Heinrich, Vasquez talk border security in Doña Ana County

Members of the press looked on as U.S. Sen. Martin Heinrich and southern New Mexico congressman Gabe Vasquez received a briefing Monday at Las Cruces' office of the federal High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area program. The initiative coordinates with state, local and tribal law enforcement agencies on fighting narcotics production and traffic in the United States.

In the midst of clicking cameras and prominent signage bearing Heinrich and Vasquez's names together, HIDTA officers delivered a frank and detailed report on local drug interdiction efforts, limitations due to available resources and elements of state law and dynamic patterns in how fentanyl moves across the southern border.

The two men, both Democrats seeking reelection to their seats in November, had appeared together at the Santa Teresa Port of Entry earlier in the day for a tour of Customs and Border Protection facilities and to hear from that agency on border security and staunching the flow of smuggled fentanyl, a synthetic opioid that can be deadly even in small doses, and is involved in nearly 70 percent of U.S. overdose deaths, per the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Following the discussion with HIDTA staff, Heinrich and Vasquez moved to a podium that had been set up in a break room to discuss drug trafficking and border security: Matters of urgent concern for New Mexico's border communities, which Republicans are pressing as a major campaign issue ahead of the Nov. 5 elections.

Ahead of their joint appearances, Vasquez's election opponent, Republican Yvette Herrell, issued a statement deriding the visits as a "blatant election year stunt" and criticizing Vasquez's record on border security. Herrell is seeking a return to the congressional seat representing the southwestern corner of New Mexico and all of its southern border. She held the seat from 2021 until 2023, after a narrow defeat in the 2022 election.

Heinrich is seeking his third six-year term in the senate, facing Republican Nella Domenici. While a newcomer to the campaign trail herself, Domenici is the daughter of the late former senator Pete Domenici, the last Republican to represent New Mexico in the U.S. Senate.

For his part, Vasquez took the opportunity

County chooses out-of-state candidate for county manager

JUSTIN GARCIA
Las Cruces Bulletin

Scott Andrews, an assistant city manager of Bakersfield, Calif., was chosen by Doña Ana County commissioners on Tuesday to serve as the next county manager.

During a board meeting on Aug. 13, commissioners voted 4-1 to approve a $220,000 contract to Andrews. For comparison, the city of Las Cruces agreed to pay their current city manager $216,000 after a search earlier this year. Shannon Reynolds was the lone vote against Andrews' contract but did not note the reason for his opposition in brief comments following the vote.

The terms and conditions of the contract will have to be finalized by a board vote later, but Tuesday's vote effectively ends the search, which began after the board voted to part ways with County Manager Fernando Macias in February.

"We are thrilled to announce the selection of a candidate who we believe will not only bring and recreation, information technology services, economic development, community relations and risk management.

According to the county, his prior experience includes another three and a half years as city manager in Covington, Ga., and over two years as assistant city administrator in Smyrna, Ga.

Additional public sector executive experience includes three years as economic development director in Sugar Hill, Ga.

Andrews has a Bachelor of Science in business from the University of South Florida/Univ. of Phoenix, a Master's in public administration from Strayer University, and a doctorate in education from Argosy University.

During a presentation to the board and the public before his hiring, Andrews said he was excited to help the county implement its strategic plan.

"That's really exciting to me," he said. "It's one of the few things you get to do throughout your career that really puts your fingerprints on a community."

Andrews said plans like this are guiding documents to reference regularly, not to be left on the shelf to collect dust.

"It's our playbook. It's what we use to get us by," he said.

The commissioners approved the strategic plan in November 2023. It is a guiding document that emphasizes supporting residents' basic needs as a path toward economic and social prosperity.

Andrews also said he'd start his new gig by reviewing the work done so far, and he'd consider shuffling the departments, planning a yearly "State of the County" address, entrenching himself in community organizations and improving the county's messaging.

"The game plan is in place," he said.

dynamic leadership but also an infusion of fresh, innovative ideas to Doña Ana County," Commission Chair Christopher Schaljo-Hernandez said in a news release.

"Our mission was to find someone who could propel the County's goals forward while ensuring that our residents thrive and continue to enjoy a good quality of life. After a thorough and transparent process, we are excited to share that Scott Andrews, Ed.D. is our choice to lead Doña Ana County into a bright and promising future."

Even as the board picked another candidate, Commissioner Susana Chaparro used the opportunity to thank interim County Manager Stephen Lopez for his work as the stopgap manager since February.

"Stephen, you've been awesome. You have stepped into the role as interim County Manager, and you did it very quickly, and you just saved us," Chaparro said, a sentiment echoed by others on the board.

Lopez and Andrews were two of four candidates chosen as finalists by the board during a months-long search. The board also interviewed Barbara Bencomo, a longtime city of Las Cruces official, and Mark Tyner, a recently retired county administrator in Calhoun County, Ala.

But it was Andrews who won the day.

At his current job in Bakersfield, Andrews oversees human resources, finance, parks

New Mexico counties characterized as 'maternity care deserts'

LEAH ROMERO

New Mexicans are facing a lack of health care workers and difficulty accessing medical care, including maternity care.

According to the University of New Mexico's College of Population Health, 33 percent of counties in the state are considered "OB deserts," where there is little to no access to obstetric care providers.

For one single mother in Las Vegas, this means traveling several hours at a time for doctor appointments for herself as well as her newborn baby.

"It's rough having kids out here in Vegas. My doctor had to help schedule out all my visits for my pregnancy so I could schedule time off," she told a member of the College of Population Health.

She also had to find child care for her other children while she took care of her medical appointments.

