Breast Cancer Awareness Month

Don't ignore a twinge, breast lump: Vickie Hull

By DAWN HANKINS dhankins@t-g.com

Vickie Hull knows first-hand life is not always easy, especially when you're diagnosed with breast cancer—twice. But she also knows that a positive attitude is vital for continuing to live life to the

"The first time I was told I had breast cancer was in 2008. It was discovered on a routine mammogram. We had just moved into a new home. My oldest daughter had just graduated high school and had just left for college; my youngest daughter was starting kindergarten."

She knew her life was about to change.

"It felt like someone had punched me. It took a few minutes to even process what they were saying. I was by myself in the room with my mother, waiting in

She had experienced cysts before, she said, so she naturally assumed that condition had returned. "Realizing that I now had to tell my family was worse then the initial shock of finding out myself."

'I still wear pink and will always be a pink supporter, but I also want to spread the word that there is a different layer to breast cancer when it has become stage IV and that awareness and research funds are so desperately needed for Metastatic Breast Cancer.'

Council votes down subdivision annexation

By ZOË HAGGARD

zhaggard@t-g.com

Shelbyville City Council held a meeting Thursday evening to vote on a possible land annexation, equipment purchases, and the property tax relief program.

The highly-debated business item of the consideration to annex 25 acres for a possible new subdivision was brought before Council and unanimously voted down. Council member Rick Overcast made the motion to not send the consideration to the commission. This was seconded by Council member Henry Feldhaus.

The land, located north of Lewis Avenue and west of North

Linda Drive and owned by Joe Fly, Brenda Fly Clark, and Linda Fly, was brought before Council to consider a motion to forward the annexation request to the planning commission for further study. Much back-and-forth ensued between council members and the applicant for the annexation, Glen Cruzen, owner of Stucco Masters, a Nashvillebased construction company, at the last study session on Oct. 5.

At the study session, Cruzen said he would like to build a subdivision of single-family homes, 1,600-2,200 square feet with stucco siding, costing somewhere in the $250k to $300k range. He said the subdivision would be contemporary so that each house matches and all likely with small lots — traits that Cruzen said would appeal to young, millennial families.

The land would need to be annexed so the subdivision could get sewer.

"That's my neighborhood over there and we don't need any more," said Overcast at the study session. "I'm not voting and turning you loose over there to do what you want to. I want to see right now before I vote yes or no next council meeting. I want to see what's going to be there. Until you can prove that, I'm against it."

Cruzen said he lost over a million dollars in a similar situation in Decherd after their council would not endorse his idea for attracting certain businesses in their historic district after Cruzen bought half the buildings to reno-

"I thought it was unfair. I wasn't asking them for money...I don't want to get myself into that situation again," Cruzen said at the last study session.

"I don't either," said Overcast. "If it's so good, why don't you live in the county?'

"Because you can't get sewer,"

Leadership Bedford: 25 years, still strong

By ZOË HAGGARD

zhaggard@t-g.com

Leadership Bedford began over 20 years ago and was organized by the Bedford County Chamber of Commerce.

Due to pandemic regulations, there are only 15 available adult class openings this year, according to Gina Warren, who serves on the board for Leadership Bedford. Leadership Bedford is taking applications until Oct. 22 to fill the remaining five spots for their adult classes.

The organization is open to both local businesses as well as anyone who wants to be a part of the classes. Entry fee for adult classes is $500 and availability is on a first come first serve basis, according to Warren.

There are also youth classes for high school seniors this year with invitations sent directly through the school system. All 21 positions for the youth classes have been filled.

Local COVID numbers decrease

As of Thursday (latest update prior to press time) Bedford County has 203 active COVID-19 cases, according to Tennessee Department of Health.

Officials at Vanderbilt Bedford Hospital said today that the recent surge of COVID-19 in this region is lessening, which continues to be good news.

Officials said there are still many very sick people in the hospital-most unvaccinated. And, Bedford County has one of the lowest fully vaccinated populations in the state.

she calls this home. She's been married to her husband, Danny for 24 years; they have three "beautiful" daughters, Meghan, Anna Claire and Tori. Meghan is married to Brad Brown; they have two "most adorable children in the world," Amory and Waylon.

She works professionally, though on leave at the moment, as a First Community Bank loan officer. "I absolutely love my job," she said. "They have been wonderful to me during my cancer journey when it returned and became Metastatic Breast

She said she misses her co-workers and the customers. She is not sure when she'll return to the bank.

The diagnosis

According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) breast cancer is a disease in which cells in the breast grow out of control. The kind of breast cancer depends on which cells in the breast turn into cancer and it can begin in different parts of the breast.

A breast is made up of three main parts: lobules, ducts, and connective tissue. The lobules are the glands that produce milk. The ducts are tubes that carry milk to the nipple. The connective tissue (which consists of fibrous and fatty tissue) surrounds and holds everything together. Most breast cancers begin in the ducts or lobules.

Breast cancer can spread outside the breast through blood vessels and lymph vessels. When breast cancer spreads to other parts of the body, it is said to have metastasized.

Vickie understands this term all too well.

Routine checkups

Vickie knows routine checkups are vital. That may include a mammogram and depending on age, every couple of years.

"I have been having routine mammograms since I was 30, due to a cyst that I found during a self examination. I always performed self examinations monthly. Once the breast cancer was diagnosed, I had a bilateral mastectomy with reconstruction and four founds of two grandchildren. She fights against breast cancer everyday and is still winning the chemo to make sure that it did not come back." She was in Stage 1 and her lymph nodes were clear, but she wanted to do as much as possible, she said, to make sure there was no "I was told that I had a 98 percent cure rate for 5 years. What I did not pay attention to was the timeline. I was told by many that once you hit the 5-year mark, you were home free."

Vickie said she found out that was not always the

"In 2017, after 9 years of being cancer-free, I felt a twinge in my left breast and during a self-examination, discovered a small lump. I call my oncologist the next morning and she got me in that day. I had surgery to remove the lump and it came back that it was cancer, but was localized and had not spread anywhere else.'

She breathed a sigh of

"I had 33 rounds of radiation and again, I thought I was good."

