City adopts new airport master plan

JUAN CORRAL
Las Cruces Bulletin

The Las Cruces City Council unanimously approved the 2024 Las Cruces International Airport Master Plan and the Las Cruces Airport Layout Plan at a city council meeting on Monday, April 21.

So far, the city has acquired a $270,000 grant from the New Mexico Department of Transportation and matched it with $30,000 to help with expansion projects at the airport. The city also secured $2 million during the last legislative session for infrastructure improvements, Las Cruces Airport Administrator Andy Hume said during the city council meeting on Monday, April 21.

But the master plan will require a 20-year period to be fully realized and it is unclear what that cost, overall, will be.

Some of the projects involve extending runways, renovating the terminal and expanding parking as well as expanding passenger air service, continuing support of general aviation and growing the commercial aerospace.

One of the long-term goals will be flights from Las Cruces to Phoenix and possibly to Dallas-Fort Worth.

"We want to connect Las Cruces to New Mexico, the world and beyond," Las Cruces Airport Administrator Andy Hume said.

Hume said the airport will need to have a terminal capable of accommodating larger aircraft and will need to provide a minimum revenue guarantee to get service started between Las Cruces and Dallas-Fort Worth.

He said several infrastructure priorities – extending the runways, renovating the terminal and expanding the parking – will be the main focus in this initial phase.

"We will implement these things through our combined capital improvement programs... We plan to continue to pursue opportunities as we move forward," Hume said at the council meeting.

Although the plan received unanimous approval, the Councilor for District 6, Yvonne Flores asked where the interstate travel will be established.

Hume said the plan is Phoenix.

"The latest round of the rural air service enhancement funding has just been released by New Mexico Department of Transportation. Our hope is that we can go to Phoenix. There was $12 million dollars set aside for funding and we're going to go for it aggressively. That's our plan, next stop Phoenix," Hume said.

Civil liability of 911 dispatchers resolved

JUAN CORRAL
Las Cruces Bulletin

The New Mexico Supreme Court ruled unanimously on Monday, April 21, siding with the county and city that 911 dispatchers and their governmental employees are protected by New Mexico law from being sued except for damages caused by negligence.

This decision is in response to a five-year legal battle initiated by a Las Cruces family who lost their 16-year-old son to a heat stroke while hiking in the Organ Mountains in 2020 against various city and county officials, employees and departments.

The plaintiffs alleged that the teenager's death was caused by unreasonable delays and missteps during the emergency response. This allegedly included an initial referral of the incident to a fire prevention specialist, a mischaracterization of the incident as a search and rescue and allegedly referring to it as a "minor medical" event. The dispatchers called out two ambulances but then cancelled that call, according to a letter by the administrative office of the court.

The state supreme court stated in its decision that laws protect dispatchers

"from damages related to personal injuries or deaths allegedly caused by their response to an emergency call for help."

"The Court unanimously concluded that the state Enhanced Medical Services Act (EMSA) governed the liability issue and that 911 dispatchers were immune from civil liability except for damages caused by negligence," the letter states.

What happened?

In July of 2020 16-year-old Isaac Brealey-Rood went hiking with his mother Carissa Brealey and brother Aidan Brealey-Rood and two dogs.

During the hike, Isaac lost energy to continue and fell. His mother and brother were by his side while waiting for multiple attempts at responses from 911 dispatchers, according to the complaint.

The 911 dispatchers allegedly called off ambulances twice and labeled the call as a search and rescue.

Isaac's temperature reached 106 degrees that day, according to the complaint. He died the following day due to multiple-organ failure, according to court documents.

Lawsuit filed and Supreme Court answered

Isaac's family filed a lawsuit in 2022 alleging multiple failures by government employees resulted in his death.

This civil suit resulted in a question for the court about whether 911 operators have protection from civil liability under state law.

The family's wrongful death lawsuit is now pending in federal court. It was originally filed in state court but has since moved.

The Mesilla Valley Regional Dispatch Authority, several of its dispatchers, the Doña Ana County Board of County Commissioners, the New Mexico Department of Public Safety and the city of Las Cruces are all listed on the family's lawsuit.

New Mexico State Auditor intervenes on request

JUAN CORRAL
Las Cruces Bulletin

The New Mexico State auditor's office met with officials on Monday, April 21, from both the Doña Ana Sheriff's Office and Doña Ana County to establish the scope of an audit both entities requested.

Both the county and the sheriff's office have had a falling out in recent months. Both sent letters to the state auditor in March requesting the state's intervention.

"Each of these letters contain allegations that elected officials and public officers of Doña Ana County may have failed to comply with New Mexico law, county ordinances, rules, regulations, policies and procedures in the performance of their duties," according to a letter from the NM state auditor's office.

There is distrust between both departments, according to the auditor's letter. The letter details Doña Ana County Sheriff Kim Stewart's support for a special audit. But the county said it has copies of emails from Stewart indicating she refused to work with county staff, according to the auditor's letter.

"The apparent lack of trust amongst county departments and staff is highly disconcerting to me and the situation appears to be at an impasse," the letter states.

"I have determined, as state auditor, that it is in the public interest to ensure full accountability, objectivity, and transparency by designating the county for a special audit conducted under the auspices of my office to assess the county's compliance with applicable laws, regulations, policies, and procedures," the letter states.

DOGE cuts at NM's national parks create alarm, anxiety

ROZ BROWN

For New Mexico News Connection

New Mexico's national parks generally operate year-round - but they might not operate at 100% efficiency this year due to employee firings, layoffs and buyouts. Earlier this year, the Trump administration told some 2,500 National Park Service workers to resign or retire and promised still more cuts to the agency. Responding to criticism about the move, the U.S. Interior Secretary ordered national parks and historic sites to "remain open and accessible."

Kate Groetzinger, communications manager of the Center for Western Priorities, believes that's a dilemma for park-goers.

"Visitors could be put at risk by not having adequate search and rescue staff available. So, ordering the parks to reopen without adequate staff is a bad idea," she contended. "It doesn't serve anyone."

Frequent park users worry that cuts could result in staffing problems this summer, along with closed restrooms and maintenance issues including limited trash removal. New Mexico has 15 areas within the National Park System, including parks, monuments, historic sites and trails.

A former oil executive with links to the Department of Energy Efficiency led by Elon Musk has been promoted to oversee policy, management and budget at the Interior Department. Groetzinger says Western Priorities is concerned the public could be left in the dark about future park decisions being made by unelected officials.

"It really just is a full-on attack on outdoor recreation in the United States. Anyone who camps, hikes, bikes, climbs - anyone who enjoys our public lands should be shocked and concerned about the attacks," she continued.

Interior Secretary Doug Burgum also has ordered a detailed review of every park's operating hours, trail closures and other visitor services. Groetzinger believes trust in federal institutions like the parks is being eroded - opening the door to privatization and ultimately increased costs for users.

Drone program at NMSU hopes to aid first responders

JEWEL DOMINGUEZ

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

New Mexico State University is home to a new drone program that hopes to help first responders nationwide by training operators and teaching agencies how to start drone programs to aid emergency responses.

