Aviation internship helps students get their wings

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

“Yes!” Chief Flight Instructor Todd Christopherson said Thursday morning, March 16, as Sergio Orozco II touched down from his first solo flight, at Las Cruces International Airport.

Sergio, a 17-year-old senior at Organ Mountain High School, is one of three Las Cruces high school students participating in an aviation internship program that is a partnership between Bellator Aviation, LLC of Las Cruces and Las Cruces Public Schools’ Academic Career Experience (ACE) program.

“It was great,” Sergio said after the flight about Bellator’s Piper Cherokee Warrior II. “At first, I was very nervous. Everyone on the ground was watching me.”

Sergio said he “felt more comfortable” as he got into the air.

“I felt confident in my ability,” he said. “It was a great day.”

Sergio plans to attend New Mexico State University and study aerospace engineering and hopes to become an airline pilot.

With this step completed as Sergio works toward a private pilot’s license, he could be a fully licensed pilot before he is 20, Christopherson said, and could “go fly anywhere.”

“He loves it. He’s not going to stop smiling all day,” said Christopherson, Bellator’s chief flight instructor who has about 20 years of experience and has taught commercial, private and military airplane and helicopter flying.

“Nervous, excited, a little bit of everything,” was how Orozco’s father, Sergio I, felt as he and his daughter Veronica watched his son’s solo flight. “I’m real proud of him.”

“We call him ‘Mr. Chill,’” Sergio I said.

“Since the day he was born, he’s been sooo calm,” said Sergio II’s mother, Sylvia B. Orozco, a teacher at Las Cruces High School. “I know a lot of moms say they had perfect babies, but out of all four of ours, he was always the most chill. His intelligence is amazing, he has maintained, at minimum, a 3.5 GPA for the last four years of high school. His dad and I cherish our children (Sergio II, Veronica, Abigail and Carolina). Our son’s dedication is the resultant product of great sacrifice and hard work,” Mrs. Orozco said.

The aviation internship is “a life changing program,” Bellator managing owner Daniel Roberts said. “A private pilot license is the first step toward a very prosperous career for these students. And by funding the private pilot license for the students, we are able to eliminate a huge barrier to entry into this career field. Almost all professional pilot programs across the country require the students to pay out of pocket for this level of license as loans and scholarships only start assisting at the next license level.”

Senior Emily Bai and junior Nicolas Nevarez, both of Las Cruces High School, are also enrolled in the aviation internship program with Orozco. Nevarez also has soloed, and all three students are on track to have their pilot’s licenses within the next three months, Roberts said.

His students “kind of get in my heart,” said Christopherson, who came to the area with the United States Army when stationed at Fort Bliss in 2015. “Their success is my success. I love it. I just love it.”

Christopherson has flown all over the world throughout his career, he said, which “allows for a truly graduate level of training unparalleled at any flight training program for high school students in the Southwest.”

“We are excited to see the success of this program,” airport Administrator Andy Hume said. “The industry needs well-trained young people to replenish the ranks of pilots throughout the country. This program is a great step toward a long and rewarding career.”

Roberts, Anthony Ferrario and Roma Ferrio founded Bellator Aviation in the fall of 2019, Roberts said. 828 Productions CEO Todd Lundbohm joined the ownership group in 2022. Visit www.bellatoraviation.com.

City, state boost 828

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

“Let the movies begin,” Mayor Ken Miyagishima said as the Las Cruces City Council voted unanimously to approve almost $900,000 in funding for 828 Productions LLC, which plans to build a movie studio in Las Cruces.

The state is pledging $3 million in Local Economic Development Act (LEDA) funding for the project.

828 Productions has pledged to create 100 jobs with an average salary of $75,000 by the end of 2029, with a total investment of $75 million by the end of 2031 and $350 million invested in the project by Dec. 31, 2032.

“This is probably the most exciting thing I’ve seen happen to our town,” New Mexico State University film professor and filmmaker Rajeev “Raj” Nirmalakhandan said at the meeting. “We’ve seen hundreds of talented (film) students leave when they graduate,” Raj said. “Now, because of 828, they have the opportunity to stay here ... and work as part of the film industry. They can get higher paid jobs. It’s going to have a far-reaching ripple effect within our local economy.”

Having 8282 in Las Cruces will also boost the local tourism economy, Raj said.

“When movies start getting made, people are going to see the Organ Mountains. They’re going to be like, ‘Where is this place?’

Where is this magical, mystical mountain range? They’re going to want to come here.”

“It’s all about making dreams come true and keeping kids here,” said state Sen. Jeff Steinborn, D-Doña Ana, who is president of the nonprofit Film Las Cruces.

