Reeves, Marsh Chamber guests

Legislative update given

A Chamber Luncheon was held Thursday at the Riverbend Country Club with guest speakers State Rep. Pat Marsh and State Sen. Shane Reeves—both of whom expressed how proud they are of Bedford County.

"Bedford County has a lot of good things going on right now you can just feel it, everywhere you go," said Marsh.

Having advocated for a $42.6 billion budget for the region, a lot of funding is being poured into sectors like education and economic development.

Legislative update

Marsh explained the 112th General Assembly's latest two sessions one held in late October that dealt with the new Ford Motor plant moving to the Memphis area, and another in early November dealing with the mask and vaccine mandate. They will start back in session Jan. 11, 2021 (the second Tuesday) of the month.

"We are number one in fiscal stability in the nation," said Marsh. "We've got super low debt...and we're top three, if not the lowest, tax in the nation." This year, Marsh explained, the state did away with the hall tax (on personal interest from bonds and dividends from stock), state income tax, and gift tax.

Education

The new Tennessee College of Applied Technology facility, costing over $40 million, according to Marsh, was one of the top discussion points at the luncheon.

"I think this TCAT is a remarkable opportunity," said Reeves.

Also in education, Marsh talked about the state's intent to reconstruct the Basic Education Program formula, which Marsh described as "anti-

Harwell speaks to local political groups

By ZOË HAGGARD

Assistant superintendent of Bedford County Schools Tim Harwell was recent guest speaker at Bedford County Republican and Democrat forums to answer the community's questions about the schools' policies, budget, and growth.

Harwell has been a part of Bedford County Schools for over 20 years. He taught history at Harris

Middle School and eventually became assistant principal there.

Later he worked as principal at Liberty Elementary and Middle School, Cascade High School, and Shelbyville Central High.

Population and learning growth

As assistant superintendent, he spoke on the challenges the school system is facing as the county faces new levels of population growth. Harwell explained the need for school maintenance.

For example, Southside, Eakin, and Thomas Magnet are all 50+ years old. This is in addition to the one of the schools' main focuses of getting students out of portables—which are not safe during severe weather and are not soundproof.

The school board is looking to build a new elementary school near the 437 Bypass, which is under negotiation and will cost somewhere in the ballpark of $25 million, Harwell said. It will accommodate around 800 students.

Bedford County Schools is also continuing to provide the virtual schools platform, while Harwell assures, "We haven't gotten close to having" to shut the schools down for an outbreak. But the schools have seen other kinds of growth beyond population.

Even with the pandemic shutdowns, Bedford County students have experienced significant growth. "We were a level 5 system—first time we've been that

911 dispatcher retires after 15 years

By ZOË HAGGARD
 zhaggard@t-g.com

Linda Pillow's voice is low, calming, and steady. Many might call it "a voice in the dark."

And it's a voice that very few people hope to hear. "Nine-one-one. What is the location of your emergency?" asks Pillows.

After 15 years of such service to the community, she just retired from Bedford County 911 Dispatch.

She said she always had the "gift of gab."

"I don't think I've met anybody that I couldn't talk to," she said.

Growing up in Hickman County, Pillow's father was an auxiliary officer, so she found herself always around officers and a dispatcher — which was very small at the time.

When they had an opening in 1979, Pillow took the job as a dispatcher. Back then they only required a card certification through the FCC, so the job proved a good fit as she studied at Middle Tennessee State University in Murfreesboro where she majored in mass communications and later graduated in 1981.

The job? It just felt natural to her, Pillow said.

Back then

Starting off in a time when punch cards were the latest thing, Pillow said she had a popsicle mic and foot pedal and a couple buttons to push. And it was all talking.

"Back then they used microfilm to look up tags and things like that." Anything other than that, you had to go to a larger county.

"If you heard the tornado sirens that was my fire alarms back then. I had a little button and I sit there and go 'woo,'" Pillow recalled. "So, if we had a fire anywhere in the county, I sit there and do my woo-woos."

To say the least, technology has changed "massively," and in many ways, for the better.

"Back then everything was hand-logged. We wrote everything down —

Dispatcher

we had to." (Pillow gave an emphasis on the 'everything'.)

"My 911 screen was a little green screen with white lettering on it, and when the call came in, you got what information you could read on the green screen, and you logged it down." She said she had two ambulances to cover for the whole county — one went east and one went west.

It worked — for a county of 20,000 people.

Today, dispatchers can track callers and vehicles more easily with the internet and social media to help. And most phones are phase II, which means you can see a ping of the map when they call 911, and from there dispatchers can triangulate where the phone call came from.

But sometimes, finding someone's location isn't all that easy as the clock ticks on past crucial minutes.

"For instance, this one guy was coming from Columbia in the middle of the night, had a wreck, and somehow his truck ended up in the river, upside down on top of him. He couldn't get out of the truck. He didn't know where he was on the highway; it was foggy, in the middle of the night. So, the only thing I could think to do, I sent fire trucks to where I thought he was on different roads that could possibly have this scenario, where there's a bridge low enough, he could end up in the water. I got him on the phone until I could hear the siren. We found him and got him out. You just have to think on the fly some of the time."

Pillow came to Shelbyville in 2006. In between that time, she worked at Shelbyville Parks and Recreation and for the state for a while. But she always kept coming back to her dispatcher job.

"My saying has always been that if I ever had to call 911, I wouldn't want me on the phone," she said. "You get to deal with people at their most horrific times of their lives. They don't call 911 for nothing."

Always on high-awareness as these girls are — she said, pointing to the other dispatchers — you sit here and every time that phone rings, you never know what's going to be on the other end of the phone.

Gunshots, suicides, stabbings, and burnings have all been things Pillow has heard over the phone. "I've been on literally with people who have burned in house fires, in car fires, and you're the last voice they're talking to."

