Seth Rogen

Seth Rogen is in 'An American Pickle' on HBO Max

For Seth Rogen, one role in his latest project wasn't enough.

The comedy star plays both humor and pathos as an immigrant preserved for 100 years in a barrel of pickle brine – really – plus his great-grandson in “An American Pickle,” which becomes HBO Max’s first original movie when it starts streaming Thursday, Aug. 6. The elder (like, way elder) man awakens in the present day to find everyone he knew is gone, so he seeks out his one remaining relative, who literally lives in a completely different world.

Adapted by Simon Rich from his series “Sell Out” published in The New Yorker, “An American Pickle” makes Rogen (also a producer of the film) his own co-star in many of its scenes, and he allows that challenge was considerable. “We were trying to make a movie that was highly technical but seemed effortless,” the friendly talent says, “and that if you didn’t know the same actor was playing the two roles, there would be nothing (unusual) about it. We went to extreme lengths to make sure the movie seemed seamless in that way.”

Rogen insisted on having a real beard as the 100-years-old-plus Herschel, though descendant Ben is clean-shaven. “I just don’t think they look good,” he says of fake beards. “You can always kind of tell, in how the actors are restricted in their facial movements.

That decision made it even more complicated, since we essentially had to shoot the movie twice ... once with me as one character, then as the other.”

Directed by Brandon Trost, the chief cinematographer on several of Rogen’s earlier films, “An American Pickle” originally was planned as a theatrical release. Rogen – whose controversial 2014 comedy “The Interview” largely bypassed a run in theaters to go straight to On Demand – says he’s more than satisfied Sony Pictures struck a deal with HBO Max (and Warner Max, its movie imprint) for the picture.

“To his credit, Tom (Sony Pictures chairman Rothman) was very supportive of us finding a home that could better serve the film,” reflects Rogen. “He was one of the creators of Fox Searchlight, so he knew more than anyone that Sony’s infrastructure was not the type that this movie needed. It needed a more boutique approach.”

Rogen’s acting career began with the much-lauded series “Freaks and Geeks,” and he’s often kept television or a form of it in his plans, as he’s also been proving lately as an executive producer of Amazon’s “The Boys” and Hulu’s “Future Man.” However, he admits, “I have a much better understanding of a film structure than the seasons of a television show. It’s hard for me to wrap my head around that.”

In Focus

“Phineas and Ferb The Movie: Candace Against the Universe” (Disney+ — movie premiere, Aug. 28)

The stepbrothers go out of this world to rescue their older sister Candace after she is abducted by aliens. She may not want to return however, when she discovers the new planet she has been brought to is free of pesky young-er siblings. Ashley Tisdale, Vincent Martella, Caroline Rhea and Dan Povenmire lend their voice talents.

“The New York Times Presents”

A co-production of FX and Hulu, this documentary series from the makers of “The Weekly” delves into breaking news stories, investigations, character-driven tales and feature reporting from journalists at The New York Times. The opening episode looks at the extraordinary efforts of doctors and nurses at the peak of the coronavirus pandemic in New York City. (ORIGINAL)

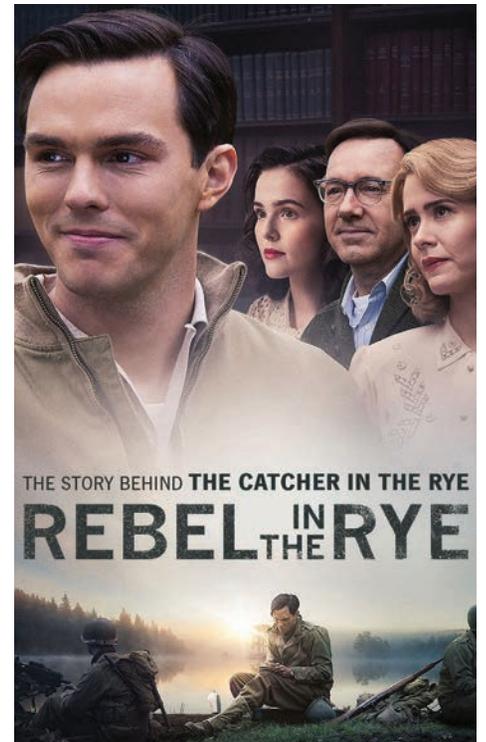

“Movie: The Flood”