Steinborn said the 2023 New Mexico Legislature, which adjourned March 18 after a 60-day budget session, passed legislation that, if signed by Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham, will double the state’s rural film incentive from five to 10 percent. Steinborn said that means filmmakers who produce movies or television shows in Las Cruces or anywhere else in

B&G Club breakfast hosts Webb

BULLETIN REPORT

Boys and Girls Club of Las Cruces (BGCLC) supporters will welcome retired National Basketball Association (NBA) professional player Anthony “Spud” Webb as the guest speaker for the 15th annual Lou and Mary Henson Community Breakfast, 7 a.m. Thursday, April 20, at New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum, 4100 Dripping Springs Road, the nonprofit said in a news release.

During a 13-year career, Webb, a point guard, played for the NBA’s Atlanta Hawks, Sacramento Kings and Minnesota Timberwolves.

Webb played collegiately at Midland Junior College and North Carolina State.

“Living in a small, three-bedroom home in Dallas, Texas, with his parents and five brothers and sisters, Webb began playing basketball at an early age and dreamed of being in the NBA,” BGCLC said. He attended the Turnkey Boys Club in Dallas.

“Although he was much smaller, he would always jump higher than the taller kids,” the news release said. “At 5-7, Webb made basketball history during the 1986 All Star Game, winning the Slam Dunk Contest, beating out NBA greats Dominique Wilkins and Michael Jordan.”

Webb, 59, is currently president of basketball operations for the Texas Legends, the G League team of the NBA’s Dallas Mavericks.

The Henson Breakfast has become the signature event for the Boys and Girls Club and an opportunity for community giving, with ongoing support from the Hensons, the news release said.

“We are indebted to the Henson family for their partnership and support over the last 15 years and feel honored that we have the opportunity to continue to honor Coach Henson’s legacy through our club,” BGCLC CEO Ashley Echavarria said. “Hearing from a Boys and Girls Club alumni is always a great reminder that the work we do at our club each day can result in greatness for every young person we serve. Spud Webb is living proof of that, and we are thrilled to welcome him to Las Cruces.”

Sponsorships for the breakfast are available and attendance is open to all, with reservations required. All sponsors will be invited to attend a VIP reception with Webb the night before the breakfast.

NMSU gets big NASA grant

By BRIANNA WELLS
NMSU News Team

Liang Sun, mechanical and aerospace engineering associate professor at New Mexico State University, has been awarded a nearly $6 million grant by NASA to solve key challenges facing the future of air travel.

According to NASA, this grant is awarded as part of an initiative that provides the academic community a chance to support NASA’s aeronautical research goals and provide students the ability to learn from real-world technical challenges.

“I am honored to receive this grant and excited about the opportunities it presents for advancing the field of aviation,” Sun said. “Our team is eager to get to work and tackle the challenges ahead.”

Sun will lead a team of researchers from George Washington University, the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, the University of Tennessee in Chattanooga, the University of Maryland in Baltimore County, Aurora Flight Sciences Corporation, Argonne National Laboratory and Whisper Aero.

The team will gather data about current and projected advanced air mobility (AAM) operations to help produce models that could inform decisions on how the electric grid infrastructure can support future AAM activity, including the demand for aircraft charging stations.

College of Arts & Sciences touts 'stars' of school, community

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The New Mexico State University College of Arts and Sciences honored university and community members as stars of its 24 academic departments during a reception and awards program March.

"It's good to be back," said Arts and Sciences Dean Enrico Pontelli, at the first in-person Starry Night program since 2019.

"I feel very honored to be up here tonight," said Ben Trujillo, who accepted the award for his wife, Karen Trujillo, recognized as the Star of the Sciences. Trujillo, superintendent of Las Cruces Public Schools, a former Doña Ana County commissioner and secretary of the New Mexico Public Education Department, died in a traffic accident in February 2021. She earned a Ph.D. from NMSU in 1998.

"I only do what I love," said Denise Welsh, honored with the college's Town and Gown Award, and recognized for her service as a member of the American Southwest Theatre Company (the non-profit that benefits the NMSU Theatre Department) since 2007, and her long-time service to NMSU as an employee and a volunteer.

Welsh is a graduate of the NMSU journalism department and became director of instructional media services at the university in 2004. She retired in 2017.

English Department "increased my confidence with words," said author Jennifer Cervantes, recognized as the college's star or arts and humanities. "Stories, to me, are the foundation of our society."

Cervantes wrote a short story for her youngest daughter, which became the novel "Tortilla Sun." Since then, Cervantes has published more than a dozen young adult novels and is a New York Times best-selling author.

David Wilson, founder of Wilson Binkley Advertising and Marketing in Las Cruces, recognized "the special magic of this university," as he received the star of the College of Arts and Sciences award. Wilson earned a bachelors degree at NMSU before starting what would become one of the state's largest and most successful advertising agencies.

