Renovations causing tenants setbacks

By ZOË HAGGARD
 zhaggard@t-g.com

Residents at Canterbrook Village, formerly Bedford Manor, say they are experiencing multiple challenges during the property's renovations.

Ashley Bachelder and Cara Grimes of the Bedford County Listening Project, a renter's advocacy group, have spoken to many of these residents. They wrote a letter Tuesday to Elmington Property Management, the new managers of Canterbrook Village, addressing many of the concerns.

"A crisis began, March 18th, 2022, at 6 a.m. when several residents staying at the Microtel learned they would be displaced to the Holiday Inn at Tullahoma," the letter reads.

The Times-Gazette spoke to some of these residents being affected by the renovations.

Kim Kleywegt has been living in what is widely known as Bedford Manor for nine years. She received a notice a month ago saying she would need to vacate her residence and move into the Tullahoma hotel while her apartment would be under renovation.

However, Kleywegt said she had heart surgery this month as well as contracted COVID-19. Still recovering and on an oxygen tank, she said she received less than a week's notice that she would need to be out of her property.

"I don't know what they want me to do," she said. All her possessions had to be boxed and ready to move. Though unemployed, she purchased the totes and boxes herself.

And once she arrives in Tullahoma, she said she'll have to rely on her "unreliable" car for transportation as well as pay for the extra gas mileage.

Despite all this, she considers herself "blessed" as she relied on many friends to help.

All the more frustrating, Kleywegt said they were supposed to be done with these renovations last January. The constantly changing timelines of the project have left many residents confused,

Union Ridge gets water lines, finally

By ZOË HAGGARD
 zhaggard@t-g.com

After 30 years of asking for access to City water, over 40 residents of Union Ridge in Wartrace will have access to city water versus their contaminated wells and ground water.

According to Duck River Utility Commission's laboratory services sample report, 24 out of 45 resident wells tested positive for E. Coli in 2020. There is a significant amount of animal feces, according to this report and Randall Braker of DRUC.

Many residents had to use mobile cisterns, buy water from the City, then haul it back up to the ridge.

Wartrace's Board of Mayor and Alderman recently, unanimously, passed the resolution to go forward with the extension of waterlines up to Union Ridge.

The resolution was presented to the board by Bedford County Commissioner, and former Wartrace Mayor, Don Gallagher. Originally, a water tank was also going to be constructed. However, rising steel prices and lack of funds meant the town could only afford the waterlines.

As the resolution was passed, several Union Ridge residents who attended the meeting expressed their thanks to both the board and Gallagher.

According to Gallagher, a tank would benefit the whole water system and serve up to 300 people. The waterline alone can serve up to 50 households. There are just over 40 households on Union Ridge.

The total cost for the waterline extension construction, by Williamson Construction Co., will be $893,857.

Wartrace will use $201,000 of its federal American Rescue Plan (ARP) funds as well as contribute $137,196 in matching grants. The County will contribute just under $48,000 from its ARP funds. Together this will make up the remaining costs after the state grant of $625,000 is used.

According to Wartrace Mayor

SCHS tennis serves up horse show

By ZOË HAGGARD
 zhaggard@t-g.com

The first annual Shelbyville Central High School Tennis Team Horse Show will be 6 p.m. Friday, May 6, at the Bedford County Ag Center.

According to Head Coach Allison Smith, the tennis team does their own fundraising. They hope with this fundraiser they can raise enough money to buy a van to go to matches, as well as uniforms and various equipment like ball machines in addition to providing players with a scholarship.

Admission is $5.

Smith works at Parents' Day out at Presbyterian Church in addition to teaching the boys and girls tennis team. She said she has been playing tennis since she was 9 years old and is now in her sixth year of coaching SCHS's team. "It's one of my loves," she said.

"I think getting the kids involved in something that is so big here is a good thing," said Smith. Smith said even though Shelbyville is Tennessee Walking Horse Capital, many of the kids are not familiar with the industry.

This will be Smith's 10th year to put on a horse show fundraiser but the first year for SCHS's tennis team. In the past, Smith and her brother, Ricky Richardson, did their first horse show fundraiser for the SCHS band, raising $40,000 for new uniforms.

Smith said they still need a few sponsorships but the community as well as the students have responded well to the fundraiser.

"It's a good little fundraiser but I really don't consider it a fundraiser. I really consider it to be a part of something bigger because it does good for our commu-

Listening Project organizer Bachelder said.

They say it's poor communication between the management company and the tenants. The letter reads, "Finally, many residents need greater communication about the relocation process each step along the way..."

Many residents have suffered through bouts of no heat and no water, which is a Shelbyville City codes violation, according to Bachelder.

Shelbyville Building and Codes Director Bryan Stevens said as far as he knows, water at Canterbrook Village has not been shut off for more than 12 hours at a time. "But we have no control over how long the contractors shut the water off," Stevens said.

He also said that many leaks have been discovered during the renovation process. These leaks must have not been reported by the previous property owners, he said. It's possible much of the mold growth many tenants have in their apartments may have been caused by these leaks.

They turned off Kleywedt's water for four hours, but her neighbor Daniel wasn't so lucky. She had to stop by Kleywedt's residents to collect a gallon of water so she could flush her toilet.

They're hoping the renovations bring the apartments up to date. Kleywedt added wryly, "It can't be any worse." With no maintenance worker on site, many residents have to wait days before anything is fixed, like a hole in Kleywedt's ceiling that leaks when it rains and gets into her cabinets. She has no dishwasher, and the only improvement she's gotten these past nine years is a new fridge.