In January 2019, after having some back pain for about a month, Vickie visited a clinic and had an MRI. "When I went for the results . . . just thinking I had maybe a bulging disc. I was told my L3 had compressed and that he was sure that my cancer had returned in this area and I had spots on several other vertebrae."

She was a Metastatic Breast Cancer patient, which meant although it was located in other areas of the body, it's still considered breast cancer.

"I have been on several different treatments since then and it was discovered in March of 2020 that I also had lesions in my liver. I am currently participating in a trial that has improved the liver lesions and kept my bones stable. I am receiving IV treatments and adjusting to the side effects."

As a Metastatic Breast Cancer patient, she will always be on some form of treatment. But, she's still smiling. "We are never considered cured and stable or reduced is great! Some do reach the ultimate goal of No Evidence of Active Disease, but it could rear its ugly head at any time." Vickie said she still considers herself, despite her condition, "a very happy person" and she tries not to get depressed about her health.

"I am blessed and try to live my life to the fullest and plan on being here for many years to come. you just try to get as long as you can from each treatment, before you have to switch to something else, because the cancer has found a way to become resistant to the treatment. There are new treatments that are begin developed and for that, I am truly grateful, but more research is needed."

Advice to others

Vickie said definitely believes in taking the time for breast self examinations and mammograms. She also advises that no breast cancer patient should bet complacent about continuing regular checkups with their doctor.

She tells others if they have a pain or something doesn't feel just right, they should call their oncologist and tell them. One of the statistics she said she still finds "mind-blowing" is that 20-30% of patients who have been diagnosed with an earlier stage of breast cancer will experience metastasis and progress to stage IV months, years, or even decades later. And of the breast cancer research funds, a very small percentage goes toward Metastatic Breast Cancer, she advised.

Breast cancer pink

"I wore lots of pink during the month of October for years, when I thought I had beat it. There is a Metastatic Breast Cancer ribbon that was developed by Metavivor and is green, teal and pink."

She explains the green represents the triumph of spring over winter, life over death and symbolizes renewal, hope and immortality. Teal symbolizes healing and spirituality. The pink ribbon overlay signifies that the metastatic cancer originated in the breast.

"I still wear pink and will always be a pink supporter, but I also want to spread the word that there is a different layer to breast cancer when it has become stage IV and that awareness and research funds are so desperately needed for Metastatic Breast Cancer."

Vickie continues to be involved in her community; she recently received a pin recognizing her as a Rotary Paul Harris Fellow Plus 1 for donations of more than $2,000 to the Rotary Foundation. "I have always tried to stay involved in my community and support all of the activities that my children were win and now, my grandchildren."

uled class days from Nov. through April; graduation is set for April 26.

According to Warren, adults and students participate in the same agenda, while the retreat will feature indoor and outdoor activities focusing on leadership and communication

"The retreat really just kicks off the year to help the class get to know one another too," said Warren. Each month then focuses on a specific area of "community leadership.

"The first class in November will focus on local government, tourism, and Bedford Couty history. One day will also focus on local industry and entrepreneurial businesses and how they work with industrial development to bring in new businesses to the county. Education, medical and social services, public safety, and local military are other topics that are covered in the classes."

The days are filled with visits to local businesses and industry, medical/ social service organizations, learning about local emergency services and about local government and history. The days have several people that represent the focus day who talk to the group and lead tours," said Warren.

Towards the spring, the Leadership Befdord classes will take a trip to Nashville for a tour of the Capitol and to meet with state representatives to learn about local government. Warren said they are hoping they can take a day in the spring to focus on local agriculture. Warren emphasized that these plans are subject to change due to COVID-

"The Leadership Bedford board members were disappointed that the program could not be held in 2020 due to COVID-19. I am proud to serve with so many dedicated professionals, and we are excited to start the 2021/2022 Leadership Bedford program in November. As a Chamber of Commerce program, we are proud to again be able to share with participants so many great things Shelbyville and Bedford County have to offer as we visit and learn from many of our community business and government leaders. We can't wait to get started!" said Daniel Watson, Leadership Bedford's board president.

Giving back

But Leadership Bedford also presents a time to give back to the community through their local projects. The youth and adults typically have separate projects with the adults having a little more independence, Warren said, which involves fundraising. More than $15,000 were raised by the 2019 class.

"Our class, in particular, raised money for the local animal shelter, the one on Industrial Boulevard. So, it can be anything from purchasing equipment that a nonprofit business can

The animal shelter was given almost $11,000. One class built an outdoor picnic pavilion at the senior citizen center.

What's different this year?

This year's program will also include the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator assessment.

"A foundational strength of every leader is selfawareness, so understanding how your individual preferences are influence the culture in which everyone operates is a key to good leadership," Warren

Double duty for the dishwasher ear Readers: The dishwasher in our homes is an essential kitchen appliance for many of us. We use it daily and fill it with pots, pans, cooking utensils and just about everything we use for the preparation of our food. But it can also be utilized to clean a variety of other items you have around your house.

The following can be placed in the dishwasher for cleaning, but wash them separately from dishes: flip-flops, small plastic toys, brushes and combs (with hair removed), and cotton baseball caps (not old or valuable wool ones). You also can put in sink stoppers, sponges, stove grates and removable shelves from the refrigerator. -- Heloise

GETTING ORGANIZED

Dear Heloise: My husband has multiple medical issues and many doctors. My best idea was to make file folders with labels like Heart, Knees, Vision, Hearing, Back/ Spine, Skin, Prostate, Medications, etc. On the file folder cover, I staple the doctor's business card. Also, on the cover I write the date of surgery or procedure and a brief note about each office visit. Inside each folder I put all the paperwork, results, notes and referrals. This has been so helpful through the years when we need to find dates and information. -- Sue Langan, Whittier,

Sue, congrats on setting up these files to handle all the medical information. This organized information would be easy to enter on a computer, too. -- Heloise lightly scrub. Then rinse, pat dry and put on your normal face cream.

