City sidewalks wear holiday construction

By ZOE HAGGARD
zhaggard@t-g.com

When Danielle Armbruster came to Shelbyville from Cleveland, Ohio, she loved everything about the historic downtown square. It “felt like home.”

The Belmont University graduate knew she wanted to make Shelbyville the place of her dream antique store.

The old library building located on the corner of South Main and McGrew Streets came up for sale. Taking it as a sign, the Armbrusters bought the old place and made it what it is now The Shops at Main and McGrew. It's filled with “something for everybody” and antiques ranging from...well, just about everything you can imagine.

And like any small business, the Armbrusters are preparing for the holiday shopping season, while working around the sidewalk construction project.

For four weeks, the Main and McGrew storefront was off limits as both gas lines and sidewalks were being prepared.

“We're excited about the Square's improvements, but the timing hasn't been great,” Danielle Armbruster said.

Bad timing

During those four weeks, Armbruster said she had tons of calls from customers asking if they were still open. They were, but access from the front had to be reverted to the back door.

There was no walkability, which many of the stores on the square rely on. Even though the project has moved, the construction on the corner of Main and Depot streets hinders many from walking down.

When they bought their building in October 2016, the City said new sidewalks would be in within six months.

That six months turned into five and half years later.

So the big question is why now?

“The project has been delayed for years, due to funding, engineering and design, and other factors,” said Shelbyville City Manager Joshua Ray. “Due to those delays, we were running out of time to complete the project before we lost funding.”

“We do not want to do part of the project now and then have to come back at a later date to do something else,” explained Ray.

“When the City Council approved the contract for Curl Construction, the contract provided that Curl Construction would be responsible for the timeline. We have worked with Curl Construction to keep

The Shops at Main & McGrew—located in the former public library on the square—went all out for Black Friday and Saturday's Small Business event. Danielle Armbruster, owner, said despite all the construction, she wanted to give the historic public square a merry Christmas look.

McGee's sports writing career honored

Newest into Hall of Fame

T-G STAFF REPORT

Shelbyville's own Mark McGee was recently announced as being one of three of the newest members inducted into the Tennessee Sports Writers Association's Hall of Fame.

In addition to McGee, the other two inductees into the hall of fame are Chris Dortch and Dan Fleser.

The three encompass many years of dedicated sports journalism, including one whose basketball yearbook is an annual guide to the sport and another who chronicled six of the late Pat Summitt's eight national championships. Another has written for a variety of Tennessee outlets over his long career, making significant contributions along the way to Tennessee sports coverage.

Mark McGee

Mark McGee graduated from then-David Lipscomb College in 1979 and went to work for the Nashville Banner in November 1981 as a sportswriter. He covered Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Tennessee State, the Nashville Sounds and city colleges.

McGee was a Knight Center Fellow in The Business of Sports in 1992 from the University of Maryland. He was a senior writer when he left the Banner in June 1994.

McGee covered the Nashville Predators, the Nashville Kats and the Tennessee Titans in his work for the Nashville City Paper, Sports Nashville, Nashville Sports Weekly and Titans Exclusive.

He also worked on a law degree at the Nashville School of Law where he graduated in 1988. He is a three-time presenter at the Cooperstown Symposium on Baseball and American Culture.

The former Banner sportswriter has received numerous writing awards, including a national first place and a national second place with College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA.)

In June 1994, McGee became editor of the Shelbyville Times-Gazette — a job he held until February 2003.

The Bedford County native transitioned to director of media relations for Lipscomb University in August 2002 — a position he held through May 2017.

Earning a master's in conflict management in 2017, McGee is currently an adjunct professor in communications at Lipscomb and is in his third year of service to his local community as United Way of Bedford County executive director.

Chris Dortch

Dortch is a native of Illinois who grew up watching Missouri Valley and Big Ten basketball games and reading the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He started college at George Mason before graduating from East Tennessee State. Dortch was a sports writer for the Kingsport Times-News from 1978-82

Burglary suspect caught, pinned

By DAVID MELSON

A man accused of attempting to break into a Morton Street home was chased down by the intended victim and held for police early Saturday.

Arriving officers found Brandon Lee Munsey, 29, of Rock Street pinned to the pavement in the middle of Morton Street by the man, who was not charged.

The victim said he was awakened by noise from an attempt to enter the front door. He and a friend looked outside and allegedly saw Munsey breaking into a vehicle.

Both men went outside and yelled at Munsey to get out of the vehicle. Munsey allegedly began coming toward them and was held down by the victim until officers reached the scene.

Munsey was too intoxicated to sit up without falling and was bleeding from a hand injury, Officer Clint Adams' report said. Blood was splattered on and inside the vehicle, Adams said.

Charges of burglary, public intoxication and violation of probation were filed against Munsey. Police took Munsey from Vanderbilt Bedford Hospital following treatment to Bedford County Jail, where he posted $7,500 bond.

He came to the Knoxville News Sentinel in 1988 and remained until 2019. Fleser's primary responsibility most of that time was Lady Vols basketball—a beat he owned. In short, no print journalist in the country was more connected to women's college basketball than he.