The program at the NMSU Physics science lab UAS Test Site, located at the Las Cruces Airport, is one of seven Federal Aviation Administration-approved UAS, or unmanned aircraft systems, test sites in the country.

"After hurricanes like Harvey and Helene, public safety agencies and insurance had so much data that people recorded with their drones, manufacturers, and public safety agencies saw the advantages of using the technology to assess damage after a natural disaster," said NMSU Safety Specialist Jerry Fleming.

Fleming, certified in drone safety, spent five years with the USDA Forest Service, where he first got involved in safety operations before working with NMSU.

FEMA and AssuredSafe fund the first responders' UAS training, a two-day in-person training. The program is split into two sections and has up to two levels for first responders to enroll in. Day one is an introduction to UAS Flight Operations, and day two is an Introduction to UAS Data Analytics.

Over 50 first responders from law enforcement, fire departments, and county organizations in New Mexico, Arizona, and Texas have participated in the courses.

"Our goal is to get all levels of the hierarchy in a public safety agency to take at least level one, even just on the first day. It would be great if they did all of them, but level two is more for your pilots and analysis people, and level one is the people responsible for getting the right government certifications and the equipment to start a program," said First Responder Instructor Jaime Ponce de Leon.

Ponce de Leon is a UAS pilot who spent some time with Santa Fe Fire and Rescue and two years with the Department of Interior as a wildfire specialist.

Ponce de Leon and a fellow instructor, retired Las Cruces Police Department Lt. Rudy Saenz, think UAS use should become more of a standard for emergency response. Saenz recalls a time when he was an active LCPD officer. The department responded to a call about an older man who was suffering from dementia and had walked away from his assisted care living facility, who died within city limits in temperatures over 100 degrees.

"If the department had the training we have now, I think that man may have survived," said Saenz.

According to DJI, the leading manufacturer of UASs, drones have been used in over 1,000 successful rescues. In 2017, Mesilla Valley Search and Rescue used a UAS to locate a missing person, and in 2023, aided in an effort that used a UAS to rescue four hikers in the Organ Mountains.

Fleming, Ponce de Leon, and Saenz all argue the same reasoning for why public safety agencies should adopt and develop drone programs. Modern-day drones are made more convenient and versatile. They are also cheaper to buy and use than helicopters, and they can respond to emergencies faster since less coordination is needed with other aircraft in the designated airspace. They can also apply for waivers from the FAA to use their systems in large airspace.

"The hard part is done. This is government approved, it is funded, we have a way for agencies to get certified and trained, and we can take the test site on the road to train people wherever they want us. We just need people to come and see what they can do with these systems. This is in terms of other equipment, cheaper to get, and versatile if you take the time to learn and train."

"What you can do with the data is kind of amazing," said Wes Foote, a course participant and Taos Search and Rescue member.

The program is just for learning UAS operations and how to set up a program. Still, first responders interested in piloting a UAS can be Part 107 certified online through NMSU or the FAA website.

Since the test site is FAA-approved, first responders who take the training will still be able to pilot a UAS under the supervision of certified pilots to understand how a drone works and how they would use it in a search-and-rescue situation.

Sessions for this year have already begun. The Santa Fe Police Department is hosting the test site instructors to teach for four days after a successful save from their country's fire and emergency management teams, who have taken the operations course.

First responders can check catalogs sent out by federal and state agencies that offer educational services, such as UAS operations training. However, Ponce de Leon says they've had more success with personal outreach and word of mouth to get people signed up than official government outlets.

KAREN SUE MASTERSON WARREN

James Emory Master-son and Elnora Russell Masterson welcomed their first child, Karen Sue Masterson Warren, on August 4, 1945, in Memphis, Texas. When Karen was five years old, the family moved to Las Cruces, New Mexico, where she would grow up and ultimately leave a lasting legacy of love, learning, and music.

Karen graduated from Las Cruces High School in 1963. She went on to earn a Bachelor's degree in Home Economics Education from New Mexico State University in 1967 and a Master's degree in Guidance and Counseling from Texas Tech University in 1977.

On January 29, 1965, Karen married the love of her life, Tom Warren, at St. Paul's United Methodist Church. Together, they spent 23 years in the Air Force, living in various locations both stateside and overseas. During that time, they welcomed their son, Clifton, in Big Spring, Texas, in 1972, and their daughter, Amanda, in San Antonio, Texas, in 1975. Their final military assignment was at Holloman AFB, where Tom retired in May 1989. In 1994, they returned to Las Cruces to settle permanently.

Throughout their Air Force years, Karen found joy and purpose in each location – teaching, traveling, building community through ministry, and leading aerobic dance classes. Following their military life, she pursued a fulfilling career in education, working as a Gifted Facilitator for high school students in both Alamogordo and Las Cruces and advocating for special education across New Mexico until her retirement in 2010.

Karen was a lifelong musician. She loved singing, playing the piano, and performing. As a devoted member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, she served for many years as a church musician and was active in both the Choir and Praise Team. She also enjoyed playing and acting with both the Black Box Theater and Las Cruces Community Theater, along with singing in the Mesilla Valley Chorale. Beyond her musical contributions, she enjoyed volunteering in the community through Walk to Emmaus, Chrysalis, Mayor's Top Teens, Ballet Folklórico, and the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum.

Karen passed away peacefully at home on the morning of April 12, 2025, surrounded by love.

She is survived by her husband of 60 years, Tom Warren; her children, Clifton Warren and Amanda Kuhn; her sisters, Lucinda Masterson Ray (Michael) and Mimie Masterson Hall (Todd); her grandchildren, Rebekkah Kuhn, Angela Cincotta (Harry), Johanna Bunting (Bill), Bruno Lamberti (Rachelle), Gino Lamberti, and Luciano Lamberti; and their mother, Rosana Lamberti Warren. She is also survived by four great-grandchildren: Kayla Avery, Lucci Lamberti, Laila Lamberti, and Bella Lamberti. Karen deeply cherished her extended family, including her nieces and nephews – Kelsey Ray, Cameron Ray (Shannon), Kerrick Ray, Dylan Hall, Laurin Hall, Evan Hall, and Charlotte Hicks—along with great-nieces, great-nephews, cousins, and many who were like family that brought her joy throughout her life.

Karen was preceded in death by her parents and her sister, Jenann Masterson.

A celebration of Karen's life will be held at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Las Cruces on Saturday, May 10, 2025, at 11:00 AM. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made in her honor to St. Paul's UMC or the Alzheimer's Association.

Karen's life was a beautiful symphony of service, song, and love – one that will echo in the hearts of those who knew her for years to come.

Rivera named New Mexico Clerk of the Year

BULLETIN REPORT

Las Cruces City Clerk, Christine Rivera, received a state-wide honor this month.

The New Mexico Municipal League named Rivera the state's Clerk of the Year during its annual conference held in Taos April 9-11.

The award, presented since 1991, recognizes a city, town or village clerk in New Mexico who exhibits excellence in their interactions with their governing body and the public. Members of City Council, the governing body for the City of Las Cruces, nominated Rivera and listed her goals of transparency and responsiveness as highlights in the application process.