Hers is the voice in the dark.

"You're on that phone, you're that first responder. You get the screams, you get the uncontrollable emotions. If you're able to calm it to a point where you can actually get them to assist you to help whoever needs help — that's awesome," Pillow said.

But, "What's the best is the most challenging."

You're constantly being trained, Pillow said. CPR, First Aid, Telecommunications, how to run tags and warranties.

And you've got to have common sense.

"People come in and think it's a clerical job until they start training, and they realize if you don't do something right, you could cause somebody their life."

Even with the pressure, Pillow still says, "I've never had a moment that I consider 'nerve-wracking.' I guess just from years having things under my belt. There have been times things have gotten to me, but 'nerve-wracking', no."

Know when to quit

But part of the reason why Pillow can say, "I wouldn't do a thing different," is because she knew when to get out of the seat — both daily and for retiring.

Her moment was a couple months ago as she listened to a lady pray for her husband who had just had a horrific accident. Pillow said she knew at that moment that she'd done it long enough and heard it long enough.

"You have to learn to leave it here," Pillow said.

Sitting in the chair for 12 hours (from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m.) since she worked the night shift), Pillow would work seven days straight and then have seven off. The night shift helped her to still have time to raise her kids, a son and a daughter, and attend their softball and baseball games.

"When that last whistle blew, everybody knew I'm headed to work," Pillow said.

But now in her retirement, she can just focus on watching her grandchildren's games without having to be a voice in the dark.

Education

quoted, hard to understand." And some $163 million went into raising teacher salaries.

"Teachers have had it hard this year, and they deserve it," said Marsh.

Local projects

As for Bedford County, Marsh expressed excitement for the Nearest Green Distillery and its "prime location" on Highway 231. And city projects like the historic town square revamp, new ideas at the Walking Horse National Celebration and at the airport that are part of the area's plans.

"Really and truly, five years ago, I'm not sure I knew anybody in this room...But the relationships and the people are what really make the job," said Sen. Shane Reeves.

He spoke on two main points.

COVID-19, according to Reeves, a pharmacist, is "here to stay." It's going to be cough, cold, and COVID season.

Reeves said one in 500 Tennesseans (around 16,800 people) have died from COVID-19 since the onslaught of the virus nearly two years ago. The good news? Hospitalizations are down from 13,000 to 676. Daily cases have gone down to 1600 from the highest number which was 11,400.

Reeves said he encourages people getting the vaccination. Bedford County is at 38 percent fully vaccinated.

"It's a free country. If you want to get it, go get it," Reeves said. He also emphasized his stance against closing businesses and schools again.

Reeves also touched on the health of the state, saying that you live longer in 45 other states than you do in Tennessee, which is based on obesity, cancer, and narcotics.

"It's all kind of linked. People's health is tied to education; it's tied to poverty. You've got to make sure people have good jobs, got good education, got good healthcare," said Reeves.

Economic development

Reeves also pointed out the local and state economies. He referenced Economic Director Shane Hooper, who was in attendance. As a state with "pro-business policies" (low taxes, low debt), according to Hooper, auto makers, electric, food manufacturing, and metal fabrication industries are some of the top businesses coming to Tennessee.

"So, what you want to bring can absolutely change the game of this county," Reeves said. "Businesses still fall in love with communities. They care about your schools, your parks, your churches...those things do matter."

Lacey Deeds said she wants "good conversation" and "just need people to talk."

Alzheimer's Awareness

Also speaking and singing as guest speakers was Fran Gray from Alzheimer's Tennessee (not associated with the Alzheimer's Association), who presented Marsh and State Rep. Iris Rudder from Winchester with a certificate of appreciation for supporting the Silver Alert bill.

Reeves and Marsh also spoke last week to Bedford County Board of Education. See Wednesday's T-G for story and chamber lunch photos.

Harwell

in a long, long time...and nine of our schools were a level 5," Harwell said.

Level 5 (the highest) means that local students had more than significant growth, compared to where they were, as based on the Tennessee Department of Education's Tennessee Value-Added Assessment System (TVAAS). This is despite the pandemic shutdowns, which Harwell said created "learning gaps" as students were required to quarantine.

The system, as of Monday, had seven students out for quarantine, Harwell said. Thirty-six teachers as well were celebrated as Level 5, which means the majority of their students they taught grew significantly more than what was expected.

"Teachers are miracle workers," Harwell said at the Republican Forum which was held Nov. 8. "I could not leave here without singing the praises of our teachers. It is a very tough job."

Teacher shortage

But the teacher shortage is one of their biggest concerns in the school system as Bedford County competes with other school districts in Williamson and Rutherford. Harwell said they hire around 70 teachers every year. And one of the ways the school system hopes to combat this is through raising teacher pay. But in addition to providing higher pay (which starts around $38,000 for teachers), mentors, and benefits, Harwell says they "worked on the culture of the schools" so that way teachers wanted to be there because they felt supported.

In addition to getting more teachers engaged in the school system, Harwell also talked about the need to get students more engaged. Part of the state-wide high school redesigning program is the initiative to get more college-level classes and credits into the high schools so students can effectively work toward higher education. "What we're looking at right now is other systems and what their success is. And in most cases, they are requiring more credits to graduate..." Harwell told

T-G.

In other words, more credits help you get ready for next step after high school. "Currently, the design we have in high schools, we're not doing everything we can do to better prepare our students for the next step in their life. We want to provide that; we just don't have the structure in place to provide all of those things."

Funding talks with Democrats

At the Democratic Forum, held Nov. 15, Harwell answered questions about funding and the budget. According to Harwell, schools receive three primary funding sources from the state (which is the majority), federal (which is earmarked for specific aspects), and local (which is from sales and property taxes).

This totals to a budget of $96 million this year.