Alta Vista Regional Hospital in Las Vegas closed its labor and delivery unit in 2022 due to a lack of care providers.

According to a 2023 report conducted by the March of Dimes in New Mexico, women living in counties with the highest travel times drove up to an average of 97.1 miles to the nearest birthing hospital. About 18 percent of New Mexicans do not have a birthing hospital within 30 minutes of their homes, which is above the national rate of almost 10 percent of people.

"The scarcity of OB care stems from various factors, including the geographic size of New

Debate persists on shopping cart, solicitation laws

JUSTIN GARCIA
Las Cruces Bulletin

Days after a contentious city council meeting ended with the passage of new laws aimed at curbing the presence of shopping carts and “aggressive” solicitation, it’s clear that the debate is far from over with much of the discourse unspooling online.

Mesilla Valley Community of Hope, the area’s largest resource for unhoused residents, posted on Facebook that a woman using a shopping cart to ferry her belongings had a cart taken from her. Her belongings, the post said, were scattered across the pavement.

“Yesterday a business approached this woman, threw all of her belongings on the street and took the cart back to their business (they don’t want to get fined even though the ordinance is not yet in effect),” the post on Aug. 7 said, calling for donations of suitcases.

The following day, the account posted thanks to people who contributed suitcases and rolling devices, adding, “We are still working out a sustainable alternative to carts as the ordinance effective date draws near.”

Nicole Martinez, the executive director of Community of Hope, said that the shelter does not typically post about encounters like this, which she said happen frequently, and that the intention was not to inspire a witch hunt on the unnamed business.

Martinez did not divulge the store’s name, but the Bulletin confirmed that the accusations were leveled against employees of a local Albertsons. Jeremy Story, chief of the Las Cruces Police Department, said officers were aware of the claims.

“All three Albertsons stores have denied any of their employees were involved in that incident,” Story told the Bulletin. “Almost all retailers do not allow their employees to intervene in shoplifting and would not allow their employees to try to recover a cart from someone’s possession.”

The Bulletin reached out to Albertsons’ corporate office to inquire about the company’s policies about retrieval of shopping carts, but a spokesperson did not respond to the question.

Still, Martinez said that incidents like this are more common than most in the community know. And she fears that new laws have aroused harsher treatment from residents against their unhoused neighbors.

Meanwhile, on another corner of the Las Cruces-centered internet, the two activist groups that advocated for the laws focused on a T-shirt worn by City Councilor Johana Bencomo during the Aug. 5 council meeting where the ordinances were approved. The T-shirt bore the slogan, “Decriminalize poverty” and the logo of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Several posts and dozens of comments on Facebook pages run by Businesses for a Safer Las Cruces and Coalition of Conservatives in Action celebrated the passage of the bills, before honing in on Bencomo’s shirt. Some members also indicated they believed Community of Hope falsified the tossed shopping cart post.

Bencomo was joined by civil rights groups and two other councilors in characterizing the laws as inhuman, ineffective and an effort to criminalize homelessness. In doing so, she garnered the ire of the groups that supported the laws.

The laws and LCPD’s expectation

The solicitation law seeks to prohibit solicitation, such as panhandling, in smaller medians, penalizing people for entering roadways to seek money and allowing LCPD to enforce solicitation prohibitions on private property.

Story told the Bulletin that the section on aggressive solicitation, which was already illegal in Las Cruces yet mired in constitutional questions, goes into effect immediately.

“Enforcement of the roadway-related parts of the ordinances will be delayed to allow for education,” Story said.

In the release, LCPD listed seven examples of behavior that could violate the law. Those are:

- Intentionally or recklessly making physical contact with or touching another person during the solicitation without the person’s consent.
- Following the person being solicited or continuing to solicit if that conduct is intended to or is likely to cause a reasonable person to fear imminent bodily harm, or the commission of a criminal act, or is intended to/ reasonably likely to intimidate the person into responding affirmatively to the solicitation.
- Intentionally or recklessly blocking the passage of the person being solicited on the road or requiring the person to take evasive action to avoid physical contact with the person making the solicitation. Some forms of protest or business activity are excluded here.
- Intentionally or recklessly using obscene or abusive language or gestures that are intended to or likely to cause a reasonable person to fear imminent bodily harm or the commission of a criminal act upon property in the person's possession, or words intended to or reasonably likely to intimidate the person into responding affirmatively to the solicitation.

- Approaching the person being solicited in a manner that is intended to or is likely to cause a reasonable person to fear imminent bodily harm or the commission of a criminal act upon property in the person's possession or intended to or is reasonably likely to intimidate the person being solicited into responding affirmatively to the solicitation.

- Solicitation also cannot be done from any occupant of a motor vehicle that's in traffic or on a public street with a posted speed limit of 30 miles per hour or greater if the solicitation causes someone to walk upon a portion of the roadway that's not designated for pedestrian traffic.

The second law prohibits shopping cart use outside of a business's property. It also requires businesses to submit documents detailing their plans to prevent their carts from being taken.

Dozens of unhoused residents use carts to carry and store belongings around Las Cruces. Some residents also use them as components of temporary structures, while others take groceries from stores to bus stops. All of that activity is now illegal.

However, Story has said several times, and LCPD reiterated in a news release, that this law will not be enforced for 60 days.

"Las Cruces police will delay enforcement for 60 days, in part, so retail establishments can submit a plan and application. LCPD also wants to allow time for all parties to become educated on the new regulations and aware of the requirement," the news release said.

Story added that the educational work will fall on some police officers, as well as community advocates.