"I'm extremely honored and humbled to be nominated by the governing body for this prestigious award," Rivera said. "I work hard to be a team member that everyone can rely on."

As Las Cruces City Clerk, Rivera has implemented automated agenda software and IPRA management software that helps streamline the functionality of the office and its ability to respond to requests for public records. She has also advocated in Santa Fe for legislative issues that would standardize how city clerks account for the increasing number of public records requests.

Rivera helped create a Standard Rules and Procedures booklet and provides one-on-one support to campaign staff and volunteers during municipal elections.

"She provides guidance on Robert's Rules, Open Meetings Act and other critical processes for committee leaders, while also ensuring that public input is not only present but represented and championed in City conversations and decisions," wrote City Councilor Becky Corran in nominating Rivera. "Her presence and support in these venues has changed how we think about communication, intra- and extramurally in ways that enhance resident access and builds trust."

The City Clerk's office maintains and protects all official municipal records and provides public access to records. Rivera's office also processes public records requests and applications to serve on boards, committees and commissions.

Rivera is one of approximately 150 municipal clerks in New Mexico.

The Municipal League is a nonprofit, nonpartisan association that represents and serves cities, towns and villages in New Mexico.

Las Cruces Utilities Gas Services specialize in safe gas service delivery

City of Las Cruces Utilities Department Gas Services Supervisor Stephan Klingelmeier and his staff protect everything that has to do with the gas line. Klingelmeier has been with the City for 18 years and was promoted to supervisor earlier this year.

Klingelmeier and his staff of nine have to know math, science, chemistry, physics and even history to do their jobs, and laser technology may be on its way to make City gas service delivery faster and safer.

For Gas Services, the City is divided into three sections: north, central and south. Each section has one Gas Service Corrosion Technician assigned to it. Each technician checks thousands of steel risers (they transition gas lines from below ground to above ground) in their section every year, recording how each riser is operating as compared to previous years.

Technicians also routinely take readings from test boxes throughout the City to ensure gas lines are operating safely and efficiently. Using a hand-held device, a technician connects into the gas system to check various levels and measurements.

The test boxes also allow technicians to measure the gas line's protection level and aids in determining if it is generating adequate or not enough current and or if it needs troubleshooting based of the readings obtained.

There could, for example, be a leak, a short in the electrical system, a loose connection between pipes, tree limbs pulling on the line or damage from sidewalks or landscaping rock. Corrosion of older steel pipes, which are gradually being replaced by more durable polyethylene, is also an issue, as is wear and tear on the plastic coating that covers steel pipes to protect them from corrosion, water and weather damage.

Klingelmeier remembers when, as a technician, he was troubleshooting a gas line with a faulty reading. He went from riser to riser in the area until he discovered a steel rod that had been driven into the ground by a solar-panel installer and had come into contact with a steel gas line, causing a disruption.

Finding the problem "was very rewarding," Klingelmeier said.

Gas lines are found at various depths below ground, but can be closer to the surface. If you are planning to dig for any reason, call 811 first to find out where utility lines are located on your property. If you smell gas or think you have a gas leak, call 575-526-0500 24/7/365.

Moving forward, Klingelmeier said Utilities is studying the use of laser technology to spot gas leaks, including a mobile leak detection program that can detect even the tiniest leak.

New nurse residency program at MountainView Medical Center

JUAN CORRAL
Las Cruces Bulletin

With thousands of nursing jobs in New Mexico going unfilled, MountainView Regional Medical Center launched a new 12-month nurse residency program in March with 13 people in the cohort. The new program was implemented to encourage students in the medical field to remain local and find employment in the rural areas.

As of last fall, the nursing shortage was estimated by a University of New Mexico study to have reached over 8,000 vacancies. Troy Clark, executive director of the New Mexico Hospital Association, told the Bulletin that a separate study conducted by the New Mexico Department of Workforce Solutions found more than 5,000 nursing vacancies. He said that, regardless of whether the number is more than 5,000 or more than 8,000, the nursing shortage in New Mexico is worse now than it was during the COVID-19 pandemic.

MountainView Chief Nursing Officer AJ Stephens highlighted the need for nurses in southern New Mexico, not just Las Cruces.

"Accredited nurse residency programs are the gold standard for transition to professional practice and yield higher nurse satisfaction, decreased nursing turnover, improved quality outcomes, and decreased healthcare costs," Stephens said.

He said that the program is built and structured to have in-person education and in-person training with actual supervision at the patient's bedside.

"We have a mentorship piece, so every resident is assigned a mentor. But whenever you get into training, you have a police sector who is supervising your work and following you as you take care of patients and the mentor is separate but someone who is coaching and guiding you," he said.

The MountainView Nurse Residency Program adheres to the American Nurses Credentialing Center's Practice Transition Accreditation Program (PTAP) standards, which help give nursing graduates the tools in the RN workforce and contribute meaningfully to the healthcare community.

MountainView Chief Nursing Officer AJ Stephens said the program will also help differentiate between real world experiences and classroom settings.

Stephens is very passionate about nurse residency programs as it was his doctoral project and says it is "absolutely the gold standard for entry to practice for nurses."

"The program also aims to enhance clinical decision-making, critical thinking, and leadership abilities, as well as promote professional development and lifelong learning," he said.

He added that the nurses meet with coaches weekly with a goal to find what their best performance is and where they may need a bit more work.

"I did a bit of research and read an article where 15 hospitals implemented nurse residency programs and saved $15 million dollars in turnover costs in their first year. There are substantial cost savings to hospitals. That first six months is one of the most difficult times to retain nurses," he said.

Stephens said getting a nurse after the year mark is where nurses may start to feel more confident and comfortable.

In addition to the current shortage, the number of registered nurses has an expected growth of nearly 3,000 jobs between 2022 and 2032, according to a 2024 annual report by the New Mexico Health Care Work Force Committee

"We're going to need another 1.2 million nurses by 2030, that's only four and a half years away so pretty these positions and growing needs is where the pipelines coming from," Stephens said.

Clark agreed and added that the "magic" is keeping people interested in the health field locally rather than recruiting nurses out of state.

"We are in a health care shortage, during the pandemic it was at its height and its worse," Clark said. "During the later 2023, early 2024-time frame, a number of the nurses across the country who decided to go be travel nurses and not stay in one location, many of them returned home and said they did not want to live on the road anymore."

Clark said that there has been a decrease in the number of contract numbers seen in New Mexico.

"So, it's been a shift back to permanent employed nurses, but we still are short. Many of our hospitals are still utilizing contract labor or agency nurses, just not to the extent that they were because a lot of the positions are still vacant, but the number [of vacancies] has not decreased," Clark said.

Many nurses during the pandemic would leave to assist in areas that Clark called "hotspots" where a health care crisis existed to work a 13-week contract before traveling to the next hospital.

He also said nurses would simply take the Infant and maternal healthcare gains funding in Southern NM

JUAN CORRAL

Las Cruces Bulletin

The United Health Foundation awarded $1.5 million to La Clinica de Familia and another $100,000 to the New Mexico Doula Association to expand prenatal and gynecological health services in Southern New Mexico.