Other residents, who have gone through the renovations, are experiencing a resurgence of cockroaches and rats. Tenant Mariah Lanier said she's experienced cockroach infestations before but never rats that is, until she moved back in after renovations.

She's a mother of three who recently attended the Paul Mitchell School. She said late last summer, the new management conducted a Zoom call with the residents explaining the renovation process. But Lanier said they just "told us what we wanted to hear."

Moving back into her residence, Lanier has experienced electrical problems, door locks not working, and plumbing issues that caused mold as well as water from her shower to smell like sewage.

"I had to purchase one of those shower head filters because it smelled so bad. I couldn't bath in it," Lanier said. She said her neighbor experienced sewage seeping up in her sink, so she couldn't wash dishes for weeks.

The worst of it, too, is she said that while renovations were going on, her valuable possessions—such as her laptop and gaming systems were stolen while locked away in storage. She said she never received a key to access her possessions. The management company said any stolen property could be filed in May when renovations are through.

Despite the poor conditions, Lanier said she is humbled and glad she even have a roof over her head.

Another single mother, Lauren Sellars, is hoping to move back into her apartment after having lived in the Microtel for a month with her four young daughters. That month long stay was only supposed to be two weeks, according to Sellars. She said they were renovating her apartment to become ADA compliant, which she said they did not inform her about.

"It wasn't as bad as I thought it would be, but it wasn't easy," Sellars said. She says she doesn't have a working car. It's currently getting repairs, which she knows she won't be able to afford.

Working with the Listening Project, the tenants have asked management on multiple occasions to provide a taxi service for those who can't drive from the hotel back to their apartment.

Bachelder along with Grimes and Sellars approached the management secretary the afternoon of March 24 at Canterbrook. She promised that rides and transportation were being worked out for the tenants as well as said the amount on the check stipends to residents would be increased.

However, as of Friday, Sellars said tenants temporarily staying at a Microtel in Shelbyville were informed at 9 that morning by staff that they needed to check out by 1 p.m. However, no transportation from the management had been provided.

According to Bachelder, tenants had to figure out their own transportation despite being told by the office that it would be provided.

Sellars said she was supposed to move back into her residency the weekend of March 26. But it failed codes inspection even though it was supposed to be newly renovated.

"I feel like this whole process has been so unorganized and rushed. Like, why wasn't transportation put together better?" Sellars said.

"We're not asking for a lot. We just want better communication," she said.

Water

Cindy Drake, the town will be out of pocket just over $338,000 for the waterlines.

Water bills in Wartrace are $70 per month, according to Gallagher. This, multiplied by the 40 households, will provide $33,000 per year. It would make up Wartrace's matching grant (of $137,000) for the waterline in about 4 years.

Delays, delays, and more delays

Several Union Ridge residents attended the meeting to ask why the project had been so delayed and when they will have access.

Union Ridge resident Chris Whitney asked why the waterline hadn't been constructed despite a resolution being passed two years ago to initiate the process of getting water.

Mayor Drake said, "Because of COVID, we couldn't get things...It's a long process."

Gallagher further explained by saying bids went out in November of last year for waterlines and a water tank. However, the bids were too expensive. The City of Wartrace along with their engineer Robert Stegal redesigned the tank to be smaller. The bids went out again March 10, but they were still over budget.

So, "right now, tonight, their [the board's] concern is to approve spending the $200,000 of their ARP money and approving the bid from Williamson."

Local resident Amanda Whitney spoke during the citizen comments describing how her child has suffered from bouts of diarrhea due to E. Coli contamination in their wells.

"Unfortunately, the way the housing market is and how everything is now, I don't care what anybody says, what our property is going for around here, we can't sell it for that because you can't get loans for properties that don't have decent water sources," she said. "So, if you invest in something, is that to going to benefit the City of Wartrace...to help people in the community build these houses?"

"I mean, we're on our knees, we're begging for something. We're asking for help. We are taxpayers. We're just trying to take care of our families," she said.

Mayor Cindy Drake said, "It's not like we're trying to decide where to spend our funds. We're getting $206,000 in federal ARP funds. This project takes $201,000 of that."

Other water problems

Drake explained that the City is also having I&I (infiltration and inflow) problems, which is where storm water infiltrates the sewer system.

Wartrace is also experiencing water loss issues. According to Utility Manager Phil Miller, for every 100 gallons of water bought from the Tullahoma system, Wartrace is losing 54 of those gallons due to leaks from their 100-year-old waterlines. This is costing the City $21,000 per month.

Miller said, "When they use the money that they give you, the make sure that you use it for the things that are important for your system. Doesn't mean that getting clean water to families isn't important, too."

Therefore, according to Drake, money coming from another state grant which the City had hoped would go toward the water tank construction will go to improving those I&I and water loss issues since the State of Tennessee dictates how Wartrace can spend it.

"So, we're trying to balance everything and get you guys water," Drake said. "We're very limited and we're trying to do what the state has told us what we have to do and still find a way to get you guys water."

When construction of the waterline extension will begin is to be determined. But both commissioners and residents expressed their gratitude to getting both current and future Union Ridge residents clean city water.

UNION RIDGE BID

Wartrace's Mayor and Alderman Board meeting on Monday, March 28, approved the construction bid to extend waterlines up to Union Ridge.

Help had been summoned by George Tyrone Ransom, 61, of Thompson Street, Shelbyville. The deputy was given permission to search the house and found crack cocaine, a syringe containing meth, and various types of drug paraphernalia, according to the report.