Barbara Hubbard received the college's lifetime achievement award. The longtime business manager at the Pan American Center, Hubbard brought many world-famous acts to perform at NMSU.

"I've had a blessed life," Hubbard said, noting that country music star and actor Reba McEntyre had just made a $20,000 donation to the American Collegiate Talent Showcase Hubbard started in 1978 to provide scholarships for performing-arts college students.

New coach hopes to honor Aggie tradition

Maybe it's time to party like it's 1969.

When Jason Hooten was introduced as New Mexico State University's new men's basketball coach at the Pan American's Center Sunday, March 26, he referred to the Aggies as a "storied program."

The Pan Am's own stories began when it first opened, in time for the 1968-69 basketball season.

On Sunday, 54 years later, there were six notable things that put an exclamation point on Hooten's description of NMSU as a storied basketball program.

First, the welcome event and press conference took place on the Pan Am floor, still one of just a handful of parquet hardwood basketball courts in the country.

Second, was the oversize autograph on that floor of Lou Henson, longtime Aggie Coach.

"To be at a place where Lou Henson coached, that's something," Hooten said. "You can't overstate what Coach Henson meant not just New Mexico State, but to the game of basketball."

Third, Henson's widow, Mary, was in attendance, introduced by NMSU Athletic Director Mario Moccia as "the all-time First Lady of Aggie basketball."

Fourth, hanging silently from the Pan Am rafters, but speaking volumes, was the Final Four banner from the Aggies' 1969-70 season.

Fifth, seated right next to Mary Henson, was Barbara Hubbard, the 95-year-old Las Cruces legend who was the Pan Am's first manager, a lady who's probably spent as much time in the building as all the Aggie head coaches combined.

Sixth, in the most emotional moment of the day, Moccia mentioned the previous day's passing of former Aggie assistant coach Keith Colson, who was on the bench next to Henson during those early Pan Am days. Moccia had to step away from the podium to compose himself before delivering the news.

The past five months, however, have produced the darkest chapter in the long-running book of Aggie men's basketball. November saw a gun death in Albuquerque with an NMSU player behind the trigger, and February saw hazing allegations against Aggie players. Around all that was a very un-NMSU-like 9-15 record, 2-10 in Western Athletic Conference play. It could have been worse if the season hadn't been suspended with six games left.

Aggie fans, hungry for a turnaround and curious to check out the new guy, showed up Sunday in numbers that might have rivaled some of the more poorly attended 2022-23 games in the Pan Am.

"Thanks, Aggie Nation for coming out today," Moccia said. "What a great turnout!"

Curiosity was one reason fans came out to watch. But another reason was a word both Moccia and Hooten used in reference to Aggie Nation: Care.

"This is a new start," Hooten said. "A new beginning for a great, historic, traditional basketball program where the people and the fans really care."

Expectations for session too high

I had hoped legislators would take advantage of the unprecedented $9.4 billion budget this year to begin the transition away from an economy so dependent on oil and gas revenue, but I don't think that was ever on the agenda.

The governor had promised before the election we would all get checks in the mail if she won, so that was a given. Legislators also passed new tax credits for the film industry, and a phased-in reduction of the gross receipts tax.

Those moves will help, but seem inadequate to the challenge everybody sees coming.

Legislators moved much of the excess revenue into the Severance Tax Permanent Fund, claiming in a press release this would protect us from fluctuations in the market.

That's how we've always done it, and it makes sense if you believe gas and oil is a perpetual, if sometimes volatile, source of revenue. We need to be planning for more than just the next dip in prices.

Despite the enormous revenue increase this year, it was a session where most of the big ideas failed. Many of the most important bills passed this year were playing defense, not offense.

Those included legislation sponsored by Sen. Jeff Steinborn to prevent state permits being issued for a proposed nuclear waste storage facility in southeast New Mexico. Holtec International plans to build a site between Hobbs and Carlsbad that would store highly radioactive uranium shipped in by rail from nuclear reactors throughout the country. This bill will stall those plans.

And, Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham led an effort to reach a compromise on malpractice insurance that will help avert the migration of doctors I wrote about in a previous column.

I've read that leadership changes made this year's session more congenial, and that's a positive step.

But lawmakers have resisted the foundational changes needed to modernize our Legislature for the enormous challenges ahead.

A part-time, unpaid and unstaffed Legislature is inevitably going to move cautiously into the future. They don't have the information, resources or time needed to make bold moves in response to the massive changes that we all know are coming.

