Will Smith hosts "Welcome to Earth," premiering Wednesday on Disney+.

'Welcome to Earth' spotlights the subtle awesomeness of nature on Disney+

It may have the title "Welcome to Earth," but the new Disney+ documentary series might well be subtitled, "Phenomena in Nature You Never Considered." Because it's that eye-opening.

Premiering Wednesday, Dec. 8, on the streaming service, the series from National Geographic follows host Will Smith as he embarks on an awe-inspiring journey to reveal the secrets behind some of the most extraordinary and unexplained events in nature.

So in the six episodes, viewers will learn how swarms of hundreds of thousands of birds or honeybees can move as a single unit without any apparent communication; how smell, the most powerful of the senses, leads sea turtles back to an island in the South Pacific to lay eggs; and how deserts move slowly beyond human perception.

Smith, who had previously worked on the NatGeo series "One Strange Rock," acts as the eyes and the ears of the viewer here, taking in the action as it unfolds before him and speaking wide-eyed in narration and to the camera.

"He doesn't pretend to be a scientist or a volcanologist or an expert in anything," explains Jane Root, an executive producer of the series for her production company Nutopia. "(His attitude is,) 'I'm the person who's there seeing what you can see about the planet.' And the thing he also talks about (is) what you can see about the planet on the other side of fear. He says his grandmother always said to him that the best things in life are (discovered) once you get through being scared of them."

Fear certainly played a role in the opening episode "The Silent Roar," in which Smith, explorer Erik Weihenmayer and the crew went to Tanna Island in the South Pacific near Vanuatu to film and listen to the active volcano of Mount Yasur rumble. But the group actually got more than they expected when it erupted, spewing forth lava and boulders.

Needless to say, it was one of those life experiences that all who witnessed it will never forget.

"Some of the boulders were the size of, you know, small cars and they're kind of just exploding out of the ground," Root says. "And you see Will joking about it, like 'I'm wearing this helmet but that's not really going to help, is it?'"

"We had probably at the top of that volcano like 12 different safety people and every safety precaution we could take but this is still really challenging stuff to film," she continues. "You know, there's still a sense of, 'Wow! Am I actually here while this is going on? That's incredible.' And the noise and the intensity of it, I think that's why we put that episode first because it's one of those moments where we just appreciate the awesomeness of it."

Relax. We've got this.

DISCOVER FLORIDA'S FIRST LIGHTHOUSE

all began...

To understand the significance of Menorcan's at the St. Augustine Lighthouse, we must recognize their role in its history. Many lightkeepers were of Menorcan descent, including Juan Andreu, the first lighthouse keeper in the newly lit St. Augustine Lighthouse, Juan Carrera, Joseph Andreu, Maria Andreu, and Siladonio Pellicer. These individuals, whose ancestors traveled to New Smyrna to work as indentured servants, were instrumental in the rise of Menorcan culture in St. Augustine.

Perhaps the most notable of Menorcan Lighthouse Keepers was Maria de los Delores Menstre Andreu, a woman of many firsts. After her husband Juan's tragic passing, Maria became the first female lighthouse keeper and Hispanic-American woman to serve in the United States Coast Guard and command a federal shore installation, setting a precedent for Hispanic American women serving in the military. For over 150 years, Maria Andreu's trailblazing experience has inspired generations of women to serve their country.

“Earth Emergency” (PBS — documentary premiere, Dec. 29)