Baking soda is indispensable around the house, and because it's an inexpensive product, it also saves you money. For more helpful hints about baking soda, order my six-page Heloise's Baking Soda Hints and Recipes pamphlet by sending $5 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (75 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Baking Soda, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. FYI: To clean your fingernails, sprinkle a bit of baking soda on a small nail brush and brush gently. -- Heloise

CURIOUS CATS

Dear Readers:

Several of you have written to me about your cats, who love to curl up in just about anything. That includes washers and dryers. Cats like the warmth of the dryer and will sleep on top of it or jump inside. Always check before you turn them on. This is also a reminder that it's a good idea to keep the doors or lids closed. -- Heloise.

DISTRICT THRILLER

Lady Champs down Viqueens in OT for 6-A crown

By CHRIS SIERS

Any time Cascade and Community meet on the field, both teams and fans alike are going to be delighted to a full-tilt rivalry showdown.

Thursday night's District 6-A championship was no exception.

Full of drama till the final whistle, it was Cascade who rallied from an early deficit and scored an overtime goal to edge out the Viqueens for the 2-1 win.

"Neither team wanted to lose the game and both teams are extremely tired. We had a couple of chances. Hard fought game. Either team could have won it. I told the girls that if you go out and do the best you can and give your best effort, all you can do is congratulate that team and walk off," Viqueen coach Chris Brothers said.

It figures that 80 minutes wouldn't be enough to determine the winner between the two Bedford County clubs.

"Both teams gave everything they had. You could see it going into overtime," Lady Champion coach Wendy Williams said.

Both squads had multiple scoring opportunities throughout the first half, but neither was able to crack through the opposition defense—until the 32nd minute.

Following a strong showing by the Viqueen freshmen in the 6-A semifinals against Forrest, it was Purple and Gold freshman Alisha Hartsfield who broke the scoreless stalemate, corralled a rebound and fired a shot to the back of the net for the first score of the night. That score held through the remainder of the half and Community carried a 1-0 lead into the second half.

Cascade entered the second half and was able to set up multiple runs on the Community goal, but it wasn't until an Abby Harris goal in the 60th minute that evened the score at one

With both teams becoming visibly exhausted from the number of runs on goal, neither team was able to successfully execute its offense for the remainder of regulation.

And then the drama

Community nearly took the lead on a Jemima Ramos shot with under two minutes left in the first overtime, but her shot missed just high of the crossbar, however. Sarah Woolbright added another shot on goal barely 40 seconds later, but was again denied by Lady Champion goal keeper, Makenna Lamb.

Eventually, it was Cascade who broke the 1-1 stalemate when Caroline Stone bolted down the right flank and fired a cross in front of the goal.

During the skirmish, Harris, along with Kelsey Shatley were in the mix, battling for possession.

In the end, it was Shatley who fired a shot to Viqueen keeper Carlie Blanton, who came up with the ball, but was beyond the line to gain in the net and Cascade was awarded the go-ahead goal with just nine seconds left in the first overtime. "In the second half, they came out and they just wanted it. They just gave it everything they had," Williams said.

The frantic play continued into the seconds 10-minute overtime period as both teams continued to mount runs on goal, but again, it was a last-second bit of drama that gave the Viqueens a flicker of hope at forcing a tie. With 1:32 left on the clock, Community was awarded a penalty within the box and junior Addison Brothers lined up what would have been the tying penalty kick.

Her shot was blocked by Lamb, who was able to preserve the one-goal lead and Cascade was able to milk the remainder of the clock to secure the 2-1 victory.

"She (Lamb) has really stepped in when we've needed her. She did an outstanding job," Williams

All-District Earning nods for the Lady Champions were Abby Claire Lamb, Caroline Stone, Rachel Phillips and Kelsey Shatley.

All-District winners for the Viqueens were Addison Brothers, Abby Murrill and Riley Patterson.

was named District Goalkeeper of the Year, while Community's Zoey Dixon was named as the Offensive Player of the Year for District 6-A. For Community, the loss isn't the end of the road, but sets the Viqueens on a collision course with a familiar opponent-Chattanooga School of Arts and Sciences, who Community defeated 3-1 in the region semifinals a year ago. "We played this team last year and was able to beat them last year, but I'm sure they're a little better. We have five returning players that have a lot of experience and our freshmen have come on strong throughout the year. I feel pretty confident. And who knows, this may be a rematch (against Cascade) for the region (championship)," Brothers

Kiffin, No. 13 Ole Miss visit Vols in offensive showdown

By AL LESAR

Associated Press

KNOXVILLE Tennessee is throwing quite a party for Lane Kiffin's first game back in Knoxville as a head coach. Neyland Stadium is sold out for the first time since September 2017, and fans will be organized in orange and white sections for a Vols' checkerboard effect also for the first time since 2017 to greet Kiffin and his 13th-ranked Mississippi Rebels. "Obviously that means there's a lot of energy and excitement around there,'

Kiffin said.

Once the ball kicks off Saturday night, that's when the real fireworks start in a showdown between two of the nation's most prolific offenses. Ole Miss is second both in running 2.89 offensive plays a minute and scoring 1.75 points a minute. Tennessee is third with 2.87 plays a minute and 1.58 points a minute.

Ole Miss (4-1, 1-1) also leads the Southeastern Conference in total offense with 561.6 yards a game with the Volunteers are third with 474 yards.

Both coaches had an up-close view of the other when Heupel was at Central Florida with Kiffin was leading Florida Atlantic. Kiffin's offensive coordinator Jeff Lebby was Heupel's quarterbacks coach in 2018 and offensive coordinator in 2019 at UCF.

Kiffin has been impressed by what the Vols (4-2, 2-1)have done in coach Josh Heupel's first season, especially coming off two straight wins including a 45-20 rout of South Carolina.

"We moved a little bit from where they're at with different plays just like they have with us, but the base system, not necessarily the routes, but the base system of how it's practiced, run and efficient during a game is the same, which is the same as what we just played last week," Kiffin said.

Arkansas 52-51. Tennessee is starting to deliver the fastpaced football Heupel promised when hired. Now he has his first packed stadium, Heupel wants them to do their part.

"We need to make it tough for those guys to communicate," Heupel said. "Our fans understand that they're playing with tempo in their communication. We need to make it loud and make it uncomfortable for them."

