice system that works and prioritizes law-abiding citizens over criminals.”

Ronchetti started a career as a reporter in Grand Junction, Colorado. He spent two decades on air in the Albuquerque television market, including KRQE News 13.

Rebecca Dow (R), a member of the New Mexico House of Representatives representing Truth or Consequences, has been serving the area since 2017.

Dow was born in Oklahoma and moved to New Mexico when she was a young girl.

Dow earned an associate’s degree from Tulsa Community College and a bachelor of science degree in business management from Oral Roberts University. As a state representative, she is for defending New Mexico jobs.

Karen Bedonie (L) says her “freedom is Christian based, strong, cultural ... constitutional, womanly and beautiful.” She is pro-border wall, a business owner, an educator, a Diné historian by traditional teachings and a constitutionalist. She has been a New Mexican her entire life and makes her home in Tödiildö in McKinley County.

Write-in candidate Ginger Grider (L), who lives in Portales, says she is an advocate and business owner.

She is a medical cannabis patient and works with the New Mexico Medical Cannabis Patients Advocate Alliance.

Velo Cruces, 'Rides with Grace' host adaptive cycle parade

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"Every Body Rides with Grace" (EBRWG), a program of Velo Cruces, will host an adaptive cycle parade Saturday, June 4, in Mesilla, said EBRWG coordinator Andrea Holguin, the mother of Grace Holguin, for whom the program is named.

Decorations and bike maintenance (provided by the Hub Community Bike Shop) will begin at 8:30 a.m. June 4. The parade will begin at 9 a.m. at Parque de Cura Ramon Ortiz across from Mesilla Community Center, 2251 Calle de Santiago, in Mesilla.

It will follow a one-mile round trip loop through the streets of Mesilla, Holguin said.

In addition to the bicycle maintenance and decoration stations, Kona Ice will be on site to provide refreshments, Holguin said, and there will be a DJ to emcee the event. The Mesilla Marshal's office will lead the parade and will be accompanied by members of the Las Cruces Public Schools' Safe Routes to Schools program.

The event is free and open to the community, Holguin said.

walk, ride or roll through the parade route," she said.

EBRWG works "to provide children with special needs an adaptive cycle so that they can enjoy riding with their friends and families in the community," Holguin said. "Adaptive cycles are not available locally, and they are very expensive. EBRWG provides financial support and guidance for families looking for the cycle that best fits their child's needs. EBRWG secures funding through grants, crowdfunding and private donations from the community," Holguin said.

Velo Cruces is a local nonprofit "seeking to make Las Cruces a more bike and pedestrian friendly community."

"Every Body Rides with Grace" honors Grace Holguin of Las Cruces, who received an adaptive cycle for her 14th birthday, according to www.velocruces.org/ride-with-grace. Two weeks later, the bike was stolen. "Through the help of a dedicated (police) officer and the support of her community, Grace got her trike back within days. Her parents, Velo Cruces and the State of New Mexico are partnering to pay it forward with the Ride with Grace program."

Growing crime issues frustrating, frightening

Marci Dickerson is making a stand, both literally and figuratively.

The literal stand is a modified deer stand, positioned in the parking lot of the Game Sports Bar and Grill on Espina Street near University Avenue. From that 20-foot perch, a security guard watches over the parking lot and the area nearby, where multiple thefts have occurred recently, and damage done, to parked cars.

The figurative stand is a crusade against rising criminal acts, especially toward businesses and their customers, in and around Las Cruces.

"I'm making a stand," said Dickerson, who owns the Game, the Game 2, and other businesses in Las Cruces.

She recently spoke publicly about the theft and vandalism with fellow business owner Wanda Bowman of Ashley Homestore, and Nicole Black, executive director of the Las Cruces Home Builders Association.

Ashley is in a shopping center at 3299 Del Rey Boulevard, and Bowman reported broken windows and other damages to businesses in the center. She also talked of vagrants sleeping on the premises and, one indelible image, a man walking around the parking lot wielding an axe.

Bowman, despite being 80, still works regularly with the energy of someone half her age. But you could hear the weariness in her voice about this issue.

"These problems have been in the big cities, and now it's come to us," Bowman said. Regarding the man sleeping at the store's front door, "He was frightening for me."

Black, speaking on behalf of local builders and contractors, reported increasing thefts from construction sites of lumber and other building materials.

A 4-6 p.m. meeting Thursday, June 2, was planned at the LCHBA offices at 2825 N. Main St., to gather more input from other businesses concerned about stealing and vandalism.

While we don't have any real information confirming homelessness is on the increase in Las Cruces, there certainly appears to be an increase in these types of property crimes, as well as homeless and others acting out more brazenly. Many of these crimes are happening in broad daylight.

For about two years, the Las

City should end relationship with gun show

On Oct. 23 and 24, the taxpayer-funded Las Cruces Convention Center will be used once again to pump more guns onto the streets of Las Cruces and southern New Mexico.

Those are the dates of the Sunrise Lions Club 2022 Semi-Annual Gun and Crafts Show, which takes place every spring and fall.

Before delving into that event, I'd like to take a moment to praise Lions Clubs.

The only "club" I've ever belonged to as an adult was the Royal Gorge Lions Club in

WALT RUBEL

The View
From Here

Canon City, Colorado, so I'm well aware of the good work that they do.

