Retired Sen. Mary Jane Garcia remembered

BULLETIN REPORT

Mary Jane Garcia, a retired state senator, business owner and community advocate born in the village of Doña Ana and served in the legislature from 1988 to 2012 representing the county, passed away on Jan. 5 at the age of 87.

“Mary Jane passed away peacefully this morning surrounded by her large and loving family,” the Doña Ana Village Historic Preservation Committee announced on Facebook. “Mary Jane spent decades fighting for our community and her positive impact on our village will benefit future generations.”

Garcia had begun

hospice care late in December, per social media posts.

Doña Ana County issued a statement Friday announcing her death, which had been preceded by announcements on social media from state Sen. Jeff Steinborn, a fellow Democrat who holds the District 36 seat that was once Garcia’s, and the historic preservation committee, of which Garcia was a co-founder.

The county hailed Garcia as a leader who “dedicated her life to public service, tirelessly working to improve the lives of Doña Ana County residents,” citing her support for at-risk youth programs, animal rights, education, public safety, welfare reform and historic preservation. In recent years, she had been observed participating in cleanup days, clearing trash at the village’s historic cemetery.

Among the bills she carried in the legislature was the 2008 bill criminalizing human trafficking, legislation pertaining to cock-fighting and other animal cruelty, domestic violence and missing children.

In a statement, Steinborn said, “New Mexico has lost one of its great public servants in Mary Jane Garcia. ... She was also a tremendous cultural and historic preservationist who worked for decades to preserve the history of her beloved community, the Village of Doña Ana, and cared deeply for her constituents.”

She had been a co-owner of Billy the Kid’s Gift Shop in Mesilla and the Victoria’s Lounge bar in Las Cruces, who earned degrees in anthropology from New Mexico State University and published, as her master’s thesis, the first document history of the village of her birth. From 1966 until 1972, she had served as an administrative assistant for the U.S. military and a medical volunteer in Saigon during the Vietnam War.

“Former Senator Mary Jane Garcia’s legacy will forever be etched in the fabric of our community,” the county stated in its announcement.

Winter Weather Driving Tips

BULLETIN REPORT

The New Mexico Department of Transportation (NMDOT) says it has prepared its personnel and equipment in efforts to support the need of law enforcement and emergency responders for upcoming harsh road condition events.

Tips to know:

- Reduce your speed:

The best accident prevention on snow and ice is to slow down and leave plenty of room between you and the vehicle in front of you for emergencies.

- Practice good winter driving techniques: Keep your gas tank full, turn on your head lights, keep your windshield washer

U.S. Highway 82 between Alamogordo and Cloudcroft is one of many that were snow packed and icy last week. More snow is predicted in the next several weeks for southern New Mexico.

fluid full with antifreeze, keep winter driving chains in your vehicle, have a winter survival kit which includes flashlight, hand warming packets, first aid supplies, high energy snacks, bottled water, medications; and read your owner's manual for special instructions on driving 4-wheel drive vehicles and vehicles with ABS on snow and ice.

- Avoid driving in a snow cloud: Large vehicles, such as semitrailer trucks and snow plows, may produce dense clouds of blowing snow that make it difficult for drivers to see. When drivers encounter snow clouds, they should stay back to avoid them.

- Plan ahead and be patient: Delays are common during bad weather. Leave a little earlier and be patient with delays.

- Check before you pass: Know where a snowplow and blade are before trying to pass. On multilane highways, the plow can be in your blind spot. Before attempting to pass, make sure it is safe.

- Pay attention to weather forecasts, trust them: Winter storms in New Mexico can become severe quickly, so stay tuned to weather forecasts when planning your trip.

- Don't use cruise control when the roads are in slippery conditions. Using your cruise control can reduce your control of the vehicle if your tires begin to skid or slip.

- Know your current road conditions: Visit the NMDOT website for current road advisory information at nmroads.com, or dial 511 in the state or 800-432-4269.

- Wear your seatbelt and make sure all passengers also buckle up.

CITY OF LAS CRUCES

Breaking down the numbers – Understanding your natural gas bill

By Becky Coppa

If you are like many people, you will open your natural gas bill and look straight to the total amount. The amount you owe may change month to month, and you may have a basic understanding that the more gas you use, the higher your bill will be. Chase Johnson, Customer Service Supervisor for the City of Las Cruces, is here to break down line-by-line what makes up the individual charges on your natural gas bill.

“I want our customers to understand what they are paying for,” Johnson explains. “I hope to clear up any misconceptions that people have and provide information about how Las Cruces Utilities (LCU) serves its customers.”

Natural gas is billed in dekatherms (Dkth), which is about one thousand cubic feet of natural gas. The more dekatherms used, the higher the Cost of Gas (COG) Charge will be. This charge is the number of dekatherms used multiplied by the COG rate. This rate fluctuates depending on gas market conditions, similar to how gasoline prices fluctuate.

Another reason for the fluctuation in the Cost of Gas Charge is that customers are not charged for natural gas until they have used at least one dekatherm. If a customer uses less than this amount of natural gas, they will not be charged for this gas, with the exception of the monthly access fee, until the next month, or months, when they have reached this threshold.

To receive natural gas into your home or business, you must be connected to the city’s natural gas pipeline. For residential customers, a static Access Fee of $14.25 is applied to your monthly bill to connect you to the pipeline. A customer may wonder, if they do not use natural gas, why would they have to pay this fee? This fee is vital to maintain the city’s natural gas infrastructure.

Those residential customers using natural gas will also pay the Cost of Service Charge, a $1.34/Dkth charge. This ensures that these pipelines are kept in ready condition, including regular line repair and maintenance, as well as getting the gas to your home.

The next charge is something all too familiar. Everyone knows that there are two things certain in life, and one of them is taxes. Each customer pays natural gas taxes to both the City and the state. Just like when purchasing items in a store, the higher your gas charges are each month, the higher your taxes will be, as well.

The last charge is the Gas Decarbonization Rider. At $0.15/Dkth, this is a fee that the City charges to create and manage a transition to a more energy-efficient community as a part of the City’s Elevate Las Cruces plan.

LCU is an enterprise fund, which means it functions as a non-profit entity and is only funded through the rates it collects from its customers. These rates enable LCU to keep up with the latest improvements to the natural gas industry.

“The City of Las Cruces is forward-thinking,” says Johnson. “We have a vested interest in continuous improvements to our natural gas system to better serve our customers.”

Checking in on NMSU research

Deputy Agriculture Secretary Xochitl Torres Small and U.S. Rep. Gabe Vasquez, D-N.M., paid a visit on Jan. 4 to New Mexico State University agriculture and food research facilities for presentations on how federal research grants are being put to use. Vasquez said the work going on at the Las Cruces campus represents “the next generation of farming and ranching and food safety production. ... All 33 counties in New Mexico have an NMSU extension office to help food producers develop the latest technologies, apply for federal grants, help the conservation of their waters and grassland, but the research starts here.” Vasquez sits on the House Committee on Agriculture, as did Torres Small when she served in Congress. She was confirmed to her post at the USDA last July.

On the spaciousness of tiny rooms

My apartment in Las Cruces is tiny. One might call this narrow cabin of cinderblock a casita, but it doesn't have room for three syllables.