"There will be an education campaign that includes messaging from community development and our communications office. Officers/community advocates will also personally educate people with carts about the upcoming enforcement of the ordinance," Story said.

The news release and comments from Story also made clear that businesses are not required to retrieve shopping carts.

"The ordinance is very clear that the store does not need to retrieve carts from people (only abandoned carts). We put out a post reinforcing that businesses should not try to take carts from people and that the ordinance is not even in effect yet," Story said. "We will discuss this with each business individually as a part of their shopping cart plan approval."

John Harris out as Memorial CEO

ALGERNON D'AMMASSA
Las Cruces Bulletin

Memorial Medical Center announced on Aug. 8 that CEO John Harris, who led the hospital for 10 years, will retire this month.

"We greatly appreciate John's decade of service to Memorial and the Las Cruces community and wish him the very best in this next chapter," the hospital stated in a news release. "The recruitment process for a new permanent CEO is underway, and we will keep our community informed when a new leader has been identified. Dennis Knox will serve as interim CEO beginning next week."

Harris succeeded Paul Herzog as the privately-owned hospital's leader in November 2013. Previously, he had overseen hospitals in southern California owned by Universal Health Services, and served as CEO of hospitals in several western states for nearly 40 years before joining LifePoint Health, the Tennessee-based corporation that operates a chain of hospitals nationwide including Memorial Medical Center in Las Cruces. LifePoint is owned by the private equity firm,

JOHN HARRIS

Apollo Global Management.

The announcement of Harris' departure comes weeks after New Mexico Attorney General Raúl Tor-rez announced his office was investigating Memorial Medical Center over complaints about denial of services to patients who could not pay or had insurance the hospital did not accept, and questions about the hospital's billing practices and compliance with consumer protection laws.

In June, the hospital was the focus of an NBC News report that aired allegations by numerous former patients about the hospital's practices and caught the attention of city and council officials who questioned whether Memorial, a privately-owned, for-profit hospital sitting on public land, had violated terms of its lease.

Harris denied Memorial had violated its lease and said the NBC report contained "inaccuracies and misinformation." He had declined to be interviewed by NBC and Memorial did not make him available for local press interviews. In response to the Attorney General's investigation, Memorial said it would cooperate fully but did not comment further.

Crime spree ends in Las Cruces arrest

JUSTIN GARCIA

"To: Law Enforcement this needs to be very clear," the note read. "My wife had absolutely no clue as to what I planned or am about to do. These were my decisions and I hid them from her. Signed this day 8-1-24 10:55 am Zachary Babitz."

The day before Babitz wrote the note, police believe he robbed an Albuquerque bank for about $3,000. A few days later, they accused him of killing an 83-year-old man in Santa Fe while stealing his car. Then, last weekend, Las Cruces police said he robbed a local restaurant and carjacked a second person before he was finally arrested.

Babitz is now jailed in the Doña Ana County Detention Center, awaiting more charges and extradition to a jail up north, ac-ording to Santa Fe police Capt. Thomas Grundler, who participated in a news conference about the arrest on Aug. 11.

At the time of this article's publication, Babitz faces one count of murder, two counts of armed robbery, one count of possession of a firearm as a felon, and tampering with evidence.

The allegations in Las Cruces remain under investigation, according to a new release. But if or when charges are filed, they will likely be similar in severity.

"Babitz still faces several felony charges for incidents that occurred in Las Cruces. Las Cruces police are still investigating the incidents that occurred locally," LCPD said in a news release.

According to court records reviewed by the Bulletin, police believe Babitz entered an Albuquerque Wells Fargo bank on July 31 around 3 p.m. He'd strolled up to the bank on a bike, police said, and walked over to a bank teller and handed her a note.

"You have 30 seconds. No dye, no bait, or GPS. I will check. All 100s, 50s, 20s. Smile, no sudden movements," the note said. The teller also told police that Babitz said he had a gun and told her, "Don't make me use it."

Albuquerque police said Babitz got away with $3,336 in cash. But as he rode his bike away from the bank, his front tire fell off, and he lost $166. Babitz ditched the bike and left on foot. Police discovered it, along with the note, a short time later.

Five days later, police believe Babitz gunned down 83-year-old Gordon Peter Wilson on Aug. 6. Babitz was attempting to carjack Wilson at a Santa Fe Best Buy around 10 a.m. when the two men struggled, leading Babitz to fire into the man's chest, killing him.

"Nothing can replace the loss of life, but I hope that Mr. Wilson's family can take some solace in the fact that his killer has been apprehended and will answer for his crimes," SFPD's Grundler said at the news conference.

The Santa Fe New Mexican reported that Wilson was a retired investment and mutual fund manager and resident of Las Campanas. They also described him "as a gentle man, in the old sense of the word."

Babitz then left the area in Wilson's blue Jeep Cherokee, police said.

Court records also indicate Babitz was no stranger to living life at the end of a gun. In 2018, Babitz pled guilty to armed robbery charges stemming from a two-day spree in which he robbed a Starbucks and an Arby's in Bernalillo County.

After serving about six years in prison, court records show Babitz was released on parole with an ankle monitor in March 2024. Court records also show police think Babitz cut the monitor off the day after he robbed the bank.

In a news release, LCPD said Babitz and an unidentified woman robbed the Arby's at 2341 E. Lohman Ave. before carjacking a woman nearby on Aug. 10

"Shortly thereafter, the stolen vehicle crashed near Missouri Avenue and Triviz Drive," the release said. "Both suspects fled from the crash. Police located and detained Babitz nearby. His female accomplice has yet to be identified or located."