Run heavy

Kiffin knows the perception of what Ole Miss and Tennessee run on offense who missed the Arkansas probably doesn't meet real-His Rebels held off ity. They run the ball well, not just pass it around all the time. The Rebels are fifth nationally in rush offense, 259.6 yards. averaging Tennessee is seventh, producing 253.7 on average on the ground.

"I like to live in reality, not perception," Kiffin said. "The point is the second week in a row we're getting ready to play a great rushing team and the facts show you that, even though a lot of people say, 'Oh, here's another spread team that throws the ball all over.' That ain't the case."

Ole Miss hopes to get back running back Jerrion Ealy, game under the concussion protocol.

Offensive milestones

The Vols already have scored 249 points, eclipsing the 215 scored in 10 games last season. They also have put together back-to-back games where they scored 28 points in the first quarter and 107 points alone in the past two games.

Heupel is the first Tennessee coach to have his team score more than 40 points in three of his first six games.

QB numbers

Ole Miss quarterback Matt Corral has thrown a touchdown pass in 17 straight games, the second-longest streak in school history. He also ranks top 10 nationally in total offense with 350.4 yards per game.

Hendon Hooker comes in 3 -1 as Tennessee's starting quarterback. The graduate transfer from Virginia Tech is averaging 224.2 yards per game, and Hooker has thrown 13 touchdowns with only one interception.

Stepping up

When defensive back Theo Jackson, Tennessee's leading tackler, missed the South Carolina game with an injury, Brandon Turnage got the call. After spending his first two seasons at Alabama, the transfer responded with 14 tackles and two tackles for loss to earn SEC Defensive Player of the Week. Lost season

Another Tennessee transfer, Juwan Mitchell, appeared in three games before his season was cut short by a shoulder injury. Mitchell, a senior linebacker, was Texas' leading tackler last season and had eight tackles this season before being side-

Criminal justice students visit Brushy Mountain Pen

A visit to the 'castle'

By Sabina Rico Jimenez Special to the T-G

Tirst and foremost, I would like to thank Mr. Chris Hobbs for giving us the opportunity of going to Brushy Mountain State Penitentiary. I truly appreciate all the hard work he put in for us and for letting us ride in style!

When we arrived at Brushy Mountain Penitentiary, I was mesmerized. It looked so magical-the fog going up the mountain and the sky just the perfect color. The prison looked like a castle! Although the view looked incredible as I stepped my first step inside, I could look around and see how badly inmates endured their incarceration, but also how clever they were.

Our first stop consisted of display cases in which were stored a variety of objects. In one of them they stored handmade tattoo guns and by far the most surprising to me was a handmade gun.

We then experienced an 18-minute documentary that was so in depth about the history and events that happened there. In this documentary we even got to hear the guards experience working there!

I recall a guard that was on the documentary who started working there only at the age of 18 and stayed there until the prison closed down; he stated that when the last bus load of inmates left, he pulled up his truck to the basketball court and could not believe he was actually able to do

Further on, we got to the most impactful place there "The Hole" which opened in 1896—a place that housed disobedient, dangerous inmates. With absolutely no light they were confined to live in a 6x3x8-foot space. A former inmate shared his experience; he told us that when he arrived the first night, his first meal was two cheeseburgers along with other small portions

He talked about how as an inmate you had to finish your food so that way the portions wouldn't get smaller and smaller if you weren't able to eat all the food. Then, you would have to flush it down the toilet so that way your portions of food wouldn't be

I was shocked about the fact that they would actually do that to a human being. The experience ended with a walk through the gymnasium which was huge! We concluded the trip at the warden's table restaurant where I got to eat delicious food!

As vice-president of the criminal justice student organization, I can say this trip was the most amazing experience! I can honestly say that the criminal justice student organization has been by far one of the best organizations that I have joined apart from being so helpful in our community.

Mr. Hobbs gives us the opportunity to have oncein-a-lifetime experiences.

The pitfalls of Daylight Savings Time

e extra cautious when you "fall back" on Nov. 7,

That's the date we must set our clocks back one hour in honor of daylight savings time.

But watch out.

The jarring shift to our daily sleep patterns and routines each Fall — and each Spring — is linked to an increase in heart attacks, strokes or automobile accidents, according to Business Insider.

In the Spring, when our clocks "spring forward," hospitals report a 24 percent spike in heart-attack visits around the U.S.

After the time change, groggy drivers are also more likely to rub fenders with other groggy drivers. In fact, researchers estimate that car crashes caused by sleepy daylightsavings-time drivers likely cost 30 extra people their lives every year over the nine-year period from 2002-2011, reports Business Insider.

"That's how fragile and susceptible your body is to even just one hour of lost sleep," sleep expert Matthew Walker, author of "How We Sleep," told Insider.

The reverse happens in the Fall when clocks are set back one hour. Heart attack visits to hospitals drop by 21 percent — but pedestrian deaths increase.

According to NBC News, "pedestrians walking during the evening rush hour are nearly three times more likely to be struck and killed by cars than before the time change....'

Two Carnegie Mellon University researchers explain that the increase in pedestrian accidents is due to people having difficulty adjusting to the sudden darkness that comes one hour earlier.

I'm no fan of daylight savings time, but starting Nov. 7 I hope to take advantage of the extra hour of morning daylight.

I've long dreamt of becoming a morning per-

I've dreamt of having a very healthy sleep cycle the way morning people do — waking early and refreshed from a good night's sleep after going to bed at a decent hour the night before.

The evening has held me back, too. It goes by stretch it out into the wee hours.

Because millions have been working from home due to the pandemic, a lot of people are struggling to regain their "morning

The Wall Street Journal interviewed sleep and productivity experts to share

In a nutshell, you have to will yourself to become a better morning person by turning-in early — 10 p.m. is best — and rising

This gives you time to ease into the day with coffee, a walk or a bike ride or any other healthy activity. Plus, exposure to morning sunlight helps you to reset your circadian

After two weeks of such clean living, the experts promise, you will own your mornings and be more rested and productive than you have ever been.

President Biden's 'Angry America'

t's not until you leave the United States that you realize how angry Americans are.