It provides means for preparing food and coffee, for washing and for sleeping. There are also luxuries: A small, built-in bookcase; windows to harvest sunshine in the morning; machines to heat or cool the space. It is positioned near a park, the adobe homes of the Mesquite Historic District and views of the Organ Mountains. It is convenient for some of the loveliest walks in city limits and close to taverns and coffee shops I love, not to mention COAS Books.

There are also reminders that there is darkness and pain in the city of the crosses, including an obvious drug house a few yards away from where I lay my head, where one visitor after another, walking portraits of human misery, knock on a door and leave moments later. There are also many people in need of shelter, who would be comforted by a space just one-third of my cabin's footprint.

In the process of moving in I thought of solo retreat cabins one finds at some meditation centers. Hermitages, or retreat cabins, minimize square footage, providing shelter for living in solitude and spending one's time in prayer or meditation, which has a way of broadening one's sense of interior space even in a tight physical structure. After all, there is the outdoors for exercise, strolling or simply observing life around us. In contrast, the freedom of working for wages, earning money to fund activities and desires beyond life's necessities and managing everything we pack into our days can seem confining and even claustrophobic.

Habits that invite rest and clarity and open perspective can help us, and certainly help me, by allowing some of the daily anxiety to settle down, granting the imagination some room to play and reducing the claustrophobia.

For that, a simply appointed, tiny space serves just fine, even though friends tell me it could use some plants, maybe some art.

Garcia was passionate booster for state

The New Mexico Legislature is different from anything else I've ever covered. Part of that is structural, with arcane rules limiting sessions to 30 or 60 days and calling for legislators to work without pay or staff. And part of it is cultural.

The time limitations mean every session is a sprint to the finish, with hundreds of bills dying a quiet death when the clock strikes noon on the final day. And yet, during each day of the session, official business is temporarily set aside to make time for dancers, musicians, poets and others paying homage to our culture.

Nobody helped me understand the Legislature more than Sen. Mary Jane Garcia, who had already been serving there for 16 years when I arrived in 2004. Probably the biggest lesson I learned from her was the importance of persistence.

It took 18 years for Sen. Garcia to convince her colleagues to join with the rest of the civilized world and ban cockfighting. Her earliest efforts were openly mocked on the Senate floor with sophomoric jokes referencing the first syllable in the word "cockfighting." That was back when the New Mexico Senate was still a good ol' boys club.

She kept coming back with the bill year after year. Her deep roots in the village of Doña Ana made Garcia the perfect advocate to counter those who claimed this was all being pushed by outsiders who didn't understand our culture.

WALT RUBEL

The View
From Here

In the end, it took a joke by Jay Leno during his nightly monologue to get Gov. Bill Richardson off the fence, and we narrowly beat Louisiana into the 21st century.

That was just one example of how Garcia's persistence paid off. Others include legislation to protect children from abuse, stand up for the rights of farmworkers and other laborers, preserve our history and support both Las Cruces and New Mexico State University.

It took Garcia two years to pass what was commonly referred to as Baby Brianna's bill in 2005, in honor of Brianna Lopez, a five-month-old infant whose horrific death at the hands of her caretakers shocked and saddened our community. At that time, the penalties for child abuse resulting in death were much lower than for killing an adult.

I'll remember Sen. Garcia most for the genuine passion and enthusiasm she brought to the job of legislating. She was unrestrained in demonstrating her love for our state and its people.

Sen. Garcia died last week at the age of 87, but her impact will live on.

The New Mexico Legislature is a much different place now than it was when Garcia was first elected. The Senate is led this year by President Pro Tem Mimi Stewart, and three of its committees are chaired by women. In the House, more districts are now represented by women than by men.

It is because of leaders like Mary Jane Garcia, who served as majority whip, and Sen. Mary Kay Papen of Las Cruces, who served as president pro tem., that we have such a diverse legislature today.

I still get frustrated at the end of every session with how much is left undone. But at least now I understand the value of patience and persistence.

CYFD needs reform during this session

By SEN. CRYSTAL DIAMOND BRANTLEY
Guest Columnist

When I decided to run for office, I had no idea what a gut-wrenching experience it would be to learn the extent of the failures plaguing our Children, Youth, and Families Department (CYFD).

Their charge is clear: Protect our state's most vulnerable children and empower families. This includes infants born with substance addictions who are at some of the highest risk for infant mortality, delayed behavior, cognitive functioning, executive functioning and a bevy of other issues.

If you have paid any attention to the news, you know CYFD is failing.

In Bernalillo County alone, it is reported that we see a child under the age of one overdose almost once every other week. Over three times as likely, the same age group of children is facing life-threatening substance exposure and being treated with naloxone. Our state more than doubles the rate of the national average of newborns born with Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome – 13.6 percent compared to 6.3 percent per 1,000. But we are not helpless in this crisis and change is needed now more than ever.

CYFD, and specifically the Comprehensive Addiction and Recovery Act (CARA) program, needs reform. In October 2023, the Legislative Finance Committee issued a comprehensive evaluation of the CARA program and found that, “the vast majority of CARA families are not receiving support services or substance use treatment.”

Despite Republican-

led efforts in last year's legislative session, this administration opposed needed CYFD reform at every stage and failed to protect our state's most vulnerable children. Failure to act should not be an option. We cannot afford to lose one more precious, innocent life because of political stonewalling and negligent leadership. Accountability and urgency are how we must move forward.

Our children and their safety must be a top priority of the upcoming legislative session. Enough with the false solutions and empty platitudes. CYFD clearly cannot fix itself. So for the sake of the children that we are charged to protect, the governor must put CYFD reform on the call for the session and allow the good work of the Legislature to reform this dysfunctional, failing department. If you share my overwhelming concern for the wellbeing of our children, I urge you to contact the governor's office and advocate for this addition to her legislative call. Furthermore, I ask that you contact your local Representatives and Senators and plead with them to support our efforts.

Leading up to the legislative session, our best option to fight for our children is to spread this information and shine light on this heart-wrenching problem facing our communities. We must seek accountability in this matter and proceed with the greatest sense of urgency. This is not about politics, it's about saving lives. I am proud to help lead this charge and I humbly ask you to join me in the effort.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear editor,

This is not the best of times, nor is it the worst of times yet, although we are on a downward trajectory; and if we don't change course, the worst of times is imminent.

In the 56 years since Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated, the vitriol has propelled us to insurrection, mass murder and xenophobia. The promise of our inalienable rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is in jeopardy.

One of history's greatest orators and the voice of reason gave us some guidelines. His birthday is now a national holiday. But his philosophies, espoused by social activists throughout the country, appear to have fallen on deaf ears.

As we commemorate MLK Day 2024, we could do our collective selves a favor if only we would rely upon the wisdom of Dr. King, who fought so tirelessly for social change. In fact, he was in Memphis, Tenn. On that fateful day in April 1968 to encourage sanitation workers to stick to their laurels and demand change. He paid the ultimate price for his activism. King's assassination shocked the nation and unleashed a relentless cycle of gun violence which plagues us even today.

The proliferation of guns in this country has resulted in unprecedented mayhem, a sad commentary which continues to fester long after the death of the civil rights icon.

The current cycle of social injustice, mass murders and xenophobia threaten not just people of color but all of society. Dr. King taught us that action is required.