Fleser covered six of Summitt's eight NCAA championships. He was present everywhere Pat took the team to promote the women's game, from Storrs, Conn., to Vermont, Montana, Spokane or Chicago. He remains in touch with Lady Vols from the past 30 years, who appreciate his contributions.

the project moving forward, and they have done a really good job."

The project is set to be completed by next March. At that time, the City will work to finalize the areas that are not included in the project and then pave the streets around the square, according to Ray.

Oops...

But like living on a construction site, accidents are bound to happen — like when one of the workers backed some equipment into a four-foot brick wall at Main and McGrew's alley way knocking down a chunk of it.

Armbruster said she wasn't mad. But it's been two months since and it hasn't been fixed. And with the kickoff to their holiday season coming up on Nov. 27 — Small Business Appreciation Day — she hopes to have her business looking presentable for visitors and customers.

"During the holiday season, I encourage everyone to continue to patronize our local businesses," Ray said. "The holidays make up an important part of their annual revenues. Individuals may need to come early to find parking or to navigate the construction zones, but we hope that people will take the extra effort to shop at your favorite shops downtown."

Parking is available at the City of Shelbyville Parking Lot, 201 S. Main St. and at the Fly Arts Center, 204 S. Main.

Communication is key

Armbruster said anytime she had a question, she said the city was very responsive in both their answers and their help.

"I think that's key — having communication not only business to business but also communication among business and city and customer," said Armbruster.

"The most effective way to communicate during this project is to either communicate directly with Mike Clanton [Curl Construction contractor] or to contact me," said Ray. A project meeting is held every Tuesday morning to discuss any issues that have arisen.

"I'm excited for the end result of this project," Armbruster said. "People have pride in this town... The community does a great job supporting small businesses."

MAKING THE HOLIDAY BRIGHTER

Tyson Foods held a food give-a-way recently with 45,000 pounds of chicken being donated locally to anyone who drove up to Gateway Church on Madison Street. Leftover food was to be donated to Second Harvest Food Bank and local first responders. It was a cool Saturday, but workers were eager to help those in need.

Get your house clean for the holidays

Dear Readers: With all of the holiday activities, our homes are probably messier than usual this time of year. Use these basic cleaning hints to get back to sparkling clean.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

-- Before you decide to use a commercial cleaning product, first read the label. Cleaners are different, and you might need to dilute or mix the product with another ingredient.

-- Get the area to be cleaned ready by getting rid of food, dirt and loose substances. You can use a dry duster, broom or vacuum to do this.

-- Figure out exactly what the dirt is so you can use the right cleaner to do the job. If you think the cleaner could harm the surface, test it in a hidden spot first before you apply it.

-- Apply enough of the cleaner to cover the surface, and allow enough time for it to work. Never wipe it off too fast.

-- Remove the cleaner with a sponge, cloth or squeegee to get up the mixture and dirt. Rub stubborn areas. Rinse, if necessary, and wipe up all liquid. Dry with an absorbent cloth or air-dry, if instructions recommend it. -- Heloise

HOT PIZZA BOX ON WOOD

Dear Readers: If a family member or relative has brought a hot pizza box and placed on your wooden dining table and it left white spots, use this hint to remove them.

If the table has a coat of furniture polish or wax on it, here's what to do. Put white toothpaste on a fingertip or cloth and rub with the grain of the wood until it becomes warm. Wipe it with a lightly damp (water only) cloth and then dry well. You might have to repeat this several times to get through the polish buildup. If the spots are deep, keep trying -- one layer at a time -- until gone. Then polish again. No hot pizza boxes or takeout food on wood! -- Heloise

DRINKING GLASSES CLOUDY?

Dear Readers: When you take your drinking glasses out of the dishwasher and notice they are cloudy even though they are clean, here's how to check to see if the cloudiness is etched in or can be removed.

Heat full-strength vinegar and soak glasses in it. If they are delicate or fine crystal, use only warm vinegar. Rub the glasses with a plastic scrubber, rinse and dry well by hand. Examine the glasses to see if the cloudiness has gone. If it is, the cause could be because of hard water or because of using too much or too little dishwasher detergent. If the cloudiness remains, the glasses could be scratched permanently. -- Heloise

MAKING CUPCAKES OR MUFFINS?

Dear Readers: When you are mixing these tasty treats, it can be such a mess when you move the batter from the bowl to the baking tins. But to prevent the mixture from making a mess, use an ice cream scoop to pick up the right amount of batter. There won't be any mess or waste. -- Heloise

SAVING MONEY ON YOUR ELECTRIC BILLS

Dear Readers: As the cold weather arrives, we turn up the heat to warm our houses. But the cost of electricity also seems to be increasing. Take these two steps to help lower bills.

1. Install a programmable thermostat that you can set so the heat goes on and off when you want.
2. Make the change from incandescent light-bulbs to LEDs. While they might cost more initially, they last for years and use less electricity. -- Heloise

VEGETABLE-BEEF SOUP

Dear Heloise: On the weekends I love to make homemade soup. What I'm looking for is a vegetable-beef recipe. A friend of mine told me that for homemade soup, you were the expert. So, got a recipe for some homemade veggie soup? -- Harold R., Hendersonville, N.C.

