Legislators, state, community leaders convene for education committee

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

"How many kids are hungry tonight?" state Sen. Bill Soules, D-Doña Ana, asked the audience Wednesday night, Oct. 13, at the state Legislative Education Study Committee's (LESC) dinner at Hotel Encanto in Las Cruces. "How many kids have no place to sleep tonight?"

Because zero is not the answer to those questions, "We've still got work to do," said Soules, chair of LESC and the New Mexico Senate Education Committee.

The dinner was part of the LESC's two-day visit to Doña Ana County, which also included the LESC's October committee meeting and visits to Centennial High School, Tombaugh Elementary School, the New Mexico State University engineering complex and Hatch Valley High School.

Dinner speakers also included Lt. Gov. Howie Morales, former Gov. Susana Martinez, New Mexico Public Education Department Secretary Kurt Steinhaus and Katherine Ortega Courtney, Ph.D., co-director of the Anna Age Eight Institute (AAEI) at NMSU.

The focus of the dinner was Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACES) and their impact on "students' health, wellbeing and educational success," LESC said.

AAEI, which re-located to Las Cruces from Española in 2020, is focused on ACES prevention.

ACES is "an incredibly important topic," Steinhaus said. "We're talking about childhood abuse and neglect."

Steinhaus remembered talking to the parents of a student who had committed suicide, and the student's mother telling him, "Don't let this happen to a single other family in this country."

The child welfare system in the United States was set up to help traumatized children, Ortega Courtney said, but ACES, she said, are focused on 10 experiences children have in the home, including physical, emotional and sexual abuse; physical and emotional neglect; domestic violence and adults in the home who are dealing with substance-abuse addiction and mental health challenges or who are incarcerated.

"Trauma begets trauma," said Ortega Courtney, who said she was bullied in elementary school in Española, New Mexico. The bullying created anxiety which she continued to suffer from through high school, Ortega Courtney said.

"I was facing a bear every single day," she said. "It was incredibly unhealthy."

AAEI focuses on 10 vital services essential for surviving and thriving, she said. They include education, medical and behavioral health services, food, transportation and housing.

"Healthy communities make healthy kids," said

Soules, who has been AAEI's strongest advocate in the New Mexico Legislature.

"We can make huge impacts in our state," Ortega Courtney said. "All it takes is everyone."

The LESC visit included staff from LESC and officials from the Hunt Institute, a nonprofit based in North Carolina focused on improving education.

The dinner also included New Mexico State Auditor Brian Colon, Las Cruces Public Schools Superintendent Ralph Ramos and Doña Ana County Manager Fernando Macias.

AAEI is active in 17 of New Mexico's 33 counties she said.

AAEI "was funded by

AAEI takes its name from "Anna, Age Eight, The Data-Driven Prevention of Childhood Trauma and Maltreatment," the 2017 book that Ortega

Courtney and AAEI Co-Director Dominic Cappello co-authored. The book details the life and death of a fictional 8-year-old girl who is based on a real child Cappello and Courtney knew about while working for the New Mexico Children, Youth and Families Department. The girl was passed back and forth eight times between her mother's custody and state care before being kicked to death by her mother.

Children living in poverty count on Dress the Child to help them with new clothing and shoes and we count on the dinner to help us help them."

"This year we won't only be offering great food, attendees can also bid on unique packages on experiences, everything from a weekend in Cloudcroft to private cooking lessons to an evening in Las Vegas with David Copperfield," said co-coordinator Matt Holt.

"Our participating chefs are looking forward to showcasing their talents while interacting with our patrons in such a beautiful atmosphere," said co-coordinator and participating chef Vince Campbell, a Dress the Child volunteer for more than three decades. Do you know how to identify a natural gas leak? You might smell sulfur or rotten eggs, you may notice dirt or debris shooting up out of a hole in the ground, dead or dying vegetation in an otherwise green area, and a loud hissing or roaring sound near pipeline markers. In December, volunteers will take each child and a parent shopping at a local store. Each child will have $100 to spend on clothing; participating stores have always added more to that total, he said.

Dress the Child provided clothing to 15 needy children in 1984 (its first year). It provided clothes to more than 450 children in 2014, 466 in 2015, 487 in 2016, 581 in 2017, 627 in 2018 and 518 in 2019. Numbers dropped to 300 in 2020 and 150 in 2021 because of COVID-19, Boberg said.

Building local opportunities

RICHARD COLTHARP
From the Publisher

The young man was loosening a bolt on a small combustion engine.

He was assisted by the watchful eye and supportive voice of Nate Cooper of Renegade Construction.

I had taken their photo for the Bulletin and asked the young man what high school he attended.

"I don't," he said. "I go to Lynn Middle School."

His name was Ethan Boldman and the event was the Las Cruces Home Builders Association's Third Annual Build My Future.

I was a little surprised at Boldman's youth, as most of the 500 or more students attending Build My Future were high schoolers. But I was also glad to see him there, because young people need to see and learn this stuff.

The idea is to give young Las Cruces a little taste of work in the trades.

The event features the chance to meet working electricians, plumbers, welders, roofers, commercial contractors, painters, finishers and more. They get a little hands-on experience and a lot of great information.

Imagine the whole parking lot of Rawson Builders Supply on Nevada Avenue, filled with construction professionals, hundreds of high schoolers and dozens of projects and demonstrations. Each high school was building its own shed, each with a door in school colors.

There was hammering, drilling, painting and anything you could think of, with young people getting a few practice reps in at each stop.

At one point I stumbled upon three Organ Mountain High School students at a demonstration of wiring a home.

When Cole Sattler, a journeyman electrician superintendent with IES Residential, talked to them about the pay, and about how it can earn a young person $1,000 a week or more, it got the young men's attention.

It got my attention, too.

There are several reasons LCHBA, Las Cruces and Hatch public schools and local builders and contractors have put their support behind this project.

One, because there's already a lack of skilled workers in the building trades, and without more apprentices, the situation worsens.

Tweaks to state constitution not enough

New Mexico voters have proven eager in past elections to change our antiquated state Constitution every time they get the opportunity.

There have been 10 proposed constitutional amendments on the ballot in the last four elections, and nine of them have passed. Voters chose to dramatically remake the Public Regulation Commission in 2020, create a new ethics commission in 2018 and reform our bail system in 2016. The only proposal not to pass was in 2014 and would have required school board elections to be held separately from other partisan elections.

There will be three constitutional amendments on the ballot this year, including one to increase funding for early childhood education by taking an additional 1.25 percent each year from the Land Grant Permanent Fund. That would generate $211.5 million in fiscal year 2023, with $126.9 million going to early childhood programs and $84.6 million to public schools, according to a legislative analysis.

The primary argument against the amendment is if you increase the distribution from any fund, that will hasten its depletion. The fund gets its money from leases and royalties for oil and gas drilling on state lands. That money is then invested by the State Investment Council.

Drafters of the original provision were looking ahead to the day when oil and gas would run out, and wanted to ensure schools would still be funded. That remains a valid concern, but it's wrong to put the well-being of tomorrow's children ahead of those who are falling behind today.

WALT RUBEL
The View
From Here

The state has taken steps to improve services for children who are too young to attend public schools, including the creation of a new cabinet-level department in 2019. And they created a separate fund in 2020 for early childhood education.

They have been able to increase funding during years when the state has seen dramatic revenue growth and increased budgets. But history suggests the boom years won't last. An ongoing commitment to early childhood education requires a more permanent funding source.

There are two other proposed amendments on the ballot. One addresses what is probably the most antiquated and unnecessarily burdensome provision in our Constitution, the anti-donation clause. Under this amendment, state funds could be used for essential services like broadband internet, energy and water. We are undoubtedly the only state in the nation that requires a constitutional amendment for those simple functions of governing.

The third amendment would delay the general election for a newly appointed judge until at least one year from the appointment.

I support all three amendments, but I also think it's time we stop making tweaks every two years and finally take a hard look at our Constitution, which was written for a much slower, more agrarian society.

