BRIEF COUNCIL MEETING

City Mayor Wallace Cartwright, top, discusses the agenda with recorder Lisa Smith prior to Thursday night's Council meeting. Council approved the purchase of 1.5 acres at the Shelbyville Municipal Airport for $75,000 — dollars which will come from capital funds. City and airport officials recently discussed how it would be advantageous to have this property for future needs. Shown below are Council members Rick Overcast, Stephanie Isaacs and William Christie. More Council news in next week's T-G.

Memphis murder suspect found locally

By DAVID MELSON
dmelson@t-g.com

A suspect in a Memphis murder was apprehended in a Shelbyville home Tuesday afternoon.

Donald Ray Harris Jr., 32, of Ripley, leaped from a bedroom window at a Barksdale Lane apartment as officers from the Shelbyville Police gave chase. Harris was taken into custody after a short foot pursuit.

Harris Green
Department, Bedford County Sheriff's Office and U.S. Marshal Service

Harris is charged with first degree murder and aggravated robbery, according to Memphis police.

Shelbyville police said they haven't determined why Harris was in Shelbyville.

Investigators found a loaded gun and drugs in the home from which Harris ran.

A loaded 12-gauge shotgun, approximately 4 grams of crack cocaine, and crystal "ice" methamphetamine were confiscated from a bedroom occupied by Craig Green, 43, of Shelbyville, police said.

Green is charged with possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, possession of a firearm during the commission of a dangerous felony, possession of a schedule II drug with intention to resell, and possession of a schedule II drug and paraphernalia. He is being held without bond at Bedford County Jail.

SUMMER CHILDREN'S PLAY

The children's play, "The Jungle Book," will be presented June 16-18 at Fly Cultural Arts Center, 204 South Main St. Shows begin at 7 p.m. Tickets ($12 for side seats and $15 for center seats) can be purchased at www.flyartscenter.com. The play centers around the tale of Mowgli, a young boy raised by wolves. With a little help from his friends—the bear Baloo, the panther Bagheera and the python Kaa—Mowgli learns the ways of the jungle. See more photos inside.

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there

For 100 years!

By ZOË HAGGARD
zhaggard@t-g.com

Tuesday, June 7, marked insurance company State Farm's 100th year of business. Most people are familiar with State Farm's saying of "Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there."

In the company's now 100-year history, it's a motto Bedford County agents are still trying to uphold, according to local agent Deb Insell.

"I think they were built on wanting to do things the right way. They were built on Christian principles, and I think they've got good, solid people working for them who built the brand locally then spread out all over the country," Insell said.

After working as a legal secretary for Bedford County Board of Education, Insell came to work for State Farm in 2003, assuming long-time agent Bobby Newell's firm, which he began in 1961.

Starting with a "scratch agency," Newell said he walked door-to-door in Bedford asking friends and neighbors about their policies. He built up a clientele to include 1,500 households by the time he sold and contracted with a new agent in the early 2000s.

Insell said she assumed about three-fourths of those households and has been carrying on the "good neighbor" job since then. "In that time, many changes have come to State Farm, which is why it is important to remember where it all began 100 years ago in a farming community in Illinois."

Capitol riot panel blames Trump for Jan. 6 'attempted coup'

By LISA MASCARO,
MARY CLARE JALONICK
and FARNOUSH AMIRI

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House panel investigating the Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol laid the blame firmly on Donald Trump Thursday night, saying the assault was hardly spontaneous but an "attempted coup" and a direct result of the defeated president's effort to overturn the 2020 election.

With a never-before-seen 12-minute video of extremist groups leading the deadly siege and startling testimony from Trump's most inner circle, the 1/6 committee provided gripping detail in contending that Trump's repeated lies about election fraud and his public effort to stop Joe Biden's victory led to the attack and imperiled American democracy.

"Democracy remains in danger," said Rep. Bennie Thompson, D-Miss., chairman of the panel, during the hearing, timed for prime time to reach as many Americans as possible.

"Jan. 6 was the culmination of an attempted coup, a brazen attempt, as one rioter put it shortly after Jan. 6, to overthrow the government," Thompson said. "The violence was no accident."

The hearings may not change Americans' views on the Capitol attack, but the panel's investigation is intended to stand as its public record. Ahead of this fall's midterm elections, and with Trump considering another White House run, the committee's final report aims to account for the most violent attack on the Capitol since 1814, and to ensure such an attack never happens again.

Testimony showed Thursday how Trump desperately clung to his own false claims of election fraud, beckoning supporters to the Capitol on Jan. 6 when Congress would certify the results, despite those around him insisting Biden had won the election.

In a previously unseen video clip, the panel played a quip from former Attorney General Bill Barr who testified that he told Trump the claims of a rigged election were "bull—."

In another, the former president's daughter, Ivanka Trump, testified to the committee that she respected Barr's view that there was no election fraud. "I accepted what he said."

Others showed leaders of the extremist Oath Keepers and Proud Boys preparing to storm the Capitol to stand up for Trump. One rioter after another told the committee they came to the Capitol because Trump asked them to.

"President Trump summoned a violent mob," said Rep. Liz Cheney, R-Wyo., the panel's vice chair who took the lead for much of the hearing. "When a president fails to take the steps necessary to preserve our union — or worse, causes a constitutional crisis — we're in a moment of maximum danger for our republic."

There was an audible gasp in the hearing room when Cheney read an account that said when Trump was told the Capitol mob was chanting for Vice President Mike Pence to be hanged for refusing to block the election results, Trump responded that maybe they were right, that he "deserves it."

At another point it was disclosed that Rep. Scott Perry, R-Pa., a leader of efforts to object to the election results, had sought a pardon from Trump, which would protect him from prosecution.

When asked about the White House lawyers threatening to resign over what was happening in the administration, Trump's son-in-law Jared Kushner scoffed they were "whining."

Police officers who had fought off the mob consoled one another as they sat in the committee room reliving the violence they faced on Jan. 6. Officer Harry Dunn teared up as bodycam footage showed rioters bludgeoning his colleagues with flagpoles and baseball bats.

In wrenching testimony U.S. Capitol Police officer Caroline Edwards told the panel that she slipped in other people's blood as rioters pushed past her into the Capitol. She suffered brain injuries in the melee.

"It was carnage. It was chaos," she said.

The riot left more than 100 police officers injured, many beaten and bloodied, as the crowd of pro-Trump rioters, some armed with pipes, bats and bear spray, charged into the Capitol. At least nine people who were there died during and after the rioting, including a woman who was shot and killed by police.

Biden, in Los Angeles for the Summit of the Americas, said many viewers were "going to be seeing for the first time a lot of the detail that occurred."

Trump, unapologetic, dismissed the investigation anew — and even declared on social media that Jan. 6 "represented the greatest movement in the history of our country."

Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee tweeted: "All. Old. News."

Emotions are still raw at the Capitol, and security was tight. Law enforcement officials are reporting a spike in violent threats against members of Congress.

Against this backdrop, the committee was speaking to a divided America. Most TV networks carried the hearing live, but Fox News Channel did not.

The committee chairman, civil rights leader Thompson, opened the hearing with the sweep of American history, saying he heard in those denying the stark reality of Jan. 6 his own experience growing up in a time and place "where people justfied the action of slavery, the Ku Klux Klan and lynching."

Republican Rep. Cheney, the daughter of former Vice President Dick Cheney, outlined what the committee has learned about the events leading up to that brisk January day when Trump sent his supporters to Congress to "fight like hell" for his presidency.

Among those testifying was documentary maker Nick Quested, who filmed the Proud Boys storming the Capitol — along with a pivotal meeting between the group's then-chairman Henry "Enrique" Tarrío and another extremist group, the Oath Keepers, the night before in nearby parking garage. Quested said the Proud Boys later went to get tacos.

Court documents show that members of the Proud Boys and Oath Keepers were discussing as early as November a need to fight to keep Trump in office. Leaders both groups and some members have since been indicted on rare sedition charges over the military-style attack.

In the weeks ahead, the panel is expected to detail Trump's public campaign to "Stop the Steal" and the private pressure he put on the Justice Department to reverse his election loss — despite dozens of failed court cases attesting there was no fraud on a scale that could have tipped the results in his favor.

The panel faced obstacles from its start. Republicans blocked the formation of an independent body that could have investigated the Jan. 6 assault the way the 9/11 Commission probed the 2001 terror attack.

Instead, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi ushered the creation of the 1/6 panel through Congress and rejected Republican-appointed lawmakers who had voted on Jan. 6 against certifying the election results, eventually naming seven Democrats and two Republicans.

House GOP Leader Kevin McCarthy, who has been caught up in the probe and has defied the committee's subpoena for an interview, called the panel a "scam."

In the audience were several lawmakers who were trapped together in the House gallery during the attack.

"We want to remind people, we were there, we saw what happened," said Rep. Dean Phillips, D-Minn. "We know how close we came to the first non-peaceful transition of power in this country."

The Justice Department has arrested and charged more than 800 people for the violence that day, the biggest dragnet in its history.

State Farm

In fact, one of the first books Insell received when becoming a State Farm agent was "The Farmer from Merna," a biography of State Farm founder George Mecherle and a history of the company which started in Bloomington, Ill. (See the T-G's first article "State Farm Turns 100," which ran on Tuesday, May 17, for more information on the historical timeline of State Farm and how it started in Bedford County.)

In the middle of Newell's career, there was something called the "loss ratio," which is based on how many premiums an agent takes in versus how many claims are paid out. "You wanted to be the good agent and help the policyholder, but if he had too many claims, then the company was going to cancel them," Newell explained. Though it's a fine balance to walk, the objective is still the same: help the client on a local level.

"And that's what Bobby Newell did for 42 years.

And that's what my goal has been for the past 20 years — to be that person that's representing Mr. Mecherle and what his values were when he started this company," said Insell.

Like Mecherle selling low-priced auto insurance to farmers, Newell credits the good price of their policies to much of the success. "At that time, in the 60s, we were selling six-month policies for $15," Newell said. That's just over $145 in today's money.

State Farm has also been the number one insurer of auto insurance since 1942, when more and more people began driving in the U.S. "Every time you put your hands on the wheel, that's where you're most exposed," Insell said.

Today, State Farm has more insurance choices than when Newell began. At that time, they had three main policies, including home/fire, auto, and life insurance. Now, the agency offers 120 options.

The insurance company is also a mutual company for policyholders, meaning there are no shares sold on the public marketplace, according to Insell. As of 2021, they have 85 million policies.

"And, nationwide, we have more than 19,000 agents and 58,000 employees. It's pretty mind-blowing where we've come in 100 years," Insell said. Today, Insell said she even has clients in Kingsport and Memphis.

Online programs help with this. Insell said State Farm keeps up with trends, such as more and more people doing more business on the internet and quoting policies online.

Though it's not always in-person, like it was 20 or more years ago, they hope to maintain that client-agent relation that will help people know if they have a policy that will cover liability. Insell said you need someone who understands how to help clients understand what they need.

"That's what I try to educate everyone else on because the biggest part of their budget every month is what they spend on insurance. And they need to know what they're buying; they need to know that it's going to take care of them," she said.

In this way, Insell said she hopes to help people like her sister, who passed away 24 years ago leaving only a small policy for her two children. It's a motivation for doing what she does today.

"It's rewarding when the time comes, and they use that policy, that they can walk away feeling taken care of," Insell said.