Ransom and Talbot were both charged with possession of schedule II drugs and paraphernalia. Ransom posted $4,000 bond. Talbot had not been taken into custody as of Monday morning.

Shopping by memory

Dear Heloise: I have shopped at the same store for several years now, and I know where everything is located. When I make out a list to take with me as I shop, I mentally move down the aisles, selecting the items I want. The first aisle has the pet food I need, while aisle two holds kitty litter. Aisle three has laundry soap and bleach, and so forth. This keeps me from having to run back and forth across the store looking for items. It saves me time and energy! -- Irene E., Phoenix

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Melt butter or margarine in a frying pan, add shrimp and onions and saute for three minutes, but do not brown. Sprinkle flour into the mixture while thinning the mixture with the milk a little at a time to avoid lumping. Add mustard, nutmeg, salt and pepper and cook for three to five minutes. Stir in cream cheese until blended and warmed through, but do not boil. Serve over rice.

If you like easy to make meals in a short amount of time with minimal fuss, such as my Shrimp Dijon, then you'll love my pamphlet "Heloise's Main Dishes and More." SHRIMP DIJON

Dear Heloise: We're having friends over for Easter, and they've made a special request for Shrimp Dijon. I made it two years ago, and it was such a big hit with my guests that they mention it every time I see them. Sadly, I can't find the recipe. Would you reprint it for me and my salivating guests? -- Cody R., Bloomington, Indiana

- Cody, I'm flattered you and your guests enjoyed this recipe so much. Here it is. You'll need:
- 1 1/2 pounds peeled, deveined shrimp
 - 1/4 cup butter or margarine
 - 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
 - 1/4 cup flour
 - 1 1/2 cups milk
 - 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
 - 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/8 teaspoon pepper
 - 1 6-ounce package cream cheese, softened

COUPONS

Dear Heloise: It seemed like I was always forgetting my coupons or losing them, so I decided to try to organize the way I store them. I now place all my coupons in a small folder that I can place in my glove compartment. I organize according to the dates, which I also highlight in yellow. I usually cut out coupons while I watch a movie at home and take them out to my car during a station break. --Laura T., Dawson, Georgia

 UT/TSU Extension

SCHOLARSHIP

The Middle Tennessee Beef Producers, our local cattlemen and cattlemen association, sponsors a scholarship for county seniors who are going to college with a major in agriculture or a related field, or those who will attend a trade school with the same connection to agriculture.

The scholarship applications are available at all of the county high schools, either with the guidance counselors or with the agriculture science teachers. These applications are due April 15, and they can be dropped off here at the Extension office at 2105 Midland Road, Shelbyville. If you have any questions, contact me at 931-684-5971 or jteague@utk.edu

MASTER BEE KEEPING SERIES

Registration is now open - the link is on Dr. Jennifer Tsuruda's website: <https://epp.tennessee.edu/masterbee> There will also be a post on the webpage for Entomology and Plant Pathology at EPP's FB page

Dr. Tsuruda is fairly new to our state, but has been a bee expert for some time in other states. We are glad to have her here in Tennessee.

All of the scheduled classes are the Basic class due to overwhelming demand. Advanced classes may be scheduled in the future but we need to make sure those starting out receive research-based information so they will be successful and ready for the Advanced class. Please note that the Basic class is a Master Beekeeping course and counts for Tennessee Ag Enhancement Program.

This is a direct registration process, so all questions and details should be directed to Dr. Tsuruda.

GRASS TETANY

Some times I feel that this name is misleading. It is not a tetanus related issue, but a condition in some cattle when they are grazing lush grass like we have coming on now. The cows are filling up with high moisture grass that is low on dry matter intake (DMI), kinda like we humans do on eating salads when we try to lose weight.

As a result, these cows that are stressed with increased milk production, lack of sufficient DMI, weather stress with drops in temperatures, cold rain, etc. It does not affect all cattle, but it can cause a cow to get down and even die.

The problem is that there can be a sudden drop in magnesium levels, and in simple terms this causes severe interruption of the cow's metabolism. Treatment if caught early is by IV with a calcium/magnesium solution.

Management to prevent this is rather simple, and much more effective than any treatment. Use a cattle mineral containing magnesium oxide to help keep the critical blood levels up during this grazing period. And be sure to feed it like it is recommended. Diluting it with salt or other products will dilute the magnesium intake. Use it like the manufacturer instructs.

IT'S GARDENING TIME!

It is getting time to start gardening, keeping in mind that we could still have some damaging frosts. But some cold-hardy plants could be set out, as long as an effort is made to protect them.

We have an excellent publication on gardening. It is a great reference, especially for the new or recently started gardener. And even for some older experienced gardeners, too!

This publication is titled Growing Vegetables in Home Gardens, PB 901. In fact, I have a list of most if not all of our UT publications that I can share. If you want this list of links, contact me and I'll be glad to email them to you.

FOOD WASTE AWARENESS

The focus for this week is the amount of food that we waste practically everywhere we grow food, process it, ship it, cook it, or serve it, and when we eat it. We do waste a lot of edible food.

This week our office will be collecting canned food for our local Good Samaritan facility to be distributed to those in need. Items needed are soups for eating, but not cream soups for cooking.

Canned proteins like chicken, stew, beans with hot dogs, ravioli, spaghetti and meatballs, spaghetti O's, beefaroni, etc. Remember, these all have to be in the canned form.

