"Chasing the Rains"
airs Saturday on BBC
America and AMC+.

Earth Day 2023 – Programmers mark the event with environmentally-oriented content

Saturday, April 22, marks the 54th Earth Day and with it comes some noteworthy programming on broadcast, cable and streaming that celebrate the environment and all that live in it.

Leading the parade is "Secrets of the Elephants." Premiering Friday, April 21, on National Geographic (and available the next day on Disney+), the four-part documentary series from executive producer James Cameron travels the world from the savannas of Africa to the urban landscapes of Asia to spotlight the strategic thinking, complex emotions and sophisticated language of these gentle giants that help shape their unique culture. Narrated by Natalie Portman, it also reveals how similar they are to humans.

The next day on Nat Geo, the documentary "Path of the Panther" follows National Geographic Explorer and photographer Carlton Ward Jr. as he ventures into the uncharted world of the Florida Panther, whose habitat in the Everglades is shrinking in an area on the brink of ecological collapse.

Over on PBS on Wednesday, April 19 (check local listings), is the Season 2 premiere of "Changing Planet," which revisits six of the Earth's most vulnerable ecosystems and catches up with the scientists and experts introduced in the first season who are working to safeguard their communities and wildlife. Dr. M. Sanjayan hosts this season's episodes from Australia, a country suffering from the devastating effects of climate change but also on the forefront of potential solutions.

Climate change also plays a leading role in "Chasing the Rains," premiering Saturday on BBC America and AMC+. Narrated by actor Adjoa Andoh ("Bridgerton"), the three-part documentary series goes to Kenya to follow three animal matriarchs – an elephant, a wild dog and a cheetah – as they try to raise their young in an environment stricken by a prolonged drought and patrolled by hungry predators. AMC+ subscribers also get a "Making of" documentary that also drops on Earth Day.

If the environment in the Cretaceous Period is of interest, Apple's "Pre-historic Planet," from Jon Favreau and the makers of "Planet Earth," may be worth checking out. Streaming its first season all month, it combines cutting-edge wildlife filmmaking, state-of-the-art technology and the latest paleontological findings to show what life was like for dinosaurs and present little-known facts about their environment. Season 2 of the series arrives on May 22.

Also streaming all month on Netflix are the first two seasons of "Down to Earth With Zac Efron," in which the Emmy-winning actor journeys around the world with wellness expert Darin Olien to seek out healthy, sustainable ways to live.

And on the travel/lifestyle streaming service and app Journey is the documentary "One Ocean," which follows leading marine scientists who endeavor to learn more about the four oceans' past and present in order to preserve their future.

“Movie: The Quake”

From Norway comes this 2018 actioner about a geologist who becomes estranged from his family after predicting a mammoth earthquake would hit Oslo, a forecast that proves to be correct. Kristoffer Joner, Ane Dahl-Torp, Kathrine Thorborg Johansen and Edith Haagenrud-Sande head the cast for director: John Andreas Andersen (“The Burning Sea”).

“Pretty Baby: Brooke Shields”

This two-part documentary examines the early life of actor/model Brooke Shields and the sexual objectification she endured as a child actor. She talks for the first time about her experiences in Hollywood, tracking her rise as a child model to her sexualization in movies starting at age 12 in “Pretty Baby,” and then at 15 in “The Blue Lagoon.” It also focuses on Shield’s volatile relationship with her mother/manager Teri Shields. (ORIGINAL)

“The Pope: Answers”

From Spain comes this special that focuses on a meeting between Pope Francis and 10 young adults of disparate backgrounds to discuss a variety of topics important to them, including feminism, loss of faith, the migration crisis, LGBTQIA& rights, abuse within the Church, racism and mental health. (ORIGINAL)

“The Good Mothers”

From Italy comes this crime drama series that tells the story of Anna Colace (Barbara Chichiarelli, “Suburra: Blood on Rome”), a bright, young prosecutor who works with the oppressed wives and mothers of gangsters in the crime organization ’Ndrangheta to bring down its bosses from within. Gaia Girace, Valentina Bellè and Francesco Colella also star. (ORIGINAL)

Contestants get an immersive Italian cooking education on Food Network's 'Ciao House'

To understand Italian cooking, one must understand Italians – and vice versa. And so it is that 10 American chefs find themselves in a Tuscan villa learning and demonstrating the finer points of the craft in a competition/reality series upcoming on Food Network.

In "Ciao House," premiering Sunday, April 16, these rising culinary stars are given an immersive experience at an idyllic villa outside Florence, where they'll live together and be called upon to prove their mastery of Italian cooking techniques and dishes.

So in the eight episodes, they'll be challenged to demonstrate such classic techniques as making pasta and grilling steak over an open fire. In addition, they'll meet a butcher and a cheesemonger whose families have been in their respective businesses for centuries, and they'll also get to drink in the breathtaking beauty of Tuscany and all it has to offer.

Teams and alliances will form and competitors will be eliminated until only one chef is left standing to claim a life-changing grand prize of an immersive culinary education across Italy. Alex Guarnaschelli hosts alongside Tuscan chef Gabriele Bertaccini.

"If you want to understand Italian food, you have to live like an Italian," Bertaccini, a native of Florence, explains. "And I think that is the key to this whole show, is that once they live in the villa, once they actually experience the way of life that is carried on through Italy, then they are really able to understand the nuances of Italian cooking."

"This process was important for them," he continues, "because they were able to understand how it connects from the land to the dish and how important their job as chef is to kind of carry on the heritage and the culture as a chef and a storyteller. So we physically hear what the cheesemonger has to say, we taste the cheese and then our responsibility is to physically deliver (the dish) to the customer and try to let it (speak for) itself."

What also factors into the series is its reality-show component. In addition to the head-to-head competition, cameras will follow the chefs as they live together at Monsignor della Casa, a villa about 30 minutes north of Florence. So the tensions and frayed nerves that result from such close quarters will become apparent, notes Bertaccini.

"It's fascinating to see how different personalities play throughout the show," he says, "and definitely they do have an impact on their ability to either execute successfully different challenges or not. So the dynamic of it is an element of the show that is very, very interesting and it definitely plays out towards the end."

“Redefined: J.R. Smith”

This four-part documentary series follows the story of J.R. Smith, who at age 19 was drafted out of high school into the NBA with the 18th overall pick in 2004. Seven years later, he would find himself without an NBA team and looking to redefine his life and career, getting a college education and finding a new athletic pursuit in golf in the process. (ORIGINAL)

“Alex Borstein: Corsets & Clown Suits”

The “Marvelous Mrs. Maisel” actress comes forth with her first comedy special, which is a deeply personal and wildly fictitious account of one woman’s attempt to mess with perception in a night of comedy, music and waxing rhapsodic. In a nod to “Maisel,” the performance was taped at the Wolford Theater, the fictional burlesque club from the Emmy-winning series’ fourth season. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: Judy Blume Forever”

This documentary from filmmakers Davina Pardo (“Queen of Hearts: Audrey Flack”) and Leah Wolchok (“Very Semi-Serious”) examines the impact of Blume, the novelist best known for works such as “Are You There God? It’s Me, Margaret” and “Deenie,” on pop culture and the occasional controversies over her frankness about puberty and sex. (ORIGINAL) Premiere

“Dead Ringers”

Rachel Weisz (“Disobedience”) plays the dual lead characters in this modern-day update of David Cronenberg’s 1988 thriller about twin siblings who push the boundaries of medical ethics to challenge antiquated practices and bring women’s health care to the forefront. Britne Oldford, Poppy Liu, Michael Chernus and Jennifer Ehle also star in the limited series. (ORIGINAL) Series Premiere