Being there through their clients' good and bad times, that's what Insell believes is another key to State Farm's 100-year success. Newell added, "State Farm wanted to give the impression that we were just a good neighbor. And that good neighbor theme is what State farm based their reputation on."

Insell's office is located at 923 N. Main St. Shelbyville also has two other agents: Rob Gardner, located at 1798 N. Main, and Ralph Allen, located at 217 Lane Parkway. Insell said they will most likely have another State Farm agent coming to Shelbyville in the upcoming year.

Yolanda Flick is new Chamber CEO

By DAWN HANKINS
dhankins@t-g.com

Flick

Shelbyville-Bedford County Chamber of Commerce Board recently announced that Yolanda Flick has been selected to serve as its new chief executive officer.

Lacey Deeds of Florida, hired last year by the Chamber board, recently retired from the CEO position.

Flick a former Times-Gazette advertising executive, said she's excited about her new career. She's looking forward to completing the mission of the Shelbyville-Bedford County Chamber of Commerce, which is to support, promote and advocate for its members.

"Our commitment is building a vibrant and prosperous community while supporting responsible growth and a superior quality of life for all citizens in our community," stated Flick.

She will be promoting

Chamber memberships and the community by attending events such as business grand openings, open houses, ribbon cuttings, annual meetings and gatherings. She will work in conjunction with the goals set forth by the Chamber board.

Flick has been a resident of Shelbyville the last 15 years and her family, including partner in life, Josh, and daughter, Kennedy, have been involved in many facets of community life. They attend First Baptist Church of Shelbyville.

The new Chamber CEO said that she's looking forward to organizing, along with the Chamber board, the traditional events and some new ones, such as the 75th anniversary Chamber Block Party coming soon.

An Arkansas native, Flick served as a Chamber ambassador for 3 years before taking the CEO position. She believes her prior experience in marketing, business and public relations will be an asset within her new role—one which has traditionally promoted industry, tourism and business development.

Chamber Board Chair Josh Lynch said Thursday, "The chamber board of directors is thrilled to have Yolanda in the CEO position. Yolanda knows and loves our community and is passionate about bringing value to our members. The Chamber has worked for many years to promote local business and be a resource for the entire community. I am confident that we will be able to continue making a positive impact with Yolanda leading our efforts."

Flick plans to work remote. She believes working from home, less brick and mortar, will allow her more time to be in the community with the members. "I want to meet the members at their businesses and see their businesses versus them having to come to my office."

She's busy right now, she said, working on her new schedule and planning out the rest of the year. Her initial goal this summer, she said, is to meet with members and begin some new promotional campaigns.

"I want to show them the value and the benefit of being a Chamber member," said Flick.

Plastic bags

Dear Heloise: We save plastic bags for many uses (T-shirt and newspaper types).

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

• Fold the bags smooth. This will remove most of the wrinkles and the bags will look nicer when carrying a gift or treat to a friend. Store them in a container so you can get one at a time.

• Pull the bag over your hand and up the arm to pull up poison ivy. Then pull down over the plant and trash it without getting the oil on your skin. A newspaper bag works best for handling poison ivy.

• Line small trash cans throughout the home. It saves on buying liners and keeps trash cans clean.

• Collect coffee grounds for composting. There will be liquid, so double-bag the trash can, remove the paper filters and dump into the compost container or on your acid-loving plants once a week.

• Keep one in your car to collect trash.

• Put one in your hand-bag. You never know when you might need it. -- B.B. in Virginia

CLUMPY MASCARA

Dear Heloise: This is a problem that every woman who wears makeup deals with at some point. So often, mascara begins to clump way before its usefulness has ended. Or eyelashes get stuck together and need to be separated so you don't get the tarantula look. It is entirely too expensive to toss sooner than necessary. Using the mascara brush over and over only makes the problem worse.

One day while cleaning my teeth I noticed the interdental brushes used to clean between teeth were simply a miniature of the mascara brush. So after applying my mascara I used the tiny brush just like I would the mascara brush to remove the tiny clumps and separate the mascara-fused eyelashes. It worked perfectly. I clean the tiny brush with a tissue, which allows me to use it several times before pulling out a new interdental brush. They come 20 to a package. It's an inexpensive solution to tossing mascara too soon. -- Debbie, via email

VINEGAR DEGREASING

Dear Readers: After you cook hamburgers, you can remove the splattered grease easily. Just spray the stovetop with vinegar and then wipe it down for a shiny, clean result. -- Heloise

FLOWER VASES

Dear Heloise: Instead of throwing out flower vases after the flowers have dried, please drop them off at your local flower shop. It saves the landfill and reduces cost for the flower shop. Thank you. -- Janet Lee, in North Dakota

TELEPHONE DISTURBANCE SOLUTION

Dear Heloise: If Leo T.

doesn't want to be awakened by a phone call in the morning, all he has to do is turn the ringer off at night when he goes to bed. I've been doing this for years. -- Margaret S., La Mirada, California

PET PAL

This is our favorite pet. His name is Rosko, and he is a 6-year-old Catahoula Leopard dog. He loves to swim and retrieve. He's very sweet and amazingly smart. -- Catherine West, Van Nuys, California

Graduation gift

Dear Heloise: My niece is graduating from high school and going on to college. She had excellent grades and worked hard to graduate in the top 5% of her class. We're all very proud of her. I would like to get her a nice gift, but I'm out of ideas. Got any hints on what to give a graduate of 2022?

-- Brenda M., Altoona, Pennsylvania
Brenda, my best wishes to your niece on her graduation. Here are some gift ideas:

- A thesaurus and/or dictionary
- An engraved letter opener and/or magnifying glass
- Plastic storage containers
- A gift card to a large online retailer
- An emergency road kit (if she has a car)
- A small microwave for her dorm room (if the college permits it)
- A gift card for office supplies (stapler, printer paper, pens, etc.) -- Heloise

HAIR CARE

Dear Heloise: Working as a hair dresser, I see a lot of product built up on many women. Most of it is hairspray that has not been properly removed. I usually tell women to wet their hair then put a generous amount of baking soda in the palm of their hand along with some shampoo, and to scrub their hair and scalp. Rinse and wash again with only shampoo. Use a conditioner, massage into the hair, and rinse all of it out. Don't skimp on the conditioner part, and don't forget to rinse well. -- Wendy A., Newberg, Oregon

Wendy, for women who color their hair it is especially important to take time to do a deep conditioning. This is also vital for women whose hair is turning white or gray. Our hair usually gets drier as we age, so keeping it clean and healthy is important. -- Heloise

Ready? Summer heat arrives next week

Get ready for a heat wave in Bedford County!

Most of the weekend we will enjoy sunshine and the temperature will start climbing rapidly with 90 degrees by Sunday and all of next week I am expecting highs of 94 to 98 degrees. Better make sure those fans and air conditioners are ready because the heat is going to shift into high gear.

Next Tuesday we have a full Supermoon which is the strawberry moon this month; there will be another Supermoon in July. A Supermoon is a full moon that nearly coincides with the closest that the moon comes to the Earth, resulting in a slightly larger-than-usual apparent size of the moon as viewed from Earth. The following week is the first day of summer.

Did you know?

Socialization in midlife can have a profound impact on individuals as they approach their golden years. A 2019 study led by researchers at University College London found that being more socially active in your 50s and 60s predicts a lower risk of developing dementia later in life. The study used data from a previous study that tracked more than 10,000 participants between 1985 and 2013. Participants in the study completed cognitive testing from 1997 onwards. Researchers found that someone who saw friends almost daily at age 60 was 12 percent less likely to develop dementia than someone who only saw one or two friends every month. Strong associations between social contact at age 50 and subsequent dementia were also uncovered. The study supports the idea that remaining socially active in one's 50s and 60s can benefit long-term cognitive health.

Glenn Forsee said he's a Biblical preacher and that he doesn't intend to ever stop preaching God's Word, though he's retired from First Assembly of God.

A place called 'Until'

By DAWN HANKINS and GLENN FORSEE
dhankins@t-g.com

Last Sunday was Pastor Glenn Forsee's final day as senior pastor of First Assembly of God Church on Highway 231 North. His farewell sermon after 37 years was simply themed, "A Place Called Until."

It was a sermon befitting of his retirement after 37 years with the congregation. He handed the shepherd's staff over to a new pastoral family.

He did not weep during his sermon, though toward the end of his preaching time, he seemed to be choking back tears. His faithful wife, Linda, played the piano and sang during their farewell service.

The hymn, "It is Well With My Soul," played and the pastor rejoiced with the congregation. A commissioning service was also held for new pastor, J.P. Cannon, and his family.

Forsee said he's now arrived at a place called "Until."

"Where is this place?" he asked. "What does it look like?"

He explained to the congregation that "Until" is a place that connects "yesterday's dreams with today's plans and tomorrow's realities."

He said likely the place "Until" looks different to everyone. Yet, there are a lot of similarities.

"Until is more of a place in the mind, heart and emotions rather than a physical location."

He explained how Sunday, the day of his retirement from First Assembly, was also an "intersection of church and personal history."

"We are not the first ones to ride this bus and arrive at the station called 'Until.' We understand that the arrival at this place has direct and indirect implications for many. It feels like a graduation . . . completing one season . . . learning the lessons . . . cherish the moments, memories and relationships."

The text was from the Parable of the Talents. He read how 10 servants received 10 minas each (that was about 3 month's wages.)

The key point, according to the pastor, is that responsibility and accountability are Biblical principles that apply to everyone.

He advised that a new pastor (J.P. Cannon) will be in place on Sunday.

He explained that in the days to come, attendance goals are reached. A revival comes.

Referring again to the Parable of Talents, he said it goes even deeper for a church. "Church is not a destination . . . rather it is a community of spiritually transformed people, walking the Jesus journey with one another, in His love."

"This placed called Until looks different today than it did 10 years ago," he concluded. "It will look different 10 years from now."

He explained how everyone can live in "Until." Pastor Forsee read from Acts 23:1. This is the passage in Acts when the Apostle Paul addressed the Sanhedrin with a straightforwardness.

He further explained that it's simple: God's People can live in faith or in frustration. He then read from II Corinthians 5:7. This text states: "We live by faith, not by sight."

The pastor revealed, "This place called Until is a very frustrating place. We realize there is so much far beyond our control. There is much that we don't see happening that we want to see."

He used as an example King Saul in the Old Testament—one who grew impatient and frustrated waiting for the prophet Samuel. He took matters into his own hands; he lost everything. "He lost his anointing because he could not wait until the man of God arrived. He tried to be what he was not," said Forsee.

So what are we to do in this place called "Until?" We as Christians occupy by faith until God returns.

The seasoned pastor said that each of us has a divine directive to engage our mind, spirit, energy, resources and attention in the service of a King. Along the way, he said, there are physical and spiritual assignments.

He asked those present, "Do you have a Jesus agenda about your life?"

Forsee encouraged the congregation to do their best, that is, be effective servants where they are right now. His text reference came from Luke 9:16-18 in the New Testament.

"God has not called us to be in competition with each other," explained the pastor. "He has called us to stay committed and faithful with our gifts, resources, talents and time."

With that, he bid the congregation farewell, for now. As he and Linda sang, "Happy Trails," he emphasized "Until we meet again."

Life goes on within the church, beginning with faithful families and their service. Children like little Lennox are the future, Forsee said. Shown with pastor Forsee are Lennox, great-grandparents Billy and Lonna Palmer.

