Oral histories can keep Las Cruces history alive

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces' original townsite lies within the Mesquite Historic District just east of downtown, where residents know many stories about their neighborhood and about the nearly 175-year history of the city.

Las Esperanzas neighborhood association has begun a new project to collect those stories.

"Mis Memorias: Oral Histories of the Mesquite Street Historic District" is a major undertaking "that we hope will be an ongoing project," said Las Esperanzas treasurer Paul Mach.

For the project, La Esperanzas is teaming with the New Mexico State University History Department and NMSU Archives and Special Collections, which will be the repository of the oral histories and related documents that are collected, Mach said.

"At one time, NMSU professor Jon Hunner and his students interviewed and recorded around 10 residents of the Mesquite District, but then the project ended," Mach said.

"Las Esperanzas wants to revive collecting the stories of others who are connected to the district."

"What are your stories?" Las Esperanzas President Martha Rodriguez asked in an open letter to "those with connections to the Mesquite Historic District. Did you grow up in the district? Did you move here from someplace near or far? Tell us your memories, we'd like to hear them. Our stories today will be the history for those that come after us."

"Everyone should take ownership," Rodriguez told the Las Cruces Bulletin, including people who live in the Mesquite District and anyone with information about it or about someone who lived there."

"Everyone has a story," Mach said, "whether you have had family here for generations or you moved in a year ago."

"It's a very exciting project," said NMSU graduate history student Honor Beeson, one of the Mis Memorias volunteers.

"We're excited for what the younger generation will bring to the project," Rodriguez said. "NMSU Archives "is very open and excited about collecting stories," she said.

It's not just the neighborhood story, Rodriguez said. "It's Las Cruces' story."

Lamberto "Bindy" Trujillo, 96, is a perfect example of a recent "Mis Memorias" interview that is important to the history of Las Cruces, she said.

Trujillo grew up in the neighborhood and enlisted in the U.S. military at age 17, Rodriguez said.

Trujillo came back to Las Cruces to finish high school.

"When asked when his family first came to Las Cruces, Bindy simply responded, 'My family has always lived here,'" Rodriguez said. "Bindy's family are members of the Piro tribe and his ancestors were here even before the City of Las Cruces was established."

One of the things Trujillo told Rodriguez was his idea "to build a veteran wall for his fellow veterans and those who never returned home," she said. "He was actively involved in bringing his dream to life and when the wall was erected, it was one of his proudest moments."

It is important that Memorias volunteers talk to as many people like Trujillo as possible for the project, Rodriguez said.

"My sister remembers things I don't remember," she said. "That's how the blanks are filled in."

To participate in "Mis Memorias," visit www.las-esperanzas.com/contact-us.html.

From 'Mis Memorias'

"In 1849, (Las Cruces') original townsite included a variety of nationalities, including Native Americans, Mexicans, Europeans, African Americans, people of Jewish descent, as well as a variety of religious faiths, such as Catholic, Methodist and Jewish.

"Additionally, the district has been home to Lamberto "Bindy" Trujillo, above today at age 96, and upper right in the 1947 Las Cruces High School yearbook. "My family has always lived here," Trujillo said.

COURTESY PHOTOS

Native Americans since ancient times (including) Piro-Manso-Tiwa and Apache and Comanche people whose descendants still live in the neighborhood.

"The collection of oral histories will include long-time residents of the neighborhood, many of whom are descendants of the first residents of the original townsite, as well as newcomers who have embraced the history and culture and are preserving the historic value of their homes and properties."

Questionnaires and release forms are available in English and Spanish.

Las Esperanzas

Las Esperanzas, Inc. was founded in 1999 by Consuelo "Connie" Lerma. It was created to help revitalize the neighborhood and protect its history and culture and preserve its architecture.

In addition to "Mis Memorias," Las Esperanzas is sponsoring its ninth annual enchilada fundraiser to benefit students in the A. Fielder Memorial Safe Haven Weed and Seed Program. In partnership with La Nueva Casita Café, the fundraiser will be 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11, at El Calvario United Methodist Church, 316 N. Campo St. Red enchilada plates are $10.

Las Esperanzas also is involved in projects: 1) to redesign parts of Lohman and Amador avenues to make them safer for pedestrians and bikers; 2) to improve lighting in the south portion of the Mesquite Historic District and, working with the Downtown Las Cruces Partnership, to bring additional lighting to other parts of the district; 3) getting state capital outlay funds to make improvements to Klein Park, 155 N. Mes-quite St.; 4) to build community, possibly including a neighborhood yard sale; and 5) revitalizing a Neighborhood Watch program in the district.

Since 2013, Las Esperanzas has been awarding blue plaques to owners of properties in the district, including private homes, businesses and churches, to help "preserve the history of the property," Mach said. About 60 plaques have been awarded, he said, and there are about a dozen left from the collection of plaques Las Esperanzas purchased from the City of Las Cruces.

"When they're gone, they're gone," Mach said.

Public input meetings scheduled on LRG water plan

BULLETIN REPORT

The New Mexico Interstate Stream Commission (NMISC) will host public meetings Sept. 8-23 in Las Cruces, Hatch and Anthony, New Mexico, to provide more information and answer questions about its Lower Rio Grande (LRG) Water Management Pilot Project, NMISC said in a news release.

NMISC will begin accepting grant applications for the program Monday, Sept. 25.

The program was created to initiate groundwater conservation actions to ensure New Mexico has a sustainable groundwater supply, NMISC said. Under the program, grants will be provided to compensate willing irrigators in the LRG basin for temporarily conserving groundwater by not irrigating previously irrigated parcels for a period of two years. Applications to participate will be accepted Sept. 25-Oct. 16.

Public meetings are scheduled:

- 9-11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 8, Doña Ana Community College Gadsen campus, 1700 O'Hara Road in Anthony;

- 2:30-4:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 8, Village of Hatch Community Center, 837 Hwy. 187 in Hatch;
- 2-4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9, third floor of Corbett Center Student Union, NMSU campus in Las Cruces.

Grant application information sessions are scheduled:

- 3-4:30 p.m. and 5-6:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 22, Village of Hatch Community Center, 837 Hwy 187 in Hatch;
- 9-10:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 23, DACC Gadsen campus, 1700 Ohara Road in Anthony;
- 3-4:30 p.m. and 5-6:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 23, Corbett Center, NMSU campus in Las Cruces.

Register for all events at www.surveymonkey.com/r/J8ZKMB6. Contact Lilly Irvin-Vitela at 505-234-0694 and lilly@communityconnectsconsulting.com.

The pilot program operated in 2022-23, during which NMISC administered more than 70 grant agreements with voluntary participants who chose to temporarily stop irrigating land for one-year periods, NMISC said.

During the pilot phase, about 2,500 acres of land was temporarily fallowed and NMISC issued $3.6 million in grants. For information, visit www.ose.state.nm.us/LRG-GWCP/index.php.

Richardson remembered as 'giant among men'

BULLETIN REPORT

Former New Mexico Governor Bill Richardson died Friday night, Sept. 1, at his summer home in Chatham, Massachusetts at age 75. No cause of death given.

In addition to his eight years as governor (2003-11), Richardson also was a member of Congress, the first elected to represent New Mexico's then new Third Congressional District in 1982, a seat he held for 14 years. He resigned the House seat to become U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, a post he held 1997-98 before serving as secretary of the U.S. Department of Energy, 1998-2001. He was briefly a presidential candidate in the Democratic primary in 2008. Richardson was nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize in August for his work in international hostage negotiations.

Richardson, a native of Los Angeles, grew up in Mexico City, went to prep school and college in Massachusetts, and moved to Santa Fe in 1978. He became executive director of the New Mexico Democratic Party and the Bernalillo County Democratic Party. His first bid for elective office came in 1980, when he narrowly lost the U.S. House seat in New Mexico's First Congressional District to longtime incumbent Manuel Lujan.

"I am saddened to learn of Governor Richardson's passing and wish to express my condolences to his family," former New Mexico Gov. and New Mexico State University Chancellor and President Garrey Carruthers told the Bulletin. "Governor Richardson was a consummate politician and statesman. Few New Mexicans have achieved the acclaimed public service status accorded the Governor. I liked him personally and very much appreciated him seeking my counsel and assistance such as asking me to Cochair the Ethics Taskforce, Chair the New Mexico Medicaid Advisory Committee, campaign with him for passage of the Spaceport tax initiative, and joining me in teaching a class at NMSU. More public leaders should follow his lead in reaching out to members of the opposite party for advice, counsel and assistance. In addition, he named the State Library after me. Now you know why I think he was the consummate politician and statesman."

"New Mexico has always led in producing some fantastic leaders that represent the Hispanic community across the nations. Bill Richardson was truly the cream of the crop," U.S. Rep. Gabe Vasquez, D-N.M., of Las Cruces said. Richardson "always represented his Hispanic heritage and proudly represented New Mexico. When I got into politics, everyone asked me, 'Do you know Bill Richardson?' Yes, I do. Who doesn't know Bill Richardson? He became known internationally for his work as a Congressman, as the Secretary of Energy, as the governor of New Mexico. He was later in life a hostage negotiator. What Bill Richardson did was, he broke the mold of what it meant to be a Hispanic politician. (As Richardson traveled around the world), it really brought full circle what it meant to be a person from New Mexico who understood those cultures and broke those barriers."

"Governor Richardson's loss will be felt across the planet," U.S. Rep. Melanie Stansbury, D-N.M., said.

"Richardson has left an indelible mark on New Mexico politics and public service. He lived and loved big, mentored a generation of leaders, and served our great state and nation."

The Democratic Party of New Mexico released the following statement on the passing of Governor Bill Richardson:

"It is a sad day for New Mexico Democrats as we remember the life and mourn the passing of Governor Bill Richardson," the Democratic Party of New Mexico said. "Governor Richardson was a larger-than-life public figure who always put public service first."