With the ESSER 3.0 grant, the County received $13 million — part of which will go to building a new wing at Community High School. But Harwell said the system must "be careful" in using these funds because the money will "run dry" in about three years.

Harwell also said they are applying for other grants like Reading 360, which is a plan to help improve children learning their phonics to be at an accurate reading level.

A new formula for the Better Education Program (BEP) funding, which is based on population, is being presented at the state level. As a rural county superintendent, Tammy Garrett, according to Harwell, has been advocating for rural counties to make sure the county doesn't get "short-changed" with the new formula.

Several questions about school vouchers were asked during the Democratic Forum; however, the state's voucher program was only applied to Nashville and Memphis-area schools, so Harwell could not speak to their effect on a county-level. But as expressed by both political groups, there is much appreciation for the Bedford County public schools.

Harwell said positively, "I have a lot of great things to say about our county and our education system with what we're doing right now."

Methamphetamine found in vehicle during traffic stop

By DAVID MELSON
dmelson@t-g.com

Two drug charges were filed against a man stopped for driving a vehicle with an expired registration early Saturday on North Cannon Boulevard.

Officer Dylan Bliss said in his report he spotted a bag containing crystal methamphetamine in the vehicle's floorboard. A "large amount" of small plastic bags, some allegedly with meth residue, and a Suboxone pill were confiscated from Triston Cole Thibault, 24, of Shelbyville. A syringe containing liquid meth was allegedly found in a door.

Thibault told officers he was "feeling the effects" of taking meth. He was charged with DUI (second offense), driving on revoked license (second offense), possession of schedule II and III drugs and paraphernalia, financial responsibility and registration violations. He was being held on $11,500 bond Monday.

The driver of a vehicle stopped for having a headlight out was charged with simple possession when marijuana was found in his vehicle Friday night on North Main Street, Shelbyville police said.

Coby Davis was cited after Officer Bailey Dineen confiscated a bag of marijuana and a blunt, according to a report.

Approximately 2 grams of marijuana was found on Zoe Carballoso during a traffic stop for speeding Saturday on Green Lane. She was cited for both offenses, police said.

Gun charge

Discovery of a Taurus

.380 handgun led to a DUI suspect also being charged with unlawful possession of a firearm Friday night.

Alex Jordan Harris, 25, of Old Pencil Mill Road was initially stopped after being clocked at 50 mph in a 30 mph zone on North Main Street.

Harris failed field sobriety tests and later tested .159 and .161 on an intoximeter, police said. The gun was found in the vehicle's center console.

Records show Harris posted $4,500 bond.

Purse stolen

Thomas Keith Cook, 44, of Tate Avenue was seen on video footage, police said. Officers found Cook at a Tate Avenue home, where he said he took $24 and left the purse by the roadside.

Police said they found $150 of $200 missing from the purse on Cook, who was charged with theft of property and released on $1,000 bond.

Test resisted

A domestic violence suspect who allegedly fought off attempts to obtain a blood draw Saturday was charged with resisting stop/frisk/halt/search efforts.

Harold Gene Edwards Jr., 34, of South Fairoak Street was placed on a restraint chair at Bedford County Jail and began shaking his arm to prevent the draw, police said. An emergency medical worker abandoned further efforts after Edwards allegedly broke a glass vial on the second attempt.

Edwards was also charged with domestic assault, DUI (second offense), driving on a revoked license (second offense) and refusal to take a drug test. He was held on $8,000 bond.

Cow shot

A cow was shot to death Thursday or Friday at a farm on Substation Road in Unionville.

A deputy noted one gunshot wound to its neck. No suspects were named.

Holiday shopping post-pandemic

Dear Readers: With the holidays coming up, when you go shopping, stores may (or may not) be offering a variety of sales. Before you head out to shop, go online to check on prices at various stores to get a handle on the prices of products and to see if sales are being offered. And with the current supply chain issues, shop as early as you can. There might not be the wide variety of products that are normally offered because of all the shortages related to the pandemic. -- Heloise

BAKING A HOLIDAY HAM?

Dear Readers: After you put away the leftover ham, don't toss out the broth. Instead, do this: Pour the broth into an ice-cube tray, cover with plastic wrap and then freeze. Store the frozen broth cubes in a freezer-safe zip-top bag. Then you can use them to add flavor to vegetables, casseroles, eggs and other dishes. -- Heloise

UGLY WATER RING in FLOWER VASE

Dear Readers: When you see a crusty, calcium-type ring inside the vase, it most likely has been caused by using tap water that contains minerals. But you can remove this unattractive ring. Here's how to do it: Warm enough full-strength household vinegar to cover the deposits and then pour into the vase. Cover the top of the vase with your hand and shake the vase. Allow the vinegar to soak in the vase overnight.

The next day, pour out the mixture and rub the inside with a nonabrasive scrubbing pad to be certain that everything is dissolved. Then wash and rinse for the final clean.

Vinegar is a utilitarian product good for countless household jobs, including cleaning, deodorizing and cooking. Check out my six-page pamphlet full of vinegar uses to learn more. Get the pamphlet by visiting www.Heloise.com or by sending $5 and a long, self-addressed, stamped (75 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Vinegar, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. FYI: At bath time, add 1 cup of apple cider vinegar to a tub filled with water. Your skin will feel good, and cleaning the tub will be easier. -- Heloise

MOUTH ON FIRE?

Dear Readers: If you have accidentally bitten into a food that's super hot, such as curry or a jalapeno, and your tongue feels as if it's burning, do not go for a glass of water. The water will spread the heat around. Instead, try to soothe that burning tongue and mouth with a bite of ice cream, yogurt or a cucumber. If these are not available, try a piece of chocolate, bread or a sip of alcohol. -- Heloise

INTERESTING HISTORY

Here is an interesting set of numbers that puts perspective on farm commodities and their purchasing power. This was compiled by Charles Hord, Executive Director of the Tennessee Cattlemen Association and presented in the TCA Monday Memo. Reprinted with his permission.