The Sunrise Lions Club operates a summer camp for deaf children; provides eye exams and glasses for the needy; and funds scholarships at NMSU, among its many philanthropic activities.

Our club in Colorado ran the concessions stand at the adult softball field every summer.

I'm sure we didn't make as much money as the Sunrise

Club does, but we never had to worry that one of our hot-dogs would fall into the wrong hands.

The term "gun show" is misleading. People go to car shows to look at cars. People go to gun shows to buy guns.

For most of the local gun show's history, that included guns sold without a background check. State law passed in 2019 finally ended that practice; except, of course, in the parking lot.

The recent school shooting in Texas, coming so soon after the supermarket shooting in Buffalo, N.Y., has rekindled the same sense of hopeless frustration I get every time I hear about these kind of shootings.

I gave up after Sandy Hook. The slaughter of elementary school students in 2012 has only resulted in a loosening of gun laws and an explosion of gun sales in the years since, especially the sale of military-style weapons and ammunition whose sole purpose is to kill people.

The Las Cruces City Council certainly must understand that deliver praise for local law enforcement.

“The Las Cruces Police Department has been very responsive and helpful when we’ve called,” Dickerson said, adding that, in several cases, the police have apprehended the perpetrators within a short time of the incident.

In many of those cases, however, Dickerson said the accused have been promptly released after judges’ hearings.

and then back out on the street the next day.”

The most dramatic case of catch-and-release came last year. In late April 2021, Joel Arciniega-Saenz was arrested and charged with four felony counts for burglary and criminal damage to property at Beck’s Coffee in Las Cruces. Despite the charges and previous troubles with the law, Arciniega-Saenz was not held in jail. A few weeks later, he was charged with, and initially confessed to, the murder and decapitation of Benjamin Montoya.

“This is not about bashing the police, and this is not about people who are legitimately homeless,” Dickerson said. “This is about aggressive vagrants who steal, vandalize and scare off customers.”

She recognized drug abuse and mental illness as probable contributing factors.

“I’m asking for change,” Dickerson said. “We demand better from our city council.”

Dickerson noted the city’s budget increases and recommended more be spent on police, starting with recruiting and pay, in order to help the department reach full staffing levels.

These issues are not limited to our city, our region, our nation or even the world. The pandemic has put millions of people on edge, inflamed existing mental health issues, and initiated or revealed others. Every town or city I’ve visited the last five years, regardless of size or location, has a problem with homelessness. Meanwhile, prices of homes have skyrocketed worldwide, and empty homes and building proliferate.

The problems are painful and complicated, and no one really knows where to start.

For Dickerson and others, the place to start is here, and the time to start is now.

sense of hopelessness. The state Legislature recently passed a law preventing people from bringing guns into the Roundhouse, but we still have an old law on the books preventing local governments from banning people from bringing guns to their meetings.

There isn’t a heck of a lot the city can do. City council members were considering a non-binding, advisory vote several years ago when the meeting drew enough armed protesters for a Central American coup.

Moving the gun show out of the convention center would be a token gesture. The Lions Club would find a private facility to hold the event, and the show would continue pouring weapons onto our streets. But at least the city wouldn’t be culpable.

Benavidez seeking Dem nod for treasurer

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Heather Benavidez would like to be New Mexico's 31st state treasurer.

She is a candidate in the June 7 Democratic primary for the office, running against Laura Montoya.

The winner faces Republican Harry B. Montoya in the November general election. Incumbent Treasurer Tim Eichenberg, a Democrat, is term limited.

Benavidez was born in Albuquerque and grew up in Belen, New Mexico, graduating from Belen High School. She has a master's degree in public administration from the University of New Mexico.

Benavidez served eight years as a Valencia County magistrate judge and was elected to two terms as municipal judge for the City of Rio Communities (Valencia County). She began working in the state Treasurer's Office in 2017 and has been chief of staff since 2020.

"Safety, liquidity and yield" is "the philosophy we adhere to in the state's treasurer's office for all investments," Benavidez said in a telephone interview.

Eichenberg "has a good reputation and has done a great job" as state treasurer, she said. "The office has been under great leadership for the past 15 and a half years and I'd like to maintain that," Benavidez said.

If she's elected treasurer, Benavidez said one change she would like to make, if it can be accomplished without costing additional taxpayer dollars, would be to open state treasurer's offices in both Las Cruces and Albuquerque to expand opportunities for advocacy programs and to make it easier for state residents to access services and educational opportunities provided by the treasurer.

The satellite offices would also allow the treasurer's office to provide more financial literacy education to "youth all over the state," she said. And they would make it easier to administer the retirement savings program New Mexico will implement in July 2024, Benavidez said. The program, which encourages saving by people who don't have savings programs where they work, is a unique partnership between New Mexico and Colorado.

Benavidez said she has traveled throughout New Mexico as coordinator of the ABLE (Achieving a Better Life Experience) New Mexico program, which "enables qualifying people with physical and intellectual disabilities to establish tax-free savings accounts," she said. The

Know the signs

Do you know how to identify a natural gas leak? You might smell sulfur or rotten eggs, you may notice dirt or debris shooting up out of a hole in the ground, dead or dying vegetation in an otherwise green area, and a loud hissing or roaring sound near pipeline markers. These and many more are all tell tale signs of a natural gas or pipeline leak. Use all your senses, even common sense and report any possible leaks to Zia Natural Gas Company. When in doubt call us out!