"Governor Richardson was a giant in public service and government," said U.S. Sen. Ben Ray Lujan, D-N.M. "He was trusted to handle some of the most sensitive diplomatic crises, and he did so with great success. Here in New Mexico, we will always remember him as our governor. He never stopped fighting for the state he called home. Governor Richardson was a close friend who held the same House seat that I was elected to. He knew how to get things done, and he worked closely with my late father in the Legislature."

"New Mexico, our country, and, frankly, the entire world lost a champion," Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham said.

"Bill Richardson was a titan among us, fighting for the little guy, world peace and everything in between. He was a visionary who saw the potential of our great state before so many others did. He saw us taking on Hollywood and reaching for the stars, launching both the film and space industries that continue to reap significant economic benefits today. For my own part, Bill was a mentor and adviser who was instrumental in my own journey into elected office. He was a steadfast friend who celebrated my successes, and someone I could turn to in those moments when leading is particularly challenging. I am immeasurably grateful to have known such a giant among men."

"Governor Richardson's belief in the future of New Mexico is reflected in Spaceport America's journey in developing technologies, companies, and economic opportunity for the citizens of our state and all mankind," said Spaceport officials. "During his time in office, Governor Richardson had a vital and profound impact on the creation of the spaceport. It can well be argued that the spaceport would not exist without his vision, passion, belief in the potential of New Mexico, and the tireless work he put in to make it a reality. He will be greatly missed."

Richardson earned a BA, majoring in French and political science, and an MA in international affairs from Tufts University. He is survived by his wife, Barbara, whom he married in 1972.

Tents to Rents fundraiser: Johnny's story

Editor's note: This is another in a series about residents of the Mesilla Valley Community of Hope's Camp Hope tent city and the 2023 Tents to Rents fundraising campaign, as Mesilla Valley Community of Hope (MVCH) raises funds to support Camp Hope, helping to move camp residents into their own apartments.

By MIRIAM CHAIKEN

Community of Hope Volunteer

Johnny is grateful for the security and support he has found at Camp Hope. At the camp he can take a shower whenever he likes, has access to laundry facilities, is able to get two meals per day at the soup kitchen and can sleep soundly knowing he is safe.

Compared with living on

the streets, Johnny said being in the camp is living, not just existing. He has found his fellow camp residents to be good people, and the staff are helping him to apply for SSI and food stamps, so he has options for his future.

Johnny completed one semester of college, studying business management, and would like to find work doing roofing or landscaping. He is not afraid of hard, physical work.

To support Johnny and others at Camp Hope as they shape a new, hopeful future for themselves, consider clicking on the secure donation page at tentstorents.org.

Fun run

The New Mexico State University Office of Experiential Learning is sponsoring the Aggies Giving Back 5K Color Fun Run, 7-11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 9, at Pan American Center, 1810 E. University Ave.

Tents to Rents will receive 100 percent of the proceeds. The run and walk are open to all students, faculty, staff and alumni of NMSU, along with community members. Minors can participate, with those under 16 accompanied by an adult.

The entry fee is $20 per person or $85 for a group of five. The first 150 participants will receive a 5K Color Fun Run tee shirt. Colorful and creative dress for the run/walk, including tutus, hair accessories, socks and sunglasses, are encouraged.

"Runner/walkers will take a course through the beautiful NMSU campus with locations on the route where runners will get covered in color powder," according to the event description. "There will be a finish line celebration with vendors, music and food."

Visit happeningnext.com/event/aggies-giving-back-5k-color-fun-run-eid4so4kntvx81.

Other events

Tents to Rents' Hops for Hope continues through Saturday, Sept. 9, at Little Toad Creek Brewery and Distillery, 119 N. Main St. Enjoy a meal and a drink and make a donation to Tents to Rents. Icebox Brewery and Taproom, 2825 W. Picacho Ave., will host Hops for Hope Thursday, Sept. 21, with a percentage of proceeds benefitting Tents to Rents.

OMHS earns FFA honors

The Organ Mountain High School (OMHS) FFA chapter has been recognized in the 2023 National Chapter Award Program from the National FFA Organization, OMHS FFA advisor Julia Abrams said.

The national program "recognizes outstanding FFA chapters from throughout the country that actively implement the mission and strategies of the organization (by) growing leaders, building communities and strengthening agriculture," Abrams said.

Chapters that received star ratings during judging this summer will be recognized at the 96th National FFA Convention and Expo in Indianapolis, Indiana in November, she said.

The National FFA Organization is a school-based national youth leadership development organization of more than 945,000 student members.

Las Cruces Utilities Can Help with Leak Detection

By Mandy Leatherwood Guss

That wet spot in your yard, where the grass is always greener, may not necessarily be a good thing. It could be a sign you need to pay attention to.

The greener grass, the area where vegetation in your yard appears to be flourishing, or the unexplained wet spot could be an indication there is a water leak. In time, that can mean an increase in your monthly Las Cruces Utilities water bill and the added cost of hiring a plumber to repair the water line.

Ronald Borunda, Deputy Director of Water at LCU, suggests that homeowners and property owners can use their senses, with support from LCU, to save money. "Being able to visualize and hear are two senses that can be a big help," Borunda said. "Is there a wet spot in someone's yard?"

Can someone hear the sound, maybe faint or otherwise, of running water? Those can be indications there is a water leak on the property somewhere."

LCU installs water meters near city streets, typically at the curb, which also come equipped with a low-flow indicator. LCU technicians can utilize this indicator to identify potential water leaks. The low-flow indicator can mean there is a water leak somewhere in a homeowner's yard, or near a tub, toilet, shower, sink, or washing machine. The low-flow indicator might signal there could be water leak within the foundation of a home or property.

Las Cruces Utilities cannot fix a water leak discovered on private property, as that is a property owner's responsibility. If a water leak is suspected or detected, while LCU also cannot recommend a plumber who can repair the leak, there are plenty to choose from on the web. "From the property line, where the meter is located, up to the home and inside is the owner's responsibility," Borunda said. "Anything in the street to the water meter is the City's responsibility, and LCU will repair that as quickly as possible."

To help customers manage water usage and detect water leaks, LCU offers UtilityHawk, a program which warns customers when threshold levels are reached by volume, elapsed time of usage, or as a customer's bill approaches a pre-set amount. Once the customer has signed up for UtilityHawk, they need to set the threshold, so they are notified. The system notifies a customer enrolled in the free program when spikes in usage occur, which might indicate a minor or major issue.

UtilityHawk enables customers to address the issue immediately or adjust their budget if the unusual usage is intentional. The program also can be used by customers with significant accounts, such as property managers or landlords?

LCU customers can access water and natural gas. Accounts from any device, such as a desktop or laptop computer, a tablet, or a smartphone. The program is available in English or Spanish.

LCU customers interested in UtilityHawk can enroll in the free program at LCUUtilityHawk.com or call Las Cruces Utilities Customer Central, at (575) 541-2111 for information.

Galactic 03 flight slated for Friday

BULLETIN REPORT

Virgin Galactic's Galactic 03 flight window opens Friday, Sept. 8, continuing a monthly cadence of spaceflights. This would be the Company's fourth spaceflight in four months.

The Galactic 03 crew bought tickets for a commercial space flight as early as 2005 and, since then, have been an active part of the company's future astronaut community, consisting of approximately 800 individuals representing more than 60 different countries.

The pilots for Galactic 03 are VSS Unity Commander Nicola Pecile, and VSS Unity Pilot Michael Masucci; the astronaut instructor is Colin Bennett.

A hearty salute to our first responders

A life can change in a single instant.

It's happened to many of us, and to people we love.

If we have a flat tire, many of us know how to change it. But if we have a broken arm, we can't take care of it ourselves. If our child gets a serious cut, we're probably not equipped to stitch it up.

Many of us can't even handle the sight of a drop of blood.

But there is a group of people out there -- thank God -- who are trained and willing to act to help us in those life-changing instants.

Injury. Car wrecks. Surgery. Crime. Fire. Heart attacks. Stroke.

There are a thousand different things that can happen to us in that instant.

Who is helping?

These are the first responders.

These are the people who are working at 3 a.m. in the emergency room, the people answering the 9-1-1 calls at midnight, and the people responding to all kinds of dangerous situations.

We salute them in our special section this week "A Salute to First Responders." Check the center of the Bulletin for that.

As a newspaperman, I've sometimes been a second responder over the years, attending accidents and such, observing first responders up close and personal.

One of the more memorable times was a car crash when I was working at the Alamogordo Daily News.

It was pretty obvious when I got there the accident was caused by a drunk driver running a red light.

Thankfully, no one was seriously injured, but on this otherwise quiet Sunday afternoon, I watched the first responders closely.

The victims had wound up on the northwest corner of the intersection, while the drunk driver was on the southeast corner.

The EMTs were tending to the victims' minor injuries and assessing the drunk driver.

The police were on scene and I was struck by the actions of one particular officer.

While he remained business-like throughout, I noticed his demeanor change as he crossed the street talking to both parties.

With the drunk driver, he was stern and persistent in seeking information, without screaming or cursing.

With the victims, he was comforting and assuring, while still seeking the information needed.

I knew the officer's name from previous meetings, and he was courteous in responding to my questions as a journalist.

His name was Al Marchand.

Marchand retired not long after that, achieving his dream of becoming a flight attendant, and a life of travel.

The next time his name was in the news, however, was for the worst of reasons.

He was working United Airlines Flight 175 leaving Boston to Los Angeles. But the flight took an unexpected detour to New York City.

The date? Sept. 11, 2001.

Richardson always wanted something bigger

Bill Richardson was the most ambitious person I've ever met.

Our first meeting was when I was a moderator for a 2002 gubernatorial debate against Republican John Sanchez and David Bacon of the Green Party. Richardson was so unconcerned with his opposition that he instead focused on Democrats in the state Legislature, warning them not to get in the way of his big tax cut.