United Health Group announced the $7 million in awards that will be spread across several states, including New Mexico.

Dr. Stephanie Peace, director of Women's Health Center at La Clinica De Familia, said high-quality services during pregnancy are critical to ensuring strong families and healthy pregnancies. Peace said through a news release that La Clinica de Familia will expand services into rural areas.

Doulas will also receive some help.

Doulas can be important in the birthing process because they can be a resource for parents to understand their options for supporting a healthy pregnancy and can help with finding health care providers and support groups.

Co-Director for the New Mexico Doula Association, Melissa Lopez-Sullivan said the $100,000 will be used within the association across the span of the next two years. The money will be used to build "long-term workforce sustainability" for doulas in New Mexico.

"Specifically, this funding will help us deliver comprehensive training and support that includes technical assistance in Medicaid credentialing and billing, CPR and HIPAA certification, self-care and sustainability tools, healing from trauma, and continued education in anti-racism, trauma informed, and gender-affirming care," Lopez-Sullivan said.

"These trainings will be delivered through a combination of in-person gatherings and virtual workshops, ensuring access for rural doulas across the state."

She added that doulas are trained non-medical professionals who provide emotional, physical, and informational support for people during pregnancy, birth, postpartum and even miscarriages or abortions.

"Community-based doulas, in particular, often share cultural, linguistic, and/or geographic connections with the families they serve, offering care rooted in trust and continuity. These doulas provide advocacy, spiritual support and culturally specific care that centers the wisdom and needs of the communities they serve," she said.

Doulas play a role in improving birth outcomes and advancing health equity. They help address inequities by providing consistent, culturally responsive support throughout the perinatal journey.

"Research shows that having a doula reduces the likelihood of cesarean births, increases breastfeeding success, and leads to better physical and emotional outcomes for parents, babies and families," Lopez-Sullivan said.

She said the workforce is not the sole focus of the grant money but supporting doulas emotionally and economically as Medicaid reimbursement becomes available for doula services in New Mexico.

New Mexico Doula Association has partnerships with organizations like Tewa Women United, the Navajo Birthworker Collective, New Mexico Breastfeeding Task Force and Breath of My Heart Birthplace to contribute to a statewide ecosystem that supports community-rooted doulas who work to ensure families with access to support.

"We envision a future where birth is safe, dignified, and rooted in community, and this funding brings us one step closer to that goal," she said.

travel positions for better pay. Although, they were short periods of time, the pay was much more than they made when staying in their hometown. But they also did not receive benefits.

"There were a number that wanted to take advantage to pay their mortgage, student loans but many of them wanted to settle down and not bounce around. Most people in life can do that but many want to have their own pillow at night so to speak," he said.

Clark said during a study done in 2016 they found that physicians that were not from New Mexico but were recruited stayed on average for four and a half years.

If a hospital recruited medical personnel from out of state, but the staff received training in New Mexico, they would stay, on average, for about seven and a half years.

"The magic was if we found a physician who grew up in New Mexico and did their residency or medical school training here. They stayed in New Mexico on average for 17 years. If you look at that magnitude, whether its nurses, physicians, etcetera, we can spend a lot of time and a lot of money to recruit people to come to our state, but they don't stay near as long," Clark said.

"If we can find those students that are from our state, we recruit them and keep them here, give them a livable wage, it's a huge benefit because they understand the culture they are in. We don't have to convince them to like New Mexico because they are already here. Programs like this help keep them local," Clark said.

The heavy burden of jury duty

WALT RUBEL
Guest Columnist

Serving on juries for two recent trials was one of the most difficult and least satisfying things I've ever done.

As a journalist working at newspapers in small communities, I was exempt from jury duty for most of my life. I knew too much about the cases and the attorneys. The city attorney of Canon City, Colorado, was the setter on our co-ed volleyball team.

I've watched a lot of TV shows and movies about juries, and have covered a lot of trials, but this was my first experience serving on a jury.

I was selected for two trials, which was a surprise. I thought being picked the first time would take me off the list for a while. But, I understand the logic. I did feel much better prepared the second time.

Both of the cases I heard involved family disputes. Neither case had physical evidence like fingerprints or DNA; or independent eye witnesses. Experts testified that injuries were "consistent with" what you would expect to find under the allegations, but none of them actually saw it happen.

And so, the deliberations in both cases were incredibly difficult. The first one went well past supper time. They were getting ready to lock up the building and send everyone home when we finally came to a decision.

The second one was even harder. We made a good-faith effort, with several hours of respectful and honest debate and discussion but could not come to a unanimous decision. The jury was hung and the judge declared a mistrial. It felt like failure.

Now, with the benefit of time and distance, I understand that we did our best. There's a good reason why the threshold for a guilty verdict is unanimity. The standard for taking away a person's liberty should be difficult to meet. Sometimes a hung jury is the right decision.

In both trials I was impressed by how seriously all of my fellow jurors took this assignment. With so little physical evidence to rely on, all of us listened carefully to the testimony, because that's all we had.

We followed the rules, respected the process and did the best we could. But about those rules ... I can't stress enough how unnatural it is to go through something like that and not talk about it with the people you are going through it with. It's just counter to every other experience in life, especially when doing something for the first time. We learn and process information by bouncing ideas off each other.

Serving on a jury felt like a heavy burden. It was the only time in my life when I have held that kind of power over another person. It's easy to ask, who am I to decide? At the same time, there is an alleged victim to consider as well. There's no way somebody doesn't leave the courthouse feeling crushed.

I struggled to make peace with the fact that we couldn't be certain. We might do our best and still make a mistake. That's hard.

Macro- vs. micro-politics

ROAD LESS TRAVELED
SHAWNA PFEIFFER
Guest Columnist

I stumbled into a number of politically charged events this week, without originally planning to. Trying to get an understanding of all the angles and all the research and all the opinions, I sometimes find instead it is all too much.

But one thing struck me: people are really concerned about national politics. And rightfully so – there is a lot going on right now that affects our everyday lives. While attending a town hall last week for U.S. Rep. Gabe Vasquez, D-CD02, I noticed our elected leaders went on and on about the president who probably couldn't find Las Cruces on a map. They seemed intent on whipping up even more derision and contempt, when what our country really needs is collaboration and calm. But that is a discussion for another day.

There is also a lot going on in our state, our county and our city that has equal, if not greater, direct impact on day-to-day. Our elected officials have the capability to fix some of the local problems that are plaguing us. But a large ship in that fleet sailed at the end of the last legislative session. Now, rumblings of a special session already abound – time will tell if it will be met with the same reluctance that tanked last year's four-hour fallacy. But many legislators last year cited the governor's proposed legislation like juvenile justice reform and criminal competency as being "half-baked" (no marijuana pun intended, I'm sure). That excuse isn't valid this year, though, after a 60-day session, numerous town halls and countless repeat offender arrests and now, a juvenile tragedy.