Jars of peanut butter and canned fruits are welcomed. Not needed are boxed items, tuna, and canned vegetables.

For more information, call the Extension office at 931-684-5971. Bring your donations to our office at 2105 Midland Road. And thanks in advance for your help.

MULE DAY

Last week I had the honor of being one of four judges at the 2022 Mule Day Auctioneers Contest, which is a lead-up to the World Champion contest. I had heard of it, but never saw it before.

I have worked as a ringman with several auctioneers in my lifetime, and I enjoyed it. Purebred cattle sales, hog sales, horse sales, sheep and goat sales, benefit auctions, regular livestock market sales, I've heard some good ones and not so good ones. But I really enjoy a good sale.

We listened to twenty-three competitors each sell three items they donated to the Rotary Club in Columbia, which raised a lot of money for their charities and scholarships, and these guys were all good. The comments from the other judges were that this was the strongest contest any of them had ever heard, and on any given day any one of them could be the winner. These judges included one who had won it before and two professional auctioneers from across the state.

After scores were tabulated, we then listened to the top ten each sell five items donated for the sale. The judges' cards were then tabulated and the top ten were ranked from the Champion and Reserve Champion to tenth place. The scores ended up in fractions of a point in differences between them.

Bedford County had two great auctioneers in the final round. Our own Josh Houston won the contest, and Adam Johnson was fourth out of the twenty-three contestants. Both are active auctioneers and good at it.

I'm proud of these young guys. And they were two of our good 4-H members!

Wartrace Strawberry Festival Planned

Is it too early to start talking about strawberries? Apparently not in The Town of Wartrace, which is already making plans for its annual Strawberry Festival on Saturday, May 14, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Strawberry Festival is the town's annual celebration of spring and all things strawberry organized by the Wartrace Chamber of Commerce. Set in Historic downtown Wartrace, the railroad town hosts a variety of vendors selling their arts and crafts, baked goods, decor, boutique clothing, knives, pottery, canned goods, handmade items, direct sales products, and so much more!

Each booth will have something strawberry-themed. Fresh strawberries will be for sale by local farmers from the surrounding areas.

Everyone attending is asked to wear a strawberry costume to join the Strawberry Parade. Also to be held will be the annual Strawberry Bake-Off Contest or Strawberry Jam/Jelly Contest. Performers to be announced.

This event is free and will be outdoors on the square in downtown Wartrace, which for first-time visitors is just 30 minutes south of Murfreesboro.

Wartrace features shops, a deli sandwich shop, and a pizzeria—all on the square. This is an event for the whole family, even fur buddies. Dogs must be on leashes.

Schedule of Activities

- Strawberry Parade - 10:30 a.m.
- Strawberry Parade—wagons, bikes, or plan to walk, and wear your best strawberry attire. Line up at the Dollar General store at 10:15 a.m. The parade will begin at 10:30 a.m.
- Strawberry Bake-Off Contest
- All entries must be homemade and strawberry-themed.

Prizes for Best Tasting (1st), Most Presentable (2nd), and Strawberry Spirit (3rd) will be given! Judging will take place in the middle of the downtown square at the old "Well House" at noon. (Look for strawberry balloons.)

Must submit entry form along with $5 fee to participate. Instructions to submit are at the bottom of form. Dessert entries must be dropped off by 11:30 a.m. For application information, go to WartraceChamber.org

Vendors Needed for 2022!

The festival is open for arts and crafts booths, decor, antiques, knives, pottery, woodwork, homemade or local items, some direct sales, etc. All booths must have something strawberry-themed whether to be sold or given away.

Electricity for booths is limited and mostly unavailable.

The small Bedford County town is estimating to draw 100 booths. The goal is to serve more than 1,500 shoppers.

Understanding smart farm automation

Modern agriculture looks little like the early days of farming. All aspects of farming have been modified by the access farmers now have to technologies to meet the demands of their work and the pressure a growing population places on farmers to produce quality food.

Farm automation, precision farming and smart farming are strategies utilized by today's farmers. These technologies have become important ways for farmers to optimize the production of food and improve its quality. According to the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, agricultural production must increase by 70 percent in order to meet global food demand by 2050, by which time the population could be 9.7 billion persons.

Smart farming can make raising livestock more accurate and controlled. While farm automation is a broad term, precision smart farming zeroes in on exact measurements between variations in land conditions and livestock, according to Techie Loops, a technology information website. Examples of farming automation technology include:

- autonomous vehicles and machines
- drones
- robotics
- GPS guidance
- micro-forecasting and weather forecasting
- soil sampling
- yield mapping
- use of artificial intelligence
- geomatics
- statistical processes, and more.

Farmers can employ these technologies to save time and also manage labor shortages.

Technology is changing farming in many ways. Innovations in automation can make operations more efficient and less costly.

Jordan Green, joined by her family and coaches, makes it official as she signs her letter of intent to continue her basketball career at Welch College.

Work ethic lands Cascade's Green with Welch College

By CHRIS SIERS
sports@t-g.com

Jordan Green has always had a dream of playing college basketball.

That dream took a big hit over the years as she suffered a handful of injuries that could have ended her playing career.

Instead, Green persevered and made an incredible comeback on a path that eventually led her to signing her letter of intent to continue her basketball career at Welch College.

"I had to work very hard to get back to where I wanted to be. I'm really thankful," Green said.

Green's signing was the first player for Cascade coach Kendall Hampton.