Mexico, the challenging work schedules of health care providers, and the need for infrastructure development," according to the university's population health college. "In rural areas, professional isolation and limited health care development further exacerbate the problem."

Lack of prenatal care can lead to pregnancy complications, birth complications for mother and baby and even death.

The New Mexico Maternal Mortality Review Committee reported to state lawmakers in late 2023 that maternal deaths in the state continue to be largely preventable and at a rate much higher than national numbers.

The March of Dimes report suggested states like New Mexico expand Medicaid coverage, further implement a midwifery model of care, establish reimbursement for doula care and increase telehealth availability throughout the state to include a wider range of specialties.

The report pointed to a program currently in operation in the northeastern part of the state called the New Mexico Rural Obstetric Access & Maternal Service. The program connects northern New Mexicans to providers virtually for prenatal care and postnatal support.

However, broadband access is a problem in many rural communities in the state, which the UNM department noted can delay the adoption of such technology.

to talk about a bill he introduced last month, with Republican and Democratic cosponsors, to increase funding for scanning technology and staffing for CPB. He also referred to bills he had presented to combat efforts by criminal organizations to recruit U.S. children into smuggling operations and to stiffen penalties for human trafficking, which also drew Republican cosponsors.

“Combating fentanyl is not about politics; it’s about saving lives,” Vasquez said in prepared remarks. “Unfortunately, this issue has become a political football, with some using it to attack immigrants rather than addressing the root causes of the problem. The reality is that the majority of the convicted fentanyl traffickers in the U.S. are U.S. citizens. Our focus must be on practical solutions, not partisan divides.”

Heinrich addressed the challenge of tighter surveillance of goods and people moving through ports of entry without excessively slowing traffic.

While CBP has signaled it needs more officers on the ground and more scanning equipment to meet that challenge, Heinrich said enlargement and other modifications of port facilities were part of the solution, as well as software to help human officers discern suspicious materials from the flood of scanned images on their screens.

When pressed about claims by their rivals that their appearances were just for show, Heinrich countered: “What we’ve been working on, it’s years’ worth of work. It’s work we’ve been doing with local law enforcement for many years now and it’s why we have results on the ground, of equipment that’s hitting the ground and allowing local law enforcement to do a better job.”

Heinrich made additional stops in the county, his itinerary including a visit to the Vamos Niños mobile children’s museum on a stop in Anthony, N.M.; the nonprofit Family and Youth Innovations Plus, a provider of health care and community services, in Las Cruces; and New Mexico State University’s Physical Science Lab.

CITY OF LAS CRUCES

Utilities Department hosts two-day tour of facilities

To help new City of Las Cruces Utilities Board member John McElroy and City Councilor (and former mayor) Bill Mattiace, who was elected last November, learn more about its work, the Utilities Department conducted a two-day tour of some of its facilities across the city in July.

The tour included visits to the Utilities Department main office on Motel Boulevard, a city water well, a booster station and a water tank (it holds two million gallons and features unique artwork by Las Cruces artist Tony Pennock), the city’s East Mesa Water Reclamation Facility, the Griggs/Walnut superfund site, the Jacob Hands Wastewater Treatment Facility and Water Quality Lab, the city’s former Foothills landfill that is now a composting site (residential customers can drop off yard waste for free; the finished compost is available free to everyone), and the department’s fleet maintenance shop.

“We are so pleased and fortunate when city councilors and Utilities board commissioners take time out of their busy schedules to spend time with us so we can showcase our department, lines of business, and the dedicated employees providing service to our customers,” said Utilities Department Director Adrienne L. Widmer, P.E. “With over 300 employees, each one has energy and enthusiasm for their chosen career whether it is in Natural Gas and Energy, Water, Wastewater, Solid Waste, Business Services, Regulatory Compliance, or Technical Support. They all take pride in their job, and I love providing the opportunity for them to show our leaders what they do.”

The Utilities Department’s mission is to serve customers “so they can enjoy a safe, healthy, productive and sustainable environment.” The department is funded entirely by the rates paid for the services it provides, and not tax dollars.

Water Operations and Maintenance oversees more than 4,000 fire hydrants, 700-plus miles of water lines and 29 active water wells. It produced nearly 21,000 acre-feet of water in 2022 and returned nearly 10,500 acre-feet of effluent water to the Rio Grande. With a staff of nearly 60, the Water line of business has a budget of about $29 million. Ronald N. Borunda is Utilities Department Deputy Director for Water.

Wastewater Operations and Maintenance has a staff of more than 50 and a budget of about $24 million. It maintains more than 600 miles of sewer lines and 18 lift stations. Its three wastewater treatment facilities have a combined capacity of about 15 million gallons a day. “We treat it from start to finish,” said Laura Montoya, the department’s Deputy Director for Wastewater.

Solid Waste serves almost 3,500 commercial customers and more than 36,000 residential customers, said Deputy Director for Solid Waste Carl Pierce, picking up trash six days a week. Solid Waste also oversees Interim Water Production Project Coordinator Horacio Palacios explains the process at the Griggs Walnut Superplume site to City Councilor Bill Mattiace (District 2), LCU Board Commissioner John McElroy, LCU Deputy Director of Regulatory Compliance Steven Perez and journalist Mike Cook during the Utilities tour in July. the city’s grappeler and green grappeler service that collects large items and yard waste. The line of business has more than 50 employees and a budget of about $26 million.

The Utilities Department has its own fleet shop, which maintains the nearly 60 vehicles used by Solid Waste, consisting of trash trucks and grapplers. Solid Waste disposes of nearly 10,000 tons of trash each month.