New Mexico still has a law requiring every bill to be read out loud three times before it can be passed. Final passage of every bill starts with an agreement by the members to waive the rule and print misinformation in the official journal. I've never understood why they didn't just change the law. They cling to their traditions even when they don't make sense.

Our unpaid, unstaffed Legislature is a tradition that hasn't made sense in a long time.

Spring II Lush & Lean Kicks off with a Native Plants Workshop

By Cassie McClure

“Native Plants – Creating a Lush Oasis” presentation Thursday, April 6, will begin the next series (Spring II) of free Lush & Lean Workshops sponsored by the Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) Water Conservation Program.

Jackye Meinecke, former owner of Enchanted Gardens nursery, who now consults and designs gardens, will present tips and tricks to enlighten homeowners about the varieties of native plants available and how to select them for their garden or landscape.

“We can create a traditional garden using native and drought-tolerant plants. Native plants provide shade, texture, and color similar to traditional plants,” said Meinecke. She explained that it depends on the soil you might find in your yard. “We have two distinct soils in our Southwest gardens. In the valley, most gardens are clay and caliche. In most of the gardens on the mesas, you’ll find sand and rock.”

“For example, if you’re choosing trees to plant in the valley, choose the Texas Red Oak, desert willow, or Texas honey mesquite,” she said. “On the mesas, choose Acacias, Escarpment live oak or Netleaf hackberry.”

Meinecke also cautions that gardening takes patience, especially in the beginning. “It may take a year or more for a native plant to establish in the landscape. However, once established, these plants grow quickly, thrive, and expand,” she said.

Meinecke will also talk about how different zones can affect how much water is needed and will discuss not just trees but also shrubs, groundcover, grasses, and good annuals and perennials to plant depending on zone and soil.

Free to the public, all Lush & Lean Workshops are held at the Thomas Branigan Memorial Library, Roadrunner Room, 200 E. Picacho, Las Cruces, on Thursdays from 5:30 PM to 7:30 PM. Presentations begin promptly at 5:45 PM.

New Mexico outside of Bernalillo and Santa Fe counties, can receive up to a 40 percent rebate.

Steinborn reminded city councilors Las Cruces was named one of the top destinations in America by Moviemaker magazine to live and work as a filmmaker.

“That’s a huge accomplishment,” Steinborn said, “a very prestigious list in the film industry.”

The city’s portion of the funding for 828 productions came from capital outlay funds secured by Steinborn and other legislators for film production in Las Cruces.

Local filmmaker Rob Dean is one of six people 828 Productions has already employed in Las Cruces, Dean said at the meeting. A native New Mexican, Dean graduated from NMSU’s Creative Media Institute but then left Las Cruces to make films elsewhere.

“I came back because I love this place,” Dean said. “We need to build our crew base. For long-term sustainable growth, we need to plant roots here. We’ve got to build the industry from the inside out. The magic is in the people and the community that we’ve got here.”

When 828 founder and CEO Todd Lundbohm announced last August he would build a studio in Las Cruces, he identified his talks with Dean as a reason he wanted to be in Las Cruces.

Lundbohm plans to build a 300,000 square-foot studio on 35 acres of land just west of downtown Las Cruces. Phase one of is construction of four sound stages, the city said. Lundbohm founded 828 Productions in 2019. It has financed 15 films to date, the city said, with a budget spend of more than $50 million.

Dharmahorse event set for April 1

BULLETIN REPORT

Dharmahorse Equine Sanctuary will host a "Shade for Horses" fundraiser, 3-8 p.m., Saturday, April 1, at Woody's Gift Gallery, 309 E. Organ Ave.

The horses at the sanctuary "live on a 'track system' that meanders around the property, allowing for a herd life and plenty of movement (essential for horse health)," sanctuary founder Katharine Chrisley-Schreiber said in an email to the Bulletin. "Within the track, 'islands' exist where we can now plant water-wise, non-toxic trees and bushes for shade and windbreak (much needed in this high desert). We completed a waterline system last year with faucets all over the property, allowing us to set up drip irrigation systems for the plants this year."

There is no charge for the fundraiser, which will help pay for trees and bushes for the track, and will include a silent auction featuring art, horse tack, jewelry, etc.; a raffle; food; and T-shirts for sale. Miniature horse "Peanut" will be at the event "to demonstrate what he has learned since we rescued him," Chrisley-Schreiber said.

Dharmahorse is home to "elderly and special needs horses."

Contact Chrisley-Schreiber at 575-541-0137 and katharinechrisley@yahoo.com. Visit dharmahorse.org/.

APRIL 2 "Movie: Official Competition"

A billionaire (Jose Luis Gomez) looking to make a groundbreaking film hires the best — filmmaker Lola Cuevas (Penelope Cruz) and two enormously talented actors who also have monstrous egos: Hollywood star Félix (Antonio Banderas) and aging thespian Iván (Oscar Martinez). They're legends, but not friends. Through a series of increasingly hilarious tests set by Lola, they must confront each other and their legacies in this 2021 comedy.