Lena Headey (“Game of Thrones,” “300”) stars as a hardened immigration officer who takes on the case of a high-profile asylum-seeker who may be hiding a more sinister agenda in this 2019 drama from director Anthony Woodley (“The Carrier,” “Outpost 11”). Ivanno Jeremiah, Amira Ghazalla, Jack Gordon and Iain Glen are also in the cast.

“Movie: Trapped Model”

Grace (Lucy Loken), an aspiring model, scarcely can believe her luck when fashion photographer Hunter Kelly (Wes McGee) offers to help launch her career in this 2019 thriller. She gets chilling insight into Hunter’s true objectives, however, when a photo shoot turns into a kidnapping. Hunter wants to use Grace as his next ‘star’ on a sordid website, where his previous discoveries eventually all wound up dead. Kiki Harris also stars in the film, which is inspired by true events.

“Movie: Rebel in the Rye”

First-time feature filmmaker Danny Strong’s 2017 biographical drama stars Nicholas Hoult as J.D. Salinger and follows the future “Catcher in the Rye” author’s life during and after World War II. Sarah Paulson, Kevin Spacey, Victor Garber, Hope Davis and Brian D’Arcy James also are in the cast.

Jason Segel

"DISPATCHES FROM ELSEWHERE: SEASON 1"

With star Jason Segel ("How I Met Your Mother") among its executive producers, this AMC series also features him in other capacities, including as writer and director of the first episode ... setting up the premise of an institute that lures dissatisfied people of various backgrounds, only to find themselves unable to escape its influence if they decide to leave it. Segel's streaming-service-worker character is among those who become caught up in a massive game that may transform their lives, for better or worse, if they complete the challenges posed to them. Sally Field, Andre Benjamin and Eve Lindley appear as the other players, who aren't quite sure what to make of seemingly sinister developments as the game progresses. Segel also wrote several other episodes of the show, which he has said will offer a different story if it's given another season. The cast also includes Richard E. Grant. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P)

"TOM CLANCY'S JACK RYAN: SEASON TWO"

John Krasinski's interpretation of novelist Clancy's CIA-analyst character entered its sophomore round as an Amazon streaming attraction with Ryan in the thick of the action again by heading to South America, where an illegal arms cache signals the possibility of a global conspiracy in which Venezuela's president (Jordi Molla) — who is seeking not necessarily assured re-election — may play a major role. Wendell Pierce also reprises his role from Season 1 as James Greer, with Michael Kelly ("House of Cards"), Noomi Rapace and Jordi Molla among others joining the cast. Guest stars include William Jackson Harper ("The Good Place") and Michael O'Neill ("Council of Dads"). Amazon has renewed the show for a third round. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

"HIS DARK MATERIALS: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON"

An orphaned young woman's (Dafne Keen) quest becomes much bigger than she initially anticipates in this HBO series adaptation — produced by England's BBC as well — of novelist Philip Pullman's celebrated fantasy trilogy. Looking for an abducted friend, she stumbles onto a scheme involving stolen children, immediately intensifying her personal mission. Immediately notable among other cast members is "Hamilton" mentor Lin-Manuel Miranda, and additional stars include Ruth Wilson ("The Affair"), James McAvoy ("Glass") and Clarke Peters ("The Wire"). Actors contributing their voice talents here include David Suchet,

Helen McCrory and Cristela Alonso. Author Pullman got to have a hand in this version of his work as one of its executive producers. The series has been renewed for a Season 2. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