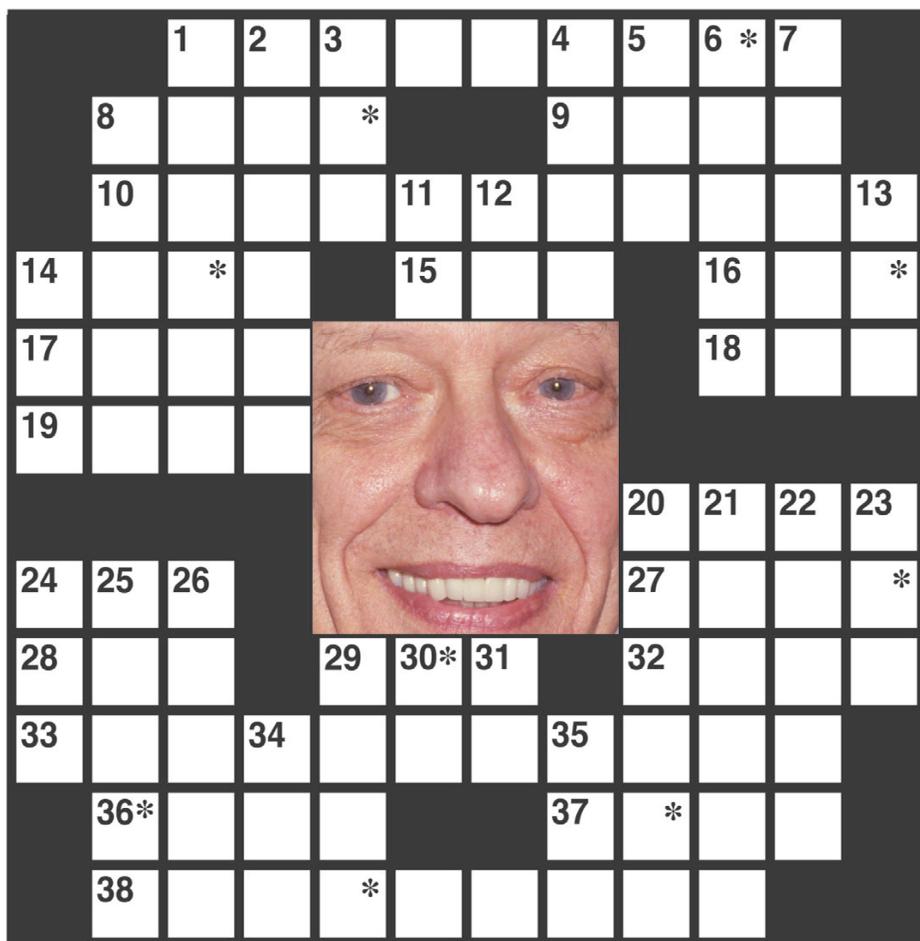

Richard Gere narrates this one-hour documentary in which a number of respected climate scientists explain how human activity causes dangerous warming “feedback loops” that push the climate to a point of no return, and discuss what can be done to stop them. The overall tone of the documentary, while stark in its warning, is somewhat more hopeful than other such projects, presenting a happier future if changes are made soon. Climate activist Greta Thunberg, actress Jane Fonda and the Dalai Lama also are featured.

Young hopes to bring Heisman home to Alabama

For a football program that has produced legendary quarterbacks such as Joe Namath, Bart Starr and Ken Stabler, the Alabama Crimson Tide surprisingly enough has not had one win a Heisman Trophy.

But that could change with Bryce Young. At this writing, the 20-year-old sophomore from Southern California was the odds-on favorite to take home college football's most prestigious honor.

As of late October, the first-year starter was among the nation's leading passers, completing 187 of 267 passes (a 70 percent rate) for 2,453 yards (sixth in the nation) and 26 touchdowns (third) against only three interceptions in eight games for a QB rating of 88.5.

The performances for such an inexperienced field general have been impressive. Probably his best came in Week 4 against Southern Mississippi, when he threw for 313 yards and five touchdowns on 20-of-22 passing in the Tide's 63-14 romp. Then there was his Week 8 effort against Tennessee, when he completed 31-of-43 passes for 371 yards and two touchdowns and ran for another two scores in 'Bama's 52-24 blowout of their SEC rival.

Young had big shoes to fill when he replaced last year's starter Mac Jones (who himself is now thriving as a first-year starter for the New England Patriots). If he can take home a Heisman in his first year under center, the name Bryce Young will go down as one of the greats among Alabama quarterbacks.

The 87th Heisman Trophy presentation takes place in prime time on Saturday, Dec. 11, and airs on ESPN.

Creative ideas for your ho-ho-holiday dinner courtesy of Food Network

It's three weeks before Christmas, a time when the discriminating foodie goes on the lookout for holiday baking or meal ideas.

Food Network is there to help, offering up an array of new and repeat episodes on everything from appetizers, entrees and beverages adult and otherwise to cakes, pies, cookies and all manner of pastries – from here and abroad. So check out what's in store for the coming week.

On the subject of international foods, Giada De Laurentiis puts an Italian spin on things in her "Giada's Holiday Handbook" on Sunday, Dec. 5, throwing a holiday party complete with a family-style meal that includes roasted fennel, creamy lobster pasta and chocolate almond cheesecake. Try to resist.

Also that morning on "Girl Meets Farm," host Molly Yeh prepares a day's worth of Scandinavian meals in honor of her farming family. For breakfast, she bakes a spiced cardamom wreath and for dinner, it's a menu consisting of meatballs and lutefisk (a lye-cured fish), and a fluffy Norwegian cream cake. Expand your horizons with this exotic fare.

Kardea Brown is also in the holiday mood that morning on "Delicious Miss Brown," which finds her in her coastal South Carolina kitchen preparing a dinner for family that consists of a brown sugar glazed ham with cloves, red rice perloo and a green bean casserole. And for dessert, it's an apple cider cobbler. Southern fare from the heart of Low Country.

Later in the week on the morning of Saturday, Dec. 11, Ina Garten is busy at work on "Barefoot Contessa: Back to Basics," preparing a seasonal brunch of morning glory muffins, a fresh fruit platter, shakshuka with feta and a spicy bloody Mary. Sweet and savory – hard not to like this.

Then on "The Pioneer Woman," Ree Drummond gets in a festive spirit with a menu of apple, brie and mushrooms en croute, a traditional eggnog in a ginger crumb-rimmed glass and an ugly sweater cake. She also prepares a berry basil vodka and festive marinated olives for a happy hour gift basket. A decidedly adult meal.

Also that morning, the chefs of "The Kitchen" are in the holiday spirit, highlighted by Sunny Anderson's pesto and ricotta crostini and Geoffrey Zakarian's tostones with tuna tartare and adobo chili. Certainly, outside-the-box ideas for your holiday table.

And on "Trisha's Southern Kitchen," host Trisha Yearwood does her holiday party right with a menu consisting of a holiday biscuit wreath, red and green holiday deviled eggs, a grits and greens casserole and milk and cookies fudge. Yum!