As always, Zia personnel are available 24/7 for all natural gas emergencies. Call (575) 526-4GAS (4427) if you have a natural gas emergency.

Chess returns to Boys and Girls Club

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

After a two-year hiatus because of Covid-19, the chess club at the Boys and Girls Club of Las Cruces resumed regular play this school year with more than 20 elementary- and middle-school participants, volunteer chess instructor Bill Bradley said.

The chess year culminated in the club's annual end-of-school-year tournament.

This year's tournament winner was Alex S, 10, a fifth-grader at Desert Hill Elementary School, Bradley said. Finishing second was Chris V, 11, a fifth-grader at Hillrise Elementary School. Third place went to Sophia N, 6, a first-grader at Tom-baugh Elementary School.

Alex S was also named the chess player of the year at the club, Bradley said. This year he was singled out as the player best exemplifying good sportsmanship. Soledad H, 8, a third-grader at Desert Hills Elementary, was named most improved player.

Special attention goes to Sophia N who was named newcomer of the year, Bradley said.

"This 6-year-old first-grade student joined the club in March," he said. "Over a 10-week span, she gained sufficient skills to finish third in the tournament."

accounts "are very important," Benavidez said, because without them the approximately 1,300 people who have the accounts could not have more than $2,000 in savings without losing their disability benefits.

In addition to being responsible for the investment of $11 billion in state funds, the treasurer's office administers the Local Government Investment Pool (LGIP), Benavidez said, which offers professional money management for tribes and local governments.

LGIP currently has more than 100 participating entities around the state, she said, and recently added Lordsburg to the pool.

"I feel very lucky to have had the opportunity to visit small communities and listen to the different stories," Benavidez said.

Benavidez said she recognizes that "not everybody has the same accessibility or needs," but part of the state treasurer's job is to look at, understand and deliver for all communities in the state.

Eichenberg has endorsed Benavidez in the Democratic primary, as have state Sens. Bill Soules and Carrie Hamblen, both Las Cruces

Democrats.

Benavidez said she is grateful for all the endorsements she has received, especially those "from younger folks. It's really important that we mentor our young people and listen and guide them, especially if they are currently serving the public," she said.

Benavidez said Eichenberg's advice to her in running for state treasurer was to "focus on the reason you're doing it."

For Benavidez that means to "continue serving New Mexicans every day and doing it from a very pure place in your heart."

'Mother' Hubbard receives mayor's distinguished service award

BULLETIN REPORT

When "Mother" Hubbard goes to her awards cupboard, she will find it anything but bare.

Barbara Hubbard, who got her nickname from Bob Hope during a visit he made to Las Cruces decades ago, received another accolade at the May 15 Las Cruces City Council meeting.

Mayor Ken Miyagishima presented Hubbard with the mayor's distinguished service award, "in recognition of your commitment and dedication in helping to make Las Cruces a better community."

Hubbard, who turns 95 in July, was director of special events at New Mexico State University

1968-96 and is credited with bringing the first-ever concert to the Pan American Center.

Barbara "Mother" Hubbard received an award from Mayor Ken Miyagishima.

She is remembered and revered for attracting some of the biggest names in entertainment to Las Cruces, including Garth Brooks and Trisha Yearwood, George Strait, Tina Turner, Charlie Pride, U2, KISS, Bob Hope, The said when it honored Hubbard and other Las Cruces women pioneers earlier this year. Professional boxing cards, wrestling matches, circuses and other traveling extravaganzas attracted thousands more visitors to Las Cruces during Hubbard's illustrious career.

Eagles, Pearl Jam, Whitney Houston, Foreigner, Jeff Dunham, Carrie Underwood, Brad Paisley, Trans-Siberian Orchestra, Elton John, Billy Joel, Van Halen, Prince and Metallica, Visit Las Cruces (VLC)

In fact, Brooks' World Tour sold out five shows and attracted more than 60,000 fans to Las Cruces over a three-day period in April 2017. Concertgoers from 47 states purchased tickets to the shows, and Hubbard's legacy was cemented – if it was not already – as a pioneer in promotions and local tourism, VLC said.

Hubbard "is southern New Mexico's icon," Mayor Ken Miyagishima said. Hubbard "put the Pan American Center on the nation's map in addition to bringing a lot of great music to Las Cruces and the borderland," he mayor said.

6 p.m. on LIFEMOV Movie: Here Kills the Bride

Jasmine had been looking forward to meeting Grace, the new fiancée of her brother, Carlos, but she can’t shake the strong feeling that something is just “off” about the other young woman. She is terrifyingly correct in that assessment, because unbeknownst to either Jasmine or Carlos, Grace is the unstable product of a very chaotic upbringing — and now that a good marriage seems to be within her grasp, Grace will kill anyone who threatens her happily-ever-after. Ashlee Fuss and Erin Pineda star in this 2022 thriller.