In 1965 the average settle price of an 850 lbs. steer was 25.5 cents so its sale barn value was about $216. A gallon of gas was 31 cents. A new home average cost $20,000 and a new F-150 MSRP cost $2,200. If a farmer sold eleven 850 lbs. steers he could buy a new F-150 with money left over. If he sold 95 steers, he could buy a new house. And one steer could buy about 690 gallons of gas.

In 1975, an 850 lbs. steer averaged 43.5 cents or $369. Gas was .57 cents; a new home averaged $32,000 and an F-150 was $4,500. A farmer had to sell slightly over 12 steers to buy his basic model F-150 truck but only 87 to buy an average priced new home. A steer was worth 650 gallons of gas.

In 1985, an 850 lbs. steer averaged 65.8 cents or $560. Gas was $1.12 (one steer bought 500 gallons). A basic model F 150 was $7,965 (worth 14 steers) and a new house was $68,500 (worth 122 steers).

In 1995, an 850 lbs. steer was worth 66.5 cents or $565. Gas was $1.15 (one steer bought 491 gallons). A basic model F-150 cost $14,500 (worth over 25 steers). A new home cost $106,000 (worth 187 steers).

In 2005, an 850 lbs. Steer was worth 86.7 cents or $737. Gas was $2.30 (one steer bought 320 gallons). A basic model F-150 cost $28,000 (worth 38 steers). A new house was $191,000 (worth 259 steers).

In 2015, an 850 lbs. steer was worth $1.45 or $1,232. Gas was $2.43 (one steer bought 506 gallons). A basic model F-150 cost $28,400 (worth 23 steers) and a new house was $201,000 (worth 163 steers.) This was during that two-year period of historical price increases for cattle.

In 2021 (so far) an 850 lbs. steer has averaged $1.22 or $1,037. Today gas is about $3 gallon (one steer can buy 345 gallons). A new basic model F-150 costs $29,000 (worth about 28 steers). A new house costs $408,000 (worth 393 steers).'

BUDGETS

The 2022 livestock and crop budgets are in the final stages. I will be sharing the links to those in a short time. These budgets are guides for you to use in planning for your enterprises next year.

With inputs costs nearly triple in most crops and prices not stable, budgeting may be some of the best work you'll do this winter in planning for next year.

THE KIDS

Hank turned 12 years old today. He's growing up and some days actually shows a good bit of maturity. He's a bit of a prankster sometimes. He called and tried to get me to fall for a couple of jokes and we laughed hard. Now, he's not an angel all the time just like most kids, but we're proud of him and love him.

Happy birthday, Hank!

Ford is doing well also. He's growing in school, and he's always been a favorite of teachers for how he wants to help them and others. He's a good one, too. We're proud of him and how hard he's studied this year. It's not always been that way, but now he's catching on and making good grades and the honor roll.

Piper is learning a lot in her day care. Her writing skills are good for her age, her conversations are something else to be a part of. She's at the barn every day, helping to feed and check on the animals. She's a dancer, and she loves to entertain.

We're so proud of them, in case you can't tell!

Campbell signs with UT-Southern

By CHRIS SIERS
sports@t-g.com

In front of a crowd of family, friends and teammates, Shelbyville Central senior Hannah Campbell signed her letter of intent to continue her golf career at UT-Southern, formerly known as Martin Methodist.

For Campbell, signing her name on her official letter of intent was the next step in what's been a path of hard work that has transitioned to success on the course.

"It's really exciting because it's something not many kids get to do. It's special. It shows the hard work finally paid off," she said.

While she had interest of a few other schools, there was never a doubt that UT-Southern was the perfect fit for Campbell to spend the next four years.

In addition to being close to home, the small campus atmosphere was a major factor in Campbell's decision.

"There were some from really far away, but they were out of the way. It's really pretty down there. It's small, which is good, because you can stay closer to all your teachers. And I like the course they play too," Campbell said.

Campbell has been the face of the Eaglette golf program during her four years at Shelbyville Central, highlighted by a state tournament appearance during her junior season last year—a memory which she says was among her favorites of her playing career.

"I didn't make it the first two years and then I finally made it the third year. That was exciting."

"It's really special because there's not many girls who have been on the team. To come out you can play as good as the boys is really nice," she added.

While she's still almost a year away from beginning her freshman year, Campbell says she plans to study business.

As far as preparing to transition to a college athlete, Campbell says she plans on working on her game, with the hopes of adding some yards to her drive.

"I'm going to practice as much as I can and get better. I'd like to hit my driver a little longer," she said.

Mullen out at Florida after total collapse

By MARK LONG
AP Sports Writer

One bad season at Florida was one too many for Dan Mullen.

The standard for success when it comes to coaching the Gators is about as high as it can get in college football.

Florida fired Mullen on Sunday, a day after his sixth loss in nine games, two months after the Gators went toe-to-toe with defending national champion Alabama and a year after they had a chance to make the College Football Playoff.

"This is a place where you should have a high level of success over a long period of time," Florida athletic director Scott Stricklin said.

Mullen's stunningly swift downfall and not-so-surprising departure ends a tumultuous two seasons that included mounting losses, numerous public relation missteps, NCAA sanctions and a victory against lower-division Samford that didn't seem like much for Gators fans to celebrate.

Stricklin said he made the decision Sunday morning and offered Mullen the chance to coach the team's final game, but he declined for fear of being a distraction.

Florida (5-6, 2-6 SEC) hosts rival Florida State (5-6) on Saturday, with the winner becoming bowl eligible. Special teams coordinator and running backs coach Greg Knox will serve as interim coach.

How did it all go so wrong so quickly for Mullen?

"I don't know," Stricklin said. "I have some thoughts, but I'm going to keep those to myself."

