DEFINING DISCIPLINE:

The word discipline has more than one meaning as it relates to education. The one we often think about is the thought of control and enforcement of behavior and order in the classroom. This kind of discipline is expected and needed in our schools. But discipline also means training - as in an activity or exercise that develops or improves skills. We need both in our classrooms.

Build My Future

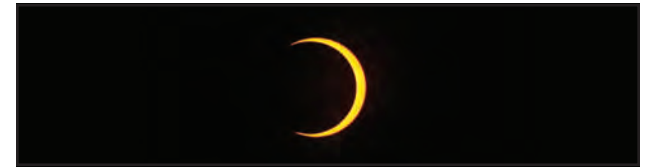

BULLETIN REPORT

Las Cruces Home Builders Association (LCHBA) hosted its fourth annual Build My Future hands-on skilled trades event Friday, Oct. 13, in the parking lot at Mesilla Valley Mall for students from Las Cruces Public Schools and from Gadsden, Hatch and Silver City high schools and Las Montañas Charter High School. Among the many electrical, plumb-ing, welding, roofing and other building experiences students had, LCHBA partnered with Veloz Homes so students could build dog houses that will be donated to Mesilla Valley Community of Hope. "The LCHBA Education Foundation supports skilled trades in our local high schools and helps fill the skilled trade job shortage right here in Las Cruces," said LCHBA Executive Officer Nicole Perez.

O'Neill makes bid for council

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mark O'Neill is running for City Council District 1. He supplied the Bulletin with this personal profile.

BULLETIN REPORT

Mark O'Neill, a Las Cruces resident since 2006, has a background in education in both public and private schools, worked as a park and recreation specialist, and was a successful business owner.

His experience includes public service and civic engagement in the community, including these appointments in Las Cruces:

Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (eight years); Capital Improvement Advisory Committee (four years); Chair of the County Labor Management Relations Board for five years and currently serves on the J. Paul Taylor Governance Board.

His other affiliations include Elevate Las Cruces, Film Las Cruces, Coalition Against Bullying (CAB), Suicide Task Force, Opioid Crisis Group. He attends internet courses regularly regarding behavioral health issues and is preparing a series of enrichment and awareness classes for Generation Z (ages 13-26) to be made available in the community.

O'Neill is a freelance writer, coached high school football and baseball and was a sports official and assignor.

O'Neill attends City Council regularly, researches issues and vows if elected to listen to concerns of residents as well as businesses. He has prepared budgets, set policy and done strategic planning. He believes his innovative approach, ideas and sensible solutions to challenges will be an asset.

Following are some of the topics O'Neill considers priorities for the city and for his district.

1. Keeping residents safe, at home, at businesses and on the road by:

a) Keeping criminals accountable and mitigating property crimes with increased late night patrols and enforcing of ordinances.

b) Improve advocacy and restitution for victims.

c) Making sure the LCPD, receives the resources they need for best hiring practices, training, databases, and adequate pay to retain good officers. LCPD leadership and officers, must also be held accountable for their actions.

c) Keep roads safe to mitigate accidents by addressing obstructions, faded or non-existent lane lines, stop lines and speed bump markings and of course dangerous potholes. Also, better engineering of lights at major thoroughfares and intersections.

d) Keep residents, especially seniors, safe from phone, on-line and e-mail scams.

2. Ensuring businesses can thrive and survive.

3. Ensuring responsible growth, with adequate low and medium income housing, green spaces and plenty of activities, especially for our youth and seniors. Provide a workable plan for reducing blight in the community, including weed- and junk-infested lots and abandoned buildings.

4. Better addressing mental health issues, including addiction and the high degree of suicides in the community.

5. Providing a "Step up" process for the unhoused where treatment and counseling will be provided if needed, however, if provided housing or jobs, it comes with some responsibility by following tenant guidelines and curfews. It must be a cooperative effort to allow opportunities for recovery and/or integration back into society.

Glass Recycling

Glass is easy to recycle and can be continuously recycled without loss of quality. Since 2014 South Central Solid Waste Authority has accepted glass bottles at the Las Cruces Recycle Center for recycling. Residents of Dona Ana County can bring their glass bottles and drop them in designated bins for recycling into smaller, crushed glass known as cullet. The process of crushing the glass removes the glass' sharp edges and allows for safe handling. Improving upon current processes, South Central Solid Waste Authority's recycle team has dedicated time and efforts in much needed modifications to our glass crushing machine to implement crushing every other week.

Decorating with crushed glass is a great way to showcase your creative personality. We see more and more Las Cruces landscape designs with added sparkle of crushed glass cullet. The cullet acts as a mulch which slows the evaporation of moisture from the soil which is especially beneficial in the desert climate where we do not see much rain.

Why is it important to recycle glass? Compared to creating glass from new materials for the first time, cullet melts at a lower temperature. So, the cost savings of recycling is in the use of energy exhausted in the process. Recycling glass reduces the space in landfills that would otherwise be taken up by used glass bottles and jars.

One of our Recycle Champions that utilizes our recycled glass is longtime Las Cruces artist Kathy Morrow. One year ago this month and motivated by artistic labor of love, Miss Morrow has utilized local resources to create a large mural in front of the New Mexico State University's Golf Course. Together with local volunteers the project is estimated to be completed in 1 year under Kathy's direction and vision. When asked what we can do to see her vision completed, Miss Morrow asked for the community's help in volunteering their time to help. "You might make your bed every day, but you sure don't make roadrunners tail out of glass everyday".

Once completed, the mural will measure 180 feet wide by 150 feet tall, all compiled of local and natural resources.

We applaud you, Miss Morrow!

Huerta visits Las Cruces

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
 Las Cruces Bulletin

Co-founder of the United Farm Workers Association, Dolores Clara Fernandez Huerta is one of the most influential labor activists of the 20th century and a leader of the Chicano civil rights movement. On Monday, Oct. 16, Huerta was a guest at La Academia Dolores Huerta in Mesilla Park, a charter middle school. She had the students roused and responding in no time, chanting union support and considering women's rights to decision making.

The students had prepared mariachi music and folklorico dancing of songs that had been written about Huerta. The 93-year-old activist enjoyed every moment and stood patiently to speak with and have photos with every student who wanted to meet her.

Born April 10, 1930, in Dawson, New Mexico, Huerta was the second of three children of Alicia and Juan Fernandez, a farm worker and miner who became a state legislator in 1938.

Salvation Army plans holiday projects

BULLETIN REPORT

Salvation Army of Las Cruces has several events and projects planned ahead the holidays geared toward helping children and families in need have a brighter Christmas season.

Harvest Festival

The Salvation Army's eighth annual Harvest Festival is 3-6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, at Salvation Army headquarters, 1590 California Ave.

The event will include live music, food, games, a bounce house, an obstacle course, a zip line, a rock-climbing wall and giveaways for kids.

Trunk O' Treat

The Salvation Army's 2023 Trunk or Treat, "a safe place for kids to trick or treat," will be 6-8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 29, at Rudy's Bar-B-Q, 1020 N. Telshor Blvd.

The Salvation Army is partnering with Rudy's Bar-B-Que, Planet Fitness and The Las Cruces Cruising

Council on Trunk O' Treat.