6 p.m. on MAX Movie: Voyagers

Neil Burger wrote and directed this 2021 sci-fi film, which some critics compared to a futuristic take on “Lord of the Flies.” Set in the near future, on an Earth devastated by runaway climate change, the movie follows a group of teenage astronauts who are dispatched to colonize a habitable exoplanet. The journey is threatened, though, when the young crew falls into paranoia and social conflict after discovering their personalities and emotions previously were being artificially suppressed. Tye Sheridan, Lily-Rose Depp (Johnny’s daughter), Fionn Whitehead and Colin Farrell star.

7 p.m. on DISN Ultra Violet & Black Scorpion

The world of Lucha Libre, a freeform wrestling style from Mexico, provides the backdrop for this new action-fantasy starring Scarlett Estevez as Violet Rodriguez, a Mexican-American teenager whose normal life is turned upside-down when a magical luchador mask transforms her into Ultra Violet, a crime-fighting superhero. Fortunately for Violet, her Uncle Cruz (J.R. Villarreal) already is a superhero who can train his niece in using her new powers. Marianna Burelli, Juan Alfonso, Brandon Rossel and Bryan Blanco also star. Another new episode immediately follows.

Selected as Iceland’s entry for consideration as best international feature film at the 94th Academy Awards, director and co-writer Valdimar Johannsson’s 2021 folk horror film relates a bizarre story that begins with a nocturnal visit to an Icelandic farm by a mysterious unseen entity. Later, Maria (Noomi Rapace, “Prometheus”) and her husband, Ingvar (Hilmir Snær Guðnason), are understandably shocked when one of their pregnant sheep gives birth to a human-sheep hybrid with a mostly human body, but a lamb’s head and right arm. They decide to raise her as their own.

Movie: Buried in Barstow

Angie Harmon ("Law & Order") returns to scripted television in this new TV movie, the first in a series of dramas on which she's also the executive producer. This project casts the actress as Hazel King, a single mother and former hired killer who gave up that violent trade when she became pregnant. Now she tries to keep a low profile as the owner of a California diner, but her past catches up with her when a stranger (Kristoffer Polaha) arrives and she's pulled back in to make one final hit.

While Mags (Laurence Leboeuf) is frantically fighting to save a baby with a heart defect, she finds herself flooded by memories of the health problems that plagued her as a child in the new episode "Between." Movie: Sabrina

Wealthy, dissimilar brothers (Humphrey Bogart, William Holden) become romantic rivals for the daughter (Audrey Hepburn) of their chauffeur (John Williams) in director Billy Wilder's sparkling 1954 comedy. Sabrina Fairchild has long adored playboy David (Holden), but money-minded Linus (Bogart) makes his own play for her to keep David at bay — and a business deal intact. He soon finds other reasons to keep pursuing her. The film helped Hepburn become a style icon. "Sabrina" airs as part of "Follow the Thread," movies about fashion in film airing Saturdays in June.

12:30 a.m. on FREEFRM
Movie: Dirty Dancing

Nobody puts this movie in a corner, especially when there's a slumber party going on. A favorite at girly gatherings since it came out on video, this 1987 drama is as beloved for its eye-popping dance moves and '60s soundtrack as for its Cinderella story line. Patrick Swayze and a pre-nose-job Jennifer Grey star as the dance instructor and the shy teen who give their dancing feet and their hearts a workout at a Catskills resort in the early 1960s.

10 p.m. on HBO Irma Vep

French filmmaker Olivier Assayas adapted his 1996 film of the same title for this atmospheric new drama series starring Academy Award winner Alicia Vikander ("The Danish Girl") as Mira, an American movie star disillusioned by her current career and aching from a recent break-up. Seeking a distraction, she comes to France to star in a remake of the silent-film classic "Les Vampires," but as work on this lurid crime thriller progresses, Mira has trouble distinguishing where she stops and her character, Irma, begins.

movie review

BY JAY BOBBIN

Dustin Hoffman is 'Tootsie' in classic masquerade comedy

Ask actors what their favorite movie is, and many times, the answer will be "Tootsie." That's not a huge surprise, since not only is the Sydney Pollack-directed 1982 Oscar winner (which Turner Classic Movies shows Saturday, June 11) a very smart and genuinely funny comedy, it's also a very incisive look at the challenges often faced by those in the acting profession. Certainly, not everyone goes to the extent of Dustin Hoffman's character to land and keep a job in front of audiences, but there's still plenty of truth to the humor that's involved.

Hoffman plays Michael Dorsey, a struggling performer trying to help a friend (Teri Garr) land a role on a daytime-television serial. When she doesn't get the part, he decides to pursue it himself ... as "Dorothy Michaels," disguising himself to convince everyone else on the show that he's a woman, and one capable of playing very conservative new hospital administrator Emily Kimberly. The charade prompts a series of great one-liners from Bill Murray as Michael/"Dorothy's" perplexed roommate.

If it took its premise only that far, "Tootsie" would be a terrific comedy, but it cleverly reaches beyond that to be a telling commentary on the so-called battle of the sexes as well. Through his masquerade, Michael gets more in touch with his feminine side ... particularly as he falls for his soap-opera co-star Julie (Jessica Lange, in an Academy Award-honored performance), who's treated callously by her beau (Dabney Coleman), the director of the serial.