Mullen finished 34-15 over four seasons at Florida that included a trip to the Southeastern Conference championship game last year and three New Year's Six bowls.

It wasn't enough, and the Gators are in the market for a coach for the fourth time since Urban Meyer left with two national titles on his resume after the 2010 season.

Since then Florida has run through Will Muschamp (28-21 over four years), Jim McElwain (22-12 over three seasons) and now Mullen, who was 21-13 in SEC play.

"We talk about competing for championships and we talk about having a championship experience with integrity; Florida's a place you have the right to aspire to that," Stricklin said.

He then made a pitch to prospective candidates who might have other options in a crowded market that includes LSU and Southern California looking to fill vacancies.

"We got a great university. We have an incredibly passionate fan base. We've invested a lot in facilities. One thing that doesn't get talked a lot about, we have incredible alignment among our university hierarchy. You know, from the Board of Trustees, (university president) Dr. Ken Fuchs, myself, the University Athletic Association Board. Gator boosters board," Stricklin said.

The Gators have an $85 million standalone football facility opening next year, an upgrade that's been years in the making. That and being surrounded by Florida's fertile recruiting pool should make the Sunshine State's biggest college football job even more attractive.

Florida is likely to be linked to most of the top coaches who have already been speculated as candidates at LSU and USC, including Oregon's Mario Cristobal, Cincinnati's Luke Fickell, Penn State's James Franklin, Mississippi's Lane Kiffin and Louisiana's Billy Napier. What about making another run at former Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops, a former Gators assistant under Steve Spurrier?

"We want someone who has high expectations and has a plan to how they can sustain that for a long period of time," Stricklin said. "There's going to be a lot of competition marketplace and I really don't want to share what our criteria or what we're going to prioritize right at this moment."

Mullen's final game was a 24-23 loss in overtime at Missouri on Saturday night that spotlighted Florida's flaws: inconsistent quarterback play, a porous offensive line,

Vols beat UNC in consolation round of Tip-Off

By PAT EATON-ROBB
AP Sports Writer

UNCASVILLE, Conn. — Tennessee turned to its two freshmen guards to bounce back from its first loss of the season and win the consolation game of the Hall of Fame Tip-Off tournament.

Zakai Zeigler scored 18 points to go with five assists, Kennedy Chandler had 14 points, eight assists and five rebounds, and the 17th-ranked Volunteers cruised past No. 18 North Carolina, 89-72 on Sunday.

"Both those guys really did a good job in terms of, I thought, even simple sort of motion," coach Rick Barnes said. "We obviously like to get (Zeigler) running to the basket some, which there at the end he and Kennedy, where they're playing those two-man games, he's very effective there as well."

Santiago Vescovi added 17 points and nine rebounds for the Vols (3-1), who were coming off a 71-53 loss to Villanova on Saturday.

Brady Manek hit six 3-pointers and scored 24 points for the Tar Heels (3-2), who fell to Purdue in Saturday's opening round. Armando Bacot had 16 points and 12 rebounds after scoring just two points and fouling out on Saturday.

Tennessee, which went with a three-guard lineup early in the first half, led by seven points at half-time. The Vols extended that to 12 early in the second half on a run capped when Vescovi stole the ball from Dawson Garcia and laid it up on the other end.

The Volunteers would then answer whenever North Carolina made little runs.

A driving layup by Zeigler pushed the lead to 74-57 with just over 7 minutes to go and his 3-pointer a couple of minutes later off a steal by Brandon Huntley-Hatfield made it 79-60, essentially putting the game out of reach.

Zeigler said he and Kennedy make it hard on defenses when they are on the floor together.

"We're both quick, lightning fast," he said. "I like playing up-tempo. I'm pretty sure he does. I've never played with somebody like that, only maybe one or two players in my entire life. So it's just great."

North Carolina had won 10 of the previous 11 matchups between the programs, a series that dates to 1911. The Volunteers' last win over the Tar Heels came in 1949.

Big picture

North Carolina: Carolina shot 40% from the floor, but came into the game shooting 50.6%. The Tar Heels hit 10 more 3-pointers and are averaging more than nine per game, which is on pace to break the school record of 8.7 per game set in 2018-19.

Tennessee: The Volunteers dominated in the paint, outscoring North Carolina 54-22. ... The Vols, who had 18 turnovers on Saturday, had just 10 Sunday, leading to 14 North Carolina points. The Vols scored 19 points on 13 UNC giveaways.

Another key stat

Tennessee had 28 assists on 38 baskets. North Carolina had just nine assists on 22 field goals.

Defensive woes

North Carolina gave up 96 points in the paint during the two-day tournament. Coach Hubert Davis said that has to change, because he believes his players have what it takes to be a great defensive team.

"There has to be a competitive fire and nature to guard your guy and keep him out of the lane," he said.

Mistakes cost Titans as win streak ends

By TERESA M. WALKER
AP Pro Football Writer

NASHVILLE — The end of the Tennessee Titans' six-game winning streak comes down to a simple number: Five.

Ryan Tannehill was intercepted a career-high four times, and the Titans lost the ball on a muffed punt for a season-high five turnovers Sunday in a 22-13 loss to the Houston Texans that snapped the longest active winning streak in the NFL.

"You turn the ball over in this league, you're going to lose," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said. "Nobody wants to hear that, nobody believes that. But when you do that, it doesn't matter what the record is. We had five turnovers. They had zero. You're going to lose the game 99 percent of the time."

The Titans (8-3) also had other issues Sunday. They fell behind 19-0, leading them to go for it on fourth down four times. They turned it over on downs twice and cost a chance at another fourth-and-1 opportunity after a false start by left guard Rodger Saffold.

Those mistakes were more than enough even when the Titans outgained Houston 420-190 and held the ball for nearly a minute longer.

"Our offense certainly was its own worst enemy," Vrabel said.