Natural Gas and Energy serves nearly 45,000 customers over more than 1,000 miles of natural gas pipelines and 91 regulator stations. The line of business has a staff of nearly 60 and a budget of about $38 million. Ramiro A. Pereya Jr. is Interim Deputy Director for Natural Gas and Energy.

Business Services has 61 employees handling utilities billing and receivables, new connections and metering infrastructure. Employees conduct more than 250 transactions with customers every business day, including nearly 150 phone calls and nearly 100 radio calls. Estela Saucedo is Deputy Director.

Steve Perez was appointed July 1 as Utilities Department Deputy Director of Regulatory Compliance. Utilities Department employees are committed to the safe and secure operation of all the department’s lines of business, and to ensure it complies with federal and state regulations and city ordinance.

Utilities Department emergency service is available 24/7. For natural gas, water and sewer emergencies, call 575-526-0500.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Thanks to mayor, police chief

Dear editor,

I attended the Las Cruces City Council meeting on Aug. 5 where the proposed solicitation and shopping cart ordinances were voted on.

Both ordinances were proposed by Chief Jeremy Story of the LCPD. Both ordinances are intended to help improve public safety in Las Cruces.

I want to thank Mayor Enriquez and the council for passing the two ordinances in a 4-3 vote. The three councilors and their supporters in attendance only had one narrative in opposition to these ordinances. Their only narrative was that these ordinances would only hurt the poor, people of color, the homeless and those with mental issues. They offered no narrative on improving public safety for citizens and businesses in Las Cruces. All they harped about was the need for low cost housing and housing for the homeless. That's a whole separate issue the city certainly needs to address.

Last of all, I must thank Chief Story for his tireless effort over many months to prepare and present these ordinances for approval. He led the charge to get this done and make it possible.

Inspections show need for ombudsmen

The number of New Mexico residents aged 85 and older will double in the next 20 years, according to updated projections by demographers at the University of New Mexico. I turned 66 last month and plan to be one of them.

The number of residents aged 65 and older is expected to increase by 200,000 during that same time period. It's estimated that the state's senior population will grow from 13 percent in 2010 to nearly 23 percent by 2040.

All of which makes the recent surprise inspections of senior care facilities throughout the state even more troubling.

From May 17-19, representatives from the state Department of Health conducted unannounced inspections at 91 long-term care facilities in 13 counties throughout the state, including Doña Ana. Only 11 passed with no violations, and none of those were in our county.

Two facilities were immediately reported to the Abuse, Neglect and Exploitation Hotline by state inspectors. Another was referred due to a recent Covid-19 outbreak at the facility. All four of the facilities with failing grades were either in Gallup or Albuquerque.

"We take the findings of this report very seriously. The quality of long-term care in New Mexico falls short of what our seniors deserve," said state Health Secretary Patrick Allen. "This must change, and we are committed to making it happen."

There were 55 facilities that scored 90 percent or better, 11 that were 80 percent or better and 10 that were 70 percent or better.

Reviews from residents were mixed. "There is no privacy. There is nothing to do but watch TV. The staff are mean. They will not say 'hi' and get mad sometimes," one resident said. "Staff keep leaving. The cook left and now the food is awful," another resident said. Another said he was comfortable in his environment and that staff treat him well, but added, "if the government would pay the staff more than minimum wage they would stay at the facility longer and the food would get better."

WALT RUBEL

The View
From Here

Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham encouraged anyone who is concerned about the wellbeing of residents in senior care facilities to consider volunteering for the state's Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program, which is run through the Aging and Long Term Services Department.

According to information on the department's website, as many as 50 percent of residents living in senior care facilities don't have regular visitors to help advocate for them.

"Ombudsman volunteers ensure the rights of all residents are heard," it said. "Ombudsman volunteers are strong resident-directed advocates who work alongside residents and their advocates to preserve residents' rights, freedom, privacy, fairness and self-determination."

Ombudsmen are required to complete a training and certification program from the state. They work in cooperation with regional state coordinators and can make their own schedules, but must work at least three hours a week.

Luckily for me, I've got my final years all figured out. I'm going to be sharp as a tack, healthy and vigorous right up until the night when I die peacefully while sleeping in my bed at home. But I do understand there is a chance things won't work out that way.

If that doesn't happen, it would be nice to have somebody helping to look after my interests.

Lynn Ellins remembered for pioneering LGBTQ marriage access in New Mexico

JUSTIN GARCIA
Las Cruces Bulletin

Lynn Ellins, who served Doña Ana County as an elected commissioner and county clerk, died on May 30, 2024. He was 87 years old.

As county clerk in 2013, he forced the state of New Mexico to decide on the legality of LGBTQ marriages when he proceeded to issue marriage licenses to same-sex couples.

The county remembered Ellins with a proclamation and a few speeches during a Board of County Commissioners special meeting on Aug. 9.

Ellins was an officer in the U.S. Navy, legal counsel to a committee of the New York State Senate, a member of the University of Colorado Board of Regents and a deputy secretary of state in Colorado.

“Commissioner Ellins brought a wealth of experience to his role and a strong sense of duty and commitment to our community,” said Commissioner Susana Chaparro. “Most importantly, as a colleague, he treated everybody with dignity and respect. And to me, he was always a very loyal friend.”

In 2013, County Clerk Ellins began issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples. He was not the first in the country to do so, but Ellins acted at a time when New Mexico seemed deadlocked over whether it should guarantee LGBTQ people access to the status of marriage.