Harold, I do have a delicious recipe for homemade vegetable-beef soup. It's easy to make and tastes great on a chilly winter day. Here it is:

- 10 1/2 ounce unsalted chicken broth
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 cups frozen mixed vegetables for soup
- 16-ounce can tomatoes
- 1 cup beef, cooked and diced
- 1 teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
- Dash of pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 ounces (about 1 1/4 cups) narrow-width noodles, uncooked

Heat broth and water. Add vegetables, tomatoes, meat and seasonings. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and boil gently, uncovered, for 15 minutes. Add noodles; cook until noodles are tender, about 10 minutes. Remove bay leaf before serving. Makes about 4 cups of soup.

Send calendar items to tgnews@t-g.com, notify us on Facebook, call 931-684-1200 or drop by our offices, 323 E. Depot St., weekdays from 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Crustless pie a treat for those with gluten intolerance

The holiday season is a popular time to entertain. Food is often a focal point of holiday season entertaining.

Individuals who navigate food allergies or intolerances may shy away from certain celebrations out of fear that a nibble of this or a bite of that may trigger an allergic response. In such instances, concern about ingredients can cast a pall over normally festive occasions.

Those with Celiac disease or gluten intolerances must be mindful of the foods they consume. Meals or desserts containing gluten, a protein found in grains like wheat, semolina, rye, barley, graham, spelt, farina, and more, can trigger intestinal distress and other symptoms. With delicious pies, cakes and cookies on the holiday serving table, gluten is likely to make an appearance. However, with careful planning, people who cannot stomach foods that contain gluten can still indulge in their favorite holiday flavors.

"Crustless Libby's® Famous Pumpkin Pie"

is a variation on traditional pumpkin pie served at Thanksgiving and Christmas gatherings. Without the crust, individuals who avoid gluten can still dive into that pumpkin-and-spice combination that's so popular around the holiday season. Enjoy this recipe, courtesy of Libby's® Pumpkin.

WILD BUTTERCUP

This is another reminder that wild buttercup is easier to control now than in the late winter or early spring when it is in the blooming phase. Here's why.

This weed in pastures and hay fields is a fall-germinated plant. It is now up and in different stages of growth, but all of them are vulnerable to some of the good weed control products. I've attached a photo to identify it if you're not sure. The key to control is to spray it when the temperature is above 60 degrees for three days to help the chemical activity, and we have several of those days coming up this week.

The problem with waiting for spring and the bloom stage is that the leaves on the mature plant is waxy and hard for the weed control products to penetrate these tough leaves. They will curl and show some damage then, but invariably they will 'grow' out of it and survive.

Spraying them now will kill the young tender plants much more easily. There are several products. One good one is 2,4-D. It's very effective, reasonably priced, and with these cooler temperatures you won't see volatility, and it there is any drift, there are very few plants that are in a vulnerable state as opposed to spring or summer months. While it may show some burn on clovers, they'll survive.

Another good choice is Duracor, a new product that is in the same family as the Grazon products. These products are really good broadleaf weed controls, but the down side is that they will kill clovers. If you are concerned about clovers in your stands of grass, use the one above. If not, then these new products will work fine.

A side benefit of doing this treatment now is that you will also get a good control on thistles. These are also fall-germinated plants, and this first year they are in a tender rosette stage. It is more difficult to control in the spring and summer, so this is a good time to work on this weed as well. The same products work very well and in the same circumstances.

It may seem wrong to do these treatments now, but this time frame is much better than when these plants are mature and in the blooming stages. And what are the blooms? More seeds to assure the weed will continue to produce new plants and be around again.

Think about this. It makes sense. Take advantage of the warm temperatures now and see the difference. And remember, always read the label before you use these products. Why? You'll do it correctly, use the right amounts per acre, and the most important thing is... it's the law! Pay attention to the safety issues and do it right.

SOIL TESTS

It's a great time to get soil tests done. Check the pH and make plans on applying lime if it's needed. And with the prices of fertilizers, don't guess. As I've said before, smart money is spent on soil tests, lime if needed, and weed control. Looking at the actual N/P/K needs, a smarter decision on what to do and what to spend is a must.

MARKETING TIPS

We have some good data on marketing cattle that has been gathered and studied by a team of ag economists for effects different practices on price of feeder cattle. The data set includes 1164 different lots of cattle sold in the Lower Middle Tennessee Cattleman Association Video Sale over the five-years period of 2015-2020.

This data looked at the effect of lot size, color, sex of the calves, vaccination status, and a group of other factors that have been discussed as management practices for a long time. The numbers are impressive and validate some good things to do.

I'll be glad to share the links to these studies. Just send me a message to my email address jteague1@utk.edu and I'll be glad to send them to you.

right attitude about a lot of things, and we're proud of that. He's got some flaws, to be sure, but he's working on those as he gets older and more mature. And we are all helping him to understand to make good choices.