Angel Tree program

Donations to the Angel Tree program provide the Christmas gifts the Salvation Army collects and donates to families that signed up for Christmas assistance.

Each tag on the Salvation Army tree at locations throughout the community has the gift requests of a child that was signed up for assistance. Tree locations include Old Navy, Mesilla Valley Mall, Walmart, Sam's Club, Farmers Insurance, Rudy's Bar-B-Que, Rehab Hospital of Southern New Mexico and White Sands Credit Union.

Toy distribution is Dec. 18-24.

Christmas toy drive

The Salvation Army of Las Cruces' sixth annual Christmas Toy Drive is Saturday, Dec. 2, in the old Kmart parking lot on Bataan Memorial West Highway. Vehicles will gather in the parking lot beginning at 10:30 a.m., and, with a Las Cruces Police Department escort, the group cruise starting at 11:30 a.m., traveling west on U.S. Highway 70 to north Main Street, Lohman Avenue and Telshor Boulevard to end at Rudy's Bar-B-Q, 1020 N. Telshor Blvd.

Each participating vehicle is requested to donate two gifts for children, one for a boy and one for a girl, each with a minimum value of $10. The gifts will be included in the Salvation Army's Angel Tree program.

The Salvation Army usually has 100-150 vehicles participating in the cruise, Evans said, but expects 200 this year. Every type of vehicle is welcome. Participants will include local car clubs with lowriders, sport cars, exotic cars, side-by-sides, trucks, motorcycles and other types of vehicles, Evans said.

Dress the Child will help 300 kids

By DOUG BOBERG

Co-Chair

Dress the Child of Las Cruces

The 2023 Dress the Child dinner, "Yacht Party 2 Mexican Riviera," generated more than $30,000 in critical funding for the Dress the Child of Las Cruces program.

The event, in its 34th year, was at the Amador Live outdoor patio and featured chefs from the Grapevine Plaza & Event Center, Amador Bar & Grill, Doña Ana Community College's (DACC) Culinary Arts program, D.H. Lescombes Winery & Bistro, Memorial Medical Center, Hacienda de Mesilla, and Salud! de Mesilla.

The funds will enable Dress the Child to take 300 impoverished children who attend Las Cruces Public Schools and the Gadsden Independent School District shopping for new clothing and shoes in November and December.

You can still donate to this year's Dress the Child program, so we can add even more students to the shopping events. Send your check to Las Cruces Rio Grande Rotary Foundation, ATTN: Loren Kuehne, 3265 Arrowhead Road, Suite 200, Las Cruces, N.M. 88011.

Bowman helps make dreams come true

Educators and scientists all agree it's difficult for children to learn on an empty stomach. That's why we have so many programs working to ensure young students have access to food at school.

Wanda Bowman believes, and I'm sure we'd all agree, kids also need a good night's sleep.

"Too many children in our community don't have a bed of their own," said Bowman, owner of Ashley HomeStore.

A couple of years ago, Bowman delivered a bed to a child in need, and was surprised.

"There was only one place with room enough to hold the bed --

RICHARD COLTHARP

Going Downtown

the kitchen!" Bowman said. "But she clutched her new pillow and smiled like you can't believe."

That prompted Bowman to launch "Hope for a Dream." Sunday, Oct. 22, she will distribute 200 beds to children 12 and under.

Names of children in need have been provided by Las Cruces Public Schools.

"In so many cases, families don't have options for children," Bowman said. "We know how tough it is for some of our neighbors. These young children can't make choices.

"But we had the opportunity to make this happen for them and I'm so grateful."

Thank you, Wanda. We're grateful too. And we're grateful for all the generosity the Las Cruces community constantly provides. Flip through the pages of this week's Bulletin and you'll see several more examples of selfless giving.

House mess dates back to the Tea Party

Yvette Herrell is a skilled and tireless campaigner with a keen understanding of the Second Congressional District. But how is she going to convince voters next year that we have been well served by Republican control of the House of Representatives?

The House has been inactive since Oct. 3, when Kevin McCarthy became the first speaker in history to be booted from office.

Past Republican speakers include Dennis Hastert, who pled guilty to federal charges of paying hush money to cover up his sexual misconduct with teenage boys; and Newt Gingrich, who paid a $300,000 fine to the Ethics Committee for misuse of campaign funds. On the other side of the aisle, Democratic Speaker Jim Wright was also caught with his hand in the till.

McCarthy's crime was putting a bill on the floor to prevent a government shutdown.

When Republicans decided to send everybody home for a week on Oct. 3, I'm sure they hoped that would be enough time to rally around a new leader. It was not. And I'm sure they hoped no unexpected events would happen to highlight their appalling lack of leadership. Four days later, Hamas attacked Israel.

As I write this Oct. 15, I have no idea how or when this stalemate ends. But I do know how and when it started.

The simmering cauldron of anger and resentment that boiled over earlier this month has been heating up ever since the creation of the Tea Party, and the off-year election of 2010.

The Tea Party formed in 2009 in response to the election of Barack Obama, and has nothing to do with herbal beverages. "Tea" is an acronym for "taxed enough already," leading one to believe this was a tax protest group. But the racist signs at all their rallies let us know what their real beef was.

Obama had been in office for about a month when a televised rant by CNBC reporter Rick Santelli gave rise to the Tea Party. The movement spread quickly and was at the peak of its power ahead of the 2010 election.

Republicans picked up 63 seats that year, with many going to Tea Party members who had no political experience or respect for the institution. They won their seats by promising to never compromise, and kept that promise no matter the cost.

It was a good news/bad news scenario for the new Speaker John Boehner. He won the gavel, but it came with a new caucus of freshmen lawmakers who would make it impossible to govern.

The Tea Party was gone by the 2016 election of Donald Trump. But its spirit lives on in the Freedom Caucus, whose members have just as little respect for the institution as their predecessors.

DACC: 50 years of investing in our community

By DR. MONICA TORRES

President
Doña Ana Community College

I have worked for Doña Ana Community College for a total of 15 years. I started my career at the college in the 1980s and am likely to close my career at DACC. I have learned many lessons as a result of my experience at the college, but none more important than the value of investing in our community.

Early on, my experience was all about students. I was a faculty member and a program coordinator. I had daily interactions with the community members who came to “the branch” to change the direction of their lives.

They invested their time, their effort, their dollars, and even their egos. (Just think about taking tests, writing papers, and waiting for grades!) And they did all of this to build a better future for themselves and their families. Despite a number of life’s complexities—working full-time or caring for family members or living with the consequences of adverse childhood experiences—so many made conscious decisions to go, to persist, and to earn a DACC credential or transfer to the university. Whatever the circumstances, choosing to go to school is an investment. That was evident every day. I can still hear some of their voices describing the reason for that investment: I deserve better. I can contribute more to my workplace or my industry. I want to do this for my children.