Earlier this month my wife the travel agent and I took a cruise in the Mediterranean from Athens to Barcelona by way of stops on the Greek island of Santorini and in Sicily.

It was the first trip Colleen has been able to book since February 2020, right before the global pandemic lockdowns sank 80 percent of the cruise ship industry and put her out of a job.

For me, who got to tag along, it was the best kind of get-away vacation, mainly because I saw and heard virtually nothing about American politics. I never turned on the TV in my room, so I was never up to date on the status of the Democrats' zillion-dollar spending packages or the latest wave of illegal immigrants flooding our southern border.

The global pandemic and its precautions and annoyances traveled onboard with us, of course.

We had to be vaccinated and wear masks when we were not eating, drinking or sunning by the

Plus, we were tested for COVID on our trip four times before we got on the plane to Athens, twice on the cruise ship and before we flew home.

The strict COVID-19 policies were the small price we had to pay to escape Joe Biden's "Angry America," where it seems everyone is always griping and bitching about what's going on – as I admit I do.

My vacation was a great way to hang out with friendly, happy people from around the world who weren't angry all the time or never shut up about politics.

Best of all, it got me away from the TV and made me forget the political troubles in America.

Cruising the Mediterranean for seven days, I never saw Kamala Harris' face. I never saw Joe Biden's or Nancy Pelosi's, either. I was so out of America's news loop, I had no idea that angry parents across the country who've been protesting the actions of their liberal school boards had been branded by Biden people as "domestic terrorists" worthy of the FBI's atten-

As soon as we arrived back in the U.S. earlier this week, I saw that Americans were as angry as ever – and had some new good reasons to be. The Biden administration was talking about using the IRS to monitor the bank accounts of every American who makes a transaction of $600 or more.

Talk about government snooping.

Nancy Pelosi said something about it being part of a campaign to make sure every taxpayer, including the rich, pays their fair share, but that's a ridiculous excuse for a dangerous federal power

Everything the Biden administration has come up with so far is just as idiotic as that idea:

Its perverse energy policies, its harmful immigration policies, its proposed tax hikes, its covid vaccine mandates for larger companies, its bloated spending bills, its inflationary monetary policies ... And let's not forget the fiasco in Kabul.

Liberal Democrats used to get their kicks by making fun of the values and life styles of Americans in Red States. Now they're using the power of the federal government to torture them in new ways and make them mad.

While we were vacationing, Gov. Gavin Newsom got in on the act. He signed a new Columnist California law banning the sale of gas-powered lawn mowers, leaf blowers and other small equipment. Those tools – used by thousands of landscape

It's really sad to watch the damage Biden, Newsom and company are doing with their leftwing ideas, stupidity and arro-

become battery-powered

The only thing that will save the country is when the voters they've made so angry return the House and Senate to Republican control in the 2022 midterm elections.

Meanwhile, Collen and I are already thinking of going on another cruise tomorrow.

HOW EXACTLY DID TEXAS' LAW GET TO THIS POINT?

Texas' Republican Gov. Greg Abbott in May signed a law that bans abortions in Texas before many women even know they are pregnant. The law bans abortions once cardiac activity is detected, usually around six weeks. The law differs from similar efforts to restrict abortions in other states by leaving enforcement to private citizens, who can sue doctors or anyone who helps a woman get an abortion.

The law was challenged by abortion rights advocates before it went into effect in September, but its unique enforcement mechanism frustrated those efforts at the time. The law made one previous trip to the high court, which declined to intervene. After the law went into effect, the Biden administration filed a separate lawsuit challenging the law. It's that lawsuit that's now on track for the high court.

WHAT HAPPENED PREVIOUSLY WHEN THE LAW WENT TO THE SUPREME COURT?

The court let the law go into effect, voting 5-4 to as among the reasons they declined to intervene. The majority stressed it was not making any conclusions about the constitutionality of the law.

Liberal justices and Chief Justice John Roberts dissented. Justice Sonia Sotomayor called her conservative colleagues' decision "stunning." Justice Elena Kagan wrote that the law was "patently unconstitutional," and Justice Stephen Breyer said a "woman has a federal constitutional right to obtain an abortion during" the first stage of pregnancy.

WHAT EXACTLY HAPPENED MOST RECENTLY AT THE APPEALS COURT?

This time around, with the Biden administration's lawsuit, a federal judge in Texas put the law on hold. Judge Robert Pitman took Texas to task in a 113-page opinion, saying Republican lawmakers had "contrived an unprecedented and transparent statutory scheme" by trying to circumvent the courts.

"From the moment S.B. 8 went into effect, women have been unlawfully prefrom exercising control over their lives in ways that are protected by the Constitution," wrote Pitman, who was appointed to the bench by former President Barack Obama.

Pitman's ruling allowed abortions to resume in Texas for a brief window before the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals temporarily halted it. A three-judge panel ruled 2-1 on Thursday to put a more lasting hold in place while the Biden law is in effect. WHAT NOW? The Justice Department appeal to the Supreme Court. There's no timetable for Supreme Court action, but it would take days or even longer for both sides to file briefs with the court, and then additional time for the court to act. The court wouldn't be asked to rule on constitutionality of the law at this point, just whether Texas should be allowed to enforce its law while the Biden administration's challenge continues.

The Supreme Court already has a major abortion case on its docket for December that could reshape abortion rights in America. What happens in that case could affect what ultimately happens in

HOW IS IT POSSIBLE THAT TEXAS HAS SUCH A RESTRICTIVE LAW?

Two major Supreme Court precedents, Roe v. Wade and Planned Parenthood v. Casey, prevent states from banning abortion before viability, the point at which a fetus can survive outside the womb. That happens around 24 weeks of pregnancy. But the Texas law's unique enforcement mechanism has made it hard to challenge. WHAT HAS BEEN THE IMPACT OF THE LAW IN TEXAS?