Ford actually spent some of his own money to buy Hank a birthday gift, and we were so proud of his generosity and expression of his love for his brother. Now, that doesn't mean they don't quarrel and fight, but there are times that are good. He's also learning about good choices, and we're hoping that they both continue to do that.

Piper spent the day with Meme the other day, and she got to paint a Christmas tree snowman ornament. It's a pink one with a purple hat. While that may not be the traditional colors for a snowman, for this four-year-old girl they are just perfect and her favorites, so they have to be the correct ones!

The next thirty days or so will include them all being together at the holidays, and we're looking forward to that. No telling what we'll get into with them around!

A guide to picking the perfect fresh Christmas tree

Come the holiday season, perhaps no tradition evokes the warm and fuzzy "feels" more than a family outing to pick a Christmas tree. Whether it's a trek to a live Christmas tree farm or a short drive to the nearest pre-cut tree lot, the process of selecting a tree that will serve as the crown jewel of the entire season is a great way to make lasting memories.

Selecting a tree is a yearly ritual and each person has his or her set of criteria for what makes the ideal Christmas tree. These tips can help families find the right tree.

Choose your species

Do some homework on the type of tree you want prior to buying the tree. Balsam fir and fraser fir are popular Christmas tree varieties, but there are many others, such as noble fir and Norway spruce. Balsams are known for having the most fragrant smell, but frasers tend to keep their needles the longest. For those who prefer a douglas fir, keep in mind that they sometimes drop their needles prematurely due to foliar diseases like needle-cast fungus.

Space for ornaments

In addition to aroma and needle longevity, look for trees that have a desirable shape and allow for adequate space between branches, advises the home and garden resource The Spruce. Trees groomed to be lush and full will look beautiful unadorned, but once ornaments are added, full branches may cause those ornaments to hang low or even fall off. Trees with sparse branches allow for ornaments to hang straight.

Measure your space

Trees in the field or in a lot may look much smaller than they do when brought into the living room. Don't make the mistake of selecting a tree that is too large for your home. The agricultural firm Ragan & Masey says to measure the room from floor to ceiling and subtract the height of the tree stand and tree topper. It's equally important to measure the width of the area where the tree will stand and allow for ample space for foot traffic around the tree.

Perform a needle check

Every tree will drop some needles, and most evergreens hold their foliage. Modest needle loss is not an indicator of a poor tree. However, Decker's Nursery in Greenlawn, NY says if 50 percent of the needles are lost when you swipe your hand down three to five different branches around the tree, the tree likely is not a good choice. In addition, avoid a tree that has glaring defects in the trunk as it can impede water flow through the tree.

Heavier is better

A heavy pre-cut tree means it is full of water and has been cut more recently. A healthy, fresh tree is going to require an effort to lift. Older, dried out trees will not be heavy.

Upon arriving home, make a fresh cut off the tree trunk and get it in water as soon as possible — even if that's a bucket until the tree stand can be set up.

Titans fumble away AFC's No. 1 seed

By JIMMY GOLEN
AP Sports Writer

Two kicks that clanged off the same upright. A missed tackle that turned a short pass into a 41-yard touchdown. Three fumbles in New England territory, and an interception in the end zone.

A lot of things went wrong for the Tennessee Titans in their 36-13 loss to the Patriots on Sunday, and so many of them were self-inflicted.

"We did some good things. We did some, obviously, things that are going to get you beat. That is somewhat frustrating," Titans coach Mike Vrabel said after a second straight loss that dropped Tennessee from the conference's top seed. "Penalties on special teams. Turnovers. So you don't have to look too hard on why we lost."

The Titans (8-4) seemed like the dominant team in the AFC and cruising for the No. 1 playoff seed before losing to the one-win Houston Texans last week. Now they are third behind New England (8-4), with seven-win Baltimore playing later Sunday.

"Of course, everybody's thinking we're not that team any more," defensive tackle Jeffery Simmons said. "But

The Titans committed four turnovers against the Patriots on Sunday, including four fumbles and an interception by Ryan Tannehill.

I have a lot of faith in my guys, I have a lot of faith in this team. Coming off this bye week, we're going to come back rolling."

Playing their fourth straight game without running back Derrick Henry, the reigning NFL offensive player of the year, the Titans were also missing receivers A.J. Brown (chest) and Julio Jones (hamstring), guard Nate Davis (concussion), linebackers Rashaan Evans (ankle) and David Long (hamstring), running back Jeremy McNichols (concussion) and defensive lineman Tear Tart (ankle).

"We've got a bye. We've got to get healthy mentally and physically. And get back to playing football how we know how to play it, taking care of the football," Vrabel said. "A lot of things to improve."

Tennessee got more than 100 yards from two running backs — Dontrell Hilliard (131 on 12 carries) and D'Onta Foreman (109 on 19). But three different backs fumbled in the game.

Add in Ryan Tannehill's interception in the end zone, which not only cost the Titans a scoring chance but rescued New England from having to take over on its own 2-yard line, and the mistakes were insurmountable.