"It's exciting for me to see anyone continue their athletic careers beyond high school, but it's particularly exciting for her because it's something she's wanted since I've met her," Hampton said.

"She's worked hard for it. To see it come together for her, there's not much more of a better feeling than that."

Welch College, a small Christian college located in Gallatin, competes in the National Christian College Athletic Association (NCCAA).

When Green began her college search, the marriage of a small Christian school along with Welch's need of a player to help in the post became a perfect fit for both.

"I've always wanted to go to a private Christian school. I toured there and just really loved it," Green said.

"They don't have a lot of size on their team and so they needed a post player. Since that's primarily what I play, they wanted me there."

It wasn't just Green's size that can help in the post, but her work ethic that put the Lady Champion senior on Welch's radar.

"I know what her work ethic looks like and I know the skills she has right now. Speaking from experience myself, she's going to be able to go in and make an immediate impact," Hampton said.

"I'm so excited for her to experience what it's like to play at the next level and just continue that camaraderie with another team."

Green echoed Hampton's sentiments about playing at the next level.

"It's really exciting. I'm really excited to go play in college. It's something I've always dreamed of," she said.

Green began her playing career at the Junior Pro level and has been an impact in the Cascade basketball community for years.

While she's played in countless games, Green says the best part of it all was just growing close and spending time with her team.

"Just spending time with my teammates. That's what makes it fun," she said.

For Hampton, Green's signing could have an even bigger impact on the Lady Champion basketball program in sending a message that finding a spot on a college roster is a possibility for just about any player who wishes to pursue a sport beyond high school.

"A lot of players don't realize they can play. I think a lot of them sell themselves short and that dream kind of fades," Hampton said.

"I think the girls that are on this team, seeing her sign this letter of intent today, gives them that reassurance that it's possible, too."

Green plans to pursue a degree in nursing.

Green was a staple for the Cascade roster, making an impact for the Lady Champions in the post throughout her career.

See the world while you can

Anyone who knows me, knows I've done my fair share of traveling in the past several months.

One thing I've always been told is to travel while you can. Money will return, but time never will.

While I've been in and out of the country over the past several months, I happened to witness an event on my past trip that reinforced my belief in traveling and experiencing the world.

On a cruise that included stops in Aruba, Curaçao and Grand Turk, a terrible tragedy occurred on the final day at sea on the return to Florida.

A man collapsed and passed away from a massive heart attack on the last day of the trip.

It really made me think about all the places I've gone and all the things I've done.

Being able to see the world and experience different cultures through activities, food and travel,

Chapel Hill complex opens

By RICKEY CLARDY
Sports Writer

CHAPEL HILL — What started as an idea on a back porch became a reality Friday night as a large crowd gathered for the dedication of the Mike Minor Sports Complex in Chapel Hill.

The complex, located on Depot Street in Chapel Hill, will be the home of the Chapel Hill Youth Baseball and Softball League.

"About four years ago, the idea started," Keith Harber, president of the CHYBSL said.

"A group of five of us met on my back porch. We were tired of playing sports in other communities and thought why can't we do something like that," Harber added.

The league only formed four years ago," Harber said.

"We played at the Forrest High School softball field and their practice fields. While we were doing that, we were raising money planning for this."

The complex bears the name of Mike Minor, who made a significant contribution for the park and was a star athlete at Forrest High School and is a current pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds.

Though Minor was busy with spring training in Arizona and could not attend the opening, his family was on hand to represent Minor at the opening ceremonies.

kind of came full circle.

Years ago, my grandpa had been diagnosed with heart disease and for the bulk of my life while he was alive, I remember him just sitting and rocking in his chair.

There wasn't a ton of activities he did. He just sat and rocked in his chair.

Now I'm not knocking him doing that, but he got to a point where he couldn't go experience things.

For 30-plus years, he worked in the DuPont factory in West Virginia and smoked.

All that eventually caught up to him.

So keeping that in mind, I've tried to apply that to my life in as many ways as possible.

I want to see things.

I want to experience places.

I want to try foods.

I want to see it all.

But it kind of has an impact on sports as well.

I remember during my running career that I wanted people who ran with me to hurt. I wanted to leave it all on the course or track.

I had a mindset during my cross country years, if you ran with me up hills on courses, I was going to make you hurt for it. And honestly, I got pretty good at that running gig.

Life eventually caught up to me. During my college years, I had an injury to my foot that required reconstructive surgery.

While I can physically still run, it's quite painful. So the injury effectively ended my career.

That time has passed.

I can never really put foot to pavement in a way I used to — my body just can't take it.

It's special being able to see high school players of all sports figure this out early in their career and see them leave it all on the court or field in the same way.

Time will never return to us.

We have to make the most of the time we're given.

Keeping the gentleman who passed away on Saturday, my grandfather and my former running career all in mind, that's what I'll do.

I'll keep traveling the world.

I'll keep seeing new places. I'll keep trying new foods.

But for now, it's time for a little break from that and settling into the mad sprint known as spring sports.

"It makes my heart very, very warm because Mikey has said ever since he got drafted, if there was anything he could ever do, he wanted to give back to this community," Shirley Minor, the mother of Mike Minor said. "He didn't want kids to have to drive to Lewisburg to practice or to play a game. He said if I can ever do it, I'm going to have a baseball field built."

"To see that happen, I can't be more prouder of him," Shirley added. "We send him pictures every day and he's kept up-to-date on everything."

"We wouldn't have been able to do anything near what we have if it weren't for him," Harber said.