But no, instead, they spent their precious time (starkly less time, I might add, than the governor spent here at her town hall in July) lamenting national politics that they can't control and offering the usual hollow prom-

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Kilmar Abrego García and us

I don't see enough interest in our local media about the plight of Kilmar Abrego García, illegally deported from the US. Whether Mr. Abrego García can be deported or not is an issue that must be decided following due process. In our country that is how legal questions are handled. Litigating a case through the media has never been recognized as the proper way of handling a legal issue. Each person deserves his/her day in court to decide a legal matter. In the case of Mr. Abrego García, he is entitled to an affirmative defense, like anyone residing within the United States, regardless of whether or not the person is a citizen of our country. Defending this principle is not advocating for unregulated immigration into the US to become the norm. Quite the contrary, it is insisting that proper procedures are followed by the executive branch of our government. We do not live in an autocratic system (not yet anyway). We live in a democratic society, governed by a constitution, which must be followed always. The President of the United States cannot rule like a king. That question was settled at the end of the War of Independence, which resulted after initial faltering, on the adoption of our constitutional form of government.

If the Trump administration is allowed to prevail in this case, none of us are safe. Eventually the government can make us disappear into a foreign country, without any remedy available to us for avoiding that fate. That is what is at stake, our survival as a free democracy.

ises in response to the questions from the audience about local issues. At a 2025 Legislative recap panel last Thursday, some questions were more filtered by the moderators than others. I noticed the governor didn't sit behind a moderator last year during her town hall about public safety, but I digress.

And the attendee numbers at these events were telling as well. For example, Vasquez's town hall pulled in, by my count, 350-400 people to hear him. But during the legislative recap, the state legislators, five of them on a panel, saw only 150 or so folks there. This same trend follows the elections, too, where our voter turn-out numbers are woefully low, even for national elections but especially for local elections, even though those people have the most say in our day-today lives.

The bottom line is, I wish our elected leaders and, in fact, all of us, would look for solutions to our local problems. I don't care if they go with the common sense or the innovative solutions, but let's put our heads together and at least try to solve the local problems that we can and leave national politics to the midterm elections in 2026. We can get a lot done in 18 months before some of the Careful what you sign!

BETH BARDWELL, and RUTH JAURE
Guest Opinion

Four years ago, the City of Las Cruces began the process of creating a new development code. It hired a consulting firm, established a technical advisory committee, conducted numerous community meetings and gathered input from its residents. In a public meeting in February, the city council voted and passed the new code, Realize Las Cruces, by a wide margin.

The Coalition of Conservatives in Action (CCIA) now opposes this code and is seeking signatures to stop its implementation by placing the question on the ballot in November.

This opposition is misguided and mistaken. Realize LC does not ban or impinge on single family housing as CCIA claims. In fact, it recognizes that we have a serious housing shortage in our city and removes unneeded or burdensome regulations from the building code. This lets developers build new housing more efficiently, including single family homes, driving down costs while making the best use of the land and preserving our wide-open spaces.

Realize LC recognizes and promotes walkability in neighborhoods with less reliance on vehicles. As such, it allows for limited commercial amenities where people can come together like small grocery stores and cafes in residential developments. These businesses, however, can only be located at intersections with boulevards or avenues and are mainly intended for future development. While the businesses can be in existing neighborhoods, they must maintain the area's character and fit on the existing plot of land. The code limits the size of the business, the traffic it will create, and the disruption of the neighborhood. This means no tearing down of homes that are replaced with large grocery stores or noisy restaurants as CCIA implies.

Our city lacks reasonably priced housing options. The average cost of a home in New Mexico today is over $300,000. Realize LC addresses this problem by allowing more types of housing. For example, it allows property owners to build mother-in-law units or casitas that can be occupied by family members or rented out to others. It encourages builders to develop a wider variety of housing types like duplexes, triplexes and quadraplexes. This greater variety of housing provides starter homes for new families, and smaller homes for independent seniors who are looking to downsize. The more housing opportunities, the more reasonably priced choices residents have for finding their ideal home.

The new development code encourages redevelopment and infill within the city's interior areas, such as the El Paseo and the Picacho corridors. These sections have long been neglected and desperately need attention now. Delaying implementation of Realize LC leads to more deterioration, lost city revenues, and greater harm to existing businesses located within these areas. Our city cannot afford such a delay!

It's always important to make sure you have the whole story before you sign something. In this case it's essential. Realize Las Cruces is a big win for our entire community.

time Emmy and Screen Actors Guild Award nominations. "Harry's Law" had a two-season run on NBC in 2011-12, and it came from someone who knows the legal drama arena quite well, writer-producer David E. Kelley ("Ally McBeal," "The Practice," "Boston Legal").

Bates played Harriet "Harry" Korn, a patent attorney who was fired and decided to start her own Cincinnati firm, specializing in criminal defense. Though she used a shoe store as her base of operations initially, she relocated to a bigger office (presumably thanks to a bigger budget) in the show's second season. Nate Corddry, Brittany Snow, Aml Ameen and Karen Olivo played members of Harry's staff, with Christopher McDonald and Mark Valley also in the cast. (Valley also had worked with Kelley on "Boston Legal.")

Recurring player Paul McCrane ("ER") earned a Primetime Emmy Award for his acting work in the first season of "Harry's Law" (where he was also the director), with Jean Smart — who also has gotten her own huge acclaim lately for Max's "Hacks" — also in a recurring part as a district attorney who opposed Harry on some cases. "Harry's Law" received a Gracie Allen Award as outstanding drama in 2012, but despite a grassroots campaign to save "Harry's Law" after NBC canceled it, it didn't last beyond two years.

"Ernest Cole: Lost and Found" (April 29)

This documentary chronicles the life and work of Ernest Cole, one of the first Black freelance photographers in South Africa. His early pictures, shocking when they were first published, revealed to the world Black life under apartheid. Cole fled South Africa in 1966 and lived in exile in the US, photographing extensively in New York City and the American South. House of Bondage, his landmark book of photographs denouncing apartheid, cemented his place at age 27 as one of the great photographers of his time.

"Arrival" (Available Now)

Linguist Louise Banks (Amy Adams) leads a team of investigators when gigantic spaceships touch down around the world. As nations teeter on the verge of global war, Banks and her crew must find a way to communicate with the extraterrestrial visitors. Jeremy Renner and Forest Whitaker also star.

"The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel" (Available Now)

British retirees travel to India to take up residence in what they believe is a newly restored hotel. Less luxurious than advertised, the Marigold Hotel nevertheless slowly begins to charm in unexpected ways. Judi Dench, Maggie Smith, Bill Nighy, Tom Wilkinson, and Dev Patel star.

"Gulliver's Travels" (Available Now)

A modern adaptation loosely based on the 1726 novel by Jonathan Swift, this family-friendly adventure film stars Jack Black as Lemuel Gulliver, a hapless aspiring travel writer who is supposed to be headed to the Bermuda Triangle for an assignment. Instead, a freak storm has Gulliver wash up on the Island of Lilliput, where he towers over the island's inhabitants and is jailed for being a dangerous monster. Gulliver ends up on an adventure to save himself, his reputation and the island in a series of daring escapades.

