Ponte Vedra Recorder committed to keeping you informed with free weekly newsletter, E-edition

By Don Coble

Information on COVID-19 has become so critically important, it's difficult not to be overwhelmed.

Our beaches are closed. So are the bars, restaurants and hotels. Restaurants are limited to takeout and delivery menus.

At the same time, the number of our neighbors being infected continue to grow. Sadly, so will the death rate.

The Ponte Vedra Recorder will be there to keep you informed of the coronavirus, as well as the good stories that comes when a community rises above the threat and works together for the common good — all while practicing social distancing.

The need for responsible reporting at the local level has never been more important. While we won't feel the ramifications of the staggering numbers being reported in China, Italy and Spain, we feel the impact of everything that happens in our own neighborhoods.

Local newspapers like the Ponte Vedra Recorder is where you learn about your tax rates, schools and churches. It's where you read about your neighbors. It's where you find the tools and resources that lifts a community. It's where you find out if your favorite team won or lost its last game.

Beaches closed out of concern for COVID-19, growing traffic

By Don Coble

Members of the Jacksonville Sheriff's Office no longer will have to draw a line in the sand at the St. Johns County line to keep beachgoers away from their shoreline.

Officials in St. Johns yielded to mounting pressure from local residents and health officials late last Saturday by closing its 42 miles of beaches as a response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

That means Duval's sheriff's office no longer will have to set up a wall to keep thousands of beachgoers from St. Johns County from spilling onto the Duval County beaches.

"We have taken as many measures as possible up to this point to preserve our residents' ability to access their beach. Unfortunately, those visiting the beach continue to ignore CDC guidelines regarding crowd size and personal distancing. In order to maintain public safety and respect the State of Florida's Executive Order, we had no choice but to close the coastline to public access today," said Hunter S. Conrad, St. Johns County Administrator. "We will continue to be methodical in our approach to closings related to COVID-19, and like every decision we have made to this point, we will open the beaches at the appropriate time when it is safe to do so."

The determination to close all public beaches was based upon a recommendation to reduce health risks associated with

People line up at the intersection of A1A and Mickler Road heading toward Mickler's Landing Beach last weekend. The crowds in the area prompted St. Johns County to close the beaches.

COVID-19 and beach overcrowding by the St. Johns County Sheriff's Office, the St. Augustine Beach Police Department, the City of St. Augustine, the City of St. Augustine Beach, St. Johns County Emergency Management and local health officials.

Scott Beaver, the commander for the St. Johns County Sheriff's Office in the Ponte

Vedra Beach area, said another factor was the growing risks posed by the crowds and traffic.

"One they were on the beach, most of them practiced social distancing," Beaver said. "The problem was off the beach. We had people parking in streets and in yards, everywhere. People have been cooped up for a couple weeks and they're excited.

We just could risk anyone getting hurt."

Beaches will remain closed until further notice. Beaches to the north in Duval and Nassau counties were closed two weeks ago, as were the beaches to the south in Flagler County.

The closure will bring relief to many local residents, especially around Mickler's Landing, where hundreds of beachgoers crammed the side streets and parking lots on A1A.

The manager of Mickler's Landing plaza was forced to protect many of the parking spaces in his lot for his tenants on Saturday. The few extra spaces in the lot were rented for $10 each.

"It wasn't about the money. We wanted to control who comes onto our property," the manager said. "The county kept the beaches open and closed the parking lots [last Sunday]. They made property owners deal with the mess."

The Mickler's Landing plaza is adjoined to the SJCO substation. Beaver said his parking lot also was filled by beachgoers.

Cars were parked on the west side of A1A for miles between Mickler's Landing and Vilano Beach Saturday afternoon, forcing beachgoers to cut between homes and make paths through the dunes to get to the beach.

All boat ramps, parks, green spaces and trails remain open for the public to safely enjoy, the county said. For more information, call the St. Johns County Emergency Management hotline at (904) 824-5550.

COVID-19 TESTING SITES FOR ST. JOHNS COUNTY RESIDENTS

FLAGLER HEALTH+

Flagler Health+ has established an outdoor test collection site for patients who have a physician order for COVID-19 testing and have pre-registered through the system. The drive through process takes about 3 minutes. Test results are taking at least 4-5 days on average. Tests results are communicated back to the patient's primary care doctor who notifies the patient of the results. Positive results are also reported to the Department of Health.

Flagler Health+ is also offering a reduced rate of $25 for people to see a doctor online who may not have a primary care doctor. The online doctor will determine if they need to be tested or not based on their symptoms and an algorithm. The online doctor can also prescribe medications for certain other diagnoses. For additional information, visit www.flaglerhospital.org.