"Movie: You Laugh But It's True"

This 2011 documentary, a joint U.S./South Africa production, follows Johannesburg native Trevor Noah, who would later go on to become the host of "The Daily Show," as he uses his childhood experiences in a biracial family during apartheid to prepare for his first one-man show.

"Movie: In the Fade"

Diane Kruger was named best actress at the 2017 Cannes Film Festival for her acclaimed performance in writer-director Fatih Akin's German drama, which also won the 2018 Golden Globe Award for best foreign language film. Kruger plays a German woman whose husband and son are killed in a terrorist attack carried out by neo-Nazis. Numan Acar, Rafael Santana, Denis Moschitto and Hanna Hilsdorf also star.

APRIL 7 "Tiny Beautiful Things"

Cheryl Strayed's bestselling novel served as the basis for this dramedy series that casts Kathryn Hahn ("Transparent," "Mrs. Fletcher") as Clare, a struggling writer who finds success as an advice columnist even while her own life is falling apart. Sarah Pidgeon, Quentin Plair and Tazryn Crawford are also in the cast for creator/executive producer Liz Tigelaar ("Little Fires Everywhere"). (ORIGINAL) Series Premiere New

FBI: International
KDBC 7 p.m.

For the second time in the franchise's history, the teams from "FBI," "FBI: Most Wanted" and "FBI International" come together in a three-part cross-over event. The teams work together when an abduction in Rome reveals a plot to carry out a terror attack.

American Experience
KRWG 8 p.m.

Chemical engineer and inventor Mária Telkes worked to harness the sun's power for nearly 50 years. She designed and built the first successfully solar-heated modern residence in 1948 and identified a new chemical that could store solar energy like a battery. But she was undercut by her all-male MIT colleagues. Despite this, upon her death in 1995, she held more than 20 patents. The new episode "The Sun Queen," examines how Telkes is now recognized as a visionary pioneer in the field of sustainable energy.

Return to Amish
TLC 8 p.m.

Say what you want, but it really is tough to return to the farm once you've seen the big city — and experienced its heathen ways. And speaking of that, Rosanna's brother accuses Ada of eroding the Amish values in the house; Johnny becomes angry when Rosanna models a bikini in public; Jeremiah wants to apologize to Dennis; Fannie has a traumatic beach experience; and Maureen confides in Sabrina in the new episode "Come On, Maureen."

tonight's picks

Kelly McCreary stars in "Grey's Anatomy" Thursday on ABC.

2023 Masters Tournament First Round ESPN 1 p.m.

One of the surest signs of spring shows itself today at Augusta National, where the sport's best will do battle in the golf year's first major, the Masters Tournament. A field including Scottie Scheffler, Jon Rahm, Max Homa, Kurt Kitayama and Tyrrell Hatton will tee it up on the florid Georgia course where Scheffler won his first major with his three-stroke victory over Rory McIlroy last year.

Restaurant: Impossible FOOD 6 p.m.

It's like B.B. King always said: the thrill is gone, baby. The owner of the Dutch Treat in Franconia, N.H., has lost the desire to keep his family restaurant going. His wife is more than willing to help, but no matter what she and Chef Robert Irvine do, the Dutch Treat doesn't stand a chance without a manager in the new episode "Trick or Treat."

Movie: Murder at Blackthorne Manor LMN 6 p.m.

Hayley (Christie Leverette) loves creating murder mystery parties at the famous Blackthorne Manor. As guests settle in for a fun-filled, spooky weekend, she acts out one of Blackthorne's deadly moments. But after the show she discovers the owner of the manor dead. With a house full of suspects, she must work with her handsome co-worker Jackson (Bobby Slaski) and her boss's business partner Diana (Veronica Martell) to solve the real-life murder mystery while keeping everyone else in the dark in this 2023 mystery.

Grey's Anatomy KVIA 8 p.m.

Like they say, sometimes you get the horns. A bull rider shows up at Grey Sloan with severe injuries, forcing Maggie (Kelly McCreary), Amelia (Caterina Scorsone), Owen (Kevin McKidd) and Blue (Harry Shum Jr.) to take a look at their own biases. Elsewhere, Simone

(Alexis Floyd) can't find anyone to be her maid of honor, and Mika (Midori Francis) takes drastic measures to pay down her student debt in the new episode "Cowgirls Don't Cry."