Three arrested after shooting threat

By DAVID MELSON
dmelson@t-g.com

Three people were arrested Thursday morning after a resident of a Madison Street apartment complex told police two threatened to shoot her.

Tyrish Thaddaus Carter, 18, of Barksdale Lane allegedly sent threatening texts to the victim threatening to come to her apartment and shoot her with a "pole" this was his term for a gun, Shelbyville police said.

Carter and the other suspects were arrested moments later after they walked toward the victim's apartment despite the presence of two officers, including Officer Ramon Castillo who filed the report. The victim allegedly received a text from Carter saying he could see the officers in her apartment.

A charge of criminal responsibility for aggravated assault was filed against Carter. He was arrested in a stairwell outside the apartment and was unarmed, police said. Carter posted $15,000 bond.

One of the others, a teenage girl, had also allegedly threatened to shoot the victim moments earlier. The girl approached the victim while officers were briefly away from her apartment. She raised her shirt with one hand, displaying the handgun around her waist, while holding her cellphone with speaker mode engaged in the other hand. A woman on the phone was repeatedly telling the girl to shoot the victim.

Officer Brandi Merlo returned to the apartment at that point and confronted the girl. The victim said the girl would otherwise likely have shot her.

Officers found a fully loaded 9mm Ruger LC9 semi-automatic handgun concealed around her waistband. The gun had been stolen in Murfreesboro, police said.

The girl fought Merlo and Officers Josh Graves and Tracy Teal while being disarmed and handcuffed, police said. Juvenile Services was called to the scene. The teen was charged with aggravated assault, possession of a firearm under age 21, resisting arrest, and possession of a schedule IV drug. Police said a folded $1 bill containing what appeared to be Xanax was found on the girl.

The caller, who has not been charged, allegedly drove through the apartment complex Thursday afternoon and threatened to shoot the victim, police were told.

Adam Lee Mullins, 20, of Woodland Drive, was arrested at the scene without incident. Officers searching him for weapons found four hypodermic needles containing a "liquid residue-like" substance in his backpack. A subsequent search at Shelbyville police headquarters revealed a second needle and a small bag containing methamphetamine in his clothing, police said.

Mullins was charged with simple possession of a schedule II drug and possession of drug paraphernalia. He was held on $3,500 bond.

Road rage

An angry driver threatened to kill another motorist in the Longview Road - Unionville-Deason Road area early Wednesday night.

The victim told a Bedford County deputy he may have pulled too close to the suspect's vehicle while turning from Barber Road onto Longview Road. The suspect, described as a white male in his 40s driving a grayish blue SUV, responded by tailgating and trying to pass him three times.

The man appeared to be "annoyed," the victim said. At one point the suspect stepped out of his SUV, pulled his shirt off while yelling and appeared to have something in his hand. The victim called 911 around that point.

Moments later the suspect stopped again and approached the passenger side of the victim's truck where his daughter was seated, yelling that he would kill them.

The victim pulled a handgun and fired one shot into the ground. A Bedford County deputy investigating a traffic accident a few hundred yards away received the 911 Center's dispatch and was walking to his patrol car when he heard the gunshot.

The suspect passed the deputy while fleeing, according to the victim.

Money demanded

One of two men who approached a man outside Burger King, North Main Street, and asked for money Wednesday night claimed to be armed, police were told.

The suspect grabbed the victim by the shirt and said he had a gun. The victim said he had no money, fell to his knees when the men began yelling and begged to be let go, according to police.

A witness told officers the victim got up and ran to Burger King looking for help. She said the two men were circling the parking lot in a black SUV as they left.

"There were many discrepancies in (the victim's) story," Officer Cody Smartt's report said.

Thefts

A .38 caliber revolver was stolen from under a mattress in a home at Park Trail Apartments, Green Lane, police were told Thursday.

Two recently-delivered packages were stolen Monday from the back porch of a Laws Hill Road home, the Bedford County Sheriff's Office was told.

Security video shows a woman in a red Ford Fusion pulling into the driveway, looking around, taking the packages and leaving. A suspect was named.

Also reported to local authorities:

- A wallet was stolen from an unlocked truck at River Bend Country Club between 12:10-12:40 p.m. Wednesday. Credit cards in the wallet were used at Walmart at 1:04 p.m. Wednesday. The credit card companies were notified of the theft and didn't process the transactions.

- A Railroad Avenue resident reported $280 was taken from his wallet at his home last Saturday. A suspect was named, Shelbyville police said.

- A newly-issued Tennessee license plate was stolen from a Davis Street home Sunday afternoon, police said. The owner had left the plate unattended for approximately 10 minutes while attaching it to her vehicle.

- More than $91 worth of gasoline was stolen from Sunchaser Market, Highway 82 South in Flat Creek, Monday afternoon.

A young, white man and older woman in a silver van stopped at the store, an employee told a Bedford County deputy. The clerk said the man got back into the van and drove away as she attempted to stop them.

Checkpoint

A sobriety checkpoint will be conducted beginning at 9 p.m. Friday, June 24, on Highway 82 South at the 6.5 mile marker (in the Flat Creek area), the Tennessee Highway Patrol has announced. Checkpoints must be announced in advance per federal law.

Happy anniversary State Farm!

FOREVER GOOD NEIGHBORS

T-G Photos by Zoe Haggard
 State Farm Insurance agent Deb Insell stepped into Bobby Newell's State Farm office on North Main Street in 2003, when he retired after many years of service to this community.

State Farm celebrates its 100th year this year, always keeping the best interest of customers as a top priority, note local agents.

Community senior wins new Nissan

Newton Nissan South has annual event

By DAWN HANKINS
 dhankins@t-g.com

As a way of thanking the community for its business and also in an effort to support local education, Newton Nissan South at 2801 Highway 231 North annually presents a new car to one 'A' student. This year's recipient was rising Community High senior, Ryan Waterson. The local car dealership held a special ceremony on June 3, with his name being drawn from several entries for a 2022 Nissan Versa. Ryan is the son of Lyle and Nicole (Nikki) Waterson of Unionville.

Qualifying students receive one entry for every 'A' on their report card (up to 8 entries.) Ryan has been a member of the Community drama team, serves as historian for the Student Council and is an honor student.

Rick Insell, women's basketball coach at Middle Tennessee State University in Murfreesboro, made the official announcement. Insell also announced the names of students winning four sets of a four ticket package (16 total tickets) to use at any MTSU basketball game. Those winners were: Addison Beatty, Seth Grant, Jesslyn Castro and Lana Lemmon.

The names of the students winning the MTSU tickets were placed back into the basket for the car drawing. Students had to be present at the event to win give-a-ways.

Company officials spun the big basket before the drawing which filled the room with anticipation. Ryan and his mom accepted the award on behalf of their family.

Coach Insell talked about how this free car every year is a "big savings" for parents. He complimented the number of students and parents present for the drawing.

The former Shelbyville Central Eaglettes basketball coach also encouraged those in attendance to support Newton Nissan; he discussed how the company does a lot for the community. It was announced that Newton Nissan collects donations for teachers to use in their classrooms each year.

“When the Roll is Called Up Yonder”

Mother Teresa of Calcutta once said, “At the end of life we will not be judged by how many diplomas we have received, how much money we have made, how many great things we have done. We will be judged by ‘I was hungry, and you gave me something to eat, I was naked, and you clothed me, I was homeless, and you took me in.’”

Mother Teresa, of course, was quoting from the words of Jesus Christ found in Matthew 25.

The late evangelist Billy Graham said this concerning the end of life: “There comes a moment when we all must realize that life is short, and in the end the only thing that really counts is not how others see us, but how God sees us.”

Several years back, I had three dear friends that I’d been praying for who were coming face-to-face with the end of life.

Their doctors had given each of them just a short time to live.

All three of these men were bold, Spirit-filled, Bible-believing Christian men and preachers of the Gospel.

They were men who believed that the end of life here on Earth just meant that they would be going on to join their Lord Jesus Christ in Heaven. They had lived their lives with that goal in mind.

Now, each of these three men had lived a rough life before they met Jesus Christ and made Him their Savior.

They were all men deep in sin, leading immoral lives; they were heavy drinkers and drug abusers as well.

But their lives changed drastically when someone told them about the Gospel message and introduced them to Jesus Christ.

From that point on they lived their lives doing what Mother Teresa said was important, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, taking in the homeless...

And they did what Jesus told His disciples to do in the Great Commission: Preach, Teach, Baptize, and Make Disciples.

I had the privilege of watching God in action in these precious men’s lives over the years. And each of these men made a lasting impression on my life.

They were men who were students of the Bible; and men who lived their lives according to the teachings of the Bible.

They were men of prayer, who believed that God heard their prayers, and that God responded to their prayers.

Marinated Curry Cucumber Salad

Summer fare is best with cool sides

Warmer weather calls for picnics and cookouts and refreshing salads are the perfect accompaniment, especially when fresh produce is the star.

I was visiting my brother in Ohio last week to meet my little 4-month-old great-nephew. One night for dinner, we had Grilled Chicken Satay with a curry marinade and a cucumber salad on the side topped with peanuts. It was a delicious meal and inspired the salad below.

Cucumbers are a great base for marinated salads. They take on whatever flavor you put them with and especially benefit from a vinegar based dressing. Marinated tomatoes and cucumbers are a standard summer favorite with a vinaigrette marinade. But cucumbers also pair well with peppers and onions.

This Marinated Curry Cucumber Salad pairs cucumbers with sweet bell peppers in a flavorful marinade and topped with crunchy peanuts. I used mini cucumbers from the grocery store. The mini ones are sweet with smaller seeds and a tender skin.

Split down the middle lengthwise and then sliced into half moons, they are the perfect size for a salad. You could also use an English cucumber (the long ones wrapped in plastic). These also have a tender skin and smaller seeds. If using regular slicing cucumbers, peel them and cut in half length-wise before scraping down the middle to remove most of the seeds.

To pair with the mini cucumbers, I used mini sweet bell peppers. You can use the red, yellow or orange ones. They add a pop of color and sweet flavor.

Themini peppers are great to add to lettuce salads or to stuff or dip as well. Keep a bag in the refrigerator for snacking and cooking. The dressing is oil and vinegar seasoned with curry powder, cumin, salt and pepper with a little sugar to balance out the vinegar. Curry can be overwhelming, but the dressing uses just a light hint for the perfect balance.

If you like a little heat, you can add a few red pepper flakes. It doesn’t take very long for the cucumbers to absorb the flavor. You can make it up just 30 minutes before serving or you can refrigerate it for several hours overnight.

Add the peanuts over the top just before serving so they stay crunchy.

The salad is a good side dish to grilled burgers or chicken. It also works well with pork tenderloin or a marinated and grilled flank steak. So when cooking out this summer, grab some cucumbers and make a refreshing side salad.

Marinated Curry Cucumber Salad

- 2 Tbsp. white wine vinegar
 - 2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
 - 1 Tbsp. sugar
 - 1/2 tsp. curry powder
 - 1/2 tsp. kosher salt
 - 1/4 tsp. ground cumin
 - 1/4 tsp. black pepper
 - 2 mini cucumbers, cut in half lengthwise and sliced
 - 2 mini bell peppers, cut in half lengthwise, seeded and sliced
 - 1/4 C. cocktail peanuts
- In a medium bowl, whisk together the vinegar, oil, sugar, curry powder, salt, cumin and pepper. Add the cucumbers and peppers and stir to coat. Marinate for at least 30 minutes at room temperature or several hours in the refrigerator. Just before serving, drain and top with peanuts.