"You kill the momentum," said Tannehill, who had season lows with 11 completions for 93 yards. "We're marching the ball, marching the ball. I felt like every time we touched it, we were doing good things. We kind of shot ourselves in the foot a couple times by putting it on the ground."

Things started out poorly for the Titans, who were penalized on the opening kickoff return and then gave up two tackles for loss in the first three downs. On the ensuing punt, Tennessee committed two penalties, erasing the kick that was downed at the New England 31.

Gunner Olszewski ran the re-kick back 15 yards to the Titans 37 — a 32-yard swing in field possession — and nine plays later it was 7-0.

When the Titans did score, Randy Bullock clanged the extra point off the right upright. On a second-quarter field goal attempt, he did it again. (Bullock is the Titans' third kicker this year; Sam Ficken was hurt the Friday before the opener, then Michael Badgley kicked in Game 1 before Bullock was brought in.)

It was still a one-score game in the third quarter when Foreman broke free for a 30-yard run into Patriots territory. But J.C. Jackson stripped the ball and Jalen Mills grabbed it before it went out of bounds.

After trading punts, the Patriots took a 26-13 lead on a short pass that went for a score when the Titans assumed Kendrick Bourne was headed out of bounds;

Duke jumps to No. 1 in reshuffled AP Top 25

By AARON BEARD
AP Basketball Writer

Duke jumped to No. 1 in The Associated Press Top 25 men's college basketball poll released Monday after its win against Gonzaga, adding to a record haul of top rankings for Hall of Fame coach Mike Krzyzewski.

The Blue Devils earned 51 of 61 first-place votes in the new poll, climbing from fifth last week following a win that knocked the Bulldogs from the top spot. This marks the 127th week at No. 1 for Krzyzewski, who is set to retire after this season.

The Blue Devils are No. 1 for the first time since spending two weeks there in November 2019.

Purdue earned nine first-place votes and moved up a spot to No.

2, while the Zags fell to third.

Reigning national champion Baylor rose two spots to No. 4 after winning the Battle 4 Atlantis tournament while UCLA fell three spots to No. 5 after a 20-point loss to Gonzaga last week.

Villanova, Texas, Kansas, Kentucky and Arkansas rounded out the top 10 in a reshuffled poll that saw no team hold its spot from the previous week and three new teams join the list.

Florida made the week's biggest jump by climbing nine spots to No. 14 while No. 11 Arizona and No. 12 BYU each rose six spots.

Memphis had the week's biggest tumble, sliding nine spots to No. 18, followed by No. 16

Alabama's six-spot fall. No. 8 Kansas, No. 24 Michigan and No. 25 Seton Hall slid four spots.

No. 19 Iowa State, No. 22 Michigan State and No. 23 Wisconsin — which won the relocated Maui Invitational — were the three new additions, while Illinois, St. Bonaventure and Xavier fell out of the rankings.

Sooners' Riley bolts for USC 'tradition'

By GREG BEACHAM
AP Sports Writer

Southern California desperately wanted a marquee head coach after more than a decade of underachievement and embarrassment.

The Trojans landed one of the biggest, brightest names in the game.

USC hired Oklahoma's Lincoln Riley on Sunday in a stunning and rare move of one traditional college football powerhouse swiping another's highly accomplished coach.

Riley went 55-10 in five seasons leading the Sooners, winning four Big 12 titles and making three College Football Playoff appearances in his first head coaching job. USC sold the 38-year-old Texan on the chance to return the Trojans to their glory days as an annual national championship contender and the West Coast's premier program.

"USC has an unparalleled football tradition with tremendous resources and facilities, and the administration has made a deep commitment to winning," Riley said in a statement. "I look forward to honoring that successful tradition and building on it. The pieces are in place for us to build the program back to where it should be and the fans expect it to be."

Riley "will immediately transition to USC," according to the school's statement. Interim coach Donte Williams will lead the Trojans (4-7, 3-5 Pac-12) in their season finale at California on Saturday night.

Bob Stoops is returning as Oklahoma's interim head coach to lead the Sooners in their bowl game, the school announced. Riley took over the program in 2017 when

Lincoln Riley

COACHING MOVES

Stoops retired, and the Sooners have dominated the Big 12 in the half-decade since.

"Leaving OU was probably the most difficult decision of my life," Riley said. "OU is one of the best college football programs in the country, and it has been forever. That's not going to change. It's not going to change in the SEC, it's not going to change with another head coach. It's stood the test of time and it's going to continue to do so. This was a personal decision solely based on my willingness to go take on a new challenge, and I felt like it was the right opportunity for me and my family to do that."

USC fired Clay Helton in September after the second game of his seventh season in charge, and the school has been searching for a game-changing head coach to revive a program that has had meager success since a dominant run through the 2000s under Pete Carroll that included two national titles.

Since Carroll left for the Seattle Seahawks in late 2009, the Trojans have struggled under three former Carroll assistants and Helton, who brought stability and professionalism to USC, but not nearly enough on-the-field success while going 46-24. With one game left, USC is 87-48 with one Pac-12 title, one Rose Bowl victory and no College Football Playoff berths in 12 years under Lane Kiffin, Ed Orgeron, Steve Sarkisian, Helton and Williams.