ST. JOHNS COUNTY DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

The Florida Department of Health in St. Johns County, as part of disease control investigations, is collecting specimens for COVID-19 laboratory testing. # More than $2 million pledged to Northeast Florida COVID-19 relief

In the midst of a historic public health crisis, Northeast Florida donors have pledged more than $2 million to Florida's First Coast Relief Fund to support immediate needs caused by COVID-19 disruption.

To help those most affected by COVID-19 disruption, The Community Foundation for Northeast Florida, Jessie Ball duPont Fund, Jewish Federation and Foundation of Northeast Florida, United Way of Northeast Florida and United Way of St. Johns County re-activated Florida's First Coast Relief Fund.

"I don't know where to turn now that my hours have been reduced to nothing," said a local mother of four children who was seeking help from a Relief Fund grantee. "I don't know how we are going to make it."

For so many families who are now facing unemployment, reduced hours at work, lost wages and tips, mounting bills to pay and scarcity of everyday resources, the Relief Fund is serving as a critical safety net. Families who were already at the tipping point before the pandemic are now living in survival mode. The assistance they receive through the Relief Fund helps them stay housed and buy food.

Twelve nonprofits in Duval, St. Johns and Nassau counties already received a total of $405,000 to provide relief and resources to families throughout the region and the agencies that serve them. The first round of grants focused

As told to Don Coble

What are your first memories of auto racing?

I've been a motorsports fan since a time when I could remember. I grew up in Canton, Ohio. The only motorsports I had been exposed to was at that point and time was the Indianapolis 500. It was always shown on tape delay on television. And there was a Canton Motor Speedway, which is a little tiny short track. It's no longer there. It's a gravel pit. The track was located less than a mile from my house. I never got to go to that racetrack, but I would always fall asleep on Friday and Saturday nights hearing the roar of the engines. And I was hooked.

How were you introduced to NASCAR?

I was watching an episode of the "Dukes of Hazzard," of all things, and Cale Yarborough was the special guest star. The Duke boys got themselves involved with Cale Yarborough and that was my first exposure to NASCAR.

How did your journalism career start?

I quit college after six months because my ex-wife was pregnant. I needed to get a real job. I took a job working at the local sewage plant in Fredericktown, Ohio. We had two kids 13 months apart, so I had to get a second job to support the family. I got a part-time working the sports department at the Mount Vernon News. They were looking for somebody to answer the phone in sports and write recaps of Little League baseball games. I got off the sewage plant at 3:30 (p.m.), and be down at the newspaper by 5:30-6 o'clock. I answered the phones and wrote all these one-inch recaps on local sports. After about a week of doing that, the sports editor asked if I had any interest in covering a football game and writing the story. I did both jobs, the newspaper and the sewage plant, for about three years. I volunteered to cover anything and everything, and that included motorsports. There was a local dragstrip in town called Pacemakers Raceway Park. There also was Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course right up the road, about a half-hour away. I volunteered my time to cover those events.

Why did you pick journalism?

I got sick at the sewage plant — literally sick. I wound up at the newspaper in St. Joseph, Missouri, and created an early friendship with Jimmie Johnson, who went on to win seven NASCAR championships.

How did that happen?

While I was at the New Press (in St. Joseph, Missouri, out there in early 2000, David Bradley, who was the publisher, was best friends with Stan and Randy Herzog of Herzog Motorsports, the No. 92 car in the Busch Series. They had a guy driving who nobody had ever heard of — a guy named Johnson. As a favor to the Herzogs, the publisher asked me to do a story on this guy before and after all the Busch Series races. That led to me starting a motorsports page. I had to write it, design it and edit it. My design work got me to the Orlando Sentinel. What drew me to Orlando was the Daytona International Speedway was in the backyard.

And that got you to NASCAR?

In 2011, they had the Roar Before the 24 (test session ahead of the Rolex 24 at Daytona). Jimmie Johnson was testing a sports car. He was doing a press conference. I was experimenting with live streaming content to our website, orlandosentinel.com. I streamed the Jimmie Johnson press conference live back to the Orlando Sentinel. Stu Odom, who was running the sports services team with NASCAR, saw what I was doing. He asked if I'd be interested in applying for an opening in NASCARmedia.com.

Do you have a favorite race?

Without a doubt. It was the 50th running (in 2012) of the Rolex 24. That's the day I met my wife Kristin. I had one job that day: a woman was coming in to do transcripts. My one job was to keep her happy. I took those instructions to heart. I'm still doing that.

St. John Paul II Catholic Church priest offers airborne Benediction

In an hour of divine mercy, Father Richard Pagano of St John Paul II Catholic Church in Nocatee, accompanied by St Augustine Police Department Chief Robert Hardwick, flew over a portion of St Johns and Duval counties on Friday, March 27, offering Benediction with the Blessed Sacrament and prayer for all residents, workers, health professionals, first responders, and those who put themselves in harm's way to serve our basic needs during these challenging times of the coronavirus pandemic.

