Ray Romano

OF NO GOOD DEED ON NETFLIX

Q: I've heard that Ray Romano is going to do another series. Is that true?

A: It is. With "Everybody Loves Raymond" still available regularly on TV Land and IFC, the actor-comedian is working on his newest show, a Netflix sitcom titled "No Good Deed." He'll be part of an ensemble cast in the saga of several families who all want to buy the same house, with plenty of complications arising from their vying for the property. Romano isn't the only well-known series veteran in the show, which comes from writer-producer Liz Feldman, who had an earlier Netflix hit with "Dead to Me." That program's Linda Cardellini reunites with her for the new program, which also will feature Lisa Kudrow ("Friends," "The Comeback," "Web Therapy") and Denis Leary ("Rescue Me," "Sex & Drugs & Rock & Roll," "Animal Kingdom," "The Moodys"). Of course, Romano also has had other turns at the series game. He followed the nine-season CBS run of "Everybody Loves Raymond" with TNT's critically acclaimed comedy-drama "Men of a Certain Age," of which he also was a creator and executive producer. Then, he was a star of the HBO recording-industry drama "Vinyl" (which had Mick Jagger and Martin Scorsese among its creators and executive producers), the Epix (now MGM+) series version of "Get Shorty" and the then-HBO Max's seriocomic "Made for Love." The premiere date of "No Good Deed" had yet to be determined as of this writing, but with the powerhouse names that its cast encompasses, the scheduling of its debut surely will be made known as that time gets closer.

Olivia Newton-John and John Travolta in "Grease"

"GREASE: THE ULTIMATE TV & MOVIE COLLECTION"

The title tells just what to expect from this set that includes three variations on the hit stage and movie musical about nostalgic times among students and faculty members of Rydell High. The centerpiece clearly is the 1978 box-office blockbuster starring John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John as Danny and Sandy, the romantics from different worlds who struggle to make a go of their relationship despite peer pressure; Stockard Channing, Jeff Conaway, Didi Conn, Eve Arden, Sid Caesar and Frankie Avalon also appear, with such hits as "Summer Nights" and "You're the One That I Want" on the soundtrack. The 1982 movie sequel "Grease 2" flips the genders while keeping the same basic equation, with Maxwell Caulfield and an early-in-her-career Michelle Pfeiffer as the seemingly unlikely love match. Finally, the streaming series "Grease: Rise of the Pink Ladies" is a prequel explaining how the title group came to be; Madison Thompson ("Ozark") and Chris McNally ("When Calls the Heart") are among the stars. ★★★ (PG or not rated, varying by title: AS, P)

"BEVERLY HILLS COP III"

Though it's largely considered the weakest of the three entries in the movie series so far, this 1994 action-comedy – now making its 4K Ultra HD debut – still gives Eddie Murphy free rein as Axel Foley, the fast-talking Detroit police detective who suffers a loss on his home turf, then heads back to the West Coast on a related case. There, an amusement park called Wonder World gets the bulk of his attention as he tries to break up a counterfeiting operation. Judge Reinhold, Bronson Pinchot and Gil Hill also reprise their roles from the earlier chapters, with Hector Elizondo, John Saxon, Theresa Randle and Alan Young among notable additions. Those in the know about the movie business should appreciate the cameos by George Lucas, John Singleton, Joe Dante, Ray Harryhausen and a number of other industry "players." The picture (also available in a set that includes the series' first two movies) reunited Murphy with director John Landis, who also worked with him on "Trading Places" and "Coming to America." Netflix is slated to debut the new "Beverly Hills Cop: Axel F" later this year. ★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on DVD and Blu-ray)