It has been a tradition for the Doña Ana County NAACP to celebrate the legacy of Dr. King. This year's theme, “Thriving Together,” is an attempt to unite. It is a message of hope. With this theme, we channel the sentiments of Dr. King, who once said, “I have decided to stick with love. Hate is too great a burden to bear.” Such empathy and compassion is sorely needed today and can help make our communities a better place to live.

Bobbie Green
President, Doña Ana
County NAACP

Cervantes looks ahead to legislative session

By ALGERNON D'AMMASSA
Las Cruces Bulletin

New Mexico's next legislative session — the second for the state's 56th Legislature — opens at noon on Tuesday, Jan. 16. Lawmakers will have just 30 days to agree on a budget, appropriations and capital outlay, as well as other matters Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham will put on the agenda.

State Sen. Joseph Cervantes, D-Las Cruces, chairs the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee, which often meets into the night; but Cervantes sits on another committee that will feel intense pressure at the beginning of the shorter session: the Committees' Committee.

The 30-day sessions, occurring on even-numbered years, are meant to focus on budgetary matters, plus items called for by the governor. The Committees' Committee decides what is "germane" for that agenda, based on how it fits in with budgetary matters or a governor's message.

Nearly all of the hundreds of bills that will be filed comes before the committee, Cervantes said, which will then decide whether each will be heard, and by which committees.

The Judiciary Committee, meanwhile, is known by some lawmakers as a place bills go to die, if nothing else because of the volume of legislation assigned to the committee and its reputation for amending bills before passing them along.

Governors and legislators, Cervantes said in an interview, "rely on that committee to really, ultimately, vet and modify the legislation. Of course, it's the committee where they park the lawyers in the legislature, and so that's where most of the legislation really gets written and rewritten, and a lot of it doesn't get heard. As the chair, it's my job to decide which of the bills deserve a hearing and which ones do not."

Cervantes said the governor may be asked by lawmakers for hundreds of messages for legislation they wish to file, and the governor has announced items of her own: Besides her request for a $10.5 billion budget with a nearly 10 percent spending increase, Lujan Grisham has called for public safety measures including gun control legislation that will surely spark lengthy debate, and there are likely to be changes to the Cannabis Regulation Act, the 2021 law that legalized cannabis possession and use by adults and also called for a system of regulations managing licensure and operations for growers, manufacturers and retailers.

Asked whether the multiple billions of dollars of projected revenue, mostly from the state's oil and gas sector, make it easier or harder to negotiate state spending in balance with investing surplus dollars in reserves, Cervantes said austerity years are simpler — "You just say no to everybody" — but when there is money, more accountability and discipline are needed.

And times are changing: New Mexico aims to produce 50 percent of its energy through renewable sources by 2030 and 80 percent by 2040, with zero-carbon targets set for the decade after that. This inevitably alters the revenue lawmakers will have to work with in the future.

"Many of my colleagues and political leaders who are the most critical of the oil and gas industry are more than happy to spend that money," Cervantes said. "We seem to be, as a policy which I support, moving toward renewable energy resources that ultimately will mean that all those oil and gas revenues will begin to compress at one time, by our own design."

In future sessions, he anticipates hard choices based on lower revenue, particularly with respect to public education, with a recommended appropriation of over $4 billion this year. Cervantes added: "If we're smart, we're putting a good share of this boom revenue into long-term investments that will continue to fund government into a future when those revenues are not here anymore."

For this year, Cervantes suggested two gun control measures had a chance of making it through the legislature: Increasing the minimum age for purchasing rifles, shotguns and other long guns from 18 to 21, as is already the case for handguns; and a waiting period for gun purchases, which he argued would save lives otherwise lost to suicide or impulsive violence.

Cervantes also said to expect to hear about "purely political" bills filed to attract headlines but die in committee, as 2024 is an election year for both House and Senate.

He demurred from making an announcement about his own plans — he's been in the Senate since 2013, and served in the House for over a decade before that, and once made a run for governor.

"It's my intention to fully continue to serve in the Senate as long the voters will have me," he said.

Grupo Control will play imira! Las Cruces

BULLETIN REPORT

Houston-based cumbia and norteño-style band Grupo Control will headline the second annual ¡mira! Las Cruces event in April, the city announced Monday.

Last year's festival presented a free outdoor family-friendly festival of arts, culture, cuisine and music and was headlined by country music singer Frank Ray.

The band, also known as Los Reyes de la Cumbia, was founded in the late 1990s, according to the city.

"Last year, the response we received bringing in Rodeo Norteño was the inspiration behind this year's headliners," Visit Las Cruces Executive Director Rochelle Miller said in a news release. "People really loved the dance lessons prior to the group hitting the stage, and the atmosphere they created really embodied the spirit of the community."

An addition to the entertainment on hand this year will be lucha libre (Mexican-style professional wrestling) with a live DJ, in addition to local high school bands, mariachi and folklorico performance, cheer teams, animal acts and more.

The acts are scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. at Plaza de Las Cruces, downtown, on Saturday, April 27. Last year's performance schedule ran until 10 p.m.

The city said it will close Main Street at 5 a.m. that day from the roundabout south, along with Las Cruces and Griggs avenue. That day's Las Cruces Farmers and Crafts Market will be postponed to Sunday, but vendors will also be in the plaza during the festival.

Additional information including vendor applications is available online at VisitLasCruces.com/Mira.

'Saltburn,' not everybody's flavor

By ELVA K. ÖSTERREICH
Las Cruces Bulletin

In creating a movie, one must plan and imagine the sensations and visuals that will flow forth and carry the audience forward. In "Saltburn," the forward momentum moves in a slow, roiling wave washing over the watcher, making them want to be bored with the pace but fascinated with the detail and the curves in the film.

Maybe "Saltburn" is trying to be too many things, a statement about the impossibility of shifting class distinctions in England, a psychological thriller, a story about obsession and betrayal. It succeeds in many of these goals. What it fails to be is a comedy. The black comedy attempts to sink into the flavors and textures of the film, creating some scenes that are truly difficult to watch.

Academy Award winning filmmaker Emerald Fennell ("Promising Young Woman") creates his tale of privilege and desire about a student struggling to find his place at Oxford University. The student, Oliver Quick (played by Barry Keoghan) finds himself drawn into the world of the charming and aristocratic Felix Catton (Jacob Elordi), who invites him to Saltburn, his eccentric family's sprawling estate, for a summer never to be forgotten.

It sucks you in at a strange pace, every moment carefully crafted, including threads of themes weaving through the film. For example, Shakespeare is mentioned at the beginning and cast in various forms throughout the film until the end, which includes a giant party complete with Midsummer Night's Dream costuming and behaviors.

The color palette is dark – maroon and mahogany – with every light meaningful and every dark corner tied to its opposite hue. The film is almost a vampire movie, but without the supernatural. Every character is pulling life energy from every other one.

"Not for the faint of mind," my friend, Sophia, responded when I commented "it is not for the faint of heart."

This movie uses sexual energy and the transference of that energy as a character in itself. If you are not ready for some intense and disturbing sensual behaviors, don't go.

"Saltburn" certainly leaves a taste of darkness with the audience as it ends, not a movie soon left in the past. It will linger in your dreams and riddle your brain with random wonderings for a while.

The film society is a tax-exempt non-profit organization and has operated the Fountain Theatre since 1989. # Mark Cuban

OF SHARK TANK ON ABC

Q: I heard that Mark Cuban is leaving "Shark Tank." Have he and the other current "sharks" been on the show from the start?