"Chef's Table: Legends" (April 28)

Celebrating the series' 10 year anniversary, this special season pays tribute to the culinary icons who have helped shape the modern world of food. It features a lineup of legendary celebrity chefs — including Jamie Oliver, José Andrés, Thomas Keller and Alice Waters — whose influence has transcended borders and mediums to inspire generations of cooks and food lovers alike.

"Asterix & Obelix: The Big Fight" - Season 1 (April 30)

In this animated family series from France, based on the comics by René Goscinny and Albert Uderzo, Rome is desperate to conquer the last independent village in Gaul and the home of Asterix (Alain Chabat) and Obelix (Gilles Lellouche). The secret to the Gauls' battle superiority is a magic potion, but when the potion master loses his memory, the villagers are left to their own devices against the might of Rome.

"Turning Point: The Vietnam War" (April 30)

From director Brian Knappenberger, this docuseries offers an unfiltered look at one of the most defining and divisive conflicts in modern history and the profound, lasting impact it has had on America's global identity and on the lives of countless people. From the Gulf of Tonkin incident to the fall of Saigon, this thought-provoking documentary examines the cost and consequences of the Vietnam War.

"Angi: Fake Life, True Crime" (May 1)

Ana Paez was a 35-year-old fashion designer who was found dead in a tourist apartment in Barcelona on February 19, 2008, naked and with a plastic bag covering her head. How did she die? Was it a sexual crime or a sadistic game gone wrong? This was the initial hypothesis with which the police were working until Angi appeared. This documentary miniseries revisits what the media dubbed "The Almost Perfect Crime" and sheds light on the figure of Maria Angeles Molina ('Angi') and her past with her husband, Juan Antonio Alvarez Litben, who died unexpectedly in 1996.

El Paso Symphony offers up a Fabulous Finale

DEX REPORT

The El Paso Symphony Orchestra concludes its 94th anniversary season at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, April 25 and Saturday, April 26, 2025, at the Plaza Theatre, 125 W. Mills Ave, El Paso. Led by conductor Bohuslav Rattay, the “Fabulous Finale” opens with Dvořák’s “Carnival Overture.” Carnival, composed between July 28 and September 1, 1891, is lively and tender, reflecting the composer’s love of nature and his homeland.

Austrian pianist Kiron Tellian, 22, will join the El Paso Symphony Orchestra to perform Rachmaninoff’s masterpiece and technically demanding “Concerto for Piano

No. 3, op. 30, D minor.” Tellian was in El Paso in May 2024 to compete in the Borderland Chopin International Piano Competition, where he won First Prize.

Tellian is pursuing his bachelor’s degree from The Juilliard School in New York, studying with Maestro Sergei Babayan. He is a proud recipient of the prestigious Kovner Fellowship. Growing up in Vienna, Tellian began studying piano at the University of Music and Performing Arts Vienna (MDW) at the age of 7 and went on to play his debut with an orchestra at the age of 9. Tellian won numerous first prizes at national and international competitions for piano, chamber music, and composition in Austria, France, Germany, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Italy, Slovakia, Russia, England, the USA, and Japan.

The season finale concludes with a tantalizing story of the love triangle between three puppets and their desire to become flesh and blood in Stravinsky’s Petrushka.

Petrushka fuses music, ballet, and history and features many Russian and folk elements that represent Stravinsky’s background.

“If Petrushka were a person, it’d be that friend who shows up uninvited, spills wine on your carpet and then leaves you with a profound life lesson you didn’t ask for,” said Rattay. “The score itself is a riot—Stravinsky basically said, ‘Let’s take every musical rule, set it on fire, and see what happens.’ You’ve got clashing rhythms, wild tempo changes, and instruments that sound like they’re arguing with each other.

“Stravinsky didn’t just compose music; he threw a party and dared everyone to keep up,” Rattay continued. “The ballet’s mix of folklore, farce, and sheer musical madness makes it a classic, even if it leaves you wondering whether to laugh, cry, or applaud the sheer audacity of it all.”

For those wishing to learn more about the program, composers and artists, Nathan Black will present Opening Notes at 6:30 p.m. before each performance in the Philanthropy Theatre, next door.

Tickets are $49, $44, $37, $23 and $17 plus fees. Student tickets are available for $9 and $12 plus fees. They can be purchased through ticketmaster.com, the Plaza Theatre Box Office, or by phone at 915-532-3776.

NMSU's Research and Creativity Week finds inspiration

NMSU REPORT

New Mexico State University is currently celebrating its newly achieved Carnegie R1 institution status during its annual Research and Creativity Week, which kicked off Wednesday, April 23 and runs through Tuesday, April 29. More than 500 people are expected to participate in this year's events and activities, which offer an increased focus on the arts and celebrating the contributions of undergraduate, graduate and post-graduate researchers, all organized around the main theme of Ascent to R1.

"Becoming a Carnegie R1 institution is an achievement worthy of a weeklong celebration," said Luis Cifuentes, NMSU vice president of research, creativity and economic development. "This transformational moment in NMSU's history belongs to the faculty, students, and staff whose creativity, scholarship and dedication made it possible. Let's honor their work, and our collective future, together."

"RCW 2025 provides numerous opportunities for members of the public to explore the research and creativity being conducted by NMSU researchers that has implications for the wider society and offers the public the chance to engage with researchers about their work," said Aubrey Iglesias, NMSU University Research Council chair and associate professor at the NMSU Library.

Among the highlights of the past week were Talitha Washington's keynote presentation, "Empowering the Next Generation to Drive Research and Innovation," hosted by the NMSU Office of Research, Creativity and Economic Development and NMSU Black Programs. Keynote speaker Ramona Emerson, a Diné writer and filmmaker, also spoke on Wednesday, April 23.

Next up at 11:30 a.m., Friday, April 25, is a panel discussion moderated by Cifuentes, titled "Ascent to R1: Which Path Will

We Take?," which will feature NMSU interim Provost Lakshmi Reddi; Chemical and Materials Engineering Professor Jessica Houston; Plant and Environmental Sciences Professor Niall Hanan; Elizabeth Horodowich, head of the Department of History; Michael Hout, associate dean for research in the College of Health, Education and Social Transformation; and NMSU Ph.D. student Samantha Escamilla.

Student research is also a large part of RCW. This year, 235 undergraduate students are scheduled to present at the Undergraduate Research and Creative Arts Symposium on Friday, April 25. About 130 graduate students presented their research at the Graduate Research and Arts Symposium on Thursday, April 24. Prizes will be awarded to the best presentations in each category. The awards ceremony will take place from 3 to 4:30 p.m. April 28 at Pete's Patio, in Corbett Center Student Union.

Other events still to come on Friday are the opening of the MFA Thesis Exhibition "Stone, Glass, Light, Silk" from 5-6 p.m. at the University Art Museum featuring the work of Alfred Gyasi, Elham Sabri, Johanna Typaldos, and William Morée. This exhibition showcases the culmination of their research and artistic development at New Mexico State University (NMSU), and highlights a diverse range of materials and media, from ceramic and fabric to photography and jewelry.

