Secrets could be ‘The Undoing’ of privileged Manhattanites in HBO thriller series

Lives of privilege get thrown into turmoil when shocking revelations surface in the wake of a violent death in a limited thriller series upcoming on HBO.

In “The Undoing,” a six-part series premiering Sunday, Oct. 25, we are introduced to Grace and Jonathan Fraser, a Manhattan power couple living the only life they have ever wanted. Grace (Nicole Kidman, “Big Little Lies,” “Moulin Rouge”) is a successful therapist on the verge of publishing her first book, while Jonathan (Hugh Grant, “Love Actually,” “A Very English Scandal”) is an oncologist and her devoted husband. They have a young son attending an elite private school in the city.

Overnight, a chasm opens in their lives when a violent death occurs and Jonathan disappears. And in the place of the man she thought she knew, Grace is now faced with a chain of horrific revelations and a decision to dismantle her current life and make a new one for her family.

The series comes from writer/creator David E. Kelley (“Big Little Lies,” “Picket Fences”), was directed by Susanne Bier (“The Night Manager”) and features a cast that also includes Edgar Ramirez (“Carlos”), Noma Dumezweni (“Black Earth Rising”), Lily Rabe (“American Horror Story”) and Donald Sutherland (“Citizen X”).

It also has a lot of twists and turns in a world where no one is who they seem, which is why Kidman signed on to work with her “Lies” boss once again.

“I think what the theme of it is ...,” the actress says, “choosing to unknow things is a fascinating part of human nature. And when you choose to – and what you choose to believe and what you choose to see would be. ... I mean, that’s the basis of a lot of this, of the psychology of this series is we choose to see certain things but also everyone has secrets. They just do.”

Chief among them is Grant’s character of Jonathan. From episode to episode, the viewer is left to guess whether he’s good or evil, which Grant says was a tricky dance to do as an actor without revealing too much.

“Your job as an actor,” he explains, “you have to sort of be as truthful to your character as you possibly can be, which actually runs counter to what you sometimes need to do in this kind of film, where you’re trying to fool the audience slightly or keep up a pretense. You know, and I think that same applies to ... there’s about seven suspects who emerge in this film.”

In Focus

“I Am Greta” (Hulu — movie premiere, Nov. 13)

From filmmaker Nathan Grossman (“Stieg Larsson: The Man Who Played With Fire”) comes this documentary that profiles Greta Thunberg, a quiet 15-year-old Swedish girl on the autism spectrum, who launched a school strike for climate and a global movement with the question: If you don’t care about my future on Earth, why should I care about my future in school?

“Movie: Terminator: Dark Fate”

Director Tim Miller’s 2019 sci-fi action film was a direct sequel to 1984’s “The Terminator” and its first sequel, “Terminator 2: Judgment Day,” but disregarded events depicted in subsequent movie sequels or TV series spinoffs. Set 25 years after the events of “T2: Judgment Day,” this new release sees the future machines sending an advanced Terminator (Gabriel Luna) back to 2020 to kill Dani Ramos (Natalia Reyes) due to her destiny. Linda Hamilton and Arnold Schwarzenegger reprise their roles as Sarah Connor and the T-800 Terminator.

BAD THERAPY

“Movie: Bad Therapy”

First-time feature filmmaker William Teitler helmed this 2020 comedy that stars Michaela Watkins (“Casual”) as a marriage counselor who proves to be much more than what one troubled couple (Rob Corrdry, Alicia Silverstone) bargained for. Aisha Tyler, Haley Joel Osment, David Paymer and Louise Pniowsky are also in the solid cast. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: The Swing of Things”

When bad weather forces a change of flight and plans for their Bahamas destination wedding, a couple and their party wind up at a mysterious hotel in Jamaica that turns out to be a resort for swingers in this 2020 comedy from director Matt Shapira (“Disappearance”). Chord Overstreet, Olivia Culpo, Luke Wilson and Matt McCoy head the cast.

“Movie: Victoria Gotti: My Father’s Daughter”

Victoria Gotti is the executive producer, co-writer and narrator of this 2019 docudrama, which purports to give viewers a sense of what it’s like to grow up as the daughter of mob boss John Gotti. Chelsea Frei stars as Victoria, who is portrayed as a sensitive young woman who grew up worrying about the safety of her father (Maurice Benard). Needless to say, much drama ensues.

"A Taste of Christmas" (Lifetime — TV movie premiere, Nov. 20)

When restaurateur Francesca (Nia Vardalos) is forced to cancel the scheduled Christmas Eve opening of her new Italian eatery just three days in advance, her cousin Natalie (Anni Krueger) frets about the diners who had planned on attending and now may spend Christmas Eve alone. Determined to avoid that depressing scenario, Natalie enlists the reluctant help of handsome but very skeptical Chef Stefano (Gilles Marini) to do whatever it takes to make the opening happen. Andrew Brodeur and Emma Myers also star in this 2020 Christmas romance.