I sit in a different chair now, which provides another perspective on what it is we’re doing at the college. At this point, I’m thinking about the impact of a DACC education on the broader community. I experience that as I make my way through each day. I wake up and trust I will have electricity (Electrical Lineworker) and water (Water Technology). I get in my car (Automotive Technology) and drive 15 minutes to work. DACC graduates are likely employed all along the route: the fire station (Fire Science), the police station (Criminal Justice), the NM Department of Health (Public Health), several child development centers (Early Childhood Education), and public schools (Education). I get to my office at the East Mesa campus and enter a beautiful building that is well maintained (Drafting, Building Construction Technology, Welding, HVAC). I drive home and sometimes pick up dinner at a local restaurant (Hospitality and Culinary). The community is filled with DACC graduates in these and many other professions that we interface with regularly and not-so-regularly (health care, digital media companies, computer support businesses, etc.)

Of course, DACC would never have been able to do this work without significant support from voters, taxpayers, donors, elected officials, and a host of other friends. Thank you. We have worked hard to be good stewards of the resources you have provided.

On Nov. 7, DACC is asking voters to approve $16 million dollars in general obligation bonds. I believe that this continuing support represents more than funding to the college. It is an investment in the community.

JOHN MASSEY FITCH, 83

John Massey Fitch passed away Aug. 21, 2023, at the age of 83. Born in Tulsa, Oklahoma, Feb. 1, 1940, John grew up in El Paso, Texas. His father, Massey Lee Fitch, served with the U.S. Immigration Service. His mother, Elizabeth Anne (Harrison) Fitch, was a teacher for the elementary schools of the Ysleta Independent School District. John began his life-long fascination with archaeology when he found his first pottery sherds while exploring the desert with his father.

John enjoyed his school years and particularly remembered his seventh-grade teacher's axiom, "Well begun is half done." John did nothing by half measures. He was always "all in" on anything he committed to.

Excelling in writing during his high school years, he won the award for the best essay in the State of Texas his senior year. Traveling to Austin to receive his prize, he fondly remembered making the trip with Dr. Charles Leland Sonnichsen, a prolific author of books on the history and folklore of the American Southwest.

Following high school, he entered Texas Western University (now the University of Texas at El Paso). He graduated with a bachelor's degree in journalism. Upon graduation, John began the two years of service in the U.S. Army required by his commitment to the ROTC program at Texas Western. He was assigned to an Army Intelligence Division as a 2nd Lieutenant, where he served as an instructor in camera technique.

Completing his commitment to the U.S. Army, John returned to El Paso where he took a job as copy editor for the El Paso Herald Post. It was while he was so employed he saw an advertisement from the Central Intelligence Agency. He applied and was accepted. His years with the CIA are cloaked in mystery, as one might imagine. We know for at least two years John served as a liaison for official guests to the Space Command Center in Colorado Springs. Following that assignment, he was a Senior Intelligence Official in Washington, D.C., where he was involved in compiling data and subsequent production of the morning report to the President of the United States. John served in that capacity for four U.S. Presidents (Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan, George H.W. Bush, and Bill Clinton.) Always an avid reader of history, John's knowledge of world affairs was deep and varied.

Retiring from the CIA in 1995, John cast about for where he might retire. He very much wanted to revive his childhood interest in archaeology and so chose Las Cruces, New Mexico. He promptly became a member of the both the Doña Ana County and El Paso archaeological societies. John could always be depended to drive his four-wheel drive vehicle on whatever field trip was at hand.

In 1999, he joined the Doña Ana Archeological

Society in helping Karl Laumbach of Human Systems Research prepare the Victorio Site at Cañada Alamosa for excavation. The following year he was a member of a second field effort that included the first deep excavations at the Pinnacle Ruin by Dr. Stephen Lekson. From 2001 through 2011 and beyond, John was the official project photographer, taking thousands of images. John would carefully review the images and provided a detailed photo log when the season was over. He also participated in the laboratory effort associated with the project which included ceramic and lithic analysis as well as the processing of samples of all sorts. In addition to Cañada Alamosa, John participated in a number of projects for Human Systems Research, often as the project photographer. He made friends and interacted with a wide variety of Southwestern archaeologists, assisting in Jacob Sedig's excavations at Woodrow Ruin and funding radiocarbon dates for sites in the Mimbres Valley. In 2006, John received the Richard A. Bice Award for Archaeological Achievement from the Archaeological Society of New Mexico.

John served as the project photographer for Katy Putsavage's excavation at the Black Mountain site from 2010 to 2012. Beyond recording the excavations, John was skilled at capturing candid photos of the crew in the field, washing artifacts, and relaxing over a meal. John was fully committed to the project and the crew. When he wasn't photographing the site and crew, he surveyed the site for diagnostic artifacts, kept the beer fridge stocked, and carted crew and equipment to and from the site. He was a valued member of the team.

An active member and supporter of the Archaeological Society of New Mexico, the Grant County Archaeological Society, the Archaeological Conservancy, and Archaeology Southwest, John took part in programs and tours offered by all of the above organizations as well as the Road Scholar program. He was also a regular attendee of local, regional, and, occasionally, national archaeological conferences.

John was never more at home than in the field, hiking to an archaeological site or driving the backroads in his 4X4. In many ways, he was able to live his fantasy while contributing almost 30 years of his life to the pursuit of Southwestern archaeology and history. He was a blessing to the field and we miss him.

Bras for a Cause

BULLETIN REPORT

Las Cruces activist Marci Dickerson conducted a live auction for bras decorated by local artists for Bras for a Cause, held Thursday night, Oct. 12, at New Mexico Farm and Ranch Museum.

The event's live and silent auctions of bras decorated by local artists raised $20,000 – double the goal set for the event – for Cancer Warriors, the program Dickerson started earlier this year to help women dealing with female cancers.

Memorial Medical Center, a Cancer Warriors partner, is creating a wall of fame for bras that were purchased during Bras for a Cause and then donated to the hospital.

Bruce Willis

OF MOONLIGHTING ON ABC

Q: Did Bruce Willis ever do another series after "Moonlighting"?

A: Not in terms of being a regular cast member, but he did have another significant TV role afterward ... and it's on display often, given how frequently the series in question is still shown. He guest-starred on "Friends" for three episodes in 2000 as Paul, the disapproving father of Ross's (David Schwimmer) considerably younger girlfriend Elizabeth (Alexandra Holden), and the two men eventually came to a meeting of the minds thanks to certain information Ross had about Paul (which the latter man didn't want revealed). Willis earned a Primetime Emmy Award for the portrayal, marking the second one he won, his first having come for his work as wisecracking sleuth David Addison on "Moonlighting." He also did guest shots on such shows as "Ally McBeal" and "Mad About You," but movies had the bulk of his creative attention after he scored an enormous hit with the original "Die Hard" in 1988.

That being said, the actor also hosted "Saturday Night Live" a couple of times, and he was the good-natured target of a "Comedy Central Roast" in 2018, with his ex-wife

Demi Moore and "Moonlighting" leading lady Cybill Shepherd among those who took humorous shots at him. As is traditional for such events, though, Willis got to even the score with his own remarks at the end of that show. Joseph Gordon-Levitt, who played Willis' younger self in the 2012 movie "Looper," was the host of the "Roast."

Halloween AMC 1 p.m.

On a Halloween night in 1963, 6-year-old Michael Myers brutally murdered his 17-year-old sister, Judith. He was sentenced to 15 years. But on October 30, 1978, while being transferred for a court date, a 21-year-old Myers escapes and heads home.