Old sports

I don’t want to sound like an old man yelling at kids for walking across his lawn, but I have become nostalgic for the old way sports events used to be presented.

Watching the Stanley Cup playoffs and Major League baseball games the past couple of weeks has prompted me to say enough is enough.

As a sportswriter for so many years, the notion of cheering was foreign to me. One of the main rules of being a sports reporter is there is no cheering in the press box, on the sidelines or at the press table during games.

But I attend more games as a fan now than I do as a reporter. Even if I was moved to cheer a play or a player I don’t want to be told when to do it or how loud I should be.

Cheerleaders used to be the sole way crowds were whipped into a vocal frenzy, but now cheers are also blasted over sound systems with video showing how loud the cheers are.

Music at hockey and baseball games should be presented solely by an organist. I don’t need music at half time of a football game or between periods at a hockey game. I would prefer to use that lull in the action to talk about the game with the people around me or to simply talk...period.

Teams feel the need to entertain fans. The games simply aren’t enough anymore. People leaving stadiums or arenas may talk about the overall experience more than a particularly outstanding play or player.

I miss plain white dasher boards at hockey games. It is okay for a scoreboard to be sponsored but I don’t need the videos touting various products or services. I don’t need to be bombarded by commercial messages when I sit in an audience for a game. I see more than enough ads on television.

With player salaries going ever higher and higher the need to generate revenue in all possible ways is great for top level pro teams especially. But college teams have joined the sponsorship fray as well.

I don’t need a touchdown, first down, home run, strikeout goal or power play sponsored by a company. I believe including ads on jerseys and helmets is unnecessary. Will jerseys and helmets eventually become billboards cheapening team logos and team colors?

Shelbyville Rotary celebrates 100!

By MARK MCGEE
 Special to the T-G

Shelbyville Rotary Club celebrated 100 years of existence this month. A celebration and dinner event was recently held at River Bend Country Club.

Shelbyville Rotary Club President Dawn Hobbs presided over the evening's program. Past presidents were recognized and several members received Paul Harris Fellows as part of the festivities.

Rotary District Governor Cindy Gammons addressed the membership, calling the club "a small, but mighty" force for Rotary International. She praised the longevity of the club.

Paul Harris Fellows, named for the founder of Rotary International, represent $1,000 donated in the person's name.

Barbara Blanton received her sixth award followed by Maleah Claxton (second), Jay Davis (second), Finney Edwards (third), Darin Hasty (third), Dawn Hobbs (second), Ivan Jones (third) and Mark McGee (second).

First-time Paul Harris Fellows were Ashley House, Jared Jones,

Scott Spence and Warren Wells. The club has 100 percent of its membership with at least one Paul Harris Fellow.

Hobbs read a proclamation from the Tennessee General Assembly which recognized the work of the Shelbyville club through the years. State Rep. Pat Marsh of Shelbyville sponsored the proclamation.

Each member attending the recent celebration received an etched glass provided by Heritage Jewelers to commemorate the 100 year anniversary.

Hobbs closed out the evening by saying she was proud of the local club and its history. She reminded everyone to live by the Rotary motto of "Service Above Self" and led everyone in a recitation of Rotary's Four-Way Test of what members think, say and do.

Rotary and community

Shelbyville Rotary Club works with the Adult Education Center. It also oversees and distributes dictionaries to local students.

In addition, the club sponsors Rotary Career Day for high school students at Motlow State Community College.

Shelbyville Rotary history

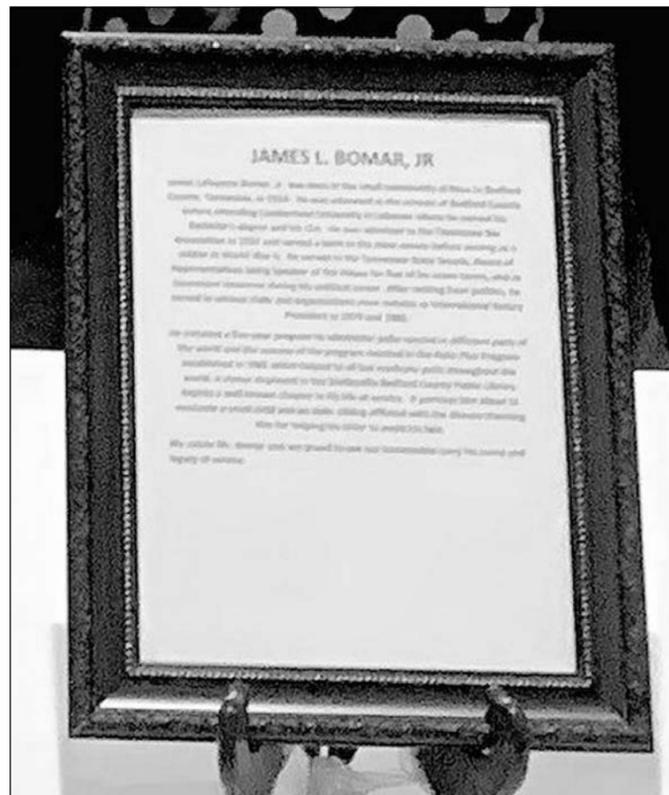

The Rotary Club and the Shelbyville Lions Club were the first sponsors of the Tennessee Walking Horse National Celebration.

James Bomar, Jr. of Shelbyville served as Rotary International president from 1979-80 and was responsible for the development of a 5-year program to administer the polio vaccine around the world. The initiative eventually became known as Polio Plus with Rotary International the largest private-sector contributor to the World Health Organization (WHO), according to the proclamation.

Former district governors from the Shelbyville Club include: Webb Folin, James L. Bomar, Jr., Franklin Yates, Morgan Lorraine and William Hackemann.

The Shelbyville Club has also sponsored four Rotary Clubs in the district—Fayetteville, Lynchburg, Eagleville and Shelbyville Breakfast Club.

Summer reading dives into ocean fun

Shelbyville-Bedford County Public Library kicked off its summer reading program, Ocean of Possibilities, on Monday. Programs and events will be scheduled from now until July 22.

The program will have activities every week for all youth ages 0 to 18, including crafts, performers, and storytelling.

Wednesday's program was held at The Fly Arts Center and hosted comedian and magician Barry Mitchell and his Deep Sea Circus. Based out of Sevierville, Mitchell has performed with Dolly Parton's Dixie Stampede as well as traveled throughout the Southeast. Dozens of young students enjoyed laughing with his colorful characters Sam the Sea Turtle and the Hyena Chicken.

The last day to register for the summer reading program is June 27. Visit www.sbcplibrary.org/summerreading for more information and a complete list of upcoming events.

A large crowd was at the Fly Cultural Arts Center on Wednesday to hear comedian and magician Barry Mitchell.

Summer Reading programs and events will be scheduled from now until July 22 through Shelbyville-Bedford County Public Library.

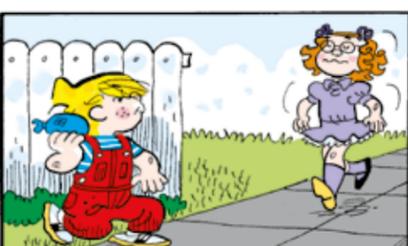

Comedian Barry Mitchell entertained Wednesday at The Fly with colorful sea characters. The theme of this year's Summer Reading program is "Oceans of Possibilities." The program is free for ages 0 to 18.

SLYLOCK FOX and COMICS FOR KIDS

BY BOB WEBER JR.

Cassandra Cat raced away from the Forest City Museum after snatching an ancient solid gold Egyptian figurine. Slylock Fox took chase in his Fox-Flyer drone just as she started her getaway. Even though Cassandra is driving faster than the drone is flying, Slylock has been able to keep up with her. How is that possible?

Solution -- Cassandra's route is miles of curvy road. Slylock is following from road. He is moving slower, but traveling less distance.

Spot six differences between these panels.

Answer -- Tree, mustache, cake, lightbulb filament, TV clicker and whiskers.

True or False

- 1) All bird species build nests.
- 2) Bald eagles build huge, strong nests and use them year after year.
- 3) Male birds do not help with nest building.

Answer -- 1) False, 2) True, 3) False.

Celebrate June as 'Dairy Month'

Originally, June became National Dairy Month to distribute milk during the warm months of summer. While dairy lovers know that a cold glass of milk is perfect on summer days, whether on its own or in a smoothie, others had little use for it.

Without proper refrigeration, the hot months gave milk a short life. It was the rising popularity of refrigeration in home kitchens (and subsequent fall in home milk delivery) that provided an opportunity to promote milk as an option that could stay fresh in the heat. (Dairy Alliance.)

Thus, the commemoration was established in 1937 by grocer organizations sponsoring "National Milk Month," but by 1939, June encompassed the entire food group and became the official "dairy month."

So why did this month eventually honor dairy farmers and not just the food? It's a recognition of milk's benefits which are only available because of dairy farmers' hard work. Trusted for decades, dairy farm families pride themselves on producing wholesome dairy foods that help families grow up strong and healthy, whether it's the farmer's own family or a family within the community.

Since 1939, June's National Dairy Month has encouraged families to make milk their beverage of choice based on its nutritional value. Low-lactose or lactose-free options allow most Americans to partake in the nutritional benefits of dairy. And with 13 essential nutrients, milk and other dairy products are an affordable option for families looking for healthy options.

So how can you celebrate National Dairy Month? The easiest way is to enjoy a glass of milk at mealtimes and include dairy in meals with these recipes, but these aren't the only options. In the Southeast, dairy farm families often open their gates to visitors for tours, while local fairs and festivals offer taste testing and events featuring delicious dairy products. See what events are available in your local community.

Virtual farm tours are also available through The Dairy Alliance and universities with dairy programs. These virtual tours allow families to get up close with the cows without leaving the comfort of their homes.

However you celebrate, it's a time of year to learn about dairy and dairy farming, recognizing the hard work of many farmers within the region.

Easy Oat Prune Muffins

Even if you're not a fan of prunes, you'll love these quick and hearty muffins! Not only are prunes a good source of fiber, promoting healthy digestion, but they also provide antioxidants that may help decrease inflammation. Each muffin is under 200 calories and provides 5 grams of protein. Enjoy with a glass of milk for extra protein and bone-building goodness.

Servings: 12 muffins

- 2 C. old-fashioned rolled oats
- 1/4 C. ground flax meal
- 2 Tbsp. chia seeds
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 3/4 C. milk
- 1/2 C. plain Greek yogurt
- 1 large egg
- 1/4 C. maple syrup
- 1 Tbsp. vanilla
- 4 Tbsp. unsalted butter, melted
- 1 C. (6-7-oz. pkg) chopped prunes

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees. In medium mixing bowl, combine dry ingredients and set aside. In a separate bowl, mix milk, yogurt, egg, syrup, and vanilla until well combined. Gradually whisk in melted butter. Stir wet ingredients into dry until well combined. Gently fold in chopped prunes. Grease muffin pan or use liners. Scoop the batter into prepared muffin cups, filling completely. Bake at 350 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Remove from the tin and place on a cooling rack to avoid steaming the bottoms of the muffins.