Two, if you can do something that does not require a college degree, and if college is not your thing, why force yourself to go and build up a lot of debt?

And three, the more career opportunities young people are exposed to, the better informed their decision on that important choice.

Plus, even if you don't do these things for a living, they are good life skills to have.

This marvelous collaboration between LCHBA, the schools and the local building community is yet another reason Life is Good in Las Cruces.

Examining election integrity

The nonpartisan League of Women Voters of Southern New Mexico supports procedures for free, fair, safe and accessible elections and encourages all citizens to be actively engaged in understanding the existing processes that support election integrity and in working to strengthen them.

What are the procedures that already provide strength and integrity in our county and state? Online registration saves money, streamlines the process for computer-savvy voters and contributes to the accuracy of voter lists in allowing voters to check and change their information at nmvote.org. Same-day voter registration happens at voting locations, where voters may also update address changes. Voter rolls are maintained continuously by the Bureau of Elections through checking obituaries, voter registration records, motor vehicle information, returned mail and Social Security records.

Once voting begins, sample ballots are also available from nmvote.org, so voters may learn about candidates, bonds and amendments before voting. Early voting dates and voter convenience centers give voters more access. Machine tabulators are programmed and certified so that voters in the county may vote in any of the voting locations. Absentee ballots do not require the voter to have an excuse and these can be tracked and returned by mail or in person. There are secure drop boxes at the voting locations. The use of paper ballots is a very important part of the voting process. Under federal law, any U.S. citizen has the right to cast a provisional ballot, used when there is a question about the voter's eligibility. These ballots are held for counting until officials determine if the vote should be accepted or not.

Machine tabulators accurately count ballots and are not connected to the internet. They are tested for function and accuracy before voting begins. Your machine tabulated ballot is safe with the paper ballot available if a recount is needed.

After local election officials examine the results, ballots are routinely reviewed by the Secretary of State's Office. A post-election audit by a qualified independent auditor is also required, with a transparent and specific process clearly spelled out in State Statutes. The auditor's reports are found on the Secretary of State's website and reveal the consistent accuracy of our election administration.

What are some additional ways elections in New Mexico could be reformed and strengthened?

Mailing ballots automatically to all registered voters increases access and participation. The state of Utah provides a good example. All-mail ballots have been used in the state for several years. According to the Salt Lake Tribune for Nov. 24, 2020, 90.1 percent of the state's registered voters cast a ballot in 2020. While turnout in New Mexico in 2020 was the largest in state history, the rate was only 69.7 percent of registered voters, according to the Las Cruces Sun-News of Jan. 26, 2022.

Using Ranked Choice Voting (RCV) changes how candidates campaign. Campaigns are more issue-focused, cost less and winners are elected with a true majority. Voters have the option to rank candidates or vote in the general manner of selecting only one candidate. For more information go to: <https://revis.com>

To learn about the 2022 candidates in their own words, go to VOTE411.org. The League's printed guides are found in the Oct. 7, 2022, Las Cruces Bulletin in English and the Camino Real Media in Spanish.

State legislators talk about record revenue

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

“I believe we’re in a once-in-a-statehood moment,” state Rep. Nathan Small, D-Doña Ana, told the Bulletin. Small is vice chair of the New Mexico House of Representatives Appropriations and Finance Committee (HAFC) and a member of the state Legislative Finance Committee (LFC).

Small said the LFC projected in August that the state budget could reach $10 billion when the legislature meets next January for a 60-day session. The current state budget is about $8.5 billion.

“We’re seeing the most revenue we’ve ever seen,” said Small, a former Las Cruces city councilor who was first elected to the New Mexico House in 2016 and re-elected in 2018 and 2020. In 2022, he faces Republican Kimberly Skaggs in the House District 36 race.

Record budget growth will allow the state “to continue to invest in New Mexico across so many areas,” Small said. During this year’s legislative session, legislators removed most state taxes on Social Security, lowered gross receipts taxes and increased basic educator pay, he said. Most state residents also received a $500 stimulus check from the state last summer.

Water research

The state is continuing to expand health care access, including behavioral health, and make it more affordable, Small said, and is investing more in infrastructure and renewable energy development. New Mexico is also making “historic investments” in water and water shed restoration, Small said, including finding ways to access previously unusable sources of water, like New Mexico State University brackish-water research and reclaiming billions of gallons of water used in oil and gas production.

“New Mexico’s historic budget surplus will continue to allow us to make strategic investments in needed areas like infrastructure, affordable housing, and behavioral health while also creating new opportunities to help New Mexicans and grow our economy,” said state Sen. Jeff Steinborn, D-Doña Ana, a member of the state Senate Finance Committee and the LFC. “This could include investing in emerging areas like expanding outdoor recreation and the creative economy, and clean energy and climate resiliency. Given the historic volatility of oil and gas prices and its corresponding fluctuation on state revenues, it’s important that any funding commitments made are sustainable in the future,” Steinborn said.

‘Return to the taxpayer’

“When it comes to excess revenue, we should treat it as such and return to the taxpayer what is rightfully theirs,” said state Sen. Crystal Diamond, R-Sierra, Luna, Hidalgo, Doña Ana. “In 2022, Republicans led the effort to send rebate checks to the citizens of New Mexico and we should do the same next year. We also have a historic opportunity to fix our aging infrastructure, particularly in southern New Mexico. This will allow us to capitalize on future opportunities for growth and put us in a better position to diversify our local economies,” Diamond said.

“This is a unique opportunity to put vital funds back into our communities,” said state Sen. Ron Griggs, R-Otero, Eddy, Doña Ana. “Lasting change can only be achieved when our infrastructure scales with our economy. Right now, we have shovel-ready projects across southern New Mexico in desperate need of investment. I intend to push hard to make sure our local governments are ready to jump on this growth opportunity when it arises.”

Community impact

“The legislature is setting its budget priorities for 2023 coming legislative session, which begins Jan. 17, said state Rep. Patricia Lundstrom, D-Gallup, San Juan, who is chair of HFAC and LFC.

Those priorities will include “backfilling anything we’ve had to cut in the past,” Lundstrom said, along with public education, public safety and infrastructure issues, including road improvements, water and wastewater and telecommunications – “the kind of thing that has immediate impact on a community.”

As chair of HAFC and LFC, Lundstrom said she has appointed subcommittees to look at other initiatives that will be part of the LFC’s state budget proposal for 2023, including health, capital outlay, higher education and “anything regarding wild-fire issues,” she said.

Lundstrom said the final budget could again include a direct payment to state residents, “putting some dollars in the pockets of New Mexicans.”

Lundstrom said it is important that HAFC and LFC include legislators who “come from all over the state.” Small, she said, “provides a very unique perspective to make sure you guys (southern New Mexico) are represented.”

‘Grow our economy’

“New Mexico’s historic budget surplus will continue to allow us to make strategic investments in needed areas like infrastructure, affordable housing, and behavioral health while also creating new opportunities to help New Mexicans and grow our economy,” said state Sen. Jeff Steinborn, D-Doña Ana, who is also a member of the state Senate Finance Committee and the LFC. “This could include investing in emerging areas like expanding outdoor recreation and the creative economy, and clean energy and climate resiliency. Given the historic volatility of oil and gas prices and its corresponding fluctuation on state revenues, it’s important that any funding commitments made are sustainable in the future.”

The budget increase is because New Mexico is “seeing strength across many different sectors of the economy,” Small said.

The state’s oil and gas production has increased dramatically since the onset of COVID-19 and Russia’s invasion of Ukraine.

“New Mexico production has increased at a critical time for the world,” Small said.

‘Beyond rebuilding’

With legislators of both parties working collaboratively, the legislature can use the budget surplus “to go beyond rebuilding” behavioral health services in New Mexico to make them the strongest in the Southwest, Small said, ensure that local and state law enforcement officers are well paid, well trained and well equipped; and invest more in higher education across the state.

“We can afford to do this in ways we never have before,” Small said.

