coverstory
BY GEORGE DICKIE

Mark Ruffalo stars in a dual role in "I Know This Much Is True," premiering Sunday on HBO.

HBO's 'I Know This Much Is True' a tale of mental illness, family and forgiveness

Dominick Birdsey is a man with a mountain of baggage.

As played by Mark Ruffalo ("The Normal Heart," "Foxcatcher") in the HBO limited series "I Know This Much Is True," a six-episode drama premiering Sunday, May 10, he's a house painter in rural Connecticut circa 1990 who is coping with his own psychic wounds as he cares for an identical twin brother with paranoid schizophrenia.

And that malady rears itself in the series' opening frames, when Thomas (also Ruffalo) hacks off his hand to the horror of onlookers in a public library in what in his mind is a sacrifice to stop the Gulf War. He's soon sent to an asylum, where his brother fights to get him freed.

Dominick isn't all that well, either. He's buckling under the weight of PTSD, the result of looking after Thomas, a childhood with an abusive stepfather, memories of losing his infant daughter to SIDS and subsequent divorce from Dessa (Kathryn Hahn, "Transparent") and making sure his dying mother (Melissa Leo, "Frozen River") has proper hospice care.

As Dominick contends with an asylum social worker (Rosie O'Donnell) to gain his brother's release, a psychologist (Archie Panjabi, "The Good Wife") picks up on his considerable emotional pain and realizes she may have two patients instead of one.

For the dual roles, Ruffalo undertook unusual demands. First, he shot all his scenes as the svelte, goateed Dominick, then took five weeks off to gain 30 pounds to play the doughy, clean-shaven Thomas. It was also during this time that the 52-year-old actor researched mental illness and imagined himself as someone with Thomas' condition.

"When we were talking about how we would do it," Ruffalo explained to a recent gathering of journalists in Pasadena, Calif., "we didn't want it to be like I run and put a wig on, and then run and do the same scene on the same day. So, yeah, we took five weeks off to really separate these two guys.

"And Thomas was on a lot of medication," he continues. "He needs medications. These mood stabilizers and antipsychotics cause people to put on weight. And, yeah ... their life experiences after their teens are so extremely different. But it was important for us to really, really have these guys be two different people."

And each came with its own distinct challenges, Ruffalo says, but Thomas' were especially daunting.

"Actually putting on the weight for Thomas was really challenging," he says. "I didn't expect it to be. I thought I was going to be having a fun time doing that. And when you're force-feeding yourself, some of the romance of food sort of leaves.

"I mean, listen, there's an element of mental illness in this project," he continues. "And you want to be as honest as you can to that, especially today. And it means a lot to me to be honest with that, which means going into that world and getting to know it and getting comfortable with it. And that's challenging.

"And so, that aspect of it was challenging more so than Dominick. I was really afraid to play it to be honest with you. I think it's really an important issue and I want to tell it as honestly as possible. And so the responsibility that was on the actual playing it was really apparent to me."

In Focus

"Labor of Love" (Fox — series premiere, May 21)

In this dating reality show with a twist that's hosted by Kristin Davis ("Sex and the City"), a woman who is ready to start a family must choose among aspiring fathers-to-be who go through challenges that put their parenting and partnership skills to the test. After eight weeks that woman must decide if she's met her perfect partner or if she'd rather face motherhood alone.

"Quiz" (AMC — series premiere, May 25)

Stephen Frears ("The Queen") directed this new three-part drama about two people (Matthew Macfadyen, Sian Clifford) accused of trying to bilk the game show "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire." Their method of cheating involves having an accomplice in the audience who would cough to signal the correct answers to multiple-choice questions, ultimately winning them a large sum of cash. Michael Sheen also stars.

"BIRDS OF PREY AND THE EMANCIPATION OF ONE HARLEY QUINN"

In the same manner as "Suicide Squad," this adventure goes its own way in using the DC Comics universe as a springboard – and also like that film, it makes Harley Quinn a pivotal character, as played again by Margot Robbie (also a producer this time). The lively, self-styled Harley has consciously uncoupled from The Joker, making her a supposedly easier target for enemies. She knows she'll need some help to stay alive, so she enlists such allies as Black Canary and The Huntress (Jurnee Smollett-Bell, Mary Elizabeth Winstead), and it doesn't take long for the mayhem between groups and genders to start flying. A parade of frantic and sometimes quite graphic action, this also incorporates some stabs at wit, which you'd have to expect from Robbie playing Harley again – but the picture largely wants to play it safe while showing that women can be tough, too, something the Marvel movies started doing some time ago. Some other good performers put their best feet and fists forward here, including Rosie Perez, Ewan McGregor and Chris Messina. DVD extras: seven "making-of" documentaries; outtakes. ★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray, 4K Ultra HD and On Demand)