The Trojans have been a sleeping giant on the college football landscape for over a decade — and Riley is expected to wake them up.

Ragin' Cajun heading for Swamp

By MARK LONG
AP Sports Writer

Florida went back to Nick Saban's coaching tree in hopes of finding its next great coach.

The Gators hired Louisiana-Lafayette's Billy Napier on Sunday, ending a quick process that landed them their top target a week after firing Dan Mullen.

The 42-year-old Napier will remain with the Ragin Cajuns (11-1) this week as they prepare to host Appalachian State (10-2) in the Sun Belt Conference championship game Saturday. He is 39-12 in four seasons in Lafayette, including 32-5 the past three years.

"We are humbled and honored to accept this incredible opportunity to be the head football coach at the university of Florida," Napier said in a statement. "Our team, staff and entire organization will work daily to establish a program with integrity and class that we all can be proud of."

"We embrace the expectations and are excited about the challenge ahead."

Florida scheduled an introductory news conference with Napier for Dec. 5, the day after his finale in Lafayette, Louisiana.

Mullen was fired last Sunday after the Florida's fourth loss in five games. He was let go less than a year after leading the Gators to a third consecutive New Year's Six bowl. His stunningly swift downfall ended a tumultuous two seasons that included mounting losses, numerous public relation missteps and NCAA sanctions.

Florida athletic director Scott Stricklin moved quickly to land Napier, a former receivers coach at Alabama under Saban and a former offensive coordinator at Clemson and Arizona State. Florida previously hired Jim McElwain (2015-17), who worked under Saban.

McElwain was fired in 2017, and Stricklin surely expects a better working relationship with Napier.

"We felt confident he would be an excellent leader for the Gators, which is why he was the only candidate I met with about the job," Stricklin said in a statement.

Napier has been one of college football's rising stars and hottest names in recent years. He was in the mix for current openings at Virginia Tech and TCU.

He also turned down Mississippi State after the 2019 season and backed away from South Carolina and Auburn following the 2020 season. His name has been connected to other Southeastern Conference openings, too, including Mississippi and Missouri.

He takes over a Florida program that's been in disarray for more than a year but is close to opening an $85 million football facility that could help the team catch up in recruiting. And that could help the Gators close the gap on the superpower instead, he tiptoed down the sideline into the clear. Still down 26-13 in the fourth, Tennessee had a chance to keep it close when they went for it on fourth-and-goal from the 2. Tannehill's pass was tipped by Devin McCourty and intercepted by Jackson. Instead of a touchdown — or even turning the ball over on downs at the 2 — New England had a fresh start at the 20. “The turnovers, the fumbles hurt us, obviously,” Tannehill said. “We ran the ball extremely well the whole game. Had the turnovers and then didn't convert when we were down in there tight there in the early fourth quarter. So you put all those together, and you put yourself in a difficult situation.”

 candidates for jobs in this hiring cycle, USC athletic director Mike Bohn managed to land an even more impressive name than all but his most starry-eyed fans imagined. “His successes and offensive accolades as a head coach the past five years are astonishing,” Bohn said of Riley. “Lincoln will recruit relentlessly, develop his players on and off the field, and implement a strong culture in which the program will operate with the highest level of integrity and professionalism. Lincoln is universally considered one of the brightest and most talented football coaches in the nation, and the fact that he chose USC is a testament to the strength of our brand, the power of the Trojan Family, and the leadership of our university.”

College Football Playoff, USC dived in to make a splash. Rumors connecting Riley to the opening at LSU had been persistent for several weeks, but he shot them down after the Oklahoma State game. “I'm not going to be the next head coach at LSU,” he said. “Next question.” He said nothing about USC. The last big-name coach to make such a seismic move was Jimbo Fisher, who left Florida State for a 10-year, guaranteed contract at Texas A&M at the end of the 2017 season. Riley was already making over $7 million per year in Norman, so he is likely to have received a significant increase from USC's deep-pocketed boosters.

Riley was Oklahoma's offensive coordinator when he was anointed successor to Stoops, who led the Sooners to 190 wins and a national championship in 17 seasons. The Sooners have owned their conference ever since the move, with Riley producing two Heisman Trophy-winning quarterbacks — Baker Mayfield and Kyler Murray — and some of the most prolific offenses in college football history.

Oklahoma will be forced to conduct its first head coaching search since 1999 when the school hired Stoops, who is scheduled to be inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame next week.

While Riley doesn't have major ties to the West Coast, he has recruited well in California's talent-rich areas, and the Sooners currently have several commitments from elite California high schoolers over the next two recruiting classes. In the hours after Riley's move, Malachi Nelson — the Orange County high school quarterback considered one of the top prospects in the 2023 recruiting class — decommitted from Oklahoma, as did receiver Brandon Inniss and running back Treyaun Webb from Florida.