Cherry Rhubarb Smoothie

16 oz. serving

- 1 C. milk

- 1/2 C. diced frozen rhubarb
 - 1/2 C. frozen cherries
 - 1 scoop vanilla whey protein powder
 - 1 frozen kelp cube (sub 1/2 cup fresh spinach)
 - 1 Tbsp. hemp hearts
 - 1 tsp. grated ginger
- Combine milk, rhubarb, cherries and remaining ingredients in blender. Blend until smooth. Serve immediately.

Red, White & Bleu Spinach Salad

This refreshing summer salad—full of dairy goodness—is perfect for picnics and light lunches. Spinach, apples and bleu cheese provide much-needed vitamins and minerals, and the vibrant colors will lighten any table.

Servings: 4

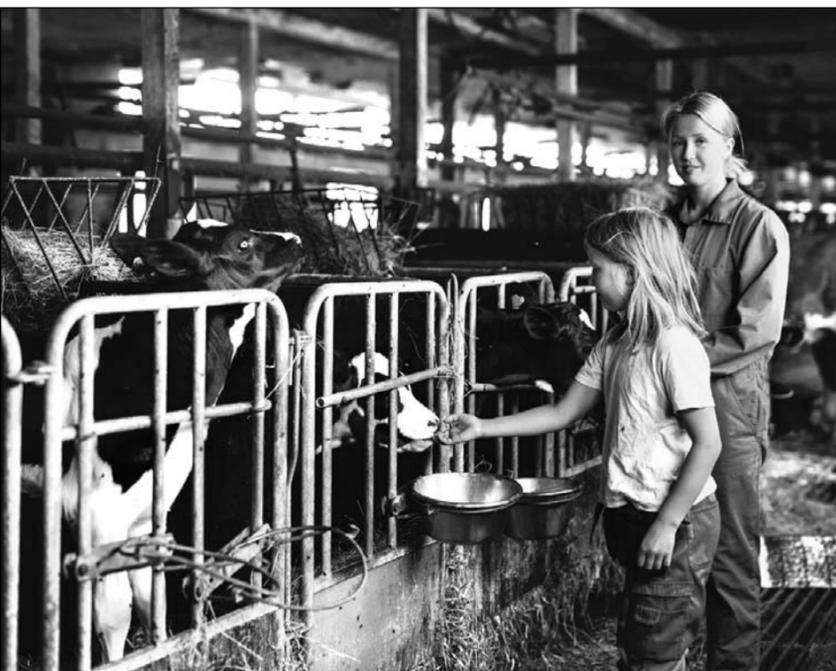

- 1 (15-oz.) can of chickpeas rinsed and drained well (garbanzo beans)
 - 2 tsp. olive oil
 - 1/4 C. olive oil
 - 2 Tbsp. balsamic vinegar
 - 1 Tbsp. honey
 - 1 tsp. Dijon mustard
 - 1/4 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
 - 1 (10-oz.) package fresh baby spinach, thoroughly washed
 - 1 Red Delicious apple, thinly sliced
 - 1 C. sliced white button mushrooms
 - 3 oz. crumbled bleu cheese
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Toss chickpeas with 2 teaspoons oil; spread in a single layer on a baking sheet lined with parchment or sprayed with cooking spray. Bake at 350° for 25 to 30 minutes or until browned and toasted. Cool in pan on a wire rack 20 minutes. Whisk together 1/4 cup olive oil, vinegar and next three ingredients (through black pepper) until well blended. Layer spinach and remaining ingredients in a bowl; top with roasted chickpeas. Drizzle with vinaigrette and toss to coat.

Happy trails to you,
Keep smiling until then.

Who cares about the clouds when we're together?
Just sing a song, and bring the sunny weather.
Happy trails to you,
Until we meet again.

Two Bedford Co. athletes earn state honors

Evan Woosley-Reed took home one last honor for his high school career and was named the boys golfer of the year after winning his third-straight state title during his senior season.

T-G STAFF REPORT

Two Bedford County athletes earned top honors for their respective efforts in cross country and golf from the 2021-2022 school year.

Webb's Abby Faith Cheeseman was named the girls cross country runner of the year and Cascade's Evan Woosley-Reed was named boys golfer of the year.

Cheeseman won the Division II Class-A state cross country meet back in November and posted the fastest time in the state of any classification as a freshman.

Cheeseman was also named the Gatorade Athlete of the Year.

Woosley-Reed wrapped up a historic career at Cascade by winning his third-straight state championship in the Class A tournament.

His first two titles came in his sophomore and junior seasons when he won the tournament, which was then held at Willowbrook Country Club.

He capped his stellar career by winning his third title at Sevierville Golf Club in October.

After graduating early, Woosley-Reed made it official and signed his letter of intent to continue his golf career at the University of Tennessee.

Webb's Abby Faith Cheeseman was named the female cross country runner of the year.

Webb hires new football coach

WEBB MEDIA

BELL BUCKLE — Evan Gay, a Murfreesboro native, who has coached in Texas and Mississippi, has been named as head football coach at The Webb School in the school's third year as part of the TSSAA Div. II-A East Region.

Most recently, Gay has served as a teacher, varsity football quarterback coach and passing game coordinator at St. Stanislaus College in Bay St. Louis, Miss.

"We are extremely pleased to have Evan as our head football coach and look forward to what he can accomplish leading Webb's program. He has much experience in building relationships with young people in ways that allow him to teach and coach them to develop, build honor, integrity, and the pursuit of excellence," said Ken Cheeseman, Webb head of school.

"I am very grateful to be the head football coach at Webb. I have enjoyed getting to know and building relationships with the administration, coaches, teachers, parents, and players thus far," said Gay. "I am a Tennessean and in 2005 left Tennessee for the U.S. Army Infantry. During my time in the Army, I served two tours in Operation Iraqi Freedom, so it has been a long time since I have called Tennessee home. I have a huge family that lives all over middle Tennessee, and I am looking forward to spending time with all of them again."

Coach Evan Gay

He added, "The focus for Webb to be great at academics, arts, and athletics has ignited an exciting and positive atmosphere and culture on campus, and that was something of which I wanted my family to be a part. I think this team has a lot of potential, and I am looking forward to getting to work and establishing a championship football program."

Gay earned a B.S. in exercise physiology and M.S. in sports administration from The University of Mary Hardin-Baylor in Belton, Texas.

"In 2018, I was very fortunate to start my football coaching career at the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor. That season we went 15-0 and won the NCAA DIII National Championship. I had the tremendous opportunity to learn from Texas Football Hall of Fame Coach Pete Fredenburg, which has given me a great foundation on which to build my coaching philosophy."

After that season, he was hired as the offensive coordinator for Covenant Christian Academy in Colleyville, Texas. During his two seasons there, the team went to the final four and then in 2020 went undefeated and won the state championship.

"I am bringing championship experience to Webb, and my expectations are to compete for a state championship every year," Gay said. "During that process, we are going to set a high standard for our student-athletes and hold them accountable in the classroom and on and off the field. Our players will be leaders on campus, in class, and in our community."

Director of Athletics Scott Dorsett added, "We are excited in the Webb Athletic Department to have Evan Gay as the next head football coach. I'm looking forward to watching Coach Gay build a football program that is based on the vision of Webb Athletics. Coach Gay comes to us with a great background of coaching and leading young men. He and his family will make a huge impact in the Webb community."

Gay succeeds Kyle Turnbow, who served as Webb football head coach for two years and resigned in February.

Saudi-paid players no longer eligible to play PGA Tour

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

Dustin Johnson and Phil Mickelson launched tee shots in the Saudi-funded golf league on Thursday, and it wasn't long before the PGA Tour said its players who took part were no longer welcome, even if they already had resigned.

PGA Tour Commissioner Jay Monahan held a hard line on his pledge that players could choose one tour or the other, but not both.

Those who had resigned from the PGA Tour — Graeme McDowell said he did so 30 minutes before he teed off — were no longer eligible on any PGA Tour circuit. Those who remained members, such as Mickelson, were suspended.

"These players have made their choice or their own financial-based reasons," Monahan said in a memo to his membership. "But they can't demand the same PGA Tour membership benefits, considerations, opportunities and platform as you."

Ian Poulter said he would appeal the ruling. McDowell said he wanted to "keep the high moral ground" by resigning to try to keep litigation to a minimum. He thinks suspensions are a healthy way to go about business. Mickelson had nothing to say except that he didn't want to talk about the PGA Tour in his first tournament in four months, only to confirm he will play all eight of the LIV events, five of which will be in the United States.

When told that people were interested in his situation, Mickelson replied, "I'm very flattered so many people are interested."

Still to be determined is whether those players are ever welcome back. For now, Monahan made it clear that the suspensions include the Presidents Cup — the International team (countries outside Europe) is determined by the world ranking.

Monahan said the players who resigned will have their names removed from the PGA Tour standings — FedEx Cup and Presidents Cup — after this week. He said the tour will make sure those who haven't resigned will not affect rankings on various lists of tour players.

The USGA already has said eligible players can still compete in the U.S. Open next week. The PGA Tour does not run the majors.

PGA champion Justin Thomas and four-time major champion Rory McIlroy welcomed the decision from the tour stop this week at the Canadian Open.

"I think anybody that's shocked clearly hasn't been listening to the message that Jay and everybody's been putting out," Thomas said. "They took that risk going into it, whether they thought it was a risk or not. I have great belief and great confidence in the PGA Tour and where we're going and continuing to grow to, and those guys just aren't going to be a part of it."

Ten players have resigned from the PGA Tour, a list that includes Johnson and Sergio Garcia. Mickelson, who has lifetime membership with 45 PGA Tour titles, is among those who has not. > See PGA, Page 2C

Oklahoma repeats softball national title

By CLIFF BRUNT
AP Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY — Jocelyn Alo and Tiare Jennings put Oklahoma on the map of a repeat national championship with their stellar play throughout the Women's College World Series.

Their teammates brought it home.

Kinzie Hansen and Grace Lyons hit three-run homers, Jayda Coleman made spectacular defensive plays and No. 1 seeded Oklahoma defeated Texas 10-5 on Thursday night to win its second straight title. Alo, the two-time USA Softball Collegiate Player of the Year, was named Most Outstanding Player. She hit .667 for the World Series, tied Jennings for a series-record five home runs and set a series mark with 12 runs scored.

Alo ends her career with a Division I record 122 home runs. Most important to her, she ended one of the greatest college careers with a win.

"These are the moments that I'll remember forever," she said. "I'm just happy to be going out top and to just know that all the hard work we put in paid off."

The Sooners (59-3) claimed the best-of-three series against their Big 12 rival 2-0 after winning Game 1 on Wednesday 16-1 with a record six home runs. It was Oklahoma's sixth overall national championship and fifth in the past nine World Series.

Alo hit a hard single in her final at-bat in the sixth inning and later scored. In the seventh, she stepped in to play left field and caught two fly balls for outs before leaving the game to a standing ovation.

The future looks bright for the Sooners. Jennings — just a sophomore — set a World Series record with 15 RBIs. Coleman is a sophomore, too.

And then there's Oklahoma's Jordy Bahl (22-1). The NFCA Freshman of the Year settled down after a rough start. She allowed two runs and four hits in four innings.

"We're all competitors, and when you are a competitor, if there's something else out there you can go get, you're going to want to get it," Bahl said. "So I don't ever worry about us ever losing our hunger to win more national championships. I'm going to enjoy this one."