"The Crown" (Netflix — season premiere, Nov. 15)

The fourth season of this drama series returns to advance the story to the late 1970s, when Queen Elizabeth (Olivia Colman) and the Royal Family are preoccupied with finding an appropriate bride for Prince Charles (Josh O'Connor), who is still unmarried at age 30. At the same time, divisiveness builds in Britain thanks to the policies of Margaret Thatcher (Gillian Anderson) and war with the Falkland Islands.

"PARASITE"

The darling of the most recent movie-award season, this feature made major strides for the South Korean film industry, earning many honors including the Cannes Film Festival's Palme d'Or and four Oscars that encompassed best picture and best director (for Bong Joon-ho). Making its home-video debut as a Criterion Collection offering, the tale follows several relatives who face financial struggles and try to better their lot in life by posing as more-qualified help in order to be hired by a wealthy family. The movie's tone changes radically as it unfolds, a major factor in gaining it the major international attention it received. Song Kang-ho and Lee Sun-kyun portray the patriarchs of the two central families. DVD extras: theatrical trailers; audio commentary by Joon-ho and critic Tony Rayns; black-and-white version of the film; interviews with crew members; Cannes Film Festival press conference; Joon-ho "Master Class"; storyboards. ★★★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

"THE FLINTSTONES: THE COMPLETE SERIES"

The "modern Stone Age family" has been a staple of animation ever since the Hanna-Barbera show premiered in primetime 60 years ago, earning an Emmy nomination for outstanding comedy series along the way. As it makes its Blu-ray debut, this set compiles all of the original program's episodes (166 of them), tracing the misadventures of prehistoric pals and co-workers Fred Flintstone and Barney Rubble and their household members in the town of Bedrock ... and even their pets, including dinosaur Dino. Interestingly, the hugely familiar theme song "Meet the Flintstones" wasn't added until the third of the six seasons. Tony Curtis and Ann-Margret were among the guests who voiced characters inspired by their images. A very notable extra here is "The Man Called Flintstone," a 1966 theatrical feature that cashed in on the spy craze of the time by taking Fred (voiced by the TV show's Alan Reed, with his singing done by Henry Corden, who succeeded Red on television) into the world of espionage. ★★★ (Not rated)

"A CHRISTMAS LOVE STORY"

One of the most promoted holiday movies on cable last year also was one of the most engaging, thanks to winning performances by stars Kristin Chenoweth and Scott Wolf. The "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama logically makes Chenoweth's character musically inclined; she's a youth choir director whose desire to use a talented substitute (Kevin Quinn) in a Christmas Eve show is challenged by his father (Wolf), a widower who wants his son focused on getting into college. Things change as the two adults become mutually attracted, but something they don't know could impact their budding romance. Actor Eric Close ("Without a Trace") directed the film, on which Chenoweth's former "GCB" co-star Jennifer Aspen was a producer. Chenoweth and Chely Wright wrote the picture's theme song. ★★★ (Not rated: AS)

"RAMBO: THE COMPLETE STEELBOOK COLLECTION"

For a solid dose of machismo, it's hard to beat this 4K Ultra HD set of all five adventures in the movie franchise casting Sylvester Stallone as John Rambo, the troubled Vietnam War veteran whose pent-up rage comes in handy in quests to right wrongs. However, in the first and arguably best of the pictures — "First Blood" — Rambo becomes a vengeance machine when provoked by a suspicious Northwestern sheriff (Brian Dennehy), prompting his former commanding officer (Richard Crenna, who became a "Rambo" regular) to come to the scene in a bid to defuse the situation. Stallone contributed to that film's script, and he'd have an expanded role behind the scenes as the series progressed. ★★★ (R: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

"THE IPCRESS FILE"

The peak of the James Bond spy-story craze in the 1960s yielded many other espionage tales, one of the best being this 1965 adaptation of Len Deighton's novel that first gave Michael Caine the screen role of Harry Palmer, a cynical British government agent assigned to retrieve a kidnapped scientist. The mission becomes quite complicated, involving not only known enemies, but supposed allies who turn out to be enemies. The memorable score by John Barry is one of the elements here that involve Bond-movie staples, who also include executive producer Harry Saltzman and editor Peter R. Hunt. Co-star Guy Doleman appeared the same year in the 007 caper "Thunderball." Caine reprised the Palmer part several times in later theatrical films and cable movies. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

Jones dropping the bomb on Alabama opponents

As an early dark horse candidate for the Heisman Trophy, we present for your consideration Mac Jones.