Father Pagano asked people to join him today in prayer and solidarity for the end to the coronavirus pandemic and for healing to all those who have been affected.

The service was conducted from a helicopter from the Northeast Florida Regional Airport in St. Augustine.

Father Pagano said this is a great opportunity for "Church and government to unite in leadership to be able to pray, especially for the welfare of all of our people that we serve in our local area."

He referenced Pope Francis' reflection today during the Urbi et Orbi blessing, sharing, "when Jesus fell asleep in the boat and His disciples

Local fitness center offers live training during quarantine

By Amber Lake

Practicing social distancing doesn't necessarily mean finishing off a can of Salt and Vinegar Pringles while binge watching Netflix by yourself.

It does seem, however, that isolation and lethargy make comfortable bedfellows - or perhaps "couch-fellows" depending on your level of commitment to even making it out of bed.

Enter Jimmy Mullaney, trainer at Burn Boot Camp in the Nocatee Town Center. Mullaney said he doesn't believe social isolation has to be involve an entire pint of Ben and Jerry's. In fact, eating well and exercising can be done from home, easily and with accountability, thanks to Burn Boot Camp's daily dose of fitness via Facebook.

Mullaney has continued training (sans open facility) through the gym's live, online workouts and over-the-phone nutritional counseling.

Burn Boot Camp, which opened only a few months prior to the pandemic, decided that instead of calling it quits, they were going to do their best to keep the community fit and COVID-19 free.

"(Business) was going really well," Mullaney said. "(We thought) we can just shut down and suspend everyone's memberships and just wait it out or we can try to keep the momentum going."

The regular live workouts are posted twice a day, with weekly "challenges," like drinking half-gallon of water or eating three serving of vegetables a day. Members are encouraged to post selfies after workouts and challenges to keep up motivation for themselves and other group members. Additionally, for those that aren't previous Burn Boot Camp members, the organization offers a free, two-week trial.

"We found that it's kind of ironic that all the gyms are closed down and that people now need gyms more than ever," Mullaney said. "We were running with that idea and we've always done a free 14-day trial. We wanted to open that up to all the residents of St. Johns and Duval counties. We figured it the least we can do because the community has been great to us so far."

Mullaney said that in addition to the live workouts and interactive videos, the Facebook page offers special kid-centric workouts two-three times a week for parents in need of some "P.E." time while home-schooling.

"It gets the whole family involved and the feedback has been awesome," Mullaney said.

feared for their lives,” they were able to experience “the peace that comes from prayer, from being in the company of Jesus.”

Father Pagano wanted each of us to feel that same peace today as he blessed our neighborhoods. He asked us to “join in prayer and to really enter into the peaceful company of the Lord. When we are with Him, we are with the Author of Life, we’re secured in peace... that peace is so important for everybody right now.”

Chief Hardwick expressed how blessed and privileged he felt for having the opportunity to participate in this experience with his long-time friend, Father Pagano.

“We are St Johns County strong and we will get through this ...,” Hardwick said.

“We are going to get through this together and we are going to get through this in prayer,” Father Pagano said.

COA extends program closures through April 30

With the health and well-being of St. Johns County seniors as its top priority, St. Johns County Council on Aging has extended its recent program closures until April 30.

All COA senior centers in St. Johns County (Coastal Community Center, River House, Hastings, Trout Creek and THE PLAYERS Community Senior Centers in Ponte Vedra), all Integrative Memory Enhancement Program classes and the Sunshine Center adult day care facility will remain closed until April 30.

While these services will be closed, Meals on Wheels will continue to be delivered, and COA caseworkers and staff will continue to be available by phone and email. Seniors and caregivers in need of COA's assistance are encouraged to call (904) 209-3700 Monday through Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., email at info@coasjc.org or visit www.coasjc.org.

Sunshine public buses and paratransit buses will continue to operate with additional safety measures recommended by the CDC in place to help prevent the spread of COVID-19.

COA will continue to post updates via Facebook at www.facebook.com/coasjc/, via Instagram at www.instagram.com/councilonagingsjc/ and via the COA weekly e-newsletter. To sign up to receive the e-newsletter, visit www.coasjc.org.

"Now more than ever, we are relying upon the community's help to be there for the seniors in our community," COA Executive Director Becky Yanni said. "The best way to help right now is with monetary donations so that we can adjust to rapidly changing needs during this crisis."

KATHY'S GARDENING GUIDE

"Never underestimate the healing power of a quiet moment in the garden."