A: Cuban has said that he will be staying with the popular ABC series for the rest of the current season and for the one after that, which will bring it to 16 seasons, and then he'll depart from the panel. The entrepreneur has indicated that he wants to spend more time with his family, which he maintains is more challenging to do as his children get older. Cuban has been a regular on the show since its third year, and he had appeared as a guest in Season 2.

Similarly, Lori Greiner was a "Shark Tank" guest in Season 3, then she became a regular in Season 4 and has stayed full-time ever since. Daymond John, Barbara Corcoran, Robert Herjavec and Kevin O'Leary all have been with the program from the beginning, and Kevin Harrington was a regular for the first two seasons.

Since its second round, "Shark Tank" has made a habit of bringing in "guest sharks" for temporary stints. That slot has been filled by such notables as Jeff Foxworthy, Steve Tisch, Sara Blakely, Ashton Kutcher, Richard Branson, Bethenny Frankel, Maria Sharapova, Kevin Hart, Gwyneth Paltrow and Jason Blum.

As for Cuban, who tellingly appeared as himself on Showtime's "Billions" toward the end of its run, he has even more changes on the horizon. He recently agreed to sell a major stake in the Dallas Mavericks basketball franchise to the family of the late casino mogul Sheldon Adelson.

Imogene Scott (Violett Beane) finds herself in the wrong place at the wrong time and becomes the prime suspect in a locked-room murder mystery. To prove her innocence, she must partner with a man she despises, Rufus Cotesworth (Mandy Patinkin), the world's greatest detective.

“Invisible Beauty” (Jan. 18)

An essential memoir of fashion pioneer Bethann Hardison, this documentary shines a spotlight on the singular and unapologetic icon who, as a pioneering Black model, modeling agent and entrepreneur, has pushed the boundaries of fashion culture and has been at the forefront of progress throughout her career. Filmmakers Frédéric Tcheng and Hardison trace her impact on fashion from runway shows in the 1970s to roundtables about the lack of racial diversity in the early 2000s.

“The Baker” (Jan. 19)

“No Activity: Niente da Segnalare” (Jan. 18)

Promoted as halfway between “Waiting for Godot,” “The Office” and “Brooklyn Nine Nine,” this Italian adaptation of the Australian format is a situational comedy with a shining ensemble cast. Three couples on very different duties—2 cops, 2 dispatch officers and 2 criminals—are stuck together in their narrow workspace, be it a police car, a radio station or a container. As the wait prolongs, their personal stories unfold in comic dialogues and unusual bonds form.

“Hazbin Hotel” - Season 1 (Jan. 19)

This animated crime comedy follows Charlie (Erika Henningsen), the princess of Hell, as she pursues her seemingly impossible goal of rehabilitating demons to peacefully reduce overpopulation in her kingdom. After a yearly extermination imposed by angels, she opens a hotel in the hopes that patrons will be “checking out” into Heaven. With her devoted partner Vaggie (Stephanie Beatriz) and their first test subject, adult film-star Angel Dust (Blake Roman), sticking by her side, Charlie’s crazy dream is given a chance to become reality when a powerful entity known as the “Radio Demon” reaches out to assist in her endeavors.

“LOL: Last One Laughing Ireland” - Season 1 (Jan. 19, Series Premiere)

Graham Norton oversees the 10 comedic stars, brought together to make each other laugh by using every unpredictable comedic tool in the box — without cracking a smile themselves. With the added bonus of some celebrity cameos, their performances will have viewers laughing out loud. As the clock counts down and the tension rises, whoever can outlast their competitors will be crowned the first winner of “LOL: Last One Laughing Ireland” and win a grand prize of €50,000 for their charity of choice.

“Zorro” - Season 1 (Jan. 19)

Everyone expects to control California in 1834: the old colonizers, the newly installed government, Russian oligarchs, the French and the newly-formed United States of America. The victims of this struggle, as always, are the people, including the land’s Indigenous people, the Mexican workers exploited and disenfranchised by the government, and the immigrants of every race and origins that came looking for opportunities. Their last hope is a hero that has kept the peace in their world and has now reincarnated in the young Diego de la Vega (Miguel Bernardeau).

Paul Giamatti and Damian Lewis in "Billions"

"BILLIONS: THE FINAL SEASON"

The ever-intriguing Showtime drama series recently came to the end of its seven-season run with this collection of episodes, putting a satisfying coda on the saga of two powerful usual-nemeses and occasional allies: hedge-fund king Bobby "Axe" Axelrod (played by Damian Lewis, who had left but returned for the show's final stanza) and prosecutor Chuck Rhoades (Paul Giamatti). Uncomfortably situated between them is Chuck's estranged wife Wendy (Maggie Siff), a performance coach who has close ties to Axe. All of them unite here against Michael Prince (Corey Stoll), a self-impressed tycoon who forced Axe out of the firm the latter founded ... with Prince's designs on the U.S. presidency posing a larger threat. David Costabile and Asia Kate Dillon are among other essential members of the regular cast, and the great list of guest stars for this concluding round includes Piper Perabo, Timothy Busfield, Melina Kanakaredes and Al Roker. Longtime fans of the show will be gratified to see certain actors and characters re-surface for last hurrahs ... right up to the closing scene. A "Complete Series" set also is newly available. DVD extras: two "making-of" documentaries. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, N, P)

"THE RUSSIANS ARE COMING, THE RUSSIANS ARE COMING"

A "Special Edition" Blu-ray release of director Norman Jewison's 1966 comedy boasts a great performance by Alan Arkin, who scored his first Oscar nomination for his major-movie debut as a lieutenant aboard a Russian submarine that ends up stranded off the coast of New England. He and his allies try to keep their presence as quiet as possible, not wanting to spark an international incident, but that's not easy when they run into some curious locals – with one of the foremost played by Carl Reiner, who also was having considerable success as a producer and writer at the time. Eva Marie Saint, Brian Keith, Theodore Bikel and Jonathan Winters also are featured, and John Phillip Law and Andrea Dromm enact a sweet romance. Johnny Whitaker, who started the TV series "Family Affair" the same year, appears as well. The aforementioned Hal Ashby was one of the film editors here. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V)

Baha'i community examines unity and justice

By DARRELL RODGERS

For the Bulletin

With its world center in Haifa, Israel, and communities in every country on Earth, membership in the global Baha'i faith is extraordinarily diverse.

Here in Las Cruces, as in every Baha'i community, the Baha'is elect a local spiritual assembly to consult and decide on matters pertaining to the community life.

The Baha'i Faith has no clergy. Instead, each member fulfills a ministerial role, both to his or her own spiritual enlightenment and, to varying degrees, the needs of others in an atmosphere of mutual assistance.

The community meets every 19 days in a gathering called "Feast" to read and reflect on the writings of their faith, to discuss administrative issues and to enjoy fellowship. The Baha'i Center is located at 525 E. Lohman Ave, at an entrance in the back of the building. Baha'is also often meet in members' homes.

One of the Baha'i teachings is that work, performed in the spirit of service, is equivalent to worship. "We have exalted your engagement in such work to the rank of worship of the one true God", wrote Baha'u'llah, prophet-founder of the Baha'i faith. The Baha'is of Las Cruces also engage in community service. Their annual "water drive" provides bottled drinking water to the Police Victim's Assistance Unit, so officers can provide water to crime and accident victims when needed.

