BY GEORGE DICKIE

Michelle Dockery, Jaeden Martell and Chris Evans star in "Defending Jacob," premiering Friday on Apple TV+.

A popular teen's murder rocks a leafy Boston suburb and a prosecutor finds himself conflicted when his son is accused of the crime in a drama series that premieres this week on Apple TV+.

In "Defending Jacob," an eight-episode limited series that begins streaming Friday, April 24, Chris Evans ("Gifted," the "Captain America" movie series) stars as Andrew Barber, assistant district attorney in Middlesex County, husband of Laurie (Michelle Dockery, "Downton Abbey," "Good Behavior"), head of a local private school, and father of Jacob (Jaeden Martell, "Knives Out," "St. Vincent"), by all appearances, a normal, happy junior high schooler.

When popular classmate Ben Rifkin is stabbed to death apparently on his way school, none of the kids interviewed want to give up any information. But multiple texts from other teens accuse Jacob of the crime, thus getting the police's attention and placing Andy between the law he has sworn to uphold and the love for his son.

"The heart of this story is about a family," executive producer/director Morten Tyldum explained to a recent gathering of journalists in Pasadena, Calif. "It's about a family who's experienced this extraordinary situation, this nightmare, this thing that both tears them apart and pulls them together in some way. And you really need to feel for them and you need to believe it 100 percent that this is a family. ... And it's the little things, it's the small things, and how they touch and feel and talk and look and behave around each other, that suddenly (makes this) a family you believe in."

Best known for his action roles in Marvel films, Evans has drawn critical acclaim for turns in recent dramatic productions such as "Knives Out" and "Gifted." Here, the unmarried, childless actor takes on the emotional rigors of playing a parent in crisis, a challenge that he embraced.

"There's body language there, there's postures, there's so many things that ... I drew from my own childhood of what a dad looks and feels like," he says. "I really, really, really enjoyed it, actually, because it really does lend itself to the complexity and depth of the film. I think being a parent, I would imagine, unlocks depths of love that you didn't know you were capable of. And I think that only raises the stakes and makes things more interesting. So for me, it was a fun place to start off that kind of blinding love at times and how far you would go to keep it pure."

Dockery, also a singleton with no offspring, agrees.

"Like with any role, you have to immerse yourself in the character and ... you kind of observe others," the actress says. "I felt like it was very easy for us to sort of become a family on set. We all had a really lovely time together in spite of the intensity of the subject matter. ... I feel like we bonded very quickly, and I think that comes across on screen."

"THE GENTLEMEN"

The title of this crime tale is tongue-in-cheek, referring to criminals who are supposed to be gentleman thieves ... but in the world of filmmaker Guy Ritchie, such crooks stay mannerly only so long, usually about as long as it takes to get to the opening credits. The writer-director certainly knows the genre ("Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels," "RocknRolla), and here, he makes Matthew McConaughey the protagonist ... a drug kingpin in England who wants out of the trade to live a comfy retirement with his wife (Michelle Dockery, "Downton Abbey"). Several things stand in his way, though, including a blackmailer played by Hugh Grant; he's written a script inspired by the McConaughey's character, who would rather not see his underhanded dealings detailed on the silver screen – thus potentially foiling his thought of handing his narcotics empire over to a fellow hoodlum (Jeremy Strong). The cast has room for a lot of good actors, with Colin Farrell, Charlie Hunnam and Henry Golding also among them. Even if the picture won't stay with you very long afterward, it puts forth quite an attractive package while it's playing. ★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"BAD BOYS FOR LIFE"

In their third chapter of the "Bad Boys" franchise, Will Smith and Martin Lawrence reunite for more action and humor as their Miami-cop characters are targeted by a prison escapee and her son (Kate del Castillo, Jacob Scipio), relatives of a deceased cartel chief. After an attempt to kill

In Focus

"Trial by Media" (Netflix — series premiere, May 11)

Memorable and dramatic trials of recent history are explored in this new six-part series that features cases reaching across different areas of the law. Those featured include the the Jenny Jones made-for-Court TV murder trials, the story of Rod Blagojevich's political fall and the case of unarmed African immigrant Amadou Diallo, who was shot 41 times by police in New York City.

"Hightown" (Starz — series premiere, May 17)

After a body washes ashore during a holiday weekend, a National Marine Fisheries officer is caught up in a web of drama as she tries to solve the case on her own. Monica Raymund ("Chicago Fire") and James Badge Dale ("Hold the Dark," "13 Hours") star with Jerry Bruckheimer serving as an executive producer.

Smith's character fails, he recovers and tries to recruit the then-retired Lawrence to join him in tracking and capturing the would-be murderers. Co-stars Joe Pantoliano and Theresa Randle also return, with Vanessa Hudgens a cast addition as a member of an elite police team. Original producer Jerry Bruckheimer also remains with the series here, putting his familiar stylistic stamp on this "threequel." ★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"LIKE A BOSS"

The women are doing it for themselves in this comedy, teaming Tiffany Haddish and Rose Byrne as close friends who run a cosmetics company ... which they could lose to the machinations of a scheming mogul (Salma Hayek). In the course of that plot, the co-owners go their separate ways, only to realize they'll have to stay united to protect their personal and professional futures. In a similar sense, Haddish and Byrne, both skilled in humor that often borders on – and sometimes steps directly into – the raunchy, put forth very enjoyable teamwork here. "Friends" alum Lisa Kudrow, Jennifer Coolidge ("2 Broke Girls") and Emmy winner Billy Porter ("Pose") also star. ★★★ (R: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray)

