Maura Tierney and Jeff Daniels star in "American Rust," premiering Sunday on Showtime.

Showtime's 'American Rust' a tale of family, despair and murder

Del Harris is a man whose calm, composed exterior belies a war going on inside.

As played by Jeff Daniels ("The Newsroom," "Steve Jobs") in the Showtime drama series "American Rust," premiering Sunday, Sept. 12, he's the chief of police in Buell, Pa., a forlorn Rust Belt town outside of Pittsburgh that's pockmarked by deserted factories and empty, decaying buildings.

A veteran of the war in Iraq, he takes a cocktail of opioids to keep his PTSD at bay but struggles with maintaining the diminishing dosages his doctor prescribed. He has a love interest in Grace (Maura Tierney, "The Affair"), but she also has an ex-husband who won't go away and a son, Billy (Alex Neustaedter, "Colony"), who has a propensity for getting into trouble after turning down a football scholarship and getting dumped by the love of his life, Lee (newcomer Julia Mayorga).

But despite everything, Del still pines for Grace and is protective of Billy, even stepping in to get the kid probation after he clubbed a guy with a board in a bar fight. But when a dead body turns up in an abandoned mill and Billy is implicated, Del must decide the lengths to which he will go to protect the son of the woman he loves.

Based on the novel by Philipp Meyer, the series is the story of good people making bad choices in places that progress seems to have left behind, the type of people that Daniels, a native Michigander, knows well.

"I am one of those folks that comes from a part of the country that can feel less, can feel inferior, the fly-over country, the you're-not-from-the-coasts," the actor explains. "So I understand that. I'd lived with it as an actor going in and sitting in waiting rooms against people from Yale and Juilliard and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts. I understand those people and that person."

Del's relationship with Grace is reflective of that. He clearly cares for her but she seems on the fence about him, and when he sees her with her ex, he backs off. But Daniels' working relationship with Tierney is the opposite. He praises his co-star for being a smart actress, a worthy acting partner and someone who "jumped off the cliff with me" in terms of making acting choices.

"I've always said half my performance is in the other actor, which is another way of saying listen and react," Daniels says. "And if you do that, you'll have chemistry but you can't do that with someone who's just waiting for you to stop talking and then is going to do whatever they're going to do. Maura didn't do that. Maura said, 'Oh, OK, I get it,' and jumped in. ... Now you've got that thing they call chemistry and that happened early on with us."

Relax. We've got this.

DISCOVER FLORIDA'S FIRST LIGHTHOUSE

In 1980, St. Johns County Commissioners debated demolishing the burned-out keepers' house as a public safety hazard. Members of the Junior Service League of St. Augustine founded the Lighthouse Museum of St. Augustine as a community service project, leading a grass-roots effort to save the burned-out keepers' house.

The result of the League's determination is today's St. Augustine Lighthouse & Maritime Museum, Inc., which secured federal 501(c)(3) status as a charitable non-profit Florida corporation.

2021 a key year for Giants' Daniel Jones

It's Year 5 of the rebuild and the New York Giants' faithful are more than ready to see some winning football.

Toward that end, Big Blue GM Dave Gettleman made a few moves this offseason to bring in offensive talent via free agency (WRs Kenny Golladay and John Ross III, TE Kyle Rudolph) and the draft (WR Kadarius Toney) to give some life to an attack that ranked second-to-last in 2020, ahead of only their MetLife Stadium co-tenants, the New York Jets.

It also gives Daniel Jones some weapons to work with. This is a make-or-break year for the third year signal caller. In an era when rookie quarterbacks are expected to perform at a high level right away, the Giants' patience with Jones, whose drafting with the sixth overall pick in 2019 raised eyebrows, is an exception to what has become the rule. But that patience is wearing thin.

And rightly so. The Giants' record in Jones's starts over the past two seasons is 8-18 and he's consistently ranked in the bottom third of the league in many key categories, right there among journeymen and potential trade pieces.

True, he was without explosive runner Saquon Barkley last year but now he's back and presumably healthy. Given his return and the team's offseason moves, there are no more excuses.

The future is now for Jones and the Giants, and they can be seen in action Thursday, Sept. 16, when they drop in on the Washington Football Team in a game airing on NFL Network.

Celebs become videographers in Season 3 of Fuse's 'Made From Scratch'

If Fuse's "Made From Scratch" seems to have taken on a more intimate tone in Season 3, it might be because of the way the eight episodes were shot.

Premiering Wednesday, Sept. 15, the new installments of the half-hour series that follows musical artists in their kitchens as they and kin prepare family recipes were actually shot by the subjects themselves. There were no production crews this time around, a concession to the pandemic, only camera packs and lighting shipped to the celebs' homes with instructions on set-up and use.

According to Jon Scarlett, Fuse Media's vice president of content and a producer on the show, all the artists acquitted themselves quite nicely as their own videographers.

"It worked well with kind of the overall narrative of the show," he explains. "It's not just playing on titles, it's not just about the artist's background and how they're made from scratch or even how the dishes they're creating are made from scratch. But really the show itself is made from scratch in the way that the artists themselves are taking it upon themselves to really produce it and shoot it."

This season, the focus shifts to younger artists as viewers get to go inside the kitchens of pop singer/actress Becky G, singer/songwriter Maria Isabel, rapper Smino, R&B singer Joyce Wrice and singer/songwriter/actress Tinashe, and watch them prepare a dish with a close family member as they let down their guard and reveal how family and food has shaped their identity as people and artists.

"One of the best environments for that is in the kitchen," Scarlett says, "or hanging around the dinner table and having a home-cooked meal with somebody you grew up with. So we were able to lean into that.

"And obviously this show is not a cooking show," he continues. "We're not lifting out recipes and having the audience kind of follow along what they're making. It's more about the interaction and the sharing of anecdotes and stories and really heartfelt conversations around food and dining with a loved one. And that's really what the show is about. More so than just kind of two people in the kitchen cooking, it's really about sharing those intimate moments."

But still, while the emphasis is on family and intimate moments, the recipes prepared in Season 3 will be made available via the "Made From Scratch" web page (www.fuse.tv/shows/made-from-scratch/Pj1MPw0nxcl3) and social media for anyone who wants to follow along.