A proposed amendment to the state constitution that would allocate state Permanent Fund revenue to early childhood education is “the right investment,” Small said, and could help make New Mexico “the best state in the Southwest to start and raise a family. Investing in kids is the right thing to do,” he said.

Spending the state’s money wisely and making sure its budget is secure into the foreseeable future is an “incredible responsibility” the legislature must live up to, Small said.

“Leadership is so key,” he said. Having a “voice for southern New Mexico” on the House Appropriations Committee who is directly involved in crafting the state budget is critical “at a time when we have the most resources in our history,” he said.

A local illegal dumping partnership could be the model for statewide initiatives. The Doña Ana County Illegal Dumping Partnership (IDP) is a multi-agency task force founded to help combat illegal dumping throughout Doña Ana County (DAC). Committed to increasing public health and safety and keeping our desert beautiful, IDP is a concept that might work its way up to northern New Mexico.

Patrick Peck, director of South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA), was asked to present information about IDP to the state's legislative land-grant subcommittee in September. "After my presentation, there was a panel discussion on adopting a similar model and on other solid waste management issues in general," said Peck.

As SCSWA covers 10 percent of the state's population, Peck admits illegal dumping in rural areas is entirely different than in urban communities. "In urban areas, it is simply about illegal use of commercial dumpsters," he said. "In rural areas, it's about the public disposal of waste on open land. The desert is convenient, and residents might feel like they lack facility access to dispose of material properly. And, they want to avoid paying for it."

Partnerships Critical to Address Illegal Dumping

However, creating a multi-agency partnership can pool limited resources to develop a program combatting illegal dumping. IDP was created in 2011 between the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), SCSWA, and DAC. Each member could pledge different resources: BLM helped with labor, funding, and enforcement; DAC helped with codes, mapping, community groups, and political support; and SCSWA helped with discounted tipping fees, hauling, and equipment.

"Labor is the biggest obstacle, which is why you want residents, volunteers, and civic groups, but also local businesses, involved," he said. SCSWA offers a 50% reduction in tipping fees for IDP activities.

Between 2011 and 2021, the IDP cleaned up over 3,873,000 pounds of trash in Doña Ana County. In 2022 so far, it's been 151,140 pounds. "Illegal dumping is a statewide issue," said Peck. "Sharing resources, ideas, and successes only strengthens the state and makes illegal dumping harder."

Americans and health: the continuing paradox

Americans have an incredibly complicated relationship with their physical and mental health.

Some of us don't exercise at all; some of us obsess over exercise and overdo it. Some of us save all our exercise for the weekend, and wake up Monday sore or injured.

We know what kinds of foods are bad for us, but eat them anyway. We know what kinds of foods are good for us, and avoid them like the plague.

From our head to our toes, there are things that can go wrong with our bodies, and we want to know who can help fix us. At the same time, there are a million things we can do to prevent health issues, and we want to know who can help us do that.

The articles in this special section certainly don't cover all the aspects of health in the Mesilla Valley; they don't even cover a few. But they give you a glimpse of some health-related things going on in Las Cruces, and some ideas that might apply to your situation, or that of your friends and family.

Wishing you the best of health,

“Hearing loss doesn’t discriminate,” Expert Hearing Care (EHC) of Las Cruces audiologist Dr. Allie Lambert said.

Although the tipping point for hearing loss is often “aging-related changes to the auditory system,” owner and audiologist Dr. Kelly Churchill said, EHC has clients from infancy to 105 years old.

A baseline hearing test is the starting point for every client, Churchill said.

That test will determine if there is hearing loss, how significant it is and what steps can be taken to address it, Churchill and Lambert said.

The test can also identify tinnitus (persistent ringing in one or both ears), cerumen (earwax) buildup and other issues that may affect the quality of hearing.

In addition to aging, hearing loss can be caused by heredity, disease and prolonged or even one-time exposure to high-decibel sounds like fireworks, gunshots and loud music.

Approximately 15 percent of American adults (40 million) aged 18 and over report some trouble hearing, according to the National Institute on Deafness and Other Communication Disorders (NIDOCOD).

Age is the strongest predictor of hearing loss among adults aged 20-69, with the greatest amount of hearing loss in the 60-69 age group, NIDOCOD said. Men are almost twice as likely as women to have hearing loss among adults aged 20-69, and non-Hispanic white adults are more likely than adults in other racial/ethnic groups to have hearing loss.

The institute also reported that fewer than one-third of adults aged 70 and older who could benefit from using a hearing aid had ever used one. The percentage is about half that for adults ages 20-69.

For many people,

Churchill said, hearing loss may come on so slowly that they aren’t even aware of it. Indicators include finding yourself frequently asking others to repeat what they have said.

Churchill’s husband, Chris Churchill, a professor in the Astronomy Department at New Mexico State University, said he began experiencing hearing loss in his 30s, probably as a result of exposure to loud music.

When there was a lot of background noise, Chris said he “would lose all speech clarity,” and found himself withdrawing from conversations to avoid embarrassment.

For Chris, the answer was a hearing aid.

“It opened the world up to me,” he said.

In addition to improving communication and relationships, a hearing aid can also help with cognitive issues that can be negatively impacted by hearing loss like memory and reasoning, Kelly Churchill said, along with balance.

Chris Churchill said he wears his hearing aid all the time “because it keeps my brain healthier.”

Heart disease remains major health issue in New Mexico

BY MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Heart disease remains the No. 1 health condition in America, and one of the biggest causes of death in the country and, according to the New Mexico Department of Health, the leading killer in our state.

These are all reasons it makes sense to make a visit with a heart doctor if you have symptoms or a family history of heart problems.

One such local physician is Dr. Lookman Lawal, the founder and chief medical officer of ASC of the Heart Institute, 1250 N. Sonoma Ranch Blvd. Lawal is board certified in cardiology and in cardiac electrophysiology, the branch of cardiology that deals with the treatment of heart rhythm disorder. Lawal provides preventive and all other aspects of cardiac care for his patients, he said.

DR. LOOKMAN LAWAL

Individual counseling provided by Lawal helps patients deal with high blood pressure, obesity, smoking and other issues that can stress the heart, Felton said. An electrocardiogram (EKG), which records the electrical signal from the heart, is often a good start, said the institute's director of nursing, Jared Felton. Next steps can include a stress test and a discussion of a person's lifestyle choices and any history of heart disease in his or her family.

doctor, who can then make a referral to Lawal to continue that discussion and recommend healthy lifestyle changes or medical procedures, if necessary.

Physical therapy, fitness, breathing, balance

BY MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

“Clinic balance technology is used to measure reaction strategies for NMSU athletes,” said Southwest Sport and Spine Center (SSSC) Director of Sports Medicine David Gallegos. “This helps provide insight into performance needs and baselines to measure return to normal after injuries.”

Since becoming a part of the FTBC franchise in 2017, SSSC has become a primary care provider for musculoskeletal disorders, which include tendinitis, carpal tunnel syndrome, arthritis, fibromyalgia and recovery from bone fractures.

Equipment at SSSC can detect inner-ear, vision, joint and flexibility issues that could contribute to balance, falls and injuries. In many cases, she said, issues can be reversed within a few weeks using simple exercises that the patient can do at home.

Aquatic therapy is available to treat injuries and health issues like strokes, arthritis and recent surgeries for which weight-bearing exercises are not practical.

With major scientific advances in the last decade, physical therapy and fitness are about the whole person, SSSC found Denise Campbell said, including heart-rate variability, the autonomic nervous system, the immune system, carbon dioxide levels and brain chemistry.

SSSC staff are doing work in breathing science that is not going on anywhere else in the country, Campbell said.

SSSC breathing technician Paola Quiroz helps patients deal with a wide her own family – and they are helping the 22-year-old deal with the knee and hip issues she has had for the past nine years.

“For me, it’s literally life changing,” Quiroz said. “It has opened my eyes to so many other aspects of being a health care worker. There’s a lot you can do, and we can guide you.”

Campbell’s advice to busy people taking care of families, jobs and homes: “Spend time on yourself.” It is easier to not lose it (good health) then lose it completely and never get it back,” she said.