Richardson's plan was to pass tax cuts for corporations and rich people, then advertise them on a billboard in Times Square with his face on it. Ambitious.

After having previously served in Congress, as ambassador to the United Nations and Energy secretary, Richardson saw the job of governor as the final step toward his ultimate goal, president of the United States. His pitch to voters in 2008 was that he was the most qualified candidate in the race. And, on paper, he did have a better resume than Barack Obama. Both were ambitious.

Richardson once commissioned a study intended to eventually bring an NFL team to New Mexico. His plan was to have a bi-national team that would play home games in Albuquerque, El Paso and Juarez. Blindly ambitious.

He invested $60 million in the Rail Runner and another $218 million in Spaceport America. The train spurred new economic development around the Santa Fe depot, but has not taken as many cars off the road as expected. The jury is still out on the spaceport. Expensively ambitious.

Richardson loved to mingle with rock stars and movie stars.

WALT RUBEL
The View From Here

A guitar signed by the Eagles was one of his prized possessions. The New Mexico film industry was born of his love for stars. Generous tax credits lured film and TV production to our state. Albuquerque is now known more for "Breaking Bad" than hot air balloons. But rural taxpayers who contribute to the tax credits have seen few benefits. Starry-eyed ambitious.

I was hired as the Santa Fe bureau chief shortly after Richardson took office, and it was one of the best times of my career. Richardson was named chairman of the 2004 Democratic Convention. I was at the Fleet Center in Boston when an unknown Obama introduced himself to the nation.

I'm not sure his two terms were as good for the state. The tax cuts may not hurt now, with oil producing record levels of revenue, but that will end. And, his second-term ended in a pay-to-play scandal that prevented his return to Washington.

But there's a part of me that has to admire somebody who's not afraid to dream big ... even ridiculously big sometimes.

Walter Rubel is a freelance journalist based in Las Cruces. Supporting paid family leave

By TERRELENE MASSEY

A healthier, more equitable future hinges on the bold proposition of a Paid Family & Medical Leave (PFML) program. This transformative initiative has the power to reshape our economy and also to enhance the health outcomes of families, mothers, and children, reinforcing the very fabric of our society.

PFML isn't just about granting employees the ability to take time off work without financial worry; it's about recognizing the vital role that health and well-being play in building a thriving nation. According to the World Health Organization, the well-being of a nation is intertwined with the well-being of its citizens. In this context, PFML becomes more than a policy; it becomes a pathway to healthier families, healthier communities, and a more robust economy.

When mothers have the opportunity to bond with their newborns and properly recover from childbirth, the effects reverberate throughout their families. Studies have shown that PFML positively impacts maternal health outcomes, reducing the risk of postpartum depression and complications. This nurturing foundation directly contributes to stronger mother-child bonds, leading to healthier child development and, consequently, healthier adults.

PFML's influence extends beyond the immediate postpartum period.

It ensures that parents can provide necessary care when their children face health challenges. By allowing parents to be present during medical procedures or extended recoveries, PFML becomes an investment in the health and emotional well-being of the next generation. A recent study by the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) Pediatrics found that children with parental involvement during hospitalizations exhibit better emotional and developmental outcomes, laying the groundwork for a healthier society in the years to come.

Contrary to concerns PFML might burden businesses, research indicates it can stimulate economic growth. A report by the National Partnership for Women & Families found states with paid family and medical leave programs saw an increase in labor force participation, leading to greater productivity and reduced turnover. When employees are assured they can tend to family health needs without sacrificing financial stability, they are more likely to remain committed to careers, contributing to overall economic prosperity.

By ensuring that employees don't have to choose between caring for their loved ones and their financial security, PFML strengthens the foundation of our workforce. It acknowledges the interdependence of work and life and rejects the notion that individuals should bear the weight of this balance alone. This acknowledgement translates into improved morale, higher job satisfaction, and ultimately a more resilient and productive workforce.

Critics have raised concerns about the costs associated with implementing PFML. However, research conducted by the Center for Economic and Policy Research demonstrates that the impact of such programs on employers' bottom lines is modest at best. In fact, these programs tend to boost worker retention and attract a wider talent pool, creating a competitive advantage for businesses in the long run.

As we advocate for the adoption of PFML, we are not simply championing a policy; we are advocating for a healthier, more prosperous society. The evidence is clear: a program that supports family health ultimately supports the health of our nation's economy. By investing in mothers' postpartum well-being, nurturing the health of our children, and empowering families to navigate medical challenges, we sow the seeds of a brighter future.

Let's embrace the promise of a Paid Family & Medical Leave program and unlock a future where health and prosperity intertwine, creating a legacy that resonates for generations.

Terrelene Massey is the executive director for Southwest Women's Law Center and spearheads the Paid Family Medical Leave Coalition.

NMSU eyes 'demographic cliff'

By ALAN SHOHO

What is the demographic enrollment cliff? It refers to the significant drop in the college-age population that will begin in the 2026-27 academic year, and it represents a prolonged period of time – more than two decades – when New Mexico will produce fewer and fewer high school graduates. New Mexico is projected to produce 25 percent fewer high school graduates by the 2036-37 academic year.

Why worry? This phenomenon will have widespread implications.

In producing fewer high school graduates, New Mexico will produce fewer workers, affecting our efforts to advance economic development. Having fewer young people in the workforce will adversely impact the tax base, providing less revenue for the state to support a variety of services for its citizens. To see how impactful a demographic cliff can be, just look at China: For many years, China had a national policy limiting most families to one child by imposing hefty fines. In recent years, China relaxed and then ended this policy, because they realized, among other problems, their workforce would not be sufficient to support an aging population that was living longer.

The same problem looms for New Mexico.

For higher education, this means a negative impact on community colleges and universities in the state unless we explore some creative and innovative policymaking. While some lawmakers and communities debate the relative value of higher education, it is indisputable that community colleges and universities are economic drivers. Higher education produces an educated workforce and spurs economic development and innovation.

What can be done to mitigate the demographic cliff? There are a number of internal and external interventions that can help minimize its adverse effects.

Let me first address external factors for higher education and then some internal factors all higher education institutions, including NMSU, must examine to position itself for a positive path forward.

First, New Mexico colleges and universities cannot continue to rely primarily on New Mexico high school students. There just aren't enough of them to provide a robust economic and workforce development pipeline. We must broaden our student pool by enticing surrounding states with in-state tuition. New Mexico universities already offer in-state or deeply discounted rates to some students in neighboring states. I am exploring an Interstate-10 corridor policy exemption to allow students from Los Angeles to Phoenix and Tucson, to San Antonio, Houston and south of I-10 to the Rio Grande Valley to be given the opportunity to come NMSU at a discounted tuition rate.

At NMSU, fewer than half of our graduating students stay in New Mexico after they graduate. This is much lower than many states, where the number is closer to 80 percent. Why don't NMSU graduates stay in New Mexico? It's simple – New Mexico doesn't currently offer the array of high-paying job opportunities found elsewhere. Here's a real-life example: A talented student who works in the NMSU president's office recently earned a great internship opportunity in Boston. She did such a great job, the company offered her a position when she graduates next May. The job opportunities available locally for this Las Cruces native just weren't enticing enough to keep her here.

Second, like Texas already requires, we need to require as part of high school graduation that all students complete a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Many qualified New Mexico students are leaving up to $7,395 on the table by not applying for federal aid.

Internally, NMSU and all of New Mexico's colleges and universities need to examine what they can do differently to drive enrollment and retention. Inaction or maintaining the status quo will have disastrous results. I experienced this at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee from 2015 to 2021. From 2011 to 2023, UWM's enrollment went from 32,000 to under 22,000. Every institution needs to improve its student retention rate by examining every aspect, from how courses are scheduled to advising practices to structural and cultural aspects that may be inadvertently creating barriers to success.

We're fast approaching the demographic enrollment cliff. What will New Mexico do to mitigate its adverse effects and ensure a softer landing?

LCFD wants you! Department recruiting for '24

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Las Cruces Fire Department is now recruiting for its next fire academy, which starts in March 2024, Fire Chief Jason Smith said.

With a total strength of 193 full-time, sworn firefighter positions, LCFD expects to hire 20-24 new firefighters to fill current vacancies and anticipated retirements, the chief said.

A qualified applicant must be at least 18 years old by the start of the academy, have a high school diploma or the equivalent, be a United States citizen or have the legal right to work in the United States, already have or be able to obtain an emergency medicine technician (EMT) license, pass a written exam and a physical exam, pass an acrophobia test, complete an in-person interview, have a valid driver's license and an acceptable driving record and pass a background check.

Cadets are hired as temporary, full-time employees while completing the 24-week fire academy (March 18-Aug. 31, 2024), and become full-time firefighter trainees when they graduate from the academy and are sworn in.

The starting annual salary for a Las Cruces firefighter cadet and trainee is $45,136.

Smith said one half of the fire academy is devoted to fire response training and the other half to EMS. If a cadet already has an EMS license, they could graduate early.

Joining LCFD is a great way to start a life-long career, the chief said, or to consider if you're thinking of changing careers.

But, a career with LCFD is more than fighting fires, Smith said, noting that of LCFD's approximately 22,000 calls for services in 2022, only about five percent were related to fighting fires.

"There are several different career paths," he said, including becoming a certified law enforcement officer, arson investigator, peer support, technical rescue, aircraft rescue, hazmat, contract management, medical billing, social work, mobile integrated healthcare and even fire sprinkler plan review.

You could also devote time to the local firefighters' union, the International Association of Firefighters union.

"There are a lot of opportunities," Smith said. "You won't be limited to a single role for your entire career."

Joining LCFD could also help a recruit "find that sense of team or belonging – something that is bigger than just a paycheck," said Smith, who joined LCFD almost 21 years ago as a firefighter and became fire chief in March 2021.

Before signing on, Smith was an observer on LCFD Engine #2.