Tannehill now has almost as many interceptions this season (12) as he does touchdowns (13). He threw for 323 yards and a TD, his second 300-yard passing performance this season. Tannehill missed a second TD when Dontrell Hilliard fumbled after a catch into the end zone where Anthony Firkser recovered.

Titans

“We shot ourselves in the foot all day,” Tannehill said. “And we got to get better, and it starts with me.”

It didn't help that the Titans have used the most players this season with 82 coming into this game. Seven-time Pro Bowl receiver Julio Jones is on injured reserve, and 2020 Pro Bowler A.J. Brown went to the locker room with a chest injury after a 9-yard catch late in the third quarter.

Marcus Johnson also hurt his right hamstring late in the first quarter and didn't return.

That left Tannehill and the Titans with three available receivers, including rookie Dez Fitzpatrick who didn't make the team in the final roster cut out of training camp. Fitzpatrick did catch his first NFL TD pass, an 18-yarder, in the third quarter. He also was the target on an interception at the goal line in the fourth quarter.

Tannehill refused to go into details on whether miscommunication was an issue.

“At the end of the day, it all falls squarely upon me and I have to be better,” Tannehill said.

Left tackle Taylor Lewan said the reality is the Texans (2-8) took advantage of the Titans' poor play and that they must be better. His confidence in Tannehill also hasn't wavered.

“You see what's happened since he's been the starting quarterback,” Lewan said. “I think the way he handles this and the way he handles himself on a weekly basis, we should all be appreciative of him to be our quarterback on this franchise. These things happen.”

With the loss and a win by Indianapolis over Buffalo, the Titans' margin inside the AFC South is down to a two-game lead in the loss column plus the tiebreaker over the Colts (6-5). They still sit atop the AFC as the first and currently only team in the conference with eight wins, though their bye comes Dec. 2.

“We're just not going to panic,” safety Kevin Byard said. “It is what it is. We took a loss and rally the troops, get healthy and prepare for the Patriots next week.”

Ohio State jumps to No. 2 past Alabama, Cincinnati

By RALPH D. RUSSO
AP College Football Writer

Ohio State is No. 2 in The Associated Press college football poll, surging three spots Sunday past No. 3 Alabama and No. 4 Cincinnati in a close vote. Georgia is a unanimous No. 1 in the AP Top 25 presented by Regions Bank for the seventh consecutive week, but for the second week in a row, No. 2 has changed.

Alabama slipped past Cincinnati last week and then Ohio State leapfrogged them both after routing Michigan State 56-7 on Saturday. The Buckeyes received 1,434 points from the media panel. The Crimson Tide had 1,423 and the Bearcats got 1,416.

Notre Dame is up to a season-high No. 5 and Michigan will go into its game against Ohio State next Saturday ranked No. 6. The winner of Buckeyes-Wolverines will play in the Big Ten championship game.

Oklahoma State moved to a season-high No. 7 and is one of three teams from the Big 12 residing in the back half of the top 10, along with No. 9 Baylor and No. 10 Oklahoma.

The Cowboys host the Sooners next Saturday in a Bedlam game that will help decide the Big 12 championship participants. Oklahoma State has clinched a spot, and Baylor and Oklahoma are still alive.

Mississippi rounds out the top 10 at No. 8.

Poll points

Michigan State was one of two teams ranked in the top 10 last week to get blown out Saturday.

The Spartans dropped five spots to 12th after losing to Ohio State and Oregon fell from fourth to 11th after getting pounded 38-7 by Utah. The Utes moved up eight spots to

No. 16.

The last time two top-10 teams lost by 30 or more points on the same day was Sept. 22, 1984, when No. 15 Florida State beat No. 4 Miami 38-3 and No. 1 Nebraska beat No. 8 UCLA 42-3.

— For the first time this season no teams fell out of the rankings.

Four ranked teams lost in total, with Wake Forest and Arkansas joining Oregon and Michigan State. The Demon Deacons were the only ranked team to lose to an unranked team. Wake's lopsided loss at Clemson dropped the Deacs eight spots to No. 21.

No. 25 Arkansas fell four spots after losing at Alabama by a touchdown, narrowly keeping Clemson from returning to the Top 25 for the first time since the last week-end of September. The Razorbacks received 105 points to Clemson's 101.

Mullen

a lack of playmakers on both sides of the ball and an inability to win close games. The Gators dropped seven consecutive one-possession games, all in the last two seasons.

Stricklin wanted to give Mullen every chance to turn things around — especially since the team was ranked sixth in the CFP standings just a year ago. He even rewarded Mullen with a raise to $7.6 million in salary this year and a contract extension through 2026 in the offseason — but it became clear Mullen was losing support of top administrators, key boosters and fans.

The Gators will pay Mullen a $12 million buyout spread over seven installments, with a $6 million payout coming within 30 days. Mullen will then get $1 million every July 15 through 2027. Six of Mullen's assistants have expiring contracts.

Mullen fired two close friends and top assistants following a 40-17 drubbing at South Carolina earlier this month, but parting with defensive coordinator Todd Grantham and run game coordinator John Hevesy did little to get Florida back on track. The Gators allowed 52 points to FCS Samford the following game but did manage to rally for a victory.

Mullen's offensive acumen made him one of the best play-callers in the SEC for the past 15 years — including nine as Mississippi State's head coach, the rest in Gainesville — but his recent issues overshadowed all his prowess.

Mullen's recruiting has been the root of his on-field problems and his strong-willed ways landed him in hot water last year after he doubled down on wanting to pack Florida Field despite the pandemic.

He got Florida placed on NCAA probation for the first time in 30 years and was dealt a show-cause penalty for recruiting violations. He was fined and reprimanded by the SEC for his role in a benches-clearing fight last season and was widely criticized for tone-deaf comments following two losses.