11:30 a.m. on KVIA
Formula 1 Racing

The Formula 1 series makes its first of two fall stops in North America as Austin, Texas, plays host to the United States Grand Prix. A field including Lewis Hamilton, Max Verstappen, Charles Leclerc and George Russell will take to the Circuit of the Americas, a 20-turn, 3.426-mile configuration that boasts plenty of elevation changes and a long straight that offers prime opportunities for overtaking. Verstappen is the race's defending champion.

7 p.m. on KFOX
The Simpsons

Ahh, the simple joys of youth: laughter in the park, flirting with cuties, and being chased by a horrific homicidal clown who wants nothing more than to gut you like a fish on a camping trip. In this "Treehouse of Horror" Halloween episode, a young Homer (voice of Dan Castellana) and his teenage friends are pursued by a diabolical circus employee in a spoof of Stephen King's novel "It" in the new episode "Not It." Julie Kavner, Nancy Cartwright, Yeardley Smith, Hank Azaria and Harry Shearer are also heard.

7 p.m. on HISTORY
The Toys That Built America

The Slinky might be a "fun and wonderful toy," but it was actually designed to help secure equipment to Navy ships during World War II. Interesting, right? Using the backdrop of major events in American history such as the Civil War and the Great Depression, this series premiere shares a completely different story — one that brings new products and nostalgic toys to the forefront as driving forces behind untold cultural and economic shifts.

8 p.m. on FOOD
Outrageous Pumpkins

But at what point will there be pie? The final four carvers duke it out to earn the title of "Outrageous Pumpkins" Champion in the Season 3 finale episode "Gourd Games." First, host Sunny Anderson challenges them to create a larger-than-life children's toy with a nightmarish spin. Then, the carvers must create a sinister depiction of a popular playground pastime. Special guest Maneet Chauhan joins judges Paul Dever and Terri Hardin to decide which carver takes home the grand prize.

8:30 p.m. on SUNDANCE
Movie: Our American Family

Addiction impacts the lives of not only the afflicted, but everyone around them. This 2021 documentary is an honest, unfiltered look at the close-knit Calabiano family that impacted by generational substance abuse. Captured at a pivotal "nothing to lose/everything at stake" year-long period, five family members tired of life with addiction on center stage struggle to transcend their crippling histories. What will it take for the family to break the cycle of addiction to help their next generation?

9 p.m. on KDBC
NCIS: Los Angeles

Callen (Chris O'Donnell), Hanna (LL Cool J) and Hetty (Linda Hunt) join forces with the FBI when a group of grisly murderers known as "The Body Stitchers" returns after evading capture by NCIS years ago in the new episode "The Body Stitchers." Also, Sam's dad (Richard Gant) makes a new friend in Arkady (Vyto Ruginis). Daniela Ruah, Eric Christian Olsen, Medallion Rahimi and Caleb Castille also star.

10 p.m. on HBO
House of the Dragon

In the Season 1 finale episode "The Black Queen," generational tensions continue to rise in House Targaryen's dynasty and dragon power in Westeros, but just who will we be sending sympathy cards to? If you read "Fire & Blood" you might already have a guess, but for those who have not, expect the unexpected. Stars include Paddy Considine, Matt Smith, Olivia Cooke, Emma D'Arcy and Rhys Ifans.

tonight's picks

6 p.m. on LIFE
Married at First Sight

It's finally time for the couples to take control of their marriages and their futures as they make the decision to stay married or get a divorce. But as they prepare to move forward from the unusual experiment, a shocking realization leads one couple to reverse their decision in the two-hour Season 15 finale episode "This Was Supposed to Be Our New Start."

7 p.m. on KRWG
Nature

In the new episode "Canada: Surviving the Wild North," nature is a big part of Canada's identity — big animals and dramatic landscapes that make up the world's second largest country by landmass. This episode tells a series of stories about survival, where timing and opportunity can mean the difference between life and death. From its size and scale to its geology and climate and its position on Earth, Canada is unique.

7 p.m. on KVIA
The Conners

It's Halloween at the Conners house, and Dan (John Goodman) encourages the family to decorate the house in preparation of trick or treaters. When everyone is feeling too busy and overwhelmed to help, Becky (Lecy Goranson) tries to take matters into her own hands. Meanwhile, Harris (Emma Kenney) takes a stand on an issue that ruffles a few feathers in Darlene's (Sara Gilbert) new neighborhood in the new episode "Book Bans and Guillotine Hands."

8 p.m. on IFC
Documentary Now!

Paying homage to documentaries "3 Salons at the Seaside" and "The September Issue," the new episode "Two Hairdressers in Bagglyport," is a fly-on-the-wall portrait of a hair salon owner (Harriet Walter) and her staff (Cate Blanchett), in the small coastal village of Bagglyport as they prepare their yearly stylebook. The episode was written by series co-creator Seth Meyers and will also star Fred Armisen as George the Postman.

“Movie: Downton Abbey: A New Era”

The cast of the landmark series reunites for this feature-length drama that follows them as they venture to the South of France to uncover the mystery behind the Dowager Countess' recently inherited villa. Hugh Bonneville, Michelle Dockery, Jim Carter, Joanne Froggatt and Elizabeth McGovern star for director Simon Curtis (“My Week With Marilyn,” “The Art of Racing in the Rain”). (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: The Thomas Crown Affair”

Style is everything in the original 1968 version of this sophisticated crime story, casting Steve McQueen as an urbane Boston millionaire who masterminds bank robberies for kicks. Faye Dunaway plays the insurance investigator determined to get the goods on him — but she doesn't count on surrendering her emotions in the process. Director Norman Jewison's cast also includes Paul Burke, Jack Weston and Yaphet Kotto.

“Hondo”

John Wayne met 3D when this 1953 Western played in theaters, but even without that process, it stands as one of the Duke's more solid offerings. Directed by John Farrow, the saga makes Wayne's title character the guardian of a widow (Geraldine Page) and her young son (Lee Aaker, “The Adventures of Rin Tin Tin”) when they're caught between Apache factions. James Arness and Ward Bond co-star.

“Movie: Run Sweetheart Run”

Ella Balinska (“Charlie's Angels”) stars in this 2022 thriller about a single mother who runs for her life through the streets of Los Angeles when her seemingly charming blind date turns violent. Shohreh Aghdashloo, Pilou Asbaek, Clark Gregg and Aml Ameen are also in the cast for director Shana Feste (“Country Strong,” “Endless Love”).

"Nope"

"NOPE"

The latest thriller from Oscar-winning filmmaker Jordan Peele reunites him with his "Get Out" star Daniel Kaluuya, who's joined by Keke Palmer in playing siblings who inherit their father's ranch but run into problems maintaining it. A bizarre phenomenon clues them into the presence of a UFO-resembling alien force that ingests anything that looks straight at it, making matters deadly for everyone in the vicinity. Brandon Perea, Michael Wincott, Steven Yeun, Keith David, Chris Kattan and television veteran Donna Mills also are featured. Writer-director Peele has said that he devised the film to address his concerns about the future direction of cinema, based on what audiences mostly have gone for in recent years. DVD extras: three "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; outtakes. ★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray, 4K Ultra HD, Digital and On Demand)

"THE INVITATION"

Inspired by the classic horror tale "Dracula," this effectively moody thriller stars Nathalie Emmanuel ("Game of Thrones") as a woman who uses a DNA kit she acquires to research her family's history. Her probe reveals her existence to a relative, who invites her to England to meet other others in their clan – but what she eventually finds is terror, as the vampirish nature of certain individuals reveals itself, showing a definite lineage to the Bram Stoker story that was the creative basis here. Thomas Doherty, Sean Pertwee and Hugh Skinner also star in the film ... which fared well, relatively speaking, given how the theatrical box office has been lately. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray, Digital and On Demand)

"THE USUAL SUSPECTS"