"It's also taken tons of fundraising on our part and tons of man-hours and free labor from concrete people, from excavation people, from people who care," Harber added.

The work on the complex, which began in June of last year, was mostly done by volunteer labor.

The CHYBSL will be joined by players and teams from Unionville, with games being held both in Chapel Hill and Unionville. The fruits of that labor will show as a large number of youth, ages 3 thru 12, will be playing in the league.

"We have 32 teams this year and Chapel Hill alone has over 360 kids playing," Harber said. "Unionville has over 200 kids playing. So there's close to 600 kids playing here."

The dedication of the complex was held on the field named in memory of Ross Brown, who passed away in April of last year and was a founding board member of the league.

"This means so much," Leah Cook, the sister of Ross Brown said. "Ross is the one who got this started in Chapel Hill. "They used to have to play out of town and Ross is the one who started this."

"Ross was the original vice president of the league," Harber said. "We talked about half of these kids are from Chapel Hill. That spurred the formation of the league."

"Ross was one of the most selfless people who didn't want any credit and wanted to stay out of the limelight," Harber added. "Ross would be the first one to be here and the last one who wanted any notoriety."

The complex will eventually be home to four fields.

Currently, two of the fields will be available on the opening weekend while a third field will be ready for play the following weekend.

"We will have two 200-foot fields and one 225-foot field," Harber said. "There will also be a 300-foot field."

"We will have concession stands and lights will be installed on one field at a time," Harber added.

A big crowd appeared for the opening ceremonies, but Harber said the attendance for the actual games will be bigger.

"Tomorrow, they'll be three times as many people here," Harber said. "It's just surreal and heartwarming at the same time."

"It's amazing what a small community can do when everybody gets together and pulls the rope the same way."

Lady Knights outlast Cascade

T-G STAFF REPORT

Friday night's non-district clash between the Lady Knights and the Cascade Lady Champions turned into an offensive slugfest, with the teams combining for 31 hits and 30 runs.

In the end, the Lady Knights took advantage of a big second and fifth inning in a 19-11 win over Cascade.

Cascade struck first and plated seven runs in the bottom of the first inning.

Hannah Vandiver slugged a two-run homer to highlight the blowout first inning.

The Lady Knights responded with an even bigger second inning, knocking in 12 runs on nine hits in the inning.

The Lady Knights tacked on seven more in the fifth to pull ahead 19-7.

Cascade answered with a five-spot in the bottom of the fifth, largely in part to some timely hitting and savvy base running.

After clubbing a two-run blast in the first inning, Vandiver mashed a base-clearing, three RBI triple to account for the bulk of offense.

But Cascade was unable to complete the rally and went scoreless over the final two innings played.

The Lady Champions returned to action on Monday night, however results were unavailable by press time.

College baseball goes high-tech

By ERIC OLSON

When he's on the mound, Clemson left-hander Ryan Ammons will feel a little tingle on his right arm.

No, nothing's wrong. It's not a tweak or twinge.

Instead, it's a reminder telling him to look at the digital display on his wristband to find out the type of pitch to throw next and where to locate it.

For a growing number of college baseball teams, the tradition of pitch signs sent by the catcher flashing his fingers and wiggling his hand is disappearing. It's being replaced by a coach in the dugout pressing numbers into a keypad corresponding to different pitch types and transmitting the information to the mound.

A vibration in the wristband lets the pitcher know the call is in.

The technology, Game Day Signals, was developed by a small Virginia software development company and approved for use for the first time this season by the NCAA.

The impetus was to speed up pace of play, which has been a concern across the sport. It also eliminates the ability of the opposing team to steal signals.

"I'm a very fast worker," said Ammons, Clemson's sophomore closer. "I like Denny Hamlin takes the checkered flag to win the NASCAR Cup Series Toyota Owners 400 at Richmond Raceway.

Hamlin finds Next Gen formula, finally races to win at Richmond

By HANK KURZ Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RICHMOND, Va. — Denny Hamlin hoped a visit to the track he watched races at as a youngster would help kickstart a season that started in an uncharacteristic fashion — poorly.

Thanks to some crafty tire strategy that his team timed right, he got it done.

Hamlin ran down William Byron with five laps to go Sunday and ended the slowest start to a season in his career with a victory in the Toyota Owners 400 at Richmond Raceway.

“You just have a tough season and if things aren’t going well and it seems like the breaks aren’t going your way and then the law of averages say things are going to kind of work out and we get our performance better and today’s the day where it all matched up,” said Hamlin, who started the day 22nd in points.

In a race that featured four sets of green-flag pit stops and a whole lot of tire strategy, Hamlin closed a huge gap between Byron and teammate Martin Truex Jr., passing Truex on the outside and Byron shortly thereafter. He then held off a challenge from Kevin Harvick, a three-time winner at Richmond.

“Yeah, just great strategy there. Just drove as hard as I could,” Hamlin said after climbing from his car. “There was no doubt in my mind, maybe just a little, but they got this car right there towards the end. Wow, unbelievable.”

Hamlin’s 47th career victory was his first at his hometown track since 2016, the first for Toyota in the Next Gen car and gave NASCAR seven different winners in seven Cup Series races.

Harvick was second, followed by Byron, Truex and Kyle Larson.

“Had a shot there at the end,” Harvick said. “I wanted to be close enough with the white to just take a swipe at him. Yeah, the lapped cars there kind of got in the way and I lost a little bit of ground.”