Ellins argued that he was duty-bound to do so by the state constitution. In 2013, he told the New York Times that he had exhausted his patience waiting for the courts to resolve the ambiguity in the state's definition of marriage.

“If the court tells me to stop, I'll stop,” Mr. Ellins told the Times. “But until that happens, we're open for business.”

Eventually, the New Mexico Supreme Court ruled that the state constitution allowed same-sex marriage.

Ellins later served on the Board of County Commissioners and helped usher in several changes, including the building of the county Crisis Triage Center.

Current County Clerk Amanda López Askin said, “He was often referred to as a curmudgeon; but he was our curmudgeon.”

López Askin added that Ellins will be remembered as someone with political bravery.

Ellins' final role in government in Las Cruces was commissioner. In 2022, he lost his seat to fellow Democrat Christopher Schaljo-Hernandez.

At his last meeting on Dec. 13, 2022, Ellins took the opportunity to reflect on his time in public service.

“It's been a good ride. Fifteen years serving the people of this county, and I hope that, for the most part, I made a positive change and difference in their lives,” Ellins said. “I've certainly tried to.”

SALLY JEAN GARDNER

Sally Jean Gardner passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital in Phoenix on July 15, 2024. She had battled COPD for over 22 years. Honoring her wishes, she continued to give even after her passing. In a remarkable display of selflessness, she generously donated her body for medical research, education, and other medical purposes, a noble act that reflected her caring nature.

Sally was born on August 3, 1947, at the Santa Fe Indian Hospital in Santa Fe, New Mexico. She attended school in Santa Fe and then moved with her family to Winslow, Arizona, where she graduated from Winslow High School.

Sally's journey in the restaurant and hospitality industry was nothing short of remarkable. She started at Chez Renee Restaurant in Santa Fe and the Turf Club at Santa Fe Downs.

In Winslow, she opened a community favorite, Granny's Ice Cream Parlor. She eventually became the manager of Cattleman's Steak House, a prominent establishment on Highway 70 in Las Cruces. She also owned and operated the Mission Inn Restaurant and Banquet Facilities, leaving a lasting impression on all who dined there. Her legacy lives on in the memories of the Coyote Comedy Club and dinner theater productions at the Mission Inn. Before retirement, she worked at the Frontier Airlines call center.

After retirement, she became an avid quilter and seamstress. Her last project was crafting quilted Christmas tree skirts for her daughter and grandchildren. There are also a few unfinished mystery projects.

She is preceded in death by her parents, William M. Steele, and mother, Eileen

White Steele (both of Las Cruces, NM), and her sister, Barbara Moore (Las Cruces, NM), and her brother, Robert Steele, who recently passed. New deputies sworn in at Doña Ana County ceremony

JUSTIN GARCIA
Las Cruces Bulletin

Surrounded by family, high-ranking judges and their soon-to-be bosses, 22 area residents took one of the final steps to become Doña Ana County Sheriff's deputies last week.

The Aug. 9 ceremony took over the County Commission board room as family members, county officials and police personnel celebrated the advancement. Capping a 22-week training academy, many of the speeches from criminal justice officials highlighted the police's social role.

"Always remember the reason you wanted to become a deputy," said DASO Capt. Samuel Ramos. "You've sacrificed over the last few months and successfully arrived at this moment in life. You're now ready to begin a new career as a certified deputy."

"So from this point forward and until you retire, you will be in the public eye and every action you take – or don't take – is subject to intense scrutiny. So that will be a fact of your life moving forward," Ramos said.

In addition to DASO and county staff, Deming Police Department Chief Sergio Lara gave the 22

graduates some advice and a set of labels for their new occupation.

"I call you warriors that is selfless, full of pride, integrity, morals and ethics," Lara said.

He also titled them as peace officers.

"I say 'peace officers' because that is what you guys really are now, peace officers. You will hear 'patrolman,' you will hear 'trooper,' you will hear 'police officer,' but you are now peace officers – men and women that will help maintain peace through your great actions and your chosen path in life," Lara said.

Margaret Strickland, a federal judge, told the deputies they'd become something beyond ordinary citizens.

"This is a day of transition for these graduates. They transition from community members to community protectors, protectors of the innocent, protectors of the vulnerable, protectors of the truth and protectors of the law," Strickland said.

Not all of the 22 people who graduated will continue as DASO employees. Some are bound for other departments in the area, with at least one officer going to the Deming Police Department.

Those remaining in DASO will be on a 14-week probationary field training period before becoming full-fledged deputies.

DEMING READY TO RACE DUCKS

BULLETIN REPORT

Deming's Great American Duck Race will return to the grounds of the Luna County Courthouse this month, upholding a decades-old local tradition. Yes, the ducks are real, and yes, they really run races – on dry tracks and in water; yet much more goes on here.

Organizers count this as the 45th duck race, but as the Deming Headlight reported in an editorial last year, that depends on how you count: “The inaugural duck race was held in 1980. Like many annual events, the COVID-19 pandemic messed everything up: The event did not happen in 2020 and 2021 – and really, how would we race ducks virtually?”

Besides competitive waterfowl and cash prizes for the winners' human sponsors, the four-day event includes the Tournament of Ducks Parade, the Duck Royalty Pageant, The Great American Outhouse Race, The Great American Horseshoe Tournament and The Great American Tortilla Toss.

Duck races have become a big-ticket item at state fairs and summer festivals across the country, but the Great American Duck Race in Deming is the one that started it all, organizers say. Launched by a group of enterprising community leaders hoping to stimulate business and bring attention to the town, the duck race put Deming on the map. This year's theme, “Hula to the finish line,” expresses the lighter side of what has become big business for the southern New Mexican town, as the event has seen annual estimated attendance topping 10,000.