CLIMBING FLOWERS AND PLANTS

As many people are staying home these days, gardening can be a relaxing home improvement to spend your time. Climbing plants can give your yard an organic and inviting feel and add beautiful ambience.

Here are some of the beautiful climbers we carry at the Nursery:

Allamanda: Fastest growing vine with bright yellow blooms. Great vine to have around a patio or pool but be careful, their seeds are poisonous to humans and animals.

Bougainvillea: This vine is a tropical plant that loves Florida heat and requires full sun to create such vibrant blooms. They will bloom most of the year right up until Winter in our zone and climbs quickly!

Bleeding heart: Another tropical vine that thrives with full shade or morning sun. This vine has dark green leaves and clusters of red and white flowers that can be pruned into the shape of your choice.

Carolina jasmine: This vine has a fragrant, yellow bloom and can grow to 25 feet. It blooms in late winter/early spring and thrives in this zone, as long as we don't have a harsh winter.

Mandevilla: Loves the Florida heat, but needs some shade in the hottest part of the day. Also an easy grower, this vine comes in a variety of bright colors.

Confederate jasmine: Easy grower in partial to full sun. They grow to be at least 6 feet long and bloom a small white flower each May.

Passion vine: This vine created a 3D flower in purple that butterflies love! It can grow in full sun or partial shade and up to 25 feet tall.

Relief

on immediate needs of shelters and those providing emergency food and financial assistance.

The recipients include: Barnabas Center, BEAM (Beaches Emergency Assistance Ministry), Catholic Charities (Jacksonville), Catholic Charities (St. Augustine), City Rescue Mission, Clara White Mission, ElderSource, Feeding Northeast Florida, Jewish Family & Community Services, St. Francis House, Sulzbacher and Trinity Rescue Mission.

"Trinity Rescue Mission has seen donations and other revenue streams to be very vulnerable right now," said Gary Judd, the Jacksonville shelter's executive director. "The coronavirus has put an incredible stress on the homeless community and on those who help to serve them. We have seen increased direct expenses, including staffing, transportation, food cost and supplies. Florida's First Coast Relief Fund has allowed us to continue to operate and those who are most vulnerable in the city to be cared for during times of uncertainty."

With support from the Relief Fund, Trinity Rescue Mission has been able to increase its services, including isolating its most vulnerable population at a separate location; take extra recommended steps to help the homeless, including social distancing and hygiene; and actively collaborated with other providers across the city to meet overall community needs.

"This is exactly what Florida's First Coast Relief Fund is designed to do – it ensures Northeast Florida nonprofits can continue their critically important work helping our most vulnerable populations in this time of increased need," said Mari Kuraishi, president of the Jessie Ball duPont Fund. "We're grateful for the support of so many individuals, businesses and foundations who are helping shore up the resources available to those in our community who need them most."

The Fund was able to deploy these much-needed grants due to the generous and immediate support from local foundations, corporations and individual donors. The Jessie Ball duPont Fund trustees pledged $500,000 to support the Relief Fund, the largest single gift to date for COVID-19 relief.

Major funders who have committed to the Relief Fund for COVID-19 thus far include:

- Jessie Ball duPont Fund: $500,000
- Shad Khan of the Jacksonville Jaguars: $400,000
- Jim Moran Foundation: $250,000
- Weaver Family Foundation Fund: $250,000
- Lucy Gooding Charitable Trust: $150,000
- The Community Foundation for Northeast Florida: $100,000
- GuideWell/Florida Blue: $100,000
- Riverside Hospital Foundation: $50,000
- Zimmerman Family Foundation: $50,000
- Wells Fargo: $40,000
- DuBow Family Foundation: $25,000
- Robert and Margaret Hill: $25,000
- Jewish Federation and Foundation of Northeast Florida: $25,000
- VyStar Credit Union: $25,000
- Anonymous: $25,000

More than 50 additional donors have made generous gifts totaling $44,000.

"We live in an incredibly generous community, and in times of crisis like these, it truly shines," said Nina Waters, president of The Community Foundation for Northeast Florida. "Because of our community's generosity, the nonprofit sector is bolstered and individuals will get the help they need. Florida's First Coast Relief Fund partners are deeply grateful for the dollars raised thus far, and we urge others to step up to join us in this important effort."

The needs are growing, and the calls for help are increasing. Nonprofit organizations can now apply for funding from the Relief Fund, and applications are being accepted online. Organizations can apply for help in the following categories:

- Food assistance, non-food items and supplies for agency and low-income individuals and families who are food insecure due to job losses, school closings, etc.