Where Are You, Christmas? HALL 6 p.m.

Some may relate to Addy's (Lyndsy Fonseca) wish for a year without Christmas. Really, who wants to deal with all that? Bah humbug! Unfortunately, it's not what Addy expected, so she must team up with the town mechanic (Michael Rady) to fix her mistake.

The Long, Long Trailer TCM 6 p.m.

When Nicholas (Desi Arnaz) has to travel for his new job, his fiancée, Tacy (Lucille Ball), suggests they buy a motor-home to see the country. But nosy trailer park neighbors and driving a huge trailer on narrow country roads take their toll.

Bad Romance: The Vicky White Story LIFE 6 p.m.

Workplace romances are rarely a good idea. When corrections officer Vicky White (Wendi McLendon-Covey) develops an infatuation with new prisoner Casey White (Rossif Sutherland), she risks everything to break him out before his transfer.

All Rise OWN 7 p.m.

This courtroom drama's final season barrels towards a conclusion with a new episode. Starring Simone Missick as judge Lola Carmichael, the show dives into the personal lives of LA judges, prosecutors and public defenders.

New York Homicide OXYGEN 7 p.m.

The same DNA connects a suspect to two young women who were sexually assaulted then strangled five years apart. When the cases turn cold, the New York Police Department and the New York State Police team up 17 years later in order to find the killer.

Jonathan Bennett from "Halloween Wars"

Under the Christmas Sky HALL 6 p.m.

Sometimes, falling short of the stars is exactly the right path. And when Kat (Jessica Parker Kennedy), an astronaut, suffers an accident that grounds her, she volunteers at a local planetarium where she falls for by-the-book David (Ryan Paevey).

The Neighbors Are Watching LIFE 6 p.m.

Good fences make good neighbors. Tall fences, not so much. Amy (Kabby Borders) must confront her disturbing past after witnessing her handsome new neighbor (Will Holland) commit a grisly murder. Are the clues leading the police to the wrong front door?

Fear the Walking Dead AMC 7 p.m.

Just when you think you're out, they pull you back in. In this final mid-season premiere, Strand (Colman Domingo) fights to protect his new life when it's threatened by the arrival of an old friend (Kim Dickens). But are things coming together or apart?

Halloween Wars FOOD 7 p.m.

The contestants better like garlic as host Jonathan Bennett tasks them with incorporating it into their next display. With a spot in the finale on the line, the stakes are at their highest. Can they impress judges Shinnin Li and Aarti Sequeria?

Bob's Burgers KFOX 8 p.m.

Bob Belcher is no hero; he's just a slightly eccentric small business owner trying his best to provide for his wacky family. This new episode finds him and Linda helping Gretchen throw a bachelorette party while Tina forces Gene and Louise to play a game.

Sister Wives TLC 8 p.m.

As Season 18 continues, drama is the name of the game when it comes to the polygamist Brown family. Husband Kody Brown must navigate the wants and needs of his four wives and 18 children. However, he may not be able to hold the family together any longer.

Creepshow AMC 8:10 p.m.

The Creep has more stories to share as season 4 continues. Based on the 1982 movie, each episode features two new stories that will explore everything from the supernatural to the unexplainable. Like a comic come alive, stories may be interrupted by humanity's most horrifying creation — advertisements.

Big Brother KDBC 8:30 p.m.

Is $750,000 enough money to isolate one's self with absolute strangers for months on end? The remaining houseguests certainly think so. However, they begin week 12 in peril as the Head of Household nominates two fellow guests for eviction.

Billions SHOW 9 p.m.

The alliances have formed, and Chuck (Paul Giamatti), Axe (Damian Lewis) and Wendy (Maggie Siff) look to square off against Prince (Corey Still) as the campaign continues to heat up. Plus, the Prince Cappers' loyalties are tested as things come to a head.

NMSU researchers discuss post-pandemic threats

By CARLOS ANDRES LÓPEZ

NMSU News Team

The Covid-19 pandemic brought significant societal changes across social, economic, cultural and political landscapes. But researchers from New Mexico State University's College of Health, Education and Social Transformation believe public health may have suffered the worst effects of the global crisis. Now, they're calling on health practitioners and policymakers to address emerging health threats with a renewed focus.

These experts shared their thoughts on the biggest public health dangers facing humanity.

Food insecurity from climate change

More than 10 percent of all Americans are food insecure, and almost a billion people worldwide struggle with food insecurity. As the world's population continues to grow, so does the need to accelerate and increase food production, said Elizabeth England-Kennedy, an assistant professor of public health at NMSU.

"The key reason is climate change. Climate change affects production by causing extreme changes in weather systems, including drought, flooding, life-threatening heat, hailstorms and pollinator death," England-Kennedy said. "Recent changes in weather and new threats to our environment, such as the 2023 El Niño pattern, wars and conflict, rising temperatures, refugees and displacement, will intensify these conditions, increasing individual and simultaneous crop failures and food shortages."

The energy sector is a major driver of climate change, followed by agriculture/meat production, and both affect food production and distribution capacity, England-Kennedy said. Solutions include international collaborations, enhancing research and development for agricultural technology, pollution reduction, curtailing food waste and maldistribution, and a managed transition to clean energy, she said.

She added that collaborations between producers, researchers and policymakers may help increase production and distribution options, while enhanced weather modeling may help producers better adapt to rapidly changing conditions.

"New drought-resistant plant varieties, more efficient irrigation, better use of land and resources, and facilities and infrastructure updates are the need of the hour," she said. "Creating a sustainable food system in response to climate change requires solutions at local and global levels. Changes must begin now."

Health care workforce shortages

In the United States, health care professions enjoy some of the highest salaries and rapid growth in employment projections. Yet, there is a chronic shortage of health care professionals in most key positions, such as nurses, pharmacists and physical therapists, said Teresa Keller, a professor of nursing at NMSU.

These shortages existed even before the Covid-19 pandemic, Keller said, and are projected to grow over the next decade, making access to health care services more difficult for all in an aging nation.

"The Covid-19 pandemic changed the landscape of health care workforce with problems ranging from mental distress to death of health care workers," she said.

Keller said recent estimates suggest more than 100,000 health care workers worldwide died as a result of Covid-19, including almost 4,000 from the U.S. Additionally, a recent survey from the National Council of State Boards of Nursing suggests about 100,000 nurses nationwide left the workplace due to stresses caused by the pandemic.

"The economic and social drivers of these shortages are complex and addressing these shortages will require cooperation and thoughtful action in the health services sector," Keller said.

To address these shortages, Keller suggests expanding and funding professional and continuing education, streamlining licensing requirements, loan repayment and other non-cash incentives, revising immigration policies for skilled foreign health care professionals, and developing strategies to build better workplaces where individuals can flourish.

Health information and misinformation

Health misinformation is a "claim of fact" about health-related phenomena that is false or misleading. Public reactions to the Covid-19 pandemic showed the very stark consequences of health misinformation, said Marshall Taylor, the interim associate dean for research in the College of HEST at NMSU.