“Movie: A Quiet Place Part II”

Writer-director John Krasinski's follow-up to his 2018 horror yarn catches up with the Abbott clan in the wake of the events of the first film, as they venture in silence into the unknown of the outside world and realize the creatures that hunt by sound aren't the only threats to their survival. Krasinski and wife Emily Blunt, star along with Millicent Simmonds and Noah Jupe.

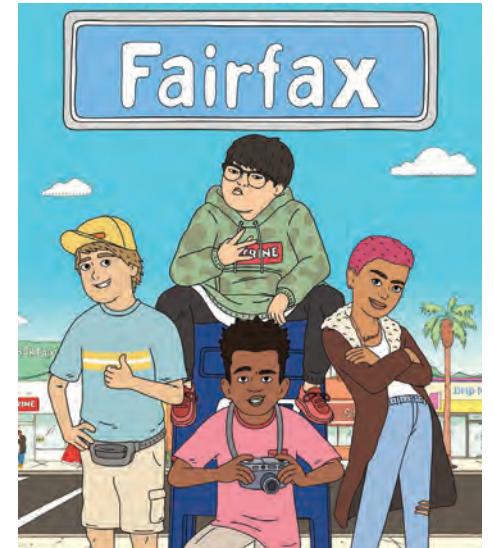

“Movie: Europa Report”

Shot “found footage” style, this 2013 sci-fi thriller follows the fortunes of the first manned space mission to Europa, one of Jupiter's moons. While the crew is en route, a solar storm knocks out communications with mission control back home, but the ship safely reaches Europa and the team tries to pursue its goals. Instead, they encounter a baffling mystery. Sharlto Copley and Michael Nyqvist star.

“Movie: Zero Dark Thirty”

This reunion of the Oscar-winning “Hurt Locker” team of director Kathryn Bigelow and screenwriter Mark Boal is an engrossing, often exciting dramatization of the hunt for Osama bin Laden. Jessica Chastain's star rises higher with her performance as a CIA analyst who pursues her belief of the terrorist leader's location. Her hunch ultimately prompts one of modern history's most famous raids.

“Fairfax”

This adult cartoon from creators Matt Hausfater, Aaron Buchsbaum and Teddy Riley returns for its sophomore round to follow the further adventures of middle school pals Dale, Truman, Derica and Benny as they seek fame, clout and self-expression on Los Angeles' Fairfax Avenue, the epicenter of the city's hype beast culture. Award-winning 'Three Tall Women' opens for 3-week run

BULLETIN REPORT

The Pulitzer Prize- and Tony Award-winning play "Three Tall Women," by Edward Albee, opens Friday, June 3, for a three-weekend run at Las Cruces Community Theatre.

The cast includes Rachel Thomas-Chapel, Annie Pennies, Deborah Storm and Gus David Sanchez.

New Mexico State University Theatre Department Production Stage Manager Mike Wise is the director.

"The play reminds me of the old Sphinx riddle (from Oedipus Rex), 'What walks on four legs in the morning, two legs in the afternoon and three legs at night?'" Wise said. "The answer is a human being (man). In the morning (as a baby) they crawl on all fours, as an adult (in the afternoon) they walk upright, and in old age (evening) they walk (with the aid of a cane) on three legs. People may ask, 'How can you be three people at the same time?' and you can, simply by being alive."

Performances will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday,

June 3-4, 10-11 and 17-18, and 2 p.m. Sunday, June 5, 12 and 19, at LCCT, 313 N. Main St. Downtown. Tickets are $17 for adults; $14 for seniors, students and military; $10 for children ages 12 and younger; and $5 for student "rush" tickets.

For tickets, visit www.lcctnm.org. Call 575-523-1200.

‘Tequila Mockingbird’: Festival will highlight reading in fun way

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces Arts and Cultural District (ACD) will host its first Literary Arts Festival beginning at 3 p.m. Saturday, June 4, the Downtown Las Cruces Partnership (DLCP) said in a news release.

The event “will showcase our community’s enthusiasm for literary arts from readings and musical performances to book-based pinball tournaments, food and drink specials and other exciting offerings in-between,” the news release said. It will culminate with the second annual Generations Community Writing Project reading at Rio Grande Theatre (RGT), 313 N. Main St., at 6 p.m. The reading “links writers across generations and cultures to create connections with each other and the audience. This year the local writers will read their work centering around the theme ‘unity,’” the news release said.

The festival ends with the opening of the Fair in Art 451 gallery show located at RGT.

The festival will happen all around Downtown, DLCP said. Participating Downtown restaurants will offer literary-themed food and drink specials such as Rad’s “Mirkwood Enchanted Forest drink and Lembas bread” and Amador Live’s “Tequila Mockingbird.”

Themed mini-events will be held at participating businesses throughout the ACD. Participants will also include RGT, Thomas Branigan Memorial Library, the City of Las Cruces Museum of Nature and Science, La Vida Project, Beck’s Roasting House and Creamery, Willow and Blaine bistro, Grounded coffee bar and pizza/wine lounge and Zia Comics.

“We are excited to bring LitFest to the Arts and Cultural District,” said ACD Coordinator Susan Cabello. “As an inclusive and diverse signature event, LitFest showcases the many ways our community celebrates and comes together through the literary arts. This event has really blossomed. Our district businesses have outdone themselves when coming up with the mini-events and curating programs for everyone.”