“First and foremost, I'm a program guy, and whatever I can do to help OU and to support the players, of course I'm glad to do it,” Stoops said. “I'll do everything I can to help them finish the season in a strong and successful way and I look forward to that.”

“One of the things that attracted me to OU, other than the rich history and amazing fans, was the stability in the coaching staff and their ability to develop the QB position,” Nelson wrote in his social media post.

Riley is the first OU coach to leave for another job since Jim Tatum left for Maryland after the 1946 season — but the Sooners hired Bud Wilkinson and became a dynasty.

Riley led the Sooners to yet another 10-win season this year, but Oklahoma's string of Big 12 titles was snapped when the Sooners (10-2) narrowly lost to Oklahoma State on Saturday night. With Oklahoma out of contention for the “Oklahoma is one of the premier football programs and jobs in the country,” OU athletic director Joe Castiglione said. “Our storied history, annual pursuit of conference and national championships, tremendous fan support, beautiful facilities and quality of life combine to make this an incredible place to recruit to and coach, and we have begun the search for our next great leader.” New leadership will be yet another big change coming at Oklahoma, which is moving to the Southeastern Conference along with Texas. The move is currently set for 2025, but could very well come sooner.

 superpower such as Georgia and Alabama. Florida had lost nine of their last 11 games against teams from the Football Bowl Subdivision before beating rival Florida State on Saturday. The 24-21 victory in the Swamp made Florida (6-6) bowl eligible. Stricklin surely hopes Napier will help Florida continue the offensive success it enjoyed in much of Mullen's four seasons while also providing a better culture and more accountability on and off the field.

The Trojans still have one game left to play this season, and they must beat the Golden Bears to avoid their first eight-loss season since 1991. Riley will already be at work recruiting the next class of elite talent to a school whose recruiting successes were inconsistent under Helton.

Napier is known for having detailed organization skills that he adopted during his time with Saban. Napier's approach has carried the Ragin' Cajuns to unprecedented success.

Louisiana had not been ranked since 1943 until Napier arrived. The team had never won 10 games until Napier arrived, and now he's done it in three straight seasons. He beat Iowa State in the 2020 season opener.

Napier, from Cookeville, was a former quarterback at Furman in South Carolina. His coaching career took a big step forward while coaching receivers at Alabama (2013-16), where he worked with stars Amari Cooper and Calvin Ridley.

He parlayed that into a job as Arizona State's offensive coordinator in 2017 under Todd Graham, whose Sun Devils averaged 31.8 points before ULL hired away Napier. Napier's contract calls for a $3 million buyout to be paid to Louisiana-Lafayette.

The Atlantic Coast Conference, Big Ten and Pac-12 launched an initiative Monday to raise awareness of the importance of mental health as part of their conference alliance announced earlier this year.

Teammates for Mental Health will be unveiled this week during basketball games involving the three conferences, including the ACC/Big Ten women's and men's challenges.

The centerpiece will be a public service announcement that will air throughout the 28 games being played from Nov. 29-Dec. 2. The PSA includes men's coach Mike Krzyzewski (Duke) and Wayne Tinkle (Oregon State), Maryland women's coach Brenda Frese and others, and it will air on ESPN, the ACC Network, the Big Ten network and the Pac-12 Network.

The initiative will also include in-arena signage and lapel pins for coaches to wear during games.

The ACC, Big Ten and Pac-12 announced in the summer the conferences were forming an alliance to work together on scheduling, plus off-field issues like the future of NCAA governance and athlete welfare.

“When the Alliance was formed back in August, you know, people paid a lot of attention to the schedule pieces. And Kevin and I and George have been emphatic that that is a component of it, but you also have major issues from an NCAA standpoint and the future college athletics,” ACC Commissioner Jim Phillips said. “But at the core of it for us is really the student athlete experience.”

Pac-12 Commissioner George Kliavkoff said 10 working groups of athletic directors and other administrators and school officials have been meeting regularly over the last four months. Four of the groups are focused on scheduling games and events between the conferences in football, men's and women's basketball and Olympic sports. The other six are looking at things like compliance, NCAA issues, social responsibility and how best to support mental and physical well-being of athletes.

The Teammates for Mental Health campaign is the first public collaboration to come from the three conferences. Kliavkoff said each conference was already working independently on athlete mental health issues.

“But the alliance is all about kind of sharing best practices across the 41 institutions, and across the three conferences, and specifically as it relates to student-athlete health and well-being, we have the experts for each of the conferences, each of the institutions, meeting on a regular basis, recommending and suggesting things that we can do through the alliance to elevate what they do for their student-athletes,” Kliavkoff said. The mental health of athletes has taken on growing prominence, with Olympic champion Simone Biles and tennis star Naomi Osaka among those speaking out or taking steps to protect themselves.

The initiative is aimed at encouraging athletes and coaches to be on the lookout for signs that someone close to them is struggling with their mental health.

Big Ten Commissioner Kevin Warren, who played college basketball, said the pressure on athletes is greater than ever and the attention they receive through social media can compound the stress. He said the goal is to have everyone involved in athletics treat signs of mental-health ailments as they would physical injuries.