"LOOKING FOR ALASKA"

Several false starts were made at bringing it to the screen earlier, but the American Library Association-honored novel by John Green ("The Fault in Our Stars") finally arrived last fall as an affecting Hulu limited series adapted by writer-producer Josh Schwartz ("Gossip Girl,"

"The O.C."). "All the Money in the World's" Charlie Plummer is the male lead in the young-adult drama, playing Miles "Pudge" Halter, a soulful teen whose new prep-school roommate "The Colonel" (Denny Love) introduces him to independent-minded beauty Alaska Young (actress-model Kristine Froseth). The three form a close friendship that ultimately deepens into more for Alaska and Pudge – and takes some unexpected, potentially life-shaping turns. Emmy winner Ron Cephas Jones ("This Is Us") appears as an influential teacher. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P)

"30 ROCK: THE COMPLETE SERIES"

Tina Fey and her producing partner Robert Carlock are developing a new NBC comedy, which actually was planned to be a direct spinoff of this show initially ... but in the meantime, their much-acclaimed sitcom about a sketch-based program not unlike "Saturday Night Live" (on which, of course, Fey was a vital performer and writer) gets a full-series release on home video. Fey plays the brilliant and caustic Liz Lemon, who keeps the show-within-the-show running – which proves challenging on a number of counts, not the least of which is her interaction with quirky network executive Jack Donaghy (Alec Baldwin, who won two Emmy Awards for the role). Tracy Morgan, Jane Krakowski and Jack McBrayer are among other regulars in the series, which boasted a parade of famous guest stars over the course of its seven-season run. ★★★★★ (Not rated: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray)

Defensive stalwart Young looks to go early in 2020 NFL Draft

In a 2020 NFL Draft where LSU quarterback Joe Burrow is the consensus pick to go first to the Cincinnati Bengals, the question becomes: Who's next?

The smart money says that player is Chase Young, the once-in-a-generation pass rusher from Ohio State.

Whether it's the Washington Redskins or a team that trades up to get the No. 2 selection, they'll be getting a disrupter and one of the most devastating edge players to enter the draft in several years.

In his junior year of 2019, the 21-year-old Maryland native turned in gaudy numbers of 16.5 sacks and 21 tackles for loss in only 12 games (he lost two games to a suspension). Included in that was a four-sack, five-tackles-for-loss game against Wisconsin, both totals that tied school records and a performance that prompted OSU head coach Ryan Day to call Young the most dominant player in college football. He also recorded a three-sack game against Penn State.

Scouts agree he's a game-changing talent on par with a Joey or Nick Bosa and NFL Film Review even enthused, "Chase Young is what you get when you build an edge rusher in a laboratory. His rare blend of size, length, power, and speed allows him to be elite in every aspect of rushing the passer. Leave him one-on-one and you will pay for it."

Thursday, April 23, Young and the rest of the world will find out where his professional career will begin when the 2020 NFL Draft opens for three days of business on ESPN, ESPN2 and ABC.

Quarantined and bored? Try new recipes from YouTube

The old adage that familiarity breeds contempt holds especially true in this time of quarantining.

For the foodie, that can mean what you eat. With restaurants closed, you've likely been doing a lot of cooking for yourself and by now you're probably sick to death of it. The thought of consuming another meatloaf, roasted chicken or spaghetti dinner produced by your own hand makes you physically ill. This, of course, is no reflection on your actual skill in the kitchen.

So what to do?

YouTube has plenty of novel ideas for meals to make in this age of no eating out. So log on and check out some recipes that you can make today with what is in your pantry.

That's certainly on Gordon Ramsay's mind in his "Quick & Simple Recipes" (www.youtube.com/watch?vmhDJNfV7hjk), in which the chef, restaurateur and TV personality shows how to make delicious dinners from such staples as pasta, chicken breast, flour, eggs, potatoes and cheese. His gnocchi looks incredible as well as easy and his mantra "simple is always the most impressive" certainly rings true here.

For those who like to employ their instant pots, "31+ Pandemic Recipes in the Instant Pot" (www.youtube.com/watch?vbZq-4\_skSc) may have a few possibilities. Here, host Lisa Childs shows how to make cheap and easy meals using your emergency stores of frozen and nonperishable food. Her offerings range from standards such as oatmeal and mac and cheese to more offbeat fare like Hawaiian meatballs and lime cilantro rice. Chow down while shut down.

Sam the Cooking Guy wants you to eat more interestingly while sheltering in place in his multi-part "Quarantine (Lockdown) Munchies" (www.youtube.com/watch?vh0GMUXSdYal), in which he shows how to make quick and easy recipes that feature poultry, ground beef, pasta, eggs and more. Among the offerings are a chicken noodle wonton soup, chili mac and cheese, a chicken and ramen noodles stir fry, Mexican chips and dip and a fritata. Imaginative fare made from commonplace items.

For those trying to eat healthy, check out the Happy Pear's "Whole Food Immune Boosting Stew" (www.youtube.com/watch?v\_AXpf3YiuIU), a Greek concoction they call a "Mediterranean minestrone" and is thought to have properties that promote longevity. Among the items you'll need are carrots, broccoli, leeks, broccoli, vegetable stock and several kinds of beans. A meal high in anti-oxidants.

On the heartier side is the Quarantine Cookbook's "Pandemic Pot Roast" (www.youtube.com/watch?vLubu0\_cHJpg), a recipe made in the instant pot with chuck roast, various vegetables and spices, tomato paste, red wine and Worcestershire sauce. Rib-sticking food to serve while you're stuck inside.