RGT will also have free programming featuring film as literature, nature journaling and dance performances, the news release said.

Also happening as a part of LitFest, local muralist Coy Lowther will paint a mural on the north wall of COAS Books, 317 N. Main St.

The mural is a community project, DLCP said.

“Come lend an artistic hand and play a part in the place making of Downtown Las Cruces,” the release said. The mural is funded through the Devasthali Family Foundation Fund.

ACD was created by the Las Cruces City Council in 2018. The district’s boundaries are Water Street on the west, Mesquite Street on the east, Picacho Avenue/Spruce Street on the north and Amador Avenue on the south and include Downtown and the Mesquite Street Historic District, taking in Las Cruces’ original townsite.

The Arts and Culture District Coordinating Council represents area leaders in arts, culture, historic preservation, tourism and leisure activities.

On a beautiful Thursday morning, a relaxed crowd gathered at the Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) Demonstration Garden for the return of the annual Spring Stroll on May 26. With coffee and donuts, visitors could stroll the garden outside the LCU administration building at 680 N. Motel Boulevard and learn about drought-tolerant landscaping, get samples of Class A+ compost, talk to local experts about soil and irrigation systems, and receive one of the 250 drought-tolerant plants to add to their own garden.

LCU Water Conservation Program Coordinator Rhonda Diaz was in her element; during COVID giving residents tips on plants was much harder. But now, Diaz and local experts in soil and irrigation could answer questions about what and how to grow in the desert.

"We want people to come out to events like these to see gorgeous plants that can help them save water in their garden," said Diaz.

LCU's compost, resulting from solids removed from the wastewater treatment process, contains micronutrients like zinc, manganese, copper, and boron – all beneficial for plant growth and sometimes lacking in local soil. The dewatered biosolids are transported from the Jacob Hands Wastewater Treatment Facility (JHWWTFF) and dried on a five-acre cement floor at the LCU West Mesa Wastewater Treatment Facility. The compost "cooks" at 131 degrees Fahrenheit to kill off harmful bacteria.

Residents can receive 10 five-gallon buckets per trip to JHWWTFF at 2851 W. Amador Avenue. While they are encouraged to bring their own buckets, empty and filled buckets are available for pickup on a first come first serve basis.

Visitors to the Spring Stroll were given a copy of the Demonstration Garden Guide, which describes more than 60 different species that use very little water and are grown in LCU's Demonstration Garden, which is open to the public during business hours. Find the guide online at: <https://www.las-cruces.org/1916/Demonstration-Garden>

Tombaugh Gallery hosts Potters' Guild exhibit 'Fire and Fiber' throughout June

BULLETIN REPORT

The Potters' Guild of Las Cruces presents "Fire and Fiber 2022" at the Tombaugh Gallery Friday, June 3 through Sunday, June 26.

The show is a biennial exhibition showing collaborative works of art by ceramic and fiber artists that has been presented since 2000.

There is a new category this year, as Potters' Guild members who work in both ceramics and fiber can enter works of art that encompass both of those media.

Awards for outstanding artwork in the show will be given by Las Cruces quilter and painter Dori McKay, who is a Potters' Guild member.

"Fire and Fiber 2022" will open with a wine reception, 5-7 p.m. Friday, June 3, at Tombaugh Gallery, which is part of Unitarian Universalist church, 2000 S. Solano Drive.

The gallery is open 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday and opens at 11 a.m. Sundays.

After the Tombaugh Gallery show, "Fire and Fiber 2022" will move to the Deming Art Center, 100 S. Gold Ave. in Deming, July 2-29.

The Potters' Guild of Las Cruces was formed in 1981, according to www.pottersguildlc.org.

Changing nature of work: Difference between skills, degrees

The pandemic has spurred a rapid increase in a host of trends, but perhaps none more dramatic than the changing world of work.

This was a significant topic of the conversations at Innovate+Educate's summit this year.

I+E has been leading the charge on a transition away from traditional hiring practices based primarily on degrees to one based on skills, which would then bring more otherwise qualified workers into more high-value careers.

This transition is really key to opening wide the talent pool for employers.

Degree inflation (requiring college degrees for jobs that don't actually need them) became a major factor after the Great Recession of 2008,

TRACEY BRYAN

Southern New Mexico

but today is at the heart of labor shortages faced by employers.

Thinking differently about talent and sources of talent is no longer a "nice to have" but rather a "must have."

According to data from the New Mexico Department of Workforce Solutions, there are 0.24 available workers for every one job opening.

This is a crisis for New Mexico, as we seek to spark both economy and economic prosperity for our families.

We have talent — how do we mobilize them to step into and grow job opportunities here? How do we look at all of those in our high schools, colleges and universities and help them make the shift, too? And how do our employers think differently about jobs and talent?

Nicole Overley, senior partner with Deloitte Consulting, opened wide this window into the shifting world of work at this year's summit.

She pointed to the trends that reflected:

The Great Exhaustion, in which actual time working has increased during the pandemic, due in part to remote work, and the fact that 1.4 million women have left the workforce.

The Great Resignation, in which 14 million have left the workforce all together.

The Great Reshuffle, in which one-third of U.S. workers have moved out of their cities and almost one-half plan to apply for new jobs not near their homes.