- Short-term housing assistance to support shelters to safely distance residents and prevent the spread of COVID-19
- Financial assistance for individuals and families impacted by the crisis to help meet their basic household needs
- Child-care support for first responders and other frontline staff working to prevent the spread of the virus
- Medical, safety supplies and equipment for community-based service providers as they carry out essential community services
- Technology support for nonprofits to enable remote work and continued delivery of services

As with past relief efforts, the Relief Fund will be overseen by a grants committee and administered by United Way of Northeast Florida with 100 percent of donations going to nonprofit agencies.

"I want to say thank you to every group or individual who is personally stepping up for the people of Jacksonville during these uncertain times," said Shad Khan, owner of the Jacksonville Jaguars, in a press release Tuesday. "It's my privilege to help."

Again, 100% of Florida's First Coast

Relief Fund dollars will benefit local COVID-19 relief efforts. They will be granted to organizations providing direct services to individuals impacted by COVID-19 in Baker, Clay, Duval, Nassau, Putnam and St. Johns counties. The fund will provide resources to meet needs not met by government programs.

Florida's First Coast Relief Fund will remain open until needs stabilize and while funding is available. Applications are now open for nonprofits to apply for funding. To learn more, give or apply, visit unitedwaynefl.org/COVID19response.

Area hospice patients receive love letters from therapy pets

Due to the coronavirus pandemic, Community Hospice & Palliative Care's Pet Therapy pets are unable to make visits to patients and their families. These compassionate dogs and cats travel to see patients in Baker, Clay, Duval, Nassau St. Johns, Alachua, Bradford, Columbia, Dixie, Gilchrist, Hamilton, Lafayette, Levy, Putnam, Suwannee and Union counties.

"We felt a card mailed out along with a collage of photos of the patient's therapy pet would cheer them up during this time," volunteer coordinator Chris Whitney said. "It is essential for our patients to know that the Pet Therapy team is thinking of them as well as miss them."

Pet therapy is yet another way that Community Hospice & Palliative Care brings comfort and smiles to patients and their families. Registered therapy animals and their owners have played an important part of the Community Hospice care team since 1996.

Local Girl Scouts donating cookies to health care heroes

The Girl Scouts of Gateway Council is giving thanks to emergency and health care workers by donating boxes of its famed Girl Scout cookies.

Aiming to provide some comfort and normalcy during this difficult time, Girl Scouts of Gateway Council has committed to donating at least 20,000 boxes of cookies to workers in those fields.

The Girl Scouts of Gateway Council is asking organizations, companies and donors to buy cookies in bulk (at cost) to gift Girl Scout Cookies to local hospital staff, first responders and pharmacy staff. The organization will also match all donations given on top of the 20,000 of boxes already committed.

Local stores add safety features, special hours

By Don Coble

Grocery and liquor stores are changing hours and adding protective shields to better serve their customers — and protect their employees — during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Stores like Winn-Dixie, Publix and The Fresh Market are working tirelessly to stock shelves and provide a safe environment during a time when many residents have been told not to leave their homes.

Winn-Dixie and ABC Fine Wine and Spirits already have installed Plexiglas shields at most of their registers and Publix plans to have the same partitions in place in the next week.

ABC was quick to respond to the virus that's easily spread by contact, sneezes and coughs.

"We have a woodshop in Orlando, and they made enough shields in one night for 125 stores," the assistant manager at the Ponte Vedra ABC said. "We got them up right away."

Liquor stores reported an unprecedented rush during the second week of March when restrictions and cancellations were announced by federal, state and local officials.

The company has the following statement on its website: "Currently, all shelter-in-place orders allow ABC and our team members to continue working."

And that means extra business.

"We were holiday busy," said one store operator in St. Augustine. "It was crazy, crazy, crazy. It was like the week before Christmas."

In Ponte Vedra Beach, staff at ABC said many of their customers were stocking up in case stores are ordered to close. However, in most jurisdictions, liquor stores provide "essential services" and wouldn't be subject to closures like local bars, nightclubs and restaurants.

All stores have adjusted their hours to help elderly people complete their shopping early, to allow first responders to shop late and to provide extra time around the store for cleaning.

The Fresh Market now is open from 8 a.m.-9 p.m. During weekdays, the first hour of operation is limited to senior citizens who are considered the most vulnerable to catch the novel coronavirus.

"We ask that our other guests who do not fall into these categories respect these special hours for those who fall into the higher risk categories as outlined by the CDC, so they can feel more comfortable shopping in our stores," the store said in a company release.

Ponte Vedra Beach real estate thriving despite pandemic

By Daniela Toporek

With fears of a drowning economy due to the COVID-19 pandemic, businesses are finding new ways to stay afloat, including those in real estate. While the world is advised to stay home, Realtors are adapting to the new, virtual strategies to sell. And at Ponte Vedra Beach, it seems to be working.