Taking place at the same time will be the 2025 Bachelor of Fine Arts Thesis Exhibition "ROOTED," featuring thesis work from 10 graduating students: Kayla Blundell, Matthew Cota, Citlali Delgado, Jennell Juarez, Sabrina Martinez, Lei Maslian, Jessica Mercado, Savannah Perez, Jade Rubio and Yalet Yanar. The work on display will reflect a range of personal, cultural and scientific explorations.

Continuing the arts portion of the event on Friday evening, the NMSU Wind Symphony, under the direction of Dr. Michael W. Mapp, will present "Landscapes," featuring works by Li Chan, Joni Greene, and Paul Hindemith, at 7:30 p.m. at Atkinson Recital Hall. Or attendees can take in the uplifting musical "The Prom" at 7:30 p.m. at the NMSU Center for the Arts.

Monday April 28 features Bertha A. Bermúdez Tapia, an assistant professor of sociology at NMSU, who will lead a faculty plenary, "Devolution by Design: The Dismantling of Asylum and the Normalization of Violence at the U.S.-Mexico Border," from noon to 1 p.m. in the Doña Ana Room of the Corbett Center Student Union. Bermúdez Tapia's research focuses on the impacts of state power on migrant and border lives, and the reproduction of violence, especially on the U.S.-Mexico border.

On Tuesday, April 29, Dr. Hermann Lebitt, founder of Alma Energy will lead a discussion on Geothermal Energy, from 4-5 p.m. at Gardiner Hall. Then at 5 p.m. the MFA Creative Writing students will give a literary recitation at Icebox Brewing-Locus Brewhouse, 2260 Locust St.

Casa for a Cause celebrates 10-year anniversary

MIKE COOK

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

New Mexico Construction Alliance handed out donation checks totaling $235,000 to 32 local nonprofits at an awards ceremony at the Las Cruces Convention Center and announced the lead builder for 2025 will be Monarch Homes.

An additional $37,000 in donations is expected in donations,

NMCA Executive Director Nicole Black told the Bulletin. That amount will also be allocated to nonprofits in the area.

Since Casa for a Cause began a decade ago, NMCA (previously known as Las Cruces Home Builders Association) has donated more than $800,000 to area nonprofits.

Since 2019, NMCA has also awarded funds to an endowed scholarship that benefits a stu-

Hakes Brothers was founded in Las Cruces in 2006 by Kimble, Josh and Chris Hakes and has expanded to Albuquerque, El Paso, San Antonio and Kansas City. Hakes Brothers came up with the idea for Casa for a Cause and built the first one in 2014. They have raised $64,000 for local nonprofits. Hakes Brothers also built the 2024 house, which generated $272,000. Visit hakesbrothers.com.

Desert View Homes is owned by Randy O'Leary, who launched the business in El Paso in 1990 and expanded it to Las Cruces in 2000. He also founded Aspen View Homes in Colorado and Horizon View Homes in San Antonio. Desert View Homes built the 2019 Anniversary House/Casa for a Cause, the sale of which raised $125,000 for local nonprofits.

In 2012, he sold the business to Jason and Julia Lorenz, who were both born and raised in New Mexico. Veloz Homes built the 2015 Anniversary House (Casa for a Cause). The sale of that house generated $82,000 in donations to local nonprofits. Visit velozhomes.com.

French Brothers

Tom and Jim French formed French Brothers in 1994. Since 2014, French Brothers has maintained offices in Las Cruces, Alamogordo, Artesia and Roswell. French Brothers has received two National Housing Quality awards and was named 2006 New Mexico Home Builders Association best overall builder. French Brothers built the 2023 Casa for a Cause, the sale of which generated $135,000 for local nonprofits. Visit frenchbrothers.com.

needed to do,” Molina said. “We’re competing with ourselves to build a better home every time we build a home. And not just better homes. I’m building a better version of myself every day and helping to build better communities and better futures.”

Hakes Brothers home builders of Las Cruces was project manager for the first Casa for a Cause, then called Anniversary House because it was part of NMCA’s 55th anniversary celebration in 2014. Seven houses have been built since as part of the project in the past decade.

Brothers Kimble, Josh and Chris Hakes took the lead a second time in building the 2024 Casa for a Cause, joined by nearly 30 other Las Cruces businesses that contributed materials and/or labor to the project. NMCA donated the profit on the sale of the 2024 house to nonprofits like Mesilla Valley Search and Rescue, Gospel Rescue Mission, El Caldito Soup Kitchen, Mesilla Valley Hospice, Rio Grande Honor Flight and others, most of whom attended the April 17 dinner to accept their donations.

“As long as we’re building homes, people are working and the community is thriving,” Mayor Eric Enriquez said at the Thursday night dinner, which was Casa for a Cause’s 10-year anniversary celebration. “You all just keep giving, and it’s very much appreciated.”

Troy Mitchell, NMCA board president, estimated the work to build a house requires 5,680 hours, from getting a bank loan to construction to final inspection. Mitchell owns Envision Development & Construction.

“There’s one thing we all have in common – it’s our caring heart,” Mitchell said.

Black praised the local industry.

“There’s no one in New Mexico who does a project like this except Las Cruces home builders,” Black said. “NMCA is a nonprofit giving back to other local nonprofits.”

The local contractor and supplier who built the 2024 Casa for a Cause house, Kimble Hakes, said he feels “so blessed by this community.”

“That is where the applause belongs,” he said at the anniversary celebration.

Hakes said the original idea for Casa for a Cause, ten years ago, came from an out-of-state home builders association.

“We thought we could try it in Las Cruces,” Hakes said. “That was 2014. We never imagined that it would turn into an almost annual tradition and that it would have raised so much money in the last ten years. Las Cruces is a great community for homebuilding, and Casa for a Cause is one way we can give back. It is amazing the impact the building industry can have when we unite in a common cause.”

The new lead home builder, Luis Molina, is a Las Cruces native and part of NMCA’s annual Build My Future program, which brought together more than 1,500 high school students from Las Cruces and throughout southern New Mexico last October to gain hands-on-experience working with local builders and tradesmen.

Molina said he will continue to “look at other ways to bring some of the knowledge and experience I have as a builder to our children, our next generation of contractors and trades.”

Molina began work in the construction industry as a framer at age 18 and now has 25 years’ experience in the industry. He started Monarch Homes four years ago, and before that worked for Hakes Brothers for about five years.

“I see Kimble Hakes as a big inspiration for what I do,” Molina said. “Grabbing the torch” from Hakes Brothers is one of the reasons he decided Monarch Homes should take the lead on the Casa for a Cause construction project in 2025.

Jerimiah Gomez, who bought the 2024 Casa for a Cause house, was at the celebration to help hand out donation checks.

“You started a wonderful thing,” Gomez said.

Angela Garcia: A businesswoman who started life in poverty

MIKE COOK

For the Las Cruces Bulletin

Las Cruces businesswoman Angela Garcia's family built a successful business around helping young children learn and grow.

But life for Garcia didn't start out easy.

Garcia, 37, grew up not in Las Cruces but in a neighborhood in downtown Albuquerque she calls "a war zone." She was a product of generational poverty.

"I've been there," she said. "I know how bad it can be."