Christopher McQuarrie earned an Oscar for his enormously clever script for this 1995 melodrama, newly available in the 4K Ultra HD format. Kevin Spacey also won an Academy Award as one of several crooks brought together to be questioned as suspects in a crime that none is guilty of. The five men then decide to get even with the police officers who detained them, but their scheme is complicated by a mystery man named Keyser Soze, to whom they supposedly are indebted. Director Bryan Singer's top-notch ensemble cast also includes Gabriel Byrne, Stephen Baldwin, Benicio del Toro and Kevin Pollak as the other members of the central quintet, and Chazz Palminteri as a U.S. Customs agent deeply involved in the interrogating; Pete Postlethwaite, Suzy Amis and Giancarlo Esposito are featured as well. ★★★★★ (R: AS, P, V)

"HOGAN'S HEROES: THE COMPLETE SERIES"

Even to this day, a comedy series about a World War II POW camp might seem questionable to become a hit, but that's just what happened to this 1965-71 CBS show, produced by Bing Crosby's company and a favorite of nostalgia-driven networks in more recent years. Bob Crane has the title role of a savvy U.S. Army colonel who organizes his fellow prisoners to execute a variety of schemes meant to help other wartime captives. The group takes delight in confounding strict Col. Klink (Werner Klemperer) and his buffoonish aide Sgt. Schultz (John Banner), with actual history getting more-than-occasional revisions as Hogan and his group aim to dismantle Nazi strategies. Richard Dawson, Robert Clary, Ivan Dixon and Larry Hovis play Hogan's chief comrades in the sitcom, which didn't air on German television until many years later ... with much of the dialogue rewritten to make the characters even more comical. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, V)

"RAY DONOVAN: THE COMPLETE SERIES"

Title star Liev Schreiber got a solid seven-season run – plus a sequel movie – out of this impressively cast Showtime drama series about a fixer who might be skilled at helping to solve other people's problems, but isn't as well-equipped to handle his own troubles. Many of those are family-related, particularly in the case of Ray's rough-around-the-edges extra-con father Mickey (Jon Voight), in whose activities the FBI is keenly interested ... prompting Ray to move gingerly in accomplishing his missions but not being brought down in the course of that investigation. Paula Malcomson, Eddie Marsan, Dash Mihok, Steven Bauer, Katherine Moennig and Kerris Dorsey also are in the regular cast; Susan Sarandon, Elliott Gould, Wendell Pierce, Alan Alda, Stacy Keach and Lisa Bonet are among guest stars. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V)

Checking in with

MARCIA GAY HARDEN

A lot of what Marcia Gay Harden knows about being a parent is going into her latest television role.

The Oscar and Tony Award winner has returned to weekly work as an attorney who has her doubts about hiring her questionable-detective son (played by Skylar Astin) to be her firm's investigator in "So Help Me Todd," CBS' new Thursday comedy-drama. As she mixes moments of differing tones, Harden is finding – and adding – much that's familiar to her character, Margaret Wright.

"I'm fairly strict," says the mother of three (including twins), "but I've learned over the years to just be tolerant. As the kids grow up, they blossom into who they are, and I think it's a lesson that Margaret needs to learn. I say to my kids, 'Look. If you fall in love with a giraffe, just bring the giraffe home for Thanksgiving.' I just care about family. That's the kind of mom I am."

As for Todd, Harden doesn't consider him "a ne'er-do-well, because I think he means super-well. What Margaret really wants him to do is to be responsible, so they have this whole wonderful battle between the millennials and my generation, where those ideas of responsibility and the ideas of how you show up in society aren't necessarily reflected in the new generation.

"Margaret's really fighting for him to pay his bills, get out of bed, go to work in the morning," adds Harden. "And the good thing is, he is. He's doing all those things. I think part of her journey is that she has to learn to see him for who he is, and let him be who he is."

Patient Success is Our Success

Damian Meza

That Tuesday started like any other for Damian Meza. At 5:30 am, he got on his motorcycle and left for work. But Damian never got to his job because an oncoming car cut off his bike.

Two days later, Damian woke up in the hospital, remembering nothing and experiencing extreme back pain. But he woke up. That fact was huge for Damian's family, who counted the days, hours, minutes, and seconds to see his eyes again.

Though this was leaps and bounds of progress, the lifelong injuries Damian sustained in the accident would drastically change his way of life. Damian suffered a spinal cord injury, among other traumatic injuries, in the crash. Nurses told Damian that he would spend the rest of his life with paraplegia and no hope of moving his lower limbs again.

This news crushed Damian. As an avid car lover and racer, how could Damian ever do what he loves again without the use of his legs?

After spending 29 days in the hospital, Damian transferred to the Rehabilitation Hospital of Southern New Mexico. There, for the first time since his accident, Damian began to feel hope. This hope took the form of Cooper and Linda (aka Mama Linda), Damian's therapists at RHSNM and his biggest cheerleaders during his rehab stay.

When he first arrived at RHSNM, Damian couldn't even sit straight up in bed. But by his discharge day, Damian sat perfectly upright and with a wide-eyed smile. Cooper and Mama Linda had taught Damian not to lose faith. They helped him find the motivation he needed each day and celebrated every win with him, big or small. Before leaving the hospital, Damian made sure to express his gratitude to them for all they helped him achieve.

Through the experience, Damian saw an already tight family increase their support for him tenfold. His dad has a new understanding of the spine, the body, and how our entire body works together. Both of Damian's parents are very hands-on with helping him out.

Damian discharged from rehab 65 days after his crash, excited to just "be." To be in his own home. To be with his family and friends. To be with his dog. And, of course, to get back to the car he loves -- a Camaro, to be exact. Damian also looks forward to returning to the "Syn Club," a car club of which he is the president. The whole time he was hospitalized, the club worked to support Damian by fundraising to help with his medical bills and associated expenses.

Though Damian's life has changed, he refuses to let his spinal cord injury define him or his life. "You can drive a modified car with your hands," Damian noted, adding, "You can use ramps as your friends." Lowe's and members of the Moose Lodge graciously and generously supplied materials to build a custom ramp and Damian's home, too.

With the mindset of "I am me, I am not my injury," Damian is taking a saying from Cooper and Mama Linda: "Miracles do happen." He is determined to have full balance and beyond motivated to walk. Someday, Damian also hopes to get back to his work. With his family and his extended car club family, Damian believes "anything is possible when you don't give up!"

FYI+ receives 'transformative' financial grant

BULLETIN REPORT

Families and Youth Innovations Plus (FYI+) of Las Cruces has received a nearly $4 million grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) "to transition into New Mexico's first certified community behavioral health clinic (CCBHC), FYI+ said in a news release.

"In 2021, our team reimaged, recharged and rebranded our agency as FYI+," CEO Brian Kavanaugh said. "Today, we accept this transformative award from SAMHSA that will strengthen our responsive, collaborative efforts and impact by increasing access to and availability of a comprehensive range of quality behavioral health and community-based services in our region, which it wholeheartedly deserves."

BRIAN KAVANAUGH

Kavanaugh said the grant will mean eight-10 new hires at the onset, and that number could double or triple "as the model is built over the coming year and beyond," he said.

The central operation of CCBHC will be housed at FYI+'s main office at 1320 S. Solano Drive, Kavanaugh said.

FYI+ received SAMHSA funding for its grant submission "Advancing Care in Southern New Mexico through CCBHC Implementation," which indicated that one-third of the region's residents need mental health services, and 30 percent of those residing in colonias identify a need for mental health support, FYI+ said, citing a New Mexico State University Center for Community Analysis September 2020 report.

"Knowing that we played a role in FYI+'s growth and the region's increased capacity for behavioral health support is why we do what we do," said Janet Mendoza, a senior strategist for the Incite Network, which has offices in Las Cruces and El Paso and helps health and human services organizations and others with strategic planning, program design and fund development, according to www.incite-network.com.

FYI+ said the grant is "strongly supported" by New Mexico Human Services Department's Behavioral Health Services Division (BHSD) Director Neal A. Bowen.

"The CCBHC model is considered as the 'gold standard' of delivery system transformation, according to the National Council for Mental Wellbeing," Kavanaugh said. "The award from SAMSHA was simply not possible without the countless contributions and the high level of passion, commitment and dedication the FYI+ team has provided to our community throughout the years.