Texas wasn't even expected to reach the World Series, but the Longhorns expected a better performance. > See Title, Page 2C

LIV Golf, run by Greg Norman and funded by Saudi Arabia's sovereign wealth fund, responded to the tour's decision by calling it vindictive and divisive.

"It's troubling that the tour, an organization dedicated to creating opportunities for golfers to play the game, is the entity blocking golfers from playing," LIV Golf said. "This certainly is not the last word on this topic. The era of free agency is beginning as we are proud to have a full field of players joining us in London, and beyond."

At issue is players competing without a conflicting event release from the PGA Tour.

Players typically receive three such releases a year for tournaments overseas. Monahan denied releases for the LIV Golf Invitational because it is an eight-tournament series that plans to compete directly with the PGA Tour in the United States.

The tour does not allow releases for events in North America.

"We have followed the tournament regulations from start to finish in responding to those players who have decided to turn their backs on the PGA Tour by willfully violating a regulation," he wrote.

LIV Golf has paid enormous signing fees, with The Daily Telegraph reporting $150 million for Johnson and Mickelson declining to dispute reports he was paid $200 million. Both are more than Tiger Woods' career earnings on the PGA Tour.

Norman has said LIV would support the players even if it wound up in the courts. McDowell said some players already have spoken to lawyers.

"We haven't been issued releases. We feel like we should have been issued releases. We've done it for the last 20 years, operated all over the world," McDowell said. "Listen, we all know the situation is about something bigger. It's competition and it's not liked. They are having to play the game the way they feel they have to play it, which is playing hard ball."

The European tour has not said whether it would suspend its players. It has an alliance with the PGA Tour commercially, including the first co-sanctioned events this year on both sides of the Atlantic Ocean.

The first test for PGA Tour players figures to be the Travelers Championship in Connecticut, the week after the U.S. Open. Johnson was among those listed in the field.

The LIV Golf Invitational was being streamed on YouTube and Facebook. Before the opening round, Norman said he was thrilled to see an effort 30 years in the making come to fruition.

formance than they gave in Game 1. Texas coach Mike White called Wednesday's loss to Oklahoma embarrassing and thought Thursday's effort was better.

"My job was to pick them back up, (have them) come back out and fight," White said. "Do the Texas fight. I thought we did that. I thought we fought well. Just didn't turn out our way."

Texas pitcher Estelle Czech (13-2) began Thursday's game with three shutout innings, but ran into trouble in the fourth and fifth and was replaced.

Mia Scott hit a three-run homer and JJ Smith had two hits for the Longhorns (47-22-1), who had survived six elimination games in NCAA tournament play before Thursday.

"I think it was all worth it in the end to say that we left it all out there and emptied our gas tanks to get to where we are," Texas catcher Mary Iakopo said.

The Longhorns looked ready to compete on Thursday. They loaded the bases with no outs in the first and scored two runs, but Coleman jumped above the fence for a spectacular grab that robbed Courtney Day of a two-run homer and ended the inning.

"I have seen Jayda do that over and over and over in practice, but when it's in a game and she has your back as well as everyone else on our defense, that stuff fires me up more than any strikeout ever will," Bahl said. "It gives us momentum and really just lets me take a deep breath because they got me."

Oklahoma finally got on the board in the fourth. After the Sooners got their first run following a throwing error, Taylon Snow's RBI single tied the game at 2-all.

In the fourth, Coleman had another defensive gem, throwing out a Texas runner at second from the warning track.

Alyssa Brito's RBI double in the fifth gave Oklahoma the lead for the first time, and Hansen's blast later in the inning put the Sooners up 6-2.

Ryan finding perfect fit in Colts offense, locker room

By MICHAEL MAROT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Matt Ryan followed his regular routine this off-season.

He helped fine-tune the playbook, broke down last season's game tapes and met with coaches and teammates. Only this time, he was working with a new team — the Indianapolis Colts.

On Thursday, the 37-year-old Ryan completed his first offseason workouts outside Atlanta by saying he felt more comfortable and confident about running coach Frank Reich's offense.

"I feel like personally like I'm a lot further along when it comes to terminology and understanding what we're trying to do offensively," Ryan said. "All in all, I think everyone's pleased with how the last few weeks have gone."

For the 15-year veteran, this is a first.

While coaching changes forced Ryan to learn multiple offenses in Atlanta and the NFL's constantly changing rosters helped him break in dozens of teammates, Ryan has not been the new face of the locker room since the Falcons drafted him No. 3 overall in 2008.

Back then the former Boston College star was the hand-picked successor to Michael Vick and hyped as a future superstar.

Ryan didn't disappoint. He was the Offensive Rookie of the Year, the 2016 league MVP, a four-time Pro Bowler and the second quarterback to lead the Falcons to a Super Bowl. He left as the franchise's most successful and prolific quarterback.

Now he's starting over with another team seeking quarterback stability and, so far, it seems like a perfect match. He was sharp in practice.

"He did everything right," Reich said. "Great leadership, great play, great collaborating as an offensive staff with him to kind of work in some of the things we do that kind of suit him and his style. We got to learn a few things about him and pick his brain about things he did and the favorite things he did in Atlanta."

Indy believes Ryan can be at least a two-year solution after opening each of the past five seasons with a different starting quarterback. The streak will be extended to six Sept. 11 in Houston.

Indy thought it had a fix last year when they acquired Carson Wentz in a deal with Philadelphia. But after two straight losses to end the season cost the Colts a playoff spot, they sent Wentz to Washington despite having only two other quarterbacks on the roster, Sam Ehlinger and James Morgan, and no backup plan.

Two weeks later, everything changed when the Falcons opted to pursue then-Houston quarterback Deshaun Watson and general manager Chris Ballard inquired about Ryan. While the Watson deal fell through, Ryan's sudden availability for a third-round pick made it a no-brainer for Ballard.

The result: Ryan has been embraced by everyone, even those he's quizzed in the hallways.

"Love him," running back Nyheim Hines said last month. "He's kind of reminiscent of Philip (Rivers) with his command. He doesn't know the playbook as well as Philip yet but just his detail, his leadership, him talking to us after every route, coming and talking to every guy. It's great."

Not everything went as smoothly as Ryan's transition.

League rushing champion Jonathan Taylor missed all three days of this week's mandatory minicamp for precautionary reasons and starting safety Khari Willis sat out with an excused absence for personal reasons. Pro Bowl cornerback Kenny Moore II got hurt on Tuesday and did not practice Wednesday or Thursday amid a continuing contract dispute.

The biggest question surrounded three-time All-Pro linebacker Darius Leonard who had back surgery Tuesday after having ankle surgery earlier this year. Leonard suggested in a Twitter post that the two injuries were connected.

Reich was less certain.

"My conversation with the trainers was maybe some connection, but they are different injuries," Reich said. "Is there some connection? Honestly, I didn't go that far into it with them at the time, so I'll need to talk to them to get further clarity of what level of connection, if any, there is."

Brady, Buccaneers back on practice field

By FRED GOODALL
AP Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tom Brady concedes a lot has happened in the four months that have passed since he announced through social media that he was walking away from the NFL after 22 seasons and seven Super Bowl championships.

For starters, the 44-year-old quarterback did an about-face and unretired six weeks later, citing "unfinished business" as one of the reasons for changing his mind and returning to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Brady subsequently also accepted a lucrative offer in broadcasting to join Fox as a football analyst after his playing career ends.

For now, though, he says he's just focused on helping the Bucs win another championship.

"It feels like a long time ago. A lot has happened between now and then," Brady said Thursday, shrugging off a question about why he hung up his cleats in early February only to reverse the decision in mid-March.

"I feel like I've kind of moved past that point to be honest. But I'm happy I'm back with my teammates. It's going to be a great year," he added at the conclusion of the team's three-day mandatory minicamp. "We have high expectations for what we're trying to accomplish."

Brady also talked about his relationship with former coach Bruce Arians, who retired a little more than two weeks after the NFL's career passing leader announced his return, and the future of long-time teammate Rob Gronkowski.

He spoke less candidly about whether he had discussions with the Miami Dolphins this spring about the prospect of moving to South Florida in some capacity — possibly as a part owner, player or even both.

"Again, I had a lot of conversations with a lot of people, as I have for the last three or four years in my career, about different opportunities when I'm done playing football. I kind of made a decision about what I wanted to do, and I'll get to be in the game of football," Brady said.

"I think for me, the most important thing is where I'm at now and what I hope to do for this team," the quarterback added. "That's been my commitment to this team and this organization. It's been so much fun for me to come here two years ago. It's been about 2½ now, and it's been an incredible part of my football journey. And it's not over."

Hernández wants MLB suit reinstated

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers for Ángel Hernández claim Major League Baseball manipulated the umpire's evaluations, renewing the allegation in an attempt to reinstate the racial discrimination lawsuit he lost last year.

Hernandez's lawyers made the claim in a filing Tuesday to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, trying to overturn the summary judgment U.S. District Judge J. Paul Oetken granted to MLB in March 2021.

The Cuba-born

Hernández was hired as a big league umpire in 1993. He sued in 2017, alleging he was discriminated against because he had not been assigned to the World Series since 2005 and had been passed over for crew chief.

Hernández served as an interim crew chief from 2011-16, at the start of the pandemic-delayed 2020 season and for part of the 2021 season but has not been made a permanent crew chief.

Citing the 2011-16 seasons, Hernández's attorneys said in the brief to the appellate court that "MLB manipulated Mr. Hernandez's year-end evaluations in order to make his job performance appear worse than it actually was. Mr. Hernández's year-end evaluations for the 2011-2016 seasons do not even come close to accurately summarizing Mr. Hernández's actual performance in those seasons."

In an August 2020 brief responding to a similar allegation, MLB called the claim "devoid of merit."

Hernández's lawyers wrote "the District Court failed to follow existent precedent applicable to discrimination cases in which the pool of minority individuals eligible for promotion is too small to yield a statistically significant conclusion as to disparate impact."

Kerwin Danley became the first Black crew chief in 2020 and Alfonso Marquez became the first Hispanic crew chief born outside the United States. Richie Garcia, who was born in Florida, was the first Hispanic crew chief from 1985-89.

California native Gregory ready to host full show at Sonoma

By JENNA FRYER
AP Auto Racing Writer

Kyle Larson took a swig of the winner's wine, tilted his head back and spit it in the air. He couldn't have predicted the wind catching hold of the vino and blowing it all over new track general manager Jill Gregory.

Some homecoming, eh? Gregory, a Modesto native and graduate of California Polytechnic State, returned home in early 2021 to run Sonoma Raceway as executive vice president and general manager of the picturesque road course in wine country. She'd had a longtime career with NASCAR but couldn't pass the opportunity to go home and run Sonoma when the job opened.

The track was mostly shuttered in 2020 because of the pandemic and Gregory was tasked with welcoming NASCAR back just four months after she picked up her keys to the track. Ever-changing COVID-19 restrictions in both California and Sonoma County meant Gregory was constantly having to adapt — from crowd restrictions to even holding the race at all — in the lead-up to her first NASCAR weekend.

In the end, the only true hiccup was Larson's mouthful of wine that landed all over Gregory on the victory podium.

"I think I tried to jump out of the way, but then I was like, 'Gosh, Kyle, I'm wearing my nice suit, you just got wine all over me!'" Gregory said in an interview with The Associated Press. "People asked me if I was offended, and I know Kyle, he was mortified. It was in victory lane, that's the wrap of the whole weekend, and at that moment, you are basically exhaling and things are over and fans are leaving, and the spray was quite impressive. But what actually landed on me was quite limited, so I just went about my day."