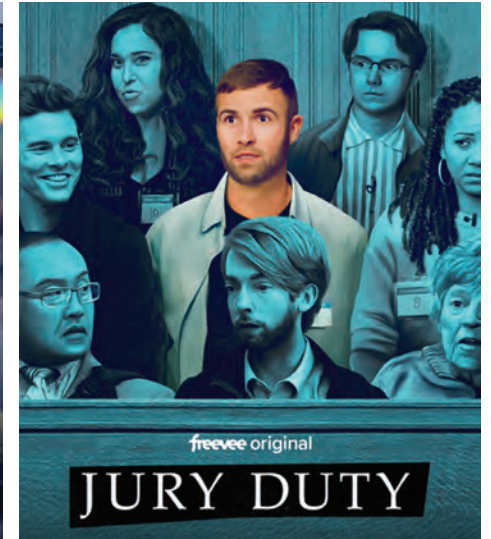

Movie: Life With Father TCM 8 p.m.

In late 19th-century New York City, stockbroker Clarence Day (William Powell) strives to maintain order in his bustling household. Despite his attempts to be the chief authority over his four sons, his wife, Vinnie (Irene Dunne), is the one who truly keeps order in their home, much to Clarence's chagrin. To gain more respect, Clarence reluctantly considers making changes that will benefit everyone, including his own baptism. This slice-of-life comedy was based on a popular Broadway play.

Good Trouble FREE 11 p.m.

Mariana (Cierra Ramirez) has a big decision to make in tonight's episode, and she turns to her visiting moms for support. Then Joaquin (Bryan Craig) questions whether Jenna (Majara Walsh) is ready to bring Silas (Graham Sibley) to justice.

artists Patricia Black and Jan Severson in April, the gallery said in a news release.

Black is a gourd artist and watercolorist. She is self-taught and worked as a graphic artist for many years in the giftware industry, the gallery said. Black lived in northern California and Colorado before moving to New Mexico in 2006. She has won numerous awards and her work is featured in Northern Light books.

Severson spent her professional life with a major computer company as an education consultant. By accident and with a good friend's encouragement, she started weaving and found a passion that brought her a great sense of joy and accomplishment. While Severson prefers the colors of nature, you will often find her weaving with colorful reeds, yarns, wood objects and beads. The beauty and diversity of New Mexico often serves as an inspiration for her art.

"I hope those who give my creations a home find joy and beauty in them," Severson said.

MVFG's 30 featured artists offer original art in various media, including oil, acrylics, pastels, watercolor, fused glass art jewelry, woodturnings, stained glass, photography, ceramics, mixed media, decorated gourds, textile weavings, art tile, fiber art, natural gemstone jewelry, fused glass, colored pencil, charcoal, pen and ink drawings, prints, cards and miniature paintings.

First American Bank, 1553 Avenida de Mesilla, features the work of many of the gallery's artists.

MVFG is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m. every day. Call 575-522-2933. Visit www.mesillavalleyfinearts.com.

"A trained textile engineer, Teich first found her love for quilts and then moved to other disciplines over the years. Always interested in learning new techniques and working with various media, she paints acrylics, makes jewelry, does calligraphy and builds with wood. In 2019, Teich visited the Silver City Print Fiesta and got hooked on printmaking."

"Stevenson's photographs on metal have a certain look to them," the news release said.

"Deep colors, accurate details and longevity are positive qualities afforded by images printed on aluminum," the gallery said. "Because his style of photography emphasizes color and detail, Stevenson has found printing on metal not only looks great but also sets his style apart from many other art photographers."

Review: 'Stones' shines, extra show added

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

It's the luck of the Irish, as ToadHall Productions has extended the run of "Stones in His Pockets" for an additional performance: 7 p.m. Friday, March 31, in the chapel theatre at First Christian Church, 1809 El Paseo Road.

The play's director Ken Forestal, who founded ToadHall, has taken a wonderful script by Marie Jones and the talents of two exceptional Las Cruces actors, Jason Wyatt and Steven Cousler, to create a memorable production.

Cousler and Wyatt each play seven different characters: the American actress who stars in a movie filmed in their small town in Ireland, the play's director and his crew, along with a host of locals, including Jake Quinn (Cousler), and Charlie Conlon (Wyatt), who have dreams of bigger things.

Besides Quinn and Conlon, I think my favorite characters were Cousler's Mickey Riordan, a local in his 70s, and Brother Gerard, the local pastor to whom Wyatt brought a quiet dignity.

COUSLER

For each character, the actors changed caps, added a clipboard or scarf (for Wyatt's portrayal of the actress whose rudeness to Sean Harkin (Cousler) in the local pub is central to the story), changed body posture and accent to bring their characters to life.

This is live theatre at its best: almost no props or costume changes, entrances or exits; simply a great script with two actors who have chemistry throughout as they find the heart and soul of many different people. Tickets are $10 general admission and $5 for students and seniors.