"The CCBHC model reinforces and accelerates our drive to continuously strengthen the care continuum, focus heavily on person- and family-centered integrated services and collaborative efforts across sectors and organizations, and to not only expand the number and variety of services available, but to make certain the services that are available are provided in a timely manner," he said.

"Additionally, the CCBHC model allows for FYI+ to build a comprehensive delivery system of care in a financially sustainable manner, which will enhance our ability to recruit, retain and train and develop a strong workforce," he said. "Building out the CCBHC model at FYI+ will bring more opportunity for all of us to better understand, influence and change social inequities in health care and related support services and serve our community better."

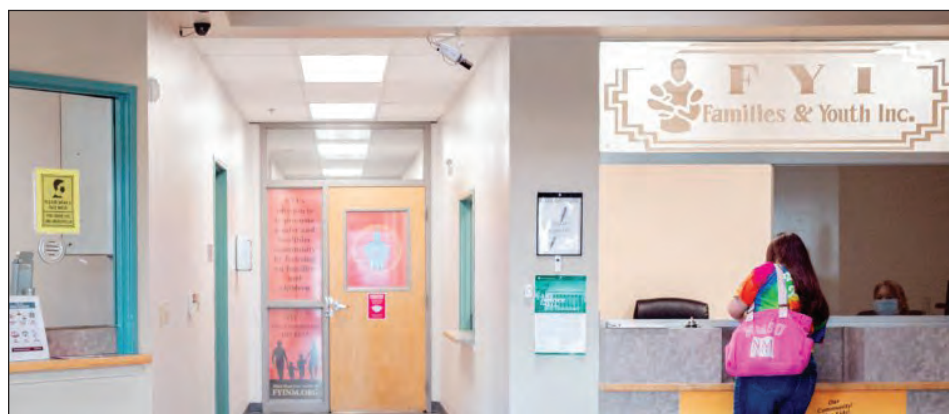

"We were awarded this grant because our application demonstrated the highest levels of readiness and capacity to participate in the CCBHC certification process,"

Kavanaugh said. "The award does not instantaneously make us a CCBHC; what it does is provide us the funding and technical assistance from SAMSHA and the state to work towards certification and ultimately become a 'certified community behavioral health clinic.'"

FYI+ offers a wide range of community-based services to children, young adults and families, including its summer food program, therapy programs, housing and shelter resources and child well-being supports. The nonprofit began service in 1977.

Memory care program staff member has four legs, big heart

BY MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

An unexpected staff member at the Village at Northrise (VaN) Memory Support Program is a six-year-old lab mix named Tusk, an emotional support animal (“resident dog”).

Tusk was being fostered from the Animal Service Center of the Mesilla Valley by Starr “Foster” Schneider when the program’s resident care director, Bonnie Zeiler, met him for the first time Dec. 27.

“It was an instant hit,” said Zeiler, who adopted Tusk the next day and took him to VaN. “We didn’t look at any other dogs,” she said. “His eyes just told me he was the one.”

Tusk, a six-year-old lab mix, is an emotional support animal

VaN’s memory care program residents and the staff have fallen in love with the sweet-tempered and intelligent dog, who doesn’t bite, jump or bark.

Tusk has two beds at VaN, including one in Zeiler’s office, where he stays during residents’ mealtimes. Otherwise, with residents sharing food with him in addition to his regular meals, Tusk “would be as big as a bus,” Zeiler said.

Throughout the day, Tusk follows the staff around, visiting residents.

“He goes from room to room,” Zeiler said, often helping to get residents up first thing in the morning.

“It makes such a difference to our residents,” Zeiler said. “It’s helpful for everybody, especially people with dementia. It helps to bring a little normalcy to their day,” she said.

He’s also very popular with residents’ loved ones and other visitors to the center, Zeiler said.

“It blesses the residents and their families,” Zeiler said. “He gets a lot of love. It’s really a benefit for all of us.”

State offers reporting for dementia sufferers

“Persons with dementia are vulnerable to abuse and exploitation,” the New Mexico Aging and Long-Term Services Department (NMALTS) said on its website, which allows people to file reports and provides useful information.

The intake form is at nmaging.state.nm.us/protecting-adults/senior-protective-services. Or visit nmaging.state.nm.us/ and click on “PROTECTING ADULTS” and “Senior Protective Services.”

The website also includes Silver Alert, “a notification sent out statewide, similar to an Amber Alert, if a loved one goes missing, is an endangered person 50 years or older or an endangered person with a clear indication the individual suffers from Alzheimer’s disease or another form of dementia, of any age.”

The website has links to NMALTS Long-Term Care Ombudsman program advocates “for the civil and human rights of residents in long-term care facilities,” including one in Las Cruces who can be reached at 1-800-762-8690.

The website also offers live chat, and links to information from the Alzheimer’s Association.

To report abuse, neglect or exploitation, call Adult Protective Services Statewide Intake at 1-866-654-3219.

Annual textile sale to benefit Maya youth

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The eighth annual Textile Sale to Benefit Maya Youth will be 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Oct. 28-29, in the lobby of the NMSU Museum, in Kent Hall on the NMSU campus, 1280 E. University Ave. in Las Cruces.

This year's sale features wearable donations, including huipils (blouses), men's shirts, jackets, shawls, ponchos, scarves, hats and all kinds of shoulder- and handbags, said event coordinator Christine Eber.

"Sixty donors have made the fundraiser possible by sending textiles and other items from Latin America that they have collected over the years and want to pass on for a good cause,"

Eber said.

The event will include a presentation by anthropologist Carol Hendrickson, who will talk about the work she has been doing in Guatemala since the 1970s. Hendrickson was one of the founding donors to Weaving for Justice's textile project and former president of the board of The Maya Educational Foundation (MEF).

"Weaving for Justice welcomes donations at any time to sell at our store on the third Saturday of the month and on the Weaving for Justice Instagram account," she said.

"If people would like to see additional donations (during the textile sale), such as table coverings, clay figures and books, a volunteer will be on hand to take them to our store at First Christian Church," Eber said.

Proceeds from the sale go to scholarships for Maya youth. Through a partnership with MEF, Weaving for Justice is a volunteer, nonprofit "working in solidarity with Maya women's weaving cooperatives in highland Chiapas, Mexico," according to the Weaving for Justice website. MEF was founded in 1992 "to help the Maya people who had suffered so much in the 36-year-long violent civil war in Guatemala."

"Each year, more and more children and youth in Belize, Chiapas and Guatemala are pursuing their dreams of an education thanks to our textile donors and MEF," Eber said.

Last year's Weaving for Justice textile sale included 53 donors and raised $10,000, she said.

This year, the Las Cruces Barnes & Noble is partnering with the Children's Reading Alliance, whose mission is to engage families and the community to promote children's literacy in Doña Ana County (CRA). Through programs such as "Read with a Child Every Day" and First Teacher/Primer Maestro, CRA works to put books in the hands of children and families. Last year, Barnes & Noble customers and booksellers provided more than 1.4 million books.

Young at Heart has free concert Oct. 27

BULLETIN REPORT

The Young at Heart Chorus will present a free concert of old songs with an “Americana” theme, at 2 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27, in the Good Samaritan auditorium, 3011 Buena Vida Circle.

Songs will include “When the Saints Go Marching In,” “South of the Border,” “Tumbling Tumbleweeds,” “Tie a Yellow Ribbon” and many more, chorus chair and co-director Ray Scroggins said in a news release.

Young at Heart entertains residents of assisted living and nursing homes in the Las Cruces area. The group has been in continuous operation since 1972, with the name of the group, the director, piano accompanist and venues changing through the years, Scroggins said.

There are currently about 25 members who practice two or three times and sing at four facilities each month. Music changes monthly, selected from a large collection of old songs, generally favorites of the audience and the chorus, he said. Programs are enhanced by varying the themes and by highlighting the talents of individual members with vocal solos or duets, group harmony, and instrumental accompaniment, Scroggins said. For information, contact Scroggins at 575-524-0511 and RScrogginsNM@gmail.com.