"People who are susceptible to misinformation tend to be more distrustful of science and the government, which can lead people to be more resistant to public health measures," Taylor said. "Health misinformation spreads for many reasons, and they are amplified by social media. For example, there is an entire fake news genre for monetizing online disinformation — intentional misinformation — and social media provides political actors with an opportunity to bypass news media's vetting processes to spread unsubstantiated claims."

Taylor said some individuals are more likely to believe and spread misinformation when the information aligns with their other deeply held beliefs (what researchers call "confirmation bias") and when they consume media in echo chambers that elevate belief-consistent news sources and remove opportunities for exposure to disconfirming information. Further, health misinformation may spread on social media faster than accurate information because false information is more likely to be seen as novel and attention-grabbing, he said.

In 2021, the U.S. surgeon general issued an advisory to combat health misinformation. The report, Taylor said, emphasizes that this will be a "whole-of-society effort" that involves, among many other actions, promoting information literacy and crafting news headlines that avoid trying to provoke emotional reactions from readers.

Poor mental health

NMSU studies conducted by Jagdish Khubchandani, a professor of public health, during the pandemic found that anxiety and depression rates nearly doubled, higher stress resulted in unhealthy lifestyles and excess internet/media consumption led to psychological distress.

Before the pandemic, he said, nearly one in five people had a diagnosable mental health condition, including substance-use disorders. Now, the burden has substantially increased, but less than 10% government health budgets worldwide go toward mental health care.

“Over recent years, mental health problems have grown at a rate that far outpaces available mental health care services and resources,” he said. “The U.S. will spend nearly $300 billion this year on mental health care, and yet, more than half of those who need services will not get timely or adequate care,” he said.

He warned poor mental health may cause greater disability, reduced quality of life, incarceration, homelessness, overdose deaths and a higher number of suicides. Untreated mental illness in the U.S. may cost up to $300 billion every year in related productivity losses, he added.

“I call it a trillion-dollar problem in the U.S., given what we spend on treatment and what we lose due to untreated mental illnesses,” he said.

Khubchandani said policymakers should consider mental health care as an issue of social and economic development. He calls for higher government funding, reducing stigma around mental illnesses, and using more technological tools to improve health care.

“We all have a role to play, as well, by increasing awareness, creating a culture of mental health promotion, and watching out for those at risk or struggling,” he said.

Lending library adds to county children's well-being

By SOMMER MITCHELL
Success Partnership

Did you know there are libraries in your community where you can borrow high-quality toys, games, and other educational resources for free? The UNM Early Childhood Services Center Toy Lending and Resource Library has been operating in Las Cruces since 2018.

"When I was raising my baby at home, the Toy Lending Library in Las Cruces was a major part of our lives," said Marisa DeWolf. New toys are so expensive, and the lending library allowed my young daughter to explore her interests and then trade for something else as she grew, all for free. I'm so happy that parents and kids in Anthony will have this gathering place to enrich the early years for their families."

The Success Partnership's Doña Ana County (DAC) Early Childhood Education (ECE) Coalition introduces Mundo de Juguetes, the new Toy Lending Library in Anthony, that will expand and improve access to early learning resources for families. The ECE Coalition's Gadsden Chapter named the Toy Lending Library "Mundo de Juguetes," a Spanish term of endearment that refers to a world of toys. The Mundo de Juguetes Gadsden Toy Lending Library offers children, their families, and communities access to free developmentally appropriate toys and books. As a library, families can return and exchange items as children grow.

"The toy lending library allows the Gadsden area partners to collaborate and nurture early childhood success in the community," said Ybeth Z. Iglesias, MPA, Co-Associate Director and Bilingual Education and Development Manager for the UNM Family Development Program.

"The Toy Lending Library started as a dream with a group of people committed to making this dream come true. The ECE Gadsden Chapter and Ngage NM joined forces and worked meticulous hours fulfilling this dream and bringing it to the Gadsden District families," said Esther Hernandez, former staff member of Ngage NM.

Mundo de Juguetes opened in September and is intended to serve the surrounding communities: Mesquite, La Mesa, Vado, Berino, Chamberino, Santa Teresa, Sunland Park, Chaparral, and many other smaller villages and colonias. The DAC ECE Coalition recognizes the rural nature of this area and while Anthony is closer than Las Cruces, travel will still be part of visiting the library. Mundo de Juguetes will have their library items listed online so that families can view toys and resources before they make the trip to visit. Julie Ballard-Soto, Director of Thriving Families Home Visiting, shares, "As someone who has built my home and raised my family in the Gadsden Community, I recognize how invaluable Mundo de Juguetes is going to be for families to explore and learn through play. I feel blessed to serve this community and am so grateful to all the partners working together to make this happen."

Join us for a Grand Opening Celebration for Mundo de Juguetes 2 p.m. - 6 p.m. Friday, Oct. 27, at 780 Landers Road, Unit G in Anthony. There will be a Trunk or Treat, games, food, prizes, and more.

Yoga helps keeps seniors moving

BULLETIN REPORT

Working with a Medicare provider program called Renew Active, Downtown Desert Yoga, 303 S. Alameda Blvd., is offering free classes to senior citizens. Through the United Healthcare program, seniors can take up to 10 daytime classes a month at the studio at no charge, said DDY owner Colleen Boyd.

Boyd and DDY instructor Richard Havey and other DDY instructors will lead the classes, which include yoga, yin yoga, Tai Chi, balance and more.

Havey is teaching two new classes: laughter yoga and qigong.

“Laughter yoga is a series of breathing and laughing exercises that aim to bring out your inner child and help you let go of daily life stressors,” Havey said. “A typical class will include breathing with making sounds, improv with laughter and aspects of yoga to help you relax and laugh. Laughing releases endorphins and ‘happy’ hormones like dopamine and serotonin. This can promote a greater sense of well-being, lower blood pressure and help you connect with others.

“Qigong uses simple poses and breathing patterns to promote a healthy flow and reduce stagnation of qi,” Havey said. “Proper flow of qi can help the body engage its own healing processes. The slow purposeful movements of qigong are less challenging to your balance. Qigong is easy for most people to do and you can modify the movement. People can also do chair-based qigong. Qigong is shown to have positive effects on bone and cardiovascular health and improve balance.”

Other classes include yin yoga, balance and flow, hatha restore, nourishing hatha and midday reset. Classes will be offered multiple times each week in November, December and continuing into 2024, Boyd said. DDY will schedule a Renew Active meet-and-greet open house in the near future, she said.

“Get Gotti” (Oct. 24)

It's 1985 and John Gotti is the most powerful man in New York; he's also the most surveilled. His public execution of 'Boss of Bosses' Paul Castellano sets in motion a series of events that catapults the young mobster to the helm of America's most powerful mafia family. As the tentacles of Gotti's criminal enterprise extend deep into the heart of the city, law enforcement and state prosecutors scramble for their chance to bring the charismatic Godfather to his knees. This three-part docuseries chronicles Gotti's meteoric rise and crashing fall — all told by those who brought him down.