"THE FLINTSTONES: 2 MOVIES & 5 SPECIALS"

The Hanna-Barbera animation shop's Stone Age characters have endured for 60 years, not only in their original series that continues to repeat today, but also in spinoff projects — several of which are compiled here. Arguably the centerpiece is "The Man Called Flintstone," a 1966 theatrical release playing off the James Bond craze that was at its peak then. Fred Flintstone (voiced here by both original portrayer Alan Reed and his successor, Henry Corden) is enlisted to stand in for a look-alike spy in a plot that loosely mirrors the Bond story "From Russia With Love." Mel Blanc (alias Barney Rubble) and Jean Vander Pyl (Wilma Flintstone) also reprised their parts from television, with later "Carol Burnett Show" staple Harvey Korman heard as an espionage chief. And for those keeping track of the 007 links, there's an operative named Triple X, which also would be Anya Amasova's designation in "The Spy Who Loved Me." ★★★ (Not rated)

Verdugo has big shoes to fill in Boston

The Boston Red Sox may have been on the wrong end of the blockbuster trade of this past offseason, but that doesn't mean they didn't get value.

No, when they shipped All-Star rightfielder Mookie Betts and former Cy Young-winning lefty David Price to the Los Angeles Dodgers as a payroll-cutting measure, the BoSox got back a respectable but not overwhelming package of young talent headed by Alex Verdugo.

In their new 24-year-old rightfielder, the Sox get a player who was ranked as a top-10 prospect a year ago by MLB.com, with their scouting report calling him "one of the best pure hitting prospects in baseball," with a quick left-handed stroke that produces line drives but has the potential for power. He also has a plus-plus arm, excellent instincts in the outfield and enough speed to play a corner position.

He was starting to blossom last year in Los Angeles before a core injury in May took its toll. In 343 at-bats, he hit .294 with 12 home runs, 44 RBIs, a .342 on-base percentage and an OPS of .817 before being shut down in early August.

He came to spring training with a stress fracture in his back, which hampered his preseason. But now, after four-plus months of recovery during the shutdown, the Red Sox are ready to see what the new guy can do in a formidable lineup that also includes Rafael Devers, J.D. Martinez and Xander Bogaerts.

Verdugo and the Red Sox can be seen in action Sunday, Aug. 2, when they close out a three-game road series against the New York Yankees in a game being televised on ESPN.

A diet gone to the dogs: Homemade dog foods

Imagine eating the same bland food twice a day your entire existence, with little variation or hope of getting anything really tasty. Welcome to the culinary life of your dog.

Yes, when it comes to what we feed Rover, we tend to assume they're getting all the vitamins and minerals they need through store-bought food. And as long as they keep eating it and are healthy, all is presumably well.

But if they could talk, maybe we'd find out they're not as satisfied as we think. So if you're ambitious and want to introduce your dog to the good life, there are a number of content producers on the Web ready to teach you the finer points of cooking for Fido using fresh, nutritious ingredients. So, boot up the laptop or tablet, log on, and find out how you can feed your dog better than most humans eat.

CookingForDogs (www.youtube.com/user/CookingForDogs): Australian canine advocate and lifelong dog owner Christine Byers is your host for this series of tutorials on how to make healthy, fun recipes for your pup, with meals ranging from turkey meatballs and a hound-dog hot pot to spaghetti Bolognese and chicken rice risotto. And for treats, there are how-tos on all manner of comestibles like cupcakes, cookies and milkshakes. It's fare for the sophisticated canine palate.

Kiki's Canine Kitchen (www.youtube.com/watch?v=vifEWyKvULoo&list=PLFEVUcQYgTIpxLZKiqIt3ic-478kZ4cWX): Dog chef and blogger Kiki Kane hosts this series of informative videos on the Rover.com channel on YouTube, offering up ideas for a chicken pot pie, marinated jerky, a veggie turducken, carob cupcakes with peanut butter frosting, and even a birthday cake. No word yet on what wines pair with these.