The New Mexico Tourism Department supports the Great American Duck Race through its Tourism Event Growth and Sustainability program.

The event transforms the grounds of the historic county courthouse into “Deming Duck Downs,” with carnival rides and games, food trucks and booths, lines of vending tables and, in the center, the duck corral and wet and dry tracks where attendees pay a small fee to launch a duck for a chance at a cash grand prize.

Live musical bands to be featured include Mariachi Aguilas, the 575 Band, Zia Norteña, Rockabilly Strangers and Captivo Norteña. Additional attractions include a hot air balloon rally (weather permitting), a golf scramble, a skateboard competition, cornhole and softball tournaments, arts and crafts and more.

Jamie Lee Curtis

OF OPERATION PETTICOAT ON ABC

Q: I understand that one of Jamie Lee Curtis's first jobs was on a TV series called "Operation Petticoat." Was that based on the movie of the same name that her father Tony starred in?

A: It was. She was a regular cast member in the first season of the show, which aired in 1977 and 1978 on ABC, and she played one of the Army nurses rescued by a submarine crew in the South Pacific during World War II ... and the women then stayed on board, giving the sitcom its premise. That was very much the same plot as the 1959 film, directed by Blake Edwards, that starred Tony Curtis and Cary Grant (the latter also a producer of the picture through his own company). In the TV version, John Astin assumed the role of the ship's commander, first played by Grant, with Richard Gilliland in Curtis's earlier part. It's interesting to note that one of the movie's supporting players was Gavin MacLeod, who would become a "skipper" himself years later as Captain Merrill Stubing on the popular series "The Love Boat."

For Jamie Lee Curtis, "Operation Petticoat" was one of many series made by Universal Television that she appeared on around that time; others included "Quincy, M.E.," "Columbo" and "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century." After she left "Operation Petticoat" (which replaced much of its first-year cast for what turned out to be a short second season), she quickly made a bigger mark for herself in a movie that primarily defined her screen image for many years afterward, the original 1978 version of the thriller "Halloween."

Last year, Curtis became an Oscar winner for her performance in 2022's "Everything Everywhere All at Once," which also earned her Golden Globe and Screen Actors Guild Awards, among a number of other honors.

Seth Green in "Can't Hardly Wait"

"CAN'T HARDLY WAIT"

A high-school graduation party provides the backdrop for this iconic 1998 teen comedy, now making its 4K Ultra HD debut. The subplots are as diverse as the characters that fuel them, a main one revolving around a popular student (played by Jennifer Love Hewitt) grappling with her identity after her athlete boyfriend (Peter Facinelli) breaks up with her. She finds a letter written to her by a mystery admirer, then makes it her mission to locate the author. Meanwhile, the jock is targeted by a nerd (Charlie Korsmo) who has been tormented by him pretty constantly. For two other partygoers (Lauren Ambrose, Seth Green), being locked in a bathroom together proves quite revelatory. Etham Embry, Jason Segel, Clea DuVall, Jamie Pressly, Donald Faison and Selma Blair also are in the large and energetic ensemble cast. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on DVD and Blu-ray)

"THE CHINA SYNDROME"

Director and co-writer James Bridges's 1979 melodrama gets a relaunch on Blu-ray, teaming several Hollywood icons that proved to be even more timely than its makers expected, since it was released in the proximity of the Three Mile Island nuclear-plant crisis. Jane Fonda and Michael Douglas, the latter also the film's producer, play members of a television-news crew who are doing a feature story on such a plant when an "accident" occurs there. After their bootleg footage of the incident is confiscated, one of the plant's managers (Jack Lemmon) weighs his conscience and debates going rogue to warn the public of the potential danger. Wilford Brimley, Scott Brady, Peter Donat, Richard Herd and James Hampton are also in the excellent cast of the story that gives insight into the news business and what some journalists face in trying to get reports on the air. ★★★★★ (Also on DVD)

Auditions for American Southwest Theatre Company’s 2024-2025 Season

New Mexico State University Theatre and American Southwest Theatre Company is gearing up for an eclectic 2024-25 season, offering something for everyone. In the fall, a new and innovative take on Dracula will get audiences ready for the spooky season. “Dracula, A Comedy of Terrors” written by Gordon Greenberg and Steven Rosen and directed by Associate Professor Nichole Hamilton, has been referred to as Dracula for Gen Z and offers a campy sexy romp through the beloved Stoker classic in the style of Monty Python and Mel Brooks. Next up will be what some critics consider the greatest protest play ever written, “Mother Courage and Her Children” directed by Associate Professor Larissa Lury. Written by Bertolt Brecht in 1939 while exiled from Germany, this epic play with music follows a woman’s journey of survival in a war-torn 17th Century Europe.

Auditions for “Dracula, A Comedy of Terrors” and “Mother Courage” will be held on Saturday, August 24, 9 a.m.-12 p.m. at the ASNMSU Center for the Arts. Callbacks to follow on Sunday, August 25. For an audition appointment and what to prepare, please visit theatre.nmsu.edu/auditions/upcoming-auditions.html and click the link in the audition notice.

Gospel Rescue Mission announces new 'clothing barn'

BULLETIN REPORT

The Las Cruces Gospel Rescue Mission announced that its former clothing room, which had been closed for a time, has been succeeded by a new clothing storage and distribution center to serve unhoused members of the community.

The "clothing barn" was made possible through a donation by a local family described as long-term supporters of Gospel Rescue Mission who donated use of a barn on their property. The Clothing Barn now has its own Facebook page and a post there lists a number of local agencies and nonprofits assisting with the initiative.