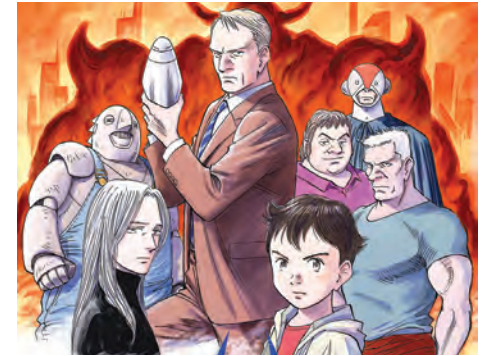

“Life on Our Planet” (Oct. 25)

This nature docuseries is the story of life's epic battle to conquer and survive on planet Earth. Today there are 20 million species on our planet, yet what we see is just a snapshot in time — 99% of earth's inhabitants are lost to our deep past. The story of what happened to these dynasties — their rise and their fall — is truly remarkable. In partnership with Industrial Light & Magic, the series uses the latest technology and science to bring long extinct creatures back to life, revealing the incredible story of life on our planet.

“The After” (Oct. 25)

A powerful and affecting film that follows Dayo (David Oyelowo), a Londoner who has to reconnect with himself and society after witnessing a devastating random attack in the capital.

“Pluto” - Season 1 (Oct. 26)

In a distant future where sentient humanoid robots pass for human, someone or something is out to destroy the seven great robots of the world. Europol's top detective Gesicht (Shinshu Fuji) is assigned to investigate these mysterious robot serial murders the only catch is that he himself is one of the seven targets. Based on the work of Osamu Tezuka.

“Shazam! Fury Of The Gods” (Oct. 23)

Bestowed with the powers of the gods, Billy Batson (Asher Angel) and his fellow foster kids are still learning how to juggle teenage life with their adult superhero alter egos. When a vengeful trio of ancient gods arrives on Earth in search of the magic stolen from them long ago, Shazam (Zachary Levi) and his allies get thrust into a battle for their superpowers, their lives, and the fate of the world.

“Hot Potato: The Story of the Wiggles” (Oct. 24)

This is the improbable story of The Wiggles, four friends who record a one-off album of children's music in the early '90s and change the global music industry forever. Recognizable by their blue, red, yellow and purple getups, Anthony Field, Murray Cook, Greg Page and Jeff Fatt become an unlikely music phenomenon equipped with early childhood teaching fundamentals and a dose of self-belief.

“Zainab Johnson: Hijabs Off” (Oct. 24)

Comedian Zainab Johnson (who also stars in Prime Video's "Upload") effortlessly blends relatable stories, sharp wit, and thought-provoking social commentary into her unique style of stand-up comedy. Her debut special explores her identity as a Black female Muslim, having 12 siblings, and growing up in Harlem.

“Studio 666” (Oct. 25)

Legendary rock band Foo Fighters move into an Encino mansion steeped in grisly rock and roll history to record their much anticipated 10th album in this comedy horror flick. Once in the house, Dave Grohl finds himself grappling with supernatural forces that threaten both the completion of the album and the lives of the band.

Jason Statham in "Meg 2: The Trench"

"MEG 2: THE TRENCH"

Coming five years after the original thriller "The Meg," this sequel returns action staple Jason Statham to the role of the heroic environmentalist who finds more supposedly extinct Megalodon sharks to fight. A mining operation that ruptures a danger-harboring undersea trench plays a part in forcing others to struggle to survive, and the special-effects-enhanced mayhem remains of the sort that made the first film a considerable hit. Ironically, one of the settings in the tale is called Fun Island ... and many of the characters surely would call that a misnomer, given what they face there and in the surrounding area. The human cast of the American-Chinese co-production also includes Wu Jing, Cliff Curtis, Shuya Sophia Kai, Page Kennedy, Skyler Samuels and Sienna Guillory. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray, 4K Ultra HD, Digital and On Demand)

"NANCY DREW: THE FINAL SEASON"

The latest of the screen iterations inspired by the mystery-novel series written under the pseudonym Carolyn Keene, which has been hugely popular for generations, puts forth its recently concluded last television season – which aired on The CW – on DVD. Ever-curious sleuth Nancy (played by Kennedy McMann) and her "Drew Crew" try to save their coastal town from otherworldly forces, bringing many of the relationships among them to their natural – or supernatural, as the case may be – destinies. A major element for Nancy apart from her detective work is her future, if there is one, with long-time ally Ace (Alex Saxon).

"BLUE COLLAR TV: THE COMPLETE SERIES"

Jeff Foxworthy, Bill Engvall and Larry the Cable Guy were on a particular roll with the popularity of their country-flavored humor when they brought the essence of their successful Blue Collar Comedy Tour to weekly television with this sketch series, which ran for two seasons (2004-06) on what then was the WB Network. Each episode had a particular theme, and certain segments were recurring elements of the show, such as "Big Kids" – which saw the three stars play youngsters (particularly interesting in servicing Foxworthy and Larry's facial hair) – and "Politically Correct Fairy Tales." Among guest stars were Brad Pitt (yes, really), Drew Carey and such country-music acts as Trace Adkins, Clint Black, LeAnn Rimes and Brooks & Dunn. ★★★ (Not rated: AS)

Dangerbird bikepacking

Event brings riders from around the world to Las Cruces

By MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Dangerbird is a 250-mile bikepacking adventure that takes in Las Cruces, Mesilla, Hatch, parts of southern Doña Ana County, a bit of Texas and the vast and vista-filled Monumental Loop cycling route through Organ Mountains-Desert Peaks National Monument.

The Dangerbird summit and noncompetitive ride are Friday-Saturday, Oct. 20-21, and will include more than 150 cyclists from around the world, said race co-organizer Pablo Lopez, who owns Outdoor Adventures biking shop in Las Cruces.

All the ride slots are filled, Lopez said, but community members are welcome and encouraged to attend public events that are part of the ride, including the Saturday morning ride launch in Mesilla.

The ride, which is closer to 260 miles long than 250, Lopez said, has two loops.

The Green Chile Loop goes north from Mesilla and crosses through the Doña Ana and Robledo mountains to Hatch. The 120-mile loop is “particularly rocky and very challenging,” Lopez said.

The Red Chile Loop goes south from Mesilla and takes in the Sierra Vista Trail to Vinton, Texas, and Kilbourne Hole volcanic crater in the national monument. The southern route includes pristine portions of the Chihuahuan Desert, he said.

Riders complete one or both loops with a return to Mesilla, Lopez said. The fastest recorded time for the total ride is just under 24 hours, he said. Some riders take 10-12 days to complete the full route. The average is four-six days.

Because the ride loops back through Las Cruces and Mesilla, some bikers will stay in Airbnbs and other paid lodging, Lopez said, or will stay with community members.

But many riders have included tents and camping equipment in their biking gear and will be camping out during the ride.

The ride includes the Safetybird, an overnight bike ride for beginners that is about 25 miles long and not as difficult as the Dangerbird, he said. Riders use borrowed equipment for their first bikepacking trip to through southern New Mexico’s public lands, Lopez said.

Lopez and Matt Mason started Dangerbird eight years ago, Lopez said, and are coordinating the event along with state Rep. Angelica Rubio of Las Cruces. The two came up with the name while on a bikepacking trip near Radium Springs, Lopez said. They were talking about starting a bikepacking event; thinking about how New Mexico’s state bird, the roadrunner, is unafraid to take on a dangerous rattlesnake; and listening to Neil Young’s rendition of “Danger Bird,” a song Young wrote and recorded in 1975.