JustFoodForDogs.com (www.youtube.com/channel/UCa9Tr6pgQcxm2tLry0AogMA): With a mission to increase the quality and length of life for as many dogs as possible, Just Food for Dogs offers up a mix of videos not only on homemade dog food, but also on a plethora of health-related topics ranging from veterinary specialists and surgical procedures to toxic foods, allergies and cancer diets. Among the recipes you'll find are turkey and whole wheat macaroni, chicken and white rice, and even venison and squash.

Top Dog Tips (topdogtips.com/recipes/): Here's another pretty comprehensive dog website with advice on health, nutrition, breeds and supplies, but also how-tos on homemade foods, treats, ice cream, foods for diabetic dogs, dogs with renal disease, and dogs with no appetite. There also is a video on getting your dog started on a raw diet – which is somewhat ironic, considering dogs in the wild live exclusively on uncooked food.

I've worked hard to earn your support since last year's contest, as well as through my 30+-year real estate career here in my hometown. I've shown thousands of homes and sold quite a few, too! I've been consultant and confidant, hero and hand-holder. It's my years of experience that are bringing my customers through the crises of the day. Please vote for me for this year's Best Of Ponte Vedra competition. Thank you!

Thrust back into the world of dating, he's hanging around with a bunch of misfit friends who are as unlucky in love as he is. Sebastian Zurita, Tato Alexander and Roberto Flores star. (ORIGINAL)

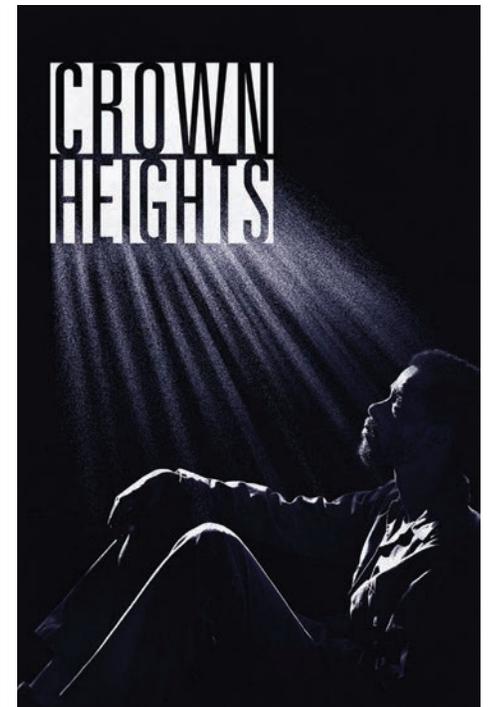

“Movie: First Cow”

The 1820s Northwest is the backdrop for this 2019 Western from director Kelly Reichardt (“River of Grass,” “Night Moves”) about two travelers, on the run from vengeful hunters, whose dreams of striking it rich hinge on the secret use of a landowner's prized dairy cow. John Magaro, Alia Shawkat, Orion Lee and Ewen Bremner head the cast.

“Movie: Just Mercy”

Michael B. Jordan (“Creed”) stars in this 2019 biographical drama that tells the true story of Bryan Stevenson, a world-renowned civil rights defense attorney who fights for justice for a man sent to death row (Jamie Foxx) despite proving his innocence. Rob Morgan, Brie Larson and Tim Blake Nelson are also in the talented cast for director Destin Daniel Cretton (“The Glass Castle”).

“Movie: Crown Heights”

Matt Ruskin (“Booster”) directed this 2017 crime drama about a Trinidadian immigrant (Lakeith Stanfield, “Knives Out”) wrongly sent to prison for 20 years for a 1980 murder in Brooklyn, and the efforts of his friend (former NFL star Nnamdi Asomugha, “Hello, My Name Is Doris”) to get the conviction overturned.