"It was the best 12 hours of on-the-job training I ever had," he said. "I really found what I was looking for."

LCFD has eight fire stations with a ninth in development on the East Mesa.

Cadets set to graduate

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces Fire Department (LCFD) will graduate 13 cadets from its 36th Fire Academy in a ceremony that will begin at 5 p.m. Friday, Sept. 8, in the auditorium at Doña Ana Community College's East Mesa campus, 2800 Sonoma Ranch Blvd.

The event is open to the public.

Fire cadets expected to graduate Sept. 8 include Lachlan Boyd, Cody De La O, David Dean, Jayden Diaz, Gabriel Franco, Joseph Gallardo, Melina Gaytan, Patrick Martinez, Abram Maynez, Roman Orrantia, Erick Ronquillo, Bryce Thatcher and Keith Tracy, LCFD said in a news release.

The LCFD Fire Academy includes 24 weeks of field training and classroom instruction.

Beginning Sept. 10, cadets who already have their EMS licenses will begin working in shift rotations.

The remaining cadets will begin their shift rotations after completing an additional eight-week EMT course through the Fire Academy.

The Las Cruces Fire Department will graduate 13 cadets Sept. 8.

Lea Thompson

OF "SPENCER SISTERS": (COMING IN OCTOBER) ON CW

Q: I see that Lea Thompson is returning in a new series. What was the last one she did?

A: As a series regular, that would have been "Switched at Birth," on which she played one of the mothers whose daughters were ... well, check the title of the show again. She also had recurring roles on "Scorpion" (as the Katharine McPhee character's mom) and "The Goldbergs," and she had a guest part last year on "Star Trek: Picard."

It's worth noting that Thompson also was a director on the latter two programs, and she's been spending a lot of time in that job – which she shares with her husband, Howard Deutch ("Pretty in Pink") – in recent times. She also has guided episodes of "Will Trent" (on which Deutch is an executive producer and occasional director), "Resident Alien" and "Young Sheldon" among other shows. Earlier, Thompson directed four "Switched at Birth" stories as well as two of the "Jane Doe" mystery movies in which she starred.

Thompson's other major series credit as a star is the 1990s sitcom "Caroline in the City," which ran almost as long as "Switched at Birth," ending just short of 100 episodes.

She'll have another shot at longevity on weekly TV when she returns in "The Spencer Sisters," a Canadian import premiering Oct. 4 on The CW. She and Stacey Farber play a mystery-writer mother and police-officer daughter (despite the "Sisters" in the title) who decide to open a private-detective agency. Thompson isn't credited with directing any of that show yet, but that's likely to change if it continues for additional seasons.

Las Cruces nurse receives excellence award

BULLETIN REPORT

The New Mexico Center for Nursing Excellence (NMCNE) honored 25 nurses and nurse advocates at its annual New Mexico Nursing Excellence Awards, including Memorial Medical Center (MMC) nurse Karl Ngoye, who received NMCNE's 2023 community service award.

The awards honored excellence in all levels of nursing practice and leadership, NMCNE said in a news release.

Ngoye graduated from Doña Ana Community College in 2015 with an associate degree in nursing and earned a bachelor's degree in nursing from New Mexico State University before going to work for MMC.

Ngoye has received MMC's Daisy Achievement Award multiple times, acknowledging his outstanding patient care. He received NMCNE's "Touch a Life" award in 2022.

Ngoye is also an active community volunteer.

"We are thrilled to honor Karl Ngoye again this year," said NMCNE Board of Directors President Robert Middleton. "This incredible nurse from Memorial Medical Center is helping his community every single day. "The Nursing Excellence Awards were created by nurses for nurses, making this state-wide recognition especially meaningful and prestigious within the nursing profession."

Throughout its 20-year history, NMCNE "has recognized excellence in nursing practice and honored nurses for the contributions they make to their organizations, communities and our state," the news release said. Since 2005, more than 3,200 nurses throughout the state have been nominated for Nursing Excellence Awards.

Funds support unique project

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

An appropriation sponsored by U.S. Sen. Martin Heinrich, D-N.M., would allocate $3 million to the Las Cruces Fire Department to build and furnish a "response station" to house the Las Cruces Fire Department's (LCFD) Mobile Integrated Healthcare (MIH) program and its Project LIGHT (Lessen the Incidence of Grief, Harm and Trauma).

Fire Chief Jason Smith said LCFD is looking at multiple locations for the response station if final funding is approved, including the former Fire Station No. 3 building on Valley Drive; Fire Station No. 8, 550 N. Sonoma Ranch Blvd.; and the yet-to-be-built Fire Station No. 9, which, like Station 8, will be located on the East Mesa.

LCFD began its Mobile Integrated Health program in 2016 and launched Project LIGHT in early 2023 to add mental crisis intervention services to MIH. To date, Project LIGHT has received 378 calls for service, LCFD Battalion Chief Matthew Hiles told the city council at its July 24 work session.

Stewart's longtime service as first responder lives on

By RICHARD COLTHARP
Las Cruces Bulletin

While most police officers retire with 25 years or less, JR Stewart had something different in mind.

"He wanted to go out with the record for most years with the Las Cruces Police Department," said one of JR's three brothers, Chris Stewart. "And at the time, he did; 35 years-plus."

During that long tenure, the man who wore badge No. 141 was never seriously hurt. In fact, to this day, there has never been an LCPD officer killed in the line of duty.

But, of course, there were some close calls. Stewart's wife, Rosie, stood by him all those years.

"Sometimes, in the morning, I'd wonder if this was going to be the last time I'd see him," Rosie said. "He'd get called on a domestic call, and there would be a guy holding his wife and kids hostage; he was one of the ones on the scene, and sometimes shots went into the air. I guess my faith – I'm Catholic – got me through. I always felt God was going to watch over him."

So it was the irony of ironies, the cruel twist of fate – whatever you want to call it – when in 2017, JR Stewart, retired three years, riding his prized Harley-Davidson, was killed in a crash caused by some law-breaking carjackers.

A legacy

He was born Juan Ramon Stewart, named for his father, John Raymond Stewart. Everyone knew him as JR, but close family and friends called him Ray.

No matter the name, though, he was always up for the task.

"He lived life to the fullest and was always kind to people," Rosie said. "He would give you the shirt off his back. He loved kids, and it was so hard for him to see children being abused or in accidents."

"When we were younger, he always stood up for people who were getting bullied," Chris said. "Then he would get me and our other brothers involved, and we all stood up for them."

For JR that translated well for a career in law enforcement, and was an influence on his brothers as well. Chris worked for both the LCPD and the Doña Ana County Sheriff's Office. Jimmy also worked for DASO and Andre worked as a corrections officer in a detention center.

The family, friends and longtime colleagues who loved Stewart wanted to continue his legacy, so they formed the JR Stewart 141 Foundation. The Foundation created the JR Stewart Endowed Scholarship at New Mexico State University, designed to assist children and grandchildren of active and retired local law enforcement officers. The Foundation champions car seat clinics to ensure young children are buckled safely with proper seats. The Foundation has an annual golf tournament to raise funds to continue these and other projects.

In these ways, the Foundation believes, people can continue seeing and feeling JR's spirit and goodwill.

response teams, which include social workers and emergency medical technicians, have had 141 patient contacts and interventions. Hiles said. Almost half were for psychological issues and about six percent were medical issues. 40 percent involved multiple issues.

In nearly half of Project LIGHT dispositions, the person involved was transported to a mental health provider, which Hiles said included FYI+, the County Triage Center and Peak Behavioral Health in Santa Teresa. 18 percent of calls resulted in treatment and resolution on scene, 13 percent resulted in EMS transport and 20 percent were handled by law enforcement officers, Hiles said.

LCPD has requested Project LIGHT teams 103 times, Hiles said.

"The LIGHT teams have been a resounding success," Acting Las Cruces Police Chief Jeremy Story said. "They have enabled the police department to focus on safety while the mental health professionals focus on providing the best care possible and plugging people into the resources they need."

The police department "does a really good job of just kind of hanging back," said FYI+ Senior Clinical Director Lisa Chavez, who provides clinical supervision to LCFD social workers. Police officers have also been "supportive to step in" when they are needed, Chavez said.

"We are bridging that gap from scene to proper source," Hiles said, with those individuals Project LIGHT teams are responding to getting the treatment they need.

"This is great and deserves a standing ovation," Councilor Becki Graham said.

LCFD said its goal is to respond to 90 percent of all mental health crisis calls in the city by July 1, 2024.

Burke will miss brothers, sisters of LCFD

By RICHARD COLTHARP
Las Cruces Bulletin

If you ask first responders about the hardest day they ever had on the job, it can be difficult to answer. A police officer must consider times of extreme danger, or times when citizens were saved or protected. An emergency room nurse must consider times when life was snatched from death, or times when many people were hurt at once.

For one Las Cruces firefighter, Louie Burke, the hardest day just might have been his last, Retirement Day.

"It's a bittersweet moment," Burke said at his Aug. 31 retirement party.

"The brotherhood, the sisterhood, I'm gonna miss it," Burke said. "I've been choked up all day. The heart of these people. They are so good."

Others talked about Burke's heart.

"He's always made an impact beyond his service," said Las Cruces Fire Department Chief Jason Smith. "He has the ability to coach the young firefighters with a spirit of happiness. He has dedicated his heart to the department and their families."

Former LCFD chief, Eric Enriquez, said, "He's so dedicated. He had many opportunities but stayed here. His heart is this community. He has a servant's heart."

Burke swore his firefighter's oath in December 1997, and called it a career 25 years and 9 months later.

Many know Burke from his days as a boxer and boxing coach.

At the ceremony, Mayor Ken Miyagishima reference that: "He's a world champ to us in Las Cruces."