Lopez and Mason partner with Visit Las Cruces and the Friends of the Organ Mountains-Desert Peaks on the ride, which is officially permitted by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM). There is no charge for riders to participate, but donations from riders and other individuals, businesses and organizations are welcome to support the backpacking adventure, Lopez said.

Dangerbird schedule

- Makers' Market: 8-11:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 20, Outdoor Adventures biking shop, in Solano Square, 1424 Missouri Ave. The event will include all-New Mexico made bikepacking products, bike parts and more.
- Bikepacking Summit: 2-5 p.m., Friday, Oct. 20, Klein Park, 155 N. Mesquite St. Speakers will include Jalen Bazil, founder of Black Foxes, along with students from Texas Tech University who had their first-ever bikepacking adventure on the Monumental Loop last March. “They have quite a story to tell,” Lopez said. Teachers and students who are part of Centennial High School’s outdoor program will also speak about their program. There also will be a panel of binational cyclists who have learned to navigate along the United States-Mexico border.
- Ride launch: 8 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, Mesilla Plaza. 150 bike riders, some with their pets, will begin the run. A short bike parade led by adaptive cyclist Grace Holguin of Las Cruces will start the ride, Lopez said. Community members are welcome to join cyclists at the launch and the beginning of the race. The public is welcome to attend all these events, which are free of charge, Lopez said. That's when the characters inside the books come alive," Pioneer Drama Services said about "The Enchanted Bookshop."

Amador exhibit opens

BULLETIN REPORT

Branigan Cultural Center (BCC) opens “The Amadors: Family, Culture, and Identity in Early Las Cruces” exhibit Friday, Oct. 20, at BCC, 501 N. Main St.

An opening reception is 5-7 p.m. that evening at BCC.

“The Amadors and their extended relations were among the first families to settle in Las Cruces around 1850,” the City of Las Cruces said in a news release. “Like most Mesilla Valley Mexican families, their roots were in the state of Chihuahua (Mexico), particularly the Paso del Norte area.

Following the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo in 1848, Mexican citizens residing in newly acquired United States territory were given the option to become U.S. citizens or move south to Mexico.

Those Mexican families that stayed in Doña Ana or helped found Las Cruces opted for U.S. citizenship.

In “The Amadors: Family, Culture, and Identity in Early Las Cruces” exhibit, BCC will follow the Amadors’ experience of Mexican families living along the U.S. side of the international boundary following the Mexican American War.

Review: ‘Poe’ great for Halloween

By MIKE COOK

Las Cruces Bulletin

With the cast dressed all in black, “Murder By Poe” by Jeffrey Hatcher is a scary good time at Black Box Theatre (BBT), as it brings to life (and death) the stories and poems that made Edgar Allan Poe a master of the macabre.

Give four shrieks to co-directors husband and wife Joshua and Bekah Taulbee, who know every aspect of live theatre – on stage, backstage and in the light booth. Josh doubled as the set designer for this show – and the set is fabulously perfect – and Bekah did double duty as the lighting designer.

Cast members also played multiple roles in this production, including Penny Bever, Rachel Thomas-Chappell, Cassandra Galban, Dezz Martin, Luz Resendez, JoseLuis Solorzano, Atticus Starritt, Genno Tafoya, Nancy Klein Tafoya, Lisa Taylor and AJ Tumminaro (he was the clever detective/host).

If you add the Taulbees, that’s 13.

It is a veteran and versatile cast that welcomes Martin to her first time acting on stage. You will recognize actors from many BBT productions, as well as shows at Las Cruces Community Theatre, NMSU theatre, Toad Hall Productions and founding members of the Super Secret Improv Show that performs at BBT.

Some of Poe’s most famous works have been adapted for the stage by Hatcher, including “The Black Cat,” “The Tell-Tale Heart,” “The Murders in the Rue Morgue,” “The Purloined Letter” and “The Fall of the House of Usher.”

This is truly an ensemble production, with cast and crew supporting each other to create some truly creepy moments. There is no intermission in the 90-minute show, so the action continues to build as it segues from one Poe tale of terror to the next. BBT is at 430 N. Main St. Remaining performances are 8 p.m.

Mural needs painters

BULLETIN REPORT

People of all ages and artistic abilities are invited to help fill in the outline of a 1,800-foot paint-by-numbers mural and enjoy a community celebration at Cruces Creatives makerspace, 205 E. Lohman Ave., noon-4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20, and 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 21-22, the nonprofit said in a news release. Painters can participate for as long as they wish any or all days. Information and pre-registration options are available at www.crucescreatives.org/event-5341576.

“Through this free, family friendly event, participants can help beautify downtown Las Cruces, enjoy time together, make connections,” the news release said.

A special goal for the project is to help community members ages 50 and older make social connections and find meaningful volunteering opportunities, the nonprofit said.

“Thanks to a paint-by-numbers process, participants don’t need any special artistic experience to help make a beautiful mural,” Cruces Creatives said. “Anyone who can hold a brush can help paint it, and volunteers from the makerspace will be on site to help answer questions and offer guidance.”

Paints, brushes and all other supplies will be provided. Participants should bring sun protection and clothes suitable for painting. The design for the mural, “Lady of Las Cruces,” was developed by Tina Ballew of NMCO Media and chosen by community voting.

CITY OF LAS CRUCES

Las Cruces Utilities Water Operations and Maintenance Line of Business goes to great efforts to ensure the quality of drinking water for city residents continues to be superior.

New Mexico and federal regulations require LCU to diligently monitor the water we drink and rely so much on.

“We test our water all the time,” said Ronald Borunda, LCU Deputy Director of Water. “Our water systems are tested monthly. The bigger water systems in New Mexico, and Las Cruces are among those who are required by state and federal standards to be tested more often.”

Water quality testing by LCU is conducted for the Las Cruces Municipal Water System, the Hacienda Acres Water System, the Las Alturas Estates Water System, the San Andres Water System, and the University

Las Cruces Utilities Ensures Quality of City’s Water

Estates Water System. Annual Consumer Water Confidence Reports are regularly issued to the public and are available online at www.lascruces.gov/Annual-Consumer-Confidence-Reports

The Annual Water Quality Reports are required by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s Safe Drinking Water Act. The report provides details about where Las Cruces’ water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to state and federal standards set by regulatory agencies.

Simply, what Las Cruces should know is there are no water quality violations in the city’s water supply. That is very important, considering LCU’s Water Operations and Maintenance Line of Business provides about 10 billion gallons of drinking water every year to its customers.

The source of Las Cruces’ water supply is groundwater from the Mesilla and Jornada del Muerto Bolsons. The city’s water distribution system includes 28 wells within or near the city limits.

“It’s the planet that gives us that good, clean water,” Borunda said. “... The planet literally filters any bad contaminates.”

City water sample testing routinely checks for inorganic contaminants, disinfectants and disinfection by-products, microbiological contaminants, radioactive contaminants, and volatile organic contaminants.

“It’s important we test and sample the water to see the ecosystem as a whole,” Borunda said.