"I hear people keep saying the market is crashing, but real estate and stock, don't go hand in hand," said local agent Lisa Barton. "Our market here at Ponte Vedra Beach is actually really strong. We've had over 10 years of growth and very little inventory. At an all-time low of about four months. In real estate six months is the average for a balanced market."

ing advantage of the slower pace and using it to get to know her clients better, with more in-depth conversations and attention to detail.

"There's nothing nice about this situation, but with slowing, we have time to ask more questions and learn more about each other," Berry said. "I think that's going to be a good thing that we have time for planning, rather than just five minutes between the next appointment. It's nice to spend time with these prospects, educating them on the market and having more time to find the ideal location."

And although clients can't see their potential new properties in person, Berry, Barton and other Ponte Vedra Realtors have virtually brought the tours to them.

"We always post a professional video that shows how the house fits in the neighborhood, but now, we've successfully been doing Facetime videos with our client," explained Barton. "We put two houses under contract this week, actually. One couple was from New Jersey so of course, she didn't want to fly down, so we walked through the house with our phone. We could open the pantry, show them the closet, how far the guest bath is from the pool and more. We've had some good success."

And for those without Facetime, there's always Whatsapp.

"I'm a Samsung girl, so Whatsapp is a good option for me. I did a tour of one of the neighborhoods on Tuesday, I think," Berry said, laughing at how all the days seem to blend together lately. "No, it was definitely on Tuesday. It was a gorgeous day. I went out there with my phone, first thing in the morning, parked and walked both ends of the boulevard, showed them the nice residential street and came back to look at the lots."

Prospective buyers still are able to meet and tour spaces in person, but with much precaution and with Realtors handling every part of the location, from opening doors to sanitizing countertops.

"People, of course, are nervous about having strangers in their home right now, so we're being really serious about only pre-qualified clients visit," Barton said. "We normally work with an agent and if they say clients have a preapproval letter,

Financial Focus: Watch out for financial scams related to virus

Karsten Jacobson
Columnist

On one hand, the coronavirus has brought out the best in us. People across the country are pitching in to help others, from providing protective masks to health care workers to holding video chats with confined residents of assisted living homes to simply buying gift cards to support local businesses. On the other hand, a small number of bad actors are taking advantage of the situation to try to defraud people. How can you guard against these virus-related scams?

For starters, be aware of three common scams connected to the coronavirus:

■ Websites claiming to help and track the pandemic: Look out for websites that claim to help you work remotely or provide financial resources to the afflicted. These sites may try to trick you into giving up personal information, donate money or load malware onto your computer. Don't trust information technology (IT) "helpdesk" agents you don't know. And check out any obscure organization claiming to help virus victims. You can easily find many legitimate groups that actually work to alleviate suffering, and that deserve your support. To find these reputable organizations, go to an online clearinghouse, such as charitynavigator.org, which rates thousands of groups on their financial health, accountability and transparency.

■ Products claiming to prevent or cure the disease: When there's a real treatment or vaccination for COVID-19, it will be big news, and you will hear about it. Until then, ignore any claims for pills, potions, prescriptions or other products that promise "miracle" cures. Not only will they waste your money, but, if you click on attachments from "phishing" emails advertising these fake treatments, you could end up supplying crooks with sensitive data, such as your online account logins, passwords, and credit card and bank account details. You can find a great deal of health information on the virus at the Center for Disease Control website (www.cdc.gov), of course, but if you or your loved ones are feeling ill, please contact a physician.

Real Estate

that's usually enough. Now, we have to see it to assure it's a legitimate buyer. We're the only ones touching anything in the home."

Barton also is limiting the number of people who can tour the homes, not permitting any children to attend for the time being and keeping human contact at a minimum.

And to further assist both Realtors and potential buyers, the CEO of the Northeast Florida Association of Realtors notified agents that a new addendum has been added to contracts that addresses what occurs if there is an unforeseen delay due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

"For example, if we're looking to close a deal on Monday and the closing office all of a sudden closed, this addendum would cover that delay," Barton explained. "So used that on an offer I just accepted today. I'm working on another offer now that will hopefully get signed today, as well."

Barton also said that now is normally one of the busiest times of the year for agents. It's the prime time for families with kids to find their new dream home before the next school year begins.

"It's interesting to see how we're going to maneuver when in July, if and when things start getting back to normal," she said.

But for now, agents will focus on serious inquiries only, appropriate social distancing, sanitizing, and virtual tours, to help move their businesses forward.

"In a way, we still are sort of an essential staff, right now," Barton said. "With everything going on, especially now, people still need a place to live and a roof over their head."