"THE CALL OF THE WILD"

One of the most enjoyable things about Harrison Ford these days is to watch him act his age, literally, and he does that again with a project that's ideal for him on that count. This latest screen version of the classic Jack London story services Ford better than his canine co-star ... who isn't actually a real dog. The animal named Buck is computer-generated in this case, but admittedly,

"Taste the Nation With Padma Lakshmi" (Hulu — series premiere, June 19)

Award-winning cookbook author Padma Lakshmi goes on a journey across the United States, exploring the rich and diverse food cultures of various immigrant groups and seeking out the people who have shaped what American food is today.

"Perry Mason" (HBO — series premiere, June 21)

With the rest of the country struggling through the Great Depression, Los Angeles is booming. Tragedy strikes when a child kidnapping goes wrong and the case lands on the doorstep of the titular defense attorney. Matthew Rhys, John Lithgow, Tatiana Maslany, Juliet Rylance and Nate Corddry star.

this would take a pretty obedient and trainable dog since much of the action falls on Buck as he goes through encounters with various people. By far, the most memorable is his adventure with Ford, as a prospector haunted by family troubles; the pain the veteran star conveys is quite human, neatly balancing a partner who isn't even real. This also is a picture built for atmosphere, and it's very lucky to have the brilliant Oscar winner Janusz Kaminski – who works frequently with Steven Spielberg – as its cinematographer. Thanks largely to him, the result has an expectedly handsome look that a famous saga like this deserves. Dan Stevens ("Downton Abbey"), Omar Sy, Karen Gillan and Bradley Whitford also appear, but Ford clearly takes the acting honors. ★★★ (PG: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray, 4K Ultra HD and On Demand)

"FANTASY ISLAND"

The popular television show of the late 1970s and early 1980s inspired a series reboot, and it's also the source of this feature-film update, which takes a considerably darker tone than the original version – though that, too, was known for putting unexpected twists on the fantasies that "guests" hoped to live out for real during their stays. Michael Pena plays this edition's Mr. Roarke, the island host who gets his own fantasy in the course of helping others fulfill theirs, with Lucy Hale ("Katy Keene"), Maggie Q ("Designated Survivor") and Austin Stowell as the principal visitors who come to regret what they wished for. Michael Rooker and Portia Doubleday ("Mr. Robot") also are featured. DVD extras: audio commentary by director Jeff Wadlow and cast members; deleted scenes. ★★★ (PG-13 and unrated versions: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"THE PHOTOGRAPH"

Appropriately released last Valentine's Day, this romantic drama gives a deeply dramatic role to Issa Rae, known primarily these days for her comedic work on the HBO series "Insecure." Also an executive producer here, she plays the daughter of a recently deceased woman (Chante Adams) whose life unfolds in large part as a series of flashbacks involving the relationship that the elder woman – the subject of the photograph that the title refers to – had with a man (Rob Morgan) who also comes to play a big role in the daughter's life. Writer-director Stella Meghie plays liberally with the story's timeline, regularly jumping back and forth to establish parallel experiences of the two women. Lakeith Stanfield ("Atlanta"), Chelsea Peretti ("Brooklyn Nine-Nine"), Lil Rel Howery and Courtney B. Vance also star. DVD extras: three "making-of" documentaries. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

Kemba Walker emerges as a force in 2011

Junior year proved to be a career-making season for Kemba Walker.

In leading the Connecticut Huskies all the way to the 2011 national championship, the then-20-year-old point guard from The Bronx, N.Y., led the nation in scoring with 26.7 points per game and got himself on one of the regional covers of Sports Illustrated. But it was in the postseason where his reputation as a go-to guy was cemented.

In the Big East Tournament, Walker hit clutch shot after clutch shot, tallying 130 points over five games – the highest scoring total in any conference tournament over the previous 15 years – as he led UConn to the conference championship and earned tourney MVP honors along the way.

A run through the NCAA Tournament would follow, culminating in his 16-point performance in the championship game against Butler, which the Huskies won in a low-scoring affair, 53-41.

More accolades would follow, among them the NCAA Tournament's Most Outstanding Player honors, the Bob Cousy Award for the nation's top point guard and a consensus First Team All-American designation.

He was then drafted in the first round (ninth overall) in 2011 by the Charlotte Bobcats, with whom he would spend the next eight seasons, earning four All-Star berths and distinguishing himself as one of the league's top points. He joined the Boston Celtics via a sign-and-trade deal prior to the 2019-20 season.