One of the refreshing aspects of Baha'i life is the sharing of spiritual perspectives. Quite different from traditional religious sermons, Baha'is often gather to study an aspect of spiritual teachings within an open forum, safe for self-expression without fear of ridicule. "Out of the clash of differing opinions comes the spark of truth" wrote Abdu'l-Baha, the son of Baha'u'llah.

Spaceport America teams with Borderplex Alliance

By ALGERNON D'AMMASSA
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Borderplex Alliance, an economic development organization based in El Paso, formalized a relationship with Spaceport America Jan. 4 with a presentation touting a region comprising southern New Mexico, west Texas and northern Chihuahua as prime ground for a major aerospace sector.

The Alliance's executive director, Jon Barela, visited Spaceport America's offices in Las Cruces for a presentation and public signing of a memorandum of understanding along with the spaceport's director, Scott McLaughlin.

"There's no region in North America that has the (research and development) capabilities, the testing and evaluation capabilities and the manufacturing capabilities that we do," Barela said. "From a workforce standpoint, from a research standpoint, from a cost-of-doing-business standpoint, we're the perfect place."

Prior to leading the Alliance, Barela served as New Mexico's Economic Development Secretary from 2010 to 2016 under Gov. Susana Martinez. In that capacity, he chaired the board of the New Mexico Spaceport Authority, the state agency governing the spaceport.

The MoU, obtained through a public records request, does not provide for any financial transaction between the entities. Instead, it outlines a three-year commitment to collaborate and promote the region's potential, lure more investment and foster job growth. McLaughlin said this would include sharing information about prospects and potential sites worth marketing, building on the region's population center, manufacturing capacity south of the border, New Mexico's national laboratories and universities.

New Mexico's spaceport, built with taxpayer money and governed by the New Mexico Spaceport Authority, is best known as the home of Virgin Galactic's space flight service, but it leases space for several other aerospace companies for research and development as well as testing at its remote facility in Sierra County. The spaceport also hosts an annual international rocketry competition, the Spaceport America Cup, that draws thousands of graduate and undergraduate students to Las Cruces and the spaceport, along with companies looking for fresh talent.

The spaceport's other tenants, clients and programs have grown in importance as the start of regular commercial flights by Virgin Galactic have seen delays over the years. Its sixth flight to space, with four private passengers, is planned for Jan. 26, but it will pause flight activity later this year to focus on developing a new generation of space planes that can fly more often than the company's flagship craft, the VSS Unity. The company recently laid off 185 employees and its founder, Richard Branson, said last month the company was sufficiently funded that he did not plan further investment in the enterprise himself.

New Mexico lawmakers have expressed skepticism about Virgin Galactic and McLaughlin, who was named executive director in 2021, has sought to demonstrate the facility has greater potential as a major industrial center. Whatever the future holds for Virgin Galactic's enterprise, the space economy — including reusable rocket technologies, satellites and a range of anticipated operations in space including mining of asteroids — has been projected by analysts at Citigroup to reach $1 trillion in annual sales by 2040.

"We're talking about the spaceport being one component of what can be a powerhouse region in terms of aerospace and space," McLaughlin said.

Barela said his organization also works with the Mesilla Valley Economic Development Alliance and that a five-year strategic plan for promoting the region in the aerospace sector, including thousands of acres available for development on the spaceport's campus, was already in the works.

Barela acknowledged some challenges, however, in negotiating development deals over a region that spans state and international boundaries, whereas other established aerospace sectors are localized within one state. He expressed confidence that local governments would thrive together, all the same: "The space companies are going global and need global talent. There is no better region when we combine our assets than what we have."

Utility giant Avangrid terminates PNM merger

By HANNAH GROVER

NM Political Report

Amid the uncertainty of an appeal to the New Mexico Supreme Court, utility giant Avangrid chose to terminate its merger agreement with the Public Service Company of New Mexico.

The merger agreement expired on Dec. 31 with the option to renew.

While PNM Resources – the parent company of PNM – sought to renew the contract, Avangrid declined.

That decision came after previous renewals of the merger agreement. The companies originally entered into a merger agreement in October 2020, though the merger faced immediate opposition from conservation groups and others.

The merger agreement included various benefits including customer rate credits which were increased during the regulatory process in 2021.

In a statement, PNM highlighted that the customer and community benefits of the merger would have totaled more than $300 million in the form of rate credits, forgiveness of past-due bills, new job commitments, economic development funds, scholarship and apprenticeship training programs and low-income energy efficiency programs.

“We are greatly disappointed with Avangrid’s decision to terminate the merger agreement and its proposed benefits to our customers and communities,” Pat Vincent-Collawn, PNM Resources Chairman and CEO, said in a statement. “We had been looking forward to providing customers with the immediate benefits in our agreement and also the longer-term benefits of being part of a larger-scale entity with ties to global innovation and experience in the clean energy transition. As a standalone company, we will continue our work of meeting the future energy needs of our customers and communities with affordable and reliable energy.”

Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham said in a statement that the termination of the merger agreement “is not the outcome we desired, but I remain confident about future investments in our state, including by Avangrid, in the wind, solar and hydrogen solutions that are powering our state’s clean energy transition.”

She further highlighted recent investments by major companies focused on the energy transition including Maxeon, Pattern Energy, Arcosa and Star Scientific. Lujan Grisham said PNM is a “key driver in solidifying these investments.”

While Avangrid has ended its agreement with PNM, the governor said that the state “will continue to be a national leader in charting a clean energy economy through our electricity generation and transmission, onshoring of key supply chain components and cutting-edge technology development.”

However, not everyone was on board with the idea of the two companies merging.

Customer advocacy groups including New Energy Economy fought against it and alleged that the merger would lead to worse customer service and higher rates.

New Energy Economy celebrated the news and executive director Mariel Nanasi compared it to slaying a corporate giant that was “bent on exploiting New Mexico.”

“This is a great way to celebrate the new year for all New Mexicans,” she said.

Activists like Nanasi pointed to Avangrid-owned utilities in New England as evidence that customer service worsened and rates increased after the utility giant took ownership.

In Maine, for example, voters entertained the idea of transforming the Avangrid-owned Central Maine Power into a publicly owned nonprofit utility. That measure failed during the 2023 election. The supporters of the measure argued that Avangrid is distant and unresponsive and that the revenue the company collects from customers goes out of state. Avangrid itself is owned by an international company based out of Spain called Iberdrola that has been embroiled in controversy, including alleged price manipulation.

In a statement, Avangrid highlighted that the two companies had received “all the necessary regulatory approvals for the closing of the merger by the end of 2022 except the approval of the New Mexico Public Regulation Commission.”

PNM Resources also owns a utility in Texas and the Texas utility regulators had approved the merger.

The New Mexico Public Regulation Commission, however, denied the stipulation for the merger in 2021, resulting in an appeal to the state Supreme Court. The court heard oral arguments in the case in September but has not issued a ruling. It did, however, reject a motion to remand the case to the PRC to hear again.

In its statement, Avangrid said there is no clear timing on when the court might issue a ruling on the PRC’s denial. The company also pointed to uncertainties about subsequent regulatory actions.