Now Florida is ready for another reset.

“We're going to put the resources necessary into making the right decision to get the right person in and the right structure around that person for us to be successful,” Stricklin said. “And we're very blessed to be in a place that we do have some resources.”

Bowl eligibility count at 72 with plenty of teams in hunt

By NOAH TRISTER
AP Sports Writer

These aren't exactly the stakes Florida and Florida State had in mind for their end-of-the-season rivalry game.

The Gators and Seminoles both enter Saturday's clash at 5-6, meaning the winner becomes bowl eligible. That's one of four games next weekend pitting two five-win teams against each other. The others are Maryland-Rutgers, Charlotte-Old Dominion and Florida Atlantic-Middle Tennessee.

There's enough space for 82 FBS teams to play in bowls this season. Right now 72 teams already have secured bowl eligibility. The winners of the four games listed above will bring the total to 76, and there are plenty of other teams that also are a victory away from bowl eligibility. In years when there haven't been enough six-win teams to fill all the spots, teams with losing records have been allowed to play.

Here's this week's schedule for the teams on the bowl eligibility bubble:

- Tuesday
- Ball State (5-6) vs. Buffalo
- Thursday
- San Jose State (5-6) vs. Fresno State
- Friday
- South Alabama (5-6) vs. Coastal Carolina
- TCU (5-6) at Iowa State
- Saturday

- Florida State (5-6) at Florida (5-6)
- LSU (5-6) vs. Texas A&M
- Maryland (5-6) at Rutgers (5-6)
- Memphis (5-6) vs. Tulane

James draws blood on Stewart

By LARRY LAGE
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT — LeBron James was ejected from the Los Angeles Lakers-Detroit Pistons game after drawing blood on Isaiah Stewart's face when they were tangled up while boxing out for a rebound on Sunday night.

James' left elbow and hand appeared to make contact with Stewart above the neck, sending him into a bloody rage. Detroit's center had to be held back more than once, keeping him separated from the NBA superstar.

Stewart, who was called for a foul before James hit him, was also ejected from the game early in the third quarter after being assessed two technical fouls for his role in the fray. James was called for a Flagrant 2 foul.

Lakers guard Russell Westbrook was assessed a technical after the officials reviewed the play and the fallout from it, determining he was an “escalator,” while there was pushing, shoving and trash talking.

James was escorted off the floor and fans did not throw anything at him as he walked toward the team's locker room.

James and Stewart were not made available for comment after the game.

Anthony Davis of the Lakers praised players, coaches and security for keeping the peace.

“Everybody did a great job trying to deescalate the situation,” Anthony said after the Lakers beat the Pistons 121-116. “You never want it to get to that point like 17 years ago.”

Then, not far away, the scene was much different.

A cup was tossed from the stands in suburban Detroit on an infamous night on Nov. 19, 2004, triggering perhaps the worst brawl in U.S. sports history when a melee with the Pistons and Indiana Pacers spilled into the stands. During Sunday's game against the Lakers, former Pistons Ben Wallace and Rip Hamilton were close to the latest fracas because they had court-side seats.

Stewart's face was covered with blood after he and James were trying to get position for a rebound off a free throw. James appeared to attempt to apologize to Stewart as he lay on the court, but the 20-year-old center tried to charge toward the 36-year-old forward.

“Everyone in the league knows LeBron isn't a dirty guy,” Davis said. “As soon as he did it, he looked back and told him, ‘My bad.’”

Stewart broke free more than once and appeared to be running into a tunnel that potentially provided a path toward the Lakers' bench.

“I don't think James is a dirty player, but Stewart cut his eye,” Detroit coach Dwane Casey said. “He felt like he had been cheap-shot across the brow. I'm not even sure he knew who hit him.”

Earlier this season, Stewart faced off with former teammate Blake Griffin of the Brooklyn Nets after they were tangled up during a game.

“He needs to just keep his head and not get a reputation,” Casey said.

Tiger back in swing of things

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

One swing, two words and three seconds of a video was all it took from Tiger Woods to get everyone talking Sunday about his future on the golf course.

Woods had not made a public comment about injuries from his Feb. 23 car accident in Los Angeles since May, and he didn't have a lot to offer on Twitter.

“Making progress,” was all he said, accompanied by the video of a smooth swing with a wedge. Woods was wearing a black compression sleeve on his right leg, with a large bucket half-filled with golf balls on a practice range.

He also had a launch monitor behind him that measures such metrics as distance and ball speed.

Woods was recovering from another back procedure at the start of the year when he ran his SUV over a median and it toppled down a steep hill on a winding, sweeping road in the Los Angeles suburbs on his way to a television shoot a golf course. Doctors said he shattered tibia and fibula bones on his right leg in multiple locations. Those were stabilized by a rod in the tibia. A combination of screws and pins were used to stabilize additional injuries in the ankle and foot.

In an interview published May 27 in Golf Digest, with which Woods has a financial deal, he described the rehabilitation from this surgery as “more painful than anything I have ever experienced.” He said at the time his top priority was “walking on my own.”

He took care of that already, with videos on social media in the last month showing him walking on golf courses during junior events.

Woods has not played since the PNC Championship with his son, Charlie, last December. His last full tournament was the Masters one year ago in November.

It was not clear why Woods posted the video on Sunday. He hosts the Hero World Challenge in the Bahamas the week after Thanksgiving.

Woods has had 10 surgeries — four on his left knee, five on his lower back and the most recent for the crushing injuries from the car accident in February. He turns 46 on Dec. 30.

He won a third U.S. Open in 2008 while competing on shredded ligaments in his left knee and a double stress fracture, and he returned from fusion surgery on his lower spine in 2017 by winning a fifth Masters in 2019.

His last victory was the Zozo Championship in Japan in the fall of 2019, giving him 82 for his career on the PGA Tour to tie Sam Snead for the all-time record.