Know the signs

Do you know how to identify a natural gas leak? You might smell sulfur or rotten eggs, you may notice dirt or debris shooting up out of a hole in the ground, dead or dying vegetation in an otherwise green area, and a loud hissing or roaring sound near pipeline markers. These and many more are all tell tale signs of a natural gas or pipeline leak. Use all your senses, even common sense and report any possible leaks to Zia Natural Gas Company. When in doubt call us out!

As always, Zia personnel are available 24/7 for all natural gas emergencies. Call (575) 526-4GAS (4427) if you have a natural gas emergency.

Local author to perform in NYC

BULLETIN REPORT

Las Cruces author and radio host Lisa Lucca will be one of 14 storytellers performing in "Listen to Your Mother NYC" Saturday, April 1, in New York City. The show is a 90-minute "journey of true stories about motherhood," according to a news release from author Heather Christie, the show's producer and director.

Lucca received the 2022 Literary Legacy Award from El Paso Community College for her contributions to literature and media in the region. She was recently named an Outstanding Woman in the Mesilla Valley by Las Cruces Bulletin readers.

Lucca's book "Ashes to Ink: A Memoir," was released in October 2021 and received the Southwest Book Award from the New Mexico Book Association in the LGBTQ category. Lucca co-authored a memoir with her partner, Mark Mathias, "You are loved...an email memoir."

"It is such a thrill to be included in the cast and to perform 'Teal Dreams,' an adapted excerpt from my memoir which shares the challenges of new motherhood," Lucca said. "Opening the search beyond live auditions

In New York City, our cast was selected from video auditions submitted from (all) over the United States and Canada, so we are rehearsing virtually via Zoom. It will be so exciting to join them all on the stage in New York," she said. "We're giving motherhood a microphone," Christie said. "Storytelling is what makes us human.

'Listen To Your Mother NYC' provides a platform for incredible artists to share a piece of themselves with the world and connect with the audience in a way not experienced in other mediums."

Lucca said "Listen to Your Mother" shows have been launched in more than 50 cities with 250 productions across North America. Lucca and Mathias moved from the Bay Area to New Mexico in 2018, the news release said. Lucca's radio show, "Live True with Lisa Lucca," airs at 10 a.m. Fridays on KTAL LP 101.5 FM Radio.

'Hidden No More' at MONAS

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces Museum of Nature and Science (MONAS) "Hidden No

More: Shedding Light on Science Stories" exhibit opened in March and continues at the museum.

"The interactive components of Hidden No More focus on exploring the connection between light and color and on illuminating the work of two featured scientists, Kamal al-Din al-Farisi and Mercedes López-Morales, through hands-on exploration," the City of Las Cruces said in a news release.

Farisi (1260-1320), a Persian scientist, was the first to propose a mathematically acceptable theory of how rainbows are formed. López-Morales (1973-) is a Spanish American astrophysicist at Harvard.

The exhibit consists of short documentary and animated films, virtual reality experiences, interactive "photobooths," and technology-based inquiry activities. MONAS, 411 N. Main St., is open 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday-Friday and 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday. For information, contact Stephanie Hawkins at 575-532-3372 and shawkins@lascruces.gov.

NM State fans greet new basketball coach

By RICHARD COLTHARP
Las Cruces Bulletin

Three words were repeated multiple times at the Sunday, March 26, public presentation of New Mexico State University's new men's basketball coach, Jason Hooten.

Those words? Character, integrity and culture.

During the press conference, and public event, held at the Pan American Center, Hooten, NMSU Chancellor Dan Arvizu and Athletic Director Mario Moccia all used each of those words multiple times.

Comments on those topics drew the largest applause from the many Aggie fans in attendance, who appeared curious to see how those issues would be addressed, given the incidents of the 2022-23 season, that ultimately led to the cancellation of the last six games.

"He's a proven leader," Arvizu said. "And he's run a program modeled with both character and integrity."

Hooten is no fly-by-nighter. He spent 19 seasons working for the Sam Houston State basketball program, the last 13 as head coach. In those 13 seasons, Sam

Houston won 261 games and had only one year with a losing record. Hooten did not comment on either what players or what assistant coaches may join him, saying it's just too early to say regarding those.

"You're hiring a coach to come in and build a culture," Hooten said, adding that his teams have always had a culture of hard work and good defense.

"You don't get to be a finalist for the Skip Prosser Man of the Year Award if you're not doing the right things off the court," Moccia said. The award is named for longtime Prosser, most noted for his terms at Xavier and Wake Forest, but died of an apparent heart attack at age 56 in 2007.