At the same time, Avangrid stated that it remains “more than ever steadfast in our commitment to New Mexico in the development of wind and solar renewables, helping explore options in the new hydrogen economy, and delivering on the partnership with the Navajo Nation to achieve its clean energy future.”

Good news for buyers and sellers

By STEVE MONTAÑEZ
For the Bulletin

Our real estate market continues to adjust itself and December was no different in Las Cruces. In 2023, economic factors, building costs and rising interest rates all played a role in how our market performed.

December looked much like the years prior to 2020. While historically December is the slower month in real estate, our market still performed well with sellers closing at 97 percent of the asking price. Buyers are starting to see some relief not only in interest rates, but also in the number of homes available, making homes more competitive in price. You can expect a new influx of home buyers, as interest rates have fallen below the 6 percent mark. If you are a seller, you can still expect top dollar for your home; however, it may sit on the market a little longer than you're used to. There is lots of encouraging news to begin 2024, and it's still a great time to be a homeowner in the Mesilla Valley.

First-time homebuyer's workshop to answer questions

BULLETIN REPORT

Las Cruces Real Estate Brokers Laurel Brandi & April Hernandez of New Mexico Properties will host a free first-time homebuyer's workshop at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Jan. 20, at the Las Cruces Association of Realtors event hall, 150 Idaho Avenue in Las Cruces.

This workshop is free and open to anyone who has questions about the homebuying process in Las Cruces.

"If it's your first time venturing into the housing market, you may be intimidated by taking on such an important transaction," Brandi stated in a news release. "To help Las Cruces buyers get started on their journey to homeownership, we wanted to put a workshop together at no cost with lots of resources to get people started."

New Mexico Properties, Prime lending, and Southwestern Abstract & title will all be present to educate buyers on the lending and escrow process. Seating is limited. For more information contact Laurel Brandi at 575-640-6511 or email laurel@newmexico.properties.

On Jan. 14, Las Cruces Baha'is will host a discussion on the topic of justice. It is timely, as Martin Luther King Jr. Day is the next day. Dr. King wrote, "Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly."

The Baha'is' discussion of justice will be at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 14, at 2909 Devendale Ave, Las Cruces. All are welcome to participate. (We only ask that guests refrain from wearing fragrance.) More information is available via 575-556-9650.

County elects new leadership

By JUSTIN GARCIA

Las Cruces Bulletin

The Doña Ana County Board of County Commissioners elected first-term commissioner Christopher Schaljo-Hernandez as board chair on Tuesday.

Schaljo-Hernandez represents District 1 after winning an election in 2022. Long-time commissioner and former county clerk Lynn Ellins previously held the seat. The board also elected Diana Murillo, who represents District 2, as vice chair.

Schaljo-Hernandez was elected unanimously. The vote for Murillo split, however. Manuel Sanchez, who represents District 5, initially nominated Shannon Reynolds, who represents District 3, for the vice chair job. Reynolds and Sanchez voted for Reynolds, while the rest of the board picked Murillo.

"I'm very pleased that it's been a good year for the county, and I'm sure that will move forward in very capable hands," outgoing chair Susana Chaparro said before passing the gavel.

County ordinance assigns the chair several responsibilities. They manage the board's meetings, call meetings to order, enforce order when public comment gets snippy, sign documents on behalf of the board and administer some oaths of office. The vice chair is responsible for the same obligations when the chair is absent.

Schaljo-Hernandez is the co-owner of Salud! De Mesilla. The other owner, Russell Hernandez, became the mayor of Mesilla after a 2023 election.

During the meeting, Schaljo-Hernandez suggested that he intended to implement changes to the meeting's structure.

"With the new year and as chair, we'll probably be looking at a resolution of how the agenda is laid out at a later date. We'll definitely be looking at that pretty soon as well," Schaljo-Hernandez said.

Second trial set Young Park vigilante killing after first derails

By JUSTIN GARCIA

Las Cruces Bulletin

The 3rd Judicial District Court is preparing a second trial for a man police say gunned down another man chasing him for breaking into cars at a Las Cruces Walmart.

The trial set for Jan. 16 comes after a judge declared a mistrial, dismissed the case and suggested that a Las Cruces Police detective misled the court about a knife the defense claimed was vital to their arguments.

David Chavez, 20, remains charged and jailed. He faces around seven and half years in prison for charges of voluntary manslaughter and tampering with evidence. Chavez has pled not guilty.

But even as the sides prepare for another trial, the case remained mired in allegations of police misconduct, evidence mishandling and an alleged attempt at vigilante justice.

Police believe the man killed, 30-year-old Mitchell Russell, decided to chase Chavez after a Walmart employee said Chavez had burglarized cars in the Walton Boulevard Walmart parking lot on Jan. 6, 2023.

Russell reportedly drove his Jeep Wrangler around Lohman Avenue until he spotted Chavez at the Speedway gas station at Lohman and Walnut Street.

Russell's girlfriend sat in the passenger seat.

"You think it's funny breaking into an old man's car?" Russell said to Chavez after he got out of his car, according to his girlfriend.

Neighbors told police that Chavez and Russell fought until the two men ended up on the sidewalk on the 900 block of Lees Drive.

At some point, police believe Chavez pulled a gun from his backpack and fired at Russell multiple times as the two men wrestled. Chavez then ran away. Police believe he tried to hand the gun off to a friend before he was arrested a few hours later with his parents.

The case went to trial on Aug. 14, 2023. It hit a snag the same day when the issue of two knives was raised during testimony.

Pierce Wilber, a detective and long-time employee of LCPD, was testifying about the evidence and his role in investigating the case. The prosecutor asked Wilber about seeing two pocket knives next to Russell after he'd been shot.

Chavez' defense attorney, Frank DePalma, then asked Wilber to recall discussing the knife in a pretrial interview. Wilber said that he was aware of the knives but, at the time of the pretrial interview, had not been aware of how the knives came to be.

Wilber said he'd learned one knife belonged to Russell and the other belonged to a police officer, Juan Monsivais.

That was enough for 3rd Judicial District Judge Douglas Driggers to declare a mistrial and dismiss the case. The judge said Wilber had effectively renewed the investigation the day the trial started at the behest of prosecutors. He wrote in his ruling, "it was established that Detective Pierce Wilber may not have been forthright during the course of the pre-trial interview with defense counsel." That statement has since been walked back.

Why the case gets a second trial

Four days later and following news coverage of the mistrial, LCPD and the 3rd Judicial District Attorney's Office released a statement and body camera video to push back against the Driggers' order.

The video showed Monsivais using one of the knives to cut Russell's shirt as he tried to save his life. The second knife is pulled out of Russell's pocket, still folded up.

"I have the utmost faith in Detective Pierce Wilber and the entire Criminal Investigation Section," LCPD Chief Jeremy Story said in the news release. "Our detective did nothing wrong in this case, and our officers tried to render life-saving measures that, unfortunately, were unsuccessful."

The 3rd Judicial District courthouse in Las Cruces is seen on Dec. 27.

In a motion requesting Driggers reconsider his dismissal, Assistant District Attorney Thomas Limon argued that Chavez's attorney was notified of the knives via an autopsy report that noted one knife, a pre-trial interview with the doctor who performed the autopsy and the body camera footage.

However, the issue was further complicated, according to DePalma. Monsivais twice failed to appear for a pretrial interview and did not note the knives in his police report.