Since the law took effect in early September, providers say 80% or more of abortions previously provided in the state are now prohibited. Texas women have sought out abortion clinics in neighboring states, some driving hours through the middle of the night and including patients as young as 12 years old. The law makes no exception in cases of rape or incest.

the U.S. that are requiring officers to get vaccinated against COVID-19 are running up against pockets of resistance that some fear could leave law enforcement shorthanded and undermine public safety. Police unions and officers are pushing back by filing lawsuits to block the mandates. In Chicago, the head of the police union called on members to defy the city's Friday deadline for reporting their COVID-19 vaccination status. Seattle's police department sent detectives and non-patrol officers to emergency calls this week because of a shortage of patrol officers that union leaders fear will become worse because of vaccine mandates. The standoffs are playing out at a time when many police departments already are dealing with surging homicide rates and staff shortages unrelated to the vaccine. Cities and police leaders are now weighing the risk of losing more officers to resignations, firings or suspensions over their refusal to get vaccinated.

Chicago's mayor on Friday filed a complaint in court against the leader of the local Fraternal Order of Police, accusing him of "engaging in, supporting and encouraging work stoppage or strike" by saying the city's more than 12,000 uniformed officers should ignore the order to report their vaccination status. On Thursday, Mayor Lori Lightfoot said officers would not be sent home if they showed up to work Friday and refused to provide their information. Instead, she said, they would be put on unpaid leave after the weekend, because confirming compliance would take a few Refusing to provide the information, Lightfoot said, would

A song that has lived on ack in the early 70s I moved to a town on the Western Slope of the Rocky Mountains to attend a small Bible college, sight unseen.

When I said small college, I meant small. There was one building that housed the four classrooms on the ground floor and the men's dorm rooms upstairs.

The administrative offices were in a small, old house off the college's parking lot. And the cafeteria was in an old building across the street and down the block. The women's dorm rooms were upstairs over the cafeteria.

Moving there from a beautiful Bible college campus in sunny Southern California was somewhat of a culture shock, which in itself had been a culture shock moving there for this young man from the plains of Eastern North Dakota.

I got my education all across the US of A.

When I enrolled at Intermountain Bible College in Grand Junction, Colorado, I was recruited right away to sing in the school's traveling choir. I was asked if I could carry a tune and I told the choir director I could. I could carry it from the left side to the right.

So, I became a member of this fundraising arm for this Bible College hidden away in the Rockies.

A week after classes started, and practicing with the choir for five afternoons, we hit the road in a white school bus early Saturday morning.

We crossed over the winding, scary passes of the Rocky Mountains in an old white school bus and sang in two churches on Sunday morning and evening.

I barely knew the songs we were singing, but I guess I pulled it offtwice—once in the morning and then again that night.

The next week the choir director placed me in a "duet" with a baritone named Randy. And the next weekend Randy and I hit the road. We were out there representing a college I had been at for just two weeks.

There was a song that I had to learn back then that over the years has become one of my favorite hymns; it's called "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing."

Both the full choir and Randy and I would sing that song in every church we ministered in. Over and Over and Over Again.

So, I really got to know the hymn, and all these

Woman's Club hosts autumn fashion show

K. Ellen Boutique makes débute

By ZOË HAGGARD zhaggard@t-g.com

Shelbyville Woman's Club members said Wednesday that they're now ready for fall. Kailin Kesselring, owner of K. Ellen Boutique, located at 716 North Main St., hosted the club's annual fashion show Wednesday—one filled with an array of autumn shades and warmth.

With six different models entering the country club dining room, Kesselring showed off her latest fall collection with 18 unique outfits, featuring pieces from top brands Renoir and Tribal. Most outfits kept in tune with classic fall colors, like cream, rust, and brown. But a few looks had pops of bright pink, yellow, and red—all of which can transition perfectly into the holiday season, Kailin explained as she emceed the program.

Because it was her first event with SWC, Kailin told the room full of members a little about how she came to own her boutique.

Kesselring was raised in Bell Buckle and studied fashion merchandising at Middle Tennessee

State University in Murfreesboro. She interned at Michal Kors in New York and shortly after, opened K. Ellen in March of 2019. A Tennessee

Walking Horse exhibitor, Kesselring has made the Bell Buckle-Shelbyville area her home again.

K. Ellen Boutique carries sizes from XS-2X in both men and women's clothing. They are open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday. But Kesselring said she is happy to make private shopping appointments for anyone outside those hours.

Goal met

SWC President Mary Ann Davis was quite exciting to share some great news with the club about the scholarship fund.

SWC met its $3,000 scholarship goal after receiving $1,000 from sales made at the Optimist Donut Club Donut Booth during the Celebration.

Now, Davis said, each recipient from the three high schools will receive $1,000 each. There was a round of applause for the support shown to the scholarship fund.

The Nov. 10 SWC meeting will feature Connie Gatlin, author of "Going on a Bear Hunt."

Model Sarah Hooper wears nude pumps and a bright pink tunic Jade V-neck dress, that can be worn with or without the tie or with tights. Pink works well for October, Kesselring said, because of Breast Cancer Awareness Month. But the bright color can also transition into a holiday look.

Model Tina Graves is wearing the same tunic dress as Sarah's pink, but this one is with a rhythmic stripe and gold dot. Again, it can be worn with or without the tie, while the vertical stripes are very elongating.

T-G Photos by Dawn Hankins

Model Beth Davis is wearing a casual look that is sophisticated and great for work, according to Kesselring. This look also transitions well into the holidays.

Feeling old

I am reminded by friends and family every day that I am getting older, but lately I have experienced a couple of reminders which have truly convinced me time is indeed flying by.

The first was the demolition of Celebration Station at the Shelbyville Parks and Recreation Departments H.V. Griffin Park. Thanks to Kanya Gordon, my daughter's second grade teacher at Eakin Elementary 21 years ago, I have the plank where her name was carved.

Many had their names placed on the planks as part of the fence surrounding the playground or on bricks in front of the entrance as donors to the project. They were made available to the public prior to the removal of the playground.

It was a Leadership Bedford project with people of all ages, backgrounds and skill levels providing the sweat equity to build the wooden structure. It was a true community effort we all could be proud of. People worked in shifts. Food was furnished. It reminded me of what it must have been like to have a "barn raising".

1998-2021. Like many of us, Celebration Station was showing wear and tear from the effects of use, the elements and time. A new facility was needed, and the funding came together for a new playground. Many of us have our memories of helping build the playground and then spending time with our children as they enjoyed our work.