■ “Risk-free” or “guaranteed” investments: The coronavirus has caused two separate, but related, areas of stress. The first is the health concern, and the second is the financial/investment component. The enormous volatility of the financial markets has caused much concern among investors, and scammers are seizing the opportunity to offer “risk-free” or “guaranteed” investments “perfect” for this particular time. Again, responding to these types of offers can bring you nothing but trouble. All investments carry risk of one type or another, and they typically don’t come with guarantees, although some do offer significant protection of principal. In these turbulent times, your best move is to stick with a long-term investment strategy based on your goals, risk tolerance and time horizon.

Here’s one more suggestion: Warn your elderly relatives about the increased potential for scams. The elderly are always the most susceptible to fraud, and now, when they may be more isolated than before, they may well be even more vulnerable. So, make sure you’re talking to these loved ones, and urge them not to make any sudden, out-of-the-ordinary financial moves.

Even in normal times, it’s regrettable that we have to be on the alert for scam artists — and it’s even more unfortunate during a period of national crisis. However, by being reasonably vigilant, and by taking the proper precautions, you can avoid taking on the “collateral damage” that can occur in this environment.

The Fresh Market has also closed all café seating areas, and in states that have banned gatherings of no more than 50 people, we are monitoring the guest count in our stores to adhere to these guidelines.

Winn-Dixie, along with other stores in the Southern Grocers chain, has adjusted its hours to allow for senior citizens to shop from 8 a.m.-9 a.m. during the week-day. Store hours also have been extended an hour to 9 p.m. on Mondays and Tuesday for first responders.

"At Southeastern Grocers, we are a people-first company and we are dedicated to being there for the community when they need us most," said company president and CEO Anthony Hucker. "Our first responders and healthcare providers are working extra-long hours to take care of the community and we want to do our part to take care of them. Beginning this Monday, all of our stores will remain open from 8-9 p.m. every Monday and Tuesday to allow these heroic individuals the opportunity to stock up on fresh food and essential items. We ask that our customers be respectful of this time we have dedicated to our front-line warriors."

Many Winn-Dixie stores also have markings on the floor to remind shoppers to maintain a two-cart-distance from other shoppers and cashiers.

Publix stores across the First Coast are closing two hours earlier at 8 p.m. Stores, including the pharmacy, are open for senior shopping from 7 a.m.-8 a.m. on Thursdays and Wednesdays.

Many Publix stores said customers often are waiting outside for the doors to open during their special shopping hours.

"As a company that started as a small business 90 years ago, Publix wants to help businesses renting from us survive the economic impact of these unexpected closures," said Publix Director of Communications Maria Brous.

Junior Achievement of North Florida offers online resources to assist with virtual education

Junior Achievement of North Florida has a new free resource for students, parents and teachers and a way for volunteers to help out as people remain at home and socially distant due to the threat of COVID-19.

As schools remain closed and move to online classrooms, JA programs are online as well to allow students to continue learning on their own, with a parent or other adult or with teachers through a digital/virtual environment. The resources are posted at JA.org/Tomorrows and offer programs and activities for students in elementary, middle and high school.

“There will be a tomorrow. We are dedicated to helping our children plan for the future and focus on their dreams by providing teachers and parents with free online resources,” said Steve St. Amand, president of JA of North Florida.

Teachers, parents and students can go to JA.org/Tomorrows and click on learn more. Topics will include programs and videos that will help parents speak and teach their kids about money-management issues. You can also learn about the economic climate and decision-making skills.

Programs for middle school students include the “JA Searching for Savings,” which helps students learn how to save money, and the JA Assembling Your Career, which teaches students about STEM careers and how they can start preparing now for their future. High school students can also take part in the JA Economic Investigations designed to help them achieve a deeper understanding of current economic issues or the JA Travel and Tourism which introduces students to exciting career opportunities in the travel and tourism industry.

“We also have a way for JA volunteers to continue working with us in our efforts to teach financial literacy, work-readiness and entrepreneurship to the youth by becoming a virtual volunteer,” said Teresa Smith, vice president of programs for JA of North Florida.

To become a JA virtual volunteer, you should record yourself for 2-3 minutes in landscape mode in your home office or workspace. Start with, “Hello, Team Duval,” followed by your name and where

Cummer Museum interim director navigates delivering fine arts during social distancing

By Amber Lake

Only a year after taking the position of director and CEO of the Cummer Museum of Art & Gardens, Adam Levine announced he will be leaving the institution in late April.

In his place, Atlantic Beach resident Kerrie Slattery has been appointed as interim director while a nationwide search is held. The museum announced the decision on March 19. Slattery said the pandemic hasn't interrupted the Cummer Museum's mission too much, however.