After hearing both arguments, Driggers reversed course and allowed a second trial. Driggers points to the autopsy report and the body camera as two reasons that DePalma and Chavez could have been aware of the knives' existence.

"The Court finds that it is reasonable to conclude that defense counsel should have known that the black knife (the one used by Monsivais) belonged to an LCPD officer and not the decedent," Driggers said.

The judge went on to say that double jeopardy, a rule that prevents prosecutors from repeatedly charging a person, was not applicable in this case.

Murder charge filed against Las Cruces police officer

By JUSTIN GARCIA

Las Cruces Bulletin

The 3rd Judicial District Attorney's Office announced second-degree murder charges against Felipe Hernandez, a Las Cruces Police Department officer, during a news conference on Jan. 9.

Hernandez, 44, fatally shot Teresa Gomez on Oct. 3, 2023. As documented on video released by the city, Gomez, 45, was sitting in her car near the 1300 block of Burley Court when Hernandez rolled up on a police bike, unloaded a dozen profanities at her (which are quoted later in this story) and then shot her multiple times as she tried to drive away.

"From the very beginning of Mr. Hernandez's interactions with Ms. Gomez, the ability to manage protocol was nonexistent," Gerald Byers, the 3rd Judicial District Attorney, said during the conference. "Interactions with her, just on a human level, was exceptionally subpar and certainly did not meet the standards that LCPD demands of its officers."

The decision to charge Hernandez is a rare one for Byers and the DA's office, who typically don't charge police officers after shootings or defer the decision to the state Attorney General.

The AG's office announced charges in December 2023 against Brad Lunsford, another LCPD officer. Lunsford was charged two years after he killed Presley Eze at the Chevron on Valley Drive in 2021.

Lunsford and Hernandez join former LCPD officer Christopher Smelser – whom Byers initially charged, then handed the case off to the AG – as three police officers accused of crimes following deadly encounters in recent years.

During the news conference, Byers addressed this in response to a question from the Las Cruces Bulletin. He said his office was not adequately staffed in previous instances to handle a murder charge against a police officer, but now, that's not the case.

"Felipe Hernandez was not in the zone of danger, such that he could be harmed by the vehicle driven by Ms. Gomez. Not at all," Byers said.

Police killing on Burley Court

Shortly after the shooting, the Las Cruces Police Department held a news conference at City Hall. Jeremy Story, chief of LCPD, released a nine-minute clip of Hernandez and Gomez. Story described the video as graphic and difficult to watch.

"You'll see things that are hard to watch and hear the officer speak in a way that is difficult to listen to," Story said regarding the video, which can be viewed on the City of Las Cruces' YouTube page.

The video showed Hernandez rolling up on Gomez around 4:40 a.m. Gomez and another man are sitting in a parked car as Hernandez shines a flashlight into the vehicle. Hernandez then tells Gomez to get out of the car. She initially refuses, saying, "Don't touch me," as Hernandez reaches for her arm, but then complies.

As Gomez exits the car, Hernandez recognizes the man in the passenger seat and begins addressing both citizens with a string of profanities.

After calling the man by name, Hernandez exclaims, "Holy fuck, you're back on the fucking property. I'm going to put a warrant out for your fucking arrest."

Outside the car, Gomez and Hernandez exchange words. He walks Gomez to the back of the vehicle and questions what she's doing while continuing to use profanities. He tells Gomez, "The judge already ripped his ass," referring to man in her car. When Gomez asked why Hernandez was questioning her, Hernandez responded with, "Because I'm doing a fucking investigation."

The two continue, with Gomez saying at several points, "I really don't have to answer this," and telling Hernandez to be "nicer."

"You don't listen," Hernandez tells Gomez at one point. "You're just like (the passenger). You want to argue all the time."

At another point, Hernandez threatened to shoot Gomez with his Taser.

Hernandez allows Gomez to return to the driver's seat. After she sits down, Hernandez asks the man for more information. Gomez then starts the car. Looking up at Hernandez, she puts the car in gear and backs away. The driver-side door is open at this point, and it's unclear from the video if it hits Hernandez. An affidavit given to the Bulletin stated that Hernandez was about nine feet from the car.

Still, Hernandez pulls out his gun. He yells, "Stop, stop," before firing three times into the open door. As the car meanders to a stop, Gomez's cry of pain echoes across the empty parking lot.

What's next in the case

Jail records show that

Hernandez turned himself in at the Doña Ana County Detention Center on Jan. 9. A Las Cruces city spokesperson confirmed that Hernandez was still on administrative leave.

Byers said that his office will not pursue pretrial detention, meaning Hernandez will be allowed to wait for trial outside of jail. Byers could have petitioned a judge to order Hernandez jailed by arguing he was a danger to the public.

"Felipe Hernandez, as a former police officer, there is no reason that we have to believe that he is a danger to the community per se," Byers said, adding that he didn't believe he could meet the standards of proof required to jail someone pretrial. "I'll add this asterisk: To me, that does not mean or diminish in any way, shape or form, the strength of our case."

Next, Hernandez will likely face a grand jury to decide if the case should proceed. If convicted, Hernandez could face around a decade in prison for the charge. To prove Hernandez is guilty to a jury, prosecutors will have to show that Hernandez acted unreasonably and that Gomez did not provoke Hernandez.

In the news conference, Byers expressed confidence he could prove that.

"There's also no sufficient provocation that would cause this situation to devolve from a second-degree murder to voluntary manslaughter," Byers said. "Accordingly, we are going to proceed on secondary murder charges against Felipe Hernandez."

CHS swimmer eyes spot at Princeton

BULLETIN REPORT

Centennial High School junior Savannah Skow has set eight state records in competitive swimming and has now “verbally committed” to swim for the Princeton University Tigers.

According to a news release, the commitment does not guarantee admission, but if accepted she plans to study aerospace engineering while competing on the university's team, following in her mother's footsteps.

Savannah reportedly started swimming competitively at the age of eight, competing on numerous teams as her military family moved around. The family settled in Las Cruces in 2018, according to the release.

The Las Cruces Public Schools said Skow is involved with Advanced Education Services at the school, maintains a 4.1032 grade point average and is a member of the National Honor Society, MESA and the Bella Voce varsity choir.

She swims for the Las Cruces Aquatic Team and was named to the 2022-2023 USA Swimming Scholastic All-America Team. That achievement requires carrying a minimum 3.5 GPA for an entire academic year in high school and swimming an individual pool time equal to or greater than the 2022 Winter Junior National qualifying time in at least one event.

Skow more than exceeded those benchmarks, per data provided by the school district, achieving the qualifying time standards in five events. She was also named to the 2023 Scholastic All-America Team.

In the 2022-23 swim year she broke eight New Mexico Swimming state records for her age group in 100-yard freestyle, 200-yard and 200-meter freestyle, 50-meter butterfly, 100-yard and 100-meter butterfly, 100-yard individual medley and 200-meter individual medley. At the Western Zone Seniors Championships in Calif. last summer, she topped 700 swimmers in making the “A” final in all seven entered events and earned the Women's High Point Award.

“Teamwork is really important,” Skow commented in a written statement. “Even though swimming is an individual sport, it's also a team sport, and being able to push each other, work towards a goal together and hold each other accountable is really important for having a good team environment.”