Hamlin got himself into contention during the second stage when he and Joe Gibbs Racing teammate Christopher Bell opted to stay on the track while most of the rest of the field pitted for tires. The move initially gave the risk-takers a sizable lead, but one that began evaporating quickly.

Hamlin made it pay off in the final stage, going from 15th to seventh over just a few laps after a restart using the extra set of tires he had over the field.

Byron and Truex tried to make a similar strategy work at the end, trying to race almost 90 laps on the same tires while Hamlin and Harvick and most others pitted with just under 50 laps to go. They almost made it work.

“At the end I think we just tried to gamble ... on beating the 24. He ended up trying to do our strategy, which we both screwed up,” Truex said. He was seeking his fourth victory in the last six races at the .75-mile, D-shaped oval, but instead Hamlin gave the current JGR stable 13 wins here.

Byron, meantime, declined to pit from the big lead he held when most of the field headed in under green with just over 50 laps to go. Truex did too, but eventually Hamlin passed them both for his first top 10 finish of the season. He also snapped a string of 12 consecutive race winners under 30.

“I thought there at the end they told me I was just racing (Truex),” Byron said of his team. “I’m like, ‘OK. I got him,’ but then (Harvick) and (Hamlin) were on a totally different planet. ... There wasn’t anything I could do about them.”

Angry Kyle

Kyle Busch, the fourth JGR team member, was black-flagged with about 50 laps to go when NASCAR noticed a piece of tape on his grille. At the time, his three teammates were running in the top 10 and he was closing in on joining them. He finished ninth.

Fast start

Ryan Blaney earned his third straight pole and led the entire 70-lap first stage and the first 128 laps in all, but continued his struggles at Richmond.

“I wanted to run better, but I can’t complain about it too much,” Blaney said. “We just have to find a little bit more speed, but it was nice that we kind of put together some decent notes and have an OK run at Richmond.”

Up next

All three of NASCAR’s top series will be in Virginia again next weekend with a Truck-Xfinity-Cup series tripleheader scheduled at Martinsville Speedway.

Henderson burst lifts Gamecocks

By PATRICK DONNELLY
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — The smallest player on the court came up huge in the biggest moments for South Carolina.

UConn opened the fourth quarter with a quick basket to cut South Carolina’s lead to seven in the NCAA title game Sunday night. The Huskies, with a pedigree unmatched in women’s college basketball, were trying to overcome a huge size disadvantage that put them in a double-digit hole early in the game.

Then, 5-foot-7 Destanni Henderson stepped up — and buried them. And led the Gamecocks to a 64-49 victory.

South Carolina’s senior point guard followed the UConn bucket with a driving layup, slicing her way through the lane, using her slight frame to shield the ball from a defender as she approached the hoop.

On the next trip down the court, the Gamecocks’ Aliyah Boston — the AP National Player of the Year — blocked a shot at the top of the key. Henderson sprinted behind the defense, hauled in Boston’s outlet pass, and made another layup — uncontested this time.

Later in the fourth quarter, Henderson scored again on consecutive possessions, with a long jump shot and another layup. The second basket pushed South Carolina’s lead to 16 with 4:18 to play, essentially ending the hopes of the Huskies, who didn’t get closer than 10 the rest of the way.

Henderson finished with a career-high 26 points, shooting 9 of 20 from the field as the Gamecocks won their second national title. She added four assists and helped hold Paige Bueckers to 14 points, teaming with junior Brea Beal to keep the UConn star in check most of the night.

“She was super aggressive on both sides of the basketball,” Gamecocks coach Dawn Staley said. “We started her off on Paige, and Plan B was to put a bigger body on her like Brea Beal, but we didn’t really have to do that because (Henderson) was super focused on making it really hard for her.”

Henderson provided a hint of things to come when she opened the game with a 3-pointer. She did it again to start the second quarter, then hit another 3 to put South Carolina up 30-12 just 12:25 into the game.

Tiger on the prowl at Masters; unsure of playing

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — A comeback unlike any other for Tiger Woods might start at the Masters.

Just over 13 months since Woods damaged his right leg so badly he said doctors considered amputation, Woods arrived at Augusta National on Sunday afternoon and warmed up on a range where there were more photographers than players.

Woods hit balls for about 20 minutes and then got in a cart and headed to the course, which is closed Sunday afternoon to everyone except players and caddies.

Already a star attraction, the hype over the five-time Masters champion is higher than ever after a violent single-car crash that looked as though it might end his career.

Still to come is the decision on playing.

In a tweet Sunday morning announcing he was coming to Augusta to resume preparations for the Masters, he said it will be a “game-time decision” whether he competes.

The Masters does not have a firm deadline to commit like regular tour events. It is an invitation tournament, and players typically notify the club only if they do not plan to play.

Tee times are published Tuesday.

“Knowing Tiger the way I know him, if he wasn’t totally like ... pretty much feel he has a chance to win, he wouldn’t tee it up,” Mark O’Meara said. “The thing about Tiger Woods is usually when everybody thinks he can’t do something, that’s when he does it.”

If Woods decides to play — he played 18 holes at Augusta National five days ago — it would be his first competition against the world’s best players since Nov. 15, 2020, when the Masters was moved to autumn because of the pandemic.

Photographers and media waited at the far end of the viewing area on the range near the caddie house to see when he would arrive. Woods showed up on the other end, shaking hands with defending champion Hideki Matsuyama.

Kevin Na and Billy Horschel were among those who came over to shake hands or hug him. Also on the range were Sungjae Im, Mackenzie Hughes and Jason Kokrak. Sunday afternoon before Masters week is a quiet time most years. Just not this one.