“Wrestlers” - Season 1 (Sept. 13)

Ohio Valley Wrestling of Louisville, Kentucky is a regional wrestling gym whose alumni include Brock Lesnar, The Miz, John Cena, Dave Bautista and Randy Orton. Once a proud finishing school for aspiring pro wrestlers, the gym has since hit hard times. With new partners helping to revitalize the business, acclaimed wrestler Al Snow has the summer to turn things around.

“Movie: Love at First Sight” (Sept. 15)

After missing her flight from New York to London, Hadley (Haley Lu Richardson) meets Oliver (Ben Hardy) in a chance encounter at the airport that sparks an instant connection. A long night on the plane together passes in the blink of an eye but upon landing at Heathrow, the pair are separated and finding each other in the chaos seems impossible. Will fate intervene to transform these seat mates into soul mates?

“Movie: El Conde” (Sept. 15)

This dark comedy/horror film imagines a parallel universe inspired by the recent history of Chile. The film portrays Augusto Pinochet (Jaime Vadall), a symbol of world fascism, as a vampire who lives hidden in a ruined mansion in the cold southern tip of the continent. After 250 years, Pinochet has decided to stop drinking blood and abandon the privilege of eternal life, no longer able to bear that the world remembers him as a thief.

“Surviving Summer” - Season 2 (Sept. 15)

Summer (Sky Katz) returns to Shorehaven, having found her own passion for surfing and eager to reunite with Ari (Kai Lewins) and her old friends in Season 2 of this young adult drama. But when she makes the State Team, she makes a mortal enemy of the team captain: Ari's new girlfriend, Wren (Annabel Wolfe).

“Sex Education” - Season 4 (Netflix — Sept. 21, Season Premiere)

Following the closure of Moordale Secondary, Otis (Asa Butterfield) and Eric (Ncuti Gatwa) now face a new frontier - their first day at Cavendish Sixth Form College. Otis is nervous about setting up his new clinic, whilst Eric is praying they won't be losers again. But Cavendish is a culture shock for all the Moordale students — they thought they were progressive, but this new college is another level. With daily yoga, a strong sustainability vibe and kindness reigning king, the new year and new school is an adjustment for all.

Bonded by insomnia, best friends Lisa (Antonia Thomas) and Danny (Craig Roberts) stay connected to each other late into the night and find their way through a world of wonderfully weird surprises as their relationship deepens in this almost-romantic comedy. Also starring in the ensemble cast are Blake Harrison, Lois Chimimba, Luke Fetherston and Rich Fulcher.

“The Continental: From the World of John Wick” (Peacock — Sept. 22, Miniseries Premiere)

Set in mid-1970s New York, this three-part, “John Wick” (2014) prequel centers on Winston Scott (Colin Woodell) and how he became the owner of the Continental Hotel, a neutral territory and home away from home for international assassins and members of the criminal underworld.

“Spy Kids: Armageddon” (Netflix — Sept. 22, Movie Premiere)

The fifth installment in the hit Spy Kids franchise follows a new group of secret spies: the Tango-Torrez family. When the children of the world's greatest secret agents unwittingly help a powerful Game Developer unleash a computer virus that gives him control of all technology, they must become spies themselves to save their parents and the world. Connor Esterson, Everly Carganilla, Zachary Levi and Gina Rodriguez star.

tonight's picks

Scientist Greg Lewbart in "Evolution Earth"

The Real Housewives of Orange County
BRAVO 6 p.m. 8:30 p.m.

It seems like mo' money, mo' problems for the ladies who lunch in the luxurious lap of Orange County. We've seen some new faces this season and surprisingly, it's not because there's a new plastic surgeon in town. Newcomer Jennifer Pedranti fits right in.

Bargain Block
HGTV 6 p.m.

Detroit may have seen better days, but renovation specialists Keith Bynum and Evan Thomas want to be part of the iconic American city's rebirth. These visionaries buy beat-up and run-down places and transform them into affordable, stylish starter homes.

MasterChef
KFOX 7 p.m.

So, you think you can cook? The six top chefs take over the world's largest Hell's Kitchen restaurant in an ultimate challenge. Two rounds of challenges follow for the remaining five home cooks in order to determine who moves on to the finals.

Battle of the Decades
FOOD 8 p.m. 11 p.m.

Jonathan Bennett welcomes skilled chefs from different generations to a competition that puts their distinct perspectives on food and pop culture in the spotlight! They'll take on classic dishes and viral food trends, but only one chef will win $10,000!

So Help Me Todd
KDBC 9 p.m.

Margaret (Marcia Gay Harden) finds herself on the verge of losing a prominent case involving the murder of an investigative journalist, so Todd (Skylar Astin) seeks help from an unlikely source. Other stars include Madeline Wise and Tristen J. Winger.

Evolution Earth
KRWG 9 p.m.

This new docuseries continues with its second episode, exploring how animal behavior can offer insights into our own ever-changing planet. From the Galapagos Islands to the edge of Antarctica, island wildlife reveals the effects of climate change.

Guy's Grocery Games: All-Star Invitational
FOOD 10 p.m.

This is where the rubber meets the road as the three all-star finalists shop and cook their way though Guy Fieri's most insane aisle games. The champion earns the trophy, a generous gift in their name for No Kid Hungry and $35,000 for Flavortown Market.

Reno 911! Defunded
COMEDY 11 p.m.

Being part of the Reno Bike Squad means dedication, perseverance and building some beautiful calf muscles. And with Lt. Dangle (Thomas Lennon) in charge, ineptitude both swerves and protects. Deputy Jones (Cendric Yarbrough) opens a one-man revue.

What's Available NOW On

“Movie: Kelce” (Sept. 12)

This intimate and emotional feature-length documentary chronicles Philadelphia Eagles team captain and All-Pro center Jason Kelce's 2022-23 season, which began with him confronting one of the most challenging decisions any professional athlete will ever face — is now the time to hang it up? Kelce embarks on a remarkable journey, highlighted by the arrival of his third daughter; the debut of his podcast “New Heights,” co-hosted with his brother, Kansas City Chiefs All-Pro tight end Travis; and a Super Bowl appearance.

“Movie: A Million Miles Away” (Sept. 15)

Inspired by the real-life story of NASA flight engineer José Hernández, this film follows him and his devoted family of proud migrant farm workers on a decades-long journey, from a rural village in Michoacán, Mexico, to the fields of the San Joaquin Valley, to more than 200 miles above the Earth in the International Space Station.

“Written in the Stars” - Season 1 (Sept. 15)

In this astrological dating show, each of the debut season's 12 episodes introduces a single person who represents one of the zodiac signs. This person goes on dates with four bachelors or bachelorettes with whom they have different zodiac compatibilities, hoping that the stars can guide them towards their perfect match.

“Wilderness” - Season 1 (Sept. 15)

Based on B.E. Jones' novel of the same name, this U.K. thriller follows British couple Liv (Jenna Coleman) and Will (Oliver Jackson-Cohen), who seem to have it all: a rock-solid marriage; a glamorous new life in New York thousands of miles from their provincial hometown; and still young enough to feel that their whole lives are ahead of them. Until, that is, Liv learns about Will's affair.

"SUCCESION: THE COMPLETE FOURTH AND FINAL SEASON"

Creator and executive producer Jesse Armstrong's HBO series goes out in a very big way, and though plot twists can be anticipated, one in particular is of the enormous kind that had many people talking for days after its original debut. Members of the Roy family continue to take diverse views and actions regarding the future of their media empire, with patriarch Logan (Brian Cox) ultimately having to reconsider his plans as other relatives also deal with respective personal crises. For its concluding round, the series currently leads Primetime Emmy Award nominations with a total of 27 bids; prominent cast members also include Jeremy Strong, Kieran Culkin, Sarah Snook, Alan Ruck, Nicholas Braun and Peter Friedman. A complete-series set also is available.  (Not rated: AS, P)

"AIR"

Directed by Ben Affleck – who's also among the stars here – this drama, which Amazon sent to theaters though it originally was intended to go directly to the Prime Video service, traces the background of Nike's origination of the Air Jordan basketball shoe line. Affleck, his longtime pal and collaborator Matt Damon and Jason Bateman play Nike executives who initially don't think they have a chance of landing Michael Jordan (portrayed by Damian Young) as their new spokesperson. They later find that's not the case, but they face strong competition from rival Adidas in enlisting Jordan, which will be quite an expensive proposition for the company that wins the sports icon's services. Marlon Wayans, Chris Messina, Viola Davis, Chris Tucker and Jay Mohr also appear.  (R: P) (Also on Blu-ray)

"THE WALKING DEAD: DEAD CITY – SEASON ONE"

AMC's popular horror-drama franchise expanded again with this first direct sequel to the original "The Walking Dead" series, spinning off the characters Maggie and Negan – still played by Lauren Cohan and Jeffrey Dean Morgan – as uneasy traveling companions who enter a nightmarish Manhattan, post-apocalypse. Their immediate mission is to find Maggie's abducted son Hershel (played here by Logan Kim), but they end up caught in another battle between opposing factions ... and Negan is in the crosshairs of one particular pursuer (Gaius Charles). Zeljko Ivanek (as the sinister Croat, one of the former Saviors of the first series) and Jonathan Higginbotham also are among stars of the show, which has gotten a second-season renewal.  (Not rated: AS, P, GV) (Also on Blu-ray) television when he did much to make disaster movies one of the most popular genres of the 1970s and 1980s, and several of his projects in that vein are combined in this Blu-ray set. Included are the theatrical features "Beyond the Poseidon Adventure" (starring Michael Caine, Sally Field and Karl Malden) and "When Time Ran Out ..." (with Paul Newman and William Holden, reteamed from Allen's "The Towering Inferno," plus Jacqueline Bisset), as well as several TV features pretty much described by their titles: "Cave-In!," "Fire!," "Flood!," "Hanging by a Thread" and "The Night the Bridge Fell Down." Among performers in the latter quintet are several alums of Allen's "The Poseidon Adventure" – Ernest Borgnine, Roddy McDowall, Carol Lynley and Leslie Nielsen – and Barbara Hershey, Patty Duke, James MacArthur and Eve Plumb ("The Brady Bunch").  (PG: AS, P, V)