LCU Streamlines Solid Waste Repair Process by Welcoming Fleet Crew

By Cassie McClure

Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) focuses on enhancing efficiency at all levels. For its Solid Waste line of business, being more efficient meant looking at one of its most used and most repaired resources – its trucks. Staff under the City of Las Cruces (City) Fleet line of business had previously repaired these trucks. To make in-house fixes more cohesive and efficient and save money, those fleet employees have been welcomed as new yet highly experienced members of the LCU team.

“The operational decision was made to move the Solid Waste Fleet program under the Utilities Department to streamline the process,” said LCU Deputy Director Solid Waste Carl Pierce. Three mechanics, a welder, an interim Solid Waste fleet supervisor, a parts supply clerk, and vehicle service worker moved to work directly under LCU in August. “As we continue to face economic times of rising inflation, the cost for parts, and the parts shortage, it is meaningful to review workflow to make operative changes that enhance the department’s efficiency,” said Pierce. He anticipates new opportunities to use advanced machinery and train staff to work on specialized equipment in the Solid Waste fleet shop. “The leadership of both the City Manager, who manages the City’s entire fleet, and the LCU administration supported moving the fleet for them to be the most effective while saving time and the potential cost of repairs,” he said. “We have dedicated staff with years of experience that ensures the repair of refuse trucks and equipment are ready for the Solid Waste staff,” said LCU Interim Solid Waste Fleet Supervisor Adrian Carabajal. “The staff has supported the change, and the merger seems like a natural progression, with good things to come.”

Diven leads Portrait Tour

BULLETIN REPORT

The Doña Ana Arts Council (DAAC) will host “A Portrait Tour” by award-winning Las Cruces artist and portraitist Bob Diven 4-5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, at DAAC, 205 W. Amador Ave., suite B.

Tickets are $10 each, two for $15 and half price for students.

“In addition to being an artist and a painter, Bob Diven, who was selected as one of the Downtown Las Cruces Partnership’s first-ever artists in residence in 2020, is an actor, playwright, composer, singer, author and set builder,” DAAC Executive Director Greg Smith said in a news release.

For “Portrait Tour,” Diven “will take the audience on a journey through a selection of 19th- and 20th-century portraits from some of the great art collections in Paris, Cambridge, London, Dublin and Chicago,” Smith said.

As a bonus, Diven will have some of his own portrait paintings on hand to illustrate the finer points of how they are made, with time for questions and discussion.

The event is “a great evening for the curious, the art lover, and the art student,” Smith said.

It is “part guided tour, part personal journey and part secrets of the trade,” Diven said. “I’m excited to take folks along and give them a chance to see some great paintings the way a painter sees them -- not as an art historian, but as a working artist -- discovering joy, inspiration and a sense of kinship with the portrait painters who came before me,” Diven said.

Renovated Dairy Spot debuts

BULLETIN REPORT

The dairy barn at the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum (NMFRHM), 4100 Dripping Springs Road, has a new look, a new name and lots of fun, new activities and exhibits, the museum said in a news release.

The Dairy Spot: Discovery Center opens to the public with a special celebration 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29, the museum said.

Caliche’s Frozen Custard will provide free servings to the first 500 visitors, and guests are invited to make their own ice cream using Ziploc bags. Milking and other demonstrations also are part of the fun.

Regular museum admission applies, $5 for adults,

$4 for senior citizens and $3 for children ages 4-17.

With this renovation, The Dairy Spot will continue to share New Mexico’s dairy history but will be more child-friendly and have more interactive exhibits, NMFRHM said. This brighter, livelier venue includes a multi-use public space that can be used for everything from demonstrations to children’s birthday parties.

The Southwest Dairy Farmers’ (SWDF) $30,000 donation to NMFRHM made the renovation possible.

“We are thrilled to be able to continue our partnership with Southwest Dairy that began 25 years ago,” said NMFRHM Executive Director Heather Reed.

Visitors to The Dairy Spot will enjoy videos of ice cream making, the process of pasteurization and farm to table, the museum said. Some of the topics featured in The Dairy Spot are the breeds of dairy cattle, sources of milk from around the world, a cow’s anatomy, nutrition, cheese, ice cream, butter and lots of fun facts. Among the interactives are a butter churn, a cheese fridge and an “I spy” activity featuring a house with various dairy products.

The dairy industry plays an important role in the story of New Mexico agriculture, reflected in the national statistics as the state ranks ninth in milk production and fifth in cheese production.

Longtime framing business adds art gallery

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

How do you make Las Cruces' Picture Frame Outlet more appealing to customers and visitors?

Add a space to show the works of local and regional artists to create Picture Frame Outlet and Gallery.

That's just what owner Greg Groves has done with the business his father, Mike Groves, started more than 40 years ago.

The project started with a long-needed roof repair, Greg Groves said, completed by contractor Art Diaz during Covid. When that was done, Groves and long-time employee Curtis Bristol began converting the large office space at the north end of the building into Rio Grande Fine Art Gallery. (Bristol has a background in construction and worked for Las Cruces Public Schools' building trades program.)

The two began with LED track lighting, adding more than 200 fixtures, built eight-foot and 10-foot modular walls and did everything themselves except the taping and texture work, which were completed by a local contractor.

The last step was new carpet, installed by Casey Carpet of Las Cruces a couple of months ago, with quarter-turned carpet tiles replacing industrial linoleum as the floor covering. The same line of carpet tiles with a different pattern marks the framing area off from the gallery space.

Using Las Cruces contractors, Groves also had the parking lot repaved and updated the outside of the building to give it "increased street presence.

"I'm the biggest proponent of shop local," said Groves, who was born and raised in Las Cruces.

Then it was time to hang the art and "show things maybe you haven't seen before in Las Cruces," he said.

The gallery features paintings and drawings by John Glass of Deming, NMSU gaming designer Adrian Aguirre, Dallas artist Jill Malouf, Melvin Landry, Robert "Shoofly" Shufelt, Robert Highsmith, Robert McMurtry, El Paso/New Mexico artist Lester Hughes (President Ronald Reagan had several of his pieces in the White House), John Meigs (a close friend and neighbor of artist Peter Hurd, and the inventor of the Hawaiian shirt), University of Texas at Austin art professor Bill Wiman and the iconic photography of Mike Groves.

All the artwork is for sale, said Groves, who plans to hang works by different artists every two to three months. He will bring the art of San Miguel de Allende, Mexico to Las Cruces with an art show in November.

You will also find custom coffee cups; greeting cards featuring the photography of Mike's father and Greg's grandfather, L.C. Groves, a telephone lineman and avid photographer; and 2023 calendars that include photos by Mike Groves, who you will still see around the store, even though he sold the business to Greg in 2003.

When Mike Groves opened the frame shop in 1981, he would drive more than three hours – often with Greg accompanying him – to Agua Prieta, Mexico, just below Douglas, Arizona, on the U.S.-Mexico border, to buy hand-made frames. He sold them wholesale in his Las Cruces store and by mail order through a catalog mailed to customers across the country.

Mike Groves bought property at 382 S. Walnut St. (just north of the intersection of Lohman Avenue and Walnut Street), where he moved the business in 1989.

The new Rio Grande Fine Art Gallery at Picture Frame Outlet features new and longtime local artists at 382 S. Walnut St.

Today, the frame shop is as high tech as you can imagine.

Groves can place an image of whatever a customer wants to have framed on a large TV screen that connects to his iPad and then digitally change the frame, the mat and the glass until the customer has exactly what he or she wants. The program also calculates the cost.

As you might expect, Groves' wall-hung television is framed, but that is not unique to his business. Increasingly, he and Bristol are creating custom frames for wall-mounted TVs in commercial business and private homes in Las Cruces and surrounding communities.

There are also carpet tiles hung on the frame-shop wall so Groves can show design work, like a frame within a frame, in the old-fashioned, hands-on way.

"It's all here, front and center," Groves said.