The second was the Rolling Stones concert last Saturday night at Nissan Stadium as part of the "No Filter" Tour. There were more people in the 60-plus range than there were people in their teens and twenties. For some the event was timeless since they appeared by their dress, hairstyles and behavior to still be stuck in the mid-1960s to the 1970s.

Due to circumstances beyond my control I had to leave the concert after the first three songs. Mick Jagger and the band were in fine form. I am sure it was a great show.

How Jagger can still perform, both vocally and physically, the way he does at the age of 78 amazes me. Guitarist Keith Richards is close behind at 77, though he looks like he is 107. Ron Woods is the youngster at 74.

Earlier this year the oldest member of the band, Charlie Watts, passed away at the age of 80. He has

'Tis the season for everything pumpkin!

Easy-as-Pie DIY Pumpkin Spice

- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon ground allspice (optional)

Mix and adjust the measurements to please your palate. Then store in an airtight container for use in pumpkin pies, pancakes, whipped cream, lattes and your favorite fall desserts!

5 Fun Facts about fall's favorite fruit!

The pumpkin is, in fact, a fruit. It's a member of the gourd family, which also includes cucumbers, honeydew melons, cantaloupe, watermelons and zucchini.

The self-proclaimed "Pumpkin Capital of the World" is Morton, Illinois, home to Libby's pumpkin industry.

Pumpkins contain vitamin A, vitamin B, potassium, protein and iron. They are also low in calories, fat, and sodium and high in fiber.

The world record for the largest pumpkin was set in 2016 by Mathias Willemijns of Belgium. It weighed a whopping 2,624.6

pounds!

The world record for the largest pumpkin pie was set in Ohio in 2010 by New Bremen Giant Pumpkin Growers. It weighed a decadent 3,699 pounds!

Grapes: a great fall indulgence

Try with savory sauces

I love fall. The change of seasons, the pretty leaves, the cooler air and all of the fall flavors are comforting and exciting. In the flavor department, we often think of pumpkins and apples and pears for fall, but it is also the best time of the year for grapes.

Almost 99% of our table grapes are grown in California with availability from May to January, so fall is the height of the season. Table grapes are used for fresh eating as opposed to use for wine or juice. Different varieties are grown for different purposes. Table grapes are larger and thinner skinned with small or no seeds and a higher pulp to juice ratio than wine grapes. I say thank goodness for seedless grapes – growing up it was my job to seed the grapes for fruit salad. I don't miss those days!

Grapes are most often used cold. We eat them fresh as a snack and they're great for taking in a lunch bag as they hold up well. We also tend to use them in fruit salads or added to chicken salad. But there is a whole other side to grapes when they are cooked.

Grapes can be roasted whole. Just toss in a little vegetable oil and spread on a pan to roast at 450 degrees until just bursting, about 10-15 minutes. The roasted grapes can be used to top a grilled chicken breast or put on top of a piece of toasted French bread and sprinkled with blue cheese for an appetizer.

The recipe below uses the grapes in a sauce for pork tenderloin. Full of fall flavor, this recipe is easy enough for a weeknight dinner or special enough for company. The entire recipe is done in one skillet. First you brown the pork and then add the grapes and cover and cook them down while the pork comes to an internal temperature of 140 degrees. With the pork removed and tented with foil to rest, the sauce comes together in the pan with the savory flavors of balsamic vinegar, stone ground mustard, rosemary and green onions against the sweetness of the cooked grapes. The grapes will be browned and shriveled and have a concentrated flavor. It is a little different combination, but pork always plays well with fruit and grapes are no exception. This would be great served with a rice pilaf or yellow rice

For more information and recipes check out the Seasonal Eating page at bedford.tennessee.edu.

Pan Seared Pork Tenderloin with Grapes

1 Tbsp. vegetable oil 1 (1 - 1 1/2 lbs.) pork tenderloin, cut into four sections kosher salt and black pepper 1 C. red seedless grapes, cut in half lengthwise

1 Tbsp. balsamic vinegar 1/2 Tbsp. whole grain (stone ground) mustard

2 green onions, sliced, reserve green part for garnish

1/2 tsp. finely chopped, fresh rose-

1/2 C. chicken broth

1 Tbsp. butter

Heat the oil in a medium skillet over medium high heat. Sprinkle the pork tenderloin with salt and pepper. Add to the pan and let sear until browned, turning until all side are browned. Turn the heat down to medium low and add the grapes. Cover and cook until the pork reaches 140 degrees in the center, about 8-10 minutes. Remove pork to a plate and tent with foil. Increase the heat and add the vinegar to the pan, stirring to scrape up any bits on the bottom. Stir in the mustard and add the white part of the green onion and rosemary. Add the chicken broth and stir to combine. Let reduce by about a third. Pull off of the heat and add butter, stirring to melt and combine. Slice each piece of pork into about three slices and place on plate. Spoon sauce over the top and sprinkle with sliced green onion tops. Serve immediately.

Have you hugged a bureaucrat lately?

s a longtime fan of Monty Python's "Ministry of Silly Walks" sketch, I feel compelled to say a few words on behalf of muchmaligned bureaucrats everywhere.

Consider the adjectives that get recycled ad nauseum when bureaucrats are mentioned: "faceless," "unelected," "anonymous"...

Bureaucrats deserve more positive adjectives. Maybe "effervescent," "trend-setting," "readyto-use," "hypoallergenic." Unfortunately, new adjectives must be ordered in triplicate and there's a supply-chain problem with the forms.

(Sadly, the upbeat experimental slogan "Administrate like no one is watching" ran into obvious accountability problems.)

I don't know which department, bureau, board, agency, council or watchdog to ask, but there must be statistics on the average age at which people decided it's their life's destiny to become a red tape wrangler. You certainly don't see lots of bureaucrat wannabes among the preschoolers who intend to be cowboys, astronauts, ballerinas or rock stars.