Indeed, in their redshirt junior quarterback, the No. 2 Crimson Tide have a signal caller who has vaulted himself into the conversation for college football's top individual honor with monster performances in the season's first two games.

In the opener of their SEC-only schedule against Missouri, Jones threw for 249 yards and two touchdowns in less than three quarters of work as the Tide rolled to a 38-19 blowout win.

Then a week later at home against Texas A&M, Jones aired it out early, connecting with WR John Metchie for a 78-yard score on the offense's third play from scrimmage. Another 87-yard touchdown to WR Jaylen Waddle would follow in the third quarter in what would be a career-best 435-yard, four-TD performance for Jones in a 52-24 domination of the then-No. 13 Aggies. His play earned him SEC Offensive Player of the Week and Maxwell Player of the Week honors.

It may be a small sample size but his numbers through two games certainly make a compelling Heisman argument: 38 of 51 passes completed (a 74.5 percent rate) for 684 yards and six touchdowns against one interception. True, he plays with a great offensive line and some of the best playmakers in college football and but he still has to get the ball to them. And that he has done with frequency – so far.

Jones and the Tide can be seen in action Saturday, Oct. 31, when they defend home turf from Mississippi State in a game airing in prime time on ESPN.

Cellphone apps for the self-respecting foodie

Perhaps you're in a strange city and need a recommendation for a rib joint or a sushi bar. Or maybe you're at the store and need a nice cabernet to go with your smoked gouda.? How about a recipe for paella to make tonight?

Who ya gonna call?

Well, you don't have to call anyone. There are now foodie apps for cellphones that fit every taste, purpose and operating system. Numbering in the hundreds, these apps can help you figure out what you want, how you can make it, where you can get it and if it can be delivered. There has been no better time to be a gourmet than right now. So check out the following.

Food Network Kitchen: Fans of the cablenet will find a library's worth of recipes from their favorite chefs, including Bobby Flay, Giada De Laurentiis, Rachael Ray and Alton Brown, plus videos with step-by-step instructions. There are also more than 25 live classes taught each week by network stars, world-famous chefs, cookbook authors and other experts.

Trip Advisor: It may be known primarily as a travel app but this longtime bellwether also contains restaurant reviews and rankings by location as well as lists of some of the hottest eateries in various cities. And of course, dinner photos – lots of dinner photos. A must for the individual who travels on their stomach.

OpenTable: In addition to information like restaurant hours, address, reviews, photos, menus and special promotions, this handy app's biggest drawing card is a functionality that allows the user to view open time slots and book a reservation for however many seats desired. It's a tool no restaurant goer should be without.

Vivino Wine Scanner: With this app, you can photograph any wine label or list and it will tell you the drink's rating and allow you to build a wine portfolio to save for the next time you go shopping. You can even order wine from the app. Never drink another glass of mediocre wine again.

Grubhub: Along with Uber Eats and DoorDash, the primary function of this app is helping you find food and getting it delivered. Information like menus, reviews, delivery charges and wait times help with the decision-making process, and you can also pay for the meal and tip through the app.

Roaming Hunger: Fans of food trucks will want to check out this app, which enables users to locate nearby food trucks and search easily for favorites. You can even peruse menus and see photos of the dishes before trying them.

Farmstand: Locavores on the lookout for the freshest locally sourced foods can download this app, which connects users to nearby farmer's markets using a location-based search function. They can also share photos and discuss items found at each market.

“Truth Seekers”

Simon Pegg (“Shaun of the Dead”) and Nick Frost (“The World’s End”) created, wrote, produced and star in this eight-episode supernatural comedy series about a team of part-time paranormal investigators who uncover and film ghostly sightings across the U.K. and then talk about their scary adventures on an online channel. Malcolm McDowell and Emma D’Arcy also star. (ORIGINAL) Series Premiere

“Movie: Borat Subsequent Moviefilm”

Subtitled “Delivery of Prodigious Bribe to American Regime for Make Benefit Once Glorious Nation of Kazakhstan,” this film finds Borat Sagdiyev (Sacha Baron Cohen) disguising himself to move more freely around America. Though few other details were available, the film is timed to the U.S. election and a scene in the trailer shows the character interrupting the Conservative Political Action Conference. So extrapolate from there.

“What the Constitution Means to Me”

Director Marielle Heller (“A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood”) brought Heidi Schreck’s Broadway show to life with this film that sees the former Constitutional debate champion resurrect her teenage self to trace the profound relationship between four generations of women and the document that shaped their lives. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: Time”

From director Garrett Bradley (“Below Dreams,” “America”) comes this documentary filmed over two decades that follows indomitable matriarch Fox Rich as she strives to raise her six sons and keep her family together and fights for her husband’s release from a 60-year prison sentence in Louisiana.