Groves does framing for NMSU, he said, and has commercial clients throughout Las Cruces, Doña Ana County and southern New Mexico. He and Bristol have also created unique frames and shadowboxes that not only display customers' treasured artwork, sports jerseys and other clothing, posters and diplomas, they help to preserve and protect them.

"Come in with an idea and let's figure out a way to accomplish it," Groves said.

Picture Frame Outlet and Gallery is open 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday-Friday and 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday. Contact Groves at 575-526-4048 and frameoutlet@yahoo.com. Visit www.pffolc.com.

Adapting to a changing workforce

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Deloitte, the world's largest business consulting firm, "chose to invest in this community," The Bridge of Southern New Mexico President and CEO Tracey Bryan said Oct. 12, as the Greater Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce presented a two-day summit on the future of work in the greater Mesilla Valley, in partnership with Deloitte.

The summit, which Deloitte staff participated in at no cost, focused on ways to help "the workforce ecosystem of Las Cruces ... adjust to the changing nature of work," Bryan said.

"Everything has changed," she said, with the pandemic accelerating that change.

"While we didn't see the number of businesses and participants that we would have liked, the materials presented were reflective of the highest quality of research," Greater Las Cruces Chamber President and CEO Debbi More said from the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum, where the summit was held. "Much appreciation goes to Deloitte Consulting for their sponsorship for our Future of Work summit. We look forward to our next steps with our various community partners."

The goal of the summit was "putting Las Cruces employers in the best possible position to adapt the workplace and the workforce here in Doña Ana County," the chamber said.

During her summit presentation, Deloitte Senior Manager Jessica Galimore said it was important for employees to "have a voice with your employer," and for business owners not only to remove barriers to employment but also to build and sustain partnerships within their businesses and their communities.

Diversity of thought and being "authentic at work" are important for employees and for the businesses they work, Galimore said.

The summit gave attendees the opportunity to "network with industry leaders, policymakers and employers to understand our region's current workforce needs, highlight insights that are shaping the world of work and develop unique (workforce) solutions," the chamber said.

Summit topics included "Reimagine the Possibilities to Develop a Highly Engaged and Robust Workforce Culture"; "Bolstering Employer-Community Relationships to Create a More Inclusive, Accessible, Local Ecosystem"; and "Collectively Preparing for What the Future of Work Means for the Workforce."

Asombro needs volunteers for Desert Discovery Day

BULLETIN REPORT

The Asombro Institute for Science Education (AISE) is seeking volunteers to help the nonprofit get ready for its Desert Discovery Day Event, which includes the grand opening of its Gateway to the Desert Trail.

“We have a small team of four regular volunteers (called the “Trail Keepers”) and have been able to obtain a few folks from Boy Scout Troop 68 to also help on some weekends, but we really need more help from the community if we are going to accomplish all of the work needed to make our deadline for the Desert Discover Day event,” AISE Communications and Operations Coordinator Amy Tront said.

The institute has three volunteer trail days coming up, each is 8 a.m.-1 p.m. on a Saturday at Chihuahuan Desert Nature Park (AISE’s outdoor classroom), 56501 N. Jordana Road, east of Las Cruces: Oct. 29 and Nov. 12 and 19.

Desert Discovery Day

The event will be held 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, at the nature park.

There is no cost to attend.

The event includes the grand opening of AISE’s newest trail, the Gateway to the Desert Trail, which allows those who are uncomfortable exploring the desert to connect to the nature park, AISE said.

The new trail includes a 0.6-mile loop trail, a half-mile trail connecting the loop to the rest of the trail system at the nature park, an entrance kiosk, interpretive signs, benches and a parking area.

During Desert Discovery Day, visitors can walk the new trail, visit hands-on activity stations to learn more about weather, desert animals and tools to help identify plants and animals. Visitors will also be welcome to participate in a crowd-sourced, timelapse photo project to monitor a desert restoration project and a scavenger hunt and earn free prizes.

Funding for Desert Discovery Day comes from El Paso Electric. Funding for the trail comes from the New Mexico Economic Development Department Outdoor Recreation Division’s Trails+ grant Both are also supported by AISE donors.

Here is the Dec. 3 schedule of events:

- 10 a.m.: Start of the event, stations open
- 10:45 a.m.: Ribbon cutting
- 11 a.m. and noon: Guided trail tours

Education booths

• Weather and climate in the desert will feature KVIA TV meteorologist Dave Speelman (Doppler Dave), who will help visitors learn more about weather in the desert and use tools to measure temperature, humidity, wind speed and air pressure and compare these measurements with data from the Doña Ana County Flood Commission’s weather station in the nature park.

• Desert animals will include skins, skulls, tracks and more for the animals that live in and around the nature park.

• Desert plant and animal identification will help visitors learn how to identify the nature parks’

The origin of oft-dreaded golf course bunkers

Ever wonder about how sand bunkers came to be a standard part of golf courses, and why they are there in the first place?

It all started over 200 years ago on the linksland of coastal Scotland – the ocean-side ground that “linked” the land to the sea – where golf as we know it began. Prior to the early 1800s, the most common use for this land was grazing sheep.

When the fierce storms blew in from the North Sea (a frequent pattern for a thousand years) the sheep would huddle together and burrow themselves into the ground for shelter and warmth. With the linksland so close to the sea the ground was quite sandy and pliable, and the herds of sheep bunkered for protection, while scraping away vegetation.

As grazing farms gradually gave way to golf courses, partly a playing ground for shepherds, these large sand cavernous areas were often a hindrance to completing the golf hole successfully, as sometimes is the case still today. As the game of golf developed, the sand bunkers gradually were incorporated into course designs, adding another level of difficulty. As the modern era of golf began, on both sides of the “pond,” course designers considered bunkering an integral aspect of the layout, and created unique and aesthetic ways to form and position them.

Some different types of bunkers are “pothole” bunkers (small and deep), “waste” bunkers (large, flat expanse of sand, some distance from the green), grass bunkers (greenside depressions but no sand) and fairway bunkers.

The term “sand trap” began in 1922 as a colloquial expression, evoking golfers' ire, but appears nowhere in the Rules of Golf. Sand bunkers were first addressed by the Royal and Ancient Rules of Golf in Scotland in 1812.

that have buried famous golfers' rounds over the years.

Finding the deep and aptly named “Hell” bunker on the par-5 14th hole at St. Andrews, Jack Nicklaus took four shots to get his ball out of that sand cave in the 1995 Open Championship, sinking his chance of victory. Whistling Straits in Wisconsin has a whopping 967 “sand traps” (some are waste areas) throughout its 18 holes. Hole 18 has 96 of them, and Dustin Johnson found one off the tee during the 2010 U.S. Open. Not realizing it was a true bunker and not a waste bunker, he grounded his club in the sand resulting in a penalty stroke, thereby eliminating him from a playoff.

Then there are some strangely oversized sand bunkers at well-known courses, such as the one at Royal St. George's in Sandwich, England, positioned 230 yards from the tee, which measures 40 feet high (higher than a four-story building) and 25 feet wide. One other standout bunker formation is on hole 7 at the ultra-private Pine Valley Golf Club in New Jersey, for decades ranked by golf magazines as the No. 1 golf course in the U.S. I played Pine Valley in 1974 when I was a corporate suit, working as a sales manager for a Fortune top-50 manufacturing company. The 7th hole is a 540-yard par-5, with the start of the sand at 240 off the tee, known to locals as “hell's half acre,” and requiring a shot of over 150 yards to reach the fairway on the far side of the waste bunker. I made bogey.

The 17th hole at St. Andrews is affectionately known as the “Road Hole.” Along the right is a narrow road, and left of the green is a daunting, steep riveted cavern, known as the “road hole bunker.” In the 1978 Open Championship, Japan's Tommy Nakajima was tied for the lead in the third round when he landed his second shot on the green on hole 17. He proceeded to putt it off the green into the road hole bunker. It took him four shots to get back on the green, and he made a 9 on the hole, finishing tied for 17th. The bunker often has
