COVER STORY

New York Butcher Shoppe has selections for any occasion

Sometimes the best way to gauge the viability of a business is to first be a customer. And that's what started Greg Fowler and Kayce Campbell down the path to owning a New York Butcher Shoppe in Ponte Vedra.

They are from Charleston, South Carolina, where the original New York Butcher Shoppe is located, and there are now multiple stores in that area. They first fell in love with the concept as customers.

"We were looking to open a New York Butcher Shoppe in North Florida and were given the opportunity to purchase the existing store in Ponte Vedra Beach," said the owners.

They bought the business in January 2022

New York Butcher Shoppe is a specialty grocery store, butcher shop and wine boutique. It offers certified Angus Beef brand, prepared meals, deli sandwiches, competitively priced wines and more.

Fowler and Campbell describe their business as "small, quaint and personable" and say each shopper gets a unique experience. It offers rare quality, and service is done well. They say they want their customers to feel "warm and welcomed, taken care of" and to have confidence in their purchases "from our store to the dinner table."

Customers know they can go to New York Butcher Shoppe for anything from a quick, homemade, prepared meal to a special-occasion novelty item.

According to the owners, their objective is to "pour ourselves into the community and provide rare quality and well-done service."

New York Butcher Shoppe employs eight, with the youngest being the owners' 3-year-old son, who enjoys helping customers on Saturdays.

New York Butcher Shoppe is located at 240 A1A N., Suite 4, Ponte Vedra Beach. The phone number is 904-686-1682. Email: pontevedra@nybutcher.net.

For further information or to see what the shop offers, go to local.nybutcher.com/ponte-vedra.

It can be found on social media at facebook.com/nybutcherpontevedra and Instagram @newyorkbutcherpontevedrabeach.

"Movie: Flawless"

They played father and daughter their first time around (in "Blame It on Rio"), but Michael Caine and Demi Moore are partners in crime in director Michael Radford's drama. Caine plays a janitor in 1960s London who preys upon the career frustration of Moore's businesswoman character to stage a diamond theft. Veteran character actor Joss Ackland co-stars.

"Movie: Before Midnight"

The "Before Sunrise" and "Before Sunset" saga of Jesse and Celine continues in this third round that reunites stars Ethan Hawke and Julie Delpy, who also have writing credits on the film, with director Richard Linklater. Now parents as well as a couple, they ponder what lies ahead for them during a stay in Greece. The presence of Jesse's teenage son (Seamus Davey-Fitzpatrick) intensifies matters.

"Solar Opposites"

The third season of this comedy about a team of aliens who come to Earth and are split over its culture's worthiness finds Korvo, Yumyulack, Terry and Jesse striving to be less of a team and more of a family. Series co-creator Justin Roiland, Thomas Middleditch, Mary Mack and Sean Giambrone return to supply the character voices. (ORIGINAL)

"Victoria's Secret: Angels and Demons"

Journalist Matt Tyrnauer ("The Reagans") is the driving force behind this documentary series that tells the story of the lingerie franchise from its beginnings as a small mail-order brand to its rise as a global giant and its implosion, beset by allegations of harassment at the top of the company, workplace toxicity, sexism and financial problems. Jeff Mauro gets in the middle of the block party on Food Network's 'Kitchen Crash'

Jeff Mauro is all about block parties.

Growing up in the Chicago area, his neighborhood held them every summer and he always got involved. He still lives there as an adult, and these days he's right in the thick of things, even providing the entertainment with his band, the Jewel Bags.

It's a love he also gets to include as host of "Kitchen Crash." Opening its four-episode second season Tuesday, July 12, on Food Network, the hourlong series brings three professional chefs to block parties in the New York City area to convince residents to hand over the contents of their refrigerators, pantries and cupboards, from which they will create gourmet-quality comestibles in a mobile outdoor kitchen.

The final products that most impress Mauro and a rotating panel of judges including Cliff Crooks, Marc Murphy, Julian Rodarte and Justin Sutherland, wins a $5,000 grand prize for the chef that created it and the family that provided the ingredients.

"We found the greatest blocks that throw the greatest block parties, like throw legendary block parties," Mauro explains. "And I'm fortunate enough to live in the neighborhood I grew up in, and our block parties have always been to the point where you would invite a hundred people to your block party. I've done that before, with food trucks and bartenders. So I was ready for this. ... We just found blocks that believe in the sport of block party throwing every summer and we just happened to shoot a show on that day."

Unlike other competition series such as "Chopped" and "Guy's Grocery Games" where chefs are drawing from the same source, here no two kitchens are alike, so the chefs have completely different ingredients with which to work. And some of those can be quite esoteric, like the Turkish rub that has been in one family for generations or the peppers that another clan has grown from seedlings for years. And that is certainly reflected in the dishes these chefs turn out.

Out in the crowd, Mauro is helping create a festive atmosphere and just drinking it all in – literally – as one of the attendees.

"I'm not going in my trailer and taking a 15-minute break. There are no breaks on this show ...," he says. "No, I'm playing basketball, I'm running foot races, I'm doing keg stands with the party house — no joke. I'm doing shots with the other party house. I'm completely embedded within the block party. Because again, this is my life. I live it. I live in the neighborhood still and that's why this show is so perfect for me."