In addition to these and other achievements, Skow is ranked by SwimCloud in the top 100 of female swimmers in the Class of 2025 in the U.S., recognized by USA Swimming for her academic and swimming accomplishments and has been featured in swim magazines SwimSwam and Swimming World Magazine.

Aggie basketball undaunted by injuries, losses

By JONAH GALLEGOS
For the Bulletin

The New Mexico State Men's Basketball team ended 2023 on a positive note with a win over California Baptist 66-61. This comes after a roller coaster first half of the season with close losses, injuries and a completely new team trying to find their footing.

Head coach Jason Hooten and his team ride into the new year with a mark of 6-9. That record doesn't diminish Hooten's outlook on the year, though.

"I think you just always feel like those are going to all even out," Hooten said about his team's close losses this season. "I see some improvement in some areas that I thought we drastically needed it in, I think we're heading in the right direction and now you have arguably the toughest 16 games left ... in conference [play]."

Some of the areas that needed improvement, Hooten said, were on the defensive side of the ball, rebounding and execution on offense.

"It's uncomfortable for some guys, just trying to get out of that ... comfort zone," Hooten said. "And then second of all ... we haven't been together a lot. A lot of these guys were not here this summer, and then we had a lot of injuries in the fall — over the last maybe month has been the first time we've had our whole team together."

The Aggies hosted the California Baptist Lancers in December, ending 2023 with a 66-61 win.

Now that the season is in full swing, he said players are learning where they should be defensively and what spots they need to rotate to when needed.

Rebounding-wise, the Aggies are on an upward trend, with their previous games against Tulsa and CBU being their best rebounding games yet. NM State held CBU, a top offensive-rebounding team, to just eight offensive boards, while the Aggies outrebounded Tulsa 41-36.

Execution on the offensive side has been trickier for NM State. Senior point guard Jordan Rawls has been hurt the whole season, playing with a torn shoulder labrum. Junior guard Jaylin Jackson-Posey has moved to that point guard rotation, where Hooten said he is now getting more comfortable.

"I don't think Posey is a natural point guard and he's trying really hard to do what we need him to do; he's better off the ball for sure," Hooten said, and while Rawls is "running our team," the injury has reduced his offensive power. "Our execution has got to continue to get better and a lot of that too, is just familiarity with me and familiarity with each other."

Hooten said Jackson-Posey has settled into more of a vocal leader since he's taken up the point guard role. He also credited graduate student center Kaosi Ezeagu for being a consistent leader.

The injury bug has continued to bite the program as Hooten confirmed newcomer senior forward Christopher Bieku tore his Achilles tendon during his first game of the season Dec. 30 while playing CBU. Hooten added that senior guard Brandon Suggs has been dealing with a foot injury and isn't quite 100 percent.

"I think this time next year you'll have a little more depth," Hooten said, adding: "Right now our guys are fighting and they're learning how to get through some adversity and I think that's going to pay dividends for us at the end of the year."

The focus now turns to conference play as NM State enters its first year into Conference-USA. First on the plate is Interstate 10 rival UTEP, as the Aggies were scheduled to host the Miners at the Pan American Center on Jan. 11 at 7 p.m.

Hooten said he coached against UTEP head coach Joe Golding back with their previous teams at Sam Houston and Abilene Christian, so he knows what kind of competition Golding's team brings to the table.

"Our guys are going to have to be ready," Hooten said. "It's going to be a battle — they're well coached, they're tough, they're going to play hard and physical. Our teams probably mirror each other quite a bit; I told our guys it's what you go to college for, to play against good teams that are well coached and that means something."

Hooten said the Aggies have a chance to start off C-USA play 1-0 and then get a week off to prepare for Florida International University, hoping to grab their first away game victory.

I'm a very nervous boy who came into the ASCMV with my siblings as owner surrenders. My owner said I used to be a high energy kitty, but for the last month I've just been keeping to myself as a wallflower. I'm hoping there is a forever home out there for me that will be patient, quiet, and kind to let me become comfortable and come out of my shell again!

Remembering Betsy Rawls and Marlene Hagge-Vossler

Betsy Rawls, winner of 55 LPGA tournaments including eight majors, died in October at age 95. She was one of only two golfers (the other is Mickey Wright) to have won four U.S. Women's Open titles.

Elizabeth Earle "Betsy" Rawls was born on May 4, 1928 in Spartanburg, S.C., but grew up in Arlington, Texas. In an era when organized sports for girls were mostly nonexistent, she played some softball, but took up golf at age 17. While studying physics at the University of Texas at Austin, she fell under the tutelage of noted teaching professional Harvey Penick. She won consecutive Texas Women's Amateur titles in 1949 and 1950, while also claiming the 1949 Trans-National title and the 1950 Broadmoor Invitational. Also in 1950, she announced her arrival by finishing as runner-up to Babe Didrikson Zaharias in the U.S. Women's Open in Wichita, Kansas. A year later, Rawls turned professional and for the next 24 years would become one of the LPGA Tour's most dominant players. The year she joined the fledgling LPGA she agreed to assist with tournament operations and then served as the tour's secretary.

Looking back on her storied career she shared this to USGA journal writers: "I thought I was going to be a winner and as I went along, winning became easier and easier.

It was something that I expected to do. I always played well under pressure because it didn't bother me, which is how I won so many tournaments. I didn't take much credit for it, but I could perform under tense situations. It was my physical makeup to allow that to happen."

Rawls evidently internalized the solid advice from her mentor, Penick. As I understand it, prior to one Open championship she was talking on the phone to Penick saying she was a bit nervous. Penick then ordered her to just "take dead aim." That mantra would be identified with Penick for the rest of his days and several best-selling books. The gist is basically total trust: "Once you address the ball, hitting it to the desired target must be the only thing in your life (at that time). Allow no negative thought, and focus on your goal."

Rawls' career was capped by enshrinement in the World Golf Hall of Fame (WGHF) in 1987 and the USGA's Bob Jones Award in 1996. "Anyone who can make a living in golf is lucky," Rawls once said. "Then to receive all the benefits accorded to me in the process ... well, that makes me feel fortunate. It's more than I could possibly deserve."

Marlene Bauer (later Hagge-Vossler) was born on February 16, 1934 in Eureka, S.D., and died on May 26, 2023 at age 89.

She was one of 13 founders of the LPGA in 1950. She went on to win 26 times on the LPGA Tour, including one major, the 1956 LPGA Championship, during her 40-year career. Hagge-Vossler was a teen sensation before they were commonplace in women's golf. Her father, Dave, a one-time touring pro who became a teaching pro, moved to Long Beach, Calif. to run a driving range and do traveling exhibitions in the mid-1940s, billing his girls as The Bauer Sisters (with her sister Alice). They were well-known before the LPGA even existed. Marlene started golf at age 3 and at age 10 won the Long Beach City Boys Junior. At age 13 she won the Los Angeles City Women's City championship and several other wins. In 1949, at 15, she became the youngest to be named Female Athlete of the Year by the Associated Press after winning the U.S. Girls' Junior Championship and the WWGA Junior. She and her sister Alice were the first "Glamour Girls" of the LPGA. Both Marlene and Alice were cleverly marketed by their agent, who made sure they were always in the public eye. But Marlene said, "My dad always taught us to take things in stride and not to get things out of the proper perspective (with) a pretty good set of values." She was inducted into the WGHF in 2002.