"COBRA KAI: SEASON 5"

The series that continues events and characters from the "Karate Kid" movies brings things full-circle for Daniel LaRussa (played by Ralph Macchio) in this round, since Terry Silver (Thomas Ian Griffith) is determined to make the "no mercy" brand of martial-arts combat the only game in town. As always, Daniel favors a more generous approach, but those he can call upon to back him are getting fewer and more far-between ... so he reaches out to a source that's at once surprising and sensible. William Zabka and Martin Kove also reprise their original roles from the franchise, with Courtney Henggeler, Tanner Buchanan, Mary Mouser, Jacob Bertrand and Peyton List continuing as co-stars. DVD extras: deleted and extended scenes; outtakes.  (Not rated: AS, V)

NOTICE is hereby given that on August 7, 2023, Adam and Michelle Ann Pena, 201 Hallas Road, Anthony, New Mexico 88021, filed with the STATE ENGINEER Application No. LRG-16050-POD2, OSE File No. LRG-16050-1, for Permit to Change Point of Diversion within the Lower Rio Grande Underground Water Basin of the State of New Mexico by discontinuing the use of well LRG-16050-POD1, located within the SE¼ NE¼ of Section 29, Township 27 South, Range 3 East (NMPM), and more specifically located where Latitude and Longitude intersect at 31°56'0.745" N and 106°39'7.169" W (WGS84), on land owned by the applicant; and by drilling replacement well LRG-16050-POD2, to be located within the SE ¼ NE ¼ of Section 29, Township 27

South, Range 3 East (NMPM), and more specifically located where Latitude and Longitude intersect at 31°56'0.602"N and 106°39'7.172"W (WGS84), on land owned by the applicant, for the continued diversion of the 3.0 acre-feet per annum, for single-household domestic use on land owned by the applicant, located within the SE ¼ NE ¼ of Section 29, Township 27 South, Range 3 East (NMPM), as described by Subfile Order No. LRS-28-018-0117 Right B of the Third Judicial District Court, County of Dona Ana, State of New Mexico. The replacement domestic well will be located approximately 570 feet East-North-east of the intersection of Hallas Road and Casad Road. The applicant has requested emergency authorization to drill the proposed well under NMSA, 1978, Section 72-12-22. Dona Ana is the County affected by the diversion and in which the water has been or will be put to beneficial use. This notice is ordered to be published in the Las Cruces Bulletin. To view the application and supporting documentation contact the State Engineer District Office to arrange a date and time for an appointment located at 1680 Hickory Loop, Suite J, Las Cruces, NM 88005. Any person, firm or corporation or other entity asserting standing to file objections or protests shall do so in writing (objection must be legible, signed, and include the writer's complete name, phone number, email address, and mailing address). If the protest does not include the complete name, phone number, email address, and mailing address, it may be deemed invalid and not accepted for filing unless Protestant provides with the protest an affidavit stating that it does not have one of the above-listed elements/requirements (phone number, mailing address, email address, etc.). The objection to the approval of the application must be based on: (1) Impairment; if impairment, you must specifically identify your water rights; and/or (2) Public Welfare/Conservation of Water; if public welfare or conservation of water within the state of New Mexico, you must show how you will be substantially and specifically affected. The written protest must be filed, in triplicate, with the State Engineer, 1680 Hickory Loop, Suite J, Las Cruces, NM 88005 on or before October 20, 2023. Facsimiles (faxes) will be accepted as a valid protest if the hard copy is hand-delivered or mailed and postmarked within 24-hours of the facsimile. Mailing postmark will be used to validate the 24-hour period. Protests can be faxed to the Office of the State Engineer, at 575-524-6160. If no valid protest or objection is filed, the State Engineer will evaluate the application in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 72 NMSA 1978.

All dolled up ... Doña Ana County Doll Show is Sept. 15 in Las Cruces

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Never mind this year's blockbuster film, you can see real, Barbie fashion dolls at this year's Doña Ana Doll Club Show and Sale, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16, at Scottish Rite Temple, 195 E Boutz Road in Las Cruces.

You can also see dolls made using glass bottles as their bases. Doll maker Anne Holmes has used everything from a tiny vanilla extract bottle to a giant Jim Beam bottle to create dolls, including Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, the Evil Queen and the Witch. Her specialties are Santa Claus and witch dolls, Holmes said, and she'll have dolls for viewing and for sale.

The show will also feature character dolls like

Cinderella and Scarlett O'Hara, collector dolls, G.I. Joes, bride dolls, cloth dolls (including Raggedy Ann and Andy), plastic dolls, porcelain dolls and many others. The doll show will include a model train sponsored by the Las Cruces and Clovis National Model Railroaders Association clubs.

Admission is $2. Children ages 12 and under are admitted free.

The show is expected to include doll lovers from New Mexico, Texas and Arizona, and will include 21 tables of dolls, doll accessories, a raffle table, a craft table for kids, teddy bears and stuffed animals, beanie babies, toys and much more.

"Bring your wounded doll," club member Sherri Elliott said, because there will be a doll doctor from El Paso at the show to help with rewiring and repairs.

And, everything at the show will be for sale.

The Doña Ana Doll Club was formed in June 1994 with 29 members. Today, there are 10 active members, including Gloria Sanders, 99, who joined six months after the club was formed.

You can join the club for $20 a year. The club meets about noon the third Saturday of each month at a different area restaurant, Club President Annalie Robbins said.

"Take a walk down memory lane with the doll club," Robbins said. "I remember that doll!"

Members of the Doña Ana Doll Club lovingly place dolls on display. This year's Doll Show and Sale will be Saturday, Sept. 16.

- I can't tell you how many times I've heard that," she said. "You're never too old for a doll."

Club member Rebecca Bishop still remembers how sad she was when, as an eighth grader, she was told by her mother she was too old to receive a doll that Christmas.

Many years later, she is still giving, receiving and collecting dolls.

"I can't stand to throw a doll away," Bishop said.

Jewelry donations sought for Kitty Glitter fundraiser

BULLETIN REPORT

It's time to clean out your jewelry box!

Project Save a Kitten needs your donations for its fall 2023 Kitty Glitter fundraiser jewelry sale.

Kitty Glitter will be held 5-8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20, and 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, at Peace Lutheran Church, 1701 Missouri Ave., at the corner of Missouri and Locust Street.

"We have a large interior open space with room to spread out all of the jewelry, plus plenty of parking," said Kitty Glitter coordinator Jackye Meineke. "A banner on the corner and yard signs (will) make us easy to find."

Project Save a Kitten accepts all kinds of jewelry for the fundraiser: including costume, vintage and less-than-perfect items," Meineke said in a news release. "We also encourage donations of jewelry boxes, small decorative items, lace and linens and other small treasures."

Contact Meineke at 575-680-7749 and gardens@zianet.com to have your donation picked up. Or drop it off during regular business hours at Better Life Pet Foods, 315 S. Telshor Blvd. or Ol' Gringo Chille Company, 1447 Certified Place, Building 1-A, off Lakeside Drive.

If you don't have items to donate to the sale, cash donations are welcome, Meineke said.

"Project Save a Kitten volunteers raise funds each year to pay for a variety of needs for kittens and cats, from kitten formula and medical care to transport," she said.

"We also fund spay and neuter for felines."

Low and Slow: University Museum hosts lowrider exhibit

BULLETIN REPORT

In the face of discrimination, lowrider culture has become a symbol celebrating heritage and identity for many Mexican Americans, New Mexico State University said in a news release. "Low and Slow: Lowrider Culture on the Border" is the latest exhibition at NMSU's University Museum that touches on the history and culture of the lowrider.

Located in the east gallery in Kent Hall, 1280 E University, Ave., the exhibit will have its grand opening 5-8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 8.

In conjunction with a show and shine event, the exhibition is free and open to the public, NMSU said.

"The lowrider culture is reflected in our local economy with southern New Mexico being home to many small businesses that specialize in pinstriping, airbrushing and other car customizations," University Museum curator Norma Chairez-Hartell said. "These businesses not only provide income for families and create jobs, but they also keep the lowrider community together."

In the U.S.-Mexico border region, the lowrider traces its earliest roots to the 1940s, most notably after World War II. Originating in California, the lowrider culture eventually made its way to Texas and New Mexico.

Today, the lowrider community is reflected locally by car clubs and the work they do with local businesses and organizations.

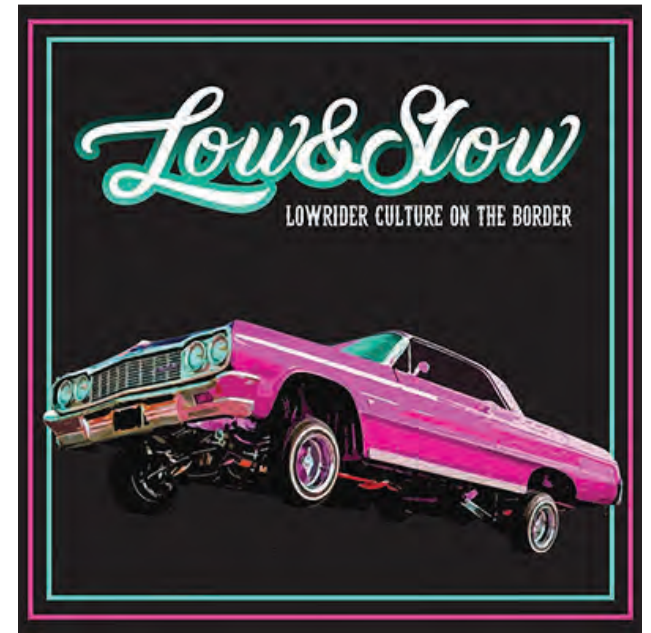

They often do all they can, including pancake breakfasts for veterans and benefit car exhibitions for local children's medical centers, to bring awareness to and raise funds for local causes and people in need. Earlier this year, they put on a car wash so a local family could get their teenaged son a headstone.