Walker can be seen in a vintage performance from that 2011 Big East Tournament Wednesday, May 20, when ESPN Classic rebroadcasts a semifinal contest between UConn and Syracuse from New York's Madison Square Garden.

Ramsay brings a town back from the brink in '24 Hours to Hell and Back: Save Our Town'

Earlier this year, Gordon Ramsay undertook what would be one of the most ambitious, difficult and ultimately rewarding projects of his career – helping rebuild businesses in a flood-ravaged suburban Baltimore town. His efforts are detailed in an upcoming special episode of “Gordon Ramsay’s 24 Hours to Hell and Back.”

Titled “Save Our Town,” the two-hour installment airing Tuesday, May 12, on Fox, follows Ramsay as he and his crew of restaurant employees, celebrities including Orioles star Cal Ripken Jr. and designer Nate Berkus (“Nate & Jeremiah by Design”) and local citizens work to rescue three businesses devastated by floods that hit Ellicott City, Md., in 2016 and 2018.

Unlike other “24 Hours” episodes where Ramsay delivers tough love to apathetic restaurateurs, this has a different tone. These business owners had their lives and livelihoods sent over the cliff through no fault of their own, and it became the mission of Ramsay, who learned of their plight when he was opening his own eatery in Baltimore in 2017, to throw them a lifeline.

“Dealing with one crisis is hard enough but dealing with two crises within 18 months/two years of each other, it’s pretty shocking ...,” Ramsay says. “This ... wasn’t just about saving the restaurants; it was about saving a town, saving a community and giving them the confidence and the position and support and everything I know in this industry to help make them work with the help of some very special people.”

In a town full of wrecked businesses, Ramsay focused on three that were in especially dire need: Little Market Cafe; Jaxon Edwin, a combination hair salon, coffee bar and game room; and the Phoenix

Brewing Company, which was actually a merger between two other breweries. In all cases, Ramsay and his crew helped rebuild not only the brick-and-mortar facilities but also revamped menus, redesigned dining areas and offered business advice.

For Ramsay, it was all about giving the locals hope and the sight of one of the celebrity helpers, local hero and Baseball Hall of Famer Ripken, was especially inspiring.

“You know, the first time I phoned him and said, ‘Hey look ...’ I didn’t even finish the sentence,” Ramsay says, “and he said, ‘Gordon, I’m in. What are we to do? Fix a bar? Paint a wall? Spend time in the kitchen? What do you want me to do?’ And so Cal couldn’t be any more pleasant to work with, an absolute dream come true. ... But lighting up that room and giving hope to the staff and showing that kind of support for the community was unimaginable. And he delivered on all fronts.”

In the end, businesses and lives were fixed and a downtown district got a big assist on its way to recovery. Ramsay’s love of the Baltimore area and its people spurred him to action and he came away heartened by the results.

“For me, (it’s) one of the most passionate projects I’ve ever done, 10 out of (a scale of) 10,” he says. “In terms of hardest, 11 out of 10. But deep down inside ... it’s been one of the most rewarding because it’s been one of the most serious things I’ve ever done in my entire cooking career because I strongly believe we’ve helped switch the lights on back in that town again.”

What's Available NOW On

“Movie: Guava Island”

From director Hiro Murai (“Atlanta,” “How to Become an Outlaw”) comes this 2019 comedy movie that stars Donald Glover (“Atlanta”) as a young musician who tries to launch a music festival to liberate the people of Guava Island. Singer Rihanna, Letitia Wright (“Black Panther”) and Nonso Anozie (“Cinderella”) are also in the cast.

“Dirt Every Day”

Off-road enthusiasts will want to take notice of this long-running unscripted series that follows hosts Fred Williams, Dave Chappelle and their friends as they create wild off-road vehicles of all types, shapes and sizes and put them through their paces in far-flung and unusual locations.

“Movie: Coldplay: A Head Full of Dreams”

The British rock band that was formed in London in 1996 is the focus of this 2018 documentary from director Mat Whitecross (“Supersonic”) that offers an in-depth and intimate portrait of its spectacular rise from the pubs of Camden, England, to selling out stadiums around the world.

“Movie: Repentance”

In the short-lived spinoff series “Criminal Minds: Suspect Behavior,” Forest Whitaker played an agent who relied on deeper levels of belief to do his job. His character in this 2013 melodrama takes a similar approach to life, but not in such a beneficial way: He’s one of the clients of a life coach (Anthony Mackie) whom he abducts, then turns the teachings against the teacher in a campaign of terror. Nicole Ari Parker, Mike Epps and Sanaa Lathan also star.