But she attributes her success to her parents. Garcia said her parents decided to change the narrative by moving to Las Cruces to open a business in 2001. Garcia's parents became the first business owners in their family when her mother opened a daycare called the Toy Box Early Learning and Childcare Center.

"I saw her fall in love with early childhood and the impact she had in supporting families,"

Garcia said.

Garcia's father also opened a new business by obtaining a commercial driver's license. This enabled him to become a courier and deliver lab work and equipment for pharmacies and hospitals across the state.

"Watching what my parents did changed my future," Garcia said. "They made a whole lot of something out of nothing. They gave me the opportunity."

Garcia was the first in her family to earn a college degree. She then became chief executive officer of the Toy Box in 2010 and expanded the business by opening Toy Box Too at 2551 Sonora Springs Blvd., in 2019. She said the business has continued to grow and she now has more than 300 clients and 80 employees.

"If you have happy children, you have happy families, and then the village is taken care of," she said.

Garcia, who is a single mother of two, said that is why it is so important to "center our community around our children."

Garcia is also passionate about giving back to the community. She started a nonprofit advocacy group called Full Circle which advocates for early childhood education and childhood well-being. She has served on a steering committee called the Early Learning Nation Collective, which advocates for equitable access to early learning opportunities. She has advocated at the Roundhouse in Santa Fe for the importance of early childhood education and for a state-level trust fund to provide funding for early childhood education into the future.

"We are an amazing state," said Garcia. "We have so much other places don't have. We're all going to have to lean into each other to create an early childhood community, state and nation. It will fix everything."

Tour of the Gila kicks off

STAGE RACE ATTRACTS 32 TEAMS FROM ACROSS THE GLOBE

BULLETIN REPORT

The Tour of the Gila kicks off its 38th year with 20 men's teams and 12 women's teams participating in the UCI-sanctioned races at this year's five-day bicycling stage race.

The Tour of the Gila started Wednesday, April 23 and runs through Sunday, April 27. Tour of the Gila 2025 provides amateur competitors and recreational cyclists a chance to race on the same courses and on the same days as the pros on the teams. The road bicycling stage race is based out of Silver City.

Since 1987, Tour of the Gila has become renowned worldwide for notoriously challenging courses. Over five days, athletes follow routes leading from the town's colorful streets, through the region's rich history, and along the edges of the nation's first designated wilderness.

Sanctioned by both the global and national governing bodies of cycling, Tour of the Gila provides a rare opportunity for amateur competitive cyclists to compete on the same courses (and on the same days) as the pros.

The men's field will include six UCI (Union Cycliste Internationale) teams, four club teams, and 10 domestic elite teams. The women's field will include a mixed UCI team, seven club teams and four domestic elite teams.

"With such a strong showing of teams from across the world, Tour of the Gila 2025 is sure to be an exciting one to follow. Both of these fields are looking super competitive," says Tour of the Gila Race Director Jack Brennan. "With no teams, you have no races. These teams will bring top talent to New Mexico."

Team Medellín, the Colombian UCI Continental cycling team that dominated the 2024 men's team competition at Tour of the Gila, returns in 2025. As does the 2024 team runner-up Project Echelon. Fount Cycling Guild, which placed second in the 2024 women's team competition at Tour of the Gila, also returns in 2025.

The UCI mixed women's team, Aegis Cycling, will be headlined by 2024 Tour of the Gila winner Lauren Stephens. She is able to defend her win with the support of local businessperson Jon Saari, who set out after the 2023 edition of Tour of the Gila to create a team run by and for women, and also thanks to the generosity of Doug Campbell of the Leaders of Enchantment podcast, which is the Tour of the Gila 2025 media partner.

"My goal is to support women's sports," Saari says, "and cycling is a sport my family shares a passion for. Having volunteered with Tour of the Gila over the years, I was proud to co-sponsor a mixed team last year and am pleased to again bring more female athletes to compete here in my own community."

Campbell also contributed to support the foreign teams, which add to the quality of competition athletes enjoy at the New Mexico stage race annually. Seven men's teams hail from outside the United States, as do five women's teams. From Mexico, Canada, Colombia, and Great Britain, teams will strive to help their riders earn UCI points that factor into national team selections for the Los Angeles 2028 Olympics.

"Bringing in talent from across the world is nothing new to Tour of the Gila, which has a long history of attracting international athletes," Campbell says. "As one of only a couple UCI stage races in the Americas, it's more important now than ever."

One for the ages: Reflections on the 89th Masters

THE GOLF DOCTOR
CHARLIE BLANCHARD
Guest Columnist

Golf's first major of the year is in the books and what a roller coaster ride it was. It had everything: returning champions, sentimental favorites, PGA Tour players alongside LIV golfers, seniors playing their last, drama, excitement, surprises. You would never know Augusta National Golf Club had been battered by hurricane Helene that ravaged the southeast in 2024; it was as pristine and perfect as it ever was, complete with lightning-fast greens. It truly is a "cathedral."

Through the early rounds the cream rose to the top, with Justin Rose leading after day one. The story line for the week was the opportunity for Rory McIlroy (no. 2 in the world) to win the Masters and thereby secure his status of winning professional golf's "Grand Slam" of all four majors: Masters, PGA Championship, U.S. Open and the Open Championship. The only players to have won the Grand Slam are Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Gary Player, Jack Nicklaus and Tiger Woods. McIlroy, 35, has played in 17 Masters. In 2011 he was leading by four shots after 54 holes, but a blow-up on the final nine holes, leading to an 8 over par 80 sunk his chances at the slam. He had won four majors early in his career, prompting Jack Nicklaus to remark that he may win "15 or 20 majors" before he is through. But he has not won a major in 11 years. Every year at the Masters the pressure on Rory has been steadily mounting.

After shooting a disappointing even-par 72 in his first round on Thursday, putting him 7 back of leader Justin Rose, Rory battled back shooting 6 under 66 on Friday, and another 66 on Saturday for a total of -12, and making him the leader by two for the final round. Two off the pace at -10 was Bryson DeChambeau, setting up a made-for-TV grudge match for Sunday between two heavy hitters. It was DeChambeau who "stole" the U.S. Open Championship from McIlroy in 2024 at Pinehurst by making a spectacular "up-and-down" for par on the 72nd hole with a stunning 50 yard bunker shot to 4 feet.

The final round on Sunday seemed a dream marquee match-up.

But it started out as a nightmare for Rory, as he made a double bogey on no. 1, losing his lead in just 10 minutes. By the end, both players were tied and headed back to 18 for sudden death. Rory placed his drive almost in the divot of his first drive, for a 125 yd. gap wedge. Rosie hit a nice approach to 17 feet above the hole, then Rory hit a spinner above the hole and down to 3 feet. Rosie missed. I'm sure Rory's nerves were running rampant through his body and his head as he stepped up to the putt, but he steadied himself and calmly made it for the win. He then dropped down to his knees and his head on the ground and bawled his eyes out in joy and relief. For Rory's five hours of Masters history on Sunday afternoon you'd think Hollywood had written the script. But the kid from Hollywood, Northern Ireland did. Good on ya, Rory.