County archives receives grant

HISTORIC MAPS AND PHOTOS OF BEDFORD COUNTY

By ZOË HAGGARD
zhaggard@t-g.com

Bedford County Archives recently received a $2,700 state grant that will help provide better shelving and other archival supplies for permanent storage of records.

Tennessee Secretary of State Tre Hargett presented the check to Bedford County Archive Director Carol Roberts, who used to work for Hargett as a state archivist in Nashville.

"I'm really excited...the last grant from TSLA (Tennessee State Library and Archives) was for four to five units of shelving...and that scanner," Roberts said.

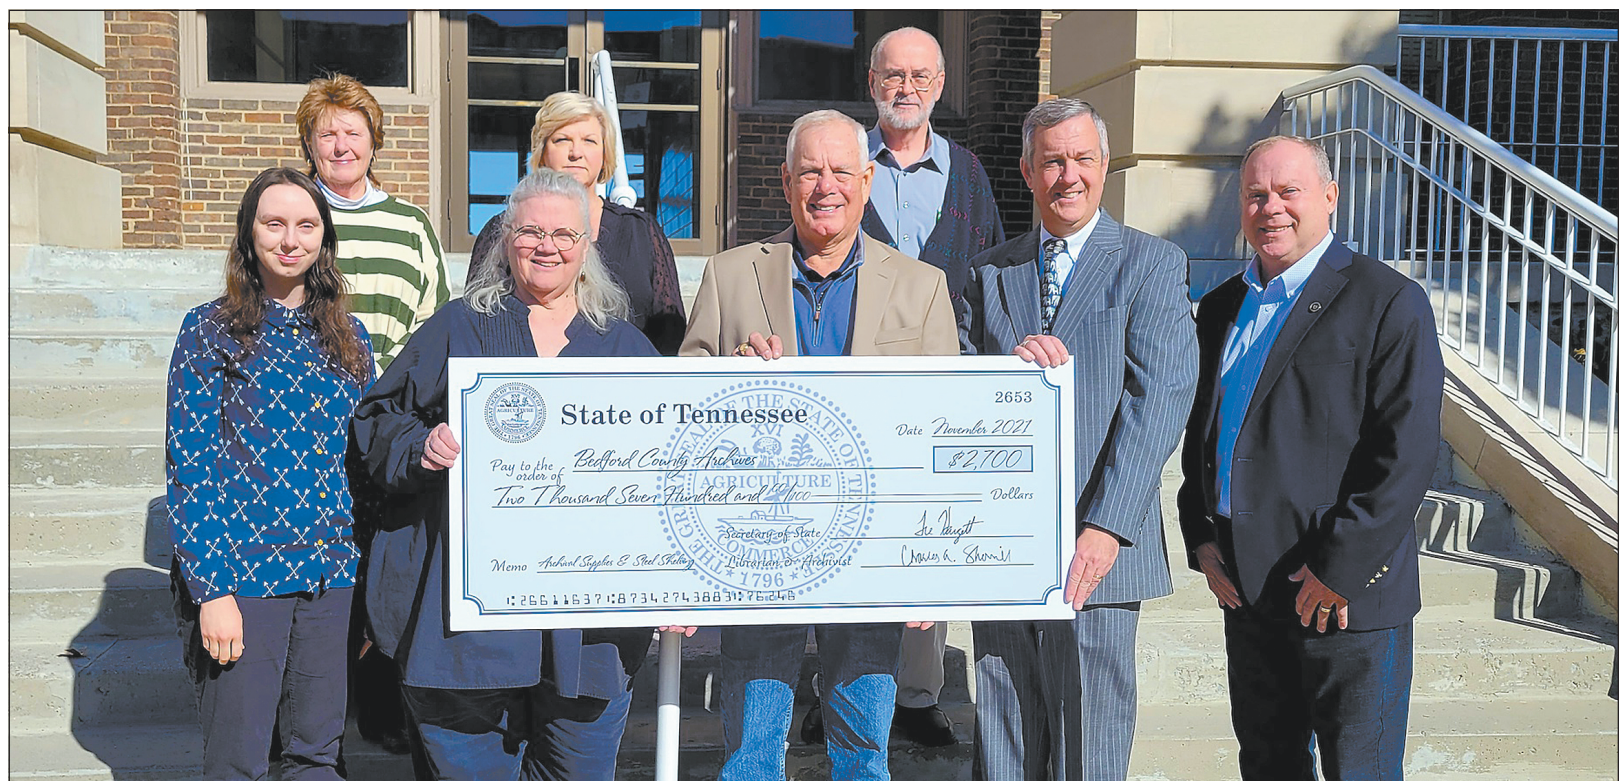

The scanner, according to Roberts, costs around $3,000. It enables the archivists to scan records that have not been available for the public modern records.

"We've had some veterans who have been married some sixty-odd years and have their marriage certificate. So, we've been helping a lot of people out," Roberts said.

Future plans

Even though microfilm, according to Roberts, is the "least degradable," Roberts said they would like to get a digital scanner for historic microfilm to make records available as images that would, essentially, make them into easy-read pictures.

"The preservation microfilm that still at the TSLA vaults is the primary resource. And there are record books I am finding now...and they're on microfilm," Roberts said.

State Rep. and Speaker Pro Tem Pat Marsh and Tennessee Secretary of State Tre Hargett

The goal is to pack vaults with the earliest original records. The Bedford

County Archives recently received 300 boxes from the sheriff's department and 250 hospital records, Roberts said.

The archives would also like to add research facilities and a reading room. But the location of county archives, the Bedford

This scanner, according to Roberts, enables the archivists to scan records that have not been available for the public modern records. It's some of the equipment the local archivists purchase with the grant funds.

County Courthouse, which is still in its renovation process, needs better physical conditions, like an AC unit and climate control storage.