Las Cruces residents can do their part to help protect the city’s drinking water supply. Residents can eliminate excess use of lawn and garden fertilizers and pesticides that may contain hazardous chemicals that could reach their drinking water source.

Also, residents should properly dispose of chemicals, take used motor oil and other hazardous household waste to the South Central Solid Waste Authority Recycling Center, 2835 Amador Ave., regularly pick up after pets, and properly maintain their septic system, if they own one.

Las Cruces Utilities is available to answer any questions or discuss suggestions customers might have about their drinking water. Call LCU at (575) 528-3500.

Muñoz 'breaks binding' with NMSU art exhibit

BULLETIN REPORT

The NMSU Art Museum (UAM) will host "Celia

MUÑOZ

Álvarez Muñoz: Breaking the Binding" Oct. 20-March 2, 2024, with a public opening reception 5:30-7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20, at the NMSU Art Museum, 1308 E. University Ave., in Devasthali Hall.

During the reception, Álvarez Muñoz will sign copies of her book, "Celia Álvarez Muñoz: Breaking the Binding."

"Celia Álvarez Muñoz: Breaking the Binding" encompasses more than 35 artworks, showcasing Muñoz's "remarkable career as a conceptual artist," according to a UAM news release.

The exhibition originated from the Museum of Contemporary Art in San Diego and was curated by Kate Green, Ph.D., chief curator and Nancy E.

Meinig curator of modern and contemporary art at Philbrook Museum of Art, and Isabel Casso, assistant curator at the museum.

Álvarez Muñoz was born in El Paso in 1937. She studied at UTEP, taking mostly commercial art classes.

"in 1977, at age 40, she enrolled in graduate school at University of North Texas (and) began work on her seminal series 'Enlightenment,' exploring her personal memories of life on the U.S.-Mexico border in the aftermath of the Great Depression. Álvarez Muñoz has exhibited in museums and galleries nationally and internationally.

Nusenda + NMSU = Aggie financial literacy

BY MIKE COOK
Las Cruces Bulletin

Nusenda Credit Union (NCU) and New Mexico State University are partnering to make Aggies more financially literate.

More than 50 percent of college dropouts don't continue their educations because of a lack of money or money management skills, NMSU Academic Success Center Program Director Marci Salinas-Milam said Wednesday, Oct. 11, as Nusenda and NMSU cut the ribbon on the NMSU Nusenda Center for Financial Capability (NCFC) on the second floor of NMSU's Corbett Center.

Graduating Aggies who understand money management is key to their education and training on campus and their economic prosperity in life, said NMSU Foundation CEO Sylvia Y. Acosta, Ph.D., an NMSU graduate.

Nusenda President and CEO Joe Christian said he earned an MBA from NMSU, and New Mexico State's placement office "set him on a path to Nusenda."

The Center for Financial Capability, which Nusenda has pledged to fund through 2031, will include industry experts and NMSU faculty, along with peer-led workshops, job fairs and other events to help students gain financial literacy, said NMSU Assistant Vice President Tony Marin.

STUDENTS should be financially secure, NMSU Provost Alan Shoho said. The partnership between NNSU and Nusenda "demonstrates our commitment to student success," he said, and "part of that success is financial wellbeing."

Nusenda was also at the FinTech Lab at Arrowhead Center for an earlier ribbon cutting on Oct. 11.

Nusenda made a $3 million gift to NMSU to support the lab and the financial center at Corbett.

"Building on our longstanding ties to the Borderplex region, our goal is to create an innovative partnership that is tailored to the unique needs of this community," Christian said.

NCFC "provides students and others with access to educational resources, financial planning tools and the coaching to help them establish financial security and reach their financial goals," Christian said in an NMSU news release.

"The FinTech lab's resources, mentors and collaborative environment are here to help students and entrepreneurs in the region access the workspace, mentoring, and support they need to

"Fintech" refers to technology-driven innovations, computer programs and other technology that support or enable banking and financial services, NMSU said.

Simulators now full force in golf landscape

A golf simulator is a wall-sized screen that allows golf to be played on a facsimile driving range or course, usually in an indoor setting. Relying on a sophisticated set of environmental sensors, software tracks each swing, and accurately represents the entire shot, from how the ball tracks and bounces visually on the screen, giving detailed feedback of the flight of the ball for practice and training. The recently enhanced simulators track club speed, path and face angle at impact, together with ball speed, path, spin and horizontal and vertical launch angle.

The latest technology includes sonic sound systems, radar systems, optical sensor systems and highly sophisticated camera systems, which are fast becoming the norm. Up to four cameras are used to monitor the playing area, with speeds up to 120 frames per second. The accuracy of the high-end units has increased exponentially the past few years. Screen sizes for residential uses average 5 X 8 feet, and for commercial studio uses 10 X 20 feet or wider.

Simulators are not your grandfather's golf nets.

Early versions of simulators, crude by comparison with today's, have been around for 40 years. The explosion of the market for simulators has been due largely to commercial applications, mainly in sports bars, indoor golf centers, country clubs, hotels, resorts and fitness facilities.

Plus, indoor golf simulators have been gaining popularity in residential settings. As technological advances bring pricing down, many avid golfers have chosen to equip their homes with indoor golf training facilities, particularly in colder northern regions, where outdoor golf is limited to seven or eight months.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

In January, I was able to hit a few shots to a large screen simulator that used Hole No. 18 at Pebble Beach as a landing area. It was highly realistic.

These cutting-edge tools enable golfers to practice their swing, get lessons, get fitted for clubs and play golf in an artificial but enhanced visual setting, while staying comfy and cozy indoors. Locally, there are at least two full sized simulators: one at T.J. McMullen's Total Golf studio, and one at Dick's Sporting Goods. There may be more residential set-ups in town, but, of course, we do enjoy outdoor golf year-round.

According to Custom Market Insights (CMI), a research and tech market data company, the U.S. golf simulators market was $1.6 billion less than two years ago, and is anticipated to reach $3.4 billion by 2030.

"Increased pay-per-hour usage in commercial indoor entertainment centers, expanding consumer interest in virtual reality, and rising consumer adoption of augmented reality all contribute to the market's expansion," while high installation costs for residential and commercial centers are limiting factors, CMI notes. CMI reports the Asia-Pacific market will have the fastest growth rate for simulators in the next few years, with one of the most lucrative markets in South Korea, where golf is a national sport. One of the biggest marketers of simulators is Korean-owned Golfzon which had sales of $1.3 billion in 2022.

As a hyper-important indication of how significant the indoor golf revolution really is, Tiger Woods and Rory McIlroy announced Oct. 5 the launching of the TGL Golf League starting in January. The league (two years in the planning) will be played on a football-field-sized playing ground at Palm Beach State College in Florida, with full shots being hit to a 46 X 64 foot simulator screen, and short game shots played on an indoor green. The format will be a team event – three players against three – on Monday nights televised by ESPN in a two-hour window. All players will wear microphones. A release by TGL says they were part of "ventures that are progressive approaches to sports, media and technology."

"We've all heard about the fact of how old the golf audience is (and now we are) trying to get younger eyeballs on to it," McIlroy adds. The field of players who have committed is mostly set with all PGA Tour stars.