These challenges will require great solutions, which she characterized as the future of meaningful work:

Re-architecting work from the standpoint of how to produce work outcomes through the integration of technology and valuing work.

Adapting the workplace — changes in work environment, including physical design, culture and collaboration.

Elevating the workforce, which includes thinking broadly about talent and options for workers to engage in ways like crowd sourcing, gig workers, contractors, as well as employees.

As employers are agile and able to adapt to these changes, they'll be more successful in attracting and retaining the skilled workers they need.

But it is also incumbent upon all in the education space to help our talent be ready for this seismic shift in the world of work, too.

We know exactly a core set of foundational skills required by the local employers who participated in our Industry Roundtables in 2020-21. They include:

Math Skills: adding and subtracting; multiplying and dividing; taking or interpreting measurements; using fractions, decimals and percentages.

Reading, Writing, and Language Skills: applying information that is read; correct spelling and grammar in writing; identifying main points from written content; assessing credibility of written content; reading at a reasonable speed; production of clear writing.

Employability Skills: communication; self-management; interpersonal skills; initiative; teamwork; professionalism; enthusiasm and attitude; problem solving and critical thinking.

Technology Skills: using computers and computer programs; entering data; writing and responding to emails;

using word processing programs (MS Word); adapting to and learning new technology.

Digital Literacy: evaluating the credibility of digital sources; accessing information to troubleshoot problems with technology; using digital resources to learn new skills; understanding online risks.

As our teachers, instructors and professors equip our students with these skills, and as our employers are agile and able to adapt and shift their own hiring practices and workplaces, Doña Ana County will continue to build out our "ecosystem of opportunity," ensuring our economic growth and success for the long-term.

State jobless rate struggles during recovery

FROM NM LEGISLATIVE FINANCE COMMITTEE NEWSLETTER

When Covid hit, New Mexico's unemployment did not rise as high as the rest of the country, possibly partially due to an existing elevated rate. Unemployment has remained higher than national averages since the "lost decade" of employment resulting from the 2008 financial crisis.

As of March 2022, New Mexico unemployment has dipped below pre-pandemic levels (5.3 percent vs. 5.4 percent), while the U.S. is still slightly higher than pre-pandemic levels at 3.6 percent.

During the pandemic, New Mexico's labor force, comprised of those working or seeking work, shrank dramatically by over 28,000 people, according to the University of New Mexico Bureau of Business and Economic Research. The New Mexico labor force participation rate is historically significantly lower than the rest of the U.S. and is currently 56 percent vs. the nation's 62 percent.

Experts point to early retirements, lack of childcare amid uncertain school schedules and a change in labor preferences as the main drivers of why people, disproportionately women, exited the workforce and have not returned.

New Mexico has recovered 98 percent of the jobs lost during the pandemic. With many employees exiting the labor force altogether and companies struggling to fill payrolls, some consider New Mexico at near-full employment. While unemployment remains elevated, labor shortages, especially for low-skilled jobs, are driving up wages.

As jobs recover with fewer people in the workforce, unemployment could fall below pre-pandemic levels.

Lingering high unemployment could point to a skills-jobs mismatch where the New Mexico workforce does not have skills for the industries or types of jobs seeking workers.

Staff Training is Crucial to Medical Waste Disposal

Submitted by South Central Solid Waste Authority

Everything stops when medical waste is spotted, and South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) employees become inspectors. Are there ways to identify which facility produced the medical waste from the load that brought it in?

Recently, more medical waste has come through SCSWA loads, and facilities are being charged to properly dispose of their waste by the City of Las Cruces.

"Many times, problems come from staff turnover," said Robert Gorman, SCSWA Amador Transfer Station manager. "If employees are not given the training they need, they won't know the proper disposal methods."

When SCSWA reveals improperly handled medical and infectious waste entering the regular solid waste stream, it is reported to the New Mexico Environment Department (NMED), which regulates and monitors inspections at municipal solid Medical waste has specific disposal requirements and cannot be included in regular trash because it is a biohazard. Employees of medical facilities need to make sure that waste is correctly managed before SCSWA inspects loads coming from their routes.

Finding clues of where poorly disposed medical waste came from can be as easy as an address on a box.

waste transfer stations and landfills.

Regulated medical waste and infectious waste – including but not limited to soiled, blood-stained gowns and gloves – are defined in New Mexico Solid Waste Rules 20.9.2.7 and must be disposed of in labeled red bags, not placed in the regular waste bins, and handled by specialized waste handling entities.

Medical waste is generated at health care facilities, hospitals, physicians' offices, dental practices, blood banks, veterinary hospitals/clinics, and medical research facilities and laboratories.

"We would appreciate medical facilities double-checking their training to review waste handling and disposal training for staff and custodial staff to mitigate improper handling," said Miguel Hernandez, SCSWA program administrator.

South Central Solid Waste Authority manages recyclables and solid waste for residents and businesses throughout Doña Ana County. Contact SCSWA at (575) 528-3800 or visit www.SCSWA.net.

'Stars align' for Aggie baseball to win conference tourney title

By DAVE BURGE
Las Cruces Bulletin

After an up-and-down regular season that saw them have to win their last series to even qualify for their conference tour-namment, the New Mexico State University baseball team can now call themselves champions.