Warren's son is a football player at Michigan State. The commissioner said mental health is a consistent topic of conversation with his son, Powers, and his friends and teammates.

“The one thing that came up over and over and over again was the importance of making sure that an environment is created, where athletes should feel comfortable, even more comfortable than to seek help for an issue involving their mental health and wellness as they do if they had an injury with a knee or a shoulder or an ankle or whatever the case may be,” Warren said.

Georgia's Smart: Ignore losing streak

By CHARLES ODUM
 AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Even with Georgia undefeated in 2021 and unanimous No. 1 in The Associated Press Top 25 for the eighth consecutive week, Nick Saban and Alabama still cast a shadow over the Bulldogs' season.

Alabama looms as the imposing barrier between the Bulldogs and their Southeastern Conference championship quest.

Georgia has lost six consecutive games against No. 4 Alabama entering Saturday's SEC championship game in Atlanta. That stretch includes three games played in Atlanta — SEC championship games in 2018 and 2012 and the national championship game following the 2017 season.

Georgia coach Kirby Smart insists the losing streak against Alabama has nothing to do with this year's team. Smart, the former Crimson Tide defensive coordinator, is 0-3 against his former boss, Alabama coach Nick Saban, in his six years at Georgia.

“Well, I hadn't been a part of all those, but obviously, this year is this year, and every year is independent of the previous,” Smart said Sunday. “I don't think there's any overlap between the two. I know people want to make it that, make it some kind of overlap. Every year is independent of the previous.”

Georgia capped its 12-0 regular season, which includes an 8-0 SEC mark, with last Saturday's 45-0 rout of Georgia Tech.

Alabama (11-1, 7-1) rallied to beat Auburn 24-22 in four overtimes to close its regular season. The Crimson Tide had been No. 3 in the AP Top 25 before falling one spot on Sunday.

The Crimson Tide took a 41-24 home win over Georgia last season.

Saban also dismissed his team's recent winning streak against Georgia as having a role in this week's game.

“I think that's what's happened in the past in games really doesn't have a lot of impact on what happens in the future,” Saban said Sunday. “I think that you've got to line up and play well in this game. What happened last year doesn't matter. What happened the year before that doesn't matter. You've got to play well in this game. So that's the challenge that we all have.”

Smart coached the Bulldogs to a 28-7 win over Auburn in the 2017 SEC championship game. It was Georgia's first SEC title since 2005.

Georgia, also No. 1 in the College Football Playoff ranking, is trying to position itself for a run at its first national championship since 1980.

An elusive win over Alabama would provide ideal momentum for Georgia in the College Football Playoff. The Bulldogs could lose to Alabama and still possibly make the four-team playoff, setting up a possible rematch.

Despite Alabama's recent mastery of the rivalry, Georgia is favored by 6 1/2 points, according to FanDuel Sportsbook.

“Georgia has been the No. 1 team in the country for good reason,” Saban said. “They're probably the most consistent, most dominant team week in and week out. So obviously going to be our biggest challenge, toughest test of the year.”

Smart said Alabama is a “really good football program” and Saban “has done a great job over there.”

“We've got a lot of respect for their team and the way they play and the style of play. As we all know, we've had some matchups in the past and look forward to this one. It's a great opportunity for our guys to go out and play a really, really good football team. So I'm excited for that. I know our players are really excited.”

Alabama beat Florida 52-46 in last year's SEC championship game.

Upsets push bowl-eligible teams to 83

By NOAH TRISTER
 AP Sports Writer

North Texas needed to win its final five regular-season games to become bowl eligible. The Mean Green did it — and the last victory was the most noteworthy of the bunch.

North Texas knocked No. 15 UTSA from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 45-23 blowout Saturday. The Mean Green improved their own record to 6-6, becoming one of 83 teams to reach bowl eligibility this season. Old Dominion also reached six victories by closing with a five-game winning streak. The Monarchs beat Charlotte 56-34.

With enough slots for 82 bowl teams, one eligible team will be left out. For a while, it looked like there might not be enough six-win teams to fill the spots, but the victory by North Texas, along with upset wins by Virginia Tech, Tulsa and LSU, pushed the number higher.

McCarthy out for New Orleans game

By SCHUYLER DIXON
 AP Pro Football Writer

Dallas Cowboys coach Mike McCarthy has entered COVID-19 protocols and won't be on the sideline for Thursday night's game in New Orleans.

McCarthy, who has said he is vaccinated, will be involved in all meetings virtually and will direct game preparations, the team said Monday. McCarthy is the sixth Dallas coach or staff member to be sidelined for the game against the Saints.

A virtual news conference scheduled for Monday morning with McCarthy was canceled. The team is conducting meetings virtually while holding in-person practices. There was no immediate word who would serve as interim coach on the sideline in New Orleans.

“Although he will not be on the field for the Saints game, McCarthy will continue to direct, and be involved in, all meetings and game preparations on a virtual basis for the remainder of the week, including Thursday's meetings in New Orleans,” the team said.