Still, some bright prospects stick out. Like the tykes who say, "This subparagraph followed me home; can I keep him, Mom?" or "My dad's zoning ordinance can whip your dad's zoning ordinance."

nce."
It takes a lot of grit to approach a career in a bureaucracy. Consider the word most associated with the administrative state as a whole: "bloated." You don't hear many jobseekers saying, "I want to work in a pharmacy – as long as it's a gaseous pharmacy" or "I want to be a bounty-hunter, as long as having hot flashes is one of the benefits!"

Society tries to dehumanize bureaucrats, but every one of them is someone's child, parent, spouse, sibling or neighbor. One good data breach and you would know all that.

would know all that.

Bureaucrats are individuals. No matter how much the system tries to grind them down, many are passionate about making the world a better place. They persevere, even though breaking a sweat might get their forehead declared an endangered wetland.

True, some bureaucrats become tyrants with their own little fiefdom. ("I may be a dictator, but at least I keep the trains running on time. No, wait – I keep the trains running on TRACKS. Running on TIME is a different agency. I wish they would answer my memos.")

Bureaucrats have hopes and dreams, just like retailers, factory workers and retirees. They have nightmares, too! Like the one about Freddy Krueger slashing their budget to only 105 percent of what it was last year.

was last year.

It doesn't usually boil over into physical violence, but there is a palpable tension between bureaucrats and the rest of the public. Understaffed cubicle occupants are quick to tell you, "I could be making more in private industry. Well, not in any of the private industries I regulated out of business, but one of the other ones."

Non-bureaucrats, possessing less job security, have learned to roll with the punches and proclaim, "When one door closes, another one opens." Not to be confused with the bureaucratic motto "When one window closes, quick – close all the rest of them!"

When I told one of my bureaucrat friends about this week's topic and the need to remind the public of bureaucrats' positive impact on product safety, the environment and international trade, he exulted, "You've hit the nail right on the head!"

Fearing his supervisor, he quickly added, "Unfortunately, you used a hammer that passed only the outdated 39-page list of specifications. This year's 43-page list, however, is downright effervescent...Hey, lay that hammer down! Don't make me faceless!"

More fashions from Shelbyville Woman's Club

Model Karen Inman is wearing a color-blocking sweater, which is a huge trend this fall, said Kesselring. Her bright yellow shoes give the ensemble a pop of color. This was a crowd-pleaser at the Shelbyville Woman's Club luncheon on Wednesday.

Model Tina Graves, Kesselring's soon to be mother-in-law, is wearing a "red-hot" sweater with fringe. This pop of color is said to transition well into the holiday season.

Model Diandra Womble wears a long Bunny Love Claire cardigan (called a "coat-igan") with removable fur lining. She is also wearing a Tribal dress in "tobacco." This look can also be worn over tights.

Model Beth Davis is wearing "winter white" tunic with an asymmetrical hem paired with Renoir woven pants in cream for a "neutral Look" that is sophisticated and great for work, according to Kesselring. This look also transitions well into the holidays.

Model Diandra Womble is wearing a tiger print "eyelash"

Model Pam Ingram is wearing a Renoir pull-on skinny pant in tan, which has an elastic waistband—perfect for Thanksgiving, Kesselring joked. The Cardigan is from Mystery and that is over a Renoir casual long sleeve, been replaced by Steve Jordan. Watts, before his death, had recommended Jordan as his replacement.

The first incarnation of the band started in 1962 with their first album debuting in 1964. Despite all of their tours and performances the band still expresses a sincere enjoyment in performing. It was my third time to see them live, but as more proof I am getting older, I doubt they will ever be making a return visit to Nashville.

A couple of my friends are certain this is not the group's final tour. As a grouchy old man, I don't share their optimism.

Having to leave the concert early convinced me of another thing _ we need to grab every experience we can while we can because there is no promise of tomorrow. Actor Mathew

Broderick, playing Ferris

Bueller in "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," is right. To slightly paraphrase "life does move pretty fast. If you don't stop and look around once in awhile you could miss it.

Scenes from Friends of Library lunch

Shelbyville-Bedford County Public Library held its annual Friends of the Library luncheon on Tuesday with several booklovers and writers in attendance at the Blue Ribbon Circle.

Library officials said despite competing with online literature, tangible books are still king. Fundraisers such as the luncheon help support the library's special endeavors.

As ticket holders munched on their sack lunch, June Hall McCash talked about her life as an author. In addition to having taught at Middle Tennessee State University in Murfreesboro, she's written 14 books.

For her literary contributions, she was named Georgia

Author of the Year award winner in 2011. This was mainly for her works "Almost Eden" and "Plum Orchard," which were available on Tuesday to those in attendance.

All ages attended the event from Shelbyville Central National Honor Society students to retired and active pastors. Daniel Asche gave the invocation for the event.

Largely contributing to the event were The Celebration, The Simmons Team, Southern Connections Catering and Volunteer Garden Club, which decorated the event with lots of pumpkins and fall decor. (See a list of sponsors for this event in an upcoming T-G edition.)

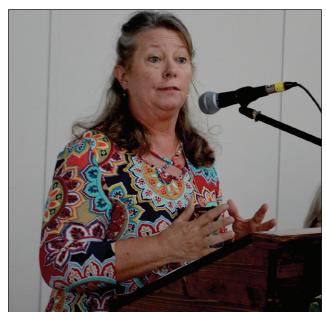

FALL IS HERE

Shelbyville homes are decorated from front to back porch with Halloween pumpkins and other fall items. Halloween is Sunday, Oct. 31. Some churches have special fall events planned. Watch the T-G calendar and Life and Leisure for updates.

Pumpkin seed power

According to the American Heart Association, whole roasted pumpkin seeds in their shells contain about 5.2 grams of fiber per one-ounce serving. A serving of the shelled kernels, also known as pepitas, contains about 1.8 grams of fiber. Pumpkin seeds also are rich in other nutrients like magnesium and zinc, as well as antioxidants!

Here's how to prepare your own roasted pumpkin seeds:

Scoop seeds out of the pumpkin.
Rinse the seeds to remove excess pulp.
Dry the seeds with a towel.
Toss the seeds with some olive oil, then sprinkle with your favorite seasonings.
Roast seeds on a baking sheet at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes, tossing every few minutes for even roasting.