"Under Adam's leadership we are in a really positive financial situation," Slattery said. "We are still paying our employees. He is handing it over to me financially sound. We can close our doors and serve the public quite easily while still being able to check on all the essential facility requirements."

Slattery said employees are currently working from home and already planning for the museum to be re-opening its doors again, including exhibition schedules and Summer at the Cummer.

"Last year, Summer at the Cummer was extremely successful," Slattery said. "The community came out in full force – families, couples, you name it. Everyone in the community was just thrilled (to attend)."

This year, Summer at the Cummer, which includes free admission, live music and patio games on Friday nights, will correspond with the Buddha and Shiva, Lotus and Dragon exhibit.

For now, Slattery encourages residents and museum lovers to follow the Cummer Museum on social media, where they are participating in the national #museum-sathome effort.

"Right now, we are putting our energies into reopening, but also communicating through social media," Slattery said. "We are trying to keep people engaged and busy with fun things to look at."

Currently the Cummer is featuring art projects to do with children at home and virtual cooking classes through the museum's café, among art and historical interest posts on its Facebook page.

"Currently, the garden is blooming and it's beautiful," Slattery said. "We are taking pictures and posting them so people can get a little bit of nature from home."

St. Johns Cultural Council establishes emergency fund for local artists, small arts organizations

In response to hardships created by event cancellations and venue closures related to the COVID-19 crisis, the St. Johns Cultural Council has established an Arts Emergency Fund to support members of the St. Johns County arts community.

Small arts organizations and artists of all disciplines may apply. Individual artists may request up to $500 and arts organizations may request up to $1,000 in assistance through this program.

Individual artists may access funds for basic living expenses such as housing, utilities or groceries. Arts organizations may request funding to support rent payments, utilities and other operating costs related to arts, culture and heritage activities.

The Cultural Council has designated a total of $10,000 of its unrestricted funds for this program and hopes to increase funds available through donor contributions. One hundred percent of contributions to the fund will be disbursed to local artists and arts organizations. In many cases, these contributions will be tax deductible.

Applications may be submitted now and will be reviewed on an ongoing basis until funds are depleted. For more information about applications or donations to the Arts Emergency Fund, email christina@historiccoastculture.com.

Contributions to the fund may also be completed online at www.stjohnsculture.com/donate.

St. Johns Cultural Center announces online concert series to support local musicians

The St. Johns Cultural Council will present a series of online concerts featuring St. Johns County-based artists during the month of April.

Concerts will be presented Monday through Friday at 7 p.m. through the Cultural Council Facebook page at www.facebook.com/stjohnsculture/ beginning April 1.

Confirmed performers include Amy Hendrickson, Joe Pollock, Aslyn and the Naysayers, Ramona, Brittani Mueller, Sailor Jane, Lucio Rubino and Michael Lagasse.

Participating musicians will receive a $200 stipend from the Cultural Council and will also receive 100% of any donations made during their performance. Each artist will be featured in a spotlight on HistoricCoastCulture.com and receive additional marketing support for future performances, recordings and merchandise sales.

Interested musicians may schedule a performance time by emailing christina@stjohnsculture.com. Priority will be given to musicians who have lost a significant portion of their income due to recent event cancellations and venue closures.

Donations to support the concert series may be made at www.stjohnsculture.com/donate or by mailing a check to St. Johns Cultural Council, 15 Old Mission Ave., St. Augustine, FL 32084.

Fire destroys home of 2-time PLAYERS winner Davis Love III

By Don Coble

The St. Simons home of PGA TOUR player Davis Love III was destroyed by fire on Friday, March 27. Davis and his wife, Robin, escaped without injury.

According to Glynn County (Georgia) Fire Chief R.K. Jordan, the fire started in the garage and spread quickly. It took firefighters more than three hours to battle the blaze.

“The house upon our arrival was fully involved in flames,” Jordan told The Brunswick News. “It is a complete loss.”

Love issued a statement on Twitter later Friday confirming the fire, saying:

“Our family home was destroyed by an early morning fire. We’re very thankful to the first responders who made a valiant effort to save our home, and we’re keeping things in perspective as people across our community and around the world are struggling with the current unprecedented health crises.

Davis Love III

“We’ve been proud members of the St. Simons Island/Sea Island community for many years and will continue to be for many more. We appreciate your thoughts and prayers and you respect for our privacy.”

The 10,000-square foot home was built in 1998. It sat on a 5-acre lot on a marsh. It’s been for sale since 2013 for nearly $4.5 million.

Love won THE PLAYERS in 1992 and 2003. He won 21 PGA TOUR events, including the 1997 PGA Championship. Love, who’s hosted the RSM Classic at the Sea Island Club since 2010, also was the captain of the winning U.S. Ryder Cup team in 2016.