Gregory never got the red pantsuit cleaned — she joked she hopes it someday lands in the West Coast Stock Car Hall of Fame — and Larson sent her a bottle of wine from Abreu Vineyards as an apology. She's saving it for a special occasion.

That occasion could come Sunday night after Gregory concludes her second NASCAR race weekend as head of Sonoma.

Unlike last year, the track is wide open to spectators and Gregory has a full slate of action: NASCAR's truck series will race Saturday afternoon, giving Sonoma added on-track activity to what has typically been a standalone weekend for the premiere Cup Series.

The preparation hit a speedbump last week when a grass fire burned over 15 acres on Sonoma's rolling property.

"In the whole scheme of things, it was not a large fire, and it was contained within an hour of the 911 call," Gregory said. "My thought was 'I'd rather it happen a week before the race than the week of the race.'"

Gregory still has challenges ahead. Sonoma was once the destination race on the NASCAR schedule because of its location, casual schedule and its hold as one of only two road courses in a series packed with ovals.

But since the pandemic, when Sonoma went a year without a race, NASCAR has made major changes to its schedule and this year has six road courses on the calendar. Fans now have multiple choices where to go to see right and left turns.

And, there's competition for the local audience: The Golden State Warriors don't return home for the NBA Finals until Monday, but the San Francisco Giants are on a nine-day homestand that conflicts all weekend with the NASCAR race.

Gregory still thinks Sonoma offers the best bang for the buck, between on-site amenities, intense racing and all that Napa Valley has to offer its visitors.

"I'm of course biased, but I think we've got the best road course, location-wise and terrain-wise," she said. "We have some unique turns, some unique elevation, it will be interesting to see how the new Next Gen car performs on this track. I think fans are thrilled about that, but there's all been a pent-up demand for NASCAR to come back."

"Even during the pandemic, we saw a lot of interest in the San Francisco market, a little south of San Francisco, and a lot has changed in NASCAR since we last raced at Sonoma. We've got an influx of new fans and we think we've got something unique to show them."

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Prejudice, anger spread on social media

By AMANDA SEITZ
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The social media posts are of a distinct type. They hint darkly that the CIA or the FBI are behind mass shootings. They traffic in racist, sexist and homophobic tropes. They revel in the prospect of a “white boy summer.”

White nationalists and supremacists, on accounts often run by young men, are building thriving, macho communities across social media platforms like Instagram, Telegram and TikTok, evading detection with coded hashtags and innuendo.

Their snarky memes and trendy videos are riling up thousands of followers on divisive issues, like abortion, guns, immigration and LGBTQ rights. The Department of Homeland Security warned Tuesday that such skewed framing of the subjects could drive extremists to violently attack public places across the U.S. in the coming months.

These type of threats and racist ideology have become so commonplace on social media that it’s nearly impossible for law enforcement to separate internet ramblings from dangerous, potentially violent people, Michael German, who infiltrated white supremacy groups as an FBI agent, told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Tuesday.

“It seems intuitive that effective social media monitoring might provide clues to help law enforcement prevent attacks,” German said. “After all, the white supremacist attackers in Buffalo, Pittsburgh and El Paso all gained access to materials online and expressed their hateful, violent intentions on social media.”

But, he continued, “so many false alarms drown out threats.”

DHS and the FBI are also working with state and local agencies to raise awareness about the increased threat around the U.S. in the coming months.

The heightened concern comes just weeks after an 18-year-old white man entered a supermarket in Buffalo, New York, with the goal of killing as many Black patrons as possible. He gunned down 10.

That shooter claims to have been introduced to neo-Nazi websites and a livestream of the 2019 Christchurch, New Zealand, mosque shootings on the anonymous, online messaging board 4Chan. In 2018, the white man who gunned down 11 at a Pittsburgh synagogue shared his anti-semitic rants on Gab, a site that attracts extremists. The year before, a 21-year-old white man who killed 23 people at a Walmart in the largely Hispanic city of El Paso, Texas, shared his anti-immigrant hate on the messaging board 8Chan.

References to hate-filled ideologies are more elusive across mainstream platforms like Twitter, Instagram, TikTok and Telegram. To avoid detection from artificial intelligence-powered moderation, users don’t use obvious terms like “white genocide” or “white power” in conversation.

They signal their beliefs in other ways: a Christian cross emoji in their profile or words like “anglo” or “pilled,” a term embraced by far-right chatrooms, in usernames. Most recently, some of these accounts have borrowed the pop song “White Boy Summer” to cheer on the leaked Supreme Court draft opinion on Roe v. Wade, according to an analysis by Signal Labs, a social media intelligence firm.

Facebook and Instagram owner Meta banned praise and support for white nationalist and separatist movements in 2019 on company platforms, but the social media shift to subtlety makes it difficult to moderate the posts.

“We know these groups are determined to find new ways to try to evade our policies, and that’s why we invest in people and technology and work with outside experts to constantly update and improve our enforcement efforts,” David Tessler, the head of dangerous organizations and individuals policy for Meta, said in a statement.

A closer look reveals hundreds of posts steeped in sexist, antisemitic, racist and homophobic content.

In one Instagram post identified by The Associated Press, an account called White Primacy appeared to post a photo of a billboard that describes a common way Jewish people were exterminated during the Holocaust.

“We’re just 75 years since the gas chambers. So no, a billboard calling out bigotry against Jews isn’t an overreaction,” the pictured billboard said.

The caption of the post, however, denied gas chambers were used at all. The post’s comments were even worse: “If what they said really happened, we’d be in such a better place,” one user commented. “We’re going to finish what they started someday,” another wrote.

The account, which had more than 4,000 followers, was immediately removed Tuesday, after the AP asked

Meta about it. Meta has banned posts that deny the Holocaust on its platform since 2020.

U.S. extremists are mimicking the social media strategy used by the Islamic State group, which turned to subtle language and images across Telegram, Facebook and YouTube a decade ago to evade the industry-wide crackdown of the terrorist group’s online presence, said Miana Bloom, a communications professor at Georgia State University.

“They’re trying to recruit,” said Bloom, who has researched social media use for both Islamic State terrorists and far-right extremists. “We’re starting to see some of the same patterns with ISIS and the far-right. The coded speech, the ways to evade AI. The groups were appealing to a younger and younger crowd.”

For example, on Instagram, one of the most popular apps for teens and young adults, white supremacists amplify each other’s content daily and point their followers to new accounts.

In recent weeks, a cluster of those accounts has turned its sights on Pride Month, with some calling for gay marriage to be “re-criminalized” and others using the #Pride or rainbow flag emoji to post homophobic memes.

Law enforcement agencies are already monitoring an active threat from a young Arizona man who says on his Telegram accounts that he is “leading the war” against retail giant Target for its Pride Month merchandise and children’s clothing line and has promised to “hunt LGBT supporters” at the stores. In videos posted to his Instagram and YouTube accounts, sometimes filmed at Target stores, he encourages others to go the stores as well.

Target said in a statement that it is working with local and national law enforcement agencies who are investigating the videos.

As society becomes more accepting of LGBTQ rights, the issue may be especially triggering for young men who have held traditional beliefs around relationships and marriage, Bloom said.

“That might explain the vulnerability to radical belief systems: A lot of the beliefs that they grew up with that they held rather firmly are being shaken,” she said. “That’s where it becomes an opportunity for these groups: They’re lashing out, and they’re picking on things that are very different.”

SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEE’S SALE

Sale at public auction will be on July 14, 2022 at 12:00PM local time, at the south door, Bedford County Courthouse, 1 Public Square, Shelbyville, Tennessee pursuant to Deed of Trust executed by Linda A. Macavey and Lisa M. Macavey, to Richard F. Croley, Trustee, as trustee for JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. on April 21, 2016 at Book TD855, Page 273; conducted by LLG Trustee TN LLC, having been appointed Substitute or Successor Trustee, all of record in the Bedford County Register’s Office. Default has occurred in the performance of the covenants, terms, and conditions of said Deed of Trust and the entire indebtedness has been declared due and payable. Party Entitled to Enforce the Debt: JPMorgan Chase Bank, National Association, its successors and assigns.

The real estate located in Bedford County, Tennessee, and described in the said Deed of Trust will be sold to the highest call bidder. The terms of the said Deed of Trust may be modified by other instruments appearing in the public record. Additional identifying information regarding the collateral property is below and is believed to be accurate, but no representation or warrant is intended. Street Address: 673 Coopertown Rd, Unionville, Tennessee 37180 Parcel Number: 010F A 030.00 Current Owner(s) of Property: Lisa M. Macavey This sale is subject to, without limitation, all matters shown on any applicable recorded plat; any unpaid taxes; any restrictive covenants, easements, or setback lines that may be applicable; any statutory right of redemption of any governmental agency, state or federal; any prior liens or encumbrances including those created by a fixture filing or any applicable homeowners’ association dues or assessments; all claims or other matters, whether of record or not, which may encumber the purchaser’s title and any matter that an accurate survey of the premises might disclose. The following parties may claim an interest in the above-referenced property to be affected by the foreclosure: any judgment creditor or lien holder with an interest subordinate to the said Deed of Trust or any party claiming by, through, or under any of the foregoing. Such parties known to the Substitute Trustee may include: All parties claiming by, through, or under Linda Macavey. Terms of Sale will be public auction, for cash, free and clear of rights of homestead, redemption and dower to the extent disclaimed or inapplicable, and the rights of Linda A. Macavey and Lisa M. Macavey, and those claiming through him/her/it/them. Any right of equity of redemption, statutory and otherwise, and homestead are waived in accord with the terms of said Deed of Trust, and the title is believed to be good, but the undersigned will sell and convey only as Substitute Trustee. The right is reserved to adjourn the day of the sale to another day, time, and place certain without further publication, upon announcement at the time and place for the sale set forth above. If you purchase a property at the foreclosure sale, the entire purchase price is due and payable at the conclusion of the auction in the form of a certified/bank check made payable to or endorsed to LOGS Legal Group LLP. No personal checks will be accepted. To this end, you must bring sufficient funds to outbid the lender and any other bidders. Insufficient funds will not be accepted. Amounts received in excess of the winning bid will be refunded to the successful purchaser at the time the foreclosure deed is delivered. This property is being sold with the express reservation that the sale is subject to confirmation by the lender or trustee. This sale may be rescinded only by the Substitute Trustee at any time. If the Substitute Trustee rescinds the sale, the purchaser shall only be entitled to a return of any money paid towards the purchase price and shall have no other recourse. Once the purchaser tenders the purchase price, the Substitute Trustee may deem the sale final in which case the purchaser shall have no remedy. The real property will be sold AS IS, WHERE IS, with no warranties or representations of any kind, express or implied, including without limitation, warranties regarding condition of the property or marketability of title. This office may be a debt collector. This may be an attempt to collect a debt and any information obtained may be used for that purpose. Uvalde school police chief defends shooting response

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas school police chief criticized for his actions during one of the deadliest classroom shootings in U.S. history said in his first extensive comments, published Thursday, that he did not consider himself the person in charge as the massacre unfolded and assumed someone else had taken control of the law enforcement response.