According to the Skip Prosser Award website, the award "honors those who not only achieve success on the basketball court but who display moral integrity off of it as well." Hooten is one of 25 finalists for the 2023 award, which will be announced as early as this week.

After receiving the job offer from NMSU, Hooten did not make his decision immediately, and said the most difficult part was leaving the university in Huntsville, Texas, where he had made his life for nearly 20 years.

Moccia said he became familiar with Hooten and his coaching style when the Aggies traveled to a Sam Houston game Jan. 20, 2022. That was the last season Chris Jans coached NMSU, and the season the Aggies won their opening game in the NCAA tournament. And while they were able to beat UConn in March Madness, they were unable to beat Hooten's Sam Houston team in that January 2022 game.

"They kicked the hell out of us," Moccia said.

The final score was 71-46 and it was clear Hooten "was not going to take his foot off the gas."

After the game, Moccia met with Hooten and said, "Congratulations, Coach. Nobody beats us like that."

Hooten was received warmly by the Aggie fans in attendance, but it was clear he understood it's still the honeymoon period. Hooten's wife, Kristen, excitedly told him her Twitter followers went from 40 to 170 in just a few hours after his hire was announced.

"Of course, they all love us right now," Hooten told her. "We haven't lost a game yet."

No shortage of entertainment at the Masters

There's a lot going on at Augusta National Golf Club in early April. One week before the Masters (April 6-9) is the Augusta National Women's Amateur golf tournament to be played on a slightly shorter course than the men play the next week. Then there is the finals of the Drive, Chip and Putt tournament for junior golfers of all ages who spent the summer qualifying. It's great watching. The week of the Masters we have practice rounds, and even those tickets are expensive. Wednesday is the nine-hole par 3 tournament. Thursday morning is the celebratory first shot by Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player, in all probability. Then, let the games begin.

Augusta National is a place that demands prodigious driving of the golf ball, extraordinary and patient putting, and a mentally flawless and experienced game. There will be plenty of birdies, as well as plenty of "others." Let's face it, fans like a birdy fest. That may be why a large portion of the American sports public dismisses low-scoring affairs like soccer and hockey that don't provide ample "excitement," which happens only a few times per game. Big-time sports has always been in the business of entertainment, but in recent years they have ramped up the requirement for excitement because "that's what the fans want."

A few years ago a seasoned sportswriter, Doug

Ferguson, wrote about the Masters of that year saying it was "a bore" because of the absence of the typical "roars" of the fans on the back nine. I found that patently disturbing. It amplified the fact sports fans of all ilk, spurred by sportswriters, simply want titillation; forget about appreciating and honoring the intelligent workmanlike course management like Jack Nicklaus displayed in his heyday. Roars? Bah humbug.

Among 72 players who qualified or were otherwise invited are 14 past champions. That list includes no fewer than 16 LIV golfers, which I personally find troubling.

But those blokes will have to get used to wearing long slacks, not shorts, 72 holes if they make the cut, not 54, and the absence of rappers blasting their noise from huge speakers. Past Masters champions playing this year who didn't jump ship to the Saudi sportswashing LIV tour include Fred Couples (1992), Zach Johnson (2007), Bernhard Langer (1985, 1993), Sandy Lyle (1988), Larry Mize (1987), Mike Weir (2003), Danny Willett (2016), Scottie Scheffler (2022), Jordan Speith (2015) and Tiger Woods (1997, 2001, 2002, 2005, 2019). Scheffler, now number 1 in the Official World Golf Rankings, and gracing the cover of the March/April 2023 Golf Digest, is without a doubt the favorite, but with a small field and a number of unknowns (special invites), as well as hungry, angry and "abused" LIV players, it could be anybody's week.

Back to what I like about the Masters, I certainly appreciate how CBS covers the Masters on the weekend's final two rounds with a virtually commercial-free format. That's how all sporting events of galactic importance should be broadcast. During each hour of CBS weekend telecasts there are less than eight minutes of commercial breaks, which includes nonprofits like First Tee. The Olympic Committee, Indy 500, MLB World Series and the Super Bowl aren't interested in sacrificing vast millions in ad dollars. I also like the fact there is no title sponsor for the Masters. This is THE

MASTERS, period. I realize the Tour depends on sponsors to fund the regular events, but this is not the Western Hemisphere Bank Augusta Championship, or the Expensive Luxury Car Invitational, or the Zoom-Mortgage Open, nor is it the Trust-me Financial Services Open. But, make no mistake, they're all with Fed-up, oh excuse me, "FedEx points at stake." Let's be real FedEx; golf is like a really long, slow, tedious march, not a "race."

As a TV "patron," roars or no roars, I know I certainly will be fully entertained watching the 87th Masters as I bite into my homemade pimento cheese sandwiches.