"Colectas," fundraising and bringing awareness to a cause, is a big part of what car clubs do. Chairez-Hartell refers to these clubs as pillars of the community who value helping those who need it.

"I hope people will take away an appreciation for the lowrider community," Chairez-Hartell said. "I hope they get to know some of the car clubs in the area like Sweet Desires, some of the artists that contributed to the exhibit, as well as well-known figures like Pachukita Precious who will have her zoot suit on display in the exhibit."

Pachukita Precious is a local zoot zooter in the El Paso-Las Cruces area who has been part of the culture since 1996. A zoot zooter since 2014, Pachukita Precious will have a turquoise zoot suit on display that she says is one of her favorites and describes her persona.

An exhibition coming to the New Mexico State University Art Museum in Kent Hall on campus explores the history and evolution of lowrider culture in America, particularly in the border regions. The exhibit has its grand opening 5-8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 8.

Las Cruces pens memoir: 'Life is a Butt Dial'

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH

Las Cruces Bulletin

"You realize, after a certain point, that you have lived a life extraordinary," is Cleve Hattersley's excuse for writing a book.

Hattersley has put in time as a band leader for Greezy Wheels out of Austin, Texas; music booking agent; convict; business proprietor; columnist; and now, author.

His life has taken some unexpected turns and, in his book, "Life is a Butt Dial: Tales From A Life Among the Tragically Hip," many of those rather unexpected turns are reflected humorously and sometimes quite touchingly.

"When you go on a tour with your own band and you are on a bus and you are going city to city, everybody knows you are living a different kind of life," he said. "So, you kind of just live it. You don't think about how you met this guy or that guy until you start adding them all up."

Hattersley said people he encountered wanted to know what it was like, because it's something they never did. The life experience adds up and eventually "you realize, you know, I've got to put this down."

The first one to admit his ego is "huge," Hattersley said he has been the leader of everything he has ever been in.

"I don't follow instructions well, and that's how it all starts," he said. "Not only did I do the booking, I ran the band, I organized rehearsals, I collected the money and all that stuff. That's what got me into running clubs. Mort at the Lone Star Café (in New York City) immediately knew that I could be good for his club because not only did I run stuff well, I knew all those people, all the stars he wanted."

Hattersley represented his friend Kinky Friedman, singer, songwriter, novelist, humorist and politician and did ghost writing for some of Friedman's material.

"I had to learn how to be funny like Kinky," he said. "I had to be someone's front man and that combination gave me the confidence that maybe I could do this (write a book)."

During touring with the band, Hattersley found he could make a lot of money in small trips by selling marijuana.

"Being a smuggler looked like a good out for me," he said. "That proved to be a mistake because you have to be an actual criminal to do that. I had to do time."

At one point Oui Magazine contacted Hattersley about doing some writing which turned into a regular column called "The Idiot and the Odyssey," which led to adventures like doing an expose of "the magic mouse at Disney World and trying to join the church of Scientology (which didn't work out well)."

Some of those columns appear as basis stories in "Life is a Butt Dial," like "Bow hunting with Ted Nugent."

He said he laid down two conditions to Oui Magazine for publishing his column, "nobody edit me and don't put me opposite a (pornographic) shot." Oui was owned by Hugh Hefner at the time and even racier than "Playboy."

So don't be surprised by some spicy language as Hattersley makes no apologies for who he is or how he talks.

"I curse (in the book)

just like I do on stage," he said. "That's my language."

Hattersley will also be the first to admit his world, and his ego, would not amount to much without his wife and fiddle player, Mary Hattersley (nee Butler), of 49 years at his side.

He saw her one day, on stage, playing the fiddle in another band and, even though she was married at the time, he knew he was going to marry her.

"Mary and I do have a notion that there is an energy that encompasses everything, we are all part of the same materials," he said. "We have the notion we could end up as twin suns out there in the universe."

Mary puts it in a simpler way: "We like to work together."

And these days, they never travel without being together.

Cleve will be reading from and signing copies of "Life is a Butt Dial," at 5 p.m. Friday, Sept. 8, at Downtown Blues Coffee, 130 S. Main St., Las Cruces. The event will include tunes played by Cleve and Mary as well as appearances from some special guests. For information about the event contact Frankie Juarequi at 575-523-8828.

Cleve, left, and Mary, far right, Hattersley jam with some friends recently at Downtown Blues Coffee, where on Sept. 8 Cleve will read from and sign copies of his book, "Life is a Butt Dial: Tales from a Life Among the Tragically Hip."

Gallery welcomes Jill Somosa

BULLETIN REPORT

The Tombaugh Gallery welcomes artist Jill Somosa with an opening reception 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 10, at the gallery, located inside the Unitarian Universalist Church, 2000 S. Solano Drive.

The exhibit continues through Oct. 6.

After many years of painting on canvas and paper, Somosa switched to painting on vinyl, Tombaugh Gallery said in a news release.

Somosa's paintings are hybrids; "sculptural in that they are composed of several irregular shapes made of wooden sticks linked together to create a 'form,'" the news release said. "The shapes are then covered with clear vinyl on which Somosa paints with acrylics. The paintings are non-representational, but the 'form' is a real object. The artwork hangs a few inches from the wall by means of feet, which allow light to penetrate the translucent vinyl and gives it an air of lightness."

Somosa, her husband and three children have lived in Las Cruces since 1973, and she has exhibited

Recycling is Making an Impact in the Community

Submitted by South Central Solid Waste Authority

Each day in the United States, the average person generates approximately four pounds of solid waste. It is believed that 90% of this waste is recyclable, but only one-third of it is currently recycled. Community-based research reflects several factors that influence recycling behaviors---the most common being greater educational exposure to recycling promotion and processes.

South Central Solid Waste Authority (SCSWA) with the support of Las Cruces residents, local businesses, and community leaders, recently launched a widespread awareness campaign to inform the community that their efforts are having an impact on the amount of waste that is going to the landfill.

SCSWA has teamed up with Wilson Binkley Advertising & Marketing, a Las Cruces-based advertising agency, to implement a public awareness campaign focusing on widespread education of our ongoing recycling programs in the area. This campaign, named “Keep the Recycle Going”, reinforces the success of area recycling efforts while reminding residents of how to improve the program.

“Using a researched media plan to increase community awareness and knowledge of recycling effectively, we aim to show the link between a healthy environment and the public’s health,” said Brandi Misquez, SCSWA Recycle Education Coordinator.

As residents go about their daily lives, SCSWA aims to remind everyone of the importance of recycling and its effect on our environment. From informational billboards to local radio spots, this campaign is designed to reach people where they are, with the information needed to make a true difference.

As SCSWA’s recycling programs grow, there is still a need to increase public awareness of recycling policies regarding materials that can be recycled. When it comes to curbside recycling, remember that only paper, plastic, cardboard, and aluminum/tin are acceptable materials. These items must be clean and dry to be suitable materials for recycling them into new items that can be reused in the future.

SCSWA is proud of the progress that Las Cruces and Doña Ana County are making in their recycling efforts and continues to find more ways to help educate the public. Along with the “Keep the Recycle Going” campaign, SCSWA works with area schools to arrange tours and educational presentations, helping students understand how recycling is making a difference for their future and the environment. The current awareness campaign is scheduled to run through the end of 2023.

South Central Solid Waste Authority manages solid waste and recyclables for residents and businesses throughout Doña Ana County. Contact SCSWA at (575) 528-3800 or visit www.SCSWA.net

‘Night at the Museums’ showcases university’s College of Arts & Sciences

NMSU NEWS TEAM

New Mexico State University’s College of Arts and Sciences is hosting its second annual “Night at the Museums” 7-9 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 14, at the University Museum at Kent Hall, 1280 E. University Ave., and the University Art Museum inside Devasthali Hall, 1308 E. University Ave.

In addition to tours of the two museums, the outdoor areas between Kent and Devasthali Halls will have music, displays and demonstrations by various departments in the college, plus three food trucks: Luchador, Green Chile Paddy Wagon and Francy Emilade along with custom-made “mocktails” created with Amador Live restaurant and bar.

Purchase tickets online at $10 per person and get one free specialty drink. Children 12 and younger get in free.

The event this year is focused on raising awareness of the Creative Media Institute (CMI), a program that has more students than it can accommodate in its current facilities.

“Our Creative Media Institute, which provides training in digital film making, animation and visual effects, is one of the fastest growing units in the college,” said

Enrico Pontelli, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. “CMI has been one of the shining jewels of the institution and a direct contributor to economic development in the region. We want to make the community aware of the needs of this program as it continuously grows and contributes to the economic development of the state.”

“CMI’s involvement in ‘Night at the Museums’ will be an outdoor screening of student and faculty work,” said CMI Department Head Amy Lanasa. “Faculty and staff also will be on hand to discuss the preliminary design and ground plan for CMI’s proposed 50,000 square foot training facility for the next generation of film, animation, creative writing and journalism students.”

The current University Art Museum exhibition, “Specter,” and the latest University Museum exhibition, “Low and Slow,” will be open for tours, while activities and games will be available for all to participate. See the night sky through telescopes provided by the astronomy department and listen to music from NMSU students. Criminal justice students also will help visitors explore a mock crime scene.

Companies take advantage of JTIP funds

BULLETIN REPORT

Two Doña Ana County companies – one in Mesilla Park and one in Santa Teresa – are among nearly a dozen statewide to receive training funds approved by the New Mexico Job Training Incentive Program (JTIP) board in August, the New Mexico Economic Development Department (NMEDD) said in a news release.