The Aggies went 4-0 in the Western Athletic Conference tournament May 25-28 to win the tour-namment championship in Mesa, Arizona, and earn an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.

"The stars kind of aligned for us," NM State coach Mike Kirby said. "We felt fortunate to be in the tournament and took full advantage of it, had some fun and played some really, really good baseball."

The Aggies, 24-32 overall, beat Sam Houston 3-1, UT Rio Grande Valley 10-0, Sacramento State 7-3 and then Abilene Christian 7-1 in the winner-take-all title game.

Kirby said the team was "playing with house money" after sneaking into the tournament after taking two out of three games from Utah Valley in their final regular-season series of the year.

"I told you before we had a really good team; we were just banged up," he said.

New name, but same result at state for Organ Mountain track program

By DAVE BURGE
Las Cruces Bulletin

Track and field has always been a big deal at Organ Mountain High School.

This year was another strong one with three individual state champs and a fourth-place showing in the boys team competition at the state 5A championships May 13-14 in Albuquerque.

"Track is a big thing at this school and we have always been a top competitor at the state level and in our district," said senior James Limon, who won the state 5A title in the 400 meters with a school record time of 49.13 seconds.

"It feels good to be

COURTESY PHOTO

Organ Mountain High's James Limon, Jonathan "J.T." Torres and Shaolin Munir all won individual state 5A track titles.

part of something so big," Limon said. "Coach (David) Nuñez has been here forever and has quite a legacy. I am just happy to be under his name."

Senior Jonathan "J.T." Torres won the boys pole vault at state with a vault of 13 feet even. Sophomore Shaolin Munir, who also played softball this spring, won the girls javelin with a mark of 131-even.

"We had a very successful track season that was topped off with three state champions," Nuñez said. "Jonathan, Shaolin and James have work ethics second to none.

"What really make all three special is they are not just good track athletes, but good students and humble people," Nuñez added. "We define and measure success in our program not only in wins but improving and growing as people."

Limon was a part of two other school records at state — the 1,600 relay (third place, 3:25.13) and the 800 relay (fourth, 1:30.32).

Torres was part of the 3,200 relay which took third at state and set a new school record at 8:19.41.

Limon said the team's state meet performance was especially gratifying since it was the first year the school competed under the Organ Mountain name. The school had been known as Oñate for three decades.

"We can say we are the first state winners" for Organ Mountain, Limon said. "It's pretty cool."

Munir said she never in her wildest dreams thought she would win state when she started throwing the javelin earlier this school year.

Now, complete strangers are coming up to her and saying "congratulations."

"It's a whole new experience," she said.

Next year, Munir said she plans to go out for volleyball and softball in addition to track. As for an encore, she said she would like to one day break the state record in the javelin (142 feet, 9 inches), but first she wants to be more consistent with her form.

Torres, meanwhile, had just finished running his leg of the third-place 3,200 relay when he had to high-tail it over to the vaulting pit and compete in his individual event.

"It was pretty insane," Torres said. "My legs were super fatigued so getting on the runway (to vault) was a bit difficult."

Torres said winning state is a "pretty cool" feeling especially since he had been dreaming about it since his freshman year.

"All the early mornings and long nights, it definitely pays off," he said.

Your negative behavior on golf course can be a real downer to others

While playing a casual round of golf recently, I noticed a couple of other players becoming surly and extremely upset, throwing what amounted to temper tantrums (and clubs) when the slightest thing went wrong.

"Golfers just out having fun," I joked to one of the calmer members of the group. But sometimes angry tantrums and bad behavior of weekend golfers can be a drag on the enjoyment that others could be getting from their day of golf.

Gaining self-awareness is the only way we can actually change to improve our negative behavior and our attitudes. With the idea of raising our personal self-awareness as golfers, I have prepared a number of questions that are intended to be proactive and start you thinking. Be honest with yourself and jot down a few notes as you go along. (This is not a test.)

When things don't go so well do you typically get down on yourself?

Are you prone to get really upset and lose your temper when you get bad breaks?

When setbacks occur and misfortune strikes does it usually result in failure?

Do you find it extremely difficult to bounce back from adversity?

Do you often mentally replay and dwell on previous misplays and mistakes?

Are you too self-critical and too hard on yourself?

When things turn sour do you sometimes belittle yourself and call yourself names?

Does your inflated ego cause you to resist, or even dismiss, expert advice?

Are you someone who gets stuck in old habits and resists changing?

Do you often feel that you are powerless to influence the outcome of things you attempt?

When you feel the pressure to perform at your best do you tense up and then falter?

Is it especially difficult to have other people watching you as you play golf?

When you feel pressure and nervous tension do you notice that your thinking is clouded?

At times are you unable to stop unwanted thoughts from dominating your consciousness?

Does competition increase your muscle tension, anxiety and up chances you will choke?

Do you think you have to constantly struggle with self-confidence?

Do you believe deep down that you absolutely always must win and look good?

Are you extremely fearful of being embarrassed, being seen as inept or looking bad?

Have you had episodes of uncontrolled outbursts of anger when golfing?

Perhaps many of the above self-questions were eye-openers for you.

I'm not saying you have to be Mr. Congeniality on the golf course, but I will tell you it can be mighty discourteous to let your temper and constant complaining ruin golf for those around you.