Pete Arredondo, the police chief of the Uvalde school district, also told the Texas Tribune that he intentionally left behind both his police and campus radios before entering Robb Elementary School. An 18-year-old gunman killed 19 children and two teachers behind a locked classroom door that the chief said was reinforced with a steel jamb and could not be kicked in.

Poor radio communications is among the concerns raised about how police handled the May 24 shooting and why they didn’t confront the gunman for more than an hour, even as anguished parents outside the school urged officers to go in. Separately, The New York Times reported Thursday that documents show police waited for protective equipment as they delayed entering the campus, even as they became aware that some victims needed medical treatment.

Arredondo told the Tribune that from the hallway of the school he used his cell phone to call for tactical gear, a sniper and keys to get inside the classroom. He said he held back from the door for 40 minutes to avoid provoking gunfire and tried dozens of keys brought to him, but that, one-by-one, they failed to work.

“Each time I tried a key I was just praying,” he told the Tribune.

In the more than two weeks since the shooting, Arredondo’s actions have come under intensifying scrutiny from both state officials and experts trained in mass shooting responses. Steven McCraw, the head of the Texas Department of Public Safety, has said the school police chief, who he described as the incident commander, made the “wrong decision” to not order officers to breach the classroom more quickly to confront the gunman.

But Arredondo, who told the Tribune he believed that carrying radios would slow him down as he entered the school and that he knew that radios did not work in some school buildings, said he never considered himself the scene’s incident commander and did not give any instruction that police should not attempt to breach the building.

“I didn’t issue any orders,” Arredondo said. “I called for assistance and asked for an extraction tool to open the door.”

Arredondo has not responded to repeated interview requests and questions from The Associated Press. Arredondo’s account and records obtained by the Times were published Thursday as law enforcement and state officials have struggled to present an accurate timeline and details. They have also made frequent corrections to previous statements, and no information about the police response has been formally released by investigators since the days that followed the attack.

But, he continued, “so many false alarms drown out threats.”

DHS and the FBI are also working with state and local agencies to raise awareness about the increased threat around the U.S. in the coming months.

The heightened concern comes just weeks after an 18-year-old white man entered a supermarket in Buffalo, New York, with the goal of killing as many Black patrons as possible. He gunned down 10.

That shooter claims to have been introduced to neo-Nazi websites and a livestream of the 2019 Christchurch, New Zealand, mosque shootings on the anonymous, online messaging board 4Chan. In 2018, the white man who gunned down 11 at a Pittsburgh synagogue shared his anti-semitic rants on Gab, a site that attracts extremists. The year before, a 21-year-old white man who killed 23 people at a Walmart in the largely Hispanic city of El Paso, Texas, shared his anti-immigrant hate on the messaging board 8Chan.

References to hate-filled ideologies are more elusive across mainstream platforms like Twitter, Instagram, TikTok and Telegram. To avoid detection from artificial intelligence-powered moderation, users don’t use obvious terms like “white genocide” or “white power” in conversation.

They signal their beliefs in other ways: a Christian cross emoji in their profile or words like “anglo” or “pilled,” a term embraced by far-right chatrooms, in usernames. Most recently, some of these accounts have borrowed the pop song “White Boy Summer” to cheer on the leaked Supreme Court draft opinion on Roe v. Wade, according to an analysis by Signal Labs, a social media intelligence firm.

Facebook and Instagram owner Meta banned praise and support for white nationalist and separatist movements in 2019 on company platforms, but the social media shift to subtlety makes it difficult to moderate the posts.

“We know these groups are determined to find new ways to try to evade our policies, and that’s why we invest in people and technology and work with outside experts to constantly update and improve our enforcement efforts,” David Tessler, the head of dangerous organizations and individuals policy for Meta, said in a statement.

A closer look reveals hundreds of posts steeped in sexist, antisemitic, racist and homophobic content.

In one Instagram post identified by The Associated Press, an account called White Primacy appeared to post a photo of a billboard that describes a common way Jewish people were exterminated during the Holocaust.

“We’re just 75 years since the gas chambers. So no, a billboard calling out bigotry against Jews isn’t an overreaction,” the pictured billboard said.

The caption of the post, however, denied gas chambers were used at all. The post’s comments were even worse: “If what they said really happened, we’d be in such a better place,” one user commented. “We’re going to finish what they started someday,” another wrote.

The account, which had more than 4,000 followers, was immediately removed Tuesday, after the AP asked

Meta about it. Meta has banned posts that deny the Holocaust on its platform since 2020.

U.S. extremists are mimicking the social media strategy used by the Islamic State group, which turned to subtle language and images across Telegram, Facebook and YouTube a decade ago to evade the industry-wide crackdown of the terrorist group’s online presence, said Miana Bloom, a communications professor at Georgia State University.

“They’re trying to recruit,” said Bloom, who has researched social media use for both Islamic State terrorists and far-right extremists. “We’re starting to see some of the same patterns with ISIS and the far-right. The coded speech, the ways to evade AI. The groups were appealing to a younger and younger crowd.”

For example, on Instagram, one of the most popular apps for teens and young adults, white supremacists amplify each other’s content daily and point their followers to new accounts.

In recent weeks, a cluster of those accounts has turned its sights on Pride Month, with some calling for gay marriage to be “re-criminalized” and others using the #Pride or rainbow flag emoji to post homophobic memes.

Law enforcement agencies are already monitoring an active threat from a young Arizona man who says on his Telegram accounts that he is “leading the war” against retail giant Target for its Pride Month merchandise and children’s clothing line and has promised to “hunt LGBT supporters” at the stores. In videos posted to his Instagram and YouTube accounts, sometimes filmed at Target stores, he encourages others to go the stores as well.

Target said in a statement that it is working with local and national law enforcement agencies who are investigating the videos.

As society becomes more accepting of LGBTQ rights, the issue may be especially triggering for young men who have held traditional beliefs around relationships and marriage, Bloom said.

SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEE’S SALE

Sale at public auction will be on July 14, 2022 at 12:00PM local time, at the south door, Bedford County Courthouse, 1 Public Square, Shelbyville, Tennessee pursuant to Deed of Trust executed by Linda A. Macavey and Lisa M. Macavey, to Richard F. Croley, Trustee, as trustee for JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. on April 21, 2016 at Book TD855, Page 273; conducted by LLG Trustee TN LLC, having been appointed Substitute or Successor Trustee, all of record in the Bedford County Register’s Office. Default has occurred in the performance of the covenants, terms, and conditions of said Deed of Trust and the entire indebtedness has been declared due and payable. Party Entitled to Enforce the Debt: JPMorgan Chase Bank, National Association, its successors and assigns.

The real estate located in Bedford County, Tennessee, and described in the said Deed of Trust will be sold to the highest call bidder. The terms of the said Deed of Trust may be modified by other instruments appearing in the public record. Additional identifying information regarding the collateral property is below and is believed to be accurate, but no representation or warrant is intended. Street Address: 673 Coopertown Rd, Unionville, Tennessee 37180 Parcel Number: 010F A 030.00 Current Owner(s) of Property: Lisa M. Macavey This sale is subject to, without limitation, all matters shown on any applicable recorded plat; any unpaid taxes; any restrictive covenants, easements, or setback lines that may be applicable; any statutory right of redemption of any governmental agency, state or federal; any prior liens or encumbrances including those created by a fixture filing or any applicable homeowners’ association dues or assessments; all claims or other matters, whether of record or not, which may encumber the purchaser’s title and any matter that an accurate survey of the premises might disclose. The following parties may claim an interest in the above-referenced property to be affected by the foreclosure: any judgment creditor or lien holder with an interest subordinate to the said Deed of Trust or any party claiming by, through, or under any of the foregoing. Such parties known to the Substitute Trustee may include: All parties claiming by, through, or under Linda Macavey. Terms of Sale will be public auction, for cash, free and clear of rights of homestead, redemption and dower to the extent disclaimed or inapplicable, and the rights of Linda A. Macavey and Lisa M. Macavey, and those claiming through him/her/it/them. Any right of equity of redemption, statutory and otherwise, and homestead are waived in accord with the terms of said Deed of Trust, and the title is believed to be good, but the undersigned will sell and convey only as Substitute Trustee. The right is reserved to adjourn the day of the sale to another day, time, and place certain without further publication, upon announcement at the time and place for the sale set forth above. If you purchase a property at the foreclosure sale, the entire purchase price is due and payable at the conclusion of the auction in the form of a certified/bank check made payable to or endorsed to LOGS Legal Group LLP. No personal checks will be accepted. To this end, you must bring sufficient funds to outbid the lender and any other bidders. Insufficient funds will not be accepted. Amounts received in excess of the winning bid will be refunded to the successful purchaser at the time the foreclosure deed is delivered. This property is being sold with the express reservation that the sale is subject to confirmation by the lender or trustee. This sale may be rescinded only by the Substitute Trustee at any time. If the Substitute Trustee rescinds the sale, the purchaser shall only be entitled to a return of any money paid towards the purchase price and shall have no other recourse. Once the purchaser tenders the purchase price, the Substitute Trustee may deem the sale final in which case the purchaser shall have no remedy. The real property will be sold AS IS, WHERE IS, with no warranties or representations of any kind, express or implied, including without limitation, warranties regarding condition of the property or marketability of title. This office may be a debt collector. This may be an attempt to collect a debt and any information obtained may be used for that purpose. Uvalde school police chief defends shooting response

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas school police chief criticized for his actions during one of the deadliest classroom shootings in U.S. history said in his first extensive comments, published Thursday, that he did not consider himself the person in charge as the massacre unfolded and assumed someone else had taken control of the law enforcement response.

Pete Arredondo, the police chief of the Uvalde school district, also told the Texas Tribune that he intentionally left behind both his police and campus radios before entering Robb Elementary School. An 18-year-old gunman killed 19 children and two teachers behind a locked classroom door that the chief said was reinforced with a steel jamb and could not be kicked in.

Poor radio communications is among the concerns raised about how police handled the May 24 shooting and why they didn’t confront the gunman for more than an hour, even as anguished parents outside the school urged officers to go in. Separately, The New York Times reported Thursday that documents show police waited for protective equipment as they delayed entering the campus, even as they became aware that some victims needed medical treatment.

Arredondo told the Tribune that from the hallway of the school he used his cell phone to call for tactical gear, a sniper and keys to get inside the classroom. He said he held back from the door for 40 minutes to avoid provoking gunfire and tried dozens of keys brought to him, but that, one-by-one, they failed to work.

“Each time I tried a key I was just praying,” he told the Tribune.

In the more than two weeks since the shooting, Arredondo’s actions have come under intensifying scrutiny from both state officials and experts trained in mass shooting responses. Steven McCraw, the head of the Texas Department of Public Safety, has said the school police chief, who he described as the incident commander, made the “wrong decision” to not order officers to breach the classroom more quickly to confront the gunman.

But Arredondo, who told the Tribune he believed that carrying radios would slow him down as he entered the school and that he knew that radios did not work in some school buildings, said he never considered himself the scene’s incident commander and did not give any instruction that police should not attempt to breach the building.

“I didn’t issue any orders,” Arredondo said. “I called for assistance and asked for an extraction tool to open the door.”

Arredondo has not responded to repeated interview requests and questions from The Associated Press.

Arredondo’s account and records obtained by the Times were published Thursday as law enforcement and state officials have struggled to present an accurate timeline and details. They have also made frequent corrections to previous statements, and no information about the police response has been formally released by investigators since the days that followed the attack.