Louisiana Pepper Exchange (LPE), LLC in Santa Teresa will receive funding of almost $5,000 for 10 trainees at an average wage of $16.47, NMEDD said. LPE is a global chile pepper company that mastered logistical innovations to market puree to restaurants and discerning foodies. Their newly acquired 40,000-square-foot processing warehouse in the Borderplex region includes space for tank farms that can store 30 million pounds of pepper mash for sale to U.S. customers.

Worthington Farms LLC of Mesilla Park received more than $8,000 for one trainee at a wage of $14.34. Worthington Farms produces a variety of pecan products that include flavored pecans, oils, syrups, nut butter, soaps, lotions, lip balms and sugar rubs that are currently sold through the company website. The company manages a nine-acre orchard with 245 pecan trees and has long-term plans to expand the orchard and lease their shelling

Pilot plan ups skills

BULLETIN REPORT

The Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance (MVEDA) offers “a unique funding opportunity” to Doña Ana County manufacturing companies incorporating advanced manufacturing and automation into their operations.

The NMBorderplex AutomationUp program, created by MVEDA through a grant from the New Mexico Economic Development Department’s Local Economic Assistance and Development Support program, helps cover the cost of industry certifications for employers and employees looking to upskill their existing manufacturing workforce, MVEDA said in a news release.

The goal of the pilot program is to assist companies in building the skill sets required for the implementation of newly automated equipment and processes.

MVEDA is looking to work with local manufacturers implementing robotics, additive manufacturing, control systems, network/IT infrastructure and sustainable processes; and whose employees could benefit from related industry certifications.

Scale Up program helps startups

NMSU NEWS TEAM

The Scale Up New Mexico program, funded in part by the United States Economic Development Administration and housed at New Mexico State University’s Arrowhead Center, will offer the VentureFunding Sprint online accelerator to tech startups in New Mexico.

VentureFunding is one of several modules under Scale Up NM, a suite of startup support programs for businesses engaged in early-stage technology development. The program scales existing Arrowhead Center initiatives such as Sprint business accelerators, Small Business Innovation Research/Small Business Technology Transfer assistance and commercialization support.

VentureFunding is seeking entrepreneurs and startups located in New Mexico to apply to the free accelerator, which will take place Oct. 5-Nov. 9. The application deadline is Monday, Sept. 25. Selected participants will be notified by Sept. 29.

“Our sprint model encourages partnerships among entrepreneurs and stakeholders, facilitating a seamless entry into the entrepreneurship ecosystem and forming significant relationships that could lead to potential investment opportunities,” Arrowhead Center Deputy Director Dana Catron said. “Empowering entrepreneurs with the tools to navigate the complex realm of fundraising ensures not only their own success, but also drives innovation and economic growth.”

VentureFunding is designed to empower New Mexico’s tech startup founders with the knowledge and skills required to successfully raise capital. Over the course of six weeks, participants meet once a week to work on various aspects of fundraising, including understanding the terminology and instruments involved, negotiating with potential investors, and developing tools and deliverables needed to attract investment.

Additionally, each participant will have access to weekly one-on-one meetings with an Arrowhead team member or mentor who provides customized assistance and addresses individual questions and concerns.

Featured advisers and mentors include accomplished entrepreneurs, business law attorneys, experienced operators, and active angel and venture investors.

To qualify for VentureFunding, startups must be based in New Mexico or have plans to move to New Mexico. Participants should also be available to attend weekly virtual sessions for the duration of the cohort and to work on technology-based innovation. Participating in VentureFunding print will pre-qualify startups interested in the 2023 Scale Up Pitch Competition to be held Oct. 26.

Trojans, Hawks meet

BULLETIN REPORT

How good is Mayfield High School football in its first season under coach Gary Bradley?

Fans should have a sense after the Trojans' 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9, game against Centennial High School at the Field of Dreams. Centennial (1-2) is ranked No. 3 in the state in Class 6A, while Mayfield (2-0) is ranked No. 7 in Class 5A. The Trojans' two victories were lopsided, as they defeated Manzano 55-0 and Organ Mountain High School 41-10 Sept. 1. An Aug. 25 game against Santa Teresa was canceled because of lightning in Las Cruces. Centennial got its first victory Sept. 2, defeating La Cueva in Albuquerque 35-28.

In other local matchups this weekend, Mesilla Valley Christian School (1-1) is on the road at Menaul (2-0) with a 7 p.m. game Friday, Sept. 8.

Also on the road is Las Cruces High School (0-3) at No. 1 ranked Cleveland (2-1) 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 8.

And with a 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 9, game at the Field of Dreams, Rio Rancho (2-1) is at Organ Mountain (0-3).

In other Sept. 1 games, Fort Sumner/House def. MVCS 66-12 and El Paso Eastwood beat LCHS 55-28.

Ags travel to Liberty for C-USA opener

BULLETIN REPORT

In each of the first two NM State games of the season, fans have seen a second-half explosion of points.

In the Aggies' home opener against UMass, the first half ended in a relatively quiet 10-10 tie. But in the second half, 51 points were scored. However, 31 of those points were scored by the Minutemen, leaving NM State on the short end of a 41-30 score.

In Week 2, NM State led Western Illinois narrowly at half, 20-14. This time, the second half outburst by the two teams was 45 points, but the explosion was all on the Aggie side, as they scored 38 of those points, en route to a lopsided 58-21 victory, bringing their season mark to 1-1 as they hit the road for three weeks, starting Saturday, Sept. 9, at Liberty in Lynchburg, Virginia.

The game against Liberty, which starts at 4 p.m. Las Cruces time and can be heard locally on 99.5 FM with Jack Nixon on the call, is interesting for a couple of reasons.

For one, it will be the Aggies' first-ever Conference-USA game. NM State officially joined the league July 1.

Secondly, it will mark the Aggies' return to Lynchburg for the first time since they shocked the world by beating Liberty 49-14 last Nov. 26, in the game that essentially put NM State in the Quick Lane Bowl. Liberty entered that game 8-3 and had spent much of the season ranked in the Top 25. The Aggies were 4-6. If NM State caught Liberty a bit off guard in that game, it won't likely happen again.

Liberty opened its season Sept. 2 with a 34-24 home victory over Bowling Green, the team the Aggies defeated in the Quick Lane Bowl last December.

NMSU Aggie athletics roundup

BULLETIN REPORT

Aggie women's soccer: After defeating Pacific 3-1 Sept. 3 in Las Cruces, the Aggies are 3-2-1 on the season. They had a 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 7, home game scheduled against UNLV, and travel to Albuquerque for a 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 10, game against UNM. NM State's next home game will be 1 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 17, against Louisiana Tech in the Conference-USA opener.

Aggie volleyball: The NM State women's volleyball team is 3-2 on the young season heading into this weekend's Illinois State Tournament in Normal, Illinois, where they'll face Illinois State,

Grinding your way to better golf scores

When golfers speak of “grinding out a par,” or having to “grind” for the entire round, it is in reference to the frequent need and difficulty – even torment – of having to make challenging pitches, chips and putts, from all over the course, to save pars and a score. Football announcers talk about a team grinding it out in the last few minutes of a game for a winning touchdown. Grinding evokes images of struggle, effort, pressure and demand.

The consummate grinder was the late Seve Ballesteros. Seve’s game was such that he found himself in more serious predicaments than the average tour pro, but he managed to escape most of them to make par or better, as if he had a “get out of jail free” card. I copied his mantra, “never give up on a hole.” His imagination, deft hands and competitive fierceness that led him to two Masters and three British Opens from 1979 to 1988. Seve: “I don’t aim for the rough, it just goes there.”

Grinding for par is a lost art among recreational and higher handicap golfers. Few practice their short game – chipping and putting. Some practice around the green, but they haven’t learned the right technique. Going to the golf course and trying to grind out pars with a faulty technique is a lost cause. There isn’t only one right way, but there are fundamentals that dictate adequate chipping and putting. Contact your pro.

In terms of making your way around the course with the fewest strokes possible, there are certain stratagems that have proven their worth.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

One is safety first. If you find your ball in a particularly problematic spot, don’t try for the one-in-a-hundred miracle shot. Get the ball back in play in order to have some chance of making a putt to save par or net par. Around the green, if you’re short-sided, with little green to work with for a chip, you probably ought to opt to just get the ball on the green, inside of 30 feet, and rely on your putting.

Sometimes you hit your tee shot into a pond (now a “penalty area”), like the 8th hole at Sonoma Ranch G.C. Take your penalty drop, and make the best chip you can, leaving a makeable six-foot putt for a bogey - a good, grinding, stroke-saving bogey. If you keep driving into trouble off the tee, put your driver in the bag and use a 3 wood. Just get your ball in play; again, safety first.

The thing I value most with success in grinding is attitude. When I have a good opportunity to save par with an off-green up-and-down, my mindset is “I’ll try my best.” Note it is not a must-make, nor this is do-or die. The attitude is connected to the “process” I value more than any other. The process is “how did I play that shot,” not what the results were.

If I played the shot or putt expertly, I’m satisfied. If it didn’t go in, I can accept that. So often folks sabotage themselves by focusing too much on outcome and not enough on process. The other attitude I notice often is defeatism. Some players hit a couple of bad shots, and then continue as if nothing counts anymore. Not trying hard enough is as self-defeating as trying too hard. More important, a bad attitude is worse than a bad golf swing.

Another term similar to grinding is “scrambling,” which mostly means minimizing the damage caused by a bad shot. Don’t confuse scrambling for score with a “scramble” format in a tournament. The PGA Tour has been keeping scrambling stats for years. Those stats reflect the percentage a player saves par (i.e. recovering) when missing greens in regulation. The best tour players average getting it up-and-down for par when they miss the green two-thirds of the time. Unlike us everyday golfers, the tour pros would rather their missed shots land in a sand bunker because it’s more predictable than the rough.

I like what Golf Digest (March 2017) said: “Grinding out a good score in the face of adversity thickens the hide and builds character.” I play weekly with senior women, who are good golfers, and make plenty of up-and-down par saves. But they’re not after thickening their hides.