"The distribution system now works, instead of through one clothing room, through over 50 community partners ... who distribute clothing to those in need," the organization wrote in a news release. "Community residents can also make requests for clothing deliveries by means of Facebook Messenger. Clothes have also been distributed through a 'mobile barn,' hosted at churches."

Donations of clothes and other items are received at the gate of Las Cruces Gospel Rescue Mission, 105 W. Amador Avenue, and receipts are available upon request. Items may be sold at the organization's Rock of Ages Thrift Store, 1420 S. Solano Drive, to benefit the shelter; or distributed to the Clothing Barn. Clothes not suitable for wear are sold to a company for recycling as braided rugs, carpet padding and other uses, the LCGRM wrote. "Times are tough for many in our community, and LCGRM will continue its efforts to help clothe, feed, and shelter the neediest among us," the Gospel Rescue Mission wrote. More information and opportunities to support the mission are available via 575-523-7727 or online at lgrm.org.

Senior service franchise opens in Las Cruces

ALGERNON D'AMMASSA
Las Cruces Bulletin

A widespread network of non-medical services for elder residents reached the Las Cruces metro area when El Paso-based franchise owners opened an Always Best Care location downtown.

Founded in California in 1996, Always Best Care Senior Services counts over 250 franchises in the United States and Canada in its network, per the corporate website.

Always Best Care's El Paso franchise was founded in 2020 by Carlos Camacho Jr. and Karla Camacho, where they say they found a need to expand quickly in a region with a rapidly growing senior population.

Always Best Care provides caregivers for in-home services – from helping with errands or meals, laundry and light housekeeping to assisting with mobility problems and personal needs like bathing, toileting and more in the way of independent and assisted living services intended to blend smoothly with referrals to higher level care.

Although they are not medical providers, the caregivers – who are employees and not contractors – also assist with recovery after hospitalizations or rehabilitation, or during hospice. They also make referrals for senior living, memory care or other services as appropriate.

The El Paso franchise serves an area extending to Canutillo and Vinton, Texas, per the office's website. In a news release, they said the Las Cruces office will reach a radius including southern Doña Ana County, the White Sands Missile Range area and Deming to the west.

Carlos Camacho told the Las Cruces Bulletin he and his spouse-and-business-partner had invested in a Las Cruces operation last October and had been laying the groundwork since then, obtaining their license to operate about two months ago. He said approximately 20 caregivers are currently working from that office.

In a news release, Always Best Care CEO Jake Brown said Las Cruces was “not just another stop on the map” for the Camachos.

“Like many cities all over North America, the (Las Cruces) area is experiencing significant growth of its senior population, increasing the need for reliable and compassionate senior services like Always Best Care provides.”

The Las Cruces office is located at the old Loretto Towne Center at 505 S. Main Street and may be reached at 575-222-9623 or online at AlwaysBestCareLasCruces.com.

USGA updates golf rules. I have some thoughts

Within the last eight years, the USGA has updated its Rules of Golf, thereby creating several modernized rule adjustments.

For example, there is no longer a penalty for accidentally moving your ball while searching for it, or for accidentally moving your ball or marker on the putting green; if the ball moves and you didn't cause it to move, there is no penalty. There is no longer a penalty if you touch or move loose impediments or touch the ground with your hand or club in a penalty area, which means you may remove stones and other loose items from sand bunkers. When taking a penalty drop a player is no longer required to drop the ball from shoulder height; the drop is now from knee level, limiting where the ball may roll.

But one rule that still remains, which truly frosts me, is that the ball must be played as it lies out of a fairway divot.

The main purpose of the USGA changes was to make the game less intimidating and more fun to play. Of course, as the Golf Doctor, I have my own proposed rules with the object of speeding up the game while preserving some traditions and encouraging good behavior.

CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Golf Doctor

The first of "Doc's Rules" is the penalty for slow play. After a first warning, the offending golfer and group must pick up their balls, without argument, and immediately move to the next hole. With the second warning to the group of snails, upon finishing their hole the players are fined $50 each, payable in the pro shop, which would be donated to junior golf. On the third contact for a slow play infraction, all the players in the slow group will be escorted off the golf course. They may be allowed back no sooner than three weeks hence, with a much later tee time. Other golf courses in the area may be warned about the slow plodding group.

My second proposed rule concerns club throwing. There would be no penalty for "tossing" a golf club, say within a few feet of a golf bag, when not provoked by anger. The penalty for the first thrown or slammed club is one stroke with a payment of $20 to junior golf at the pro shop. For a second throw, the penalty is three strokes and a $50 fine. A third throw means the player is banned from the course for one month.

My third proposal is a penalty for inappropriate attire on the golf course. How hard can it be to wear proper golf slacks or shorts and a proper golf shirt with a collar? Many golf clubs have dress requirements, but not in our town. Some folks say that defining dress would not be "welcoming." I feel we need to respect the traditions of golf itself. Here are my proposed consequences for improper dress: A player may be permitted to proceed to the suitable locker room and change to approved attire. Such attire may be purchased in the pro shop. A player may join the original group, or wait for an opening in the tee time lineup.

Next we consider some of the most despicable creatures to inhabit the links, the "grounds despoilers." These are the nitwits who can't be bothered replacing or sanding divots on the fairways or ball marks on the greens and ignore raking their own footprints in the bunkers. It would be hard to penalize these miscreants since they are so hard to catch in the act.

There are other situations that may also require new rules, such as cheating and sandbagging, but I'll leave those for a later investigation.