Woods was recovering from a fifth back surgery when on Feb. 23, 2021, two days after he presented the trophy at the Genesis Invitational that he hosts at Riviera, he crashed his SUV over a median on a suburban coastal road in Los Angeles and down the side of a hill.

Police estimated he was going at least 84 mph in a 45 mph zone.

Doctors said Woods shattered tibia and fibula bones in his right leg in multiple locations. Those were stabilized by a rod in the tibia, while a combination of screws and pins were used to stabilize additional injuries in the ankle and foot.

Woods said he spent three months immobilized in a makeshift hospital bed set up in his Florida home. Only then he could start moving around on crutches, and eventually he was able to walk on his own.

Woods won the U.S. Open at Torrey Pines in 2008 with a double stress fracture and torn knee ligaments in his left leg. He made it back from a scandal in his personal life to become No. 1 in the world again.

Nothing was more amazing than three years ago at Augusta National when he won a fifth green jacket after four back surgeries that made him fear he might never walk again.

That he is even contemplating playing in this Masters is remarkable in its own right. If he can, questions are sure to shift to whether he can win.

A week before Thanksgiving, he posted a three-second video hitting one shot with two words: Making progress. Two weeks later at the Hero World Challenge in the Bahamas, a holiday event Woods hosts, he was on the back end of the range at Albany hitting drivers.

The first big surprise came two weeks later when he played the PNC Challenge, a 36-hole scramble on a flat Florida course. Woods was allowed to ride in a cart, a point he made when there were gushing observations about the state of his game. He and his son finished second when John Daly and his son birdied the last hole.

“It’s going to take a lot of work to get to where I feel I can compete against these guys and be at a high level,” Woods said that day.

Addressing the condition of his right leg in February, Woods said it’s “altered” and that “my right leg doesn’t look like my left, put it that way.”

The importance of the practice round last week was for Woods to make sure he could walk 18 holes on the undulating terrain of Augusta National and still be able to recover in the days that followed. That he was returning Sunday was a good sign.

Can he win again? That would be considered more improbable than his last Masters victory.

In his last competitive round at Augusta National, he made the highest score of his career — a 10 on the par-3 12th hole by hitting three balls in Rae’s Creek — only to birdie five of the last six, including the last four in a row.

Baseball

getting the ball and going, so I love it. I was one of the first guys on board with it.”

As of early April, teams using Game Day Signals were Clemson, Vanderbilt, Alabama, North Carolina State, Virginia, James Madison and Pacific. Among teams waiting for their orders to arrive are Florida State, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Penn State and Iowa.

Major League Baseball is experimenting with an electronic communication channel for pitchers and catchers. After trying out the PitchCom system at Low-A West in the second half of last season, big league clubs are tinkering with the technology during spring training. The plan is for PitchCom to be used at the Double-A level this year.

In college baseball, catchers traditionally have looked into the dugout to pick up pitch signs from a coach and then relay them with another set of finger and hand signs. In 2018, the NCAA allowed catchers to have an earpiece in their helmets to get pitch calls from a coach using a walkie-talkie or clip-on microphone.

The newest Wartrace addition, Seven on Main, is bringing a western vibe to the historic railroad town.

Shelia LeDere, owner of Old Petticoat Trading Co., along with seven vendors, has opened a western-themed bazaar, featuring old country stores, artisan products, and even a small chapel and saloon.

The idea started last fall and has now come to fruition this spring. LeDere said she wanted to bring the western vibe back to the old horse town as well as a place to offer a platform to local artisans.

The non-alcoholic "Stick Horse Saloon" will offer sweet treats like ice cream and coffee for visitors stopping through Wartrace.

Seven on Main, located along Wartrace's downtown, will be open Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The store's grand opening will be April 30 and will feature bar-b-que and live music.

Gina Witten sells all kinds of Native American crafts in her booth Horse Mountain Mining. She said her family ancestry is of the Shawnee tribe.

Peg Tobin will run the booth Tobin's General Store which will sell just anything from fresh produce to knickknacks.

BANKS 2021 FARMER OF THE YEAR

The Bedford County Soil & Water Conservation District would like to announce that Phillip Banks is the 2021 Farmer of the Year. Phillip Banks is an exceptional steward of his land. He has planted nearly a thousand acres of cover crop in the past five years, which prevents soil erosion and nutrient runoff, and improves soil health. He has installed fencing, pipeline, and watering facilities, implementing a rotational grazing system on his farm. Prescribed grazing systems offer an effective way to reduce energy use, decrease costs, and improve animal health and productivity. Well-managed grazing systems improve the health and vigor of plants, enhance the quality and quantity of water, and reduce soil erosion and improve soil condition on the land. He is currently working with NRCS and the District to exclude his cattle from ponds and streams on his land, thereby improving water quality within Bedford County.

NEW NRCS DISTRICT CONSERVATIONIST

The Bedford County Soil & Water Conservation District would like to welcome Logan Dugger as new NRCS District Conservationist. Logan comes from West Tennessee where he served as the Soil Conservationist at the Jackson Field Office. Prior to serving in this position, Logan also worked as a Soil Conservationist in Monroe, NC and as a Soil Conservation Technician in Huntingdon, TN. Logan graduated from Middle Tennessee State University with his degree in Plant and Soil Science and having grown up on a family farm near Smyrna. If you have any question or concerns please feel free to visit Logan at 2013 Midland Rd, Shelbyville.
